		Expected outcome	As an Economics masters, students will develop a skill set that will serve students well for the future. Students will learn to recognize and appreciate the diversity of views that have historically been expressed or may reasonably exist about economic policies Students will also be able to collect and integrate information from a variety of sources, assessing its meaning, accuracy, and timeliness; discuss the bias and variance of possible measurement and estimation procedures; and recognize the agendas of points of view of various surveyors of data and analysis. They will also be able to frame an economic question of some public significance and evaluate, integrate, and apply information from various sources to create a cohesive, persuasive answer. Finally students will be trained in a way that they will be able to present the results of their research using appropriate economic theories, concepts, and terminology, and methods in a professional setting.

		Expected outcome	The P.G Programme in Journalism and Mass Communication is of prime importance in view of the current media scenario. After completion of degree programmes, the Masters programme in Journalism and Mass Communication is expected to help the students for either a variety of positions in media related professions or for further study. The different programmes will form the basis for anyone who want to make a career in the media industry. This programme will cover almost every aspect of the field of Journalism and Mass Communication like Electronic media, print media, advertising, public relations, corporate communications, media managements etc. This programme will familiarize the learners with the concepts, theories and models of mass communication. Thus, the P.G Programme in Journalism and Mass Communication would contribute towards accomplishment of NSOU's mission and goals by providing theoretical and applied knowledge of Journalism and Mass Communication to the prospective learners.
