Township is established for the public sector unit's employees. Port Trust is operated in the port areas for managing ports and ensuring the civic amenities in that area such as Kolkata Port Trust. A special Purpose Agency is created by the state legislature to fulfill specific objectives. They act as autonomous bodies that carry out their assigned functions independently of the urban local government. 1.6 Glossary Urban Local government- Local Government in town or city areas. Democracy- A political system by whole citizens of a state through elected representatives. Municipal Council- is an urban local government in smaller urban areas. Municipal Corporation: is an urban local government in big cities. Nagar Panchayat: is a rural-to-urban transition settlement in India and therefore a form of urban political unit comparable to a municipality. 1.7 Model Questions Long Questions ➢ Write a note on organization and Structure of Urban Local Government. Short Questions ➢ What is a Notified Area Committee? ➢ Write a Short note on Municipal Corporation ➢ Write a short note on Township ➢ What do you mean by Cantonment board
95 1.8 References 1. S.R. Maheshwari, Indian Administration, Orient BlackSwan,New Delhi, 2013 2. P. Sachdeva, Local Government in India. Noida: Pearson, 2011 3. Web archive - internet archive (no date) Web Archive - Internet Archive. Available at: https://webarchive.unesco.org/#!/ (Accessed: November 25, 2022). 4. The Constitution (74th amendment) act, 1992 background (no date). Available at: https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf (Accessed: November 25, 2022). 5. Nanda, D.A. (no date) Urban Local Government in India: Challenges and prospects. Available at: https://www.rnlkwc.ac.in/pdf/anudhyan/volume1/Urban-Local- Government-in-India-Challenges-and-Prospects-Dr-Annapurna-Nanda.pdf (Accessed: November 25, 2022). Unit-II Corporation and Municipality Structure 2.1 Learning Objectives 2.2 Introduction 2.3 Municipal Corporation 2.4 Municipality 2.5 Conclusion 2.6 Summary 2.7 Glossary 2.8 Model Questions 2.9 References 2.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, readers get the knowledge about structure, power and function of Municipal Corporation and Municipality. 2.2 Introduction

68% MATCHING BLOCK 228/321 SA 8. Local Government.docx (D111215572)

Municipal Corporation is the top most form of urban local government and is for an urban area with population above 3 lakhs.. According to W.B Munro, 'A municipal corporation is a 96 subordinate political body established by the authority of law, its existence evidence, by general or special character, with a corporate name, with defined limits and population and with delegated powers of local government'. According to Holmberg, municipal corporations face a dual role in society, whereas the actions of the municipal corporations are directed towards the welfare of the society, but at the same time have to be executed in business-like terms. Municipal corporations are established in big cities like Kolkata, Mumbai, Chennai, Delhi etc. There is no fixed criteria for the establishment of municipal corporations because the state government determines the criteria of municipal corporations. Municipality is set-up in small town areas. The basic goal for establishment of a municipality is to fulfill the civic amenities to the citizens. Municipal corporation and municipality both got the constitutional status through the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act. 2.3 Municipal Corporation Before independence there were only three municipal corporations in India. These are- the presidency towns of Kolkata, Bombay and Madras. After the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act. There are seven Municipal Corporations in West Bengal alone. Structure and Authority of Municipal Corporation As per the constitution, the composition of municipal corporations has been decided by the state legislature. The municipal corporation consists of the ward committee. Each ward member is elected by the direct election through adult franchise. Duration of Municipal Corporation The term of municipal corporation is five years. The election of the Municipal Corporation shall be held before the expiry of its term

78% MATCHING BLOCK 233/321 SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

and before the expiry of six months from the date of its dissolution. The Corporation Council: Eligibility and Disqualification The councilors are elected for five years of term. The minimum age requirement for councilors is 21. The city has been divided into many wards. Anyone citizen can be a councilor if he/she is a voter of the ward. The State Government may remove a Councilor if the Councilor abuses his powers or if he is mentally or physically incapacitated.

97 Reservation of Seats According to the Constitution
In order to provide for adequate representation of Schedule Caste(SC), Schedule Tribes(

88% MATCHING BLOCK 229/321 W

ST) and of women in the municipal corporation bodies provisions have been made for reservation of seats. The proportion of seats to be reserved for SC/ST to the total number of seats shall be the same as the proportion of the population of SC/ST in the corporation area. The reservation would be made in respect of seats to be filled by direct elections only. Not less than one-third of the total number of seats reserved for SC/ST shall be reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. This is a mandatory provision. In respect of women, the seats shall be reserved to the extent of not less than one-third of the total number of seats. This includes seats reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. These reservations will apply for direct elections only. This is also a mandatory provision. There will be no bar on State Legislatures from making provisions for reservation of seats in any municipality or office of Chairperson in the municipalities in favour of the backward class of citizens. This is an optional provision.

Ward Committee The constitution gives the provision of the ward committee. The

84% MATCHING BLOCK 230/321 W

ward committee consists of one or more wards within the territorial area of the municipal corporation. The counselor shall be the chairman of the ward committee which consists of one ward only and in case of the ward committee with two or more wards the councilors are representing their wards. The term of the chairperson of the ward committee is one year and he or she is eligible for reelection. An officer as a secretary can be appointed to the ward committee by the municipal corporation. Standing Committee Each municipal corporation has standing committees. The standing committee consists of the Mayor, Senior Deputy Mayor, and Councillors from amongst members.The Mayor is the Chairperson of the Standing Committee. The ex-officio member of the standing committee is the commissioner and he or she has the voting right in the committee. Subject to the overall control and supervision of the Corporation, the power to manage the affairs of the Corporation, exercise any power and perform any function of the Corporation is vested in the Standing Committee. Mayor The newly elected councilors elect the mayor at the first meeting of the corporation. His term of office is five years. He may resign before the expiration of this term. He may be removed . A special meeting of the Corporation shall be called to discuss the motion for the removal of the Mayor. A special meeting shall be called upon the written demand of one-third of the elected members of the Council. The mayor is removed if the majority of elected councilors support the 98 removal motion. However, no removal motion can be raised against the mayor within six months of his election. Sources of Income of Municipal Corporation The residents of the municipal corporation pay several taxes like property tax, water tax, housing tax etc. These are the main sources of income of municipal corporations besides these municipal corporations may introduce taxation on advertisement, trade, carriages, carts, tolls etc. Functions of Municipal Corporation Schedule Twelve of the Indian Constitution has provided 18 functions of the municipal corporations. They are- 1.

52% MATCHING BLOCK 231/321 W

87% MATCHING BLOCK 232/321 W

97% MATCHING BLOCK 235/321 SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institut ... (D106063648)

Urban planning including town planning. 2. Regulation of land-use and construction of buildings. 3. Planning for economic and social development. 4. Roads and bridges. 5. Water supply for domestic, industrial and commercial purposes. 6. Public health, sanitation conservancy and solid waste management. 7. Fire services. 8. Urban forestry, protection of the environment and promotion of ecological aspects. 9. Safeguarding the interests of weaker sections of society, including the handicapped and mentally retarded. 10. Slum improvement and upgradation. 11. Urban poverty alleviation. 12. Provision of urban amenities and facilities such as parks, gardens, playgrounds. 13. Promotion of cultural, educational and aesthetic aspects. 14. Burials and burial grounds; cremations, cremation grounds; and electric crematoriums. 15. Cattle pounds; prevention of cruelty to animals. 16. Vital statistics include registration of births and deaths. 17. Public amenities including street lighting, parking lots, bus stops and public conveniences. 18. Regulation of slaughterhouses and tanneries. 2.4

Municipality Municipalities are the local governments of urban areas. Basically municipalities are established in small cities or towns. Governments can form municipalities in urban areas as per the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act, 1992. A number of criteria have to be maintained before issuing notification for creation of municipality. These are- ➢ The population density of the inhabitants of the concerned city shall not be less than 1000 per square mile.
99 ➢ The total number of inhabitants of that city shall not be less than 3000. ➢ The occupation of at least three fourths of the total adult male population of that city is mainly non-agricultural. In the original proposal the main consideration was the population of the inhabitants of the respective urban area among the conditions for the creation of the municipality. If any town in the state fulfills the above criteria, the state government can issue notification for creation of municipality in the concerned towns. It is pertinent to mention that as the state government has the power to create a municipality, the government can also change the area of the municipality. Structure and Authority of the Municipality The self-governance of small urban areas is carried out through municipalities. For example, it can be said that in West Bengal, except major cities all towns and small cities are managed by the municipalities. Duration of Municipality The term of municipality is five years. The election of the Municipality shall be held before the expiry of its term

45%	MATCHING BLOCK 234/321	W

and

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 236/321	W

before the expiry of six months from the date of its dissolution.

Councilors:Eligibility and Disqualification

72%	MATCHING BLOCK 237/321	SA	Introduction CHAPTER1.docx (D37901991)

The members of the municipality are called councilors. Councilors are elected on the basis of universal adult suffrage.

All residents of the municipality over the age of 18 are eligible to vote in this election. Being a councilor requires certain qualifications such as he or she must be a voter of the concerned municipal area, then the age should be at least twenty one years, he or she would not be a member of another municipal body or sub-division council at any level. The State Government may remove a Councilor if the Councilor abuses his powers or if he is mentally or physically incapacitated. Reservation of Seats As per the constitution. At least 1/3 of the total seats in each municipality should be reserved for women. There is reservation

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 239/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

of seats for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in every municipality.

These seats are reserved in proportion to the total population of the respective municipality. At least 1/3 of these reserved seats are to be reserved for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and women.

100 Municipal Council A council was formed with all the elected councilors elected to the municipality for five years. Members of the Council elected one from themselves as Chairman in the first session. If the members of the Council could not be elected chairman, the state government appointed one of the councilors from the council as chairman. Chairman In the administrative field, the role of the chairman is important. The chairman is the chief executive of the municipality. The tenure of the chairman is five years. He can resign himself before this specific term of tenure is over, and he may also be deported based on a written application for at least one -third of the total members of the Councilors. The chairman is the chief executive of the municipality. Due to this, it is controlled by the administration of the whole municipality. The chairman presided over the meeting of the Council. He distributes liability among the members of his council. All the documents of the municipality are preserved by the chairman. As the administrative head of the Assembly, the chairman served with the state government, district authorities, various developmental organizations and citizens and taxpayers of the municipality. Besides, the chairman is responsible for transforming all the decisions taken at the Council. However, the entire officials and employees helped the chairman in this regard. Again, the state government can give the responsibility of various tasks through the law at different times. He has to perform all the duties. Ward Committee It has been said to form a ward committee with one or more wards for every three lakh or more residents of the municipality. The municipality takes decisions regarding the formation of ward committees. If this committee is formed with a ward, then the elected councilor from the concerned ward becomes the chairman of this committee. If this committee is formed with two or more wards, in that case a chairman is elected from among the representatives of the respective wards. The Ward will identify the problems of the ward and forward each problem to the municipal authorities in order of priority. It will supervise the works of road repair, lighting, water drainage, tube wells, food water pipe lines etc. and if there is any complaint, it should be brought to the attention of the commissioner so that the related problems can be resolved. The problems of the residents of the wards should be resolved quickly through discussion in the ward committee. Standing Committee Each Municipality has standings committees. The standing committees are constituted with the president and the vice-president, and four other members in the case of Class A council and four 101 members in the case of Class B councils to be elected by the members of the municipality from amongst elected members for a term of two and a half years. The amended West Bengal Panchayat Act provides for the formation of six standing committees in each municipality- 1. finance and resource mobilization standing committee 2. Public works standing committee 3. Health education and urban poverty elevation standing committee 4.

56% MATCHING BLOCK 238/321 W

89% MATCHING BLOCK 245/321 SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

Public health and sanitation standing committee 5. Water supply standing committee 6. Solid waste management standing committee Sources of Income of Municipality For the purpose of carrying out various functions, the municipality needs a large amount of money. There are three sources of municipality . These sources are ● Revenue from own sources The main source of revenue of the municipality is the money collected through taxation. In this context, various taxes, levies, duties, fines etc. are significant. Some of the important taxes and duties are taxes on property, water supply, garbage removal and street lighting, taxes on vehicles and livestock, and newspaper advertisements etc. ● Grant from the State Government The State Government arranges financial assistance for the special projects of the municipality. In various cases and times, the State Government provides financial grants or assistance to the municipalities. All the grants or assistance may be conditional or unconditional. ● Loans Municipalities can raise money through loans subject to the permission of the State Government. Municipalities can borrow from any state-owned bank, government financial institution or any lending institution approved by the state government. But taking such loans requires prior permission of the state government. Again, the state government plays the role of guarantor of municipal debt if needed. Functions of the Municipality Schedule Twelve of the Indian Constitution has provided 18 functions of the municipal corporations. (already discussed earlier). 2.5 Conclusion The process of development and urbanization has increased in every state of India. Rapid urbanization has brought about significant changes in the socio-economic conditions of urban 102 residents. Many and various problems have arisen in urban areas. The responsibilities of municipalities and municipal corporations have been gradually expanded. In this situation, all the civil needs cannot be met through the limited income. So the municipal government has to increase the source of income. Apart from that, the state's controls over municipalities and municipal corporations need to be reduced. 2.6 Summary Municipal Corporations is the top most urban body in India. Municipality is established in the smaller city or towns. Mayor is the administrative head of the municipal corporation whereas the chairman is the administrative head of the municipality. Both urban bodies have five year terms. Both the bodies have their own revenue systems. Apart from state and central government grant funds to these municipal bodies to carry out national and state level schemes or policies. Beside this they can borrow the loan from public sector banks. In terms of loan both the urban bodies require the approval of the state government. Municipal corporations and municipalities have to perform 18 functions mentioned in the constitution. They are operated by several committees such as ward committee, standing committee etc. 2.7 Glossary Councilor- An elected member of a ward in a municipality or municipal corporation. Municipal Council- is an urban local government in smaller urban areas. Municipal Corporation- is an urban local government in big cities. 2.8 Model Questions Short Questions ➢ Write a Short Note on Municipality. ➢ Write a short notes on Municipal Corporation ➢ What is the Ward committee? ➢ What is the Role of the Standing committee in municipal corporation? Long Questions ➢ Write a Note on Composition and function of the Municipal Corporation ➢ Write a Note on composition and function of the municipality

103 2.9 References 1. Schultz, O. and Tran, D. Municipal corporations: A study of the accounting choice, Simple search. Available at: https://www.diva- portal.org/smash/get/diva2:736460/FULLTEXT01.pdf (Accessed: November 3, 2022). 2. P. Sachdeva(2011). Local Government in India. Noida: Pearson, 3. The Constitution (74th amendment) act, 1992 background (no date). Available at: https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf (Accessed:November 25, 2022). 4. West Bengal Panchayat Act, West Bengal panchayats acts. Available at: http://www.wbprd.gov.in/HtmlPage /view_rules_acts.aspx (Accessed: November 20, 2022). Unit-III Mayor in Council System in Municipal Corporation STRUCTURE 3.1 Learning Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Mayor in Council 3.4 Conclusion 3.5 Summary 3.6 Glossary 3.7 Model Questions 3.8 References 3.1 Learning Objectives The prime objective of this unit is to discuss the power and function of Mayor-in-Council and the role of Mayor in mayor in council. 3.2 Introduction Mayor is the civic head of the municipal corporation. According to the Merriam-Webster Dictionary Mayor-Council is 'relating to, or constituting a method of municipal government in which policy-making and administrative powers are vested in a usually elective mayor and council'. Mayor in Council is the prime administrative unit in a municipal corporation. This system was introduced in west bengal in 1980 as the Calcutta Municipal Corporation Act. This system increases the responsibility of the mayor. This Act favors a strong mayor system.

104 3.3 Mayor in Council The main administrative body of Calcutta Corporation is Mayor in Council . This council is formed with a mayor, deputy mayor and more than 10 councilors. That is, the Mayor in Council is formed with a maximum of 12 members. The councilors elect the mayor from among themselves. The mayor was elected at the first meeting of the newly elected councilors. The mayor appoints

100% MATCHING BLOCK 240/321 W

the deputy mayor and other members of the council. The term of office of the council mayor is five years. However, the members of the previous council mayor remain in office until a new mayor is elected. If the mayor resigns or is removed from office, the mayor in council is abolished. The Mayor may remove any member by written order and the Council shall cease to be a member of the Council if the membership of the Corporation is terminated or the term of membership has expired. The members of the mayor in council take responsibility for a specific matter. They supervise and coordinate the activities of various departments. They are personally responsible for their respective departments. According to the new law,

64% MATCHING BLOCK 246/321 SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

the executive powers of the Corporation are exercised by the Mayor in council. The mayor in council performs all executive duties on behalf of the Corporation. The Mayor in Council is formed according to the norms of parliamentary democracy. The relationship of mayor in council with corporations is similar to that of cabinet with state legislatures. The mayor convened a meeting of the mayor in council. He presided over this meeting. The agenda of this meeting is fixed by the direction of the Mayor. The Council manages the affairs of the Corporation with the approval and consent of the Mayor. However, the council may give the power and authority to the mayor in writing and subject to conditions to take action on any matter. The Mayor himself can take decisions on urgent matters and take necessary measures accordingly. However, the mayor has to submit his report to the corporation or council as soon as possible. If the mayor's seat is temporarily vacant due to resignation, removal or death, the deputy mayor performs the duties of the mayor for that period. At that time all the powers of the mayor are enjoyed by the deputy mayor. The main power is vested in the hands of the mayor. The administration of the corporation revolves around him. This mayor in council performs all the executive duties in the name of the corporation. According to the present Corporations Act, the chief administrative officer of the Corporation is the Mayor. The Mayor is the central figure in the council. He has the main power. The administration of the corporation revolves around him. The Mayor is responsible for supervising

105 and coordinating the functions of the Corporation. The relationship of the State Cabinet with the State Legislature is similar to that of the Mayor's Council with the Corporation. A mayor in council is made up of members of the mayor's political party or group. It also ensures the active cooperation of all members of the council. The mayor can successfully manage the municipal administration and good relations with other members of the council. In the present system, the person holding the post of Mayor of Kolkata must be the leader of a political party. Because the tradition of the parliamentary system dictates that the mayor is the leader of the majority party of the corporation. In this way, the responsibility of municipal administration of Calcutta is entrusted to one party. As a result, political opposition cannot create problems in the municipal administration. Responsibilities of various departments are clearly divided among the members of the Mayor in Council. The members of the council take responsibility for a specific subject or department. As a result, they do not have to be burdened with various responsibilities. In this situation, it is possible to formulate and manage development plans in all basic matters. In this way successful municipal administration can be ensured by careful utilization of experience and skill. The members of the mayor in council are responsible directly to the corporation for their respective offices for the conduct of the functions of the council. The mayor can be removed by a motion. If the mayor is removed, the mayor's council will also be abolished. For this reason, the mayor in council has to play a responsible role in the municipal administration. As a result ,the council cannot be autocratic. 3.4 Conclusion From the above discussion it can be concluded that Mayor-in-Council is the prime body to implement the government's policies. Mayor is the administrative head of the corporation as well as Mayor-in-Council. The council is directly responsible to the corporation for their every action. The mayor in councils is constituted according to the norms of parliamentary democracy. The tradition of parliamentary democracy has been followed in the functioning of this council. The executive powers of the Corporation are vested in this Council as per the provisions mentioned in the Calcutta Municipal Corporation Act. 3.5 Summary Mayor in council is the main administrative body of the corporation which is constituted with a mayor, deputy mayor and more than 10 councilors. That is, the Mayor in Council is formed with a maximum of 12 members. The mayor in council is formed as per the parliamentary norms. The council acts like a cabinet of the state government where the mayor is the head of the council and the whole council is responsible collectively to the corporations. Mayor presided over all the

106 meetings of the council. If the mayor resigns from his/her post, the council will be abolished. Mayor in council can take all the executive decisions of the corporations. The relationship of the State Cabinet with the State Legislature is similar to that of the Mayor's Council with the Corporation. 3.6 Glossary Mayor in Council- main administrative body of a corporation. Parliamentary Democracy- A system of a democratic governance of a state. Mayor- A civic head of a municipal corporation. 3.7 Model Questions Short Questions ➢ Write a Short Note on Mayor-in Council. ➢ What is the composition of the Mayor-in Council. Long Questions ➢ What is the role of mayor in Mayor-in Council? ➢ Discuss the power and functions of the Mayor-in Council. 3.8 References 1. The Constitution (74th amendment) act, 1992 background (no date). Available at: https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf (Accessed: November 25, 2022). 2. The Kolkata Municipal Corporation Act, 1980 (no date). Available at: http://www.wbja.nic.in/wbja_adm/files /The%20Kolkata%20Municipal%20Corporation% 20Act,%201980.pdf (Accessed: November 30, 2022). 3. "Mayor-council." Merriam-Webster.com Dictionary, Merriam-Webster, https://www.merriam- webster.com/dictionary/mayor-council. (Accessed 21 Nov. 2022)

107 Unit-IV Chairman in Council System in Municipalities STUCTURES 4.1 Learning Objectives 4.2 Introduction 4.3 Chairman in Council 4.4 Conclusion 4.5 Summary 4.6 Glossary 4.7 Model Questions 4.8 References 4.1 Learning Objective The prime objective of this unit is to discuss the power and function of Chairman-in-Council and the role of Chairman in Chairman in council. 4.2 Introduction The chairman-in-council system was established in West Bengal by the West Bengal Municipal Act, 1993. Chairman is the civic head of the municipality. The chairman in Council is formed according to the norms of parliamentary democracy. The relationship of chairman in council with municipality is similar to that of cabinet with state legislatures. 4.3 Chairman in Council According to the West Bengal Municipal Act, 1993, 'There shall be

Chairman-in-Council consisting of the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 241/321 W

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three : Provided that in respect of the municipal areas included in Group D and Group E, all the powers and functions vested with the Chairman-in-Council under this Act or under any other law, for the time being in force, shall be examined

or performed, as the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 242/321 W

case may be, by the Chairman of the concerned Municipality'. 108

All executive powers of the Municipality are vest in the Chairman in Council. It is collectively responsible to the municipality. The Chairman presides over the meetings of the Board of Councilors along with the Chairman-in-Council. The chairman convened a meeting of the chairman in council. He presided over this meeting. The agenda of this meeting is fixed by the direction of the chairman. The Council manages the affairs of the municipality with the approval and consent of the chairman. However, the council may give the power and authority to the chairman in writing and subject to conditions to take action on any matter.

83% MATCHING BLOCK 243/321 W

The Chairman allocates business among the members of the Chairman-in-Council in respect of Group A, Group B and Group C municipalities. The chairman himself can take decisions on urgent matters and take necessary measures accordingly. However, the chairman has to submit his report to the municipality or council as soon as possible. If the chairman's seat is temporarily vacant due to resignation, removal or death, the vice-chairman performs the duties of the chairman for that period. At that time all the powers of the mayor are enjoyed by the vice-chairman. The main power is vested in the hands of the chairman. The administration of the municipality revolves around him. The members of the chairman in council take responsibility for a specific matter. They supervise and coordinate the activities of various departments. They are personally responsible for their respective departments. The executive powers of the municipality are exercised by the chairman of the council. The chairman in council performs all executive duties on behalf of the municipality. 4.4 Conclusion From the above discussion it can be concluded that Chairman-in-Council is the prime body of the municipality. Chairman is the administrative head of the corporation as well as Chairman-in- Council. The council is directly responsible to the corporation for their every action. The Chairman of councils acts according to the norms of parliamentary democracy. The tradition of parliamentary democracy has been followed in the functioning of this council. The executive powers of the municipality are vested in this Council as per the provisions mentioned in the West Bengal Municipal Act. 4.5 Summary The Chairman-in-Council system was established in West Bengal by the West Bengal Municipal Act, 1993. The chairman in Council is formed according to the norms of parliamentary democracy. The relationship of chairman in council with municipality is similar to that of cabinet 109 with state legislatures. The council is constituted with the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 244/321 W

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three.

all executive powers of the municipality are vested on the chairman-in council. chairman is the head of the council. he/she presides all the meeting of the council. Chairman in the council is collectively responsible to the municipality. 4.6 Glossary Chairman-In-Council- prime administrative body of a municipality. Parliamentary Democracy- A system of a democratic governance of a state. Chairman- Administrative head of a municipality. 4.7 Model Questions Short Questions ➢ Write a Short Note on the Chairman-in Council. ➢ What is the composition of the Chairman-in Council? Long Questions ➢ What is the role of mayor in the Chairman-in Council? ➢ Discuss the power and functions of the chairman-in Council. 4.8 References 1. Department of Urban Development & Municipal Affairs (no date). Available at: https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf (Accessed: November 30, 2022). 2. The Constitution (74th amendment) act, 1992 background (no date). Available at: https://mohua.gov.in/upload /uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf (Accessed: November 25, 2022).
110 Unit- V Urban Development Authorities Structure 5.1 Learning Objective 5.2 Introduction 5.3 Urban Development 5.4 Urban Development Authorities in India 5.5 Conclusion 5.6 Summary 5.7 Glossary 5.8 Model Question 5.9 References 5.1 Learning Objective By reading this unit, the reader can understand the meaning of urban development and urban development authorities with examples. 5.2 Introduction Urban Development Authority is a body created for ensuring the development of the urban areas. It is established by law passed by the government. Thus the Urban Development Authority is a statutory body. In the era of globalization the demand of urban areas is increasing day by day. Municipalities and corporations are facing many problems delivering services in this rapid growing process of urbanization. In this connection state governments are creating several urban development authorities for specific purposes. In West Bengal, several urban development authorities are there such as Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority, Siliguri Jalpaiguri Development Authority, West Bengal Housing Infrastructure Development Corporation. Other significant urban development authorities in India are Delhi Development Authorities, Housing and Urban Development Corporation etc.
111 5.3 Urban Development Urban planning is a technical and political process through which use of land and urban environment are designed. This process includes air, water, urban infrastructure, transport systems, service management, housing etc. Proper development of urban residents is ensured through urban planning. How the city's resources (such as water, Gas, land) will be delivered to the people, ensuring proper use of land in infrastructure and locations are implemented through urban planning. Urban planning includes research and analysis, strategic thinking, architecture, urban design, public opinion polling, policy formulation, implementation and management. A design is formulated according to the overall condition of the city and identifying various issues. Urban planners work to formulate the necessary policies to ensure proper management of the city. 5.4 Urban Development Authorities in India Urban Development Authorities are created for the infrastructural development of urban areas. These authorities make urban planning as per the global need and execute those plans to ensure sustainable development. Some urban development authorities are discussed below- Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO) Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO) is a public sector unit under the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs established on April 25, 1970. HUDCO’s prime mandate is to improve the housing conditions of the economically weaker sections and to concretize this, it was necessary to ensure that it would essentially have to be low cost, easily available and require minimum skills (Sachdeva: 2011). Main Objectives of HUDCO Presently The Housing and Urban Development Finance Corporation outlines their objectives mentioned below- ● Providing long term finance for construction of houses for residential purposes or finance or undertake housing and urban development programmes in the country; ● Financing or undertaking, wholly or partly, the setting up of new or satellite towns; ● Subscribing to the debentures and bonds to be issued by the State Housing (and/or Urban Development) Boards, Improvement Trusts, Development Authorities etc., specifically for the purpose of financing housing and urban development programmes; ● financing or undertaking the setting up of industrial enterprises of building material;

112 ● Administering the money received, from time to time, from the Government of India and other sources as grants or otherwise for the purposes of financing or undertaking housing and urban development programmes in the country; ● To promote, establish, assist, collaborate and provide consultancy services for the projects of designing and planning of works relating to Housing and Urban Development programmes in India and abroad; ● To undertake the business of Venture Capital Fund in Housing and Urban Development Sectors facilitating Innovations in these sectors and invest in and/or subscribe to the units/shares etc. of Venture Capital Funds promoted by Government/Government Agencies in the above areas; Delhi Development Authorities (DDA) Delhi Development Authorities (DDA) was established in 1957 through Delhi development Act to promote and secure development of Delhi. Since 1957 DDA has played a crucial role in the orderly-yet-rapid development of Delhi. The Delhi Development Act (1957) stated that 'The objects of the Authority shall be to promote and secure the development of Delhi according to plan and for that purpose the Authority shall have the power to acquire, hold, manage and dispose of land and other property, to carry out building, engineering, mining and other operations, to execute works in connection with supply of water and electricity, disposal of sewage and other services and amenities and generally to do anything necessary or expedient for purposes of such development and for purposes incidental thereto: DDA formulated its 1st Master Plan in 1962 for planned growth and development of Delhi and It revised the 1st Master Plan and a Comprehensive Master Plan with a perspective up to 2001. As per the DDA record 'DDA has constructed, or facilitated construction of more than 10.65 lakh dwelling units hereby ensuring shelter for more than half of the population of Delhi and it has developed as many as 22 industrial estates having 12000 units. The Authority has also allotted thousands of institutional plots'. So it can be undoubtedly said that DDE has contributed to the progress of Delhi at present. Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority (KMDA) Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority is formed as a statutory body under the West Bengal Government. CMDA was established by the The calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority Act, 1972. It is a planning and development authority of Kolkata.
113 KMDA performs its functions in Kolkata Metropolitan Planning Area. It is performing its functions under the administrative control of Urban Development Department of Government of West Bengal. The KMDA is constituted with

89% MATCHING BLOCK 247/321 W

82% MATCHING BLOCK 249/321 W

an 11 member board or authority including both elected representatives and nominated bureaucrats. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of Urban Development, Government of West Bengal is the ex-officio Chairman of the KMDA Board. The Board or Authority of the KMDA takes all major policy decisions that are incidental to the running of the business of the KMDA. KMDA has a multidimensional role. It is the city planning agency, it creates new areas and townships, it provides basic services like water, drainage, waste management along with physical infrastructure development. KMDA is the technical secretariat of the Kolkata Metropolitan Planning Committee (KMPC). Apart from these main functional areas, KMDA is also engaged in providing consultancy services and implementing projects on behalf of other public sector departments and agencies. 5.5 Conclusion Finally, let us say that in the era of globalization, the government has created various urban development authorities to further develop the urbanization process. Their main aim is to implement various developmental projects in the urban areas. 5.6 Summary The Urban Development Authority has been created to ensure the development process in urban areas. Municipalities and corporations are always facing various challenges to take necessary steps to meet the increasing demands of urban areas. It is for this reason that the government is creating specific development authorities for specific purposes. for example, Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO) is created for improving the housing conditions of the economically weaker sections and to concretize this, it was necessary to ensure that it would essentially have to be low cost, easily available and require minimum skills.Delhi Development Authorities (DDA) is established for promoting and securing the development of Delhi. Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority (KMDA) acts as a city planning agency and creates new areas and townships, it provides basic services like water, drainage, waste management along with physical infrastructure development. 5.7 Glossary Globalization- a process in which people, companies, government, non-governmental organizations interact with each other and exchange knowledge.

114 Urban Development Authorities- An Authority created for the development of urban areas. 5.8Model Questions Short Questions ➢ Write a Short Note on Housing and Urban Development Corporation (HUDCO). ➢ What do you mean by urban development? ➢ Write a short note on DDE. ➢ Write a short note on KMDA? Long Questions ➢ Write a note on Urban Development Authorities in India ➢ What are the objectives of the HUDCO? 5.9 References 1. P. Sachdeva(2011). Local Government in India. Noida: Pearson. 2. Housing and Urban Development Corporation Housing and Urban Development Corporation - Home. Available at: https://www.hudco.org.in/ (Accessed: November 30, 2022). 3. The Delhi Development Act, 1957 arrangement of sections - legislative . Available at: https://legislative.gov.in/sites/default/files/A1957-61.pdf (Accessed: November 30, 2022). 4. KMDA organization. Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority. Available at: https://kmda.wb.gov.in/page/cms/kmda_organization_7ab718 (Accessed: November 30, 2022). 5. The Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority Act, 1972. . indiacode.nic.in. Retrieved November 5, 2022, from https://www.indiacode.nic.in/bitstream/123456789/14202/1/1972-11.pdf
115 CC VII BLOCK IV UNIT I SOURCES OF REVENUE Structure 1.9 Objectives 1.10 Introduction 1.11 Finances of the Urban Local Government 1.12 Sources of Funds 1.13 Investment Requirement 1.14 Financially Empowering the ULBs 1.15 Conclusion 1.16 Summary 1.17 Glossary 1.18 Model Questions 1.19 References 1.0 Objectives After studying this unit, you are expected to: ? Identify the legal and institutional frameworks of states for the operational devolution of functions, officials, and funds to the Urban Local Bodies. ? Identify the various sources of revenue for the ULBs including tax revenue; non-tax revenue; devolution of funds from the State Government; financial assistance from the Union government; grants based on the recommendations of the CFCs; and borrowings.

116 ? Understand the investment requirement for urban infrastructural services and the measures that might aid in expanding the resource base of the ULBs. 1.1 Introduction The economic development of a country is often understood to be steered by its cities or urban areas. At present, Indian GDP witnesses about 63 percent contribution from urban areas, which is expected to reach almost 75 percent by 2030. Together with this, most of the GDP from non- farm sector (about 86 percent of GDP) is contributed either by cities, census towns, or from outside the ULB areas in the urban agglomerations, as part of a structural change. This generates opportunities of employment to a vast number of unemployed people. Further, this leads to migration from rural areas to urban areas and from smaller towns to bigger cities and urban areas in search of employment and better standards of living. The civic agencies of cities are thereby burdened with the responsibility of providing at least basic services and amenities if not more, depending on the availability of resources. The Urban Local Government as a nodal body is expected to perform functions that will lead to comfortable lives for its residents. The scope of responsibilities and corresponding functions of Urban Local Governments is contextually determined. The principles of economy and subsidiary lead to Urban Local Government being an obvious choice for certain functions like waste management, water supply and sewerage, horticulture etc. However, according to article 243X of the Constitution of India, the State government is vested with the power to assign functions to Urban Local Bodies (ULBs). The ULBs were granted Constitutional status as functional units of Local Self-Government by the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act (CAA) of 1992. The legal and institutional frameworks of all states within the territory of India must provide for adequate and operational devolution of functions, officials, and funds to the Urban Local Bodies for transparent, responsive, efficient, effective, and accountable urban governance. Being municipal bodies in any State, ULBs therefore, obtain their powers and scope of duties from the municipal laws framed by the respective states. However, municipal laws are not uniform across states in India, with different states resorting to different levels of devolution. 1.2 Finances of the Urban Local Government Fiscal stress has been preponderant in the history of most ULBs in India. They have, generally, always faced shortage of adequate funds. This is not a recent development as their sources of

117 revenue were scant and limited (except for some big cities like Mumbai) even after independence. The following taxes have been recommended by the Taxation Enquiry Commission (1953) for exclusive reservation and utilisation by/for local bodies: i) Taxes on lands and buildings ii) Tax/ duty (octroi has been abolished by all the states) iii) Taxes on vehicles other than those mechanically propelled iv) Taxes on animals and boats v) Taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments vi) Taxes on advertisements other than advertisements published in newspapers vii) Theatre tax or show tax viii) Duty on transfer of immovable property (levied along with the Stamp Duty collected by the Government) ix) Taxes on goods and passengers carried by roads or inland waterways. Along with this, the Commission had also advised the need for encouraging municipalities to create and expand their non-tax sources of revenue. The low revenue levels of ULBs can also be attributed to the general hesitation to impose new taxes or increase the tax rates. The assumption that the 74 th CAA would improve the fiscal health of the ULBs did not prove true as their present state of finances remains far from satisfactory. Mathur (2011) states that: i) Internally generated revenue by municipalities is inadequate to meet revenue expenditures ii) Nature of transfers and grants-in-aid is ad-hoc and discretionary iii) Expenditure on establishment (wages and salaries) is very high vis-a-vis expenditure on operations and maintenance of services, and iv) There is lack of adequate finance data. In order to gain an understanding of the resource base of ULBs, we need to look into their sources of funding in relation to the investment requirement in urban areas. 1.3 Sources of funds The sources of funds for ULBs can broadly be classified as follows: 1.3.1 Tax Revenue The ULBs are eligible to levy certain taxes. Of these, a few of the most common ones are professional tax, property tax, advertisement tax, and entertainment tax, among several others. In

118 2017-18, Property tax contributed almost 60 percent to municipal tax revenue in India and as such, Property tax continues to be the major source of income for most of the local bodies. However, according to Ahluwalia et al.(2019), even while contributing nearly 60 percent to municipal tax revenue, it was only 0.15 percent of GDP, which is much below the level of 1 percent estimated for recurrent taxes on immovable property in OECD countries. States are expected to double the property tax collection from INR 200000 million (2019) to INR 400000 million by 2024 according to the tool kit of the government of India (September 2020). In order to achieve this: (i) PT base needs to be expanded with ration cards, GIS mapping, mutations, cross- checking with building licenses, review of exemptions, electricity/gas accounts, and cover all government properties under GoI circular 2009 (ii) The guiding value for rent or unit area needs to be revised e.g. Delhi rates are fairly low, and (iii) Revenue collection needs to be automated following a smooth online system offering attractive concessions and incentives; Always Best Control (ABC) analysis is required to specially target top 10-20 percent properties with attachment of bank account. According to the estimates of the High Powered Expert Committee, 2011, the total municipal revenue for India as a whole was about INR 1 lakh crore. The bulk of this income is leached by staff salaries, pensions and operational expenses. This is one of the reasons behind the stagnancy of Municipal revenue as a share of GDP in India at around 1 percent from 2007-08 to 2017-18. It was only 0.43 percent of GDP in 2017-18. 1.3.2 Non-tax Revenue As mentioned before, ULBs have certain non-tax sources of revenue as well. Of these, the most common are user charges for water and sanitation, rent from municipal properties, and so on. There has been a considerable increase in the share of non-tax receipts from 33 percent in 2007- 08 to 41 percent in 2017-18. However, it is true that the enormous potential of increasing this revenue further through the levying of user charges remains untapped. The revenue obtained at present is not sufficient to fully meet the cost of service delivery. The JNNURM had tried to to correct this discrepancy through reforms, but it could not be executed uniformly across the country. Other non-tax sources of revenue generation that might considerably enhance fiscal 119 resources of the ULBs also need to be paid more attention. Local fee/charges have enormous potential in this regard such as (i) right of way from gas/electricity and fibre optic lines (ii) cell tower (iii) recovery on user charges (water etc.) which is only @ 20 percent, (iv) leasing electricity poles (v) and giving maintenance of parks to RWAs like Delhi @ INR 8000 per park, which is much lower than the amount spent for a municipal employee. Along with these measures, advertisement fees need to be levied along the lines of Thiruvananthapuram (listing the sites and plugging the leakages for 33170 unauthorised boards to double the income from 2018 to 2019). With revision of rates in a ratio of 1:8 as per location and by dividing the city into clusters, South Delhi MC has recorded a three-time increase in revenue. 1.3.3 Devolution of funds from the State Government The revenue generated from the devolution of funds from the state government is largely dependent on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission (SFC). Article 243Y provides for the creation of the Finance Commission as well as the review of the financial position of the municipalities. Accordingly, the SFC can place its recommendations to the Governor as to: i) The principles, which should govern: •

80%	MATCHING BLOCK 248/321	W

the determination of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees, which may be allotted to or appropriated by the

Municipalities •

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 251/321	SA	Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institut ... (D106063648)

the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees levied by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the distribution between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; and • the

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 250/321	W

grants in aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State

Ouriginal by Turnitin

ii) the measures required for the improvement of the financial position of the Municipalities iii) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission
by the Governor
with regard to the sound finance of the Municipalities However, there is a significant gap between the Constitutional provisions and the execution of these by the SFCs on the ground. The states have not been adequately attentive to this institution which holds a lot of potential. The process of report submission is often hugely delayed. Chakraborty et al. (2018) noted that the SFCs in 12 states took more than 30 months to submit their reports. This happens because the SFCs in general experience issues of non-
120 availability of data, inadequate office space and shortage of technical staff. The recommendations have very often been shoddily implemented which has affected the adequate devolution of funds to the ULBs. 1.3.4. Grants from the Union Government for Development Schemes There has been a considerable increase in financial assistance from the Union Government to the states and the ULBs after the implementation of JNNURM through several centrally sponsored schemes like AMRUT, Smart Cities Mission, Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana, and so on. However, these also require participation by the states and ULBs who are expected to contribute some amount of money towards these schemes as well. ULBs then have to bear the responsibility of generating required funds through sources such as borrowings, municipal bonds, and so on. 1.3.5 Grants based on the Recommendations of the Central Finance Commission The CFCs started recommending the direct transfer of grants to the Urban Local Bodies from the Tenth National Finance Commission (NFC) onwards, with the Amendment in Article 280 after the 74th CAA. The 14th FC allocated the grants between the Rural and Urban Local Bodies in the ratio of 70:30. The ULBs received the grant in two parts – a basic grant (unconditional) and a performance grant (conditional) in proportion of 80:20. The NFC devolution has since increased from INR 1000 Crores to INR 29000 Crores (during the period 1995 to 2020). The 15 th FC has recommended the rise in the share of ULBs to 40 percent over the medium term considering the upsurge in urban population and the shifting sectoral composition of GDP. There is also a proposition for the inter se distribution of grants for Local Bodies to be based on population and area in the ratio of 90:10. The 15th FC has further recommended differentiated treatment for fifty million-plus urban agglomerations/cities excluding Delhi and Srinagar and all other cities and towns with less than one million population. The grants for million-plus cities are for supply and management of water, solid waste management, conservation, and ambient air quality. For the other local bodies, the grants are- (i) 50 percent for basic grants and (ii) 50 percent for drinking water and solid waste management. There is also specific mention that these grants shall not be employed to substitute either the Central Sector Schemes like Swachh Bharat Mission, AMRUT, and so on, or any scheme of the State Government. 1.3.6. Borrowings The ULBs are compelled to borrow from the capital market owing to the scant sources of revenue and lower than optimum levels of receipts. In order to be eligible for such borrowings, 121 however, the ULBs need to prove their credit-worthiness. This is relatively easier for big cities but quite difficult for the ULBs of small cities and towns. As a remedial measure and to enhance the credit-worthiness of such municipalities, reforms and handholding on their part had been suggested by the Government of India. Cities like Ahmedabad could issue bonds and raise INR 100 crores in 1998. Since then it has raised money five times through this measure even as late as 2019, when it raised INR 200 crores. Credit rating agencies like ICRA evaluate the credit rating of a ULB considering the following factors: • Inter-governmental fiscal relationships • Operational efficiency of the ULB ? Economy of the municipal area • Project pipeline and execution track record • State government's credit quality • Management quality and reform orientation, and • Municipal finances 'Adequate financial accountability' has been suggested by NITI Aayog. This requires observance of Fiscal Responsibility and Budget Management Act, 2003 that provides for monies and borrowings to remain within manageable limits. 1.4 Investment Requirement The primary hindrance that any agency experiences in trying to estimate expenditure details for works in urban areas is the lack of accurate and adequate municipal level data in a uniform format across the country. Despite this, some normative approximations have been generated. The investment requirement for urban infrastructural services had been estimated by the High Powered Expert Committee (HPEC) (2011) at INR 31 lakh crore (at 2009-10 prices) for eight sectors of urban infrastructure for the period 2012-2031. The HPEC had directed that urban infrastructural investment should rise from 0.7 percent of GDP in 2011-12 to 1.1 percent of GDP by 2031-32. 1.5 Financially Empowering the ULBs Some analysts have opined that the new wealth being produced as a result of the economic development of the urban areas requires more effective taxation. Unless this new wealth is effectively taxed, provision of even basic facilities such as water, sanitation, transport, and so on

122 will be negatively affected. According to Pandey (2011), “given a chance (with better financial management and devolution or powers to collect revenue from city potential) the ULBs can mobilise as high as 6 percent of city income.” The following measures may help expand the resources of the municipalities: i) The need for transferring adequate taxation powers to the Local Bodies has to be acknowledged so that they can explore and identify newer areas for taxation. ii) Property tax is a major source of revenue for the ULBs. Therefore, the Property tax reforms mentioned in the Toolkit of GoI need to be implemented immediately to double the revenue from 20000 Crores to 40000 crores by 2024. More properties that can be assessed for tax also need to be identified through the use of technologies like household surveys and GIS. The Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs under the aegis of the Government of India has directed the states to examine the problem of low property tax rates, which may be revised periodically. The 14th Finance Commission directed states to undertake an objective determination of the base and see to its regular revision in order to adjust for inflation. iii) Determining non-land based sources of revenue may prove to be viable as they would be relatively less touched by politics. The 14th Finance Commission had directed the states to adopt measures that could empower the Local Bodies to levy entertainment tax and advertisement tax. According to NITI Aayog, “the ULBs are sometimes not even aware of the opportunities and avenues of generating revenues through taxes and non-tax charges. Even if they are aware, they do not have the skill to optimise tax collection”. iv) The Goods & Services Tax (GST) reform has adversely affected the already weak resource base of the ULBs. Some compensatory mechanism may be devised to remedy this. v) User charges for several services do not even cover the costs of operation and maintenance. The states were mandated to implement the necessary reforms under the JNNURM. However, the level of realisations was very low owing to immense resistance from beneficiaries. The need for recovering at least O&M costs was again stressed by the 14th Finance Commission. vi) The system can be made more efficient through e-governance tools like online procurement, tenders and online expenditure reports. vii) The ULBs can also expand sources of revenue through other sources such as pooled financing, urban infrastructure funds, and municipal bonds. 1.6. Conclusion

123 According to Habitat III (2016) UN, “urban governance systems in most countries are currently not fit for purpose and need critical reform to enable sustainable urban development”. With the 74th CAA, it was hoped that the Urban Local Governments would be vested with adequate additional powers which would empower them to smoothly function as institutions of Self- Government. However, the unwelcome reality is that the ULBs are still beset with the problem of the 3Fs—Functions, Functionaries and Finance. While the reasons behind the inadequate level of resources of the ULBs have mostly been identified and recent times have seen a strong realisation of the need for reforms in that sphere, a concerted political will would be the cornerstone of such reforms. 1.7 Summary The unit has discussed the following: ? The legal and institutional frameworks of all states within the territory of India must provide for adequate and operational devolution of functions, officials, and funds to the Urban Local Bodies for transparent, responsive, efficient, effective, and accountable urban governance. ? The various sources of revenue for the ULBs including tax revenue; non-tax revenue from user charges for services, rent from municipal properties, and so on; devolution of funds from the State Government; Financial assistance from the Union government to the states and ULBs; grants based on the recommendations of the CFCs; and borrowings from the capital market. ? The investment requirement for urban infrastructural services had been estimated by the High Powered Expert Committee (HPEC) (2011) at INR 31 lakh crore (at 2009-10 prices) for eight sectors of urban infrastructure for the period 2012-2031. ? Measures that might aid in expanding the resource base of the ULBs. 1.8. Glossary Devolution: It refers to the relocation of powers to lower levels of the Government Structural Transformation: Shifting of work force among economic sectors such as Agriculture, Manufacturing, and Services 1.9 Model Questions Long Answer Type 1. Discuss the taxes recommended by the Taxation Enquiry Commission (1953) for the exclusive reservation and utilisation by/for local bodies .

124 2. What are the principles governing the devolution of funds from the State Government to urban local government in India? 3. Discuss the grants received by ULBs based on the recommendations of the Central Finance Commission. 4. Discuss the ways in which ULBs can be financially empowered in India? What is the role of the state government in this regard? Short Answer Type 1. What are the sources of non-tax revenue for urban local government in India? 2. Discuss briefly the matter of ULB borrowings from the capital market in India. 3. What are the ways in which property tax collection can be enhanced in India? 4. What are the recommendations of the 15 th Finance Commission with regard to grants to the ULBs? 5. What are the estimates of the High Powered Expert Committee (HPEC) (2011) regarding investment requirement for urban infrastructural services in India? 6. Mention three recommendations regarding the financial empowerment of ULBs in future. 1.10. References Ahluwalia, I.J., Mohanty, P.K., Mathur, O., Roy, D., Khare, A. & Mangla, S. State of Municipal Finances in India: A Study prepared for the Fifteenth Finance Commission. (New Delhi: ICRIER, 2019). Chakraborty, P., Gupta, M. & Singh, R.K. Overview of State Finance Commission Reports. (New Delhi: NIPFP, 2018). Government of India. Report of the Taxation Enquiry Commission. (New Delhi: Ministry of Health, Family Planning and Urban Development, 1953-54). Government of India. Report of the Rural Urban Relationship Committee. (New Delhi: Ministry of Health & Family Planning, 1964). Government of India. Report of the Committee on the Service Conditions of Municipal Employees. (New Delhi: Ministry of Finance, 1968). High Powered Expert Committee. Report on Indian Urban Infrastructure and Services. (New Delhi: ICRIER, 2011).
125 ICF GHK. Approach towards Establishing Municipal Cadres in India. (New Delhi: MoUD and the World Bank, 2014). ICRA. Rating methodology for Urban Local Bodies. (New Delhi: ICRA, 2016). Kamath, L & Zachariah, Y. "Impact of JNNURM and UIDSSMT/IHSDP Programmes on Infrastructure and Governance Outcomes in Cities/Towns in India: A Review of the State of Knowledge". Working Paper- 7. (Mumbai: TISS, 2015). Mathur, O.P. Municipal Finance Matters: India Municipal Finance Report. (New Delhi: NIPFP, 2011). NIUA. A Study to Qualitatively Assess the Capacity Building Needs of Urban Local Bodies (ULBs). (New Delhi: NITI Aayog, 2015).

100% MATCHING BLOCK 252/321 SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

Pandey, K.K. "Administration of Urban Development and Urban Service Delivery". Theme Paper for the 56th Members' Annual Conference of IIPA. (New Delhi, IIPA, 2011). Pandey, K.K. "Bolster ULB Capacity to Raise Revenue". Financial Express (25 December, 2020). Rao, G.M. "Property Tax System in India: Problems and Prospects of Reform". Working Paper No. 2013-14. (New Delhi: NIPFP, 2013). Netaji Subhas Open University Honours in Public Administration (CBCS) B.D.P. CC VII BLOCK IV UNIT II

126 RELATIONSHIP

71% MATCHING BLOCK 253/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

BETWEEN STATE AND URBAN LOCAL BODIES Structure 1.0 Objectives 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Relationship between State and Urban Local Bodies:

Good Governance 1.3 State and Local Bodies: Relationship, Role and Responsibilities 1.4 Conclusion 1.5 Summary 1.6 Glossary 1.7 Model Questions 1.8 References 1.0 Objectives After studying this Unit, you are expected to: ? Understand the relationships between the State Government and the Urban Local Bodies, in financial, legislative, and administrative spheres; ? Explain the measures taken by the State governments to aid urban local bodies in resource mobilisation and administrative functioning; ? Discuss the steps taken by State and Local Governments towards good governance. 1.1 Introduction The relationship between State government and urban local bodies comprise financial, legislative, and administrative spheres. To understand the relationship between state and ULBs, we need to refer to the Seventh Schedule in the Constitution of India which lays out the areas in which the Centre or State has exclusive power to legislate.

68%	MATCHING BLOCK 254/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

In the seventh schedule of the Constitution of India under Article 246, land, provision of civic infrastructure, housing, urban Development, and so on have been designated as state subjects. The state governments can frame relevant laws and policies on these subjects which the ULBs have to then implement. The Government of India (GoI) developed the

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 255/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

Model Municipal Law (MML) in 2003, National Municipal Accounting Manual (NMAM) in 2004, Solid Waste Management Rules (SWMR)

in 2016, and so on, to help the states in enacting municipal legislations, account maintenance and service delivery. The main idea behind the MML was the execution of the provisions of the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act (CAA) to empower the ULBs and create a legislative framework for

46%	MATCHING BLOCK 256/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

the

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 257/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

implementation of the Ministry's Urban Sector Reform Agenda. This initiative was 127 expected to not only augment the revenues of the ULBs but also to empower them to act more effectively in terms of service delivery. Similarly NMAM and SWMR help in more effective budgeting, accounting, and asset and waste management. Effective management of the urban system requires strong local level operations. Decentralisation through the devolution

44%	MATCHING BLOCK 259/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

of powers and responsibilities to the ULBs is an essential requirement to meet the demands of the rapid growth of urbanisation, particularly in the larger cities.

The 74th CAA sought to bring

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 258/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

uniformity in the constitution of the municipal bodies through their classification as Municipal Corporations for large urban areas,

Municipal Council for smaller urban areas, followed by Nagar Panchayats. 1.2 Relationship between State and Urban Local Bodies: Good Governance

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 260/321	SA	Ravindra Prasad_74 CAA - Promise and Performan ... (D56596344)

The Constitution (Seventy-third Amendment) Act, 1992 and the Constitution (Seventy-fourth Amendment) Act, 1992

are crucial to understand decentralisation of governance. They granted

53%	MATCHING BLOCK 261/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

constitutional status to the rural and urban local bodies respectively by devolving powers, functions and authority to them. At present, ULBs occupy the third tier in the governance structure and are the most accessible bodies to the citizens. The local governance of the country was vastly reformed as a result of the 74 th Amendment. It provided for devolution of powers and responsibilities to the ULBs enabling them to act towards social justice and economic development as well as giving them powers of implementation with regard to subjects listed in the twelfth schedule of the Constitution. It also granted ULBs financial autonomy by listing sources for devolution of funds. The

50%	MATCHING BLOCK 262/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

ULBs are thereby entitled to

70%	MATCHING BLOCK 263/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

receive funds from both Local Bodies Grants, through the Central Finance Commission, and funds released by the State Governments on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission. Further, the ULBs cannot be superseded/suspended; and if a ULB is dissolved by

54%	MATCHING BLOCK 264/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

the State Government, there must be an election to the same within a period of six months. Moreover, the statutory State Election Commission is entrusted with conducting the elections, rather than it being left to executive authorities. This brings in continuity in the elected body and aids the creation of bottom-up leadership. After Part IX of the Constitution, a new part, Part IX-A, has been added to the Constitution which provides for decentralisation in urban areas. It lists out issues relating to ULBs such as

58%	MATCHING BLOCK 265/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 266/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

definition, constitution of municipalities and ward committees, reservation, disqualification, powers and responsibilities, and

65% MATCHING BLOCK 267/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

powers to impose taxes. Article 243-Y states that the Finance 128 Commission constituted under Article 243-I shall look into the financial affairs of the Municipalities and make recommendations regarding

the

88% MATCHING BLOCK 268/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

distribution of resources between the States and the Municipalities; levying of taxes, duties, and so on; and grants-in-aid to the municipalities, among other matters. 1.2.1 Powers and Responsibilities of Urban Local Bodies The 74 th CAA empowered the ULBs in political, functional, and fiscal spheres. This Act enabled the ULBs to emerge as vibrant democratic units of self-government and paved the way for decentralisation. This CAA ensures representation of people in the house through regular elections without their indefinite supersession, and is thereby also called the Power to the People. The relationship between states and ULBs become clear when the state governments and ULBs have to interact with each other for resource mobilisation, performing administrative functions, and implementing State or Central Government policies/schemes/reforms. The State Government departments, state-owned PSUs, and state line agencies help, support and guide the ULBs in carrying out administrative functions. In terms of resource mobilisation, the State Government helps the ULBs with two types of resources— manpower (technical) and financial. With regard to the implementation of policies, the State Government can enact and enforce laws and frame policies that support

96% MATCHING BLOCK 269/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

41% MATCHING BLOCK 270/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

ULBs. 1.2.2 Functional powers and duties The ULB's were entrusted with a list of 18 functions

100% MATCHING BLOCK 272/321 SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

to enable them to function as effective institutions of self-government.

These functions may be undertaken by the ULBs either independently or through specialised agencies. Having adopted the provisions of the 74th CAA, the states also have specific functions with regard to the effective functioning of the ULBs. The various functions any ULB may be expected to perform may be listed as follows: ? Planning functions ? Essential municipal functions or core functions ? Environmental management functions ? Other functions

83% MATCHING BLOCK 271/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The core function of providing basic services to citizens was retained in the Twelfth Schedule of the 74 th CAA and

80% MATCHING BLOCK 275/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

other important functions were also added through this list. These functions include issues such as urban planning; environmental management and protection of ecology; 129 plans for socio-economic development of the region; as well as other crucial functions such as safeguarding the rights and interests of the disabled and weaker sections; slum management and improvement, and so on. 1.2.3 Fiscal powers ULBs require a very strong revenue base in order to carry out their obligatory and discretionary functions effectively. But most of the ULBs face immense shortage of funds and revenues. In fact, one major cause behind the inefficient functioning of the ULBs is lack of adequate revenues. Resource mobilisation is therefore imperative for the ULBs to offer even basic municipal services. The three major sources of revenue for the ULB's are through powers of taxation, grants or cess; external borrowings; and privatisation initiatives. Further, Article 243 Y provides for the creation of the State Finance Commission as well as the review of the financial position of the municipalities. Accordingly, the SFC can place its recommendations to the Governor as to: i) The principles, which should govern: •

36% MATCHING BLOCK 273/321 W

80% MATCHING BLOCK 274/321 W

the determination of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees, which may be allotted to or appropriated by the

Municipalities •

86% MATCHING BLOCK 278/321 SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institut ... (D106063648)

the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees levied by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the distribution between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; and • the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 276/321 W

grants in aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State

ii) the measures required for the improvement of the financial position of the Municipalities iii) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission
by the Governor
with regard to the sound finance of the Municipalities However, there is a significant gap between the Constitutional provisions and the execution of these by the SFCs on the ground. The states have not been adequately attentive to this institution which holds a lot of potential. The Constitution also allows the State discretionary powers to allocate resources. Therefore, the legislature of a State may, by law:
130 ?

100% MATCHING BLOCK 277/321 W

Assign to a Municipality such taxes, duties, tolls and fees levied and collected by the State Government for such purposes and subject to such conditions and limits; ?

100% MATCHING BLOCK 281/321 SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

Authorise a Municipality to levy, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties, tolls and fees in accordance with such procedure and subject to such limits; ?

100% MATCHING BLOCK 279/321 W

Provide for Constitution of such Funds for crediting all moneys received, respectively, by or on behalf of the Municipalities and also for the withdrawal of such moneys there from;

97% MATCHING BLOCK 280/321 W

and ? Provide for making such grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State.

The
transfer of funds has significantly improved after the constitution of SFCs and insertion of clause 280 (3) (bb & C) in the Constitution to modify terms of reference of the National Finance Commission (NFC). The XVth Finance Commission has recommended Rs 1,21,000 crores for ULBs as against 87,000 Crore by the XIVth NFC. In addition, the Commission has allocated Rs. 24,000 crore for health services. This will enable the

59% MATCHING BLOCK 282/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

87% MATCHING BLOCK 283/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

cities to face pandemics like COVID-19. These two Finance Commissions have improved the planning and budgeting process. However, the ULB's still need more financial resources to meet the rising demand for services. 1.2.4 Political empowerment

73% MATCHING BLOCK 284/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The State Election Commission is responsible for conducting elections to the ULBs. Members are elected for a period of 5 years by direct elections.

The manner of electing Chairpersons of ULBs is based upon the discretion of the respective State Legislature. Prior to the 74 th CAA, the ULBs used to be superseded for many months thereby negatively affecting their operations as public agencies. However, the 74th CAA (article 243 U) states that if a ULB is dissolved before 5 years, elections to constitute a new ULB

85% MATCHING BLOCK 285/321 SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

must be conducted within a period of 6 months from the date of dissolution. The ULBs will also be given the opportunity to be heard before their dissolution. Such provisions safeguard the ULBs from being arbitrarily dissolved and strengthen the relationship between states and ULBs. 1.2.5 Citizen Engagement The democratic system hinges on active citizen participation. The ULBs are crucial in the implementation and execution of programmes, projects and services initiated by the Union 131 government in the states. Several the programmes initiated by the states also have wider implications

68% MATCHING BLOCK 286/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

at both union and local levels. Earlier, no forum was available to the citizens to express their opinions regarding these programmes. In the absence of a structured system of feedback, even the Inter-Governmental Council (IGC) could not apprehend all the problems. Bottom-up interaction was necessary to test and increase acceptability and efficiency of the programmes devised. The constitution of the Ward Committees via Article 243S strengthened the process of bottom-up planning. 1.2.6 Decentralised Planning The devolution of powers of urban planning to ULBs was perhaps to empower them to aid in city development and meet the needs of rapid city expansion.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 288/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

This process would comprise goal setting, data collection and analysis, forecasting, design, strategic thinking, public consultation,

and

84% MATCHING BLOCK 289/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

implementation. Two articles specifically refer to planning issues at district level and at the level of Metropolitan towns: Article 243ZD on District Planning Committee provides for the constitution of a District Planning Committee (in every State at

the district level)
to prepare a draft development plan for the district as a whole as well as to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in the district.

65% MATCHING BLOCK 287/321 W

In this regard, the State Legislature

61% MATCHING BLOCK 290/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

may, by law, make provisions regarding the composition of the District Planning Committees, and the procedures by which the seats in these Committees might be filled. Article 243

ZE deals with the issue of urban planning in metropolitan areas. According to this Article, a

69%	MATCHING BLOCK 291/321	SA	74th amendment act new.docx (D83633774)

Metropolitan Planning Committee may be instituted in every Metropolitan area to prepare a draft development plan for the Metropolitan area as a whole.

The article also states the composition and the procedures by which the seats in these Committees might be filled. Further, it has been directed that while preparing the draft development plan, every Metropolitan Planning Committee should comply with the objectives and priorities set by the Union and state governments.

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 292/321	SA	Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

It should also be aware of the nature and amount of investments that the Union and state governments are likely to make in the Metropolitan area and take note of other available resources, both financial and otherwise.
132 Significant as these articles are, their implementation has been far from satisfactory. The MPCs have only constituted in some cities like Mumbai, Pune, Bengaluru, Kolkata, Hyderabad, Nagpur, and so on but even then they hardly have powers as stipulated in the acts. Thus, the realisation of proper planning and sustainable development goals requires joint efforts of political leaders and administrators at the state and local levels. 1.3 State and Local Bodies: Relationship, Role and Responsibilities The states in India have several schemes aimed at provision of services for the citizens of a particular state. The funds for these schemes are generated by the states along with contributions from beneficiaries/ULBs. Most of these schemes, however, are implemented by the ULBs. There exist both direct and indirect interfaces between state government and ULBs in this regard: ? The state governments directly interact with ULBs when establishing Development Authorities/Boards; preparing and approving development plans; framing rules and by laws; in the delivery and maintenance of urban infrastructure and services, and so on. There have also been instances of state Ministries, Departments and Line Agencies helping ULBs to carry out delegated functions. ? Indirect interface includes the placement of manpower such as Commissioner and Technical Staff from the State Government to the ULBs; assessment of efficiency in service delivery through the state's Line Agencies; reviews of progress in the execution of Central/State Schemes; performance reviews of the ULBs, and so on. The state level agencies/line departments have enormous powers, particularly over small and medium sized local bodies.

62%	MATCHING BLOCK 293/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The ULBs have very little control over state level officials. Therefore, the ULBs in many states do not enjoy administrative autonomy as stipulated by the 73rd and 74th CAA. A cordial and supportive relationship between state governments and ULBs is, however, imperative for the smooth functioning of the latter. A few drawbacks in this regard may be highlighted as follows: i) Personnel Management Pay scale and incentives of personnel in the ULBs are far below those engaged in state services and they have fewer opportunities for promotion. Several anomalies of the earlier system of recruitment have been corrected by the provincialisation of the municipal services but even the current system fails to recruit the best personnel. Moreover, seats often remain vacant for years 133 and transfers at the free will of the senior bureaucrats and the government reek of favouritism, corruption, and nepotism.

73% MATCHING BLOCK 294/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The State Government may take disciplinary action against personnel of ULBs in many states with the ULBs having very little powers of intervention. Gujarat is one State which attempted to correct these anomalies. Ahmedabad Municipal Corporation recruited graduates from the Indian Institute of Management (IIM) in the early 90s, which led to innovative reforms in Ahmedabad, thereby aiding creation of SPVs and issuance of Municipal Bonds. ii) Municipal Cadre

64% MATCHING BLOCK 295/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

According to

80% MATCHING BLOCK 296/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

the study conducted by the Capacity Building for Urban Development Project (CBUDP), states like Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, and

Karnataka that executed a unified system of employing exclusive municipal cadre for a long time have made more progress in urban development. They have been able to effectively implement several state and union initiatives like 24x7 water supply, e-governance and m-governance (mobile), TOD based townships, bitumen roads with plastic waste, and such other advanced systems. This should inspire the states that do not yet employ dedicated municipal cadre. Further, cadre management should be guided by a proper institutional framework. iii) Human Resource Management System A comprehensive Human Resource Management System (HRMS) database of employees is imperative. A HR unit should be created to identify, attract, and retain gainful employees. Ahmedabad could serve as a model in this regard as it managed to obtain necessary permissions from the state. The need of the hour is to generate team spirit in the ULBs such that both elected members and executives understand, acknowledge, and respect mutual dependence and boundaries to ensure the smooth functioning and maximum effectiveness of the ULBs. 1.4 Conclusion A healthy relationship of mutual co-operation between states and ULBs is imperative for effective urban local governance. Lack of financial, human, technical, and other resources results in bad governance. As the unit has highlighted, the ULBs have immense scope of growth and reform which can only be possible through effective communication between the states and ULBs. The ULBs require immediate financial strengthening to meet the growing demands of rapid urbanisation. Further, the devolution of powers and authority to the ULBs have to be more effectively engineered. The state governments also play a crucial role in determining the 134 implementation of CSS by the ULBs. For this, there needs to be a higher level of coordination and cooperation between states and ULBs. It is high time that the ULBs are recognised as independent institutions of governance as provided by the 74 th CAA. As local bodies, they have the capacity to directly address issues faced by the citizens and harness feedback for services. Overbearing interference on the part of state governments in the operations of ULBs hinders both the processes of empowerment of the ULBs as well as the receipt of services by the citizens. 1.5 Summary The unit has discussed the following: ? The 74 th CAA empowered the ULBs in political, functional, and fiscal spheres. This Act enabled the ULBs to emerge as vibrant democratic units of self-government and paved the way for decentralisation. ? All the core service providing functions of the ULBs (under the twelfth schedule of the 74 th CAA) were earlier performed by the states but were then devolved to the ULBs because these issues could be more effectively handled by local bodies. All states have however, not yet uniformly adopted and implemented the provisions of the 74 th CAA. ? Besides revenue generation through taxation, non-tax sources and external borrowings, the resource base of the ULBs can further be strengthened by the states through SFCs and other discretionary powers granted to them by the Constitution. However, most states have not been adequately attentive in this regard. ?

73% MATCHING BLOCK 297/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The State Election Commission is responsible for conducting elections to the ULBs. Members are elected for a period of 5 years by direct elections.

The manner of electing Chairpersons of ULBs is based upon the discretion of the respective State Legislature. ? The ULBs are crucial in the implementation and execution of programmes, projects and services initiated by the Union government in the states. ?

80% MATCHING BLOCK 298/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The devolution of powers of urban planning to ULBs can be understood via the Articles 243ZD on District Planning Committee and 243ZE on urban planning in metropolitan areas. ? The state level agencies/line departments have enormous powers, particularly over small and medium sized local bodies.

62% MATCHING BLOCK 299/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

The ULBs have very little control over state level officials. Therefore, the ULBs in many states do not enjoy administrative autonomy as stipulated by the 73rd and 74th CAA.
135 1.6 Glossary National Municipal Accounts Manual (NMAM): published by the GoI in 2004, its main aim was to set standards for budgeting and accounting ULBs across the country 1.7 Model Questions Long Answer Type 1. Discuss the functional and fiscal powers and responsibilities of Urban Local Bodies in India. 2. Discuss the provisions for and shortcomings of decentralized planning in India. 3. Discuss the interface between state and local bodies with regard to their functional relationship and constitutionally sanctioned roles and responsibilities. 4. Discuss the provisions for political empowerment and citizen engagement vis-à-vis urban local government in India. Short Answer Type 1. Write a note on Article 243Y of the Constitution of India. 2. Write a note on the political empowerment of ULBs in India. 3. Write a note on Article 243ZE of the Constitution of India. 4. Discuss the modes of direct interfaces between state and ULBs in India. 5. Discuss the modes of indirect interfaces between state and ULBs in India. 6. What are the drawbacks with regard to personnel management in ULBs in India? 1.8.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 300/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

References Bagchi, A.K. "The Past and the Future of the Developmental State". Journal of World-Systems Research (2000), 6.2, 398-442. CBUD. Approach towards Establishing Municipal Cadres in India, Capacity Building for Urban Development Project (CBUD). (New Delhi: MoUD & the World Bank, 2014). Chaturvedi, B.K. Report of the Committee on Restructuring of Centrally Sponsored Schemes (CSS). (New Delhi: Planning Commission, Government of India, 2011).

Government

96% MATCHING BLOCK 301/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

of India, MoHUA. Deendayal Antyodaya Yojana-National Urban Livelihoods Mission. (New Delhi: MoHUA, 2013).

Government of India,

96% MATCHING BLOCK 302/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

MoHUA. Atal Mission for Rejuvenation and Urban Transformation- Mission Statement & Guidelines. (New Delhi: MoHUA, 2015). 136

Government of India,
MoHUA. Smart Cities-Mission Statement & Guidelines. (New Delhi: MoHUA, 2015).

99% MATCHING BLOCK 303/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

Jha, R. The Unfinished Business of Decentralised Urban Governance in India. ORF Issue Brief. (2020) Retrived from https://www.orfonline.org/wp- content/uploads/2020/02/ORF_Issue_Brief_340_Decentralised_Governance.pdf Mohanty P.K, Misra B.M, Goyal, R. & Jeromi P.D. Municipal Finance in India: An Assessment. (Mumbai: Reserve Bank of India, 2007).

Nandini, D. & Dhal, S. Unit 14- Central-State-Local Administrative Relations. (2021). Retrieved from https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/68102/3/Unit-14.pdf

100% MATCHING BLOCK 304/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

Rao, M.G. & Bird, R.M. Urban governance and finance in India. (2010). Retrieved from https://ideas.repec.org/cgi-bin/get_doc.pl?urn=RePEc%3

An pf % 3

100% MATCHING BLOCK 305/321 SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

Awpaper%3A10%2F68&url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.nipfp.org.in%2 Fworking_paper%2Fwp_2010_68.pdf 137

Netaji Subhas Open University Honours in Public Administration (CBCS) B.D.P. CC VII BLOCK IV UNIT III METHODS OF CONTROL OVER MUNICIPAL CORPORATION AND MUNICIPALITY Structure 1.20 Objectives 1.21 Introduction 1.22 Arguments in favour of State Control of Municipal Corporation and Municipality 1.23 Forms of Control over Municipal Corporation and Municipality 1.24 Arguments against supersession of Municipal Bodies 1.25 Conclusion 1.26 Summary 1.27 Glossary 1.28 Model Questions 1.29 References 1.0 Objectives After studying this unit, you are expected to: ? Identify the arguments in favour of state government's control over municipal corporations and municipalities in India. ? Identify the forms of legislative, administrative, financial and judicial control of state government over municipal corporations and municipalities in India. ? Understand critically the provisions governing supersession of municipal bodies in India. 1.3 Introduction There are two antithetical views regarding the supervision and control exercised by state government over municipal bodies: the individualist view regards the control and supervision of the municipal institutions as unwarranted and unnecessary, arguing that self-government would cease to be so if it is made subject to external control and supervision; while, the paternalist view hold that municipal bodies have to be regularly controlled, supervised, guided, and occasionally

138 punished for their acts of omission and commission. The latter school is sceptical of decentralization of powers below the level of the state government. They also suggest various forms of control over local bodies, be it urban or rural, in the name of accountability and grassroots development. Since the topic of discussion in this unit pertains to methods of control over Municipal Corporation and Municipality in India, the second or paternalistic argument shall be the focus here. This unit would also cover the forms of control exercised by the state government over ULBs—legislative, executive, financial, and judicial—and only then criticize such means in the light of the first or individualist argument. The last section would deal critically with the question of supersession of ULBs by state governments in India. 1.4 Arguments in favour of State Control of Municipal Corporation and Municipality Mohit Bhattacharya (1972: 6) argues that that since, constitutionally, municipal government falls within the province of the state government, the latter has the power to determine their structure, functions, and financial resources. The autonomy of municipal bodies implies the degree of self- government within the ambit of their functions but it does not mean their unlimited authority and freedom. The paternalistic school contends that hold that some measure of control of state government over the municipal institutions is not only desirable but also necessary. State control over municipal bodies is favoured for other reasons, as well, chief amongst which is the implementation of policies which the local bodies may find unduly restrictive of their initiative. For Golding (1964: 43), the state government can also lay down certain minimum standards of administration below which the services of the local authorities should not be allowed to fall. The paternalists contend that state control is also needed for directing, unifying, and coordinating civil services, along with securing consistence and unity both in the formulation and implementation of national policies. For Argal (1960: 147), the local bodies, after all, form a part of the greater whole, i.e. the state, and there must be some higher authority to intervene when any local body ignores the fundamental canons of sound administration or sacrifices in any other way the interests of the people. Planning provides another rationale for state control over municipal bodies. According to Sachdeva (2011), the rural and urban local bodies are to be involved both in the formulation and implementation of plans for their respective areas. As such, the state governments are to provide the required guidance to the local bodies in the formulation of plans, and exercise supervision and control on them in their execution. Therefore, following Singh (1979: 3), it becomes clear that the state control over municipal bodies is justified on the

139 grounds that it is conducive to the maintenance of a reasonable degree of efficiency; that it helps in weaning away local bodies from vested interests; that it aids in augmentation of financial resources of the local bodies which are generally reluctant to impose direct taxes; that it makes for minimizing regional imbalances and ensures stability and uniformity in administration; that it safeguards national interests in their embryonic stages and that it facilitates sounder socio- economic planning. 1.5 Forms of Control over Municipal Corporation and Municipality Municipal bodies are subject to the legislative, executive, and financial control of state government, moreover being amenable to judicial control. Each of these modes of control can be studied individually. 1.5.1 Legislative Control As per Article 246 (3) of the Constitution of India (2007: 152), legislative control is exercised by the state government by virtue of its inherent right granted to it by the constitution and according to which it has the exclusive power to make laws in respect of local government institutions and decide their functions and powers. Accordingly, municipal bodies in a state are the creation of the respective state legislature and derive their powers from the statutes pertaining to them. The legislature, vide the changes brought about by the Constitution (74 th Amendment) Act, 1992, can also empower the government to make rules and regulations for all municipal matters such as elections, personnel, accounts, taxation, etc. To maintain conformity with the 74 th Amendment Act (1992), the state legislature can also make amendments in the Municipal Act from time to time and legislate separate Acts also to deal with some matters of importance instead of making minor changes in the existing Act. According to Sachdeva (2011), from among the various means of legislative control such as discussions and debates and different kinds of motions like call attention, adjournment, and privilege, questions asked by the members of the legislature during the question hour constitute the most powerful means of soliciting information about different aspects of municipal administration from the minister concerned. The questions raised in the assembly generally relate to issues like municipal elections, including preparation of electoral rolls, election petitions, gazette notification of elected members, removal of members, writs filed in the High Court, supersession and abolition of municipal committees, personnel, finance, and day-to-day

140 administration of municipal bodies. Legislative control over municipal bodies is of great significance, but it cannot be exercised in an effective manner owing to paucity of time at the disposal of the legislators, technical nature of municipal administration and political considerations, biases, and prejudices of the ruling party. 1.5.2 Administrative Control Administrative control over municipal bodies is the most effective type of control extending to every aspect of municipal administration. According to Sachdeva (2011), it comprises the determination of criteria for the creation of different kinds of municipal bodies; defining, increasing or decreasing their territorial limits; fixing the number of the elected members and the seats to be reserved for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, conduct of free and fair elections; delimitations of wards; co-option of members of certain categories of people not represented through elections; appointment of associate members and officials advisers; extension of the term of office of members or its reduction due to supersession, disposal of election petitions, removal of members and office bearers such as president and vice-president, etc. The following methods of administrative control of ULBs can be adopted by the concerned state: 1. Power to Approve By-Laws: The state government is vested with the power to approve by-laws and rules framed by the municipal bodies; to issue memoranda, circulars, and directions containing advice, suggestions, instructions, and directives; to sanction specific schemes; to prescribe service standards; to lay down procedures and norms; to conduct enquiries and inspections; to obtain periodic reports and to require the municipal bodies to obtain prior approval of the government for undertaking certain kinds of functions or for imposing any tax; etc. 2. Control over Personnel: The state governments have assumed complete authority over the municipal personnel since the provincialization of municipal services from the post of an assistant and above. The state government creates the posts, lays down definite qualifications for different posts and channels of promotion, makes appointment on the recommendations of a selection committee constituted by it, orders transfers from one municipality to another and determines their conditions of service, though the salary, allowances, gratuity, pension, and other payments are made by the concerned municipal 141 body. The government is also vested with the power to take disciplinary action against the personnel of municipal services. 3. Power of Inspection: The state government is also vested with the power to conduct inspections of the activities performed by the municipal bodies. The inspections are conducted by the representative of the state government at the district level, and in the state where the directorates of local bodies have been setup, the local inspectors are appointed for this purpose. The purpose of inspection is to ensure that the municipal bodies are functioning within the framework of the Municipal Act. 4. Reports and Enquiries: The municipal bodies are obliged to send periodic reports to the state government regarding their functioning. The reports can be quarterly, half yearly or annual. These reports include information concerning financial, administrative, and statistical matters. The government can initiate any enquiry on the basis of these reports and can also extract any kind of information from the municipal body. 5. Default and Appellate Powers: A municipal body is obliged to perform its functions within a specified period. If a municipal body fails to perform a particular function within a specified period, the state government can issue directions to finish the work in the stipulated time. There is a provision in various state municipal acts for making appeals to the state government against any municipal decision. Some of these decisions are concerned with issue of licences, refusal for construction at a particular site, demolition of a building, and disciplinary actions. 6. Powers of Dissolution and Supersession: Of all the administrative powers of control that state government exercises over municipal bodies, the power to dissolve or supersede a municipal body is the most drastic. Dissolution connotes terminating a council and giving a chance to the electorate to elect a new council within a specified time limit. Supersession, on the other hand, means suspension of the council and placing the entire control of the municipal body in an administrator appointed by the state government. Dissolution is thus less severe than supersession. 7. Agencies of Control: The state government exercises supervision and control over municipal bodies through state level and local agencies. The former comprise the Department of Local Government, Directorate of Local Government, and technical

142 departments, and the latter consist of the deputy commissioner and the sub-divisional officer. 1.5.3 Financial Control It is true that urban local bodies are always at the mercy of the state government in regard to their finances. This financial dependency of local bodies on state government, for Sachdeva (2011), provides an opportunity to the latter to exercise control over the former. The state government also lays down various rules and regulations for the audit and maintenance of accounts. Therefore, it becomes obvious for the funding agency (state government) to ensure that the funds are not mis-utilized and the guidance regarding audit and accounts are properly followed. All of this necessitates the state control over municipal finance. Financial control manifests itself in the following ways: 1. Regulation of Municipal Income: An ULB can levy taxes, modify and abolish them only with the approval of the state government. The state government can also require a municipal body to levy a tax, rate or fee or exempt a particular class of tax payers from their payment. This type of financial control was rampant during the Emergency period (1975-1977). Furthermore, the state government awards grants-in-aid to the municipal bodies to enable them to meet their ever growing needs, and therefore, exercises control over them to ensure that the grants are properly utilized and not misappropriated or diverted to functions other than those for which they were sanctioned. The state governments also ensure that loans to ULBs are utilized for the purpose for which they are received, the unspent amount is refunded, along with relevant interests. 2. Regulation of Expenditure: The state government regulates municipal expenditure by fixing limits on expenditure to be incurred on various items, laying down regulations and procedures for incurring expenditures. Sachdeva (2011) in this regard provides the examples of tenders or quotations which requires ULBs to obtain administrative and technical sanction from the concerned state government if the work involved exceeds a particular limit of expenditure. 3. Municipal Budget: Sachdeva (2011) mentions that ULBs are required to prepare their budgets in the forms prescribed by the state government and get the same approved by it. Sanction of the state government is also required for re-appropriation from one head to another head of the budget. The state government, while approving the budget, has to see

143 that the concerned municipal body has a minimum closing balance and necessary provision for the repayment of loans. 4. Accounting: Accounting constitutes the main ingredients of a sound financial administration. Sachdeva (2011) opines that merely imposition of taxes does not improve the financial position of the ULBs if taxes are not fully realized, the account books are not properly maintained and supervision over collection and expenditure is not exercised. The form and manner in which the accounts are to be maintained are generally prescribed by the Accountant General and any departure from these can be made only with the sanction of the state government. 5. Auditing: Municipal accounts are subject to annual audit conducted by the Examiner of the Local Fund Accounts to ensure that financial transactions are properly carried out, that amounts to be collected are duly realized and credited and that no amounts are paid without proper authority and provisions of funds in the budget. Sachdeva (2011) points out that the audit report highlights irregularities pertaining to non-regularization of expenditure in excess of budgetary provision, non-adjustment of loans raised, non- recovery of taxes, irregular and wasteful expenditure, embezzlement and misappropriation of municipal funds, non-observance of works rules, and so on. 1.5.4 Judicial Control For Sachdeva (2011) judicial control is intended to safeguard the rights of individuals against their encroachment by municipal authorities and those of municipal bodies against infringement by the state government. Judicial control is not only limited to the right of an aggrieved individual to sue a local authority for damages, there are, in addition, remedies available to secure the performance by local authorities of their statutory duties or to restrain them from acting outside their jurisdiction. The remedies available are in the form of various kinds of writs such as injunction, certiorari, prohibition, mandamus, and quo-warranto. The judiciary has the power to interpret laws governing the local government, by-laws and rules made thereunder and declare them ultra vires if they contravene the constitution or some provisions of other laws. Sachdeva (2011) highlights that the courts do not interfere in municipal administration on their own. They intervene only on the initiative of the aggrieved party and when they are satisfied that errors of law, fact finding, jurisdiction and procedure have been committed. The courts have entertained and decided hundreds of cases relating to the constitution of municipal committees or

144 municipal corporations, election and removal of their members and office bearers, conduct of business, delegation of powers, punishment and dismissal of officers and servants, taxation, supersession, and so on. Judicial control is not very effective, according to Sachdeva (2011), because the judiciary never takes the initiative, but intervenes only on being approached by the aggrieved citizen or by someone interested in the case, consequently many cases are never brought to the notice of the courts; second, litigation is a very expensive affair which a private citizen of moderate means can ill-afford; third, the judicial process is very lengthy, dilatory, and time consuming and is therefore very discouraging and frustrating for the persons concerned to take recourse to court of law; fourth, municipal acts and the municipal corporation acts of some states bar the jurisdiction of the courts in certain cases. Sachdeva (2011) also mentions a few necessary reforms which could be brought about to make judicial control over ULBs more effective: first to empower the courts to provide for preventive justice, whereby the courts shall be authorized to define or declare disputed rights and duties before any suit involving them is contested in the courts. Second, the courts have no power to enforce their decisions and they have to depend upon the executive branch of the government to carry them out. Hence, there is need for ensuring complete cooperation of the executive in the execution of the decisions of the courts. Third, special municipal courts exclusively dealing with municipal laws need to be established for speedy disposal of suits. Some municipal bodies have experimented with the institution of municipal magistracy for quick disposal of cases successfully. 1.6 Arguments against supersession of Municipal Bodies The state governments have been vested with the power of suspension and supersession of municipal bodies. Sachdeva (2011) mentions that it is provided in municipal acts of various states that if in the opinion of the state government, a committee is not competent to perform or persistently makes default in the performance of the duties imposed on it under the Act or exceeds or abuses its powers, the state government by an order published in the official gazette, together with the statement of reasons thereof can declare the committee under suspension for a period not exceeding one year. The state governments have been frequently resorting to supersession of municipal bodies on the grounds of incompetence, persistent default in the 145 performance of their statutory duties and abuse of powers. Following Sachdeva (2011), some arguments against the supersession of ULBs can be forwarded: 1. The words 'in the opinion of the government' make it clear that it is the opinion of the government that counts. It is well known that judged by the known standards opinion can never be objective. Nowhere has it been mentioned in the Act or under the rules as to how this opinion is to be formulated or arrived at. 2. It is not possible to define competence in precise terms and to assess it objectively. A municipal council may be very competent in performing some functions but quite inefficient in performing other functions. Competency of a single council independently assessed will be something very different when it is assessed in relation to other councils. Moreover, a council may not be able to exhibit competency in the performance of its multifarious duties in view of the fact that the finances of the municipality are not commensurate with the functions entrusted to it. Competency is judged both by the directorate and the secretariat. Different officers are associated with this process at different levels. Subjectively assessed competence cannot therefore be a real ground justifying the supersession of a municipal body. 3. Maladministration may further be due to the lapses on the part of individual councillor, the president, the executive officer, and the council in its collective capacity. The government generally cannot pinpoint the responsibility squarely and it is unfortunate that the committee as a whole should be punished for the fault of one or the other of its constituents. 4. 'Default' is another ambiguous term. There have been municipal councils in default in relation to certain functions but it is highly doubtful whether all such cases come under the category of persistent default. Incompetence or default in performance needs to be proved for which evidence has to be produced. 5. Party politics has been a major factor in the supersession of municipalities. In municipal committees in which the interests of the party in power at the state level are safely looked after no such drastic action is taken even if their administration is in poor shape. The decision to supersede, therefore, is a political one and occasionally partisan. 6. The view that if a municipal council abuses its powers or is considered incompetent to perform its functions it should be superseded is mistaken. If that were so the judiciary

62% MATCHING BLOCK 307/321 SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

146 would not have declared so many state and even parliamentary acts ultra vires of the Constitution. As per the report of the Rural-Urban Relationship Committee (1966: 118), supersession of municipal bodies is not a proper remedy for the maladies from which they generally suffer. It is only a short-term palliative dealing with the symptoms rather than the disease itself. 1.7 Conclusion For Sachdeva (2011), the mechanism of control has been inherited from the British Government, which for obvious reasons favoured a restrictive local government in India and therefore had imposed a system of checks resulting in an exceptionally high degree of regulation, control, and interference in the affairs of local government, thereby rendering the local government impoverished and emasculated. But in free India the role of the state government towards grassroots democracy is to be essentially different from what was designed by the alien government. Now the local government is to be recognized as a part of the responsible governmental system of the country and is allowed to play its role as such in the development of the lives of people and the promotion of their welfare. Therefore, as Bhattacharya (1969: 14) had noted, if municipal institutions have to be retained and promoted at the grassroots level, state control has to change from restriction to facilitation. 1.6 Summary This unit has discussed the following: ? There are two antithetical views regarding the supervision and control exercised by state government over municipal bodies: the individualist view and the paternalist view. ? The paternalist school is sceptical of decentralization of powers below the level of the state government. They also suggest various forms of control over local bodies. This has led to various forms of control exercised by the state government over ULBs— legislative, executive, financial, and judicial. ? As per Article 246 (3) of the Constitution of India, legislative control is exercised by the state government in respect of local government institutions by legislating on their functions and powers. ? Administrative control over municipal bodies it comprises the determination of criteria for the creation of different kinds of municipal bodies; defining, increasing or decreasing

147 their territorial limits; fixing the number of the elected members and the seats to be reserved for the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, and so on. ? As urban local bodies are always at the mercy of the state government in regard to their finances, this financial dependency of local bodies on state government provides an opportunity to the latter to exercise control over the former. The state government also lays down various rules and regulations for the audit and maintenance of accounts. ? Judicial control is intended to safeguard the rights of individuals against their encroachment by municipal authorities and those of municipal bodies against infringement by the state government. Judicial control is not very effective because the judiciary never takes the initiative, but intervenes only on being approached by the aggrieved citizen or by someone interested in the case. ? The state governments have been vested with the power of suspension and supersession of municipal bodies. The state governments have been frequently resorting to supersession of municipal bodies on the grounds of incompetence, persistent default in the performance of their statutory duties and abuse of powers. There are strong arguments against such practices. 1.7 Glossary Dissolution: In law, dissolution is any of several legal events that terminate a legal entity or agreement such as a marriage, adoption, corporation, or union. Supersession: In law means the act of removing or unseating or dissolving the duly and democratically elected authority. Ultra vires: Latin term that translates to 'beyond the powers'. It is used to describe an act which requires legal authority or power but is then completed outside of or without the requisite authority. 1.8 Model Questions Long Answer Type 1. Discuss the paternalistic argument towards the state government's control over municipal bodies in India. 2. Discuss the methods of legislative and administrative control exercised by state governments over municipal bodies in India. 3. Discuss the methods of financial and judicial control over municipalities in India.

148 4. Discuss the core arguments against the supersession of municipal bodies by state governments in India. Short Answer Type 1. Discuss the constitutional guarantees for legislative control of municipal bodies by state governments in India. 2. Discuss the three chief methods of administrative control exercised by state governments over municipal bodies in India. 3. What are the key methods of financial control over municipal bodies in India? 4. What are the reasons behind the ineffectiveness of judicial control over urban local bodies in India? 5. Write a note on the control over municipal personnel in India. 6. What are the three chief arguments against the supersession of municipal bodies in India? 1.9 References "Report of the Rural–Urban Relationship Committee," Vol. 1 (New Delhi: Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, 1966). Argal, R., Municipal Government in India (Allahabad: Aggarwal Press, 1960). Bhattacharya, M., State Directorates of Municipal Administration (New Delhi: IIPA, 1969). Bhattacharya, M., State-Municipal Relations (New Delhi: Indian Institute of Public Administration, 1972). Golding, L., Local Government (London: The English Universities Ltd., 1964). Sachdeva, P., Local Government in India (New Delhi: Pearson, 2011). Singh, H., State Supervision over Municipal Administration (New Delhi: Associated Pub. House, 1979). The Constitution of India (New Delhi: Ministry of Law and Justice, Government of India, 2007). Netaji Subhas Open University Honours in Public Administration (CBCS) B.D.P. CC VII BLOCK IV

149 UNIT IV: METROPOLITAN PLANNING COMMITTEE Structure 1.0 Objectives 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Dynamics of Urban Planning 1.3 Planning and Implementation Gap 1.4 Metropolitan Planning Committee 1.5 Shortcomings 1.6 Conclusion 1.7 Summary 1.8 Keywords 1.9 Model Questions 1.10 References 1.0

41% MATCHING BLOCK 306/321 W

OBJECTIVES After studying the unit, you should be able to: ? Explain the phenomenon of urbanisation and its effects. ? Explain the dynamics of Urban Planning in India. ? Explain the role of the Metropolitan Planning Committee. 1.1 INTRODUCTION Globally, over 55% of the population lives in urban areas today. It has been estimated that by 2045, the world's population will increase by 1.5 times to 6 billion, adding 2 billion more urban residents. The world is changing at a rampant pace and becoming increasingly urban. India is no different from this phenomenon of increasing urbanisation. According to the Indian census, carried out in 2011, the population of India was around 1,210,193,422, which means India has crossed the 1-billion mark. Currently, it is the second most populous country in the world after China, and studies indicate that India will be the world's number one populous country, surpassing China, by 2025. In India, over 35% of the population lives in urban areas, which is around 48 crore people and is increasing by 2.34% every year, and by 2030, over 50 percent of India's population is expected to live in urban areas. One of the most complex challenges India faces today is the pace and pattern of urbanisation. Urbanisation is a process of society's transformation from a predominantly rural to a predominantly urban population. For the first time since 1947, we added more people to our cities than to rural areas in the decade ending in 2011. More than nine million were added to

150 urban India every year, between 2001 and 2011. This pace of urbanisation is likely to continue, and it is estimated that 590 million people will start living in our cities by 2030 and which will go up to 820 million by 2050. In 2021, approximately a third of the total population in India lived in cities. The trend shows an increase in urbanisation by almost 4 percent in the last decade, meaning people have moved away from rural areas to find work and make a living in the cities. Over the last decade, urbanisation in India has increased by almost 4 percent, as more and more people leave the agricultural sector to find work in services. The unprecedented growth of population caused by population explosion and migration of people from rural to urban areas has resulted in an unplanned and haphazard growth of cities. Public utilities like housing, sanitation, transport, electricity, water, health, and education are under heavy pressure because of urbanisation. Though urbanisation has been an instrument of social, economic, and political progress, it has led to serious socioeconomic problems like poverty, unemployment, underemployment among rural immigrants, thefts, dacoities, burglaries, beggary, and other social evils. The urbanisation process has been marred by irrational land use, inefficient land development, urban deprivation, inadequate feeding, educating, housing, living on pavements and unhygienic slums, inadequate settlements, and so on. Experts are of the opinion that these hindrances caused by the process of urbanisation and overpopulation are attributed mainly due to the lack of urban planning and proper institutional arrangements. Therefore, what is required is the formulation of a continuous, coordinated, and programmatic process for urban planning and a comprehensive institutional arrangement that can meet the challenges posed by the haphazard urban explosion. 1.2 DYNAMICS OF URBAN PLANNING IN INDIA Since ancient times, the concept of urban planning has been found in India. In ancient India, town planning finds a reference in the Indus Valley civilization. The genesis of modern town planning can, however, be traced to Britain, which enacted legislation on town planning in 1909, the first of its kind in the world. With New Delhi kickstarting the process of planned development the other provinces such as Bombay and Madras enacted legislation for urban and town planning. Legislations on the town and urban planning were also passed in UP and Punjab. The post-independence period witnessed the emergence of new planned townships. Urban planning for India in post-independence began with the Delhi Development Act of 1957 which was an important step in this process. Several legislations followed in the form of the Rajasthan Urban Improvement Act, 1959 in Rajasthan, Maharashtra Regional and Town Planning Act, 1966 in Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 in Uttar Pradesh, Andhra Pradesh Urban Areas (Development) Act, 1975, Gujarat Town Planning and Urban Development Act, 1976 in Gujarat, and so on. Likewise, with the adoption of planning for the socio-economic development of the country

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 308/321	SA	Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

since 1951, town planning has become a part of the overall national plan. 151 The Ministry of Urban Development was set up in 1985 (which was designated as the Ministry of Urban Affairs and Employment in 1998) for broad policy formulation and monitoring of programmes in the areas of housing, urban development, urban poverty alleviation, and urban water supply. It has been formulating policies and programmes for Inida's urban sector. Though these issues are essentially state subjects but the central government plays a coordinating and monitoring role and also supports these programmes through central sector schemes, institutional finance, and expertise. Its town and country planning organization is the apex technical advisory body on matters relating to urban and regional planning, strategies, research, monitoring, and evaluation of central government schemes and development policies. The 74th Constitutional Amendment Act of 1992 was a major landmark in the process of urban development and administration. A major step that was taken in 1992 was the setting up of the Metropolitan Planning Committee or the District Planning Committee as per Article 234ZD and ZE of the 74 th Constitutional Amendment Act of 1992. Further, the Government of India brought UDPFI 1996, and URDPFI 2015 Guidelines. These developments guided the prevailing urban planning in India. The Urban Development Plan Formulation and Implementation (UDPFI) was formulated by The Institute of Town Planners. They prepared the guidelines, which became a roadmap for urban sector stakeholders. With the passage of time, many new developments like rapid urbanisation, globalisation, and the advancement of information and communication technologies made the urban sector more dynamic. This resulted in many new aspects to be considered while planning an urban area like inclusive planning, sustainable habitat, regional planning of the region surrounding the urban area, integration of land use and transport, disaster resilience, barrier-free planning for specially-abled citizens, networks of communication, electricity, roads, water supply, sewerage, solid waste, etc. Hence in 2015, the Ministry released the revised version of UDPFI guidelines by considering both the urban and its surrounding region for which the development plan should be prepared. The URDPFI guidelines suggest an elaborate Planning System Framework with due consideration to statutory and non-statutory plans like urban revitalisation plans, city development plans, comprehensive mobility plans, city sanitation plans, coastal zone management plans, etc. Today the UDPFI guidelines are categorised into core area planning and specific and investment planning. The government of India has also prepared Energy Conservation Building Code (ECBC) in 2017 and 2018 to apply green cities with specific guidelines and norms. Today the issues, policies, and administrative structure for town and country planning are discussed at the conferences of state ministers for town and country planning, and appropriate decisions are taken for implementation in the respective states. Accordingly, the majority of states have passed Town Planning Acts to enforce town planning activities. As Urban Development is a state subject, the state governments are empowered to 152 notify development areas in a city/town and constitute Urban Development Authorities for such areas. Various states have set up full-fledged departments dealing with town and country planning with extensive field organizations. Town and Country Planning Organization (TCPO) and the states' departments of town and country planning play a key role in town planning. 1.3 PLANNING AND IMPLEMENTATION GAP Town planning strategies and practices suffer from certain weaknesses and deficiencies. It is quite visible in the scale of unplanned development and the implementation of planning has also not been able to achieve the desired objectives. The causes responsible for the inadequacies of the planning processes and the impediments in their implications include the absence of investment plants and resources along with land use. Urban planning is predominantly land-use and physical change-oriented, and socio-economic planning is yet to be blended with the kind of physical planning that is in vogue in the major cities and towns. Likewise, no proper administrative responsibility has been entrusted to any single authority for the implementation of development plans. Every development agency works in isolation and without coordination, resulting in poor results and benefits to the target group. A comprehensive town planning act should be enacted which should be operative both in municipal limits as well as controlled areas. A single urban development agency may take the responsibility to implement the plan in a phased manner. There is a multiplicity of agencies at all (central, state, and local) levels, and several institutions are involved, which include ministries, departments, authorities, Boards, and decentralised committees in a city. This acts as a hindrance in the timely implementation of plans. There is also a diverse and unsettled political economy lacking a consensus on systematic urban development. Further, the development plans lack the phasing of programmes and modes of financing. 1.4 METROPOLITAN PLANNING COMMITTEE Metropolitan areas are the country's primary engines of growth and economic development. These areas are characterized by well-connected networks and transport facilities, and robust infrastructure, and in this case, metropolitan-level planning, implementation, and coordination

153 are required for urban transportation, water supply, waste management, policy, and public health, among other things. In this regard, The Constitution mandates the formation of Metropolitan Planning Committees (MPCs) in all metropolitan areas with a million-plus population. Article 243 ZE of Part IX A provides for the establishment of the Metropolitan Planning Committee (MPC). MPCs are envisioned to ensure integrated planning for the entire metropolitan area, and are responsible for the preparation of draft development plans, synthesising priorities set by local authorities, State and Central governments.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 310/321 SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

The purpose is to prepare a consolidated and comprehensive plan for the Metropolitan area as a whole.

According to Article 243 ZE, The state legislature has the authority to make the provisions which include the composition of such committees, the manner in which members of such committees are elected, the representation of the Central government, state governments, and other organizations in such committees, the functions of such committees concerning metropolitan planning and coordination and the manner in which chairpersons of such committees are elected. The provision states that two-thirds of the members of a metropolitan planning committee must be elected from among themselves

42% MATCHING BLOCK 309/321 W

by the elected members of the municipalities and chairpersons of the panchayats in the metropolitan area. Further, the proportion of these members on the committee should be proportional to the population ratio of the municipalities and panchayats in that metropolitan area.

Likewise,

95% MATCHING BLOCK 312/321 SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

to ensure better planning, close cooperation, and coordination between Union, State, and Local government —provision has been made to have representation of various Union and State level Committees, organizations, and institutions if deemed necessary.

The Metropolitan Planning Committee is expected to be a high-level, democratically elected body that will provide a constitutional mandate for the entire metropolitan development planning process. It is entrusted with the preparation of a Metropolitan Area Development Plan Draft and is required to coordinate plans developed by municipalities and panchayats in the Metro area, including coordinated spatial planning of the area. Further, it also coordinates and proposes the resolution of common issues involving Panchayats and Municipalities in the metro area, such as water and other physical and natural resources sharing. It allocates resources made available by the state and central governments to institutions at the local level. It schedules and prioritizes development projects or projects involving a large number of Panchayats or urban areas and advises and assists local governments in developing development plans along with serving as a link to disseminate development objectives, policies, and priorities of the Central and State Governments among various local bodies by developing operational guidelines that can be incorporated into the respective local bodies' plans. Lastly, the Committee plays a significant role in conflict resolution and avoiding areas of overlap among the various agencies operating in the metropolitan area. Furthermore, the scale of services required in these metropolitan areas is enormous. The central and state governments have set up city development authorities to provide for the planned

154 development of the respective cities or/and regions in their jurisdictions. For instance, The Delhi Development Authority was established by the central government under the Delhi Development Act, 1957, to give concrete shape to the policy of bringing order into building activity in Delhi as per the perspective development plan for Delhi 2001. Similarly, the Calcutta Metropolitan Organization was set up in 1961 by the Government of West Bengal to promote the development of the Calcutta metropolitan area according to plan. Another case is the Bombay Metropolitan Regional Planning Board which was constituted in 1967 under the Maharashtra Regional and Town Planning Act, 1966, followed by the Patna Metropolitan Regional Planning Board in 1967 and the Nagpur Metropolitan Regional Planning Board in 1968. All these metropolitan planning organizations, redesigned as metropolitan development authorities, perform identical functions, mainly allocation of land for different uses, general distribution and general locations of land and the extent to which the land may be used as residential, industrial, agricultural, or as forest, or for mineral exploitation; reservation of areas for open space, gardens, recreation; transport and communications, such as roads, highways, and railways; water supply, drainage, sewerage, sewage disposal and other public utilities, amenities, and services including electricity and gas; reservation of sites for new towns industrial estates and any other large scale development or project which is required to be undertaken for proper development of the region or new town; preservation, conservation and development of natural scenery, forest, wild life, natural resources, and landscaping; preservation of objects, features, structures or places of historical, natural, architectural or scientific interest and educational value; areas required for military and defense purposes; afforestation and prevention of erosion; proposals for irrigation, water supply, and hydro-electric works, flood control and prevention of river pollution; and providing for the relocation of population or industry (Sachdeva, 2011). 1. 5 SHORTCOMINGS Though the Metropolitan Planning Committees were conceived as a mechanism for an all-around development process in states, it has been noted that the State governments are hesitant to give up authority. As a supra-municipal authority, the MPC has limitations as it lacks executive powers, staff, and budgets. The lack of adequate manpower and allocation of adequate budgets act as a hindrance to its functioning. As they were supposed to lay the groundwork for metropolitan governance, but in most cases, they do not exist due to delay. Also, where they are formed, their functionality is dubious, with the limited role of local elected representatives raising additional concerns about democratic decentralization. Niti Aayog highlighted the non-availability of an inter-agency coordination mechanism, including special purpose vehicles (SPVs), for effective delivery. It stated that there is no solid spatial plan that serves as an overall framework for smart city planning and implementation and intelligent mechanisms for amplifying the voices of the urban poor, slum dwellers, migrants, and other marginalized citizens. There is a lack of a digital master plan, also known as a digital strategy and road map, followed by poor decision-making based on data for service delivery and resource sustainability. Lastly, there is poor access to skilled human resources to handle a variety

155 of functional domains and no financing of smart cities and ULB financial sustainability. According to Niti Aayog, the Metropolitan Planning Committees have yet to acknowledge that disaster management, mobility, housing, climate change, and other issues transcend municipal boundaries and necessitate regional-level solutions. 1. 6 CONCLUSION In recent years an unprecedented scale of population explosion, industrialization, and migration from rural to urban areas have accelerated urbanization in India. The process of planning in urban areas has evolved overtime, however, there is an urgent need to reformulate the process and mechanisms of planning in urban areas to check the rampant and haphazard growth of urban explosion. Various areas including water sources, waste disposal, traffic and transportation, drainage, air pollution abatement, and so on are issues which Municipal Corporations or municipalities cannot achieve much on their own. Since the metropolitan city's complexity necessitates a metropolitan-wide perspective, planning, advocacy, and action, as a result, the Metropolitan Planning Committee was conceived of as an inter-institutional platform for similar purposes. The Metropolitan Planning Committee was and is expected to be a high-level, democratically elected body that will provide a constitutional mandate for the entire metropolitan development planning process. However, MPC as a supra-municipal authority has limitations. As mentioned earlier, it does not have executive powers, adequate staff, and budgets, and the state governments are reluctant to concede power. Therefore, a more democratic approach is required by providing the MPCs with a full-time secretariat, which includes, staff, budgets, and executive powers. This body can be the middle layer between the municipal bodies and the state government Likewise, housing, transport, and police should be in the 12th Schedule. Currently, the State governments continue to hold these functions. This control provides state governments with unrestrained power over capital-intensive sectors, indirectly enabling them to control cities. More financial resources at the disposal of these committees will give them adequate resources to carry out their functions and fulfill the requirements of urban development. 1.7 SUMMARY ? India is facing the challenge of the changing pace and pattern of urbanisation ? Planning in India has undergone structural changes since its inception. ? Metropolitan Planning Committees (MPCs) are formed according to the constitution of India in all metropolitan areas. ? The MPCs provide a framework and arrangement of the metropolitan development planning process.
156 ? There are shortcomings and certain remedies are required with regard to MPCs. 1.8 KEYWORDS Urbanisation: The process through which cities grow, and higher and higher percentages of the population come to live in the city Municipal Corporation: A municipal corporation is a type of local government in India that administers urban areas with a population of more than one million.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 311/321 W

Niti Aayog: National Institution for Transforming India or Niti Aayog is a policy think tank of the Indian government which provides inputs regarding the different programmes and policies of the government. NITI Aayog gives relevant advice to the centre and state governments as well as to the Union territories. Metropolitan: The word Metropolitan is derived from the Greek word metropolitanus meaning citizen of a mother state. A metropolitan area is a region house to a densely populated urban core and its less-populated surrounding territories, sharing industry, infrastructure, and housing.

97% MATCHING BLOCK 313/321 SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

Metropolitan Area: An area having a population of ten lakhs or more, comprised in one or more districts and consisting of two or more Municipalities, Panchayats or other contiguous areas, specified by the Governor by public notification to be a Metropolitan area. 1.9

MODEL QUESTIONS 1.9.1 Long Answer Type 1. Trace the evolution the of Planning Process in India. 2. What is Metropolitan Planning Committee? Explain its constitutional provisions. 3. What are the major outcomes of overpopulation in the process of urbanisation? 4. What are the major shortcomings in the implementation and working of the Metropolitan Planning Committee? 1.9.2 Short Answer Type 1. What is Metropolitan Planning Committee? 2. What are the examples of Metropolitan Development Authorities in India? 3. Mention the constitutional provisions of the Metropolitan Planning Committee. 4. Write a few implementation gaps with regard to the planning process in India.

157 5. What is the function of The Urban Development Plan Formulation and Implementation (UDPFI) 6. How has Niti Aayog criticised the Metropolitan Planning Committee? 1.10 REFERENCES Government of India. (1996). Urban Development Plans Formulation & Implementation Guidelines. Retrieved from https://www.indiawaterportal org/sites /default/files/iwp2/Urban_Development_Plans_Formulation_and_Implementation_Guidelines__ UDPFI__Ministry_of_Urban_Affairs_and_ Employment_ GOI_1996.pdf Phukan, R. (2022). Overpopulation in India – Causes, Effects and How to Control it. My India. Sachdeva, P. (2011). Local Government in India. Pearson.
158 Netaji Subhas Open University Honours in Public Administration (CBCS) B.D.P. CC VII BLOCK IV UNIT V MUNICIPAL FINANCE COMMISSION Structure 1.30 Objectives 1.31 Introduction 1.32 1.33 1.34 1.35 Conclusion 1.36 Summary 1.37 Glossary 1.38 Model Questions 1.39 References 1.0 Objectives After studying this unit, you are expected to: ? Identify the provisions in the Constitution of India vis-à-vis the establishment of State and Municipal Finance Commissions. ? Identify the reasons behind the dismal state of municipal finances in India. ? Understand critically the recommendations vis-à-vis strengthening municipal finance in India. 1.8 Introduction The Constitution (74th Amendment) Act, 1992, vide Article 243I (2007: 134-135) provides that the governor of a state, as soon may within one year of the commencement of Constitution (74 th Amendment) Act, 1992, and thereafter at the expiration of every fifth year, constitute a finance 159 commission to

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 314/321	SA	Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 315/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to him as to: (a) the principles which should govern (i) the distribution between the state and the municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which can be levied by the state which may be divided between them and the allocation between the municipalities at the level

93%	MATCHING BLOCK 316/321	SA	Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institut ... (D106063648)

of their respective shares of such proceeds, (ii) the determination of the taxes, duties, tolls, and fee which may be assigned to

and

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 317/321	SA	Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

appropriated by the municipalities, (iii) the grants-in-aid to the municipalities from the consolidated fund of the state, (b) the measures needed to improve the financial position of the municipalities; (c) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the governor in the interests of sound finance of the municipalities. The governor shall cause

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 318/321	SA	Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

every recommendation made by the Commission together with an explanatory memorandum on the action taken thereon to be laid before the legislature of the state. Vide Article 243

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 320/321	SA	Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institut ... (D106063648)

Y (2007: 144-145), the Finance Commission constituted under article 243-I shall also review the financial position of the Municipalities and make recommendations to the Governor as to— (a) the principles which should govern— (i) the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees leviable by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the allocation between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; (ii) the determination of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to, or appropriated by, the Municipalities; (iii) the grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State; (b) the measures needed to improve the financial position of the Municipalities; (c) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the Governor in the interests of sound finance of the Municipalities. 160

Based on the context provided by these two articles of the Constitution of India, the present unit will discuss the functions of the Municipal and State Finance Commissions. It would also discuss the reasons behind the critical financial condition of Urban Local Bodies (ULBs) in India, and proffer some suggestions for Augmenting Municipal Finance. 1.9 Municipal and State Finance Commissions In compliance with constitutional stipulations, all the states had set up their state finance commissions. Most of the state finance commissions have submitted their reports to the concerned state governments. Some of them are yet to examine and accept them. According to Sachdeva (2011), Punjab became the first state in the country to have received the commission's report on 31 st December, 1995. The Punjab Finance Commission report recommended that 20 per cent of the net proceeds of at least from taxes collected by the state should be shared with the municipalities and Panchayati Raj institutions. These taxes were stamp duty, motor vehicles tax, electricity duty, entertainment tax and entertainment tax. Akin to the recommendations of the Punjab Finance Commission, other states have now listed several user charges which the municipalities could levy, such as, extension of surcharges to water supply, sewerage, parking, slots, solid waste management, etc. Some reports have also recommended that the state must also provide 'specific purpose' grants for additional coverage of population by core services. State Finance Commissions have also recommended that municipalities must check and plug revenue leakage and bring economy in expenditure. For Sachdeva (2011), the problem of inadequacy of finances of municipal bodies has been seriously discussed by numerous commissions and committees appointed by the Central and state governments from time to time. A joint meeting of the Central Council of Local Self Government and the Executive Committee of the All India Council of Mayors organized by the Ministry of Works and Housing had suggested to set up a municipal finance commission. The Rural-Urban Relationship Committee which made a detailed study inter alia of finances of urban local bodies had also, keeping in view the provisions of Article 280 of the Constitution of India, recommended that well before the appointment of the Central Finance Commission by the President, the governor of each state should appoint a body to be known as the Municipal Finance Commission to examine the financial obligations for various obligatory services and development schemes. 'The state governments', the committee observed, 'may include the financial obligation arising from the recommendations of the Municipal Finance Commission in

161 their proposal of the Central Finance Commission.' In this way, the finances of local bodies will become an integral part of the overall national finances. This procedure will not only act as a financial insurance for local bodies and protect them against arbitrary incursions of the State government but also act as a stimulus for them to make the best use of the taxes allocated to them. Although state governments did not evince great interest in the proposal at the beginning, after the passage of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992), they had to fall in line and constitute finance commissions in tune with the directives of Arts. 243I and 243Y of the Constitution of India. Prior to the Act, as a result of persistent demand made at the meetings of the Central Council of Local Self Government, a number of state governments had set up Municipal Finance Commissions, such as Maharashtra in 1973 and Odisha in 1975. Most recently, West Bengal has constituted the Fifth State Finance Commission on 23 rd May, 2022 which review, among other things, the financial position of Municipalities in the state and make recommendations to the governor which are in tune with the directives of Art. 243Y of the Constitution of India (No. 132-FB, 2022: 2). For Sachdeva (2011), there is no denying the fact that when the state governments themselves are frantically searching for additional sources of revenue, it is but natural that they would pay scant attention to the needs of local authorities. They have, in fact, been not only reluctant to part with such resources which are patently local but have even been tempted to encroach upon municipal tax resources by levying identical and parallel taxes. The Taxation Enquiry Commission (1953–54) had suggested reservation of specified tax resources in favour of local government but as usual the suggestion has remained on paper. There is considerable divergence between the Constitutional provisions and the working of the State Finance Commissions in reality. The states have not paid adequate attention to this institution and they often take long in submitting the report. Chakraborty et al. (2018) analysed that the State Finance Commissions in 12 Indian states took more than 30 months to submit their reports. The commissions often face the problems of non-availability of data, office space and technical staff. The implementation of the recommendations has also been delayed and this affects the adequate devolution of funds to the ULBs. 1.10 State of Municipal Finance in India

162 With an aim to strengthen the third tier of governance, the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act mandated the devolution of funds, functions and functionaries to the ULBs in 1992, while its implementation started only after 2005. As per the Fourteenth Finance Commission, in 2012– 2013, municipal revenue constituted just over one per cent of GDP in India (2015), while municipal revenues in other emerging economies such as Brazil and South Africa are five per cent and six per cent of their GDP, respectively, indicating significant scope for the ULBs in India to grow. The share of revenues from own sources in total municipal revenues declined from 55.7 per cent in 2007-08 to 51.6 per cent in 2012-13; although own sources have increased 81 percent, from INR 275.01 billion in 2007–08 to INR 499.13 billion in 2012-13. The share of tax revenues declined from 37.2 per cent to 32 per cent between 2007-08 and 2012-13, while the share of non-tax revenues increased from 18.5 per cent to 19.7 per cent during the same period. User charges as a percentage of own revenues of ULBs have increased, but ULBs need to be given more autonomy in deciding and fixing the charges, which are currently under the state control. The share of transfers in total municipal revenues went up from 44.1 per cent to 48.4 per cent during the same period due to increased state devolutions/grants-in-aid and finance commission transfers. As per the Economic Survey (2018), the share of own sources has further declined from 56 to 44 percent during 2010 to 2018. To meet its revenue and capital expenditures, municipalities in India have now been reduced to a status of regular borrowers from the capital market in India. Sachdeva (2011) has cited a few reasons for the critical financial condition of municipalities in India: 1. Unjust Distribution of Revenue Sources: The sources of income assigned to municipal bodies are inadequate as compared to their functions, with most taxes being levied by the union or state governments. 2. Defective Budgeting: Balance is not kept between income and expenditure. Sometimes expenditure exceeds the proposed income and the municipal bodies have to face a crisis which ultimately results in breakdown of services. 3. Hesitation to Impose New Taxes: The elected members who constitute the local council are always afraid of imposing new taxes on people because they feel that this will result in their defeat at the next election.

163 4. Defective System of Grants: The grants provided by the state government are either inadequate, irregular, unsystematic, or uncertain. There is no uniform criterion to provide grants to the municipal bodies and generally these are ad hoc and discretionary depending upon the availability of funds with the state governments. 5. Governmental Rigidity: The attitude of the state governments towards municipal bodies is quite rigid, such as in Haryana and Punjab, where municipal bodies are often superseded. 6. Defective Accounts and Audit System: In various municipalities audit objections remain pending for many years and in some municipalities audit is not conducted regularly. The accounts rules and regulations framed by the respective state governments are not followed, resulting in financial losses and embezzlements. 7. Limited Borrowing Powers: Borrowing powers are governed under the central legislation known as Local Authorities Loans Act, 1914. The attitude of the state or the central government is not in favour of municipal borrowing. 8. Faulty Tax Administration: The system of municipal tax administration suffers from various defects. In order to meet their needs and requirements the employees indulge in corrupt practices, which results in leakage of revenues, mounting size of uncollected dues, evasion in taxes and further widening the gap between resources and expenditure. 9. Poverty: Urban poverty among Indian people is one of the most crucial factors responsible for critical financial condition of urban local bodies. The rapid growth of urbanization has further aggravated the situation and has made the services provided by the municipal bodies more expensive. 1.11 Reforms of Municipal Finance: Some Suggestions In order to reform the deplorable condition of municipal finances in India, experts have suggested some reforms which can be mentioned under several heads: 1. Augmenting Own Tax Revenues: This can be done through periodic revision in the tax rates; correct assessment of the tax base; improving collection efficiency through innovative tax reforms; management innovations within the existing revenue structures. There is also an urgent need to minimise unnecessary exemptions on property taxes. Taxation powers of the ULBs should also be enhanced through amendments in the Municipal Acts, and relevant State/Central Acts.

164 2. Augmenting Non-Tax Revenues: The ULBs may endeavour to periodically revise the user charges, such as covering at least Operation and Maintenance costs, revision of user charges linked to inflation, and so on. Inventory assets must also be updated through listing, classification, and valuation followed by asset management strategies. 3. Reforms in Devolution of Funds from state/central governments: Such devolutions must look beyond the depend culture created in the welfare state model, by punishing underperforming ULBs in appropriate manner. In India, a formula of devolution is required that would ensure objectivity, transparency, and predictability of funds made available to ULBs. 4. Augmenting Municipal Finance: Such reforms must attempt to bridge the urban fiscal gap by addressing issues of expenditure assignment, revenue assignment, finance- function matching, and municipal management in order to raise revenues and cut costs. A Revenue Mobilisation Incentive Fund (RMIF) may be created to allow the ULBs to mobilise revenue action plan for stimulating revenue potential from city economy, value added role of municipal services, as well as sale, use, transfer of municipal assets. 5. Reforming Financial Management: Financial Management Systems of some ULBs have been doing admirably vis-à-vis covering Double-Entry Accounting System, etc. Such reforms may make ULB finances more sustainable in future. 6. Land Value Augmentation: ULBs may embark upon land monetisation by proper inventory of assets and its regular updating through generating computer database of properties using of GIS technology. Land can be used as a resource for ULBs through various land based instruments such as Vacant Land Tax; Land Transfer Tax; Land Gains Tax; Purchasable/Transferable Development Right; Development and Betterment charges; TDR and FSI, and through charging Impact Fee. 1.11.1 Municipal Finance Corporation The Rural-Urban Relationship Committee (1966: 107-108) had suggested the setting up of a Municipal Finance Corporation in each state to advance loans to the municipal bodies to meet the capital needs of municipal enterprises such as city transport, milk supply, electricity, cinemas, hotels and the like. The Corporation could have an authorized capital to be subscribed by the Government of India, the Reserve Bank of India, the Life Insurance Corporation, commercial banks, and other financial institutions as also the local bodies. It should be run on

165 commercial lines and should have the power to issue debentures and raise market loans under the guarantee of the Union Government. 1.11.2 Urban Development Finance Corporation According to Sachdeva (2011), an Urban Development Finance Corporation could also be set up to finance the municipal development plans and programmes. It is argued that such a corporation would be better equipped to tap additional resources and to give special attention to the requirements of municipal programmes. The United Nations (1962) has also supported the demand for such a central loan agency and observed: 'Such an agency would not only provide loans to local authorities at reasonable rates but could also give technical advice on individual projects and spur long term physical planning at the local level.' In the final analysis it is to be accepted that the above-mentioned arrangements would be useful to a limited extent of financing the remunerative and self-liquidating projects, but for financing the social infrastructure investments in the field of education, health, housing, etc., what is needed is combination of loans and grants which can be provided only by the Central and state governments. 1.12 Conclusion The 74th Amendment Act was expected to devolve sufficient powers to the Urban Local Governments to enable them to function as institutions of Self-Government.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 321/321 SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

To that effect Article 243I and Article 243Y were devised to create

100% MATCHING BLOCK 319/321 W

finance commission to review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to the governor

of
a
state for enhancing the financial position of ULBs. Most of the times, either due to lack of political will or over-bureaucratisation, states have not paid adequate attention to this institution and they often take long in submitting the report. This, along with poor resource allocation and slow economic growth, has led to the dismal condition of municipal finances in India. Local governments around the world have adopted an admixture of instruments to finance their urban services and infrastructural requirements, involving local taxes, user charges and transfers, borrowings from domestic financial institutions, banks and capital markets. Since 2005, municipal financing in India has substantially evolved from a grant and soft loan-based infrastructure-creation programme to the increasing use of innovative and market-based mechanisms such as municipal bonds, pool financing bonds, and so on, thereby bringing in private capital for municipal bodies.

166 In the emerging context of rapid urbanisation and the consequent need for more resources by the ULBs for performing their assigned functions, it is imperative that municipal finance reforms are undertaken in earnest so as to enable the local bodies to stimulate, strengthen and augment their resource base as well as enhance their resource mobilisation power from the market. 1.13 Summary This unit has discussed the following: ? After the passage of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992), states had to constitute finance commissions in tune with the directives of Arts. 243I and 243Y of the Constitution of India. ? As per the Fourteenth Finance Commission, in 2012–2013, municipal revenue constituted just over one per cent of GDP in India (2015), while municipal revenues in other emerging economies such as Brazil and South Africa are five per cent and six per cent of their GDP. To meet its revenue and capital expenditures, municipalities in India have now been reduced to a status of regular borrowers from the capital market in India. ? The reasons for this can be summarised in terms of unjust distribution of revenue sources; defective budgeting; hesitation to impose new taxes; defective system of grants; governmental rigidity; defective accounts and audit system; limited borrowing powers; faulty tax administration; and urban poverty. ? Some reforms that can be undertaken to remedy the situation include augmentation of own tax revenues and non-tax revenues; reforms in devolution of funds from central/state governments; augmentation of municipal finance; reforms in financial management; and land value augmentation. ? The setting up of a Municipal Finance Corporation in each state to advance loans to the municipal bodies or the setting up of an Urban Development Finance Corporation would also be useful to a limited extent. 1.14 Glossary Devolution: It refers to the transfer of authority to subordinate levels of the Government. 1.15 Model Questions Long Answer Type 1. Discuss the constitutional provisions for setting up finance commissions in Indian states.
167 2. Discuss the procedure for setting up Municipal Finance Commissions in India. How far has Indian states been successful in this regard? Argue cogently. 3. What are the reasons for the dismal state of municipal finances in India? 4. Discuss the recommendations towards the betterment of municipal finances in India. Short Answer Type 1. Write a note on Art. 243I of the Constitution of India. 2. Write a note on the state of Municipal Finance Commissions in India. 3. Mention three chief reasons for the poor state of municipal finances in India. 4. Write a note on the recommendations of the Rural-Urban Relationship Committee for setting up a Municipal Finance Corporation in Indian states. 5. How can ULBs augment their tax and non-tax revenues? 6. How can ULBs augment land value for their own advantage? 1.16 References “Notification No. 132-FB,” (Howrah: Government of West Bengal). URL: https://finance.wb.gov.in /writereaddata/132-FB.pdf. Chakraborty, P., Gupta, M. & Singh, R.K., Overview of State Finance Commission Reports (New Delhi: NIPFP, 2018). Sachdeva, P., Local Government in India (New Delhi: Pearson, 2011). The Constitution of India (New Delhi: Ministry of Law and Justice, Government of India, 2007).

Hit and source - focused comparison, Side by Side

Submitted text	As student entered the text in the submitted document.
Matching text	As the text appears in the source.

1/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

found in the Vedas, in the epics of Ramayana and Mahabharata, Manu Smriti and in the

SA Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D44072164)

2/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	27 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	27 WORDS

Local government appears to be that part of the government of a nation or state which deals mainly with such matters as concern the inhabitants of

Local government appears to be that part of the government of a nation or state which deals mainly with such matters as concern the inhabitants of

W https://pdfcoffee.com/local-administration-pdf-free.html

3/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	62 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	62 WORDS

Local government is the administration of a locality-a village, a city or any other area smaller than the state-by a body representing the local inhabitants, possessing a fairly large amount of autonomy, raising at least a part of its revenue through local taxation and spending its income on services which are regarded as local and, therefore, distinct from State and Central

Local Government is the administration of a locality- a village, a city or any other area smaller than the state- by a body representing the local inhabitants, possessing a fairly large amount of autonomy, raising at least a part of its revenue though local taxation and spending its income on services which are regarded as local and, therefore, distinct from state and central

W https://pdfcoffee.com/local-administration-pdf-free.html

4/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	68%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

Local Government as the management of their affairs by the people of locality". To Harris, local government is "A

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

5/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	93%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

Independence must begin at the bottom. thus , every village will be a republic, ... having full powers".

Independence must begin at the bottom. Thus, every village will be a republic or panchayat having full powers.

W http://www.mkgandhi.org/ebks/Gandhionvillages.pdf

6/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

Town-meetings are to liberty what primary schools are to science; they bring it within the people's reach, they teach men how to use and how to enjoy it.

town meetings are to liberty what primary schools are to science: they bring it within the people's reach, they teach men how to use and how to enjoy it' (

W https://etheses.whiterose.ac.uk/3567/1/418643.pdf

7/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

local government as being a relatively autonomous instrument of class domination. Accordingly, the main point is placed on the 'structural' context of 'local' government. Local government is not concerned as an issue about organization, but with reference to core theoretical concerns derived from Marxist theories about the state, class relations and policy-making.

local government as being a relatively autonomous instrument of class domination (Duncan and Goodwin, 1988,32). Accordingly, the main point is placed on the 'structural' context of 'local' government. Local government is not concerned as an issue about organisation, but with reference to core theoretical concerns derived from Marxist theories about the state, class relations and policy-making.

W https://etheses.whiterose.ac.uk/3567/1/418643.pdf

8/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 95 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 95 WORDS

local self government has been used in those countries which were under colonial rule. For instance, in our 4 country, the term originated when the country was ruled by the British and we did not have any self-government at the central and provincial levels. After the British government decided to associate us in administering local affairs, it meant a slice of self-government for the people. Hence the term 'local self-government' was meaningful at that time. But now the word 'Self' has become redundant as the country enjoys self rule at all its basic role is 'continually to reproduce the conditions within which capitalist accumulation can take place. The capitalist state is charged with securing the conditions favorable to capital accumulation as a whole and in the long term. 2.5

SA Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D44072164)

9/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

its basic role is 'continually to reproduce the conditions within which capitalist accumulation can take place'(Cockbum, 1977,51). The capitalist state is charged with securing the conditions favourable to capital accumulation as a whole and in the long term (

W https://etheses.whiterose.ac.uk/3567/1/418643.pdf

10/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 60 WORDS 79% MATCHING TEXT 60 WORDS

Local Government in 1948 that “Local Self Government is not and must be the basis of any true system of democracy. We have got rather into the habit of thinking democracy at the top and not so much below. Democracy at the top may not be a success unless you build on its foundation from below.” The

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

11/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 146 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 146 WORDS

An ideal Indian village will be so constructed as to lend itself to perfect sanitation. It will have cottages with sufficient light and ventilation built of a material obtainable within a radius of five miles of it. The cottages will have courtyards enabling householders to plant vegetables for domestic use and to house their cattle. The village lanes and streets will be free of all avoidable dust. It will have wells according to its needs and accessible to all. It will have houses of worship for all, also a common meeting place, a village common for grazing its cattle, a co-operative dairy, primary and secondary schools in which industrial education will be the central fact, and it will have Panchayats for settling disputes. It will produce its own grains, vegetables and fruit, and its own Khadi. This is roughly my idea of a model village...

An ideal Indian village will be so constructed as to lend itself to perfect sanitation. It will have cottages with sufficient light and ventilation built of a material obtainable within a radius of five miles of it. The cottages will have courtyards enabling householders to plant vegetables for domestic use and to house their cattle. The village lanes and streets will be free of all avoidable dust. It will have wells according to its needs and accessible to all. It will have houses of worship for all; also a common meeting place, a village common for grazing its cattle, a co-operative dairy, primary and secondary schools in which industrial education will be the central fact, and it will have panchayats for settling disputes. It will produce its own grains, vegetables and fruit, and its own khadi. This is roughly my idea of a model village.

W http://www.mkgandhi.org/ebks/Gandhionvillages.pdf

12/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

can, under intelligent guidance, double the village income as distinguished from individual income. There are in our villages' inexhaustible resources not for commercial purposes in every case but certainly for local purposes in almost every case. The greatest tragedy is the hopeless unwillingness of the villagers to better their lot.” 13

can under intelligent guidance, double the village income as distinguished from individual income. There are in our villages inexhaustible resources not for commercial purposes in every case but certainly for local purposes in almost every case. The greatest tragedy is the hopeless unwillingness of the villagers to better their lot. "2.

W http://www.mkgandhi.org/ebks/Gandhionvillages.pdf

13/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

is a training in self government. It entrusts the administration of powers to those who will feel most directly the consequences of those powers."

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

14/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

authority legislative, judicial or administrative from higher level of government to lower."

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

15/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Crook, R.C. and Manor, J. (1998) Democracy and Decentralization in South Asia and West Africa. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press.

SA Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D44072164)

16/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 92 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 92 WORDS

the concept of globalization. 5.3 Globalization The Information and Communication Technology (ICT) revolution, the free flow of information-based and knowledge-based economies, the growing integration with the global economy of the national economy, and the market economy, is the key to globalization. So globalization is the process by which the free market economy is ensured all over the world. In this process, foreign companies are doing trade throughout the world. That's why you can get all the foreign products at a minimal price from your doorstep. 25

the History of Globalization What is Globalization? The Information and Communication Technology (ICT) revolution, the free flow of information-based and knowledge-based economies, the growing integration with the global economy of the national economy, and the market economy, is the key to globalization. So globalization is the process by which the free market economy is ensured all over the world. In this process, foreign companies are doing trade throughout the world. That's why you can get all the foreign products at a minimal price from your doorstep.

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

17/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	59 WORDS	99%	MATCHING TEXT	59 WORDS

broadly used since 1970 but globalization as a concept we can find from ancient times, people have been shown to participate in international trade. Although there was no general policy then. The history of globalization begins thousands of years ago, in the middle Ages, the Silk Road was used to trade China with Europe through Central Asia.

broadly used since 1970 but globalization as a concept we can find from ancient times, people have been shown to participate in international trade. Although there was no general policy then. The history of globalization begins from thousands of years ago, in the middle Ages, the Silk Road was used to trade China with Europe through Central Asia.

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

18/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	115 WORDS	93%	MATCHING TEXT	115 WORDS

Features of Globalization From the above discussion, we also find some features of globalization. These are- 5.4.1 Integration of Economies The integration of economies throughout the world is necessary for interaction and integration among people, companies, and governments worldwide. It is a process in which agreements are made among the countries within a particular geographic region for reducing tariff barriers to ensure a free flow of goods and services. 5.4.2 Liberalization To ensure integration of economies among the countries it is necessary to implement the process of liberalization in their own countries. Like integration of economies, liberalization also is a process by which a country reforms their economic policies

Features of Globalization From the above discussion, we also find some features of globalization. These are- • Integration of Economies • Liberalization • Privatization • Free Trade • Interconnectedness 1. Integration of Economies The integration of economies throughout the world is necessary for interaction and integration among people, companies, and governments worldwide. It is a process in which agreements are done among the countries within a particular geographic region for reducing tariff barriers to ensure a free flow of goods and services. 2. Liberalization To ensure integration of economies among the countries it is necessary to implement the process of liberalization in their own countries. Like integration of economies, liberalization also is a process by which a country reform their economic policies

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

19/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 131 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 131 WORDS

open their market to all. It ensures freedom of the entrepreneurs for the establishment of any kind of legal trades or industries in their own countries or abroad. 5.4.3 Privatization After liberalization, it's time for privatization. Without liberalization there is no existence of privatization. Privatization refers to the transfer of ownership of any property, corporation or business or services from government to the privately owned sectors. 26 Globalization would not be possible without LPG. Here L refers to Liberalization, P for Privatization and lastly G for Globalization. It can be said that liberalization and Privatization are the preconditions of globalization. 5.4.4 Free Trade It refers to free flow trade among the countries without tariff barriers. Free trade can be possible when some countries within open their market to all. It ensures freedom of the entrepreneurs for the establishment of any kind of legal trades or industries in their own countries or abroad. 3. Privatization After liberalization, it's time for privatization. Without liberalization there is no existence of privatization. Privatization refers to the transfer of ownership of any property, corporation or business or services from government to the privately owned sectors. Globalization would not be possible without LPG. Here L refers to Liberalization, P for Privatization and lastly G for Globalization. It can be said that liberalization and Privatization are the precondition of globalization. 4. Free Trade It refers to free flow trade among the countries without tariff barriers. Free trade can be possible when some countries within same geographic region sign an agreement for the free trade among their countries. 5.4.5 Interconnectedness It provides us a framework to explore the world through interaction with different people, animals, nature by using several technological tools without any kind of barriers. 5.5

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

20/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

same geographic region sign an agreement for the free trade among their countries. 5. Interconnectedness It provides us a framework to explore the world through interaction with different people, animals, nature by using several technological tools without any kind of barriers.

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

21/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 72 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 72 WORDS

Globalization The concept of globalization as a whole is largely economic. Globalization has emerged and developed mainly as an economic concept and system. Economic globalization is the economic connection of a country with the global economic system. Globalization in the economic field is free economic adoption. This is to remove the regulatory rules imposed on a country's economic affairs and to expose the domestic economy to the world. 5.5.2

Globalization] The concept of globalization as a whole is largely economic. Globalization has emerged and developed mainly as an economic concept and system. Economic globalization is the economic connection of a country with the global economic system. Globalization in the economic field is free economic adoption. This is to remove the regulatory rules imposed on a country's economic affairs and to expose the domestic economy to the world.

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/what-are-the-5-types-of-globalization/

22/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	644 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	644 WORDS

Globalization It is another one of the important types of globalization. Social globalization is a process. As a result of this process, traditional social institutions become weak. The identity of the socialized people is renewed. People are no longer members of a particular community or national because of the new identity. In the pre-modern world, the context of human identity was narrow and limited. In terms of family, ethnicity, tribe, village, religion etcThe identity of individual people was determined. The target population is also made up of the population of the state. As a member of the state, the identity of the citizenship or nationality of the people prevails. 27 According to the opinion of a group of sociologists, as the globalization process expands, the personal and collective identities of people become weaker. Former identities of the past lose its importance. Relationships with people from distant places developed due to the development and expansion of new technologies, the expansion of business and communication systems, In this case the Internet, e-mail, website etc. opens up a new world in front of people. 5.5.3 Cultural Globalization The process of cultural globalization is also sometimes called McDonaldization. Cultural globalization is the process by which a world-class of goods, ideas and information is produced in one part of the world. As a result, cultural differences between different races, regions and individuals are removed. The emergence and development of international or multinational companies and the emergence of global goods have partly driven the process of globalization.The revolutionary development and expansion of information technology, the expansion of satellite-based communication systems, the Internet, the telecommunication infrastructure and various global media corporations are highlighting the process of globalization. However, as culture helps globalization, so does obstruction. As the elements or forces of globalization are enriched by culture, so is resistance. Hollywood movies are screened worldwide. Adidas sports goods are sold around the world. The Coca-Cola market is worldwide. McDonalds has demanded the world's fast food market. Such products are many and varied worldwide. But all these international brands have to do with the dignity of local culture and the touch of social customs. 5.5.4 Political Globalization Political ideology is often referred to as one of the characteristics of globalization. That is, the expression of globalization also occurs in political ideology. The transformation of liberalism is called an example of political ideology in the

Globalization] It is another one of the important types of globalization. Social globalization is a process. As a result of this process, traditional social institutions become weak. The identity of the socialized people is renewed. People are no longer members of a particular community or national because of the new identity. In the pre-modern world, the context of human identity was narrow and limited. In terms of family, ethnicity, tribe, village, religion etc., the identity of individual people was determined. The target population is also made up of the population of the state. As a member of the state, the identity of the citizenship or nationality of the people prevails. According to the opinion of a group of sociologists, as the globalization process expands, the personal and collective identities of people become weaker. Former identities of the past lose its importance. Relationships with people from distant places developed due to the development and expansion of new technologies, the expansion of business and communication systems, In this case the Internet, e-mail, website etc. opens up a new world in front of people. Must-Read- Advantages and Disadvantages of Globalization 3. Cultural Globalization [Types of Globalization] The process of cultural globalization is also sometimes called McDonaldization. Cultural globalization is the process by which a world-class of goods, ideas and information is produced in one part of the world. As a result, cultural differences between different races, regions and individuals are removed. The emergence and development of international or multinational companies and the emergence of global goods have partly driven the process of globalization. The revolutionary development and expansion of information technology, the expansion of satellite-based communication systems, the Internet, the telecommunication infrastructure and various global media corporations are highlighting the process of globalization. However, as culture helps globalization, so does obstruction. As the elements or forces of globalization are enriched by culture, so is resistance. Hollywood movies are screened worldwide. Adidas sports goods are sold around the world. The Coca-Cola market is worldwide. McDonald’s has demanded the world’s fast food market. Such products are many and varied worldwide. But all these international brands have to do with the dignity of local culture and the touch of social customs. 4. Political Globalization [Types of Globalization] Political ideology is often referred to as one of the characteristics of globalization. That is, the expression of globalization also occurs in political process of globalization. Moreover, the emergence, development and expansion of Non- Governmental Organizations (NGOs) as an expression of political globalization; The role of the national states is to refer to the role of climate change and so on. The expression of political globalization has occurred in international organizations. All these organizations exceed the national boundaries. Extending the boundaries of the single state of the international organization extends to the international sphere of many states. There are many and many international organizations in the present world. Most of these were formed in the aftermath of World War II. Notable examples of this are the United Nations Organization (UNO), the European Economic Community (EEC), the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund (IMF), and the World Trade Organization (WTO), etc. 28 Theoretically, nation-states can take initiative in organizing international organizations in a coherent and organized manner without sacrificing their sovereignty. Transnational-state boundaries may force international institutions to impose their will on states. 5.5.5 Environmental Globalization Environmental globalization refers to internationally coordinated practices and regulations in the form of international treaties regarding environmental protection. The growth of globalization and its impact on the global environment is an important concern to the world. According to some environmentalists, there is no doubt that the tide of development that has come under the influence of globalization is actually polluting the environment. To them globalization increases our consumption of ideology. The transformation of liberalism is called an example of political ideology in the process of globalization. Moreover, the emergence, development and expansion of Non- Governmental Organizations (NGOs) as an expression of political globalization; The role of the national states is to refer to the role of climate change and so on. The expression of political globalization has occurred in international organizations. All these organizations exceed the national boundaries. Extending the boundaries of the single state of the international organization extends to the international sphere of many states. There are many and many international organizations in the present world. Most of these were formed in the aftermath of World War II. Notable examples of this are the United Nations Organization (UNO), the European Economic Community (EEC), the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund (IMF), and the World Trade Organization (WTO), etc. Theoretically, nation-states can take initiative in organizing international organizations in a coherent and organized manner without sacrificing their sovereignty. Transnational-state boundaries may force international institutions to impose their will on states. 5. Environmental Globalization [Types of Globalization] Environmental globalization refers to internationally coordinated practices and regulations in the form of international treaties regarding environmental protection. The growth of globalization and its impact on the global environment is an important concern to the world. According to some environmentalist, there is no doubt that the tide of development that has come under the influence of globalization is actually polluting the environment. To them globalization increases our consumptions of

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/what-are-the-5-types-of-globalization/

23/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

lot of products made through natural resources which is affecting

lot of products made through natural resources which is affecting

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/what-are-the-5-types-of-globalization/

24/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	42 WORDS	95%	MATCHING TEXT	42 WORDS

ecological cycle very badly. Many think that industrialization is a part of globalization and the process of industrialization has been increasing with the help of globalization. Due to industrialization harmful chemicals have been thrown to the environment and it affects ecological cycle very badly. Many think that industrialization is the part of globalization and the process of industrialization has been increasing with the help of globalization. Due to the industrialization harmful chemicals have been thrown to the environment and it affects

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/what-are-the-5-types-of-globalization/

25/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

For most local governments, globalization is causing serious problems, especially regarding sustenance of

For most local governments, globalization is causing serious problems, especially regarding sustenance of

W https://lex.juris.hokudai.ac.jp/global-g/paper/4-04.pdf

26/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	52 WORDS	98%	MATCHING TEXT	52 WORDS

local economy. First of all, local governments in the rural area still depend on agriculture, which is the least competitive. Even if there is a manufacturing sector, employment is slashed by relocation of the production center. Employment in local communities is supported by the public sector through public investment.

local economy. First of all, local governments in the rural area still depend on agriculture, which is the least competitive in Japan. Even if there is a manufacturing sector, employment is slashed by relocation of the production center. Employment in local communities is supported by the public sector through public investment.

W https://lex.juris.hokudai.ac.jp/global-g/paper/4-04.pdf

27/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	46 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	46 WORDS

So globalization is the process by which the free market economy is ensured all over the world. In this process, foreign companies are doing trade throughout the world. That's why you can get all the foreign products at a minimal price from your doorstep.

So globalization is the process by which the free market economy is ensured all over the world. In this process, foreign companies are doing trade throughout the world. That's why you can get all the foreign products at a minimal price from your doorstep.

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

28/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

What is globalization and history of globalization [4 phases], SCHOOL OF POLITICAL SCIENCE.

What Is Globalization And History Of Globalization [4 Phases] Skip to content SCHOOL OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

W https://schoolofpoliticalscience.com/meaning-and-history-of-globalization/

29/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	58 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	58 WORDS

said " Local self Government is and must be the basis of any true system of democracy. We have got rather into the habit of thinking 22 democracy at the top and not so much below. Democracy at the top may not be success unless you build on its foundation from below". Local

SA Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D44072164)

30/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	35 WORDS	41%	MATCHING TEXT	35 WORDS

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject matters entrusted to it

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

31/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

Local governments respond to the needs and aspirations of the inhabitants of the immediate locality, on matters which concern them in their daily lives,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

32/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	42 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	42 WORDS

Megasthenes mentions that large cities used to have six bodies of five members each and each of these bodies had been entrusted with important subjects of human activities, which included the registration of births and deaths, care and entertainment of foreigners,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

33/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

powers and duties of the chief of thecity police, magistrate and prefect of

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

34/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

The origin of municipal administration in British India dates back to 1687 when a municipal corporation was set up at Madras under a charter granted by James II, the then British monarch

The origin of municipal administration in India dates back to 1687 when a Municipal corporation was set up in Madras, under a Charter Act passed by James II, the then British Monarch.

W https://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/download-slm.php?file=BAPS-02-BLOCK-04.pdf

35/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

a mayor's court in each of the three presidency towns of Madras, Bombay, and Calcutta,

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

36/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 74% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

the Governor-General-in- Council was empowered to appoint justices of peace for the presidency towns from among converted civilians and the British subjects, who were vested with the authority to impose taxes on houses and lands in 1842, the Bengal Act was passed to set up town committees for sanitary purposes,

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

37/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

SA Introduction CHAPTER1.docx (D37901991)

38/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

formation of local committees to make better provisions for public health and convenience (2011: 40). 1.3.2

SA c-2nd.docx (D21510546)

39/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

a measure of decentralization from the centre to the provinces

SA Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D44072164)

40/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

was introduced primarily to serve the British interests rather than promote self-governing bodies in the establishment of a network of local self-government institutions; b. the reduction of the official element to not more than a third of the total membership;

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

41/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

SA c-2nd.docx (D21510546)

42/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

the inauguration of provincial autonomy under the Government of India Act(1935), the development of municipal government in India received further impetus.The Act abolished the system of diarchy and introduced popular governments in the provinces.

The inauguration of provincial autonomy under the Government of India Act, 1935 gave further impetus to the development of municipal government in India. The Act abolished the system of diarchy and introduced popular government in the provinces.

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

43/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

adoption of election as a means of constituting local bodies.

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

44/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

The origin of municipal administration in British India dates back to 1687 when a municipal corporation was set up at Madras under a charter granted by James II,

The origin of municipal administration in India dates back to 1687 when a Municipal corporation was set up in Madras, under a Charter Act passed by James II,

W https://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/download-slm.php?file=BAPS-02-BLOCK-04.pdf

45/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject matters entrusted to it

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

46/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 35% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

the Government of India Act (1919) introduced the diarchical system of government, and local self-government came under the charge of a popular minister responsible to the provincial legislature. ? Under the Government of India Act (1935) the development of municipal government

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

47/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Urban Local Government: an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory town, by a definite area and the population therein, deliberating, regulating and implementing decisions on subject *

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

48/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 50% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

of Urban Local Government in India. 2. Discuss the development of Urban Local Government in India from 1687 to 1857. 3. Discuss the development of Urban Local Government in of urban local government in India; • outline the organisational structure of urban local government; and • discuss the urban local government in

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

49/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	76%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

the chief of the city police, magistrate and prefect of the municipal administration

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

50/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	35 WORDS	41%	MATCHING TEXT	35 WORDS

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject matters entrusted to it

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

51/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

Local governments respond to the needs and aspirations of the inhabitants of the immediate locality, on matters which concern them in their daily lives,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

52/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

urban settlements (2007: 22).The only reference to urban self-government is to be found in two entries: Entry 5

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

53/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	95%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

List II of the Seventh Schedule (the State List) and Entry 20 of

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

54/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Constitution places local government including urban local government within the legislative competence of the states, and the role of

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

55/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 57% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

In the absence of the constitutional recognition of its powers, functions and resources, urban local bodies have remained neglected

SA HarvinderKaur_Pol Sci_Chapter3.pdf (D37034708)

56/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

The Committee on the Training of Municipal Employees (1963) 4. The Rural–Urban Relationship Committee (1963–66) 5.

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

57/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Committee of Ministers on Augmentation of Financial Resources of Urban Local Bodies (1963) 6.

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

58/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

urban development and planning machinery, the structureof urban local bodies, municipal personnel, finances of urban local bodies, public participation in urbancommunity development, relation between the state government and local administration,

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

59/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

Committee of Ministers on Augmentation of Financial Resources of Urban Local Bodies (1963-1965),

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

60/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	67%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

Augmentation of Financial Resources of Urban Local Bodies (1963) and the Committee on Service Conditions of Municipal Employees (1965).

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

61/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	45%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

of urban development was transferred to the Ministry of Health, which was designated as Ministry of Health, Family Planning, Works, Housing, and Urban Development.

SA c-2nd.docx (D21510546)

62/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

the Committee on Augmentation of Financial Resources of Urban Local Bodies (1963),

SA Introduction CHAPTER1.docx (D37901991)

63/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	83%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

audit of accounts by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India, and

SA HarvinderKaur_Pol Sci_Chapter3.pdf (D37034708)

64/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject matters entrusted to it

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

65/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

such as, the Local Finance Enquiry Committee (1949-51), the Taxation Enquiry Commission (1953–54), the

such as, the Local Finance Enquiry Committee, the Taxation Enquiry Commission, the

W https://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/download-slm.php?file=BAPS-02-BLOCK-04.pdf

66/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Urban Local Government: an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory town, by a definite area and the population therein, deliberating, regulating and implementing decisions on subject *

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

67/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

the only reference to urban self-government is to be found in two entries

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

68/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Inter-State Council Secretariat (Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, 2016).

INTER-STATE COUNCIL SECRETARIAT Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India

W http://interstatecouncil.nic.in/isc-formations/

69/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

of urban local bodies: report of the Committee of Ministers constituted by the Central Council of Local Self Government" (

SA c-2nd.docx (D21510546)

70/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Committee of Ministers on Augmentation of Financial Resources of Urban Local

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

71/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Learning Objectives After studying this unit, you are expected to: ? Identify the structural and functional aspects of Urban Local Government in India before the

LEARNING OUTCOME After studying this unit you should be able to: • understand the historical evolution of urban local government in India; • outline the

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

72/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 39 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 39 WORDS

OF URBAN LOCAL GOVERNMENT Structure 3.1 Learning Objectives 3.2Introduction 3.3The Structure of Urban Local Government in India 3.4 Role and Responsibilities of Urban Local Government 3.5

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

73/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

that activities of such bodies in urban areas were initially not considered as obligatory or binding. The Directive Principles of State Policy (

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

74/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	89%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

powers of municipal corporations, improvement trusts, district boards, and other local authorities for the purpose of local government or village administration (2007: 22, 327, 332). In the

SA CHAPTER 3 (FINAL).docx (D25359161)

75/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	22 WORDS	92%	MATCHING TEXT	22 WORDS

irregular elections to these bodies, indefinite and frequent suspensions, inadequate devolution of powers and resources led to the weakening of the regular elections and participation of members in planning and implementation of various development schemes and projects,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

76/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

77/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

representation of all sections of the society through reservation of minimum seats for vulnerable

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

78/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	33 WORDS	60%	MATCHING TEXT	33 WORDS

The Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) conducted extensive studies of the functioning of municipalities and held discussions with state governments. The proposed Constitution Amendment Bill concerning 58 urban local government was

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

79/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

th Amendment) Act, 1992. It came into force on 1st June, 1993. A window of one year was given to the state governments to conformity with the provisions of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992). In effect state municipal laws were amended to incorporate various provisions with regard to

SA Unit 4 D1.docx (D112391601)

80/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

81/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

deliberative wing consisting of the elected body—headed by the city's Mayor or a Chairman, as the case may be—

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

82/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 53% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

maintenance of civil services and 59 facilities such as water supply and sewage system, issuing license and permits for shops and businesses, regulating shops and markets, running health services, to maintenance of civic services and facilities such as water supply and sewage system. ? To issue license/permits for shops and business establishments. ? To regulate opening/closing shops and markets. ? To run public health services. ? To

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

83/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

Commissioner, normally an officer of the state government. In bigger

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

84/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

The Municipal Commissioner, a state-appointed officer, is the head of the executive arm of the Municipality. The Commissioner is vested with executive powers, although the Municipality as a legislative body lays down policies for the governance of the city. The tenure of the Commissioner is

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

85/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

The Mayor in the Municipal Corporation is usually chosen through indirect election by the Ward Councillors from among themselves for a term of one year, which is renewable. The Mayor

The Mayor in the Municipal Corporation is typically chosen through indirect elections by the councilors among themselves, for a term of one year, which is renewable. The Mayor executive authority. The Councillors act by the Standing Committee exercising executive, supervisory, financial, and personnel powers.

W http://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/slmfiles/BAPS-09-BLOCK-02.pdf

86/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

87/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Mayor and a Council of elected members with individual portfolios. The Municipal Commissioner acts as the Principal Executive Officer subject to the control and supervision of the Mayor as the Chief Executive Officer,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

88/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

89/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	55%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

form a Ward Committee, comprising elected Councillors. The Ward Committee is subject to general supervision of the Mayor-in-Council.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

90/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

water supply, drainage, collection and removal of solid waste, disinfection and health services, housing services, lighting,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

91/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

for the constitution and composition of Wards Committees, etc. (2007: 141). There

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

92/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	76%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

the control of the state government over ULBs has often degenerated into spasmodic, intermittent bouts, and was often negative,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

93/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

the failure to hold regular elections, prolonged supersession and inadequate 60 devolution of powers and functions,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

94/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

U), creation of wards committees (243S),listing municipal functions with the Schedule XII in the constitution, and creation of State Finance Commission (243Y) (2007: 141-143, 144-145, 356). Among these Schedule XII and Article 243Y are discretionary: states have not devolved the functions as per Schedule XII in many cases,

U), creation of wards committees (243S), listing municipal functions with the Schedule XII in the constitution and creation of State Finance Commission (243Y). Among these Schedule XII and 243 Y are discretionary whereas other are mentioned as "shall". Accordingly, states have not devolved the functions as per Schedule XII (Figure 9.1) in many cases,

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

95/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

The Act introduced political, functional and fiscal empowerment with reservation of seats to women and other weaker sections (243T),

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

96/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Administrative Reforms Commission (2007), there were no major changes in the structural and functional elements of ULBs till the 74 th Amendment Act (1992), despite rapid urbanization and

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

97/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

stipulates that functions shall be carried out closest to citizens at the smallest unit of governance possible, and delegated upwards only when the Local Unit cannot perform the task.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

98/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

reform packages for the ULBs. The constitutional status of the ULBs has ensured permanency to these entities of self-government, bestowing them with the mandate of planning for development and social justice

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

99/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 31% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

the ULBs were either summarily suspended or superseded. Even when they were functioning, their financial status was abject. The National Commission on Urbanization (1985) submitted its report in 1988, advising the rejuvenation of the financial status of ULBs for which

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

100/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

The Article 243W of the Constitution of India states the powers, authority, and responsibilities of Municipalities, etc. (2007: 144). It directs the legislature of a state to endow Municipalities with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-government.

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

101/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

urban areas attracted less attention from politicians and policy-makers due to predominantly rural character of Indian society. In India, there are multiple agencies operating

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

102/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS such as Development Authority or Improvement Trust, local-level Water and Sanitation Agency,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

103/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 91 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 91 WORDS

a) A Regulator, namely the administration of various acts and regulations. 62 b) A Provider, that involves providing urban services efficiently and equitably by managing its accounts effectively and efficiently. c) An Agent that takes the schemes of higher-level Government to the people. This includes promotion of popular participation. d) A Welfare Agency, which provides active assistance to higher level governments in the equitable distribution and delivery. e) An Agent of Development, who strives for improvement in the quality of life through the augmentation of infrastructure. Additionally,

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

104/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

did not specify the manner of election, tenure or powers of the Mayors of urban local bodies, some states

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

105/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

The Mayor has to form a Council out of the elected Councillors which was to aid and advice the Mayor.

the Mayor to form an MIC out of the elected Councilors. This MIC was to aid and advise. The Mayor

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

106/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 77 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 77 WORDS

the directly elected Mayor is expected to tap the support of bureaucrats by presenting himself as a people's representative of the city. The direct election provides the required legitimacy to the Mayor to interact, demand, and get work executed in the best interest of the city.There is also an obverse view that an empowered executive at the city can be achieved through an indirectly elected Mayor-in-Council system in which the Mayor remains accountable to the council.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

107/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

in the Urban Local Government in most states enjoys primarily a ceremonial status, with the Commissioner, appointed by the State Government, having all the powers.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

108/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

recommended that the functions of chairing the Municipal Council and exercising executive authority should be combined in the same functionary, i.e., Chairman or Mayor, while the MunicipalCommissioner is to perform the functions delegated to him/her.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

109/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

The Directive Principles of State Policy (Part IV of the Constitution of India)

the Directive Principles of the State policy (Part –IV) of the Constitution of India

W https://www.selfstudys.com/sitepdfs/tQHDvJehOc4jvydTrIxx

110/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

with sufficient autonomy to be able to respond to the needs and aspirations of the inhabitants of urban areas. Although this has been accepted

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

111/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 33% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

the statutes of respective states and Union Territories determined the constitution of municipal bodies in India. There has been a deliberative wing consisting of the elected body headed by the Mayor,

SA Unit 9 URBAN LOCAL GOVERNMENT STRUCTURE ROLE AND RESPONSIBILITIES.docx (D88400672)

112/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

state municipal laws were amended to incorporate various provisions with regard to

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

113/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

stipulates that functions shall be carried out closest to citizens at the smallest unit of governance possible, and delegated upwards only when the Local Unit cannot perform the task. •

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

114/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Article 243W of the Constitution of India states the powers, 65 authority, and responsibilities of Municipalities, etc.

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

115/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Urban Local Government: an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory town, by a definite area and the population therein, deliberating, regulating and implementing decisions on subject *

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

116/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

Principle of Subsidiarity: The Principle stipulates that the functions shall becarried out closest to citizens at the smallest unit of governance possible, anddelegated upwards only when the Local Unit cannot perform the task.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

117/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 5 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 5 WORDS

https://www.darpg.gov.in/sites/default/files /local_governance6.pdf. Annual Survey of India' https://www.darpg.gov.in/sites/default/ files/local_governance6.pdf Government of India. (2009).

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/68102/3/Unit-14.pdf

118/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

the enactment of the Constitution (74 th Amendment) Act, 1992, in the lack of constitutional recognition, urban local bodies (ULBs) were the enactment of the 74th Constitution Amendment Act, 1992. For the first time in the history of urban governance, Urban Local Bodies (ULBs) were

W http://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/slmfiles/BAPS-09-BLOCK-02.pdf

119/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 86 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 86 WORDS

Government of India Statistical Yearbook (New Delhi: Ministry of Statistics and Plan Implementation, 2014). Jha, R., "Strengthening Municipal Leadership in India: The Potential of Directly Elected Mayors with Executive Powers," ORF,Occasional PaperNo. 168 (2018). Khan, S., Taraporevala, P. & Zerah, M. H., "Mission Impossible: Defining Indian Smart Cities," Economic & Political Weekly—Review of Urban Affairs, (2018), 53(49). Kumar, N., "Directly Elected Mayors: A Step towards Democratic Urban Governance," Economic & Political Weekly, (2019) 54(46). Maheshwari, S. R., Local Government in India (Bombay: Orient Longman, 1971).

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

120/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

irregular elections to these bodies, indefinite and frequent suspensions, inadequate devolution of powers and resources led to the weakening of the regular elections and participation of members in planning and implementation of various development schemes and projects,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

121/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

122/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

representation of all sections of the society through reservation of minimum seats for vulnerable

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

123/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	30 WORDS	60%	MATCHING TEXT	30 WORDS

The Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) conducted extensive studies of the functioning of municipalities and held discussions with state governments. The proposed Constitution Amendment Bill concerning urban local government was

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

124/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	77%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

th Amendment) Act, 1992. It came into force on 1 st June, 1993. A window of one year was given to the state governments to conformity with the provisions of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992). In effect state municipal laws were amended to incorporate various provisions with regard to

SA Unit 4 D1.docx (D112391601)

125/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	69%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

126/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 36% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

the 74 th Amendment Act (1992) came into effect on 1 st June, 1993, a new section was inserted in the Constitution of India, viz. Part IXA relating to the Municipalities (Articles 243P through 243ZG) (2007: 139-149) along with

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

127/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

which defines the functions in respect of which schemes for economic development and social justice are to be implemented by the municipalities

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

128/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

three types of municipalities depending upon the population/population density, size of area, revenue generated for local bodies, percentage of employment/dependence on agricultural or non-agricultural activities, with regard to their social, economic, and cultural aspects. It must have a population that is less than 25 per cent dependent upon agriculture and/or exhibiting rural socio-cultural norms, or remaining on industrial and service-sector employment. b. Municipal Council for a smaller urban area. c. Municipal Corporation for a larger urban area.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

129/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

130/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

demographic and other factors—on which the constitution of these bodies is based—varies from state to state, the respective state legislatures frame their own laws to declare the form of Urban Local Government for any particular area.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

131/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

responsible for holding direct elections for the Ward Councillors. The number of Councillors is also fixed by the state government.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

132/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 47% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

is also its ex-officio member. This provision boosts the resource base of the local body, as such elected Members of Parliament or State Legislative Assembly often serve as interfaces between the local and state/Union administration. Vide Art. 243S, all Chairpersons of the Committees constituted as per Clause 5 are the members of the respective ULB. Various ward committees are constituted

SA Unit 4 D1.docx (D112391601)

133/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS to constitute and decide upon the composition of Wards Committees in all municipalities having a population of more than three lakhs (Art. 243S). The Ward Committees serve as a space for their active participation local-level planning. These committees prepare and submit ward development schemes for allotment of funds, ensure proper utilization of allotted funds, oversee maintenance of public utilities safeguarding the assets of the

SA Unit 4 D1.docx (D112391601)

134/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

135/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS of the Government of India.In order to ensure adequate representation to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and women, seats have been reserved

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

136/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

Article 243T (2007: 141-142).The proportion of seats reserved for SC/ST candidates to the total member of seats is nearly same as the proportion of the population of SC/ST in the municipal area, with a minimum one-third of the total member of seats reserved for SC/ST being reserved for women belonging to mandatory provision is applicable only on directly elected members. The state governments may decide reservation criteria to the offices of Chairpersons in case of SC/ST and women candidates. It has the optional power for reservation of member seats with regard to Backward Classes as Members or Chairpersons of Municipalities. In order to bring uniformity, the term for each Municipality has been fixed for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting, vide Art. 243U. State governments, through the office of Chief Election Commission, are responsible for conducting elections before the expiration of the duration of the municipality. It has no power to supersede/suspend the ULBs but, may dissolve any municipality. In this regard, a reasonable opportunity must be provided to the concerned municipality, before its dissolution. In case of dissolution, elections have to be conducted within six months from the date of dissolution. As per the provisions of the Act, the municipality constituted owing to dissolution of the previous will

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

137/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

138/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 126 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 126 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

139/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

between the state and Urban Local Governments to make municipalities truly a unit of local self-government, enabling them to administer their 71 respective areas,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

140/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

state governments are to bestow requisite powers and authority so as to enable ULBs to prepare plans for bringing economic development and ensuring social justice to carry out their functions and responsibilities conferred upon them including those in relation to the matters listed in Schedule XII. Also, toimplement various schemes, projects and programmes, etc.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

141/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

urban planning including town planning;regulation of land use including construction of buildings; planning for economic and social development;

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

142/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

roads and bridges; water supply for domestic, industrial and commercial purposes; public health, sanitation conservancy and solid waste management; maintaining fire services; urban forestry, protection of the environment and promotion of ecological aspects; safeguarding the interests of the weaker sections of the society including the

SA Final Urban_Local_Governance_in_India-_Organisation__Challenges_and_Prospects.pdf (D121398204)

143/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 72 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 72 WORDS

handicapped and mentally retarded; slum improvement and up gradation; urban poverty alleviation; provision of urban amenities and facilities such as parks, gardens and playgrounds; promotion of cultural, educational and aesthetic aspects; burials and burial grounds and cremations, cremation grounds and electronic crematoriums; cattle pounds and prevention of cruelty to animals; vital statistics including registration of births and deaths; public amenities including street lighting, bus stops, parking lots and public conveniences; and

SA Final Urban_Local_Governance_in_India-_Organisation__Challenges_and_Prospects.pdf (D121398204)

144/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 50 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 50 WORDS

The State Election Commission constituted under article 243K of Part IX of the Indian Constitution has been vested with the power to superintend, direct, and control the preparation of electoral rolls for the smooth, free and fair elections to the municipalities. This function has been entrusted under Article 243ZA

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

145/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

to levy, collect and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees. It may also assign taxes and duties collected by the state government

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

146/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 99 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 99 WORDS

The Finance Commission constituted under Art. 243Y (2007: 144-145) for reviewing the financial position of Panchayati Raj Institutions has also been assigned the task of reviewing the financial position of municipalities. It makes recommendations: a. for distributing between the state and municipalities the netproceeds of taxes, duties, tolls and fees, which are leviable by the state government; b. for allocation of share of such proceeds between municipalities at all levels in the state; c. to determine the taxes, duties, tolls and fees to be assigned or appropriated by the municipalities; d. for grants-in-aid to municipalities from Consolidated Fund

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

147/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

and grants-in-aid from the Consolidated Fund of the state. It also provides for constitution of funds by the municipalities for crediting and withdrawal of for measures needed to improve the financial position of municipalities. Moreover, the maintenance of accounts of municipalities and their audit under Art. 243Z is to be done as per the provisions of the respective state law. The State Legislatures can make provisions for this purpose as per the local needs and available institutional framework.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

148/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

149/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

coordination and cohesiveness between different governing bodies like Panchayats Raj Institutions (PRIs) and Municipalities, comprehensive planning mechanisms had to be evolved.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

150/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

this aim, provision for the constitution of Planning Committee at the District Level has been incorporated in 74 th Amendment Act (1992: 4-5) under Art. 243ZD for the consolidation of plans of PRIs and Municipalities so as to ensure overall development of the district. As common interest between panchayats and municipalities including spatial planning, sharing of water, other physical and natural resources, integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation, as well as the extent and type of available common interest between Panchayat and the Municipalities including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation; (ii) the extent and type of available

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

151/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

152/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 67% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

four-fifth of the total number of the members of Planning Committee must be elected from among the directly elected members of PRIs and Municipalities and their representation should be in proportion to the ratio of rural and urban population in the district. The District Planning Committee is to prepare plans giving due regard to draft plans are to be forwarded by the Chairperson of the Committee to the state government for approval. Vide Art. 243ZE (2007: 147-148), there exists a provision for constituting a Metropolitan Planning Committeefor the areas designated as Metropolitan with the size of population of 10 73 lakhs and above. The purpose is to prepare aconsolidated and comprehensive plan for the Metropolitan area as a whole.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

153/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 68 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 68 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

154/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

two-thirds of the total member of its members must be selected from among the directly elected members of Municipalities and their representation should be in proportion to the ratio of rural and urban population in that area. To ensure better planning close cooperation and coordination between Union, State and Local government,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

155/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

156/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

been made to have representation of various Union and State level Committees, organisations and institutions, if deemed necessary.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

157/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Metropolitan Planning Committee is to prepare the draft plans giving due regard to draft development plans prepared by panchayats and municipalities of the area, common interest between panchayats and municipalities including co-ordinated spatial planning, sharing of water, other physical and natural resources, integrated development of infrastructure and environment conservation, the extent and type of investments likely to be made by the Union and State government and type of available financial and other resources. The draft plan has to be prepared keeping in view the overall objectives and priorities set by both the Union and State Governments.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

158/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 84 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 84 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

159/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 73 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 73 WORDS

draft plans are to be forwarded by the Chairperson of the Committee to the State Government. Vide Art. 243ZC (2007: 146), nothing in Part IXA shall apply to Scheduled areas and Tribal areas as referred to in the Art. 244 of the Constitution. However, the Parliament may by law, extend the provisions of the Part IXA to these areas, subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be specified in that law.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

160/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

Ministry of Urban Development undertook necessary steps to ensure that the provisions of State Municipal Laws were brought in conformity with the provisions of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992: 6). It was fixed

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

161/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

was achieved through various measures undertaken by the Ministry of Urban Development including organising seminars, meetings, and

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

162/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

Before the 74 th Amendment Act, Municipalities were classified under 'Local or Other Authorities' under Art. 12 of the Constitution

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

163/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

an Institution of Self-Government status for municipalities had been sought

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

164/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 67 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 67 WORDS

the ambit of the definition of the 'State' under Art. 12 of the Indian Constitution. 74 Various governmental reports and research studies reveal that only marginal changes, which were mandatory have been carried out, while the real purpose of the Act stands defeated because of the state-sponsored specialized agencies are now performing most of the functions of ULBs. Functions assigned as per Art. 243W

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

165/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

and fiscal powers are assigned as per Art. 243X are also discretionary. Even, mandatory clauses of

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

166/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

D and 243ZE are not implemented in its letter and spirit. In this regard, it is freedom to ULBs to act independently in order to function as autonomous bodies at the grassroots level.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

167/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

168/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the planning, regulation, slum development and water supply and sanitation functions,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

169/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

timely manner and their recommendations be implemented so as to strengthen the fiscal base of the ULBs,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

170/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

to create an efficient and reliable administration with coordination between elected and state appointed functionaries;

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

171/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

intensify and improve the local governance with more involvement of elected representatives; and finally, to enhance accountability and responsiveness with the improved capacity of the local people to participate in the decision-making process, especially vis-à-vis service delivery

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

172/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 47 WORDS 40% MATCHING TEXT 47 WORDS

the Constitution (74th Amendment) Act, 1992. 75 • As the 74th Amendment Act (1992) came into effect on June 1, 1993, a new section was inserted in the Constitution of India, viz. Part IXA relating to the Municipalities (Articles 243P through 243ZG) along with three types of municipalities depending upon the population/population density, size of area,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

173/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

174/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

In order to ensure adequate representation to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and women, seats have been reserved

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

175/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

to levy, collect and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees. •

to levy, collect and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; 2.

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

176/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

In order to bring uniformity, the term for each Municipality has been fixed for five years from the date appointed for its first meeting,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

177/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

The State Election Commission constituted under article 243K of Part IX of the Indian Constitution

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

178/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

The Finance Commission constituted under Art. 243Y (2007: 144-145) for reviewing the financial position of Panchayati Raj Institutions has also been assigned the task of reviewing the financial position of municipalities.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

179/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

The maintenance of accounts of municipalities and their audit under Art. 243Z is to be done as per the provisions of the respective state law. •

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

180/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Planning Committee at the District Level has been incorporated in 74th Amendment Act under Art. 243ZD for the consolidation of plans of PRIs and Municipalities so as to ensure overall development of the district.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

181/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

there exists a provision for constituting a Metropolitan Planning Committee for the areas designated as Metropolitan with the size of population of 10 lakhs and above. 76 • The

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

182/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Ministry of Urban Development undertook necessary steps to ensure that the provisions of State Municipal Laws were brought in conformity with the provisions of the 74th Amendment Act by 31st

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

183/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Urban Local Government: an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory town, by a definite area and the population therein, deliberating, regulating and implementing decisions on subject *

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

184/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

was achieved through various measures undertaken by the Ministry of Urban Development. 4.8

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

185/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

The Joint Parliamentary Committee (JPC) conducted extensive studies of the functioning of municipalities and held discussions with state governments. The proposed Constitution Amendment Bill concerning urban local government was

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

186/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

th Amendment) Act, 1992. It came into force on 1 st June, 1993. A window of one year was given to the state governments to conformity with the provisions of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992). In effect state municipal laws were amended to incorporate various provisions with regard to

SA Unit 4 D1.docx (D112391601)

187/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

188/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 36% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

the 74 th Amendment Act (1992) came into effect on 1 st June, 1993, a new section was inserted in the Constitution of India, viz. Part IXA relating to the Municipalities (Articles 243P through 243ZG) (2007: 139-149) along with

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

189/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

which defines the functions in respect of which schemes for economic development and social justice are to be implemented by the municipalities

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

190/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

the plans of panchayats and nagarpalikas in the district and preparing a draft development plan for the district as a whole, the plans prepared by Panchayats and the municipalities the district and to a draft development plan for the district as a whole [

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

191/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

from among the members of the panchayats and nagarpalikas in the district in proportion to the ratio of the population from amongst the elected members of the Panchayats at the district level and of the municipalities in the district, in proportion to the ratio between the population

W https://www.selfstudys.com/sitepdfs/tQHDvJehOc4jvydTrIxx

192/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

The provisions with regard to the constitution of finance commission to review the financial position of Municipalities

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

193/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

A finance commission to review the finances of the nagarpalikas, and recommend principles

SA HarvinderKaur_Pol Sci_Chapter3.pdf (D37034708)

194/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

The Comptroller and Auditor General of India to cause the accounts of the state governments are to bestow requisite powers and authority so as to enable ULBs to prepare plans for bringing economic development and ensuring social justice to carry out their functions and responsibilities conferred upon them including those in relation to the matters listed in Schedule XII. Also, toimplement various schemes, projects and programmes, etc.

SA Revised_HarvinderKaur_PolSci_Chapter3.pdf (D37160247)

195/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

196/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 153 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 153 WORDS

Urban planning including town planning. 2. Regulation of land-use and construction of buildings. 3. Planning for economic and social development. 4. Roads and bridges. 5. Water supply for domestic, industrial and commercial purposes. 6. Public health, sanitation, conservancy and solid waste management. 7. Fire services. 8. Urban forestry, protection of the environment and promotion of ecological aspects. 9. Safeguarding the interests of weaker sections of society including the handicapped and mentally retarded. 10. Slum improvement and up-gradation. 11. Urban poverty alleviation. 12. Provision of urban amenities and facilities such as parks, gardens, playgrounds. 13. Promotion of cultural, educational and aesthetic aspects. 14. Burials and burial grounds; cremations, cremation grounds and electric crematoriums. 15. Cattle pounds; prevention of cruelty to animals. 16. Vital statistics including registration of births and deaths. 17. Public amenities including street lighting, parking lots, bus stops and public conveniences. 83 18. Regulation of slaughter houses and tanneries.

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

197/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

within one year from the commencement of the Constitution (73rd Amendment) Act, 1992, and thereafter at the expiration of every

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

198/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 129 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 129 WORDS

position of the Panchayats and to make recommendations to the Governor as to— a. the principles which should govern— i. the distribution between the State and the Panchayats of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties,tolls and fees leviable by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part andthe allocation between the Panchayats at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; ii. the determination of taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to, or appropriatedby, the Panchayats; iii. the grants-in-aid to the Panchayats from the Consolidated Fund of the State; b. the measures needed to improve the financial position of the Panchayats; c. any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the Governor in the interests of soundfinance of the

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

199/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

Ministry of Urban Development undertook necessary steps to ensure that the provisions of State Municipal Laws were brought in conformity with the provisions of the 74 th Amendment Act (1992: 6). It was fixed

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

200/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

was achieved through various measures undertaken by the Ministry of Urban Development including 84 organising seminars, meetings, and

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

201/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

it has been stated by the Ministry of Urban Development that the states have brought in the necessary amendments in their respective Municipal Laws to ensure conformity with

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

202/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

constitution of Ward Committees, District Planning Committees etc. have not been implemented in reality.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

203/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	84%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

Before the 74th Amendment Act, Municipalities were classified under 'Local or Other Authorities' under Art. 12 of the Constitution

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

204/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS

an Institution of Self-Government status for municipalities had been sought

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

205/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	65 WORDS	66%	MATCHING TEXT	65 WORDS

the ambit of the definition of the 'State' under Art. 12 of the Indian Constitution. Various governmental reports and research studies reveal that only marginal changes, which were mandatory have been carried out, while the real purpose of the Act stands defeated because of the state-sponsored specialized agencies are now performing most of the functions of ULBs. Functions assigned as per Art. 243W

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

206/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

and fiscal powers are assigned as per Art. 243X are also discretionary. Even, mandatory clauses of

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

207/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

D and 243ZE are not implemented in its letter and spirit.
In this regard, it is

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

208/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS freedom to ULBs to act independently in order to function as autonomous bodies at the grassroots level.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

209/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the planning, regulation, slum development and water supply and sanitation functions,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

210/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS timely manner and their recommendations be implemented so as to strengthen the fiscal base of the ULBs,

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

211/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS to create an efficient and reliable administration with coordination between elected and state appointed functionaries;

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

212/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

finances required to ensure that urban India flourishes
and leads the country forward to progress and prosperity.

finances required to ensure that 'urban India' flourishes
and leads the country forward to progress and prosperity
(

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

213/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

intensify and improve the local governance with more involvement of elected representatives; and finally, to enhance accountability and responsiveness with the improved capacity of the local people to participate in the decision-making process, especially vis-à-vis service delivery

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

214/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

for the scheduled castes and the scheduled tribes, and for women; the tenure of

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

215/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

constitution of Ward Committees, District Planning Committees etc. have not been implemented in reality.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

216/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 51% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Urban Local Government: an institution of governance in a statutory urban setting, demarcated by a definite area and population, which may deliberate, regulate, and implement decisions on subject

Urban Local Government refers to an institution of governance in a statutory town, by a definite area and the population therein, deliberating, regulating and implementing decisions on subject *

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/78333/3/Unit-9.pdf

217/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

Various governmental reports and research studies reveal that only marginal changes, which were mandatory have been carried out, while the real purpose of the Act stands defeated because of the state- sponsored specialized agencies are now performing

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

218/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 63% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

an urban area is one which is officially declared by its statutory establishment as a municipal body or a notified area or a cantonment by a

An Urban area is one, which is formally so declared through the statutory establishment in that area a municipal body, a notified area or a cantonment by a

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/69457/1/Unit-13.pdf

219/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 87 WORDS 57% MATCHING TEXT 87 WORDS

and towns contribute substantially to the economic development of the country. These urban centers play an important supporting role in the development of the rural hinterland. People and theirs to keep this economic transformation in line with needs and realities at the grass root level Representatives are fully involved in the planning and implementation of programs at the local level. To keep democracy strong and stable in Parliament and State Assemblies, its roots must reach the towns and villages and the towns where the people live (74 and cities contribute substantially to the economic development of the country. These urban centres also play an important support role in the development of rural hinterland. To keep this economic transformation in line with needs and realities at the grassroot level, it is necessary that the people and their representatives are fully involved in the planning and implementation of the programmes at local level. If democracy in Parliament and State Legislatures is to remain strong and stable, its roots must reach towns and villages and the cities where the people live. 2.

W https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf

220/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Nagar Panchayat for an area in transition from rural to urban area. Municipal Council

Nagar Panchayat for an area in transition from rural to urban area; (Municipal Council

W https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf

221/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 131 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 131 WORDS

Besides the seats filled by direct elections, some seats may be filled by nomination of persons having special knowledge and experience in municipal administration. Persons so nominated shall not have the right to vote in the meetings of the municipality. The Legislature of a State may, by law, also provide for the representation in a municipality of members of the House of the People and the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the Municipal area and also the Members of the Council of States and the members of the Legislative Council of the State registered as electors within the municipal area. The manner of election of Chairpersons of municipalities has been left to be specified by the State Legislature.

Besides the seats filled by direct elections, some seats may be filled by nomination of persons having special knowledge and experience in municipal administration. Persons so nominated shall not have right to vote in the meetings of the municipality. The Legislature of a State may, by law, also provide for the representation in a municipality of members of the House of the People and the members of the Legislative Assembly of the State representing constituencies which comprise wholly or partly the Municipal area and also the Members of the Council of States and the members of the Legislative Council of the State registered as electors within the municipal area. The manner of election of Chairpersons of municipalities has been left to be specified by the State Legislature. (

W https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf

222/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Aizaz, R., "Challenges for Local Government in India" Asia Research Centre, Working Paper 19 (2007).

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

223/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Notified Area Committee, Town Area Committee, Cantonment Board, Township, Port Trust, Special Purpose Agency.

SA Final Urban_Local_Governance_in_India-_Organisation__Challenges_and_Prospects.pdf (D121398204)

224/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

the purposes of this Act and all other laws for the time being in force the provisions of this Act and of any other law for the time being in force,

W https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf

225/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 57% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

bodies'. They are created as statutory bodies by an Act of the State Legislature or by an Executive Resolution.

SA LSG_Abstract mudit.pdf (D150981245)

226/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

Cantonment Board is a civil administrative body in India under the control of the Ministry of Defence.

Cantonment Board is a civic administration body in India under the control of the Ministry of Defence.

W https://www.selfstudys.com/sitepdfs/tQHDvJehOc4jvydTrIxx

227/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

such as Notified Area Committee, Town Area Committee, Cantonment Board, Township, Port Trust, Special Purpose Agency.

SA Final Urban_Local_Governance_in_India-_Organisation__Challenges_and_Prospects.pdf (D121398204)

228/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Municipal Corporation is the top most form of urban local government and is for an urban area with population

SA 8. Local Government.docx (D111215572)

229/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 167 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 167 WORDS

ST) and of women in the municipal corporation bodies provisions have been made for reservation of seats. The proportion of seats to be reserved for SC/ST to the total number of seats shall be the same as the proportion of the population of SC/ST in the corporation area. The reservation would be made in respect of seats to be filled by direct elections only. Not less than one-third of the total number of seats reserved for SC/ST shall be reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. This is a mandatory provision. In respect of women, the seats shall be reserved to the extent of not less than one-third of the total number of seats. This includes seats reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. These reservations will apply for direct elections only. This is also a mandatory provision. There will be no bar on State Legislatures from making provisions for reservation of seats in any municipality or office of Chairperson in the municipalities in favour of ST and of women in the municipal bodies, provisions have been made for reservation of seats. The proportion of seats to be reserved for SC/ST to the total number of seats shall be same as the proportion of the population of SC/ST in the municipal area. The reservation would be made in respect of seats to be filled by direct elections only. Not less than one-third of the total number of seats reserved for SC/ST shall be reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. This is a mandatory provision. In respect of women, the seats shall be reserved to the extent of not less than one-third of the total number of seats. This includes seats reserved for women belonging to SC/ST. These reservations will apply for direct elections only. This is also a mandatory provision. There will be no bar on State Legislatures from making provisions for reservation of seats in any municipality or office of Chairperson in the municipalities in favour of

W https://mohua.gov.in/upload/uploadfiles/files/74th_CAA13.pdf

230/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

ward committee consists of one or more wards within the territorial area of ward committee will of one or more wards, within the territorial area of

W https://pdfcoffee.com/local-administration-pdf-free.html

231/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

of the Mayor, Senior Deputy Mayor, and Councillors from amongst members.The Mayor is the Chairperson of the Standing Committee. The

of Mayor, the senior deputy Mayor and other councilors elected by the councilors of the Corporation from amongst the members. The Mayor shall be the chairperson of the Standing Committee. The

W https://www.selfstudys.com/sitepdfs/tQHDvJehOc4jvydTrIxx

232/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

one-third of the elected members of the Council. The mayor is one third of the elected members of the council. The council is

W https://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/download-slm.php?file=BAPS-02-BLOCK-04.pdf

233/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

and before the expiry of six months from the date of its dissolution. The

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

234/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 45% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

of Municipality The term of municipality is five years. The election of the Municipality shall be held before the expiry of its term of Municipalities The term of municipality is of five years from the date fixed for its first meeting. The election to constitute municipality needs to be completed before the expiry of its term

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

235/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 150 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 150 WORDS

Urban planning including town planning. 2. Regulation of land-use and construction of buildings. 3. Planning for economic and social development. 4. Roads and bridges. 5. Water supply for domestic, industrial and commercial purposes. 6. Public health, sanitation conservancy and solid waste management. 7. Fire services. 8. Urban forestry, protection of the environment and promotion of ecological aspects. 9. Safeguarding the interests of weaker sections of society, including the handicapped and mentally retarded. 10. Slum improvement and upgradation. 11. Urban poverty alleviation. 12. Provision of urban amenities and facilities such as parks, gardens, playgrounds. 13. Promotion of cultural, educational and aesthetic aspects. 14. Burials and burial grounds; cremations, cremation grounds; and electric crematoriums. 15. Cattle pounds; prevention of cruelty to animals. 16. Vital statistics include registration of births and deaths. 17. Public amenities including street lighting, parking lots, bus stops and public conveniences. 18. Regulation of slaughterhouses and tanneries. 2.4

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

236/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

before the expiry of six months from the date of

before the expiry of six months from the date of

W http://www.wbja.nic.in/wbja_adm/files/The%20Kolkata%20Municipal%20Corporation%20Act,%201980.pdf

237/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 72% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The members of the municipality are called councilors. Councilors are elected on the basis of universal adult suffrage.

SA Introduction CHAPTER1.docx (D37901991)

238/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 56% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

committees. The standing committees are constituted with the president and the vice-president, and four other members in the case of Class A

Committees • The Standing Committees shall be constituted for each Municipality consisting of the President, senior President, and Vice president and 4 other members in the case of Class- A, 2

W https://www.winmeen.com/local-governments-notes-11th-political-science-for-tnpsc-exam/

239/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

of seats for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes in every municipality.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

240/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

the deputy mayor and other members of the council. The

the Deputy Mayor and other members of the Council. The

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/69457/1/Unit-13.pdf

241/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 86 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 86 WORDS

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three : Provided that in respect of the municipal areas included in Group D and Group E, all the powers and functions vested with the Chairman-in-Council under this Act or under any other law, for the time being in force, shall be examined

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three : Provided that in respect of the municipal areas included in Group D and Group E, all the powers and functions vested with the Chairman-in-Council under this Act or under any other law, for the time being in force, shall be examined

W https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf

242/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

case may be, by the Chairman of the concerned Municipality'. 108

case may be, by the Chairman of the concerned Municipality.] (2)

W https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf

243/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

The Chairman allocates business among the members of the Chairman-in-Council in respect of Group A, Group B and Group C municipalities. The

The Chairman shall allocate the business among the members of the Chairman-in-Council in case of Group A, Group B and Group C Municipalities. (4) The

W https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf

244/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three.

Chairman, Vice-Chairman and other members not exceeding, in the case of a municipal area included in Group A, five, in the case of a municipal area included in Group B, four, in the case of a municipal area included in Group C, three :

W https://www.wburbanservices.gov.in/upload_file/act_&_rules/west_bengal_municipal_act.pdf

245/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

standing committee 2. Public works standing committee 3. Health education and urban poverty elevation standing committee 4.

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

246/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 64% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

the executive powers of the Corporation are exercised by the Mayor in council. The mayor in council

SA Sanjay Kr. Pandey_Economics_130.pdf (D44467227)

247/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

the administrative control of Urban Development Department of Government of West Bengal. The KMDA	the administrative control of Urban Development Department of Government of West Bengal. KMDA

W https://kmda.wb.gov.in/page/cms/kmda_organization_7ab718

248/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

the determination of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees, which may be allotted to or appropriated by the	the determination the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to or the

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

249/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

an 11 member board or authority including both elected representatives and nominated bureaucrats. The Hon'ble Minister in charge of Urban Development, Government of West Bengal is the ex-officio Chairman of the KMDA Board. The Board or Authority of the KMDA takes all major policy decisions that are incidental to the running of	an 11-member Board or Authority that includes both elected people's representatives and nominated bureaucrats. The Hon'ble Minister-in-charge of Urban Development, Government of West Bengal is the ex-officio Chairman of the Board of KMDA. The Board or Authority of KMDA takes all major policy decisions that are incidental to running the business of

W https://kmda.wb.gov.in/page/cms/kmda_organization_7ab718

250/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

grants in aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State	grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidate Fund of the State;

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

251/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees levied by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the distribution between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; and • the

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

252/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Pandey, K.K. "Administration of Urban Development and Urban Service Delivery". Theme Paper for the 56th Members' Annual Conference

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

253/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

BETWEEN STATE AND URBAN LOCAL BODIES Structure 1.0 Objectives 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Relationship between State and Urban Local Bodies:

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

254/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

the Seventh Schedule in the Constitution of India which lays out the areas in which the Centre or State has exclusive power to legislate.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

255/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Model Municipal Law (MML) in 2003, National Municipal Accounting Manual (NMAM) in 2004, Solid Waste Management Rules (SWMR)

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

256/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 46% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

the MML was the execution of the provisions of the 74th Constitutional Amendment Act (CAA) to empower the ULBs and create a legislative framework for

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

257/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

implementation of the Ministry's Urban Sector Reform Agenda. This initiative was 127 expected

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

258/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

uniformity in the constitution of the municipal bodies through their classification as Municipal Corporations for large urban areas,

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

259/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 44% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

of powers and responsibilities to the ULBs is an essential requirement to meet the demands of the rapid growth of urbanisation, particularly in the larger cities.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

260/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

The Constitution (Seventy-third Amendment) Act, 1992 and the Constitution (Seventy-fourth Amendment) Act, 1992

SA Ravindra Prasad_74 CAA - Promise and Performance.docx (D56596344)

261/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 53% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

constitutional status to the rural and urban local bodies respectively by devolving powers, functions and authority to them. At present, ULBs occupy the third tier in the governance structure and are

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

262/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 50% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

to subjects listed in the twelfth schedule of the Constitution. It also granted ULBs financial autonomy by listing sources for devolution of funds. The

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

263/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

receive funds from both Local Bodies Grants, through the Central Finance Commission, and funds released by the State Governments on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission. Further, the ULBs cannot be superseded/suspended; and if the State Government, there must be an election to the same within a period of six months. Moreover, the statutory State Election Commission

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

264/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 54% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

265/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

of bottom-up leadership. After Part IX of the Constitution, a new part, Part IX-A, has been

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

266/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

definition, constitution of municipalities and ward committees, reservation, disqualification, powers

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

267/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	65%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

powers to impose taxes. Article 243-Y states that the Finance 128 Commission constituted under Article 243-I shall look into the financial affairs of the Municipalities and make recommendations regarding distribution of resources between the States and the Municipalities; levying of taxes, duties,

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

268/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

269/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

representation of people in the house through regular elections without their indefinite supersession, and is

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

270/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	41%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

two types of resources— manpower (technical) and financial. With regard to the implementation of policies, the State Government can enact and enforce laws and frame policies that support

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

271/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	83%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

The core function of providing basic services to citizens was retained in the Twelfth Schedule

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

272/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS

to enable them to function as effective institutions of self-government.

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

273/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 36% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

the State Finance Commission as well as the review of the financial position of the municipalities. Accordingly, the SFC can place its recommendations to the Governor as to: i) The	the State Finance Commission to review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to the Governor in regard to the

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

274/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

the determination of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees, which may be allotted to or appropriated by the	the determination the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to or the

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

275/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

other important functions were also added through this list. These functions include issues such as

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

276/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

grants in aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State	grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidate Fund of the State;

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

277/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

Assign to a Municipality such taxes, duties, tolls and fees levied and collected by the State Government for such purposes and subject to such conditions and limits; ?	assign to a Municipality such taxes, duties, tolls and fees levied and collected by the State Government for such purposes and subject to such conditions and limits;

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

278/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, tolls, duties, and fees levied by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the distribution between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; and • the

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

279/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

Provide for Constitution of such Funds for crediting all moneys received, respectively, by or on behalf of the Municipalities and also for the withdrawal of such moneys there from;

provide for constitution of such Funds for crediting all moneys received, respectively, by or on behalf of the Municipalities and also for the withdrawal of such moneys there from,

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

280/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

and ? Provide for making such grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State.

and limits; ? Provide for making such grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidate Fund of the State; ?

W https://egyanagar.osou.ac.in/download-slm.php?file=BAPS-02-BLOCK-04.pdf

281/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Authorise a Municipality to levy, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties, tolls and fees in accordance with such procedure and subject to such limits; ?

SA vijay thesis.pdf (D142533225)

282/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 60 WORDS 59% MATCHING TEXT 60 WORDS

constitution of SFCs and insertion of clause 280 (3) (bb & C) in the Constitution to modify terms of reference of the National Finance Commission (NFC). The XVth Finance Commission has recommended Rs 1,21,000 crores for ULBs as against 87,000 Crore by the XIVth NFC. In addition, the Commission has allocated Rs. 24,000 crore for health services. This will

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

283/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

cities to face pandemics like COVID-19. These two Finance Commissions have improved

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

284/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

The State Election Commission is responsible for conducting elections to the ULBs. Members are elected for a period of 5 years by direct elections.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

285/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

must be conducted within a period of 6 months from the date of dissolution. The

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

286/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

of programmes, projects and services initiated by the Union 131 government in the states. Several the programmes initiated by the states also have wider implications

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

287/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 65% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

the district as a whole as well as to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in the district.

the district level a District Planning Committee to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in 49 the district

W http://rcueslucknow.org/publication/decentralization.pdf

288/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

This process would comprise goal setting, data collection and analysis, forecasting, design, strategic thinking, public consultation,

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

289/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

implementation. Two articles specifically refer to planning issues at district level and at the level of Metropolitan towns: Article 243ZD on District Planning Committee provides for

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

290/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

may, by law, make provisions regarding the composition of the District Planning Committees, and the procedures by which the seats in these Committees might be filled. Article 243

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

291/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Metropolitan Planning Committee may be instituted in every Metropolitan area to prepare a draft development plan for the Metropolitan area as a whole.

SA 74th amendment act new.docx (D83633774)

292/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	12 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	12 WORDS

the objectives and priorities set by the Union and state governments.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

293/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	62%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

state level agencies/line departments have enormous powers, particularly over small and medium sized local bodies.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

294/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	73%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

for years 133 and transfers at the free will of the senior bureaucrats and the government reek of favouritism, corruption, and nepotism.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

295/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	64%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

innovative reforms in Ahmedabad, thereby aiding creation of SPVs and issuance of Municipal Bonds. ii) Municipal Cadre

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

296/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	80%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

the study conducted by the Capacity Building for Urban Development Project (CBUDP), states like Maharashtra, Tamil Nadu, and

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

297/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

The State Election Commission is responsible for conducting elections to the ULBs. Members are elected for a period of 5 years by direct elections.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

298/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

of programmes, projects and services initiated by the Union government in the states. ?

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

299/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

state level agencies/line departments have enormous powers, particularly over small and medium sized local bodies.

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

300/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 67 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 67 WORDS

References Bagchi, A.K. "The Past and the Future of the Developmental State". Journal of World-Systems Research (2000), 6.2, 398-442. CBUD. Approach towards Establishing Municipal Cadres in India, Capacity Building for Urban Development Project (CBUD). (New Delhi: MoUD & the World Bank, 2014). Chaturvedi, B.K. Report of the Committee on Restructuring of Centrally Sponsored Schemes (CSS). (New Delhi: Planning Commission, Government of India, 2011).

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

301/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

of India, MoHUA. Deendayal Antyodaya Yojana-National Urban Livelihoods Mission. (New Delhi: MoHUA, 2013).

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

302/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

MoHUA. Atal Mission for Rejuvenation and Urban Transformation- Mission Statement & Guidelines. (New Delhi: MoHUA, 2015). 136

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

303/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

Jha, R. The Unfinished Business of Decentralised Urban Governance in India. ORF Issue Brief. (2020) Retrived from https://www.orfonline.org/wp- content/uploads /2020/02 /ORF_Issue_Brief_340_Decentralised_Governance.pdf Mohanty P.K, Misra B.M, Goyal, R. & Jeromi P.D. Municipal Finance in India: An Assessment. (Mumbai: Reserve Bank of India, 2007).

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

304/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Rao, M.G. & Bird, R.M. Urban governance and finance in India. (2010). Retrieved from https://ideas.repec.org/cgi-bin/get_doc.pl?urn=RePEc%3

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

305/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

Awpaper%3A10%2F68&url=http%3A%2F %2Fwww.nipfp.org.in%2 Fworking_paper%2Fwp_2010_68.pdf 137

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

306/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

OBJECTIVES After studying the unit, you should be able to: ? Explain the phenomenon of urbanisation and its effects. ? Explain the dynamics of Urban Planning in India. ? Explain the role of

OBJECTIVES After studying this Unit, you should be able to: ? Describe the trends in urbanisation in India; ? Discuss the constitution and composition of Municipalities in India; ? Explain the role of

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/69457/1/Unit-13.pdf

307/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

that if in the opinion of the state government, a committee is not competent to perform or persistently makes default in the performance of the duties imposed on it under the Act or exceeds or abuses its

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

308/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

since 1951, town planning has become a part of the overall national plan. 151 The

SA Smriti_Thesis_Full_Paper_for_checking.pdf (D47315443)

309/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 42% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

by the elected members of the municipalities and chairpersons of the panchayats in the metropolitan area. Further, the proportion of these members on the committee should be proportional to the population ratio of the municipalities and panchayats in that metropolitan area.

by the elected members of the municipalities and the chairpersons of the Panchayts in the Metropolitan area in proportion to the ratio between the population of the municipalities and the Panchayts in that area (

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

310/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The purpose is to prepare a consolidated and comprehensive plan for the Metropolitan area as a whole.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

311/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

local government in India that administers urban areas with a population of more than one million.

local government in India that administers urban areas with a population of more than one million.

W https://www.selfstudys.com/sitepdfs/tQHDvJehOc4jvydTrIxx

312/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	35 WORDS	95%	MATCHING TEXT	35 WORDS

to ensure better planning, close cooperation, and coordination between Union, State, and Local government—provision has been made to have representation of various Union and State level Committees, organizations, and institutions if deemed necessary.

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

313/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	46 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	46 WORDS

Metropolitan Area: An area having a population of ten lakhs or more, comprised in one or more districts and consisting of two or more Municipalities, Panchayats or other contiguous areas, specified by the Governor by public notification to be a Metropolitan area. 1.9

SA Unit 4.docx (D112923140)

314/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

the commencement of Constitution (74 th Amendment) Act, 1992, and thereafter at the expiration of every

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

315/321	SUBMITTED TEXT	61 WORDS	82%	MATCHING TEXT	61 WORDS

review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to him as to: (a) the principles which should govern (i) the distribution between the state and the municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which can be levied by the state which may be divided between them and the allocation between the municipalities at

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

316/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

of their respective shares of such proceeds, (ii) the determination of the taxes, duties, tolls, and fee which may be assigned to

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

317/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

appropriated by the municipalities, (iii) the grants-in-aid to the municipalities from the consolidated fund of the state, (b) the measures needed to improve the financial position of the municipalities; (c) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the governor in the interests of sound finance of the municipalities. The

SA Unit 12.doc (D112923152)

318/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

every recommendation made by the Commission together with an explanatory memorandum on the action taken

SA Chapter-II.pdf (D22537359)

319/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

finance commission to review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to the governor

Finance Commission to review the financial position of the municipalities and make recommendations to the Governor

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25820/1/Unit-15.pdf

320/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 153 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 153 WORDS

Y (2007: 144-145), the Finance Commission constituted under article 243-I shall also review the financial position of the Municipalities and make recommendations to the Governor as to— (a) the principles which should govern— (i) the distribution between the State and the Municipalities of the net proceeds of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees leviable by the State, which may be divided between them under this Part and the allocation between the Municipalities at all levels of their respective shares of such proceeds; (ii) the determination of the taxes, duties, tolls and fees which may be assigned to, or appropriated by, the Municipalities; (iii) the grants-in-aid to the Municipalities from the Consolidated Fund of the State; (b) the measures needed to improve the financial position of the Municipalities; (c) any other matter referred to the Finance Commission by the Governor in the interests of sound finance of the Municipalities. 160

SA Ch. 3.Development of Local Government Institution and changing trends in Municipal Corporation of ... (D106063648)

321/321 SUBMITTED TEXT 10 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 10 WORDS

to enable them to function as institutions of Self-Government.

SA Unit 9.docx (D112923149)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Document Information

Analyzed document	CC-PA-08.pdf (D164996266)
Submitted	4/25/2023 1:09:00 PM
Submitted by	Library NSOU
Submitter email	dylibrarian.plagchek@wbnsou.ac.in
Similarity	41%
Analysis address	dylibrarian.plagchek.wbnsou@analysis.urkund.com

Sources included in the report

SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx Document ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)	70
W	URL: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India Fetched: 2/21/2020 7:55:24 PM	5
W	URL: https://zdocs.tips/doc/panchayat-raj-system-in-7p4mw5qj5xpj Fetched: 10/8/2021 9:55:53 AM	1
SA	uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx Document uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)	3
SA	MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx Document MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx (D144277369)	4
SA	Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx Document Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx (D141689289)	2
SA	Chapter-1.pdf Document Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)	3
W	URL: https://edenias.com/panchayati-raj-institutions-gs-articles/ Fetched: 11/22/2022 11:04:40 AM	3
W	URL: https://www.flexiprep.com/NIOS-Notes/Senior-Secondary/Political-Science/NIOS-Political-Science... Fetched: 7/9/2021 1:01:17 PM	1
W	URL: https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-f... Fetched: 10/24/2019 12:35:23 PM	12

W	URL: https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf Fetched: 1/21/2021 11:00:31 AM	6
SA	final PRI and MGNREGA .docx Document final PRI and MGNREGA .docx (D146921272)	1
SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx Document Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)	19
W	URL: https://www.slideshare.net/prem1790/panchayati-raj-89640583 Fetched: 10/18/2019 1:54:59 PM	2
W	URL: https://www.india.gov.in/my-government/constitution-india/amendments/constitution-india-sevent... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	2
W	URL: https://wbxpress.com/west-bengal-panchayat-act-1973/ Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	2
W	URL: https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-distr... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	7
SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx Document 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)	11
SA	TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 PDF.pdf Document TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 PDF.pdf (D116542424)	2
W	URL: http://14.139.211.59/bitstream/123456789/1552/11/11_chapter_02.pdf Fetched: 5/31/2021 6:39:36 AM	1
W	URL: http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf Fetched: 5/4/2021 10:24:38 AM	7
W	URL: https://ir.nbu.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/2652/11/11_chapter%202.pdf Fetched: 11/16/2021 5:14:09 AM	1
SA	9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical Science AMU.docx Document 9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical Science AMU.docx (D128332325)	2
W	URL: http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25827/1/Unit-12.pdf Fetched: 7/6/2021 2:08:45 PM	2
W	URL: http://epgp.inflibnet.ac.in/epgpdata/uploads/epgp_content/S001610/P001769/M023892/ET/150726710... Fetched: 10/19/2022 7:46:40 PM	1
W	URL: https://www.lawglobalhub.com/article-243-243g-indian-constitution-1949/ Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	2

SA	R. THENDRALARASI - LAL1915, DISSERTATION.pdf Document R. THENDRALARASI - LAL1915, DISSERTATION.pdf (D110608635)	1
W	URL: https://edurev.in/studytube/Laxmikanth-Summary-Panchayati-Raj/c8dcbdfd-46de-48f2-9965-4642eb7b3f9d_t Fetched: 12/26/2021 10:42:42 AM	2
W	URL: https://www.insightsonindia.com/polity/functions-and-responsibilities-of-the-union-and-the-sta... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	2
SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf Document Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)	10
SA	Chapter 2.docx Document Chapter 2.docx (D141430686)	2
W	URL: https://byjus.com/free-ias-prep/panchayati-raj/ Fetched: 10/30/2019 9:44:09 AM	2
SA	resubmit_uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx Document resubmit_uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D154554347)	1
W	URL: https://rajpanchayat.rajasthan.gov.in/en-us/aboutus/history.aspx Fetched: 5/23/2022 7:19:39 AM	1
W	URL: https://www.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of-... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	4
W	URL: https://m.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/panchayati-raj-system-in-india-1438141804-1 Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	1
W	URL: https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/ Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	8
W	URL: https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	10
W	URL: https://www.constitutionofindia.net/constitution_of_india/the_municipalities/articles/Article%... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	1
W	URL: https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/District_Planning_Committee Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	1
W	URL: https://www.meritnation.com/cbse-class-6/social-science/ratna_sagar_civics/panchayati-raj-syst... Fetched: 5/29/2021 10:53:47 PM	2

W	URL: https://www.thehindu.com/news/cities/Hyderabad/panchayats-should-focus-on-improving-own-revenu... Fetched: 4/25/2023 1:10:00 PM	1
SA	ATIH TEKSENG ,DISSERTATION ON THE ROLE OF PANCHAYAT RAJ IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT OF ARUNACHAL PRADESH.docx Document ATIH TEKSENG ,DISSERTATION ON THE ROLE OF PANCHAYAT RAJ IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT OF ARUNACHAL PRADESH.docx (D136162801)	1

Entire Document

PREFACE In a bid to standardize higher education in the country, the University Grants Commission (UGC) has introduced Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) based on five types of courses viz. core, discipline specific, generic elective, ability and skill enhancement for graduate students of all programmes at Honours level. This brings in the semester pattern, which finds efficacy in sync with credit system, credit transfer, comprehensive continuous assessments and a graded pattern of evaluation. The objective is to offer learners ample flexibility to choose from a wide gamut of courses, as also to provide them lateral mobility between various educational institutions in the country where they can carry their acquired credits. I am happy to note that the University has been recently accredited by National Assessment and Accreditation Council of India (NAAC) with grade ''A''. UGC (Open and Distance Learning Programmes and Online Programmes) Regulations, 2020 have mandated compliance with CBCS for UG programmes for all the HEIs in this mode. Welcoming this paradigm shift in higher education, Netaji Subhas Open University (NSOU) has resolved to adopt CBCS from the academic session 2021- 22 at the Under Graduate Degree Programme level. The present syllabus, framed in the spirit of syllabi recommended by UGC, lays due stress on all aspects envisaged in the curricular framework of the apex body on higher education. It will be imparted to learners over the six semesters of the Programme. Self Learning Materials (SLMs) are the mainstay of Student Support Services (SSS) of an Open University. From a logistic point of view, NSOU has embarked upon CBCS presently with SLMs in English / Bengali. Eventually, the English version SLMs will be translated into Bengali too, for the benefit of learners. As always, all of our teaching faculties contributed in this process. In addition to this we have also requisitioned the services of best academics in each domain in preparation of the new SLMs. I am sure they will be of commendable academic support. We look forward to proactive feedback from all stakeholders who will participate in the teaching-learning based on these study materials. It has been a very challenging task well executed, and I congratulate all concerned in the preparation of these SLMs. I wish the venture a grand success. Professor (Dr.) Ranjan Chakrabarti Vice-Chancellor
Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject : Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Rural Local Government Course Code : CC-PA-08 First Print—January, 2023 _____ Printed in accordance with the regulations of the Distance Education Bureau of the University Grants Commission
Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Rural Local Government Course Code: CC-PA-08 : Board of Studies : : Members : Chandan Basu Dipankar Sinha Professor of History Professor of Political Science Director, School of Social Sciences, NSOU University of Calcutta Soma Ghosh Pujan Kumar Sen Professor of Political Science Professor of Public Administration Principal, HMM College for Women NSOU Barnana Guha Thakurta (Banerjee) Sital Prasad Nag Associate Professor of Political Science Associate Professor of Political Science NSOU NSOU Manoj Kumar Haldar Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Political Science Assistant Professor of Public Administration NSOU NSOU : Writers : : Editor : Block I Units 1-5 Basabi Chakraborty Ayan Das Assistant Professor of Political Science, Assistant Professor of Public Administration University of Gour Banga NSOU Block II Units 1-5 : Format Editing : Titu Bardhan Debajit Goswami Faculty of Political Science, Assistant Professor of Public Administration Vidyasagar Metropolitan College NSOU Block III Units 1-5 & Block IV Units 1-5 Sumita Chattopadhyay Associate Professor of Political Science, Vidyasagar College Notification All rights reserved. No part of this Self-Learning Material (SLM) may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from Netaji Subhas Open University. A.B.Aich Registrar

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Rural Local Government Course Code: CC-PA-08 CONTENTS Block I Origin and Growth ..... 1- 36 Block II Organization and Structure ..... 37 - 78 Block III Power and Functions ..... 79 - 101 Block IV Panchayatiraj Finance..... 102 - 110
1

43%	MATCHING BLOCK 1/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

CC: VIII Rural Local Government Block- I Origin and Growth Unit- I: Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-independent India Structure 1.1 Learning Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3The Theoretical Perspective of Democratic Decartelization 1.4Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-independent India 1.5

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 2/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Conclusion 1.6Summary 1.7Glossary 1.8Model Questions 1.9References 1.1 Learning Objectives Following completion of this unit, you should be able to: • Be familiar with the origins of local self-government in India; • On the evolution of the Panchayati Raj Institutions

in India. 1.2

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 3/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Introduction The concept of democratic decentralization has dominated the development discourse in many Asian, African, and Latin American countries since the 1960s. Democratic decentralization rejects the notions of a highly centralized state and substitutes them with the concept of

the

85%	MATCHING BLOCK 4/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

distribution of power to the people at large. The notion of democratic decentralization is that people will become both the end and the means of development. India, like many other nations, has adopted a democratic decentralization policy. Panchayats are regarded as the most important institutions for the success of the decentralization process. In India, it began as part of administrative reforms to facilitate the execution of

Ouriginal by Turnitin

98% MATCHING BLOCK 5/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

rural development projects in rural areas. Later, when the idea of people's participation through Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) gained popularity, the same panchayats started to work as institutions of self-government in rural areas. 2 This chapter examines democratic decentralization in India with the intention of examining key issues such as people's participation in governance matters, the accountability of the government to the people, delivering the fruits of development to the people, and bridging the gaps in the achievement of these objectives, i.e., implementation failures. Overall, it demonstrates that while some expectations have been met, the majority have not. As a result, the outcomes have been mixed. Through local governments, the goal of democratic decentralization has not been fully achieved or completely failed. Despite numerous accomplishments, there are a number of issues that must be addressed. 1.3 The Theoretical Perspective of Democratic Decartelization According to Moitree Bhattacharya, the transfer of planning, decision-making, or administrative authority from the central government to its field organizations, local administrative units, or semi-autonomous parastatal organizations is known as decentralization. It brings the government closer to the people. Mere administrative decentralization entails the delegation of functions as well as some financial powers to the local level to implement policies that cannot be implemented by central authorities. Administrative decentralization becomes more meaningful when it is combined with political decentralization. Political decentralization gives local units the power to not only carry out policies but also make their own decisions. Political decentralization empowers decentralized units not only to implement policies but also to make decisions on their own. Democratic decentralization differs from fiscal decentralization (in which funds are not only transferred to local bodies but the power to raise funds is also granted to these bodies, even if they are not necessarily elected bodies) and administrative decentralization (which envisages de- concentration and

the

99% MATCHING BLOCK 6/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

transfer of administrative power and functions from higher to lower levels). Democratic decentralization combines administrative, fiscal, and other forms of decentralization. It envisions the devolution of decision-making powers as well as funds to elected bodies at the local level. Beginning in the 1990s, the Indian model of decentralization was intended to conform to democratic decentralization. Decentralization promotes greater participation. Decentralization give opportunity to the people at lower levels to participate to a greater extent in a decision-making process. Being away from the top layer increases proximity to the base, i.e., the people. The term "decentralization" gets its democratic prefix from this participatory aspect. However, participation cannot be absolute. First, it is naive to believe that everyone in a village or rural area can sit down and decide everything. It amounts to direct democracy, which in today's world is unthinkable. Second, it is a common misconception that poor people want to participate in community decision-making while abandoning their bread-earning activities. As a result, profound socioeconomic changes are required to make decentralization truly democratic. Third, it is incorrect to believe that higher authorities are eager to promote decentralization. On the contrary, higher authorities, whether elected representatives at higher levels of government or bureaucrats, are hesitant to allow for popular governance. People's participation, therefore, has its own limitations; we cannot achieve it; we can only come close. Although participation has its limitations, it is not desirable to limit people's 3 participation to voting every five years. Democratic decentralization, at the very least, broadens the scope for citizens' active participation in local government institutions. It allows people at the local level to have a say in decisions that affect their lives. It broadens the country's democratic foundation. It is thought to be more efficient in terms of both time and money. When decisions are made at the local level, planning and implementation take place locally, the cost of development work is obviously reduced. It makes decisions more responsive to local needs. 1.4 Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-Independent India In their book, Public Administration in a Globalizing World, Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand wrote that India's path to new local governance seems to have been instable. There is no denying that panchayats, or village councils, have existed in India since ancient times. They were primarily 'informal bodies of village elders from dominant castes and families' assigned a variety of functions such as the provision of goods and services, the upkeep of law and order, the general welfare of the villagers, and so on. These bodies had significant autonomy in terms of organization, functions, and finances, which was bestowed upon them by village communities. Village communities had almost unrivaled freedom of action in all spheres of governance. The uniqueness of this form of governance was that it arose completely spontaneously, with no external authority ever delegating power and authority to these bodies. Furthermore, there was no uniform pattern

to

99% MATCHING BLOCK 7/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

this form of governance, just as there was no uniform pattern of organization in these village communities. The successive Muslim invasions and subsequent establishments of Muslim rule in India had little impact on the functioning of these village communities. Even the Mughals, who had united almost the entire subcontinent for the first time, were not eager to dismantle the localized form of governance. Instead, they were preoccupied with police and revenue issues, which they resolved with the village headmen. As a result, despite several political vicissitudes at the central level, the arrangement remained unchanged until the middle of the seventeenth century. As a result, despite several political vicissitudes at the central level, the arrangement remained unchanged until the middle of the seventeenth century. Even when the British arrived in India in the nineteenth century, this age-old form of local governance was there. Sir Charles Metcalfe's famous portrayal of this form of local governance before the House of Commons Select Committee bears clear testimony to the great tradition of local governance that existed in ancient India. In his words: The village communities are little republics, having nearly everything they can want within themselves and being

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 8/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

almost independent of any foreign relations. They seem to last where nothing else does. Dynasty after dynasty tumbles down; revolution succeeds

in

98%	MATCHING BLOCK 9/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

revolution; but the village community remains the same. This union of the village communities, each one forming a separate little state, in itself has been conceived, contributed more than any other cause to the preservation of the people of India, through all the revolutions and changes that they have suffered, and is in a high degree conducive to their enjoyment of a great portion of freedom and independence. 4 Except for a few polemics and individual efforts by a few visionary thinkers like Tagore and Gandhi, there was no serious attempt to unlock the huge potential of these little village republics, either by the colonial rulers or by the post-colonial state. The colonial rulers of India did nothing to revive these "little village republics." The twin motives of empire building and mercantilism drove colonial intervention in local governance. In terms of local governance, the colonizers took a selective approach. In fact, in order to strengthen their goal of empire building, they built urban "centers" like Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras while leaving the rest of the country as a "periphery," serving the "center" without any development. Naturally, whatever little rural reconstruction and urban development was done during the time period was primarily for housekeeping purposes. As part of its housekeeping functions, the British colonial state implemented several constitutional measures to streamline local self-government. Among them were the Ripon Resolution of 1882, the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, and the Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919. The Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919, which provided a two-tier structure—union boards at the bottom and district boards at the top—may be regarded as the beginning of local self-government in India. Those self-governing structures, however, were neither local nor self-governing,

93%	MATCHING BLOCK 10/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

as they were marked by a perpetual resource crunch, over bureaucratization, and the dominance of local landed gentry. They remained as mere appendages of the provincial government. 1.5 Conclusion As a result of the implementation of democratic decentralization, democratic consciousness spread in the minds of the people. This democratic process has been realized throughout India through village-based Panchayati Raj institutions. The main responsibility of this organization is to implement the development programs of the people. Panchayat probably meant a village council, whose membership was five at the earliest. It is believed that the word "panchayat" is derived from these 'five' words. Lord Ripon was the first Viceroy who came forward to establish self-governing institutions in India. For this purpose, on May 18, 1882, Ripon's Resolution on Local Self-Government in India was passed. This proposal represents an attempt to restructure India's self-governing system. However, to implement the system of self-government in this country, the first government act adopted by the British government was the Bengal Self-Government Act of 1885. This Act provides for the formation of three tiers of organizations. Morley subsequently set up a Royal Commission in 1907 on decentralisation. The report of this commission gave an outline of how to develop efficient rural administration with a view to decentralization. Subsequently, the Bengal government constituted a District Administration Committee in 1914 to outline how to improve the district administration system. Additionally, following this committee's recommendations, the Bengal government passed the Bengal Village Self-Government Act in 1919 to institute rural self-governance. These initiatives of the British period are particularly significant in administratively strengthening the panchayat system in India.

5 1.6

100% MATCHING BLOCK 11/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Summary A. This chapter examines democratic decentralization in India with the intention of examining key issues such as people's participation in governance matters, the accountability of the government to the people, delivering the fruits of development to the people, and bridging the gaps in the achievement of these objectives, i.e., implementation failures. B. Through local governments, the goal of democratic decentralization in India has not been fully achieved or completely failed. C. The colonial rulers of India did nothing to revive the panchayat. D. The twin motives of empire-building and mercantilism drove colonial intervention in local governance in India. E. The Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919, which provided a two-tier structure— union boards at the bottom and district boards at the top—may be regarded as the beginning of local self-government in India. 1.7

100% MATCHING BLOCK 13/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Glossary A. What is a panchayat? In India, the local government system is known as a panchayat.A panchayat is a group of "five people." A panchayat is a council of elders that represents a village. The Panchayat system includes villages (Gram Panchayat), clusters of villages (Block Panchayat), and districts (District Panchayat). B.

What is

100% MATCHING BLOCK 14/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

the Panchayati Raj system? Panchayati Raj is a village-level form of government in which each village is responsible for its own activities. The Amendment Act of 1992 includes provisions for delegating powers and responsibilities to panchayats in order to prepare plans for economic development and social justice. C. What is local self-government? According to form of government in which each village is responsible for its own

83% MATCHING BLOCK 12/222 W

the

99% MATCHING BLOCK 15/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

European Charter of Local Self-Government, "this entails the existence of local authorities endowed with democratically constituted decision-making bodies and possessing a wide degree of autonomy with regard to their responsibilities, the ways and means by which those responsibilities are exercised, and the resources required for their fulfilment". 6 1.8 Model Questions 1. How does local government strengthen democracy? 2.

Write in detail what initiatives were taken during the British period to strengthen the panchayat system in India. 1.9

100% MATCHING BLOCK 16/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"

in Contemporary

100% MATCHING BLOCK 17/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 7

100% MATCHING BLOCK 18/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Unit II Panchyati Raj System in Post-independent period: Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report

Structure 2.1 Learning Objectives 2.2 Introduction 2.3

100% MATCHING BLOCK 19/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The Journey towards a Constitutional Mandate for Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) in India 2.2.1

The Period of Dwindle 2.2.2 Revitalization Efforts of Panchayat 2.2.3 Panchayats of the Third Generation 2.2.4 The Constitutional Amendment regarding Panchaanchayats 2.4Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report 2.5 Conclusion 2.6 Summary 2.7 Glossary 2.8 Model Questions 2.9 References 2.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, we will know: Evolution of the Panchayat System in Independent India Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India 2.2 Introduction

99% MATCHING BLOCK 20/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

According to Chakrabarty & Pandey, Independence altered the power structure but not the attitude toward local government. Despite Mahatma Gandhi's repeated advocacy for Gram Swaraj, it remained a distant dream even in independent India. The framers of the 8 Constitution, inheriting the critical mindset regarding local governance, belied the hope of strong and vibrant local governance by confining it to the Directive Principles of State Policy, a non-enforceable section of the Constitution. In this context, the comments of two major architects of the modern Indian Constitution deserve some space here because both comments adequately mirror the mentality that denied local governance in India the constitutional status it deserved. Ambedkar argues: The love of the intellectual Indian for the village community is, of course, infinite, if not pathetic. It is largely due to the fulsome praise bestowed upon it by Metcalfe, who described that they want it

90% MATCHING BLOCK 21/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

within themselves and almost independently of any foreign relations... That they have survived through all vicissitudes may be a fact. But mere survival has no value. The question is on what plane they have survived. Surely on a low, selfish level. I said that these village republics have been the ruin of India. I am therefore surprised that those who condemn provincialism and communalism should come forward as champions of the village. What is the village but a sink of localism, a den of ignorance, narrow-mindedness, and communalism? In similar vein, Nehru wrote: 'I do not understand why a village should necessarily embody truth and non-violence. A village, normally speaking, is backward intellectually and culturally, and no progress can be made

a

100% MATCHING BLOCK 22/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

in

97% MATCHING BLOCK 23/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

a backward environment. Narrow-minded people are much more likely to be untruthful and violent'. The dream of inclusive local governance in India had to wait nearly four decades before it was recognized in 1993. Meanwhile, there had been a few pioneering efforts, but they were mostly selective and limited to the provincial level. Among them were the Balwantrai Mehta Committee, the Ashok Mehta Committee, and democratic decentralization experiments by a few state governments, such as West Bengal, Karnataka, and Kerala. 2.3 The Journey Towards a Constitutional Mandate for Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) in India In his book, Panchayati Raj, Kuldeep Mathur wrote that, when it became clear that the bureaucraticallyorganized Community Development Programme (CDP) was underperforming, the Planning Commission appointed a Study Team led by Balwant Rai Mehta in 1956 to study and report on "Community Development Projects and National Extension Service" in order to evaluate their "economy and efficiency," as well as "the extent to which the movement has succeeded in utilizing local initiatives and creating institutions." In its report, the team argued that 9 ...community development can only be real when the community understands its problems, realizes its responsibilities, exercises the necessary powers through its chosen representatives, and maintains a constant and intelligent vigilance on local administration. It concluded that in order for these programs to be effective, a village-level agency "that could represent the entire community, assume responsibility, and provide leadership for implementing development programs" was required. The study team then proposed the now well-known three-tier structure of panchayats, ranging from the village to the district level. Direct elections were held only at the village or panchayat level in the majority of states. Through indirect elections, the other two institutions—the panchayat samiti (coinciding with development blocks) and

the

98% MATCHING BLOCK 25/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Zilla parishad (coinciding with the district)—were linked to each other and to the panchayat. Few financial powers were delegated to them, and they were dependent on the district administration to initiate any development activity in their area. Significantly, these Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) were viewed as tools for plan implementation, whereas politics was viewed as a barrier to their effectiveness. Unanimity in elections was interpreted as an indicator of village consensus, and several state governments initially offered prizes to panchayats that elected their leaders unanimously. Efforts to keep politics out were supported by Gandhians, who emphasized that political parties should find other ways to serve the interests of the people rather than exploit Panchayati Raj for party ends. The experience of the early years—from 1957, when Jawaharlal Nehru inaugurated panchayati raj with great enthusiasm in a district of Rajasthan, to its decline around five years later—damped all anticipations, both of Gandhians and the government. The Gandhians' idealistic picture was significantly blurred and tarnished because the panchayat system revealed that the villages were not conflict-free; they were surrounded by group rivalry and factionalism. The expectation of a collaborative mode of operation was crushed when panchayats provided a means for dominant groups to retain power. Those who saw PRIs as development tools were disappointed to discover that the leaders were primarily interested in retaining and accumulating power, as well as delivering patronage, and were frequently embroiled in political-administrative squabbles and intrigues. In the face of more pressing issues such as droughts, food crises, and the Indo-Chinese War, attention was quickly diverted away from these institutions. As the country faced food shortages, policymakers prioritized increasing agricultural production, and they resorted to a bureaucratic strategy to meet this challenge. The recommendations in the Ford Foundation's Report on India's Food Crisis and Steps to Meet It to transform the existing agricultural situation provided significant support for this strategy. It stated unequivocally that "only a far-reaching centralized authority with a clear line of command and execution can meet the challenge of growing more food." It also stated that "the administrative structure must be simplified, and clear lines of authority and 10 responsibility must be established at all levels of government so that policy decisions are carried out at the village level." 2.3.1 The Period of Dwindle The decentralization phase (beginning in 1957) lasted about five years, during which the panchayat system received little support in its role in meeting agricultural production targets. The national policy elites believed that local political leadership did not reflect the urgency of national demands and, after questioning panchayats' role and legitimacy in the national crisis, side-lined them in the development effort. The Panchayats suffered a decline beginning in 1962, not only because the CDP, which they were enjoined to help implement, lost its financial support, but also because, in dealing with the food crisis, these institutions were not seen as a source of strength and support. However, due to the neglect of panchayats during the 1964–80 period, no elections were held while the institutions continued in their organizational form. Those who had been elected remained in their positions, wielding whatever power they could in the absence of financial resources. A large number of such locally elected leaders emerged, and they began to form political alliances with the state leadership by providing them with 'vote banks' in exchange for the ability to exercise local influence. Local vote bank politics emerged during this time period, encouraging national leaders to cater to state leaders with large vote banks. The Congress party benefited the most from this scheme, with local leaders ensuring support for the Congress leadership through a complex system of manipulation and patronage. As the Congress party—the more powerful national party—lost touch with local issues, "people-oriented" parties emerged that were regional in nature and responded to sectarian interests. These parties began to assert themselves on a national scale as well, ushering in a period of coalition governments. On the administrative front, the implementation of the new agricultural strategy to increase food production fuelled the belief that development schemes could be successful if the central government maintained control over them after promoting them and also monitored their performance to ensure they followed pre-planned guidelines. During the Fifth Five-Year Plan, which began in 1971–2, the central government introduced a series of schemes to alleviate rural poverty. These were implemented at the local level by states and district administrations but were planned and financed by the central government, which kept a close eye on implementation to ensure that it did not deviate from pre-set guidelines. The Small Farmers' Development Agency, Drought Prone Area Programme, and Integrated Tribal Development Programme, which were introduced at the time, were not administered by the Zilla parishad. These schemes became known as "centrally sponsored schemes," and the format is still used today. 11 Furthermore, while funds for panchayats were depleted, funds for departments implementing programs at the local level were increased. This strengthened the local bureaucracy, which devised its own methods of consulting the villagers when necessary. With the panchayats lacking funds and elections, the local political leadership saw an opportunity to connect with these bureaucratic functionaries and influence how direct benefits would be distributed. An analysis of the reasons for the decline of panchayats throughout this period will be incomplete unless the characteristics of the structure's poor design are also highlighted. The panchayat institutions were established through separate acts passed by the state legislatures. This meant that the nature and extent of decentralization varied according to each state's political and administrative interests. These institutions were given little planning responsibility, and few powers to raise resources were devolved to them. Instead of making them the channels for the planned programs, the government continued to carry out its own poverty alleviation programs through its bureaucratic machinery. Furthermore, state governments frequently postponed elections, demonstrating their disinterest in these institutions. Once elected, the leadership determined that such postponements were in their best interests. It is also worth noting that panchayats were not viewed as institutions of people's participation that contributed to the advancement of democracy. They were typically viewed as tools to aid in the implementation of national policy. Even during their early years of enthusiasm, their performance was measured by their ability to increase agricultural output. The national leadership perceived local panchayats as ignoring this primary task and, as a result, failing to reflect the urgency of national demands. Because panchayats did not appear to be the primary drivers of development, they were side-lined. 2.3.2 Revitalization Efforts of Panchayats The Janata Party's victory in 1977 signaled a resurgence of interest in decentralization and Panchayati Raj. The newly formed coalition of political parties attacked the Indira Gandhi regime as being highly centralized, with power concentrated in Delhi. The political climate has shifted. It signaled the rise of a political coalition with agrarian interests as key partners. These interests demanded greater control over resources as well as a more active role in state politics. Simultaneously, the new center government was concerned with issues of centralization of planning as obstacles to improving the country's developmental performance. In its Five-Year Plan for 1978–83, the Janata Party stated unequivocally that the plan would 'require the creation of full-time planning machinery at the block and district levels and will call for a great deal more public participation'. It went on to say that 'the majority of investment in agriculture, minor irrigation, animal husbandry, fishing, forestry, marketing or processing cottage and small-scale industries, including water supply, housing, health, education, sanitation, local transport, and so on, is clearly amenable to local planning'. The Planning Commission formed a working group in 1977 to develop guidelines for the country's first block-level planning. The Working Group stated from the start that "the issue 12 of whether a district or block is more appropriate for the purpose of planning need not be viewed with rigidity". They did not see it as an either-or situation, and the group saw block- level planning as an important link in the multi-level planning process. It then suggested delegating power to the district level and below, as well as establishing planning cells to ensure that professionals are available. Along with this initiative, the government of India established a second committee to review panchayat institutions. The recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee sought to develop an effective Panchayati Raj system based on the district as the unit of administration and planning. The three-tier system was modified by recommending the Mandal panchayat as the base unit. The government's goal of decentralizing planning greatly influenced the Ashok Mehta Committee, which saw panchayat institutions as institutions of local-level planning. It did, however, see panchayat institutions as political and administrative units with the potential to become local governance units in the future. According to the committee's report, there is a lack of clarity regarding these institutions, with many images existing side by side, which tend to work against each other in the short run. It proposed that the district serve as the point of decentralization and that it be given taxation powers (to raise revenue). It enabled political parties to operate at this level. It abolished the three-tier panchayat system and proposed a two-tier system with Mandal panchayats as the next tier. However, it appears that the motivation for decentralization was purely technical; the real goal was to improve the planning process and counter the accusation of "too much planning" from above. At the political level, three state governments—West Bengal, Karnataka, and Andhra Pradesh—responded to the revitalization efforts. These states were ruled by non-Congress governments, and they took advantage of the report's opportunity to breathe new life into PRIs. Regular elections were held, and some powers were devolved to panchayats and panchayat samitis in order for them to perform local functions. However, the motivation for all of this in both West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh was political. The newly elected parties were attempting to consolidate and broaden their support and spheres of influence. Under constant threat from the Center, they reasoned that strengthening local-level institutions would be one way to stand up to it. If the Left parties in West Bengal were attempting to mobilize rural areas, N.T. Rama Rao, who won elections in Andhra Pradesh on the basis of his charisma, was in desperate need of consolidating his party's influence in the countryside. There was no plan in any of these states to decentralize governance by allowing panchayats to develop into powerful and autonomous institutions of self-government. The Karnataka experiment, on the other hand, was lauded as a daring attempt at decentralization. A new type of district administrative system was tried, and there was even talk of making the district government the third tier of the federal government. This experiment, however, was short-lived. The party that initiated this program lost the elections, and the party that was elected chose to reinstate the old system. 13 2.3.3 Panchayats of the Third Generation Even after the Congress Party regained power in 1980, the concern for participatory planning persisted. The Planning Commission issued a Working Group Report on District Planning in 1982, emphasizing the importance of public participation in order to "reduce the unequal distribution of power in rural areas." It went on to express dissatisfaction with existing institutional mechanisms of democratic decentralization, seeing them as having "fallen prey to power manipulation of the rural elite" and giving rise to "what may be called inner limits to public participation". Another Planning Commission committee, established in 1985 to review existing administrative arrangements for rural development and poverty alleviation programs, submitted its report in 1985. (GoI 1985). This committee emphasized that various rural development programs would become realistic and meaningful only if people's representatives were effectively participating in local-level planning, design formulation, scheme implementation, and beneficiary selection in anti-poverty and employment- generation programs: "In order that the felt needs of the local people and the area are articulated for planning, and priorities are effectively established and implemented, there is no better instrument to meet this need than the panchayati raj institutions''. 2.3.4 The Constitutional Amendment regarding panchayats With these reports in hand, then-Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi convened a series of meetings with district collectors in Bhopal, Hyderabad, Imphal, Jaipur, and Coimbatore. The government then drafted a bill along the lines of the one proposed by L.M. Singhvi as an appendix to the Ashok Mehta Committee Report. While accepting the three-tier structure in his report, Singhvi made two strong points: (i)panchayatsshould be recognized as self- governing institutions; and (ii) these institutions should be provided by the Constitution. The government agreed with these suggestions, so in 1989, the 64th Amendment Bill was put before the Lok Sabha. The bill, however, was defeated in the Rajya Sabha. The states objected to the amendment because they felt the center was intervening directly at the local level and also attempting to introduce uniformity in the country. These amendments made it mandatory for each state to establish local self-government institutions (known as Panchayati Raj Institutions, or Panchayats in rural areas) at the village, intermediate, and district levels (except for states with fewer than 20 lakh people). The amendment stated that devolutionary powers would be left to the discretion of state legislatures. According to the amendment: 14 It may by law endow the Panchayats with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of local self-government [with respect to]: a. the preparation of plans of economic development and social justice; b. the implementation of schemes for economic development and social justice as may be entrusted to them, including those in relation to matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule. The Act's provisions were not mandatory, allowing states to respond at their will. The scope of responsibilities, particularly those concerned with law and order, was excluded, and the subjects in the Eleventh Schedule were only suggested. As a result of this design, while the Constitution mandated a structure and suggested the degree of autonomy to be granted, it was up to the states to determine how the structure would function and the degree of autonomy to be granted by enacting their own legislation. However, the Act has made several significant advances in recent years. It mandated that elections be held every five years and be overseen by the State Election Commission. The gram Sabha (the village assembly) was envisioned as the deliberative body of decentralized governance and the foundation of the panchayat system, with a uniform three-tier structure. Women's empowerment was mandated by reserving one-third of all elected bodies' seats, as well as the position of chairperson in each tier. Constituency rotation was also mandated in these cases. Reservations were also made available for scheduled castes and tribes. The Act calls for the establishment of a State Finance Commission every five years to ensure adequate financial resources for panchayats. District Planning Committees were made mandatory and constitutionally recognized. In making the gram sabha responsible for monitoring and evaluating local-level developmental programs, the amendment represents a significant shift from previous thinking about Panchayati Raj and a step toward participatory democracy. It has also been tasked with determining who will benefit from a specific program. The amendments' participatory nature can also be found in the effort to ensure the participation in decision-making processes of citizens who are typically excluded for social, economic, or gender reasons. As a result, women and members of the scheduled castes are given preference in seating at both the assembly and the functional levels. Furthermore, the establishment of an Election Commission ensures regular elections, and the establishment of a Finance Commission ensures a statutory provision of funds that is not dependent on the political leadership of the day.

District Planning Committees have also been established. The cause of the panchayats' decline in the earlier phase was attributed to infrequent elections and insufficient funds. This flaw has now been addressed. A virtual democratic revolution has occurred, with 30 lakh representatives elected at the local level every five years, of which 10 lakh are women and more than 6.5 lakh are Dalits. Women and Dalits are also serving as panchayat heads. According to Chaudhri, prior to 1994, the elected representatives closest to the voters were members of the state legislative assembly. The panchayats, with each member representing a 15 few hundred people, are now the closest to the voters. The constitutional amendments have been a significant step forward in promoting local democracy and decentralization. This can only be sustained if elections are held on a regular and timely basis. The amendment mandated elections rather than leaving them up to the whims of state governments. Until now, the record has been fairly good—even more so as state-level political parties discover panchayat elections to be a good barometer of their own rural support. Also, candidates who are running for the first time in panchayat elections see it as their first step into politics. 2.4 Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report According to Laxmikanth, in January 1957, the Government of India appointed a committee to review the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to recommend improvements. Balwantray G. Mehta was the chairman of this committee. The committee issued its report in November 1957, recommending the implementation of the scheme of "democratic decentralization," which became known as panchayati raj. Its specific recommendations are as follows: A. Establishment of a three-tier Panchayati Raj system, with Gram Panchayats at the village and Zila Parishads at the district level. These tiers should be organically linked via an indirect election device. B. The village Panchayat should be made up of directly elected members, whereas the Panchayat Samiti and Zila Parishad should be composed of indirectly elected members. C. These bodies should be in charge of all planning and development activities. D. The executive body should be the Panchayat Samiti, while the advisory, coordinating, and supervising body should be the Zila Parishad. E. The chairman of the Zila Parishad should be the district collector. F. These democratic bodies should be given genuine power and responsibility. G. Appropriate resources should be transferred to these bodies to allow them to carry out their functions and fulfill their responsibilities. H. A system for future devolution of authority should be developed. 2.5

73% MATCHING BLOCK 24/222 W

Establishment of a three-tier Panchayati Raj system, with Gram Panchayats at the village level, Panchayat Samitis at the block level, and Zila Parishads at the district level.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 26/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Conclusion

100% MATCHING BLOCK 27/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

In January 1958, the National Development Council accepted the committee's recommendations. The Council did not insist on a single rigid pattern, instead allowing states 16 to develop their own patterns appropriate to local conditions. However, the fundamental principles and broad fundamentals should be the same across the country. Rajasthan was the first to implement Panchayati Raj. On October 2, 1959, the Prime Minister launched the scheme in Nagaur district. Rajasthan was followed by Andhra Pradesh, which implemented the system in 1959 as well. Following that, the majority of states adopted the system. Though most states had established Panchayati Raj institutions by the mid-1960s, there were differences between states in terms of the number of tiers, the relative position of

the

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 28/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

samiti and parishad, their tenure, composition, functions, finances, and so on. Chakrabarty and Chand opined that the Balwantrai Mehta Committee report failed to revitalize panchayats as local governance institutions. A number of factors could have led to this. First, the study's motivation was to legitimize central government-led development programs rather than to establish panchayats as a legitimate body of community participation. Second, the Balwantrai Mehta Committee's failure was also influenced by the government and administration's elitist apathy toward panchayats. 2.6

Summary A.

81%	MATCHING BLOCK 29/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The cause of the panchayats' decline in the early phase after India's independence was attributed to infrequent elections and insufficient funds.

B.

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 30/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

In January 1957, the Government of India appointed a committee to review the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to recommend improvements. C. Balwantray G. Mehta was the chairman of this committee.

D.

93%	MATCHING BLOCK 33/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The committee issued its report in November 1957, recommending the implementation of the scheme of "democratic decentralization," which became known as panchayati raj. 2.7

Glossary

46%	MATCHING BLOCK 32/222	W

Balwant Rai Mehta Committee The Government of India created the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee in 1957 to study the implementation of the Community Development Plan (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to

66%	MATCHING BLOCK 31/222	W

in 1957 to study the implementation of the Community Development Plan (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) recommend improvements.

This committee's chairman was Balwant Rai G. Mehta.
17 2.8

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 34/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Model Questions A. How does local government strengthen democracy? B. PRIs in India are facing multifarious problems. Explain them. C.

Write in detail the recommendations of the Balwant Rai Committee on the Panchayati Raj system. 2.9

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 35/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"

in Contemporary

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 36/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 18

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 38/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Unit-III Asoke Mehta Committee and others: Background and Recommendations

Structure 3.1 Learning Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3Asoke

55%	MATCHING BLOCK 39/222	SA	uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

Mehta Committee: Recommendations 3.4 The Committee of G.V.K. Rao 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee 3.6Sarkaria Commission 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee 3.8

71%	MATCHING BLOCK 37/222	W

G.V.K. Rao 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee 3.6Sarkaria Commission 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee 3.8

V.N. Gadgil Committee 3.9

58%	MATCHING BLOCK 40/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Conclusion 3.10Summary 3.11 Glossary 3.12Model Questions 3.13References 3.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, you will be able to learn about the following: Ashok Mehta Committee Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India G.V.K. Rao Committee Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India L.M. Singhvi Committee Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India Sarkaria Commission Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India P.K. Thungon CommitteeReport on the Panchayati Raj System in India V.N. Gadgil Committee Report on the Panchayati Raj System in India 19 3.2 Introduction

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 41/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The Janata Government appointed a committee on Panchayati Raj institutions in December 1977, chaired by Ashok Mehta. It submitted its report in August 1978, making 132 recommendations to revive and strengthen the country's declining Panchayati Raj system. 3.3

Asoke Mehta Committee: Recommendations

98% MATCHING BLOCK 42/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Its main recommendations are as follows: A. The three-tier Panchayati Raj system should be replaced by a two-tier system consisting of a Zila Parishad at the district level and a Mandal Panchayat consisting of a group of villages covering a population of 15,000 to 20,000. B. A district should be the starting point for decentralization below the state level, under popular supervision. C. The Zila Parishad should be the executive body and be in charge of district-level planning. D. Political parties should be allowed to participate in panchayat elections at all levels. E. In order to mobilize their own financial resources, Panchayati Raj institutions should have mandatory taxation powers. F. A district-level agency and a legislative committee should conduct a regular social audit to ensure that funds designated for vulnerable social and economic groups are actually spent on them. G. The Panchayati Raj institutions should not be superseded by the state government. In the event of an urgent supersession, an election must be held within six months of the date of supersession. H. The Nyaya Panchayats must be kept separate from the development panchayats. They should be presided over by a judge who is fully competent. I. The Panchayati Raj elections should be organized and conducted by the state's Chief Electoral Officer in consultation with the Chief Election Commissioner. J. Development functions should be transferred to the Zila Parishad, and all development personnel should work under its control and supervision. 20 K. Voluntary organizations should play an important role in mobilizing public support for Panchayati Raj. L. A Panchayati Raj minister should be appointed to the state council of ministers to oversee the affairs of the Panchayati Raj institutions. M. Seats for SCs and STs should be allocated based on population. Due to the Janata government's collapse before the end of its term, no action could be taken at the central level on the recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee. However, the three states of Karnataka, West Bengal, and Andhra Pradesh took steps to revitalize the Panchayati Raj, taking into account some of the Ashok Mehta Committee's recommendations. 3.4 The Committee of G.V.K. Rao The Planning Commission established the Committee on Administrative Arrangements for Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation Programs in 1985, chaired by G.V.K. Rao. The Committee concluded that the development process was gradually bureaucratized and separated from Panchayati Raj.This phenomenon of bureaucratization of development administration as opposed to democratization weakened Panchayati Raj institutions, which turned panchayats into "grass without roots."As a result, the committee made these recommendations to strengthen and revitalize the Panchayati Raj system. A. The district-level body, the Zila Parishad, should be central to the democratic decentralization scheme. According to the document, "the district is the proper unit for planning and development, and the Zila Parishad should become the primary body for management of all development programs that can be handled at that level". B. Panchayati Raj institutions at the district and lower levels should be given a significant role in rural development programs, like planning, implementation, and monitoring. C. For effective decentralized district planning, some planning functions at the state level should be transferred to district level planning units. D. A District Development Commissioner position should be established. He should serve as the Zila Parishad's chief executive officer and be in charge of all district- level development departments. E. Elections to Panchayati Raj institutions should take place on a regular basis. It was discovered that elections for one or more tiers were overdue in eleven states. 21 Thus, in its scheme of decentralized field administration, the committee acknowledges a leading role

for

100% MATCHING BLOCK 43/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

the Panchayati Raj in local planning and development. The GV.K. Rao Committee Report (1986) differed in this regard

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 44/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

from the Dantwala Committee Report on Block-Level Planning (1978) and the Hanumantha Rao Committee Report on District Planning (1984). Both committees have recommended that the basic decentralized planning function be performed at the district level. 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee The L.M. Singhvi was appointed chairman of a committee on the "Revitalization of Panchayati Raj Institutions for Democracy and Development' by the Rajiv Gandhi government in 1986. It made the following suggestions: A. The institutions of Panchayati Raj should be constitutionally recognized, protected, and preserved. A new chapter in the Indian Constitution should be added for this purpose. As a result, their identity and integrity will be reasonably and substantially protected. It also proposed constitutional amendments to ensure Panchayati Raj elections are held on a regular, free, and fair basis. B. There should be Nyaya Panchayats for groups of villages. C. Reorganization of villages to make Gram Panchayats more viable. It also emphasized the Gram Sabha's significance, referring to it as the embodiment of direct democracy. D. Financial resources for village panchayats should be increased. E. In each state, judicial tribunals should be established to resolve disputes over the election of Panchayati Raj institutions, their dissolution, and other issues concerning their operation. 3.6 Sarkaria Commission The Sarkaria Commission (1988) was evaluating the federal structure, particularly with regard to center-state relations, and made a passing remark in its report on the nature of rural and urban local self-government. The Commission found that many local self-governing bodies were not functioning effectively owing to the fact that elections to these bodies were being phased out. The Commission also emphasized the need for uniformity of law in the states regarding the holding of periodic elections and supersessions of Panchayat Raj bodies. 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee In 1989, under the chairmanship of Dr. P.K. Thungon, a subcommittee of the Parliamentary Consultative Committee attached to the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances, and formed to consider the type of political and administrative structure required in district planning. The Committee reported that the PRIs should be continuously recognized 22 and recommended that a constitutional provision be made to ensure timely and regular elections to these bodies, with terms of five years. According to the subcommittee, the Zilla Parishad should be the district's sole planning and development agency. It also recommended the formation of a planning and coordination committee at the state level under the leadership of the prime minister, with the presidents of the ZP serving as committee members. 3.8 V.N. Gadgil Committee The Indian National Congress also set up a committee

Pensions was

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 45/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

in 1989,

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 46/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

led by V.N. Gadgil and called the Committee on Policy and Programs. Its task was to figure out how to make PRIs work better. The Committee proposed a three-tier system of

PRIs, the

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 47/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

reservation of constituencies for SC/STs and women to ensure adequate representation for the weaker sections, a five-year tenure for PRIs, and the establishment of a state finance commission. 3.9

Conclusion All of these committee reports laid the groundwork for enhancing the panchayat raj system in India. The 73rd Constitutional Amendment, which was passed by the Indian Parliament in 1992, benefited greatly from all of these committee reports. In this amendment act, the empowerment and functional role of panchayats are given special emphasis. 3.10 Summary A.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 48/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Ashok Mehta submitted its report in August 1978, making 132 recommendations to revive and strengthen the Panchayati Raj system.

B.

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 49/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Panchayati Raj institutions at the district and lower levels should be given a significant role in rural development programs, like planning, implementation, and monitoring. C. Both the Dantwala Committee and the Hanumantha Rao Committee have recommended that the basic decentralized planning function be performed at the district level. 3.11

Glossary Ashok Mehta Committee In December 1977, the Janata Government chose Ashoka Mehta to head a committee on Panchayati Raj institutions. In its August 1978 report, the group presented 132 suggestions to resuscitate and enhance

64%	MATCHING BLOCK 50/222	SA	MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 ... (D144277369)

the country's waning Panchayati Raj system. The Indian states of Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, and West Bengal approved new laws in response to this research.

23 3.12 Model Questions A. Write in detail the recommendations of the Asoke Mehta Committeeon the Panchayati Raj system in India. B. Write in briefthe recommendations of the G.V.K. RaoCommitteeon the Panchayati Raj system in India. C. Write in briefthe recommendations of the L.M. Singhvi Committeeon the Panchayati Raj system in India. 3.13

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 51/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"

in Contemporary

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 52/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 24

Unit-IV 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act: Basic Features Structure 4.1 Learning Objectives 4.2 Introduction 4.3 Basic Features of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act 4.4 Conclusion 4.5 Summary 4.6 Glossary 4.7 Model Questions 4.8References 4.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, you will be able to learn: Regarding the 73 rd Constitutional Amendment Act passed by the Parliament of India in 1992 4.2 Introduction

56%	MATCHING BLOCK 53/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 54/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act of 1992 is regarded as a turning point in the history of Indian local government.By granting it the much-desired constitutional status, it has effectively transformed the age-old tradition and institution of local government from a dependent to an independent status. This Act added Part-IX to the Indian Constitution. It is titled "The Panchayats" and contains provisions ranging from articles 243 to 243-0. Furthermore, the Act added the Eleventh Schedule to the Constitution. 4.3

Basic Features of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act
25 The

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 55/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Act has given practical form to Article 40 of the Constitution, which states that "the state shall take steps to organize village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government." This article is part of the Directive Principles of

State Policy. The Act' s provisions are divided into two categories: mandatory and voluntary. The Act's mandatory (mandatory or obligatory) provisions must be incorporated into state laws establishing the new Panchayati Raj system. The voluntary provisions, on the other hand, may be included at the states' discretion. Thus, the Act's voluntary provisions ensure that states have the right to consider local factors such as geographical, political, and administrative factors when implementing the new Panchayati Raj system.

42%	MATCHING BLOCK 56/222	SA	Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx (D141689289)

In other words, the Act does not upset the Indian federal system's constitutional balance between the Centre and the states. Despite the fact that it is a central law on a state subject (local government is a subject included in the State List under the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution), the Act does not infringe on the jurisdiction of the states, which are given adequate discretionary powers with regard to panchayats.

Ouriginal by Turnitin

The following are the Act's most notable features: Fixed Structure It outlined a three-tiered structure at the village, intermediate, and district levels. It also stated that an intermediary panchayat may not be formed in a state with a population of less than twenty lakhs. This consistent pattern of PRIS was required to reduce the structural confusion that existed prior to the amendment period (Article 243B). The Continuity The Amendment states unequivocally that PRIS will be in place for a fixed period of five years from the date of its first meeting. If a panchayat is dissolved and a new election is held, the newly elected panchayat is only required to serve for the remaining portion of the five- year term. An election must be held within six months of the date of dissolution(See Article 243 E). All of this was necessary to ensure panchayat continuity and to reduce the possibility of long-term supersessions of elected panchayats on political. Functions and authority The state legislature may grant the panchayats the powers and authority required for them to function as self-governing institutions. Such a scheme may include provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities to Panchayats at the appropriate level in relation to the preparation of plans for economic development and social justice; and (ii) the implementation of schemes for economic development and social justice entrusted to them, including those relating to the 29 matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule. 26 Representativeness The Amendment Act mandated that seats be reserved for the SC/ST population and women at all levels of panchayats. Article 243D provides for the reservation of seats for SC and ST in each panchayat based on their proportion to the total population of that panchayat, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in the panchayat through rotation. At least one-third of all panchayat seats, including those reserved for SC/ST, shall be reserved for women, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in a panchayat by rotation. This was an enabling provision that allowed previously marginalized groups to be represented in panchayats. The article also stated that when the period specified in Article 334 expires, the reservation of seats for SC/ST will cease to have any effect. Subclause 6 stated that state legislatures can reserve seats in panchayats for backward citizens and that nothing shall prevent them from doing so. Clause (1) of Article 244 expanded political space for the marginalized. The Panchayats (Extension to Scheduled Areas) Act, 1996, was enacted by Parliament to extend the 73rd Amendment to scheduled areas (PESA). PESA is supposed to apply in eight states: Andhra Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Gujarat, Maharashtra, Bihar, Odisha, and Himachal Pradesh. Responsibility The provision of the gram Sabha aims to increase the elected representatives' accountability at the local level. According to Article 243A, a gram sabha may exercise at the village level such powers and functions as the legislature of a state may provide by law.Article 243 defined gram sabha as a body comprised of persons registered in the electoral rolls relating to a village comprised within the area of panchayat at the village level. The Gram Sabha is the only forum where all citizens can participate, debate, criticize, reject, and approve proposals made by gram panchayats. Gram Sabhas acts as a watchdog, provide transparency to panchayat activities, and increase accountability at the grassroots level. Appointment of the State Election Commission Article 243

o of

Ouriginal by Turnitin

our Constitution empowers state governors to appoint a State Election Commission. This body will be in charge of overseeing panchayat elections. This was necessary in order to free the panchayats from the clutches of the state bureaucracy and governmental machinery. Finances The state legislature may: (i)authorize a panchayat to levy, collect, and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; (ii) delegate duty to a panchayat for the collection of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees which are collected by the state government; (iii) provide for grants-in-aid to 27 panchayats from the state's Consolidated Fund; and (iv) establish funds for providing money to the Panchyats. Appointment of the State Finance Commission The governors of states are also empowered to form the State Finance Commission (Article 243L) to review the financial position of panchayats and make recommendations to the governor on financial matters such as the allocation of funds and finances between states and PRIs, as well as grants-in-aid to PRIs. PRIS cannot function as viable units unless they have a strong financial foundation. Structure of the District Planning Committee Under Article 243ZD of the Constitution, district planning committees (DPcs) are to be established at the district level in every state except Meghalaya, Mizoram, J&K, Nagaland, and the National Capital of Delhi, under Article 243ZD of the Constitution, to consolidate the plans prepared by panchayats and municipalities in the district and to prepare a draft plan for the district. The state legislature will pass legislation governing the composition of DPCs and how seats will be filled. Eleventh Schedule It includes the following twenty-nine functional elements that are within the scope of panchayats: Agriculture, as well as agricultural extension, Land enhancement, land reform implementation, land consolidation, and soil conservation, Water management, minor irrigation, and watershed development, Animal husbandry, dairying, and poultry production, Fisheries, Farm forestry and social forestry, Minor Forest yields, Small-scale enterprises, such as the food processing industry, Village and cottage industries, as well as Khadi, Housing in the rural area, Drinking Water, Fodder and fuel, Roads, culverts, bridges, ferries, and waterways, as well as other modes of communication, Rural electrification, including electricity distribution, Renewable energy sources, Poverty Reduction Program, Primary and secondary education, Technical education and vocational training,Adult education and non- formal education, Libraries, Cultural pursuits, Fairs and markets, Hospitals, primary health care centers, and dispensaries, health and sanitation facilities, Family welfare, Women's and children's development, Social welfare, including disabled and mentally impaired welfare, The welfare of the lower classes, particularly the scheduled castes and tribes, Public Distribution System, maintenance of community assets. Provisions that are Compulsory and Voluntary Now, we shall separate between the obligatory (obligatory or compulsory) and voluntary (discretionary or optional) elements (features) of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act (1992), or the Part IX of the Constitution: 28 A. Mandatory Provisions A. Gram Sabha organization in a village or group of villages. B. Establishment of village, intermediate, and district panchayats. C. Elections to all panchayat seats at the village, intermediate, and district levels. D. Indirect elections for panchayat chairpersons at the intermediate and district levels. E. The minimum age for standing in panchayat elections should be 21 years old. F. Reservation of seats (both members and chairpersons) in panchayats at all three levels for SCS and STS. G. Reservation of one-third of panchayat seats (both members and chairpersons) for women at all three levels. H. Establishing a five-year term for panchayats at all levels, with new elections held within six months following the supersession of any panchayat. I. Establishment of a State Election Commission to oversee panchayat elections. J. Establishment of a State Finance Commission to assess the financial status of the panchayats every five years. B. Optional Provisions A. Providing representation to members of Parliament (both Houses) and the state legislature (both Houses) in the panchayats at different levels within their respective constituencies. B. Making seats (both members and chairpersons) available for backward classes in panchayats at any level. C. Delegating powers and authority to panchayats in order for them to act as self- governing entities (in brief, making them autonomous bodies). D. Devolution of authorities and duties to panchayats to formulate plans for economic growth and social justice, as well as to undertake some or all of the twenty-nine activities stated in the Eleventh Schedule of the Constitution. 29 E. Delegating financial authority to panchayats, allowing them to charge, collect, and allocate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees. Articles about the Panchayat Serial Number Article Number What it's about 01 243 Definitions 02 243A Gram Sabha 03 243B Constitution of panchayats 04 243C Composition of panchayats 05 243D Reservation of seats 06 243E Duration of panchayats, and so on 07 243F Disqualifications for membership 08 243G Powers, authority and responsibilities of panchayats 09 243H Powers to impose taxes by, and funds of, the panchayats 10 243I Constitution of finance commission to review financial position 11 243J Audit of accounts of panchayats 12 243K Elections to the panchayats 13 243L Application to union territories 14 243M Part not to apply to certain areas 15 243N

Continuance of existing laws and panchayats 16 243O Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters 4.4

Conclusion

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 59/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The Act gives Panchayati Raj institutions a constitutional status. It has brought them under the jurisdiction of the Constitution's justiciable section. In other words, state governments are mandated by the Constitution to implement the new Panchayati Raj system in accordance with the Act's provisions. As a result, neither the formation of panchayats nor the holding of elections at regular intervals is any more dependent on the will of the state government. The Act is a watershed moment in the country's evolution of grassroots democratic institutions. It shifts from representative to participatory democracy. Building democracy at the grassroots level in this country is a revolutionary idea. 4.5

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 60/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Summary A.

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 61/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The 73rd Amendment Act gives Panchayati Raj institutions a constitutional status. 30 B. The 73rd amendment made it mandatory for each state to establish Local Self- Government Institutions (known as Panchayati Raj Institutions, or Panchayats in rural areas) at the village, intermediate, and district levels (except for states with fewer than 20 lakh people).

C.

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 62/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The Amendment Act mandated that seats be reserved for the SC/ST population and women at all levels of panchayats. D. At least one-third of all panchayat seats, including those reserved for SC/ST, shall be reserved for women, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in a panchayat by rotation. E. The article also stated that when the period specified in Article 334 expires, the reservation of seats for SC/ST will cease to have any effect. F. The state legislature will pass legislation governing the composition of DPCs and how seats will be filled.

G.

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 63/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

The Constitutional Amendments have been a significant step forward in promoting local democracy and decentralization. 4.6 Glossary 73 rd Constitutional Amendment Act:

The Constitutional (73rd Amendment) Act, enacted by the Narasimha Rao administration in 1992, went into effect on April 24, 1993. It was intended to offer constitutional backing for the establishment of " democracy at the grassroots level, as it is at the state or national level." 4.7

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 64/222	SA	Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

Model Questions A.

94%	MATCHING BLOCK 65/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Discuss the basic features of the 73 rd Amendment Act. B. What were the main differences between the local governments before 73rd amendment and after that amendment? 4.8

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 66/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.

Baviskar and

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 67/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). 31 Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"

in Contemporary

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 68/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed. Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011).

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 69/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Unit-V The Impact of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act on India's Panchayat Raj Institutions

Structure 5.1 Learning Objectives 5.2 Introduction 5.3 The 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act and Its Effects on India's Local Government Institutions (

87%	MATCHING BLOCK 70/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Panchayat Raj) 5.4 Conclusion 5.5 Summary 5.6 Glossary 5.7 Model Questions 5.8References 5.1 Learning Objectives Following completion of this unit, you should be able to:

The Influence of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act on Panchayat Raj Institutions in India 5.2 Introduction

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 71/222	SA	ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

According to Bhattacharya, panchayats in the post-73rd Amendment era have a uniform structure. They were able to institutionalize and strengthen panchayats. However, while structural impediments removed, procedural flaws remain. Elections are held on a regular basis. With a few exceptions, most states passed their Conformity Acts within one year of being directed and began preparing for elections. Today, over 21 lakh representatives are elected to three tiers of panchayats. More than 40% of these are women, 16% are SCs, and 32 11% are STs, making India the largest democratic country with the broadest democratic base possible. 5.3

The 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act and Its Effects on India's Local Government Institutions (Panchayat Raj)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Women, SCs, and STs have gained access to Panchayati Raj institutions as a result of the reservation. Without this, panchayats would remain in the hands of rural elites, as they had previously. Despite this, some provisions are causing practical difficulties and should be reconsidered. With reservation many people who come to power are first-timers with little experience. Many of the chairpersons are inexperienced, and bureaucracy usurps their power and functions and exerts indirect control over them. The concept of rotation prescribed by the Act in relation to reserved seats has created some complications. It is stated that seats shall be allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a panchayat at the end of every five years. If this policy is followed, no such candidate will have the opportunity to be re-elected to that seat a second time, as it is highly unlikely that these people will be allowed to contest from the same seat once the reservation is removed. If we assume that the majority of the reserved candidates are first-timers with little experience, many of these first-timers will also be last- timers, and by the time they gain experience, it will be time for them to leave office. It could be argued, however, that even if he or she is not re-elected, the exposure and experience which he or she get when in office, will not only empower but also raise their awareness levels. A woman or a person of a lower caste who is elected for at least one term is no longer the same ignorant person as before. He or she is likely to be more aware, confident, and involved in all collective matters. One of the goals of the 73rd Amendment was to find a way to incorporate common people into the political process and give them an opportunity to say in policymaking through the establishment of gram sabhas as key institutions. Several suggestions for revitalizing the gram sabhas were made. The Government of India declared 1999–2000 the Year of Gram Sabha in order to popularize the concept among the people. However, it has been discovered in many cases that gram sabhas, which were supposed to be the pivot of panchayati raj in the new dispensation, have not received adequate attention. First, gram sabhas are typically comprised of one large village or two to three villages combined, making the gathering exceptionally large. Participation in such large gatherings is meaningless. Villagers are often hesitant to express their needs and priorities in front of such a large crowd. As a result, only those in positions of authority speak, while the rest are merely observers.According to recommendations, the size of gram sabhas should be reduced. West Bengal, for example, established smaller units known as gram Sansads or ward sabhas to serve this purpose. If their size is reduced, not only will the gram sabhas become a more cohesive body, but it will also be easier for the villagers to attend such meetings. They now have to travel long distances to attend the meeting, which act as a deterrent to participate on those meeting. Ward sabhas should therefore be formed everywhere. Second, gram sabhas do not meet very frequently.The Constitution stipulates that it should meet at least twice a year. Unfortunately, the minimum is misconstrued as the maximum, and the majority of sabhas are only met twice. If they do not meet more frequently, it will be impossible for them to contribute meaningfully to the village's affairs. 33 The devolution of funds and functionaries is one of the prerequisites for successful decentralization. Decentralized units must have autonomy in carrying out their functions. They will continue to rely on the state and bureaucracy unless they have adequate funds and functionaries.PRIs are constitutionally mandated, but they do not have the necessary fuel because there is neither adequate financing from above nor adequate mobilization from below.The economic backwardness of the masses made local fund mobilization extremely challenging. Many Indian states have devolved as many as twenty-nine subjects to the PRIS; some have devolved fewer subjects, but most PRIS lack adequate funds and functionaries for functional devolution. There should be a clear understanding that local governments are self- governing institutions, not just delivery agencies. Another issue is that there is a lack of coordination and harmonious understanding among the three tiers of PRIS with regard to which functions will be carried out by which strata of PRI. Regarding the devolution of functionaries, it is frequently asserted that PRIS lacks sufficient functionaries. Gram panchayats with only one secretary and one job assistant are especially affected by the problem. The 73rd Amendment envisioned not only the administration of development projects by PRIS but also the initiation of planning at the local level. The 73rd Amendment mandated that the states establish their District Planning Committees (DPCs) and move toward decentralized planning. The DPCs were tasked with developing district-wide composite plans. Unfortunately, many states are still hesitant to set up DPC in their own states, stifling the idea of planning from the bottom up. Some states haven't set up their own DPCS yet. These include Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat, Haryana, Punjab, Tripura, Uttar Pradesh, Uttaranchal, Maharashtra, and Jharkhand. It is necessary to develop political will in order to properly implement these measures. The states have yet to take grassroots planning seriously. The Kerala People's Plan model, which was started in 1996 with the goal of giving local bodies and local people more power, was well-received and could be used in other states with minor changes, if needed. Another source of concern is the rise of parallel bodies in many states, which are infringing on PRIS's constitutionally mandated authority. It produces a division between functions and responsibilities. Some see it as an opportunity to ensure village development through the participation of alternative bodies, while others believe that the duality it creates leads to distracted efforts and wasteful expenditure. Some are concerned that these bodies are usurping the role of democratically elected and constitutionally established PRIs. The parallel bodies that were running in different states alongside the PRIs included the Gram Vikas Samitis in Haryana, the Janmabhoomi scheme in Andhra Pradesh, and the users' groups in Uttar Pradesh. The District Rural Development Agency is the most common parallel body (DRDAs). They were founded in the early 1980s and receive funding directly from central government programs. After 1993, when elected panchayats were established, the DRDAs continued to exist as parallel bodies, receiving funds from the central government. Creating such parallel bodies violates both the letter and spirit of the 73rd Amendment. It undermines panchayats, which are legally empowered to perform a variety of functions. Capacity building, as it is commonly known today, must be applied to panchayat members and villagers. It entails complete awareness of the entire panchayati raj system, proper training in panchayat activities, education of rural development schemes, fiscal prudence, 34 behavioural changes, and so on. They would be unable to make the best use of the Constitutional Amendment without all of this. Training and capacity-building initiatives are currently insufficient. Neo-literates, women, and underprivileged groups should be prioritized.Neo-literates, women, and underprivileged groups should be prioritized. Databases should be created and updated on a regular basis to pool all national, state, and district-level resources. States have already implemented e-government for panchayats. If properly implemented, it will have a positive impact on panchayats' delivery of services. It may also facilitate information sharing, which is currently very limited. For public accountability, official records should be made more accessible. When voters and elected representatives at the local level are so poorly informed, democratic decentralization cannot have a significant impact. 5.4 Conclusion Decentralization has its own possibilities. Instead of opposing PRIS in India, we must eliminate the obstacles in its way and ensure its success by removing the obstructions. India’s Panchayati Raj has come a long way despite its flaws. It is nevertheless plagued by insufficient funds, a lack of citizen participation in planning, the ongoing weakness of gram sabhas, and administrative intervention. Despite these challenges, it is obvious that PRIs have contributed to an extraordinary expansion of the democratic basis of our nation. Thousands of men and women have occupied positions of authority that were formerly unimaginable. It emancipated women, Dalits, tribals, and others who had previously been completely marginalized. Today, they have the power to alter the focus of development. This lets them take care of their own needs and priorities and brings about development of their own communities. This is a significant accomplishment and a source of optimism for the panchayat system. Additionally, the PRIS has fostered the concept of participatory decision-making and devotion to community interests. This culture of collective approach should penetrate the consciousness of the people. Only then would they take an interest in panchayat operations and strive for their success. 5.5 Summary A.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 73/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

After 1993, when elected panchayats were established, the DRDAs continued to exist as parallel bodies, receiving funds from the central government.

B. Training and capacity-building initiatives are currently insufficient. C.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 74/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

Instead of opposing PRIS in India, we must eliminate the obstacles in its way and ensure its success by removing the obstructions.

D.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 75/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

India's Panchayati Raj has come a long way despite its flaws.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 76/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

This is a significant accomplishment and a source of optimism for the panchayat system. 35 5.6 Glossary The Impact of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act The major purpose of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act of 1992 was to give panchayats constitutional standing. It attempted to decentralize authority and resources democratically between the central government and local entities such as PRIs. This will increase citizen participation in government. 5.7 Model Questions A.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 77/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

What are the problems that first-generation panchayats faced in India? Do you think the post-73 rd Amendment period was an improvement over it?

B.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 78/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

What is democratic decentralization? Examine democratic decentralization in the context of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act for Panchayats. 5.8 References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"inContemporary India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 36

BLOCK 2 ORGANIZATION AND STRUCTURE UNIT 1 STRUCTURE AND COMPOSITION OF PANCHAYATI RAJ INSTITUTIONS STRUCTURE 1.1. Learning Objectives 1.2. Introduction 1.3. Structure of Panchayati raj 1.4. Composition of Panchayati

48% MATCHING BLOCK 79/222 SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panch ... (D146801947)

raj 1.5. Conclusion 1.6. Summary 1.7. Key words 1.8. Model questions 1.9. References 1.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES After studying this unit, one should be able to- • The background of rural local government in India both in pre-and post-independent India. • The composition of local government in modern India in various states. • The structure and composition of the Panchayati institutions and their effectiveness in developing rural India. • The problems and reforms needed to make rural local institutions more development oriented. 1.2. INTRODUCTION In India, Panchayati Raj Institutions are the prime functionaries that are tasked with the responsibility of localised development. The very same institutions through which the self-government of villages is realized create the linkages between the state government and the local authority.

They are tasked with economic development, strengthening social justice and implementation of Central and State Government Schemes including those 29 subjects listed in the Eleventh Schedule enshrined in the constitution of India. India for a long time has been ruled by non-modern undemocratic forces in its history. Medieval India was never completely unified politically. Though northern India was ruled by sultanate kings and later by Mughals, the provinces had independent princes as rulers of kingdoms such as the Rajput rulers, 37 Marathas etc. The rural areas though were maintained under conservative social forces in the form of panchayats, these institutions were more socio-cultural than political in nature. A communitarian system of grab sabhas and panchayats under old patriarchs of rural order became an important feature of the Indian system. The Colonials used these institutions when stronger forces were removed such as the Kings and sultans. Local institutions thus became important machinery for colonial expansion. Post-1947 independent India transformed into a modern democratic republic. It was in 1959 that the Panchayati Raj system slowly started to become a potent structure of political transformation in India. The social churning that this process started led to new enthusiasm amongst the newly independent folk but also brought problems for the conservative traditional elite in the rural areas who foresaw their loss of power based on traditions to newly emerging democratic strata. Most states were faced with the same tribulation. The introduction of the Panchayati Raj in the sixties was also a major step in encouraging people's participation in rural development but accompanying social problems there arose economic problems as well. The 1970s was a rather tough year due to the Indo-Pak war of 1971, a subsequent drought, emergency imposition and change in government those structures began to face pressure on the economic side. There were fund cuts to the funding for Community Development Projects. Funding dried up and panchayats stagnated in performing their roles for localised development. In 1979- 80 a new institution of the District Rural Development Agency was established at the district level. It was more of a cooperative venture between the state and the centres expected to function as a development institution jointly registered by the Union and State Governments in each district and society, but even they were unable due to the continuous tension between state governments and the union government regarding funding and supervision. The states faced the same problems and except for the states of West Bengal and Kerala, most sent the proposal of democratic local governance to bureaucratic hibernation. After decades of debate, it was the Constitutional (73rd Amendment) Act, of 1992 that brought a holistic rejuvenation of the local self-government in both rural and urban areas creating a comprehensive system of decentralised governance structure for empowering the masses. 1.3. STRUCTURE OF PANCHAYATI RAJ To begin with, the existing status of the local bodies in the rural areas reference must be mentioned in Part 9 of the constitution. It is in the Part IX of the Indian Constitution where the section relating to the Panchayats is explicitly mentioned. It stipulates that in states or Union Territories with more than two million inhabitants there are three levels of Panchayati raj- • the Gram Panchayats at the village level. • the Mandal Parishad or Block Samiti or Panchayat Samiti at the block level. • the Zila Parishad at the district level. 38

50% MATCHING BLOCK 94/222 SA final PRI and MGNREGA .docx (D146921272)

Historically, the first steps to reorganize the Panchayati system of the colonial era started in 1957 with the Mehta Committee recommendations. The Planning Commission of India in 1957 under the aegis of the then Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru began the process of modernising the rural local institutions according to the needs of the democratic country. The committee was headed by Balwant Rai G Mehta and thus got named as Mehta committee. The Mehta Committee aimed to achieve the following goals: 1.
Give report on the possible linkages between village panchayats and higher-level popular institutions for the proper implementation of schemes under community projects and local development schemes. 2. To determine the advancement in the stages of reorganisation of district administration, which in turn would help the democratic bodies to take over the entire general administration and initiate development inducement techniques for the benefit of the districts and lower units. The subsequent report which was presented after a thorough survey done by the Mehta committee became the basis for the early structural blueprint for the Panchayati system in India. the earliest structure suggested focussed on the village as the primary unit of local governance and the aim as per the report was to strengthen the local economic structure based on agriculture and community development projects. Development was to become a focused issue from the perspective of the people rather than the administration. This was to be achieved by empowering the communitarian initiatives under the leadership of the village panchayat. The policy formulation was suggested to be initiated by the state governments under the ministry of rural governance or Panchayati raj, but the implementation and realisation of these policies were to be made in close coordination with state executive, district administration as well as local body representatives. To preserve the relative autonomy of the village communities the Mehta Committee Report suggested that the relationship between the state and Panchayati raj bodies must be cooperative in nature and rather than thinking of themselves as 2 distinct systems they must act as developmental agencies for the benefit of the population. Economic autonomy was to become a crucial part of this relationship where the state government would fund the local bodies and help them initiate development programs based on the demands of the people. States were to act as guidance providers rather than master controllers. The district administration was to be the bridge between the village and the state government. As the model suggested by the Mehta Committee was only implemented in Rajasthan and its limited efficacy there was a matter of concern, so the central government set up another committee under the supervision of Ashok Mehta. The Ashok Mehta Committee provided a review of the existing Panchayati raj system and thus submitted its report in 1978. This Committee was of the opinion that 39 Panchayati raj had been successful in raising the level of political awareness among the rural population about the decision-making processes of the local institutions. The fallacies instead were on the economic front where state and local contentions over funding led to the stagnation of programs and the eventual faltering of local bodies to provide development. Changing the recommendation of the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee, the Asoka Mehta Committee instead suggested a two-tier structure of Panchayati raj. The two tiers were to be- 1. Zila Parishad at

88% MATCHING BLOCK 80/222 W

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 81/222 W

district level. 2. Mandal panchayat, an administrative unit between village panchayat and panchayat Samiti. In the two-tier system, the focus shifted from the lowest level of panchayat Samiti to the district-level functionary reversing the approach mentioned in the earlier committee report. The recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee were submitted but their implementation couldn't be complete as the Janata government that had instituted it was removed from power in the year 1980. As mentioned earlier most states couldn't maintain the Panchayati system based on democratic elections for long and states like Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and Tamil Nadu halted elections. At the same time, many new agencies were set up by the Central Government like -District Rural Development Agency, to take up development programmes in collaboration with the State Governments, inducing more centralisation into the system and making the Panchayati system inept. Developmental programs stopped in the villages as the DRDAs started coordinating policies from the district level which stopped funding in lower institutions. 1.4. COMPOSITION OF PANCHAYATI RAJ It was with the 73 rd amendment that a proper system of local rural government was formalised in the country. The Panchayati Raj system was in accordance with the 73rd Amendment, which made provisions for a three-tier structure based on direct elections at all three tiers: • Village • Intermediate ( Varying terms according to states) • District. Certain exemptions were made for the intermediate tier to the small States which has a population of fewer than 20 lakhs. Due to the limitation of people to be governed the exemption is rendered to these states for better management of resources without adding an extra tier. All members of a panchayat are directly elected from the populace of the village based on universal adult suffrage. However, if a state legislature decides based on recommendations, members of the State Legislature and Parliament may also be represented in the district and middle-level panchayats, but panchayat at the lowest tier remains available only to the local population. 40

95% MATCHING BLOCK 82/222 W

88% MATCHING BLOCK 83/222 W

96% MATCHING BLOCK 84/222 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 85/222 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 86/222 W

The middle-level panchayats are generally known as Panchayat Samitis in most states.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 87/222 W

Provisions have been made for the inclusion of the chairpersons of the village panchayats in the block and district-level panchayats. The reservation policy of the Indian state is wholeheartedly implemented in the local rural government system as well. Thus, there exists a provision regarding the reservation of seats for Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes at all levels of the local government. The advent of socio-political reforms also led to the empowerment of rural women as well, with the provision for reservation of one-third of total seats being reserved for women, and one-third for women out of the Quota fixed for Scheduled Castes/Tribes. Reservation is also provided for offices of Chairpersons.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 88/222 W

To avoid stagnation and politics of the vote bank the election provision of rotation is applied to local government structures.

81%	MATCHING BLOCK 89/222	W

The reserved seats are at times allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a panchayat area to keep the dynamism of the system intact.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 90/222	W

State Legislatures can provide for further reservation for other backward classes (OBC) in panchayats

if there is a considerable population present of the aforementioned section. The 73 rd amendment restrengthened the core of local governance in India. Years of political, and economic stagnation were eroded due to the 73 rd amendment and its implementation. Certain important provisions under the 73 rd amendment is mentioned below- (i) Term

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 91/222	W

The Amendment provides for the continuous existence of panchayats. The normal term of a panchayat is five years. If a panchayat is dissolved earlier, elections are held within six months.

The
state election commission is the authority that looks after the coordination of elections in local rural bodies starting from announcing elections, preparing

71%	MATCHING BLOCK 92/222	W

electoral rolls, and declaration of results. (ii) Powers and responsibilities of panchayats State Legislatures are expected to provide necessary bureaucratic and economic help to the local bodies for the proper implementation of government policies for the empowerment and development of the people in rural areas. Proper planning and policy formulation is to of utmost importance to bring in local economic development and social justice. Various schemes are implemented to direct resources to areas that are of importance to the people of the area. These areas include agriculture, primary and secondary education, health and sanitation, drinking water, rural housing, the welfare of weaker sections, social forestry and other issues of concern.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 93/222	W

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 95/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Three-tier Structure of Panchayati Raj i) Panchayats at Village Level: This is the basic or grassroots level of Panchayati raj. The panchayat for a village or a group of villages includes the following-41 (a) Gram Sabha- it is an institution of direct democracy and

83%	MATCHING BLOCK 96/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

is an important feature of the 73rd amendment. Gram Sabha consists of all adult residents within a village or group of villages. Due to this fact it is the only institution of direct democracy in the country whereas all others are presentative democratic structures.

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 97/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Generally, two meetings of Gram Sabha are held every year. In these meetings, the Gram Sabha as the general body of the people hears annual statements of accounts, audits or administrative reports of panchayats and discusses the future course of action and changes to be brought in.

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 98/222	SA	uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

It also recommends new development projects to be undertaken by panchayats for the development of the people.

91%	MATCHING BLOCK 99/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

It also helps in identifying poor people in the village so that they may be given economic assistance

under both central, state government schemes and local schemes such as MGNREGA and others. (

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 100/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

b) Gram Panchayat- The lower tier of the Panchayati raj system in the country is the village-level panchayat. It is known in most States as Gram Panchayat. The members of a Gram Panchayat are directly elected by the people by means of universal adult suffrage.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 101/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

The number of members of a Gram Panchayat is fixed on the basis of the village population a representation of the average population. Hence, it differs from panchayat to panchayat all over the country. Elections are held on the basis of a single-member constituency. There is a reservation for one-third of the total number of seats for women, and some for Scheduled Castes and Tribes including one-third for women of Scheduled Castes and Tribes. Chairpersons of Gram Panchayats are called by different names in different States as 'Sarpanch, Pradhan or President. There is a Vice-Chairperson also who helps the Pradhan/sarpanch in executing the responsibilities of the panchayat.

77%	MATCHING BLOCK 102/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 103/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Both are elected by members of the panchayat. Gram Panchayats generally hold their meetings once a month to discuss the affairs of the gram and coordinate solutions to problems faced by the people.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 104/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Panchayats at all levels constitute committees for transactions of their business depending on needs of the specific areas. (c) Nyaya Panchayat- These are judicial panchayats and a reminder of ancient village panchayats. These are bodies that act as justice-endowing mechanisms in the villages

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 105/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

that settled local disputes. They are set up to provide speedy and inexpensive justice to the rural population as modern mechanisms are still underdeveloped in the country. The jurisdiction of Nyaya Panchayat varies from State to State – one such panchayat is set up for five or more-gram panchayats and looks into disputes related to the people of the

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 106/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 107/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

panchayats. Their tenure is between 3 and 5 years, as determined by State law. Nyaya Panchayats generally deal with petty civil and criminal cases and have the authority to impose fines up to Rs. 100 only which are related to minor settlements and crimes.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 109/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

There are no lawyers to plead the cases in Nyaya Panchayat

and the aggrieved parties to the disputes argue their own cases. (ii)

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 108/222	W

Panchayat Samiti: The second or middle tier of the Panchayati raj is Panchayat Samiti which acts as a bridge between Gram Panchayat and a Zila Parishad. The strength of a Panchayat Samiti also 42 depends on the population in a samiti area with larger populations resulting in large numbered samities and vice-versa.

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 110/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

In Panchayat Samiti, some members are directly elected. Sarpanchs/pradhans of gram panchayats are ex-officio members of Panchayat Samitis. However, not all the sarpanches of Gram Panchayats are members of Panchayat Samitis at the same time. The number varies from State to State and is by the policy of rotation kept open to changes. In action, it results in a situation where only chairpersons of some Gram Panchayats in a Samiti area are members of Panchayat Samiti at a time. In some panchayats, members of Legislative Assemblies and Legislative Councils as well as members of Parliament who belong to the Samiti area are co-opted as its members for coordination purposes and only with a due recommendation from the state legislature.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 111/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 113/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Chairpersons of Panchayat Samitis are, generally elected from among the directly elected members and lead the working of the Samiti for the term they have been elected to serve. (iii) Zila Parishad: At the district level, the

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 112/222	W

Zila Parishad is the uppermost tier of the Panchayati raj system. This institution has some directly elected members whose number differs from State to State as it is also based on population. Chairpersons of Panchayat Samitis are ex-officio members of Zila Parishads. Members of Parliament, Legislative Assemblies and Councils belonging to the districts are often nominated members of Zila Parishads to coordinate the functions of the lower levels with the state government.

91%	MATCHING BLOCK 114/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

The chairperson of a Zila Parishad, called Adhyaksha or President, is elected from among the directly elected members becoming the prime executive at the level. The vice-chairperson is also elected similarly and helps the president in the daily functioning of the Parishad. The Zila Parishad meetings are usually conducted once a month to discuss the proceedings of the body.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 119/222	SA	Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Special meetings can also be convened to discuss special matters and create problems solving mechanisms to address the issues of the time. Subject committees are also formed to look into specific areas to address issues related to only those areas. For example- committees for women's empowerment, committees for creating Self Help groups etc. 1.5. CONCLUSION In a country where a major section of the population still remains in the rural areas providing grassroot development is key to upliftment of the people. Due to problems such as populations, corruption, lagging infrastructure and others providing the aforementioned development has been an uphill task for institutions at all levels. There are more reasons behind this lagging or so-called failure. Factors such as the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 115/222 W

politicisation of administration, entry of criminal elements in the elected bodies, rampant corruption, caste and group division, priority to self-interest over public welfare and electoral malpractices remain problems in most states irrespective of which political party is in power at what time.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 116/222 W

The 73rd amendment seeks to radically alter the power relations in the villages by reserving seats for scheduled castes, tribes, backward classes and women.

Empowerment therefore becomes a major goal to which leads to other related goals.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 117/222 W

However, in the absence of proper education, training 43 and economic independence, the groups that aim for this empowerment are unable to assert themselves politically and remain underdeveloped sections. Illiteracy poverty and unemployment are the major handicaps as well that hinders the populace from moving forward.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 118/222 W

Urgent steps need to be taken to effectively deal with these problems in order to facilitate participatory development

at all levels, especially at local rural government. Economic funding, proper elections, political consciousness and democracy through free and fair elections make the core of the requirements that are of urgent need. Local rural government is the backbone of Indian development because without its proper strengthening the Indian population will not get the development it so rightly deserves. All governments and all institutions at various levels of political and bureaucratic levels must work towards furthering this goal. 1.6. SUMMARY • Rural local governments are of utmost importance in a country such as India where villages create a huge chunk of not only land but also population as well as economy. • Throughout the 1970s and 80's there have been many attempts to provide a stable structure to the local institutions under 2 committees. • It was with the 73 rd amendment that a proper 3-level structure was provided to the institutions of local government in villages based on panchayats, panchayats samitis. Gram sabhas, Nyaya panchayats and Zila Parishad. • The 3-tier system provided many opportunities for the people to develop within the ambit of their areas. The major beneficiaries were women, scheduled castes, tribes and OBCs who found new institutions for their grievance redressal within the democratic order. • Problems still remain in the system such as politicisation, underfunding, corruption, money and muscle power. • Local rural government requires major improvement on all grounds so that it can truly provide the development it was created to address. Close coordination between the state governments, local governments bureaucracy and other functionaries becomes crucial in this venture. 1.7. KEYWORDS • Amendment- a minor change or addition designed to improve or add an existing law within the constitution. • Ex officio- denoting a member of a body who holds the role as a result of their status or another position. • Universal adult suffrage- right to vote provided to any and every person who is an adult and over the age of 18 without any bias

44 • Empowerment- the act of making an existing system, person, or law stronger and reinforced. • Fallacies- a mistaken belief based on unsound and irrational arguments. 1.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • What were the aims of the Mehta committee regarding local rural government? • What are the levels to be instituted in the Panchayati system according to Part IX of the Indian constitution? • Which committee recommended changes in the Balwant Rai Mehta committee report and what were the changes centred around? • What were some of the reasons why the first attempts at establishing a stable Panchayati system failed? Medium questions • Write briefly about the 73 rd Amendment provisions for rural local government? • What was the 1979-80's District Rural Development Agency about? • What were some of the reasons why the first attempts at establishing a stable Panchayati system failed? Long questions • Describe in detail the composition of rural local government at the 3 levels instituted under the 73 rd amendment? • Write the functions of the Gram Panchayat and gram samitis in detail? • How are Panchayat Samitis different from village panchayats. Explain? 1.9. REFERENCES Bajpai, Ashok and M.S. Verma, (1995), "Panchayati Raj In India: A New Thrust", Sahitya Prakashan, New Delhi, India. Basu, D.D. (1997). "Introduction to the Constitution of India." Prentice-Hall of India Pvt Ltd, New Delhi.

75% MATCHING BLOCK 126/222 SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04. ... (D136736777)

Jha, N. S. and P. C. Mathur (eds) (1999). "Decentralisation and Local Politics". Sage Publication. New Delhi.

Singh, K. (1988). "Rural Development in India". Sage Publications. New Delhi. The Constitution (Seventy-Third Amendment) Act, 1992. Government of India, New Delhi.

45 UNIT 2 DEVELOPMENT OF LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT IN WEST BENGAL UP TO 1973 STRUCTURE 2.1. Learning Objectives 2.2. Introduction 2.3. Local self-government in West Bengal pre-1973 2.4. Local self-government in West Bengal post-1973 2.5. Conclusion 2.6. Summary 2.7. Keywords 2.8. Model questions 2.9. References 2.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES • To understand the background and realities of rural west Bengal and its people • To assess how different governments prioritised organising local self-government structures in the state of West Bengal. • To look into the system of Panchayati raj in West Bengal before 1978. • To observe and explain why changes were required in the state regarding local self- government. • To understand how the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1978 changed the scenario of local institutions in the state. 2.2. INTRODUCTION India has been an agrarian country for a long time due to its history, geography and politics, the dependence on which has shrunk but hasn't been eliminated. The system of western development reached India too late and also in the form of colonial oppression which seek to profit more than improve the condition of the colonial subjects in the country. Since the rebellion of 1857, the colonial rulers devised many ways to satiate and quell forms of discontent amongst the local population. Governance and especially local governance became a big factor in this venture. A formal local governance system, though very weak, was introduced in the country during the British period.

46 Though much of it was oriented towards participation from the local population, the control remained in the hands of the British at higher echelons. After independence in 1947, the new government aimed to put the country on track to socio-economic development and to achieve this the goal was set to empower the lowest sections of the population living in the villages. To achieve this there was a need for a system of local governance in the rural areas to create a system of governance that could reach the last man even if it was a peripheral village in the farthest corners of the country. The ideal for this was formulated

in

77% MATCHING BLOCK 120/222 W

one of the Directive Principles of the Constitution; Article 40 of which says that "The State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government." However, the fragmented federalist nature of the Indian state became the first of the many problems to crop up in implementing the proposal through programmes. As Panchayat was a state subject, State governments took varied steps in formulating local governments in the states. This, in turn, resulted in different models as well as different levels of development regarding the panchayat system creating widespread disparities. 2 committees were formed to sort out the problems regarding the Panchayati system but due to various problems, neither of the two could be implemented. It is in this context that West Bengal became a lynchpin for other states as well as the centre. The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1957 was passed for establishing Panchayats in the state. The Act recommended the constitution of four-tier bodies by splitting the earlier Union Board into Gram Panchayat and Anchal Parishad. Though more decentralised this system never took full shape due to political unwillingness and political obstruction and much like the country, the state didn't move forward in regards to providing grassroots democracy to the people. It was only in 1978 when the newly elected Left Front government took power (1977) that a proper 3-tier Panchayati system was implemented in the state based on democratic norms and ethos. The Constitution was amended in the year 1993 to provide a permanent structure for local self- governance in the states permanently. The 73 rd and 74 th amendments made the Panchayats to be the third stratum of government along with Municipalities in the urban areas of the country. The Panchayat system of West Bengal, which was put in place in its current form in the year 1978, was the role model for the Panchayati Raj system introduced in the country through the amendment of the Constitution. The existing system of Panchayat in the state has evolved over the years through several amendments of the relevant Acts to cater to the needs of the people in the rural areas and lead them on the path of progress. 2.3. LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT IN WEST BENGAL PRE-1973 The present state of West Bengal is only one part of the erstwhile Bengal province under the British taken from the nawabs of Bengal. The other part of the province is present-day Bangladesh. Situated 47 at the end of the Gangetic plain, the state of West Bengal has been an agriculturally dominant area. Agriculturally dependent population resided in the villages which made the region densely populated and an important source of revenue for local leaders. After the Diwani of Bengal was given to the British, it was they who went on to change the socio-politico-economic face of the region. Administration became the centrepiece of their rule. The intention was not really to give freedom to the local government to provide a developmental mechanism to the people but o ensure that in no way imperial interests are harmed and there is a steady flow of resources for the imperial coffers. The Bengal Chaukidary Act in the year 1870 became the first law to coordinate the villages under imperial rule. Basically, the village was put under watchmen or chowkidars under which the Chaukidary Panchayat was introduced for village policing. The District Magistrate (DM) could nominate a villager to be the Panchayat which was usually a person subservient to the colonial masters. The responsibility of the one-man panchayat was to collect tax from the ChaukidaryChakran land to pay the Chaukidars and could engage Chaukidars for village-level policing. In the same year Lord Mayo, the then Governor General of India, passed a resolution for introducing local governance in India. Under the resolution, there was to be a District Board at the district level to coordinate the activities and bring in more people to help in village administration. There was also the introduction of a Local Board at the subdivisional level and a Union Committee at the level of a cluster of villages referred to as Talukas. This resolution is considered the first formalisation of local self-governance in Bengal. In the year 1882 Lord Ripon, legally institutionalized the structure with the Local Self Government Act of 1885. Post 1 st World War, Britain faced immense pressure in its colonies, the most from India. the Bengal partition and its fallout a decade ago left a bitter taste for people who believed that Bengal would be the core of British India. The new administration thus started with reforming the rural areas first. The Bengal Village Self Government Act 1919 was passed in the provincial council to develop a system of self-government at the village level. The following changes were brought under the aforementioned Act. a. District Board remained the same but the Local Board was abolished and the Union Committee and Chaukidari Panchayat were clubbed together to form the Union Board. b. The district was to be divided by notification into local areas to be a Union under the Act and the State is to establish a Union Board for every union. c. The number of members on the Board was between 6 and 9 but the electorate was only a certain category of the citizen based on their land ownership and educational qualification. d. The Union Board had several duties and powers, some of which are quite similar to those of the Gram Panchayats at present. The Union Board could impose a union rate on buildings as per the assessment to be prescribed and had a Union Fund.

48 e. There was the provision of establishing a Union Bench to try certain petty criminal offences and a Union Court for trying certain petty civil suits in every Union. f. The Commissioner of the Division had the power to dissolve the Union Board after considering the views of the District Magistrates and District Board if the Union Board was not competent to perform. g. The District Magistrate or the District Board may issue an order in writing to suspend or execute the order or dissolve the union board. Though meant to provide more autonomy to the villages and further developmental mechanisms in the villages, the act, in reality, became a weapon to keep the villages in check with little or no authority over the people whose lives would be transformed under the new act. It was only after 1947, that the panchayat system was revived to become what it was expected to function as. The main impetus behind this was Mahatma Gandhi's emphasis on village centric state with panchayat becoming the backbone of the newly independent nation. The rural government, therefore, returned to focus again. The constitution which became the source of all power in the country was the first to enshrine this facet of local rural governance. The Constitution mandated reviving the Panchayati system in the country with the introduction of Article 40. Under

82% MATCHING BLOCK 121/222 W

the Directive Principles of the State policy, it was explicitly stated that- "the State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self- government".

Despite this explicit mention and making the state's duty bound the inability of the constitution to enforce the same led to the failure of policy implementation. There was no initiative to form Panchayats by any State after independence. Instead of the Panchayati system, the government shifted its focus to community development projects. On Gandhi's birth anniversary, 2nd October 1952 community development schemes took full measure and Community Development Blocks were established (which are the precursor of the Block Development Offices). Though formulated to provide developmental impetus to communities at a local level, it didn't address the basic demands of people at the rural level as communities weren't as cohesive due to the inadequacy of the system that was still recuperating from colonisation. The rampant illiteracy, malnutrition, weakness of institutions, and a population still reeling from socio-economic backwardness halted the efficacy of the community development based on Blocks. To assess the effectiveness of the Community Development programme a committee was appointed under the chairmanship of Mr Balwant Rai Mehta in the year 1957. The Committee recommended in its report that the non-involvement of the local people made community development projects ineffective as the demands of the people and the response of the authorities didn't align. On the

49 recommendation of the Committee Panchayats were to be constituted in different states. The responsibility of this formulation was given to state governments as local governance came under the State list and required proper state legislatures to pass a bill for that purpose. As the reports were published, the mandated Panchayat Acts were passed in different states. The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1957 was passed for establishing Panchayats in the state. The Act made one drastic change to the recommendations provided by the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee as the state legislature recommended the constitution of four-tier bodies by splitting the earlier Union Board into Gram Panchayat and Anchal Parisad, whereas the committee had suggested a 3 tier Panchayati system. The sarpanch was replaced by an adhyakshya with assistance from a upadhyakshya. The 4 tiers were- A. Gram panchayats. B. Gram sabhas. C. Anchal parishad. D. Nyaya panchayats, In 1963 West Bengal Zilla Parisad Act was passed to replace the District Board with Zilla Parishad and provided for the constitution of Anchal Parishad at the block level. The system never took root because of many reasons in the state, some of which included a lack of political will resulting in the little assignment of responsibilities, tumultuous state politics and unstable governments, stagnation or slow flow of funds to those bodies and above all the Naxalite movements that created political unrest during the period. Ultimately, all the representatives of 15 Zilla Parishads and 315 Anchal Parishads were removed in the year 1969 and Administrators were engaged by the government to centralise the system. This initiative in effect ended all forms of democratic aspirations the people had in rural areas. All those local bodies remained under the Administrators till the election was held in the year 1977. It was with the coming of the Left Front government, that a new panchayat policy was implemented that in time became the benchmark of local governance throughout the country. 2.4. LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT IN BENGAL POST-1973 It was in 1978 that the newly elected Left Front government passed the West Bengal Panchayati Act 1978 and held elections for the local bodies the same year. A three-tier Panchayat system was envisaged in the West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973, which came into force in June 1978 when the first general election for the Zilla Parishads (ZPs), Panchayat Samitis (PSs) and Gram Panchayats (GPs) was held. This system became the standard for rural governance throughout the state with proper decentralization of both responsibilities and powers to the local bodies. The features of the new Act were-
50 i) Members will be elected directly for each tier from respective constituencies based on the universal adult franchise ideal. ii) Candidates may contest elections with their party symbol as well as independent to be determined by the State Election Commission. iii) The members will elect their Chairperson and Vice-Chairpersons for each Panchayat – to be called Pradhan and Upa-pradhan for the Gram Panchayat; Sabhapati and SahaSabhapati for the Panchayat Samitis and Sabhadhipati and SahaSabhadhipati for the Zila Parishads. iv) Vertical division of power was made by assigning different duties and responsibilities to different tiers of Panchayats. No form of overlapping would be allowed to create problems in distributing welfare to the people. v) Within each tier responsibility was divided among various Standing Committees called Sthayi committees for Zila Parishads and Panchayat Samitis and Upa Samitis for gram panchayats to deal with different subjects. vi) There has to be an election after every five years. vii) Direct accountability to the people at the Gram Sansad level for ensuring their participation in the functioning of the Gram Panchayat. 1978 elections set a precedent for all future elections in the state. The regular elections held and the stable functioning of the institutions upheld the ideal of local governance and decentralized development. The success of the experiment was upheld by the 73 rd and 74 th Amendments in 1992, which formalised local governance structures throughout the country based on the West Bengal model. The model hasn't only been sustained but has been of great help in strengthening the democratic culture of the country and providing people at the periphery an opportunity to be part of their developmental policy formulation with the help of their people. 2.5. CONCLUSION The colonial rulers though extrapolated a lot from our country while exploiting it on an unprecedented scale, did provide certain basic structures for us to function which later became blueprints for our present structures. India was an agricultural-dependent country and rural areas were far greater in area than urban or semi-urban ones, making rural governance a key area of focus for the British. Rural local governance had been one of the most aspirational projects of independent India. a dream of Mahatma Gandhi that remained unfulfilled due to the problems of being a post-colonial state. The two committees tried their part in bringing a positive change to the system but systematic problems hindered their capabilities. West Bengal till 1978 had the same set of problems and even aggravated the problem by adding one extra structure to the recommendations which never materialised. West Bengal has been one of the pillars of political stability in the post-independent period of India. The 34-year Left Front government was one of the longest stints by any government. Many experts

51 attribute this success to the government's land reform policies and Panchayati system upgradation. What is central to this argument is the political as well as governmental impetus provided to the demands of the people as well as communities regarding local governance empowering the masses residing in the rural areas. The Panchayati system provided governance at a grassroots level to the people who had limited or no scope for being part of their development narrative. 2.6. SUMMARY • Indian democracy has been strengthened due to the inclusion of local governance in its mechanism making it people-oriented and helping foster a narrative of inclusive development irrespective of rural-urban bias. • Though in the early years of post-independent India, the country faced various problems in realising its goal of providing a decentralised Panchayati system to address the problems of the people at the periphery, but through subsequent trial and error and efficient policy formulation it has reached a position where its rural governance is one of the most stable structures of its polity. • West Bengal till 1973 had faced the same problems that plagued the other states and hindered the process of formulating local governance structures for the people. But in 1978 the 3-tier Panchayati system was formalised and it became the go-to model for other states to emulate. • The 73 rd and 74 th amendments have only doubled the reputation of the Bengal model when local rural governance is discussed. 2.7. KEYWORDS 1. Post-Colonial country- Any country that has achieved independence after being under the political domination of another country is called a post-colonial. 2. Grassroots- institutions that seek to address the problems of people at a micro level where the gap between the institutions and the people they serve is very low and the grievance redressal mechanism is people-oriented. 3. Agrarian- related to agriculture especially an economy that is based on agricultural production forces. 4.Resolution-A resolution is a formal statement of opinion or a decision to take an action. In judicial proceedings, "resolution" means a judgment or decision of the court. 5.District magistrate- District Magistrate means the Head of the Revenue Administration at the District level whether designated as Deputy Commissioner or Collector. A remnant of colonial administration, it still plays a very important part in local governance. 2.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions 52 • Which government implemented for the first time a proper 3-tier Panchayati system and in which year? • What were the suggestions of the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1957? • What changes were brought in the constitution of India in 1993 regarding local self- governance? Medium questions • What are the institutions created under the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1978 in the state of West Bengal? • How did 1the 1978 West Bengal Panchayati Act change the face of rural governance in the state of West Bengal? • Decentralised democracy is enhanced by a stable Panchayati system. Explain? Long questions • Explain the various facets of the Bengal Village Self Government Act 1919? • Write in detail about the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1957? • Discuss the historical contribution of our colonial rulers to local rural governance in India? 2.9.REFERENCES Gokhale, B.K. (1972). "The Constitution of India. Bombay", Sheth and Company. India. Mathur, K. (2013). "Panchayati Raj", India: Oxford University Press, New Delhi, India. Mishra, S. (1994). "Democratic Decentralisation in India". Mittal Publications, New Delhi. Robinson, M. (2005). "A Decade of Panchayati Raj Reforms: The Challenge of Democratic Decentralisation in India." in L.C. Jain (Ed.), "Decentralisationand Local Governance". Orient Longman. New Delhi, India. Roy, M.N. (2012) "Rural Local Governance in West Bengal" Journal of Rural Development, Vol. 30

53 UNIT 3 WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT ACT 1973: BASIC FEATURES STRUCTURE 3.1. Learning Objectives 3.2. Introduction 3.3. West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973 3.4. Features of West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973 3.5. Conclusion 3.6. Summary 3.7. Key words 3.8. Model questions 3.9. References 3.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES In this unit, one would learn the following • The details of the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 • How the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 changed the Panchayati system in West Bengal • The systematic changes ushered in by the act for the future of Panchayati raj. 3.2. INTRODUCTION West Bengal since the times of British India has been a politically tumultuous area despite Kolkata serving as the capital of the colony for years. The partition of the province in the early 1900s only aggravated the situation in the region which led to the population going against the colonial masters and providing a renewed impetus to the independence movement. Though the leadership of the movement came from the cities and suburban areas, the active participatory section of the movement was from the villages. Active organisation amongst the people in the rural areas was therefore a strong factor in Bengal politics. The province saw permanent partition after 1947 when it was divided along communal lines. The part that remained in India was thus ascribed West Bengal, whereas the divided

54 part first became East Pakistan and then got independence as Bangladesh. West Bengal as one of the most agriculturally dependent states of the country tried to chart its own course in the post- independent era. The Panchayati system that existed was kept intact and was brought up for reconsideration by the central government after the first general election was done. The Balwant Rai Mehta Committee was the first one to be appointed to look into possible changes for modern India's Panchayati needs. The committee was the first to suggest a 3-tier Panchayati system for the states. Disregarding the recommendations, the West Bengal model adopted a 4-tier system which wasn't up to the needs of the state. The political instability unleashed post-1967 led to more problems than solutions both at the state and in the centre. The country had lost 2 stalwart Prime ministers in quick succession in the form of Jawaharlal Nehru and Lal Bahadur Shastri whereas the state of West Bengal was facing political instability since the demise of Bidhan Chandra Ray with successive Congress governments being internally conflicted which led to the rise of the United Front in the state under the leadership of Ajoy Mukherjee from Bangla Congress supported by the communist parties. The antithetical forces of an ex-Congressman leading a government by communists didn't help the cause of the state. The Naxalite movement brewing in the hills of North Bengal complicated the scenario even further. Amidst all these developments, rural governance was not focussed upon by any government, eroding the democratic ethos the Balwant Rai Mehta committee had wanted the rural areas to usher in. The continuation of the 1957 Act thus stayed on until Indira Gandhi reined in the instability at the centre and Siddhartha Shankar Ray at the state curbed the insurgency in the state with an iron hand. After disrupted governments and 2 terms of President's rule, it was in 1972 that the state went for elections. The Congress (R) of the Indira Gandhi faction with the Communist Party of India defeated the Left Front comprehensively. The opposition boycotted the assembly proceedings on charges of widespread rigging in the recently held elections. In a bid to revamp the system out of its lethargy, the assembly introduced several new laws. In 1973 the West Bengal legislative assembly brought a revamped Panchayat Act titled the West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973. The aim was to demilitarize the rural areas that have been radicalised under the influence of the Naxalites. To achieve the aforementioned, aim a new structure needed to be created in the rural areas empowering the populace with democratic ideals. The administration was to be made responsible to the people and create order in society. The Act of 1973 was, therefore, directed with a 2 pronged approach- firstly to stabilize the rural countryside by providing their own means of developmentalism and secondly to bring the administration in close quarters with the people they were supposed to be answerable to. 3.3.

61% MATCHING BLOCK 122/222 W

WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT ACT 1973 55 The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 was introduced to reorganize, strengthen and expand the activities of Panchayats in rural areas of West Bengal.

The goal was

81% MATCHING BLOCK 123/222 W

to enable them to act as units of self-government and strive for socioeconomic development and secure social justice for the people.

The Act begins with the naming of the act as the West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973. Uniquely before stating any rules related to the Panchayati raj system, the act stated where the act won't be applied. This was unprecedented as the exclusivity of focus was on the rural front rather than the urban and thus distinctions were made from the start. The Act was to be extended to the whole of West Bengal, except the areas which were to be under the provisions of the following laws. These included – • Calcutta Municipal Act, 1951- Areas that were under the purview of the Kolkata Municipal corporation were to be kept out of the act as the area was under municipal jurisdiction. The metropolitan area of Kolkata, therefore, wasn't to be made part of the act of 1973. The adjacent suburban areas in the districts of 24 Parganas such as Cossipore and Jadavpur were also taken out of the Act of 1973 which later became part of the Municipal jurisdiction. • Howrah Municipal Act, 1965- Areas under the Howrah municipal corporation were kept out of the act as Howrah was a municipal zone as well. The historically industrial nature of the district was provided as an argument to keep the district out of the Panchayat act, though with later amendments certain areas within the district were brought under the Panchayat Act of 1973 to demarcate zones between municipal control and rural governance control. • Bengal Municipal Act, 1932- The areas that were demarcated as municipalities with lesser number of seats by the British were also kept out of the Act of 1973 as that would have required changing the existing Municipal Act in the state. Through amendments, this Act was made more responsive to the demands of the existing populace bringing down colonial legacies in the state. • Cooch Behar Town Committee Act, 1903- The Cooch Behar Town being the northernmost end of the state was kept out of the act due to 2 reasons. Firstly, the area was historically volatile due to the rajbangshi problem of the native population with the erstwhile rulers and secondly, the area had faced huge pressure in the days of the 1971 war leading to an increase in Bangladeshi migration to the area. The area thus was to be kept out of the Act's purview to maintain the status quo. • Chandernagore Municipal Act, 1955- Chandernagore had the unique feature of being a French colony in Bengal while the entire province was British-dominated. The area was therefore planned differently than the British colonial structure and thus required a different set of plans post-independence. The areas under the Chandernagore Municipal Act were drawn up to meet this end and therefore remained untouched by the 1973 Panchayat Act.

61% MATCHING BLOCK 124/222 W

56 • Cantonments Act, 1924- Army Cantonments are different from usual military stations in India as cantonments have both military as well as civil administrators at their helm. The cantonment is under the jurisdiction of a Chief Executive Officer who is an officer of the Indian Defence Estates Service cadre of Civil Services and works under the administrative control of the Director General, Defence Estates, Govt. of India, Ministry of Defence. The area, therefore, cannot be brought under state jurisdiction which was one of the features of the Panchayat Act of 1973. 3.4. FEATURES OF

65%	MATCHING BLOCK 125/222	W

THE WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT ACT OF 1973 • For every Gram the State Government shall constitute a Gram Panchayat bearing the name of the

Gram. •

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 127/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

Persons whose names are included in the electoral roll of the West Bengal Legislative Assembly for the time being in force pertaining to the area comprised in the Gram, shall elect by secret ballot a Gram panchayat. • The members of a Gram Panchayat shall, subject to the provisions of the Act hold office for a period of four years beginning from the date of its first meeting. •

48%	MATCHING BLOCK 128/222	SA	TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 P ... (D116542424)

Every Gram Panchayat shall, at its first meeting at which a quorum is present, elect, in the prescribed manner, one of its members to be the Pradhan and another member to be the Upa- Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat. The Pradhan and the Upa-Pradhan shall continue as members who hold office for a period of four years. A Pradhan or an Upa-Pradhan of a Gram Panchayat may, at any time, be removed from office by a resolution of the Gram Panchayat carried by the majority of the existing members of the Gram Panchayat at a meeting specially convened for the purpose. • Every Gram Panchayat shall hold a meeting at least once a month at such time and at such place within the local limits of the Gram. All questions coming before a Gram Panchayat shall be decided by a majority of votes: Provided that in case of equality of votes, the person presiding shall have a second or casting vote. • A list of the business to be transacted at every meeting of a List of Gram Panchayat except at an adjourned meeting, shall be sent to each business to be transacted member of the Gram Panchayat in the manner prescribed at least seven at a meeting. days before the time fixed. • The Gram Panchayat shall prepare in the prescribed manner Report on the work of a report on the work done during the previous year and the work proposed Gm ra to be done during the following year and submit it to the prescribed Panchayat. authority and to the Panchayat Samiti concerned within the prescribed time. • The duties of a Gram Panchayat shall be to provide within the area under its jurisdiction

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 129/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

for—57 (a)
sanitation, conservancy

84%	MATCHING BLOCK 130/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

and drainage and the prevention of public nuisances; (b) curative and preventive measures in respect of malaria, smallpox, cholera or any other epidemic (

c) supply of drinking water and the cleansing and disinfecting of

79%	MATCHING BLOCK 131/222	SA	MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 ... (D144277369)

the sources of supply and storage of water; (d) the maintenance, repair and construction of public streets

60%	MATCHING BLOCK 132/222	SA	MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 ... (D144277369)

and protection there. (e) the removal of encroachments of public streets or public places. (f) the protection and repair of buildings or other property vested in it (g) the management and care of public tanks, subject to the provisions of the common grazing grounds, burning ghats, and graveyards. (h) the supply of any local information which the District Magistrate, the Zilla Parishad or the Panchayat Samiti within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the Gram Panchayat is situated, may require. (i) organising voluntary labour for community works and works for the

83%	MATCHING BLOCK 138/222	SA	MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 ... (D144277369)

upliftment of its area. (j) the control and administration of the Gram Panchayat Fund. (k) the imposition, assessment and collection of the taxes, rates or fees leviable under the 1973

Act. • For general watch and ward, prevention of crime, protection of life and property and discharging all functions within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a Gram Panchayat every Gram Panchayat shall, unless otherwise directed or other provisions are made by the State Government, maintain under its control the such number of Dafadars and Chowkidars. • Every Gram Panchayat shall, if authorised by the State Government by notification to do so, constitute a Nyaya Panchayat, consisting of five members, to be called Vicharaks, elected by people whose names are included in the electoral roll of the West Bengal Legislative Assembly for the time being in force pertaining to the area comprised in the Gram, other than a person who is a member of any Gram Panchayat, Panchayat Samiti or Zilla Parishad.
Every Nyaya Panchayat shall elect at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed one of its members to be called Pradhan Vicharak to preside over its sittings. The term of office of a 58 member of Nyaya Panchayat shall be four years from the date of the notification. The Secretary to the Gram Panchayat shall act as the Secretary to the Nyaya Panchayat for the purpose of keeping the records of its proceedings and decisions. •

68% MATCHING BLOCK 133/222 W

For every Block the State Government shall constitute a Panchayat Samiti bearing the name of the Block. The members of the samiti will be Pradhans

79% MATCHING BLOCK 134/222 W

of the Gram Panchayats within the Block, members of the House of the People and the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising the Block, such number of persons not exceeding three as may be prescribed to be elected from each Gram within the Block. Every Panchayat Samiti shall, at its first meeting at which a quorum is present, elect, in the prescribed manner, one of its members. to be the Sabhapati and another member to be the SahakariSabhapati of the Panchayat Samiti for a term of 4 years. • A Panchayat Samiti shall have the following Sthayee Samitis, namely: — (i) Artha o Sanstha Sthayee Samiti. (Finance and institutional) (ii) JanasasthyaSthayee, Samiti. (Public health) (iii) PurtaKaryaSthayee Samiti. (Public works department) (iv) Krishi Sech o SamabayaSthayee Samiti. (Agriculture and irrigation) (v) Shiksha Sthayee Samiti. (Education) (vi) KhudraSilpa. (Cottage industry) (vii) Tran o JanakalyanSthayee Samiti. (Rescue and public welfare) (viii) Any such other Sthayee Samiti or Samitis as the Panchayat Samiti may, subject to the approval of the State Government, constitute. • A Panchayat Samiti shall have the power to acquire, hold and dispose of property and to enter into contracts. Provided that in all cases of acquisition or disposal of immovable property, the Panchayat Samiti shall obtain the previous approval of the State Government. •

80% MATCHING BLOCK 135/222 W

79% MATCHING BLOCK 136/222 W

For every district the State Government shall constitute a Zilla Parishad bearing the name of the district.

The Zilla Parishad shall consist of the following members, namely: — (i) Sabhapatis of the Panchayat Samitis within the district. (ii) two persons, one from each of two such constituencies comprised in the Block within the district as may be specified by notification, elected by secret ballot. (iii)

69%	MATCHING BLOCK 137/222	W

members of the House of the People or the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising the district or any part thereof, not being Ministers. (

iv) members of the Council of States not being Ministers, having a place of residence in the district.
59 • The functions of the Zila Parishad include- (i)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 139/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

undertake schemes or adopt measures, including the giving of financial assistance, relating to the development of agriculture, livestock, industries, the co-operative movement, rural credit, water supply, irrigation, public health and sanitation including the establishment of dispensaries and hospitals, communications, primary, secondary and adult education including the welfare of students, social welfare and other objects of general public utility. (ii) undertake the execution of any scheme, the performance of any act, or management of any institution or organisation entrusted to it by the State Government or any other authority, (

78%	MATCHING BLOCK 146/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

iii) manage or maintain any work of public utility or any institution vested in it or under its control and management, (iv) make grants in aid of any school, public library, public institution or public welfare organisation within the district, (v) contribute such sums as may be agreed upon towards the cost of maintenance of any institutions, situated outside the district, which are beneficial to, and habitually used by, the inhabitants of the district. 3.5. CONCLUSION The Indian experiment with Panchayati raj has gone through various trials over the years since independence. The constant feature of Indian villages since the ancient age, it has developed into a democratic mechanism to meet the demands of the rural population. The gram sabha and the gram panchayat together have contributed to ushering in development in the countryside. After the 73rd Amendment to the Indian Constitution, Panchayati Raj System has become a permanent feature of the Indian administration bridging the gap between the rural populace and the administration. The amendment instituted the third tier in the federal system after the union and the states to cater to the populace in a more decentralized manner.

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 140/222	W

91%	MATCHING BLOCK 141/222	W

Village-level democracy became a real prospect for India after 1992 with the 73rd amendment to the Constitution.

This act created new provisions for the creation of village resources and initiate capacity-building measures for developmental initiatives.

68%	MATCHING BLOCK 142/222	W

The 73 rd Amendment Act has legally mandated that resources, responsibility and decision-making be devolved from

the

71% MATCHING BLOCK 143/222 W

central government to the lowest unit of governance in the local rural governance structure. he Gram Sabha or the Village Assembly. A three-tier structure of local self-government was envisaged under this amendment and inspired by the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1978 was made mandatory in all states. The nationwide impact that this created was to be felt in the coming years and continues to be felt. The states that were once reluctant to bring about local rural governments into existence and empower them were forced to initiate reforms based on the 73 rd Amendment. After the 60 enactment of laws based on the Act, almost all states have constituted State Finance Commission to provide requisite economic support to the local government institutions and policies for the development of rural folk. Though major criticisms remain regarding the inability of the Finance Commission to initiate major funding reforms and the fact that their recommendations are being poorly implemented by many state governments, changes have been brought in that have complimented the state's rural policies as well as centre's policies to make decentralized democracy a fully functional feature of the states'.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 144/222 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 145/222 W

A large number of women, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe have been elected to these bodies and a tradition of justice and gender equality in political representation has been widely established because of the introduction of Panchayati raj institutions. West Bengal has distinguished itself from the other states of India by its radical politics related to rural issues especially linked to land, land ownership, exploitation and counter-exploitative measures. The state witnessed peasant uprisings like the Tebhaga and Naxalbari movements which were centred around rural dissatisfaction due to rampant exploitation of the toiling masses. In the 1960's West Bengal proved the most chaotic state in India, with unstable governments formed under political opportunism, discontent with land-related issues, active communist militancy and bouts of President's rule. The elections of 1972 aimed at bringing peace to the state and under the able leadership of Siddhartha Shankar Ray the West Bengal Assembly brought in major changes. The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 was a major move as it aimed to change the status quo in the rural countryside in the state for the first time since independence. Though with good intentions and administrative adept, the act wasn't able to bring in the changes expected of it due to various reasons. The moves brought in to rein in the chaos in the state weren't up to the task and the government became infamous for being heavy-handed in its approach to its own populace. It was only in 1977 when Left Front attained power in Bengal that the resurgence of localised democratic institutions got a new lease of life. Under the new government, new initiatives were introduced and a proper democratic 3-tier system was put in place. The idea of 'Party less Democracy' was rejected and almost all the mainstream political parties contested the panchayat elections along with independents and small local parties as well for the first time in 1978 under the new act. The Left-front Government cruised to a landslide victory in that election throughout the state. In the state of West Bengal, gram panchayats act as major institutions for directing local developmental initiatives. These have been increasingly contested and elected along party lines. Competitive mobilization has become a key feature of local rural governance and therefore has been a dynamic feature of the politics of the state of West Bengal. The discourse of the panchayat system in West Bengal has remained an intriguing domain of research in the field of public administration even after almost seventy years of independence with its tumultuous history of fixing rural local government, the likes of which were incorporated in the Indian constitution to strengthen the 73 rd Amendment. 3.6. SUMMARY

Ouriginal by Turnitin

61 • West Bengal has been the cornerstone of an efficient Panchayati raj system being functional in an Indian state despite facing problems earlier in its goal to provide a working mechanism for local rural governance. • Notwithstanding the tumultuous era of the 1960s, the 1970s was the decade when local rural governance took root in the state with the Panchayat Acts of 1973 and 1978. The introduction of the act made government policies within the reach of the people at rural areas with representation from their own people made through direct democracy at the gram level. • Under the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1973, a number of new institutions were brought to the local governance structure such gram panchayat, gram samiti, nyaya panchayat, sthayee samitis and the zila parishad. • The 1973 and 1978 Acts provided the basic structure to the 1992 73 rd Amendment to bring a holistic local rural government structure all over the country. This provided more accessibility, accountability and empowerment mechanisms to the people in rural areas to initiate local development. 3.7. KEYWORDS 1. Demilitarize- To demilitarize is to remove all armed forces from an area be it legal forces or illegal ones, it also means removing instability from the area and making it governable. 2. Panchayati Raj- the system of rural governance that exists in India where local rural governance is centred around people's demands and institutions to make it more accessible to the peripheral areas of the country. This system exists as the 3 rd tier of governance in India established under the 73 rd Amendment Act of the Indian Constitution. 3. Party-less democracy- a system of political competition where people engage as independent candidates instead of being members or representatives of a party. This system is helpful in local governance areas to lessen political conflict. 4. Cantonments- A cantonment is either a building or an area where soldiers live. (in South Asia) a part of a town that is used for military purposes, especially one that was originally developed by the British. Places involved in military activity. 5. Finance Commission-The Finance Commissions are commissions that are periodically constituted by the President of India under Article 280 of the Indian Constitution to define the financial relations between the central government of India and the individual state governments. 3.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • Which areas were exempted from the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1973?

62 • State the reasons behind instability in West Bengal in the 1960s? • Give the political background for the 1972 elections in West Bengal? Medium questions • Mention the units created under the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1973 for Panchayati raj in West Bengal? • What changes came in 1977 to West Bengal politics that empowered local rural institutions in the state? • The 1973 Panchayat Act introduced a new set of office bearers in the Panchayati system. Mention the top two officials of every institution, their terms and functions? Long questions • Explain the main features of the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1973? • How does the Panchayati raj system seeks to empower the people at the lowest strata of the system? • Decentralisation of administration has enhanced the accessibility of government schemes to the people in the countryside. Explain in perspective with the West Bengal Panchayati Act of 1973. 3.9. REFERENCES

Datta. Prabhat (2001) "Panchayats, Rural Development and Local Autonomy: The west Bengal Experience", Dasgupta and co Pvt ltd, Kolkata. Chakraborty. Satyabrata, Mukhopadhyay. Apurba and Mukhopadhyay. Alok, (2012) (ed) "Gram Panchayats in West Bengal; Institutional Capabilities and Developmental Interventions". Vol-1 Mittal Publications. Webster. Neil (1992) "Panchayati Raj and Decentralized Planning in West Bengal", K.P. Bagchi. Kolkata. Ministry of Law (1973) "The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973" Bengal Gazette, Kolkata in https://wbxpress.com/west-bengal-panchayat-act-1973/

63 UNIT 4 GRAM SAMSAD STRUCTURE 4.1. Learning Objectives 4.2. Introduction 4.3. Gram samsad 4.4. Features of gram samsad 4.5. Conclusion 4.6. Summary 4.7. Key words 4.8. Model questions 4.9. References 4.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES In this unit, you will learn about- • How the panchayat system in West Bengal laid the groundwork for Panchayati raj institutions in the country. • The role and functions of the Gram sansad in the local rural governance structure. • The activities that are undertaken by the gram sansad for village development. • The importance of local rural institutions in developing the lives of the people in the Indian countryside. 4.2. INTRODUCTION

64 In the Indian federal structure, governance isn't what is usually referred to as in western countries. The scientific approach associated with the western models of governance isn't reflected in the Indian scenario. The Indian model is more subjective and people-oriented and thus differentiated vastly over the states both in policy formulation and policy implementation. The institutional nature of governance in India is determined according to the realities of the states in which the institutions function and seek to serve the people's aspirations. Public administration in India is a decentralized system where every stratum of the society is to be provided with an ample number of opportunities for its development with focused attention on the differentiated needs of the people based on different interconnected factors. The sheer enormity of the territory combined with the 2 nd largest population on earth with diversities unparalleled in comparison makes the situation in the country very complex. The institutions that serve the cause of the people both at the state and the centre are provided with requisite autonomy for efficient functioning and at the same time are grounded in interdependencies with other institutions as well. Most theorists refer to India as a quasi-federal state. India as a state is a country where there is a separation of powers between the constitutive units and the central government mandated by the Indian constitution. The system though inclined slightly towards the union government has been successful in providing opportunities to the states in charting an independent course in search of development. In this process, the union government has boldly supported the states in all manners possible. Despite this, there have been problems in striking a balance between governance and development. The early years of independence were an era of experimentation with different models of development for the villages. Two committees were assigned the task of rejuvenating the Panchayati system but due to many problems, both were rendered ineffective. It was only in 1992 with the Constitution incorporating the Seventy-third Amendment Act, 1992 that conferred on the panchayats in the rural areas the recognition of the institution of self-government where we see structural changes brought in as institutional laws to revamp local governance permanently. After laws were drawn up at the union level the then central government in coordination with the State Governments were advised to make necessary laws for endowing the panchayats with appropriate powers, authority and responsibilities. These powers and responsibilities based on constitutional authority were provided under Article 243G of the Constitution. The provisions incorporated in Article 243G along with the matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule reflect the change in approach in Indian administration. Under the aforementioned article, a shift was incorporated in public governance. The source of power both political and economic was transferred from the National capital or the State headquarters to the level where people needed a direct connection with the administrative mechanism. This was in response to the crisis of governance which was widespread in the country. The associated apathy and insensitivity of the administrative units toward the lower levels of governance were to be quelled with the introduction of decentralised governance.

65 The Seventy-Third Amendment provided hope to all the villages of the country that they would be brought in to be judges and executors of their development and in reality, they would be responsible for bringing in a positive change in their lives by means of political and economic empowerment. It is also a fact that the changes brought in by the amendment didn't have the immediate effects that were expected. The years of dormancy required a radical upheaval which was not provided with the amendment. The constitutional amendment was successful in providing certain bare minimums required for political upliftment such as the assured existence of the panchayat institutions, regular election to the panchayat bodies, and obligatory reservation of seats for the people from the scheduled castes, scheduled tribes and women. But in terms of real progress towards decentralised governance, the road has been more patchy than smooth. The reasons behind this are many but if all the problems can be brought down to one central flaw, then it can be attributed to inadequate devolution in respect of funds, functions and functionaries. West Bengal as a state has been an exception to this trend among all the Indian states. Being an agriculturally dominant state, the governments of 1972 and 1977 had taken the step to bring in major changes to empower the countryside with consecutive West Bengal Panchayat Acts of 1973 and 1978. The goal of these acts was to establish a strong local rural government in the villages that would answer the needs of the people. The gram panchayat, gram sabha, Nyaya panchayat, gram sansad, sthayee committees, Zila parishad and later the gram unnayan samitis were to become the cornerstone of a successful local governance model in the state. 4.3. GRAM SAMSAD With the passage of the Seventy-Third Amendment Act, of 1992, the panchayats in rural areas were conceived as institutions for local governance. Twenty-nine subjects listed under the Eleventh Schedule are earmarked by the Constitution for their act. Governance at the local level becomes a critical issue for people associated with the rural economy. This becomes even more crucial to the states that are agriculture dependent with a considerable population. The state of West Bengal in a majoritarian manner is agriculture-oriented as being geographically located at the end of the fertile Ganga valley. The experiences in West Bengal in this respect are mixed. Though implemented with much fanfare, the early results weren't as expected. Due to newer structures being implemented, it took time to get acclimatized into the system a consequence, adequate services couldn't be extended to the common people by the panchayats at different levels. This was a governance crisis. With time though the system improved. A major reason behind this was also the fact that the 1978 Act was passed by the Left Front government which stayed in power for 34 years. This fact singlehandedly allowed the government to be at the helm of affairs in relation to panchayat reforms. Over the span of many years, the government in West Bengal initiated several reforms over its entire tenure. The 1978 Act not only initiated institutional reforms but brought in 66 political changes as well. Along with new institutions new powers were provided to the local institutions as well. New areas were brought under the jurisdiction of the village administration. With newer areas, new responsibilities were provided to the administration as well. The state was provided with newer laws to look into the administrative empowerment of the local rural institutions. 4.4. FEATURES OF GRAM SAMSAD The gram sabha and the gram samsad exist cumulatively as institutions that comprise the whole of the village populace who are eligible voters. The functions though overlapping there are certain similarities as well as differences between the sabha and the samsad as per the laws enacted in West Bengal for the Panchayati system. The salient features of the gram samsad include- • For people's participation, the State Government incorporated the provisions of meetings of gram sansad and gram sabha respectively through sections 16A and 16B of the West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973. •

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 148/222	SA	9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical S ... (D128332325)

Gram Sabha means a body consisting of persons registered in the electoral rolls pertaining to a

Gram whereas the Gram Sansad means a body consisting of persons registered at any time in the electoral rolls pertaining to

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 147/222	W

a constituency of a Gram Panchayat delimited for the purpose of last preceding general election to the Gram Panchayat. • Every Gram Panchayat is expected to hold within the local limits of the Gram an annual and a half-yearly meeting for each Gram Sansad. As the gram sansad consists of all electors of a gram panchayat constituency, it is obligatory on the part of the gram panchayats to convene meetings of gram sansad twice a year under their respective jurisdiction - one in the month of May and another. Though in situations of emergency, the state government can recommend or order an extraordinary session. • Subsection 6 of section 1 6A of the West Bengal Panchayat Act 1973 clearly lays down that a gram sansad shall guide and advise the gram panchayat with regard to the schemes for economic development and social justice undertaken or proposed to be undertaken in its area and identify or lay down principles for the identification of the schemes which are required to be taken on priority basis for. economic development of the village. These include- A. Identifying and laying down principles for the identification of, the schemes which are required to be taken on a priority basis for the economic development of the village. B. Identifying and laying down principles for the identification of, the beneficiaries of various poverty alleviation programmes. C. The Gram samsad coordinates directly with the gram sabha and the panchayat regarding programmes related to immunization of children, maternal care, contraceptives and menstrual care as well. The focus on women-centric development has been widely adopted in the framework of Panchayati raj since the advent of the 21 st century.

67 D. Emergency medical situations that require an immediate response is dealt by the samsad in their emergency meetings. This was experienced during the 2020 Covid -19 pandemic when villages were comparatively less affected and were prompt in their response to medical care as local rural institutions were more adept in dealing with the problems in a controlled and coordinated manner. E. Constitute a Gram Unnayan Samiti with a number of functional committees as may be required, in such manner as may be prescribed, having jurisdiction over the area of the Gram Sansad for ensuring active participation of the people in the implementation, maintenance and equitable distribution of benefits. F. Mobilise mass participation in community welfare programmes and programmes for adult education, family welfare and child welfare. G. Promote solidarity and harmony among all sections of the people irrespective of religion, faith, caste, creed or race. In a state with various religions and castes communal and caste based harmony is to be cherished as an ideal which will only enhance people's participation in the local governance of the villages. • Every resolution adopted in a meeting of a Gram Sansad is to be duly considered by the Gram Panchayat in its meeting and the decisions and actions taken by the Gram Panchayat forming a part of the report under section 18 for the following year. • A Gram Panchayat has the power to omit or refuse to act upon any recommendations of a Gram Sansad relating to the prioritization of any list of beneficiaries or scheme or programme so far as it relates to the area of the Gram Sansad. • The Gram Sansad has the power to review the performance of the members of the Gram Unnayan Samiti every year in its annual meeting and may renew the membership of the existing members or replace all or any of the members. • The Gram Sansad may elect the members by a simple majority determined by raising of hands or by division. The result of the election shall be recorded in a register by the presiding officer appointed by the Gram Panchayat. The gram samsad has in essence been a body that acts as the mediator, facilitator and improviser of policies while at the same time, it acts as a bridge between the gram panchayat and the gram sabha. It takes up works of local importance that are related to the daily lives of the people of the gram. The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 was revamped in 1978 and 2004 to bring in various changes empowering the grams with more political power as well as management of economic resources. The Bengal model of panchayat has been acclaimed widely all over the country. The state government by providing more autonomy to the village institutions have empowered the structures to function in a manner conducive to the development of the people. The state finance commission has also played a crucial role in the economic strengthening of the Panchayati system. There have been more

68 decentralisation in West Bengal with the increase in the number of districts to bring in more force to lower-level institutions in participating in public welfare. The gram samsad has been one of the pioneering institutions to become a stakeholder in village administration and development. 4.5. CONCLUSION India in the year 2022 is a global powerhouse. As the foremost nation amongst all developing nations India holds a special position because of its achievements not only from the global perspective but also because of a stable internal structure. The credit for this stability goes to the entire structure that has for years answered the needs of the people in a manner that is cohesive with the democratic ethos shared by the founding fathers of the nation. Despite facing various problems India is on course to become a global leader in the coming years. A big contribution to this comes from the various panchayats, gram sabhas, and gram samsads that exist all over the country. These are bridging the gap between the administration core in the cities with the people in need of government help at the periphery. West Bengal for years has had a dynamic political culture all over the state. Political participation has been quite high in the state irrespective of elections which are considered the basic benchmark to calculate political participation. This phenomenon is mainly attributed to the democratic culture brought in by the Panchayati system which has been the most fervent form of political interaction for people to indulge in grassroots politics. The active participation by various political parties has strengthened the political culture in the state, especially in the rural areas where politics has become the major weapon to achieve power which can then be utilised to initiate development policies for the people. The gram samsad along with the gram sabha and panchayats have been successful in providing this mechanism to the people in order to become participants in their own governance. The ideal of self-governance based on decentralised power relations where the state is only the helping hand for the local institutions instead of being a controlling arm has created newer opportunities for the people to not only become aware of their demands and needs but has empowered them to function and be participants in matters that were once kept out of their purview by higher authorities. No system is foolproof and without problems. Public administration is an ever-rectifying system where the unit where the constitutive units learn as they implement public policies for the betterment of the people in a feedback loop. The panchayat system in India has been taking a structured way forward since the introduction of the 73 rd amendment to help the cause of the people in the countryside. Problems such as financial inadequacy, corruption, political violence, stagnation, defective policy-making as well as implementation and others remain but the system has been able to cater to the needs of the people in a better manner than before and its attempts at further rejuvenation of the same remain on course. 4.6. SUMMARY

69 • Indian local governance has been revitalised by the introduction of the 73 rd Amendment in the year of 1992. Most states post-1992 introduced major reforms to establish Panchayati raj institutions in order to implement the requisite laws. • West Bengal being an agriculturally dominant state required rural reforms the most. The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 and the West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1978 were introduced to bring in to establish decentralized democratic institutions in the countryside. • The various institutions introduced under the abovementioned laws were gram panchayat, gram sabha, gram samsad, Nyaya panchayat, Zila parishad, and gram unnayan samiti. The gram samsad became a crucial institution in providing developmental initiatives to the people of the gram. It acted as a potent link between the gram panchayat and the gram sabha. • The villages in the state of West Bengal have progressed in a great way due to the institutions created to formalise the Panchayati raj system. Public welfare has reached the doorstep of the rural countryside due to the local rural institutions. Issues such as food distribution, healthcare facilities, road management, public resources, and land redistribution have been greatly enhanced due to the gram-centric institutions. 4.7. KEYWORDS 1. Corruption- Any form of a fraudulent act of cheating, or illegal action taken by someone in power or in a position of power to benefit themselves is called corruption. 2. Stagnation- When due to certain reasons public policies aren't implemented in a manner conducive to the goals of public administration leading to disruption of public good, the situation is called stagnation. 3. Policymaking- The process of formulating schemes, programmes and plans to solve matters related to the functioning of a state is called policymaking. 4. Feedback loop- feedback loop is the part of a system in which some portion (or all) of the system's output is used as input for future operations. 5. Poverty alleviation programmes- Poverty Alleviation Programmes aim to reduce the rate of poverty in the country by providing proper access to food, monetary help, and basic essentials to households and families belonging to the below-the-poverty line. 4.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • Under which article of the Indian constitution were laws drawn up to implement the amendments proposed under the 73 rd Amendment Act? • Mention any two functions of the Gram samsad related to the grassroots development of people's health?

70 • Name the institutions created under the various acts by the West Bengal governments of 1972 and 1977? Medium questions • What is the difference between the Gram sabha and the Gram samsad? • What is the role of the state government in the economic empowerment of the village administration? • Indian administration has reached the doorstep of its farthest contributor through the 73 rd amendment. Write a short note. Long questions • Explain the structure of Gram samsad in detail? • In what ways have the issues of rural people been solved under the institutions of Panchayati raj in India? • What are the various issues that come under the purview of the gram samsad? Explain detail 4.9. REFERENCES Bandyopadhyay, S. (2013). "

97% MATCHING BLOCK 152/222 SA Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

PARTY, PANCHAYAT AND GRASSROOT DEMOCRACY: A STUDY OF POST-19777 PERIOD IN WEST BENGAL". The Indian Journal of Political Science, 74(2), 323–340.

Ghosh, D. K. (2008). "GOVERNANCE AT LOCAL LEVEL: THE CASE OF PANCHAYATS IN WEST BENGAL". The Indian Journal of Political Science, 69(1), 71–88. http://www.jstor.org/stable/41856393 Government of India, (1994), "Power and Functions of Panchayati Raj Institutions: A Framework, Ministry of Rural Development", Government of India, New Delhi. Ministry of Law (1973) "The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973" Bengal Gazette, Kolkata in https://wbxpress.com/west-bengal-panchayat-act-1973/ Poromesh Acharya. (1993). "Panchayats and Left Politics in West Bengal". Economic and Political Weekly, 28(22), 1080–1082.
71 UNIT 5 GRAM SABHA STRUCTURE 5.1. Learning Objectives 5.2. Introduction 5.3. Gram sabha 5.4. Powers of gram sabha 5.5. Conclusion 5.6. Summary 5.7. Key words 5.8.
Model questions 5.9. References 5.1.

70% MATCHING BLOCK 149/222 W

LEARNING OBJECTIVES After studying this unit, you should be able to • Explain and understand the constitutional significance of the role played by the Gram Sabha. • Analyse the functioning of Gram Sabhas in Indian villages. • Understand the role Gram Sabhas plays in decentralised development.

72 • Gram sabhas' powers in empowering the rural population 5.2. INTRODUCTION Democracy has come a long way from being called the worst form of government by Aristotle to being the benchmark of good governance in the modern day. What democracy stands for today can be brought down to Abraham Lincoln's famous phrase 'government for the people, by the people and of the people'. As a system of rule, it is now the most followed method all around the globe. Countries today are either democracy of some form or the other aspiring for the same. The centrality of the concept is being responsive to people at all levels without any form of discrimination. India is the largest democracy in the world and with its huge population is responsible for upholding its democratic ideal in the widest sense possible. This is reflected in the process where the populace after every 5 years votes for the formation of the government at the State or the Centre. To address the huge and diverse population of India only 2 levels of government are not enough. To reach people at the lower levels present in rural areas a third tier was added in 1992 with the 73 rd and 74 th amendments to the constitution. This in reality brought more accountability, efficiency and dynamism to local governance and enables the people so they could be closely associated with the decision- making process at the grassroots level. This system is called the Panchayati raj system and makes the core of the decentralised democratic governance mechanism in the country. The Indian village in most languages is called a gram. The Gram can be used to denote ant rural cluster of people cohabiting together. While focussing on the Indian Constitution, it can be ascertained that the gram has been conceptualised as a self-sufficient entity of rural life in a social- political as well as an economic relationship. The institution that has been given the responsibility to administer these aspects has traditionally been called a panchayat. The panchayat in earlier times was a council of elderly propertied men making decisions about the village and its members. Though certain remnants of this system can be found in many areas, the modern-day panchayat after the 73 rd Amendment has become an elected, democratic entity. The panchayat though is the institution that looks after the functioning of the village, it is only effective with the inclusion of the populace over which it governs. The populace is therefore conceptualised as the Gram Sabha. The Gram Sabha comprises all adult citizens residing in a village. The Constitution gives specific importance to this institution as it in its entirety (in any and every village) embodies the fullest expression of true grassroots-based decentralized democracy. As the basic unit of direct democracy, a Gram Sabha not only elects the Gram Panchayat but also monitors its actions. The Indian experiment with local governance in rural areas has been considered a success beyond expectations in answering to the requirements and aspirations of the people and the major contribution to this success has been the efficiency with which gram sabhas have helped panchayats in creating people-oriented mechanisms for the development of the population of the village. As the only
73 institution with direct democracy in India, the Gram sabha has been one of the standout performers in terms of public institutions. Various states through their laws and policies have further empowered Gram Sabhas to take on some administrative functions as well. Further, the Panchayats (Extension to Scheduled Areas) Act (PESA) confers significantly greater powers on Gram Sabhas in Scheduled Areas and made them more efficient in dealing with matters of localised nature. This in a way has lessened the burden of the district and state administration in dealing with the issues of villages and empowers the local people to actively deal with problems that are intrinsically related to them. Gram sabha with the panchayat has become the centrepiece of rural governance in India making development accessible to the people at the lowest levels and empowering democratic ethos and maintaining political stability. 5.3. GRAM SABHA Though Indian democracy is centred around representative democratic formulations favouring a parliamentary superiority both at the states and the centre, the only form of direct democracy present in the country is existing in the Gram Sabha which is the basic unit of direct democracy present in the villages. The 73 rd constitutional amendment was introduced to provide people with a choice in their governance at the rural level and the target was to reach the maximum number of people and create a cumulative decision-making body that would be responsible for cohesive decision-making as well as monitoring various people-centric projects at the village level. Gram sabha as an institution plays a very important as it gives an opportunity to the people to have an opinion in the decision-making process of the village. It empowers each and every voter of the Gram Panchayat to take part in decision-making, planning and development of the gram and help in maximizing public participation in local governance. Constitutionally the Gram Sabha is a mandated body that is to be kept in synergy with all other institutions in rural local governance. Following constitutional mandates, the following can be said to be defining characteristics of Gram Sabha- • Article 243(b) Gram Sabha can be defined as a body of persons registered in the electoral rolls relating to a village comprised within the area of panchayat at the village level. Article 243A states that a Gram Sabha may exercise such powers and perform such functions at the village level as the legislature of the State may by law provide. •

63% MATCHING BLOCK 150/222 W

Article 243(9)
defines 'village' to mean

92% MATCHING BLOCK 151/222 W

a village specified by the Governor by public notification to be a village for the purposes of Part IX and includes a group of villages so specified.

This definition permits the Governor to declare any populated rural area as a village. • The demarcation of a village for the purposes of giving effect to Part IX of the Constitution may come in conflict with the sociological/anthropological identities that the people of the 74 area may think of or identify as 'village'. Therefore, the village in terms of gram sabha is a political identity with geographic demarcation rather than a social one. The effective constitution of a Gram Sabha will mainly depend on the definition of a 'village' adopted in various state legislatures. Various states have demarcated villages as a political units based on revenue, geographical extent and zones of interest on economic terms, whereas others have taken more sociological or communitarian demarcation by denoting villages based on similar clusters, historical relatability, and communitarian linkages. This caused many problems in the distribution of funds, the survey of areas and electoral rolls during elections. It was resolved when the Supreme Court, in State of U.P. vs Pradhan Kshetra Samiti, held that among other things, the process of defining a 'village' must comply with the following conditions: i) the village has to be a habitat according to the anthropological concept; ii) the village for the purposes of the Panchayat can be specified only in accordance with the aspirations and wishes of the inhabitants of the village as conveyed to the Governor who is obliged to notify it without the involvement of the State Government; and iii) the Governor has to act independently of the State Government in the matter of specification of a 'village'. As regards the Gram Sabha, the Court held that although the definition of Gram Sabha refers to a body of persons registered in the electoral rolls and the State Government has no power to establish or notify a Gram Sabha, making it a population-based entity rather than an institution defined and moulded by the state government. The Supreme Court reasserted the view of the 73rd amendment that the Gram Sabha is a constitutional entity based on the geographical and sociological entity of a 'village', and it is not within the powers of the State Government to identify or notify a 'village' for administrative purposes. The Gram sabha, therefore, is constitutionally mandated to be comprised of people that have an anthropological relatability with the area and its change is not to be determined by the state government making it immune to political influence.
5.4. POWERS OF GRAM SABHA No institution can function without de jure powers provided to it by a competent authority. Indian sovereignty allows all institutions with a constitutional mandate to function in a manner that helps the institution to dispose of its responsibilities in a judicious manner. Rural local government institutions being the lowest level of functionary in a state require specific power distribution that helps them maintain autonomy in the deployment of the requisite resources for the development of the village. The powers of a gram sabha as specified in the PESA Act, 1996 can be divided into the following four categories:

75 1)Mandatory powers 2) Powers to be consulted 3) Recommendatory powers 4) Power to be devolved by the State Government The details of these powers are: 1) Mandatory powers: Certain powers are mandatory in nature for the Gram sabha to have because without them their existence and functionality would be rendered close to dormancy. The mandatory powers assigned to the Gram Sabha in this category are three-fold: a) Gram sabha has the power to approve the plans, programmes and projects for the social and economic development of the village community. The village panchayat in no way can take the lead in the implementation of projects without it being approved by the gram sabha. b) Power to identify beneficiaries of poverty alleviation programmes such as food distribution programmes, MGNREGA etc. c) Power to give certification of the utilization of funds by the panchayats for the above programmes is also held by the gram sabha. The implementation of projects for the social and economic development of tribal communities is therefore done in accordance with the gram Sabha. 2) Powers to be consulted: Being the institution to look after rural areas, the land becomes a very important factor here, especially in matters related to land acquisition. The PESA act provides Gram sabhas to have consultative powers in matters related to land acquisition for governmental projects. Any matter related to the acquisition of land in the Scheduled Areas by the authorities concerned for the development of projects is to be consulted with the Gram sabha first and then only necessary proceedings are done. The secondary issues related to land such as the process of resettling or rehabilitating persons (before the acquisition is done) affected by such projects in Scheduled Areas are also under the purview of gram panchayat through the gram sabha. 3) Recommendatory powers: natural resources are most of the time found in areas that are not urban in nature and thus require recommendation-based permission to extract. When such resources are found in rural areas, it is the gram sabha that becomes the recommendatory body without which exploration in the area isn't permitted as the gram sabha is the body that will in future in directly or indirectly affected by the exploration process and subsequent developments. Prior recommendations are thus compulsory from the gram sabha. The matters that are usually associated with such powers are the following- • for grant of prospecting licence or mining lease for minor minerals in the Scheduled Areas. 76 •

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 153/222	SA	R. THENDRALARASI - LAL1915, DISSERTATION.pdf (D110608635)

for

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 156/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

grant of concession for the exploitation of minor minerals by auctions. 4) Powers to be devolved by the State Government: the local rural bodies function under the district administration which makes up the top tier of decentralized governance but in the macro narrative of Indian administration, the local bodies are under the jurisdiction of the respective State governments. The Act, clearly specifies that State Governments will endow

84%	MATCHING BLOCK 154/222	W

panchayats in the Scheduled Areas with such powers and authorities as considered necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-governance. The gram sabha is therefore given powers that will be helpful in regulating certain facets of village life according to the wishes of the populace there. These powers vary from village to village and even state to state. The gram sabha therefore in actuality has in its domain the power to enforce a prohibition on or regulate the sale of certain goods or products. The gram sabha with the help of the panchayat can have ownership over minor forest produce to be provided for the people of the village residing in nearby areas from where the product has been collected. In addition to that, the gram sabha prevents the alienation of land and takes appropriate action to restore any unlawfully alienated land of scheduled tribes. The village economy is also dominated by the markets and exchanges of various kinds that function in and around the areas. The gram sabha has the power to exercise control over institutions and functionaries in the social sector and plans such as tribal sub-plans, to manage village markets, and to exercise control over money lending. The state government also provides powers to the gram sabha to have jurisdiction of what is called village commons. These commons include areas such as grazing land, village ponds for communal purposes and wells. These resources are put under the jurisdiction of the gram sabha for regulation and proper utilization. Gandhi had once said that the Indian soul resides in its villages, village empowerment has therefore been a crucial aspect of the Indian development story. This has been possible by empowering the institutions that make the villages join the general development trend, village panchayats under the ambit of gram sabhas have been crucial in achieving this. 5.5. CONCLUSION No country can develop with an exclusivist model of development. India is a country with a huge population, a culturally diverse population, regional variations of gigantic proportion and varied socio-economic realities. Indian experimentation with its local governance has been long but its final form came only with the 73 rd amendment in 1992 that created the 3-tier Panchayati raj system in all the states. The gram sabha became a unique institution in this system providing a system of direct democracy which is unparalleled in Indian institutions, here the people are part of their decision- making process, and their opinions determine their developmental programmes. The people that live in Indian villages have been brought to the mainstream administration with the help of these institutions that were created with the abovementioned amendment. The gram sabha has thus been a pioneering institution that has brought power to the periphery. This power is exemplified in socio-77 political and economic ways which encompass not only resources and products but values and responsibilities as well. 5.6. SUMMARY • The Gram Sabha comprises the cumulative population residing in a village with all adults being its members. It is the sole institution that maintains the ideal of direct democracy in its functioning in India. • The Gram sabha elects the gram panchayat which in a way is the monitoring body of the village and functions as the executive of the panchayat. The Panchayati raj system has been able to meet the demands of the people of the villages and realize the aspirations mainly due to the adeptness of the gram sabha. • The constitution post-1992 has provided legal status to local government institutions such as the panchayats, gram sabhas and Zila parishads. This has provided them with powers that help them maintain stability in the area and induce developmental programmes launched by the state and union governments in areas of concern such as food distribution, allocation of resources, and recommendations for improving public policy. • The Panchayats (Extension to Scheduled Areas) Act (PESA) confers significantly greater powers on Gram Sabhas in Scheduled Areas to take on issues related to the day-to-day living of the people in these areas such as water, sanitation, markets, land and other resources. • Decentralized governance has been uplifted in an unprecedented manner due to local institutions functioning in a manner that is in synergy with government policies and with people's aspirations as well. 5.7. KEYWORDS 1. Cumulative- the resultant of any activity by incorporating all data up to the present is a cumulative resultant. 2. Synergy- the interaction or cooperation of two or more organizations, substances, or other agents to produce a combined effect greater than the sum of their separate effects. 3. Village commons- The commons are the cultural and natural resources accessible to all members of a village, including natural materials such as grounds, ponds, wells, roads etc. These resources are held in common even when owned privately or publicly 4. Rehabilitation- Rehabilitation is defined as a set of measures taken to properly remove/displace a person from a certain place and provide a replacement without harming his/her livelihood or material resources to ensure even after the process the person's normal life isn't hindered.

61% MATCHING BLOCK 155/222 W

78 5. MGNREGA- The Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment. Guarantee Act whose goal is to provide at least 100 days of guaranteed wage

80% MATCHING BLOCK 157/222 SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

employment in a financial year to every rural household whose adult members volunteer to do unskilled manual work. 6.

Direct democracy- Direct democracy or pure democracy is a form of democracy in which the electorate decides on policy initiatives without elected representatives as proxies. This differs from the majority of currently established democracies, which are representative democracies. 5.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • What is meant by village commons and why they are important in rural areas? • What is the role of the Governor of a state in matters related to gram sabha? • Write about the articles that provide mandates to gram sabhas and their features? Medium questions • Panchayats (Extension to Scheduled Areas) Act (PESA) provide more powers to the gram sabhas? • Discuss how the 73 rd amendment changed the face of the Panchayati raj in India? • Decentralization of administration has been beneficial to villages. Explain? Long questions • Write in detail the powers of gram Sabha? • What according to the Supreme Court of India defines a village? • Explain how gram sabha has been a unique institution in providing development to the villages in India? 5.9. REFERENCES Aslam, M. & Singh, R.P., (2001), "Evolution of Panchayati Raj and the Constitution" (73rd Amendment) Act, 1992, IGNOU project material, New Delhi. Mandal, A. (2012). Grassroots Governance: Gram Sabha in West Bengal. Rawat Publications. National Institute of Rural Development, (1995), "

87% MATCHING BLOCK 159/222 SA Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

Panchayati Raj Institutions in India: An Appraisal", National Institute of Rural Development,

Hyderabad. Oomen, M. A., (1995), "Panchayati Raj Development Report", Institute of Social Sciences, New Delhi.
79 BLOCK III PANCHAYATI RAJ INSTITUTION: POWERS AND FUNCTIONS STRUCTURE 1.1 OBJECTIVES 1.2 INTRODUCTION 1.3EFFECTIVENESS OF THE PANCHAYATI RAAJ SYSTEM DURING 1954 TO 1992 BEFORE PASSING THE 73 rd AMMENDMENT ACT 1.4 POWER AUTHORITY AND RESPONSIBILITY OF PANCHAYAT 1.5 GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE GRAM PANCHAYATS 1.6 POWERS TO MAKE GENERAL ORDER 1.7 PANCHAYAT SAMITI 1.8 Zila Parishad 1.9 FINANCES 1.10 District Planning Committee 1.11 CONCLUSION 1.12 SUMMARY 1.13 KEYWORDS 1.14 MODEL QUESTIONS (Short question-answer type) 1.15 REFERENCES
80 1.1 OBJECTIVES • It teaches people the first lesson of democracy • It brings political awareness in rural people • People are able to solve their problem through mutual cooperation • It helps the people to directly participate in decision making • It helps in the decentralization of power. • It helps people to understand the power and functions of different level of Panchayati Raj system. • It helps people to have knowledge regarding the financial structure of Panchayati Raj System. • It helps to know the effective use of the Panchayati infrastructure to combat the different crisis situation (Ex - natural calamity) 1.2 INTRODUCTION Since independence India's main aim was an all-round development of the countrywith men thrust on agriculture, industry, communication, education, and allied sectors.But soon it became evident that India could not prosper keeping its rural areas in the dark.With this view efforts were made to strengthen people's participation in the Indian polity.Keeping this in mind Panchayati Raj system came into vogue to ensure people's active participationin the nation building process from the grass root level itself, so that people can feelthemselves to be a part of the nation. By taking the help of the system the authority wantedto co-ordinate among the diversified interests of the people right from thegrass root level. This way the authority could also legitimise themselves.

52% MATCHING BLOCK 158/222 W

Article 40 of the Directive Principles of State Policy of the Indian Constitution gives directionto the state "to organise village panchayats

as units of self -government". With this objectiveand as a part of the planning process the Community Development (CD) program was initiatedin the country on December 2nd,1952. All aspects of rural development were covered in this program to be carried out with the help of village panchayats and public participation. It was intended to exploit the vast resources in the countryside to promote scientific method in the agriculture, cottage and small-scale industries, in order to create job facilities and to induce the spirit of self-help within the in rural population, with the intention of social change through cooperation. India's Panchayati Raj system is based on the principle of decentralization and the devolusion of power. According to World Bank, authority and responsibility of functions ought to be decentralised from the central government up to local government to ensure efficiency, accountability and empowerment. World Bank justifies decentralization as • It gives greater voice and choice to citizen to influence decisions that affect their lives, • It allows local governments to respond dynamically to communities.
81 • It results in allocative efficiency by matching of local needs and preferences with patterns of local public expenditure (assumes substantial fiscal autonomy.)

88%	MATCHING BLOCK 160/222	SA	Chapter 2.docx (D141430686)

The Constitution of India in Article 40 enshrines, " the state shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such power and authorities as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government".

In order to implement this program several committees were constituted by the Government of India. Now CDP failed to work for a number of factors. So a committee was established headed by Balwant Rai Mehta in 1957 to judge the community development initiative This Committee suggestedfor
the establishment of a democratic centralised local government that would be known as the

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 163/222	SA	resubmit_uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D154554347)

Panchayati Raj, with the aim to settle the local problems locally and to make the people politically conscious.

It recommended for

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 161/222	W

three tier Panchayati Raj system (Gram Panchayat, Panchayati Samiti and Zila Parishad) directly elected representative in

85%	MATCHING BLOCK 162/222	W

the Gram panchayat and indirectly elected representatives to form Panchayat Samiti and Zila Parishad entrusted with the function of planning and development. Here Zila Parishad would be the advisory, supervisory body, whereas Panchayat Samiti would act as the executive body and District Collector would function as the chairman of the Zila Parishad. Ashok Mehta Committeewas formed in 1977 to boost of the declining Panchayati Raj system with its recommendation. The Committee suggested for two tier system in replacement of three

56%	MATCHING BLOCK 173/222	SA	Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx (D141689289)

tier system with Zila Parishad at the district level and Mondal Panchayatas a cluster of groups of villages with a combined population of 15000 to 20000 people who would enjoy compulsory taxation powers to mobilize their own funds. GVK Rao committee in the year 1985, came with the suggestion that Zila Parishad would supervise and manage the development program at the district level with the sole responsibility to materialise the scheme of Democratic decentralisation. They also suggested for the post of District Development Commissioner who would act as the chief executive officer of the Zila Parishad and elections

75% MATCHING BLOCK 164/222 W

of the Panchayati Raj system to be held in a regular manner. LM Singhvi committee was created in the year 1986 they were having the following main suggestions • Reorganization of village to make the gram panchayat more effective • Arrangement of necessary funds for them to function properly. All the above committees were of the view to constitute Panchayat as the effective means of development activities in the grass root level with the voluntary participation of the village people to fulfil the goal of real participatory democracy.
82

79% MATCHING BLOCK 165/222 W

Currently, the Panchayati Raj system is present in all states barring Nagaland, Meghalaya and Mizoram and in all Union Territories except Delhi.

Besides them some other areas of India are not having Panchayati Raj system - Manipur with district Council, Darjeeling district of West Bengal with Darjeeling Gorkha Hill Council and tribal and schedule areas in the state are not having Panchayati Raj system. April 24 th is celebrated as the National Panchayati Raj day as in this day political power was decentralized up to village level in India. 73 rd Constitutional Amendment Act 1993 paved the way for the implementation of Panchayati Raj system. The Constitution of India defines Panchayat as 'Institutions of self-government'. India is having 253163 Gram Panchayats 6614 Panchayat Samities and 630 Zila Parishads as of January 2019.We find the existence of Panchayat or village assemblies long before the independence of India as a self- governing Institutions which had distinct functions and were guided not only by the collective will but also by the collective will of the entire rural population. After the Independence, Rajasthan Panchayat Act was enacted and the village panchayats are established. In this sense, one can project Rajasthan as a Pioneer in experiencing decentralized three tier system of the representative bodies at the village, block and district level. On 2 nd October 1959, the then Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehruinaugurated the three-tier system later came to be known as the Panchayati Raj at Nagour in Rajasthan. The first election under Rajasthan Panchayat Samiti is and Zila Parishad at for the development of the rural area took place in the year 1959. By 1968 almost all the states of India could introduce Panchayati Raj to effectively implement the principle of democratic decentralization and to introduce self-rule for the development of the rural area. Although the states tried to materialize the projectfollowing the Recommendation of the B R Mehta committee, some differences were noticed in their features as the states past their individual laws themselves according to the perceived requirements. The 11 th schedule was added in the constitution of India by the 73 rd Amendment Act in the year 1992.Other than panchayat's power, important issues like

44% MATCHING BLOCK 166/222 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 167/222 W

rural development, poverty alleviation,market, roads and drinking water etc have been covered in this schedule. This schedule contains 29 subjects. We find

84% MATCHING BLOCK 168/222 W

the following functional items to be dealt with this schedule. • Agriculture including agricultural expansion 83 • Land improvement, implementation of Land reforms, land consolidation and soil conservation • Agricultural husbandry dairying and poultry • Fisheries industry • Minor irrigation water management and watershed development • Social Forestry and farm forestry • Small scale industries in which food processing industry is involved • Minor forest produce • Safe water for drinking • Khadi village and cottage industry • Rural housing • Fuel and fodder • Rural electrification including distribution of electricity • Roads, culverts, bridge, ferries, waterways and other means of communication. • Education including primary and secondary school • Non-conventional source of energy • Technical training and vocational education • Adult and non-formal education • Public Distribution system • Maintenance of community assets • Welfare of weaker sections in particular of the Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribes. • Social welfare including

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 169/222 W

Welfare of the handicapped and mentally retarded • Family Welfare • Women and Child development • Markets and fairs • Health and sanitation including hospitals Primary Health centres and dispensaries • Cultural activities • Libraries • Poverty Alleviation Programmes

Again,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 170/222 W

a new part IX to the Constitution titled 'The Panchayats'

was added. Here Article 243G talked about the powers, authorities and responsibilities of the Panchayats and 243H empowers the Panchayats to impose taxes.
84 1.3 EFFECTIVENESS OF THE PANCHAYATI RAAJ SYSTEM DURING 1954 TO 1992 BEFORE PASSING THE 73 rd AMMENDMENT ACT During this time frame, different states tried to achieve their objectives related to Panchayati Raj system. But they fail to bring forth any radical change in the life as was expected due to certain impediments. The project shows only partial achievements in certain areas. Structural weakness like politicisation, partition politics, factionalism, unbridled interference by the government, lack of awareness, inefficient functioning of the Gram Sabha, illiteracy coupled with social economic drawbacks like acute poverty, paucity of funds led to the unavoidable failure in the working of the Panchayati Raj system. 1.3.1 73 RD AMMENDMENT ACT 1992 73rd Amendment Bill was passed to rejuvenate the Panchayati Raj institutionin 1992. It gave stress on effective regular functioning of the institution.According to Art 243
G
of the 73 rd Amendment Act,

82% MATCHING BLOCK 171/222 W

the Legislature of a state may by law, bestow upon the Panchayat with such powers and authorities as may be required to enable them to function as Institutions of self-Government and such law may contain provision for the devolution of powers and responsibility upon Panchayat, at the appropriate level, subject to such condition as may be specified therein with respect to • the preparation of plans for economic development and Social Justice • the implementation of scheme for economic development and Social Justice as may be interested to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the eleventh schedule.

In the 73
rd Amendment Act,
it is said

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 172/222	W

that Gram Sabha may exercise such powers and perform certain functions at the village level as the Legislature of a state may by law provide.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 177/222	SA	Chapter 2.docx (D141430686)

Gram Sabha is the general assembly of all the people of a village who have attained the age of 18 years and their name is entered in the voter list.

Again, it is said

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 174/222	W

there shall be constituted in every State Panchayats at the village (

Gram Panchayat), intermediate (Panchayat Samiti) and district level (Zila Parishad). In accordance with provision of this part, the Gram Panchayat is the executive of Gram Sabha being the 85 most important unit of the rural local government it is directly elected by all the voters residing within the area of the Panchayat.

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 175/222	W

After the 73 rd Amendment, • The scope of functions of Gram Panchayat was widened. Such important functions like preparation of Annual Development Plan of Panchayat area, annual budget, relief in natural calamities, removal of encroachment of public lands and implementation and monitoring of poverty alleviation programmes are now expected to be performed by the panchayat. •

94%	MATCHING BLOCK 176/222	W

Selection of beneficiaries through Gram Sabhas, public distribution system,non- conventional energy source, improve chullahs, biogas plants have also been given to gram panchayats in some States. 1.4

POWER AUTHORITY AND RESPONSIBILITY OF PANCHAYAT

89% MATCHING BLOCK 179/222 SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the Legislature of a state may, by law, endow the panchayats with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as 'Institutions ofself-Government' and such law may contain provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities upon panchayats at the appropriate level, subject to such condition as may be specified therein, with respect to, • the preparation of plans for economic development and Social Justice • the implementation of schemes for economic development and Social Justice as may be entrusted to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the 11th schedule.

86% MATCHING BLOCK 178/222 W

Some States distinguish between obligatory that means compulsory and optional functions of gram panchayats while other states do not make this distinction. The civic functions relating to sanitation, clearing of public roads, minor irrigation, public toilets and lavatories, Primary Health Care, vaccination, the supply of drinking water, construction of public wells, rural electrification, social health and primary and adult education etc. are obligatory functions of Village Panchayat. The optional functions depend on the resources of the Panchayats. They may or may not perform such functions as tree plantation on road sides, setting up of breeding centre for cattle, organising child and maternity welfare, promotion of agriculture etc. 86 1.5

GENERAL POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE GRAM PANCHAYATS Now we take a detailed account regarding the general powers and duties of the gram panchayat within the limits of the fund at its disposal, it has to make arrangements for the satisfaction of the needs of its area in respect of the following matters • Any public place including its sanitation the drains • Wells, water pump, springs, Ponds and tanks

100% MATCHING BLOCK 180/222 SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

for the supply of water for drinking washing and bathing •

burial and cremation grounds • the lighting of public places • building for accommodation of travellers • ponds for animals • the relief for the poor • public health and sanitation • the organisation and celebration of public festivals, other than religious festivals • the improvement of the breed of animals used for agricultural or domestic purpose • public Gardens, playground, establishment and maintenance of Recreation parks, organisation of games, sports supply of sports material and holding of tournaments • libraries and reading rooms • the voluntary registration of the sales of cattle, camels and horses • the development of Agricultural and village industries • starting and maintaining a grain fund for the cultivators and lending them seeds for sowing purposes on such condition as the Gram Panchayat may approve • the construction. repair and maintenance of public places and buildings of public utility • allotment of places for preparation and conservation of manure • construction and maintenance of culverts and bridges • the laying out of new roads and pathway and maintenance of existing ones • framing and carrying out schemes for the improved method of cultivation and management of land to increase production • supply of water for domestic use and for cattle • the organisation of 'Young Farmers club' and 'Mahila Mandal' for the organisation of games and sports and execution of development, social and cultural works in the Sabha area • planting and preservation of trees • measures to promote the moral, social and material will-being or convenience of the inhabitants of the Sabha area

87 • community listening, and • organisation of village voluntary force for watch and ward and for assisting the executive in the discharge of its function. 1.6 POWERS TO MAKE GENERAL ORDER • prohibit the use of water of a well, pond or other excavation suspected to be dangerous to the public health • regulate or prohibit the watering of cattle or bathing or washing at or near wells, ponds or other excavations, reserved for drinking water • regulate or prohibit the steeping of hemp or any other plant in or near ponds and other excavation within 220 yards of the residential area of a village • regulate or prohibit the dyeing or tanning of skins within 440 yards of residential area of a village • regulate or prohibited the excavation of earth or stone or other material within 220 yards of residential area of a village • regulate or prohibit the establishment of brick kilns and charcoal kilns within 880 yards and pottery kilns 220 yards of the residential area of a village. 1.6.1 Power to name streets and numbering of houses Gram Panchayat may select name to be given to a street by affixing into or painting it on any building or otherwise in such a position or manner as it may think fit. 1.6.2 Judicial function in respect of criminal offences Every panchayat with enhanced power and every Adalti Panchayat shall have jurisdiction to try: • the offences mentioned in Schedule B of the Gram Panchayat Act,1952 provided that the value of the property concerned within the offences is not in excess of 250 rupees, shall not empower the said Panchayats to try any person liable to enhance punishment under section 75 of the I.P.C • any other offences not punishable with imprisonment for more than two years which Government may by notification, declare to a triable by such panchayats. 88 For the purpose of deciding whether an offence falls within the jurisdiction of a Gram Panchayat, the provisions of section 179 to 182 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898, shall apply Panchayat shall be deemed to be a criminal court when trying criminal cases. 1.7 PANCHAYAT SAMITI The intermediate tier in the Panchayati Raj System is called the Panchayat Samiti. Panchayat Samiti has been given different names in different states. Janapada Panchayat in Madhya Pradesh, the Anchalik panchayat in Assam, the Panchayat Union Council in Tamil Nadu the Kshetra Samiti in Uttar Pradesh etc though the most popular name happens to be the Panchayat Samiti. 1.7.1 POWERS AND FUNCTIONS 1. Agriculture • multiplication and distribution of improved seeds • distribution of fertilizers • popularization of improved techniques, methods and practices and improve implementation. • achieving self-sufficiency in the green manure and composting of farmyard manure • encouraging fruit and vegetable cultivation • reclamation of land and swamps and conservation of soil • providing credit for agriculture purposes • propagating and assisting in plant protection methods • bringing more area under irrigation by renovating and sinking wells, repairing and digging private tanks and maintaining government minor irrigation sources and supply channels • utilising more power for agricultural purposes • exploiting more power from agricultural purposes • exploiting underground water sources by sinking well filter points and tube wells • tree planting • growing of village forest. 2. Animal Husbandry and Fisheries • Upgrading local stock by introducing pedigree breeding bulls and castrating serub Bulls • introducing improved breeds of cattle, sheep, pigs and poultry 89 • controlling contagious diseases by systematic protection • introducing improved fodders and feeds • establishing and maintaining of artificial insemination centres, first -aid centres and minor veterinary dispensary • dairying and milk supply • developing inland fisheries • educating the people about the importance of cattle 3. Health and Rural Sanitation • Maintenance and expansion of health services including vaccination and control of epidemics • provision of protected drinking water facilities • dissemination of knowledge regarding family planning • inspection of aushdhalayas, dispensaries Maternity centres and Primary Health centres. • carrying out environmental sanitation and health campaigns and educating the public in Nutrition, Maternity and Child Health and Communicable diseases • popularizing smokeless chillers • antimalarial measures and destruction of locust, rats and other pests 4. Communication

83%	MATCHING BLOCK 181/222	SA	TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 P ... (D116542424)

Construction, repair and maintenance of inter-village road and culverts on such roads and other means of communication. 5.

Social Education • the creation of a new outlook among the people and making them self-reliant, hard-working and responsive to community action and in particular • establishment of information community and recreation centres • establishment of Youth organisations Mahila Mandal,FarmerClubs, Village Clubs and the like • establishment and popularization of library • organisation of watch and ward • encouragement of voluntary sanitary squads • training and utilisation of the services of Gram Sahayak • promotion of physical culture by encouragement of games and sports.

90 6. Co-operation • promotion of co-operation by helping the establishment and strengthening of service of co-operative, industrial, irrigation, farming and other societies • participation in and assistance to service co-operatives 7. Miscellaneous • Development of Cottage and small-scale industries in order to provide employment opportunities and to promote village self sufficiency • management of all property vested in the Panchayat Samiti • inspection and maintenance of serais, rest houses, markets, public parks and gardens and other public institutions • securing or removing dangerous buildings or places • Regulation and control of vehicular traffic on road other than motor traffic • Construction, repair, and maintenance of relief works, relief houses and other measures of relief on account of famines, floods, earthquakes and calamities of like nature • management of such public ferries as may be interested to the charge of the Panchayat Samiti • establishment and management of ponds • organisation and management of Panchayat Samiti fairs, agricultural shows and industrial exhibition • encouragement of thrift through small savings and insurance • disposal of unclaimed dead bodies • management of any property vested in the government which the government may entrust to the Panchayat Samiti. • registration of births, deaths and marriages • regulation of offensive and dangerous trades and practices • any other local works on measures likely to promote the health, comfort, convenience and interest of the public • any other matter which the government may generally or in respect of a particular Panchayat Samiti declare to be fit and appropriate matter to be brought under the control and administration of the Panchayat Samiti. 1.8

73% MATCHING BLOCK 184/222 SA uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

Zila Parishad The Zila Parishad is the district level top tier of the Panchayati Raj.

It operates at the district level and looks after the rural areas of the district. The Zila Parishad is a corporate body having perpetual 91 succession and a common seal. It has the power to acquire, hold and dispose of property and to enter into contracts. As a corporate body it can be sued. While 'Zila Parishad' happens to be the most commonly used name for this top tier of the Panchayati Raj, in Assam, it is known as Mahakum Parishad (sub-divisional level). In Tamil Nadu and Karnataka, it is known as the District Development Council, and in Gujarat, the District Panchayat. The powers and functions of Zila Parishad vary considerably from State to State. In Karnataka and Tamil Nadu, the Zila Parishad is coordinating body which exercises general supervision over the working of the Panchayat Samitis and advises the Government on the implementation of the development schemes. Besides these duties, in Andhra Pradesh, the Zila Parishad has some executive role in the establishment, maintenance and expansion of secondary educational, vocational and industrial schools. It also discharges the functions of the Panchayat Samitis in respect of non-samiti blocks. In Maharashtra, the Zila Parishad is the strongest tier of the Panchayati Raj and is vested with executive functions in various fields, including planning, development and advising of the State Government. In Gujarat and Uttar Pradesh also the Zila Parishad is vested with administrative functions in various fields. In the remaining States, the Zila Parishad has no specific executive power and it is only a supervisory and coordinating body. 1.8.1 POWERS AND FUNCTIONS The main functions of the Zila Parishad can be listed as follows: (1) Development of Agriculture. (2) To set up and maintain warehouses. (3) To train the farmers. (4) Land Reclamation and Conservation. (5) Development of Irrigation. (6) Water utilisation in an optimum way. (7) Rural Electrification. (8) Distribution of Essential Commodities to the people. (9) To collect and publish data regarding Panchayats, Panchayat Samities and the ZilaParishad. (10) To develop marketing network for marketing agricultural produce. (11) Conservation and development of forests. (12) To look after the development of Animal Husbandry, Dairy and Fisheries.

92 (13) To organise Cold Storage facilities. (14) Development of Small scale and cottage industries. (15) Encouragement to cottage industries. (16) Construction and maintenance of roads. (17) Organisation of Health facilities. (18) To promote Rural Housing. (19) To look for spreading education (20) To take steps for the welfare of weaker sections of society. (21) To undertake poverty alleviation programmes. (22) To celebrate national festivals. (23) To organise cultural meets and festivals. (24) To undertake programmes for social reforms. (25) To encourage small savings. (26) To perform functions delegated by the State government. The Zila Parishad is expected to function as an advisory and supervisory body over the Panchayat Samitis. In this sphere, its functions relate to: (a) examination and approval of the budgets of the Samities, (b) distribute funds allotted to the district by the government to the Samities. c) supervise generally the activities of the Samities in the district, (d) co-ordinate and consolidate the plans of the blocks and prepare plans in respect of the entire district, (e) secure the execution of plans, projects, schemes or other works common to two or more blocks, (f)exercise and perform such of the powers and functions of the district board as are transferred toit, (g) advise the government on all matters relating to development activities and maintenanceof services in the district, (h) advise the government on the allocation of work among Panchayatsand Panchayat Samitis and coordination of their work, 93 (i) advise government on matters concerning the implementation of statutory or executive order referred to it, (j) publish statistics and other information, (k) obtain information from the local bodies, (l) establish, maintain and expand secondary, vocational and industrial schools, and (m) administration of trusts 1.9 FINANCES 1.9.1 Gram Panchayat: SOURCES OF FUND Although the amount of money transferred to Panchayat by the Central or State Government account for the bulk of its revenue, the Panchayat Raj Institution PRI's resource generation is the lifeblood of its finances. It also ensures the presence of a local taxation system that guarantees the people's participation in the working of an elected body. This also holds the Gram Panchayat accountable to the Citizens. Gram Panchayat are better placed in terms of resource collection as the other two tires rely solely on toll, fees and non-tax revenue to generate internals resources. The

40%	MATCHING BLOCK 182/222	W

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 183/222	W

Panchayat derived its taxing power mainly from article 243H, law which states

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 185/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

that the Legislature of a State may, by law, • Authorise a Panchayat to charge, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties and tolls and fees

according to such procedures and restrictions • assign to a Panchayat the

78%	MATCHING BLOCK 186/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

taxes, charges tolls and fees imposed and collected by the state Government for such purposes and with such conditions and limits • Provide for the State's Consolidated Fund to make such grants in aid to the Panchayat and • Provide for the establishment of such funds for the crediting of any funds

52%	MATCHING BLOCK 189/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

received by or on behalf of the Panchayat as well as the withdrawal of such funds as may be stipulated by law • The majority of taxation powers has been delegated to Village Panchayat under state Panchayat Raj act. The revenue realm of intermediate and District Panchayat (both tax and non-tax) has been reduced significantly and is now restricted to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, automobile registration, stamp duty, cess and a few others •

72%	MATCHING BLOCK 187/222	W

According to several state legislature the village panchayat is responsible for a variety of taxes, levies, tolls and fees. Octroi, Property/House Tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, 94 taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/ fees, license fees, tax on non-agricultural land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/Conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fairs and festivals

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 188/222	W

are just a few examples. 1.9.2 Panchayat Samiti Finances For every Panchayat Samiti there shall be constituted a Panchayat Samiti

83%	MATCHING BLOCK 190/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

Fund bearing the name of the Panchayat Samiti and there shall be placed to the credit thereof— (a) contribution and grants, if any, made by the Central or the State Government including such part of the land revenue collected in the State as may be determined by the State Government; (b) contributions and grants, if any, made by the Zila Parishad 1 [or the Mahakuma Parishad or the Council] or any other local authority; (c) loans, if any, granted by the Central or the State Government or raised by the Panchayat Samiti on Security of its assets; (d)

55%	MATCHING BLOCK 191/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 196/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

all receipts on account of tolls, rates and fees levied by it; (

Ouriginal by Turnitin

e) all receipts in respect of any schools, hospitals, dispensaries, buildings, institutions or works, vested in, constructed by or placed under the control and management of the Panchayat Samiti; (f) all sums received as gift or contributions and all income from any trust or endowment make in favour of the Panchayat Samiti; (g) such fines or penalties imposed and realised under the provisions of this Act or of the bye-laws made thereunder, as may be prescribed; and (h) all other sums received by or on behalf of the Panchayat Sam ill. 1 Explanation— A Panchayat Sam in shall riot receive to the credit of its fund— (a) any loan from any individual, severally or jointly, or any member or office bearer of the Panchayat Samiti, or (b) any gift or contribution from any individual, severally or jointly, or any member or officer bearer of the Panchayat Samiti save and except in pursuance of a resolution adopted in a meeting of the Panchayat Samiti accepting such gift or contribution and stating the purpose for which such gift or contribution is offered and accepted. (2) Every Panchayat Samiti shall set apart and apply annually such sum as may be required to meet the cost of its own administration including the payment of salary, allowances, provident fund and gratuity to the officers and employees. (3) Every Panchayat Samiti shall have power to spend such sums as it thinks fit for carrying out the purposes of this Act. (4) The Panchayat Samiti Fund shall be vested in the Panchayat Samiti and the balance to the credit of the Fund shall be kept in such custody as the State Government may, from time to time, direct. Also, incomes are generated from levy tolls on persons, vehicles or animals or any class of them at any tollbar established by it on any road other than a Kutcha road or any bridge vested in it or under its management, (b) levy tolls in respect of any ferry established by it or under its management, (c) levy the following fees and rates, namely:— (i) fees on the registration of vehicles; (ii) a fee for providing sanitary arrangements at such places of worship or pilgrimage, fairs and melas within its jurisdiction as may be specified by the State Government by notification. 1.9.3 Zila Parishad Finances

95 All money received by a Zila Parishad constitutes a fund called the Zila Parishad Fund. All money received by the Zila Parishad is kept in a Government Treasury or Sub-Treasury or in the bank to which the Government Treasury business has been made over, unless the government in any case otherwise permits. All orders or cheques against the Zila Parishad Fund are to be signed by the Secretary. The Sources of income of a Zila Parishad consist of: (i) the Central or State Government funds allotted to the Zila Parishad; (ii) a share in the Land Reserve collected from the Zila Parishad area. (iii) grants from All India bodies and institutions for the development of cottage, village and small-scale industries, and the like; (iv) state taxes or fees as may be prescribed; (v) income from trusts administered by the Zila Parishad; (vi) such income of the District Board as the Government may by order, allocate to it; (vii) Zila Parishad can raise loans. (viii) donations and contributions from the Panchayat Samitis or from the public in any form; and (ix) such contributions as the Zila Parishad may levy from the Panchayat Samitis with the previous approval of the Government. The expenses of the Zila Parishad include the salaries and allowances of the officials of the Zila Parishad, and allowances, if any, to be paid to the members of Zila Parishad or any Consultative Committee thereof. The Chief Executive Officer of a Zila Parishad, frames and places before the Zila Parishad, on or before the prescribed date, an annual budget showing the estimated receipt and expenditure during the next financial year. Thus, Rural Local Government in India continues to be a three-tier structure. The 73 rd Constitution Amendment Act has ensured the continued operation of the institutions of Panchayati Raj. It has given additional powers and sources of revenue for enabling these to work efficiently. The involvement and empowerment of rural women has been secured by giving them reservations for becoming the members and chairpersons of Panchayats, Panchayat Samities and Zila Parishads. 1.10 District Planning Committee

96 Article 243 ZD mentions that

100% MATCHING BLOCK 192/222 W

there shall be constituted in every State at the district level a District Planning Committee to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in the district and to prepare a draft development plan for the district as a whole. The Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to — (a) the composition of the District Planning Committees; (b) the manner in which the seats in such Committees shall be filled: Provided that not less than four- fifths of the total number of members of such Committee shall be elected by, and from amongst, the elected members of the Panchayat at the district level and of the Municipalities in the district in proportion to the ratio between the population of the rural areas and of the urban areas in the district; (c) the functions relating to district planning which may be assigned to such Committees; (d) the manner in which the Chairpersons of such Committees shall be chosen. (3) Every District Planning Committee shall, in preparing the draft development plan, — (a) have regard to — (i) matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the Municipalities including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation; (ii) the extent and type of available resources whether financial or otherwise; (b) consult such institutions and organisations as the Governor may, by order, specify. The Chairperson of every District Planning Committee shall forward the development plan, as recommended by such Committee, to the Government of the State.

99% MATCHING BLOCK 193/222 W

The Constitution of India provides the DPCs two specific responsibilities. In preparing the draft development plan, the DPC shall have regard to matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the municipalities, including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation and the extent and type of available resources, both financial or otherwise. The DPC in this endeavour, is also mandated to consult such institutions and organizations as may be specified. In order that the plans at different levels are prepared, there is need to strengthen the system comprising the machinery of planning and the process of consolidation of plans at the district level. There is confusion in states as to whether the DPC is to be established as a separate and permanent office or whether it denotes only a meeting that is periodically called and which can be serviced by a part-time secretariat. There is a feeling that the DPC ought not to emerge as yet another layer of bureaucracy to vet people's plans. At the same time, the fact that the DPC is held intermittently and 97 without permanent support undermines its effectiveness as a constitutional institution and a coordinating mentor. On balance, the DPC merits the status of a permanent institution, with adequate secretariat to service it at the district level. It could also be provided the means of drawing experts to assist it whenever required. 1.11

CONCLUSION Panchayati Raj has been heralded as a social revolution in the country. It was established in the country on the basis of the Balwant rai Mehta Committee's recommendations. In this Unit, the recommendations of Balwant rai Mehta Committee, Asoka Mehta Committee and 73rd Constitutional Amendment have been emphasised. These Institutions were in a moribund for years together. By the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act, 1992 Panchayats have been given a constitutional status. In addition, the role of Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs), administrative structure and financial resources have been described. What is heartening is that there has been a realisation on the need and significance of Panchayati Raj to strengthen the democracy and governance at the grassroots level. It can be stated that though none of the states had achieved complete devolution from states to Panchayats, but the 73rd Constitutional Amendment has provided continuity and space for vulnerable groups and women in these institutions. The studies revealed that these institutions could not perform effectively in most of the states. Even states have not performed their duties as expected to strengthen the Panchayats as rural self- government. In this context, the Union Government and state governments must contribute effectively to conscientise the citizens, administrators, political leaders and civil society to strengthen the institutions of self-government through joint efforts. In addition, proper devolution of funds will bring effectiveness, responsiveness and efficiency in delivery of public services. The trust of State Government on Village Panchayat and Gram Sabha; and flexibility to utilise funds will result in achieving Sustainable Development Goals and all-round development. 1.12 SUMMARY • Panchayati Raj system is a process through which people participate in their own government

98 •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 194/222 W

Panchayati Raj is one of the fundamental pillars of Indian democracy • It promotes grassroot level democracy. It's a 3-tier system - at the grassroots level there is Gram Panchayat, in the Block level there is Panchayat Samiti and at the district level there is Zilla Parishad. •

76% MATCHING BLOCK 195/222 W

It is the system for self-government in rural area. • This system aims at development of rural areas with diligent effort. • It works towards development in field like agriculture, trade, industry, irrigation, communication, health, sanitation and their facilities in rural areas. • All the 3 tires can function with various taxes that they can levy and funds allotted by the Centre and state governments. • District Planning Committee, required both for panchayat and municipality, is established in every district by every state. • District planning committee will be in charge of integrated planning for the district's urban and rural areas. 1.13 KEYWORDS •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 206/222 SA ATIH TEKSENG ,DISSERTATION ON THE ROLE OF PANC ... (D136162801)

Decentralization The transfer of control of an activity or organization to several local offices or authorities rather than one single one. •

Community development Community development is a process where community members are supported by agencies to identify and take collective function or issues which are important for them. • Participatory democracy Participatory democracy is a form of government in which citizens participate individually and directly in political decisions and policies that affect their lives rather than through elected representatives • Amendments A minor change or addition designed to improve a text, piece of legislation. • Self-government
99 Government under the control and direction of the inhabitants of a particular political unit rather than by an outside authority 1.14 MODEL QUESTIONS (Short question-answer type) 1. What is the literal meaning of panchayat? Ans – It is the council of 5 people. 2. In which level of our democratic government does Panchayati Raj system belong? Ans – Panchayati Raj system is at the grassroots level of a democratic government. 3. Which day is celebrated as National Panchayati Raj Day? Ans – April 24 th is celebrated as National Panchayati Raj Day. 4. In which year Balwant Rai Mehta Committee was constituted? Ans – Balwant Rai Mehta Committee was constituted in the year 1957. 5. Specify two agricultural functions of Panchayat Samiti. Ans – The two agricultural functions of Panchayat System are- 1. Distribution of fertilizers 2. Encouraging fruit and vegetable cultivation. 6. Name the highest tier of Panchayati Raj System. Ans – The highest tier of Panchayati Raj system is Zilla Parishad. 1.15 REFERENCES • Dynamics of New Panchayati Raj System in India – Edited by G. Palanithurai. • Panchayati Raj – Kuldeep Mathur (Oxford India Short Introductions) • Local Self Government Including Panchayat Administration – Dr Rakesh Kumar Singh, Souvik Dhar. 1.16BIBLIOGRAPHY
100 1.https://blog-ipleaders-in 2. https://www.writinglaw.com 3. https://www.mea.gov.in 4. http://www.india.govt.in 5. http://www.yourarticlelibrary.com 6. http://www.constitutionofindia.net 7. http://www.latestlaws.com 8. https://m.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/panchayati-raj-system-in-india-1438141804-1 9. https://www.jagranjosh.com/

89% MATCHING BLOCK 197/222 W

general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of- the-indian-constitution-1510219894-1 10.

https://testbook.com/question-answer/eleventh-schedule-of-the-constitution-of-india-bel--5fe08fbc56a30d4df95c70fd 11. https://www.lawglobalhub.com/article-243-243g-indian-constitution-1949/ 12. https://www.india.gov.in/my-government/constitution-india/amendments/constitution-india- seventy-third-amendment-act-1992 13. https://byjus.com/free-ias-prep/this-day-in-history-apr24/ 14. https://byjus.com/free-ias-prep/panchayat-finance/ 15. https://www.thehindu.com/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 198/222 W

news/cities/Hyderabad/panchayats-should-focus-on-improving-own- revenue-sources-report/

article26460518.ece 16. https://www.drishtiias.com/important-institutions/drishti-specials-important-institutions-national- institutions/panchayati-raj-institution-pri 17. https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/ 18. https://www.insightsonindia.com/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 199/222 W

polity/functions-and-responsibilities-of-the-union-and-the- states-issues-and-challenges-pertaining-to-the-federal-structure-devolution-of-powers-and-finances- up-to-local-levels-and-challenges-therein/devolution-of-powers-and-finances-up-to-local-levels-and- challenges-therein/73rd-amendment-act-panchayati-raj/ 101 19.

https://www.preservearticles.com/articles/how-does-the-state-governments-can-exercise-control- over-panchayats/26269 20.
https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/District_Planning_Committee 21.https://www.constitutionofindia.net /constitution_of_india/the_municipalities/articles/Article%2024 3ZD 22. https://www.latestlaws.com/

86% MATCHING BLOCK 200/222 W

bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district- planning-committee-act-1994

BLOCK IV PANCHAYATIRAJ FINANCE STRUCTURE 1.1 OBJECTIVES 1.2 INTRODUCTION 1.3 CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS 1.4 Gram Panchayat: SOURCES OF FUND 1.5 Panchayat Samiti Finances 1.6 Committees on Panchayat Finance 1.7 Panchayat Resource Generation 1.8 15th Finance Commission 1.9 Conclusion 1.10 Summary 1.11Keywords 1.12 Model questions 1.13 References
102 1.1 OBJECTIVES • People will get to know regarding the role of finance Commission in devolution of funds for the panchayat raj Institution. • It brings awareness regarding the various sources where from the funds are collected by the panchayat raj system. • It will let know the various taxes that the panchayat raj levy for its fund. • People will come to know about the various Articles of the Indian constitution and the role of the state government regarding the panchayat raj finance. • This will also make people aware regarding the problems and difficulties faced by the Panchayat Raj Institutions'financial dealings. 1.2 INTRODUCTION In Panchayat Raj System, the Gram Panchayat, the Block Samiti and ZilaParishad are the three basic units of local administration at three different levels.

71% MATCHING BLOCK 201/222 W

A significant portion of the Constitution deals with the structural empowerment of the panchayat raj system. But the true strength of these institutions in terms of autonomy and efficiency is dependent on theirfinancial position (including their capacity to generate their own resources)

Panchayat

62% MATCHING BLOCK 202/222 W

finance ensures the proper functioning of the three tier Panchayati Raj System. It received constitutional status by the 73rd constitutional amendment act 1992.To empower the panchayat in managing its finance, the constitution transfers 29 items to the local governments and set up Finance Commission to ensure the resources for local bodies.

Article 243 (1) and Article 243 (y) of the Constitution of India prescribe devolution of fund at the expiry of every five years to the local bodies by the Finance Commission. 1.3

97% MATCHING BLOCK 203/222 W

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS:- 1.3.1 Article 243(H) states that the state legislature may: • authorise a Panchayat to levy, collect and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; • assign to a Panchayat taxes, duties, tolls, and fees levied and collected by the state government • provide for Grants -in -aid to panchayats from the state consolidated fund and provide for the establishment of funds for crediting all money received, by or on behalf of the Panchayats and for the withdrawal of such money therefrom. 1.3.2 Article 243(l) state that every five years, • the governor of a state shall appoint a finance committee to review the financial position of the panchayats. • It is responsible for making the following recommendations to the Governor: 1.3.3 The principles that should govern: • The distribution of the net proceeds of the state's taxes, duties, tolls and fees between the state and the panchayats, as well as the allocation of shares among the panchayats at all levels. 103 • The assessment of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees that may be assigned on the panchayats. • Grants -in -aid to panchayats from the state's consolidated fund. • The measures required to improve the panchayats' financial position. • Any other matter referred to by the Governor in the interest of the panchayats' financial health. • The state legislature may specify the composition of the commission, the required qualifications of its members, and the manners in which they are selected. • The Governor must present the commission's recommendations as well as the action is taken report, to the state legislature. • The Central Finance Commission Shall also recommend measures to augment the consolidated fund of a state in order to supplement the resources of the panchayats in the states (based on the recommendations of the state finance commission). 1.4

Gram Panchayat: SOURCES OF FUND Although the amount of money transferred to Panchayat by

40% MATCHING BLOCK 204/222 W

the Central or State Government account for the bulk of its revenue, the Panchayat Raj Institution PRI's resource generation is the lifeblood of its finances. It also ensures the presence of a local taxation system that guarantees the people's participation in the working of an elected body. This also holds the Gram Panchayat accountable to the Citizens. Gram Panchayat are better placed in terms of resource collection as the other two tires rely solely on toll, fees and non-tax revenue to generate internals resources. The

75% MATCHING BLOCK 205/222 W

Panchayat derived its taxing power mainly from article 243H, law which states

75% MATCHING BLOCK 207/222 SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

that the Legislature of a State may, by law, • Authorise a Panchayat to charge, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties and tolls and fees

according to such procedures and restrictions • assign to a Panchayat the

78%	MATCHING BLOCK 208/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

taxes, charges tolls and fees imposed and collected by the state Government for such purposes and with such conditions and limits • Provide for the State's Consolidated Fund to make such grants in aid to the Panchayat and • Provide for the establishment of such funds for the crediting of any funds

52%	MATCHING BLOCK 211/222	SA	Decentralised Planning and Development Works [... (D32239146)

received by or on behalf of the Panchayat as well as the withdrawal of such funds as may be stipulated by law • The majority of taxation powers has been delegated to Village Panchayat under state Panchayat 104 Raj act. The revenue realm of intermediate and District Panchayat (both tax and non-tax) has been reduced significantly and is now restricted to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, automobile registration, stamp duty, cess, and a few others •

72%	MATCHING BLOCK 209/222	W

According to several state legislature the village panchayat is responsible for a variety of taxes, levies, tolls, and fees. Octroi, Property/House Tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/ fees, license fees, tax on non-agricultural land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/Conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fairs and festivals

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 210/222	W

are just a few examples. 1.5 Panchayat Samiti Finances For every Panchayat Samiti there shall be constituted a Panchayat Samiti

83%	MATCHING BLOCK 212/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

Fund bearing the name of the Panchayat Samiti and there shall be placed to the credit thereof— (a) contribution and grants, if any, made by the Central or the State Government including such part of the land revenue collected in the State as may be determined by

55%	MATCHING BLOCK 213/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

the State Government; (b) contributions and grants, if any, made by the Zila Parishad 1 [or the Mahakuma Parishad or the Council] or any other local authority; (c) loans, if any, granted by the Central or the State Government

or raised by the Panchayat Samiti on Security of its assets; (d)

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 216/222	SA	7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography ... (D118055363)

all receipts on account of tolls, rates and fees levied by it; (

e) all receipts in respect of any schools, hospitals, dispensaries, buildings, institutions or works, vested in, constructed by or placed under the control and management of the Panchayat Samiti; (f) all sums received as gift or contributions and all income from any trust or endowment make in favour of the Panchayat Samiti; (g) such fines or penalties imposed and realised under the provisions of this Act or of the bye-laws made thereunder, as may be prescribed; and (h) all other sums received by or on behalf of the Panchayat Sam ill. 1 Explanation— A Panchayat Sam in shall riot receive to the credit of its fund— (a) any loan from any individual, severally or jointly, or any member or office bearer of the Panchayat Samiti, or (b) any gift or contribution from any individual, severally or jointly, or any member or officer bearer of the Panchayat Samiti save and except in pursuance of a resolution adopted in a meeting of the Panchayat
105 Samiti accepting such gift or contribution and stating the purpose for which such gift or contribution is offered and accepted. (2) Every Panchayat Samiti shall set apart and apply annually such sum as may be required to meet the cost of its own administration including the payment of salary, allowances, provident fund and gratuity to the officers and employees. (3) Every Panchayat Samiti shall have power to spend such sums as it thinks fit for carrying out the purposes of this Act. (4) The Panchayat Samiti Fund shall be vested in the Panchayat Samiti and the balance to the credit of the Fund shall be kept in such custody as the State Government may, from time to time, direct. Also, incomes are generated from levy tolls on persons, vehicles or animals or any class of them at any tollbar established by it on any road other than a Kutcha road or any bridge vested in it or under its management, (b) levy tolls in respect of any ferry established by it or under its management, (c) levy the following fees and rates, namely:— (i) fees on the registration of vehicles; (ii) a fee for providing sanitary arrangements at such places of worship or pilgrimage, fairs and melas within its jurisdiction as may be specified by the State Government by notification. 1.5 Zila Parishad Finances All money received by a Zila Parishad constitutes a fund called the Zila Parishad Fund. All money received by the Zila Parishad is kept in a Government Treasury or Sub-Treasury or in the bank to which the Government Treasury business has been made over, unless the government in any case otherwise permits. All orders or cheques against the Zila Parishad Fund are to be signed by the Secretary. The Sources of income of a Zila Parishad consist of: (i) the Central or State Government funds allotted to the Zila Parishad; (ii) a share in the Land Reserve collected from the Zila Parishad area. (iii) grants from All India bodies and institutions for the development of cottage, village and small-scale industries, and the like; (iv) state taxes or fees as may be prescribed; (v) income from trusts administered by the Zila Parishad; (vi) such income of the District Board as the Government may by order, allocate to it; (vii) Zila Parishad can raise loans.
106 (viii) donations and contributions from the Panchayat Samitis or from the public in any form; and (ix) such contributions as the Zila Parishad may levy from the Panchayat Samitis with the previous approval of the Government. The expenses of the Zila Parishad include the salaries and allowances of the officials of the Zila Parishad, and allowances, if any, to be paid to the members of Zila Parishad or any Consultative Committee thereof. The Chief Executive Officer of a Zila Parishad, frames and places before the Zila Parishad, on or before the prescribed date, an annual budget showing the estimated receipt and expenditure during the next financial year. Thus, Rural Local Government in India continues to be a three-tier structure. The 73rd Constitution Amendment Act has ensured the continued operation of the institutions of Panchayati Raj. It has given additional powers and sources of revenue for enabling these to work efficiently. The involvement and empowerment of rural women has been secured by giving them reservations for becoming the members and chairpersons of Panchayats, Panchayat Samities and Zila Parishads. 1.6

100% MATCHING BLOCK 214/222 W

Committees on Panchayat Finance The standing committee on rural development which was chaired by Dr. P Venugopal submitted its report on the improvement in the functioning of the panchayat in 2018. The committee noted that mandatory meetings of panchayats were not taking place and had poor attendance, especially from the women representatives. The committee recommended that • the state government should put forward the mechanism of quorum in the meetings of Gram Sabha to ensure the participation of Panchayat representatives including women. • It recommended strengthening of the panchayat through capacity building and encouraging the state and the central government to provide training to help States prepare better Gram Panchayat development plans and become more responsive to citizens' needs. • It also recommended that recruitment and appointment of support and technical staff be expedited to ensure the smooth functioning of the panchayat. 107 1.7

98% MATCHING BLOCK 215/222 W

Panchayat Resource Generation The source of generation of finances for Panchayat are as follows: A major portion of Part IX of the constitution deals with structural empowerment of the Panchayati Raj institutions but the real strength in terms of both the autonomy and efficiency of this institution is dependent on their financial position including all their capacity to generate their own resources. Panchayat in our country receive funds in the following ways: • Loans or grants from the state government • Internal resource generation (tax and nontax) • Programme-specific allocations under Centrally sponsored schemes and the Additional Central Assistance. • All the grants from the union government are based on the recommendation of the Central Finance Commission as given in Article 280 of the constitution. Under Article 243-I devolution from the state government is based on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission. In absolute terms, the quantum of funds the Union or State Government transfers to a Panchayat forms the major component of its receipt, the Panchayat Raj Institutions on resource generation is the soul behind its financial standing. It is the existence of a local taxation system that encourages people's involvement in the affairs of an elected body. It makes the institution accountable to its citizens. Most of the taxation powers to village panchayats are given by State Panchayati Raj. The revenue domain of the intermediate and district panchayat both tax as well as non-tax has been kept smaller and confined to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, cess on stamp duty, registration of vehicles, and a few others. A study of various State Legislations indicates that several taxes, tolls, fees, and duties come under the jurisdiction of the village panchayats. This includes octroi property/ House Tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, license fees, tax on non-agriculture and, fee on registration of cattle sanitation/drainage, conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fair and festivals and profession tax. 1.8 15 th Finance Commission: - FC -xv has recommended [Rs 94,721 crore as united (Basic) grant as per] a total of 1,42,083 crore as tied grant as per state wise and year wise details, out of which (i)Rs71,042 crore shall be earmarked for drinking water, rain water harvesting 108 and water recycling and (ii)Rs.71,042 crore shall be earmarked for sanitation and maintenance of ODF status, and this should include management and treatment of household waste, and human excretaand faecal sludge management. The 15th Finance Commission has recommended distribution of local body grants to all the tyres of the panchayats i.e., Gram Panchayats, Block panchayatsand Zila Parishad. The inter say distribution among all the tyres shall be done by the concerned state government on the basis of accepted recommendation of the latest State Finance Commission (SFC) and in conformity with the following bands;

57% MATCHING BLOCK 222/222 SA 9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical S ... (D128332325)

RANGEOF DISTRIBUTION GRAM PANCHAYAT BLOCK PANCHAYAT PANCHAYAT SAMITI MINIMUM 70% 10% 5% MAXIMUM 85% 25% 15% 1.9 Conclusion: - •

94% MATCHING BLOCK 217/222 W

Devolution of funds from higher levels of government is a significant component of panchayat's resources. • The existence of a local taxation system ensures citizens' participation in the affairs of an elected body. It also holdsthe institution responsible to its constituents. • In terms of own resource collection, Gram Panchayats are in better position because they have their own tax domain, whereas the other two tires rely solely on tolls,fees,and non- tax revenue to generate internal resources. • The majority of taxation powers have been delegated to village panchayats under the State Panchayat Raj Acts. 1.9.1

But there are certain short comings as well: - •

96% MATCHING BLOCK 218/222 W

States across the country have not paid enough attention to the financial empowerment of panchayats. • The resource available to panchayats are limited. • Internal resource generation is limited at the panchayat level. This is due in part to a thin domain and in part to panchayats' own reluctance to collect revenue. • Panchayats must rely heavily on grants from the Union and state government.

109 •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 219/222 W

A significant portion of grants from both the Union and

the

93% MATCHING BLOCK 220/222 W

state governments are scheme specific. • Panchayats have limited discretion and flexibility when it comes to incurring expenses. • State governments are hesitant to devolve funds to panchayats due to their own fiscal constraints. • Panchayat cannot become effective Institutions of local self-government unless they have a strong financial foundation with clearly defined revenue resources that are properly managed to optimize resources. 1.10

Summary- • the very principle of democracy i.e. Thedecentralisation of power is experienced in the financial transaction of the Panchayati Raj system. • Devolution of fund in the Panchayati Raj System is decided by the Finance Commission according to the constitution of India. • Various sources are there to levy Taxes by the Panchayati Raj system. • Other than that, Grants are allotted by the Central and state government. • Attendance in the meeting by the representatives of the three tier Panchayati Raj System are less than required. • In the post- Covid situation the volume of work done by the Panchayati Raj Institutions has been increased. • So, more grants are required to manage the work load. 1.11Keywords: - •

86% MATCHING BLOCK 221/222 W

Assigned/shared revenues are collected by State Government but transferred/ shared to with local bodies. •

Finance commission is aconstitutional body under Article280 created every five years to recommend the transfer of financial resources from the Centre to the states. • Standing committee is a committee consisting of members of parliament that work on continuous basis. • Tied grant is that grant which is meant for particular purpose. • ODF i.e., Open Defecation Free means that no visible faeces found in the environment and every household as well as public/community institutions using safe technology option for disposal of faeces. 1.12 Model questions:- • Where from the panchayats receive the grants? Ans - Panchayat receive the grants from the Central and the state governments. • Point out the article from where the panchayats derive their texting power.
110 Ans - From the Article 243 of the Indian Constitution panchayats derive their taxing power. • Name the types of taxes that Panchayat can Levy. Ans – Property tax, land tax, profession tax are the three types of taxes that Panchayat can levy. • Which one is the latest Central Finance commission? Ans - XV Finance Commission is the latest one. • Mention two sources of income of Zilla Parishad. Ans - Taxes Levied by Zilla Parishad and funds allotted by State Government for developmental activities are the two sources of income of Zilla Parishad. 1.13 References – 1. Swachh Bharat Mission https://swachhbharatmission.gov.in 2.https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/ 3. https://prepp.in /news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes 4. https://acrobat.adobe.com /link/review?uri=urn:aaid:scds:US:8700489b-fcf1-342d-8f82- 5a14c7b0228c
111

Hit and source - focused comparison, Side by Side

Submitted text As student entered the text in the submitted document.

Matching text As the text appears in the source.

1/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 43% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

CC: VIII Rural Local Government Block- I Origin and Growth Unit- I: Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-independent India Structure 1.1 Learning Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3The Theoretical Perspective of Democratic Decartelization 1.4Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-independent India 1.5

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

2/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

Conclusion 1.6Summary 1.7Glossary 1.8Model Questions 1.9References 1.1 Learning Objectives Following completion of this unit, you should be able to: • Be familiar with the origins of local self-government in India; • On the evolution of the Panchayati Raj Institutions

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

3/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

Introduction The concept of democratic decentralization has dominated the development discourse in many Asian, African, and Latin American countries since the 1960s. Democratic decentralization rejects the notions of a highly centralized state and substitutes them with the concept of

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

4/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	64 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	64 WORDS

distribution of power to the people at large. The notion of democratic decentralization is that people will become both the end and the means of development. India, like many other nations, has adopted a democratic decentralization policy. Panchayats are regarded as the most important institutions for the success of the decentralization process. In India, it began as part of administrative reforms to facilitate

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

5/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 305 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 305 WORDS

rural development projects in rural areas. Later, when the idea of people's participation through Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) gained popularity, the same panchayats started to work as institutions of self-government in rural areas. 2 This chapter examines democratic decentralization in India with the intention of examining key issues such as people's participation in governance matters, the accountability of the government to the people, delivering the fruits of development to the people, and bridging the gaps in the achievement of these objectives, i.e., implementation failures. Overall, it demonstrates that while some expectations have been met, the majority have not. As a result, the outcomes have been mixed. Through local governments, the goal of democratic decentralization has not been fully achieved or completely failed. Despite numerous accomplishments, there are a number of issues that must be addressed. 1.3 The Theoretical Perspective of Democratic Decartelization According to Moitree Bhattacharya, the transfer of planning, decision-making, or administrative authority from the central government to its field organizations, local administrative units, or semi-autonomous parastatal organizations is known as decentralization. It brings the government closer to the people. Mere administrative decentralization entails the delegation of functions as well as some financial powers to the local level to implement policies that cannot be implemented by central authorities. Administrative decentralization becomes more meaningful when it is combined with political decentralization. Political decentralization gives local units the power to not only carry out policies but also make their own decisions. Political decentralization empowers decentralized units not only to implement policies but also to make decisions on their own. Democratic decentralization differs from fiscal decentralization (in which funds are not only transferred to local bodies but the power to raise funds is also granted to these bodies, even if they are not necessarily elected bodies) and administrative decentralization (which envisages de- concentration and transfer of administrative power and functions from higher to lower levels). Democratic decentralization combines administrative, fiscal, and other forms of decentralization. It envisions the devolution of decision-making powers as well as funds to elected bodies at the local level. Beginning in the 1990s, the Indian model of decentralization was intended to conform to democratic decentralization. Decentralization promotes greater participation. Decentralization give opportunity to the people at lower levels to participate to a greater extent in a decision-making process. Being away from the top layer increases proximity to the base, i.e., the people. The term "decentralization" gets its democratic prefix from this participatory aspect. However, participation cannot be absolute. First, it is naive to believe that everyone in a village or rural area can sit down and decide everything. It amounts to direct democracy, which in today's world is unthinkable. Second, it is a common misconception that poor people want to participate in community decision-making while abandoning their bread-earning activities. As a result, profound socioeconomic changes are required to make decentralization truly democratic. Third, it is incorrect to believe that higher authorities are eager to promote decentralization. On the contrary, higher authorities, whether elected representatives at higher levels of government or bureaucrats, are hesitant to allow for popular governance. People's participation, therefore, has its own limitations; we cannot achieve it; we can only come close. Although participation has its limitations, it is not desirable to limit people's 3 participation to voting every five years. Democratic decentralization, at the very least, broadens the scope for citizens' active participation in local government institutions. It allows people at the local level to have a say in decisions that affect their lives. It broadens the country's democratic foundation. It is thought to be more efficient in terms of both time and money. When decisions are made at the local level, planning and implementation take place locally, the cost of development work is obviously reduced. It makes decisions more responsive to local needs. 1.4 Evolution of Rural Self-government in Pre-Independent India In their book, Public Administration in a Globalizing World, Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand wrote that India's path to new local governance seems to have been instable. There is no denying that panchayats, or village councils, have existed in India since ancient times. They were primarily 'informal bodies of village elders from dominant castes and families' assigned a variety of functions such as the provision of goods and services, the upkeep of law and order, the general welfare of the villagers, and so on. These bodies had significant autonomy in terms of organization, functions, and finances, which was bestowed upon them by village communities. Village communities had almost unrivaled freedom of action in all spheres of governance. The uniqueness of this form of governance was that it arose completely spontaneously, with no external authority ever delegating power and authority to these bodies. Furthermore, there was no uniform pattern

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

7/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 194 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 194 WORDS

this form of governance, just as there was no uniform pattern of organization in these village communities. The successive Muslim invasions and subsequent establishments of Muslim rule in India had little impact on the functioning of these village communities. Even the Mughals, who had united almost the entire subcontinent for the first time, were not eager to dismantle the localized form of governance. Instead, they were preoccupied with police and revenue issues, which they resolved with the village headmen. As a result, despite several political vicissitudes at the central level, the arrangement remained unchanged until the middle of the seventeenth century. As a result, despite several political vicissitudes at the central level, the arrangement remained unchanged until the middle of the seventeenth century. Even when the British arrived in India in the nineteenth century, this age-old form of local governance was there. Sir Charles Metcalfe's famous portrayal of this form of local governance before the House of Commons Select Committee bears clear testimony to the great tradition of local governance that existed in ancient India. In his words: The village communities are little republics, having nearly everything they can want within themselves and almost independent of any foreign relations. They seem to last where nothing else does. Dynasty after dynasty tumbles down; revolution succeeds

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

8/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

9/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 287 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 287 WORDS

revolution; but the village community remains the same. This union of the village communities, each one forming a separate little state, in itself has been conceived, contributed more than any other cause to the preservation of the people of India, through all the revolutions and changes that they have suffered, and is in a high degree conducive to their enjoyment of a great portion of freedom and independence. 4 Except for a few polemics and individual efforts by a few visionary thinkers like Tagore and Gandhi, there was no serious attempt to unlock the huge potential of these little village republics, either by the colonial rulers or by the post-colonial state. The colonial rulers of India did nothing to revive these "little village republics." The twin motives of empire building and mercantilism drove colonial intervention in local governance. In terms of local governance, the colonizers took a selective approach. In fact, in order to strengthen their goal of empire building, they built urban "centers" like Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras while leaving the rest of the country as a "periphery," serving the "center" without any development. Naturally, whatever little rural reconstruction and urban development was done during the time period was primarily for housekeeping purposes. As part of its housekeeping functions, the British colonial state implemented several constitutional measures to streamline local self-government. Among them were the Ripon Resolution of 1882, the Bengal Local Self-Government Act of 1885, and the Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919. The Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919, which provided a two-tier structure—union boards at the bottom and district boards at the top—may be regarded as the beginning of local self-government in India. Those self-governing structures, however, were neither

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

10/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

as they were marked by a perpetual resource crunch, over bureaucratization, and the dominance of local landed gentry. They remained as mere appendages of

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

11/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 135 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 135 WORDS

Summary A. This chapter examines democratic decentralization in India with the intention of examining key issues such as people's participation in governance matters, the accountability of the government to the people, delivering the fruits of development to the people, and bridging the gaps in the achievement of these objectives, i.e., implementation failures. B. Through local governments, the goal of democratic decentralization in India has not been fully achieved or completely failed. C. The colonial rulers of India did nothing to revive the panchayat. D. The twin motives of empire-building and mercantilism drove colonial intervention in local governance in India. E. The Bengal Village Self-Government Act of 1919, which provided a two-tier structure— union boards at the bottom and district boards at the top—may be regarded as the beginning of local self-government in India. 1.7

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

12/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

form of government in which each village is responsible for its own form of government in which each would be responsible for its own

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India

13/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

Glossary A. What is a panchayat? In India, the local government system is known as a panchayat.A panchayat is a group of "five people." A panchayat is a council of elders that represents a village. The Panchayat system includes villages (Gram Panchayat), clusters of villages (Block Panchayat), and districts (District Panchayat). B.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

14/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

the Panchayati Raj system? Panchayati Raj is a village-level form of government in which each village is responsible for its own activities. The Amendment Act of 1992 includes provisions for delegating powers and responsibilities to panchayats in order to prepare plans for economic development and social justice. C. What is local self-government? According to

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

15/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 65 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 65 WORDS

European Charter of Local Self-Government, "this entails the existence of local authorities endowed with democratically constituted decision-making bodies and possessing a wide degree of autonomy with regard to their responsibilities, the ways and means by which those responsibilities are exercised, and the resources required for their fulfilment". 6 1.8 Model Questions 1. How does local government strengthen democracy? 2.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

16/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 103 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 103 WORDS

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), “Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,”

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

17/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 7

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

18/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Unit II Panchyati Raj System in Post-independent period: Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

19/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

The Journey towards a Constitutional Mandate for Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) in India 2.2.1

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

20/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 148 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 148 WORDS

According to Chakrabarty & Pandey, Independence altered the power structure but not the attitude toward local government. Despite Mahatma Gandhi's repeated advocacy for Gram Swaraj, it remained a distant dream even in independent India. The framers of the 8 Constitution, inheriting the critical mindset regarding local governance, belied the hope of strong and vibrant local governance by confining it to the Directive Principles of State Policy, a non-enforceable section of the Constitution. In this context, the comments of two major architects of the modern Indian Constitution deserve some space here because both comments adequately mirror the mentality that denied local governance in India the constitutional status it deserved. Ambedkar argues: The love of the intellectual Indian for the village community is, of course, infinite, if not pathetic. It is largely due to the fulsome praise bestowed upon it by Metcalfe, who described that they want

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

21/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 91 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 91 WORDS

within themselves and almost independently of any foreign relations... That they have survived through all vicissitudes may be a fact. But mere survival has no value. The question is on what plane they have survived. Surely on a low, selfish level. I said that these village republics have been the ruin of India. I am therefore surprised that those who condemn provincialism and communalism should come forward as champions of the village. What is the village but a sink of localism, a den of ignorance, narrow-mindedness, and communalism? In similar vein, Nehru wrote: 'I do not understand why a village should necessarily embody truth and non-violence. A village, normally speaking, is backward intellectually and culturally, and no progress can be made

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

22/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

a backward environment. Narrow-minded people are much more likely to be untruthful and violent'. The dream of inclusive local governance in India had to wait nearly four decades before it was recognized in 1993. Meanwhile, there had been a few pioneering efforts, but they were mostly selective and limited to the provincial level. Among them were the Balwantrai Mehta Committee, the Ashok Mehta Committee, and democratic decentralization experiments by a few state governments, such as West Bengal, Karnataka, and Kerala. 2.3 The Journey Towards a Constitutional Mandate for Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) in India In his book, Panchayati Raj, Kuldeep Mathur wrote that, when it became clear that the bureaucraticallyorganized Community Development Programme (CDP) was underperforming, the Planning Commission appointed a Study Team led by Balwant Rai Mehta in 1956 to study and report on "Community Development Projects and National Extension Service" in order to evaluate their "economy and efficiency," as well as "the extent to which the movement has succeeded in utilizing local initiatives and creating institutions." In its report, the team argued that 9 ...community development can only be real when the community understands its problems, realizes its responsibilities, exercises the necessary powers through its chosen representatives, and maintains a constant and intelligent vigilance on local administration. It concluded that in order for these programs to be effective, a village-level agency "that could represent the entire community, assume responsibility, and provide leadership for implementing development programs" was required. The study team then proposed the now well-known three-tier structure of panchayats, ranging from the village to the district level. Direct elections were held only at the village or panchayat level in the majority of states. Through indirect elections, the other two institutions—the panchayat samiti (coinciding with development blocks) and

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

24/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	73%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

Establishment of a three-tier Panchayati Raj system, with Gram Panchayats at the village level, Panchayat Samitis at the block level, and Zila Parishads at the district level.

establishment of a three-tier Panchayati Raj system: Gram at the village level, Panchayat Samiti at the block level, and Zila Parishad at the district level.

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India

Zilla parishad (coinciding with the district)—were linked to each other and to the panchayat. Few financial powers were delegated to them, and they were dependent on the district administration to initiate any development activity in their area. Significantly, these Panchayati Raj Institutions (PRIs) were viewed as tools for plan implementation, whereas politics was viewed as a barrier to their effectiveness. Unanimity in elections was interpreted as an indicator of village consensus, and several state governments initially offered prizes to panchayats that elected their leaders unanimously. Efforts to keep politics out were supported by Gandhians, who emphasized that political parties should find other ways to serve the interests of the people rather than exploit Panchayati Raj for party ends. The experience of the early years—from 1957, when Jawaharlal Nehru inaugurated panchayati raj with great enthusiasm in a district of Rajasthan, to its decline around five years later—damped all anticipations, both of Gandhians and the government. The Gandhians' idealistic picture was significantly blurred and tarnished because the panchayat system revealed that the villages were not conflict-free; they were surrounded by group rivalry and factionalism. The expectation of a collaborative mode of operation was crushed when panchayats provided a means for dominant groups to retain power. Those who saw PRIs as development tools were disappointed to discover that the leaders were primarily interested in retaining and accumulating power, as well as delivering patronage, and were frequently embroiled in political-administrative squabbles and intrigues. In the face of more pressing issues such as droughts, food crises, and the Indo-Chinese War, attention was quickly diverted away from these institutions. As the country faced food shortages, policymakers prioritized increasing agricultural production, and they resorted to a bureaucratic strategy to meet this challenge. The recommendations in the Ford Foundation's Report on India's Food Crisis and Steps to Meet It to transform the existing agricultural situation provided significant support for this strategy. It stated unequivocally that "only a far-reaching centralized authority with a clear line of command and execution can meet the challenge of growing more food." It also stated that "the administrative structure must be simplified, and clear lines of authority and 10 responsibility must be established at all levels of government so that policy decisions are carried out at the village level." 2.3.1 The Period of Dwindle The decentralization phase (beginning in 1957) lasted about five years, during which the panchayat system received little support in its role in meeting agricultural production targets. The national policy elites believed that local political leadership did not reflect the urgency of national demands and, after questioning panchayats' role and legitimacy in the national crisis, side-lined them in the development effort. The Panchayats suffered a decline beginning in 1962, not only because the CDP, which they were enjoined to help implement, lost its financial support, but also because, in dealing with the food crisis, these institutions were not seen as a source of strength and support. However, due to the neglect of panchayats during the 1964–80 period, no elections were held while the institutions continued in their organizational form. Those who had been elected remained in their positions, wielding whatever power they could in the absence of financial resources. A large number of such locally elected leaders emerged, and they began to form political alliances with the state leadership by providing them with 'vote banks' in exchange for the ability to exercise local influence. Local vote bank politics emerged during this time period, encouraging national leaders to cater to state leaders with large vote banks. The Congress party benefited the most from this scheme, with local leaders ensuring support for the Congress leadership through a complex system of manipulation and patronage. As the Congress party—the more powerful national party—lost touch with local issues, "people-oriented" parties emerged that were regional in nature and responded to sectarian interests. These parties began to assert themselves on a national scale as well, ushering in a period of coalition governments. On the administrative front, the implementation of the new agricultural strategy to increase food production fuelled the belief that development schemes could be successful if the central government maintained control over them after promoting them and also monitored their performance to ensure they followed pre-planned guidelines. During the Fifth Five-Year Plan, which began in 1971–2, the central government introduced a series of schemes to alleviate rural poverty. These were implemented at the local level by states and district administrations but were planned and financed by the central government, which kept a close eye on implementation to ensure that it did not deviate from pre-set guidelines. The Small Farmers' Development Agency, Drought Prone Area Programme, and Integrated Tribal Development Programme, which were introduced at the time, were not administered by the Zilla parishad. These schemes became known as "centrally sponsored schemes," and the format is still used today. 11 Furthermore, while funds for panchayats were depleted, funds for departments implementing programs at the local level were increased. This strengthened the local bureaucracy, which devised its own methods of consulting the villagers when necessary. With the panchayats lacking funds and elections, the local political leadership saw an opportunity to connect with these bureaucratic functionaries and influence how direct benefits would be distributed. An analysis of the reasons for the decline of panchayats throughout this period will be incomplete unless the characteristics of the structure's poor design are also highlighted. The panchayat institutions were established through separate acts passed by the state legislatures. This meant that the nature and extent of decentralization varied according to each state's political and administrative interests. These institutions were given little planning responsibility, and few powers to raise resources were devolved to them. Instead of making them the channels for the planned programs, the government continued to carry out its own poverty alleviation programs through its bureaucratic machinery. Furthermore, state governments frequently postponed elections, demonstrating their disinterest in these institutions. Once elected, the leadership determined that such postponements were in their best interests. It is also worth noting that panchayats were not viewed as institutions of people's participation that contributed to the advancement of democracy. They were typically viewed as tools to aid in the implementation of national policy. Even during their early years of enthusiasm, their performance was measured by their ability to increase agricultural output. The national leadership perceived local panchayats as ignoring this primary task and, as a result, failing to reflect the urgency of national demands. Because panchayats did not appear to be the primary drivers of development, they were side-lined. 2.3.2 Revitalization Efforts of Panchayats The Janata Party's victory in 1977 signaled a resurgence of interest in decentralization and Panchayati Raj. The newly formed coalition of political parties attacked the Indira Gandhi regime as being highly centralized, with power concentrated in Delhi. The political climate has shifted. It signaled the rise of a political coalition with agrarian interests as key partners. These interests demanded greater control over resources as well as a more active role in state politics. Simultaneously, the new center government was concerned with issues of centralization of planning as obstacles to improving the country's developmental performance. In its Five-Year Plan for 1978–83, the Janata Party stated unequivocally that the plan would 'require the creation of full-time planning machinery at the block and district levels and will call for a great deal more public participation'. It went on to say that 'the majority of investment in agriculture, minor irrigation, animal husbandry, fishing, forestry, marketing or processing cottage and small-scale industries, including water supply, housing, health, education, sanitation, local transport, and so on, is clearly amenable to local planning'. The Planning Commission formed a working group in 1977 to develop guidelines for the country's first block-level planning. The Working Group stated from the start that "the issue 12 of whether a district or block is more appropriate for the purpose of planning need not be viewed with rigidity". They did not see it as an either-or situation, and the group saw block-level planning as an important link in the multi-level planning process. It then suggested delegating power to the district level and below, as well as establishing planning cells to ensure that professionals are available. Along with this initiative, the government of India established a second committee to review panchayat institutions. The recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee sought to develop an effective Panchayati Raj system based on the district as the unit of administration and planning. The three-tier system was modified by recommending the Mandal panchayat as the base unit. The government's goal of decentralizing planning greatly influenced the Ashok Mehta Committee, which saw panchayat institutions as institutions of local-level planning. It did, however, see panchayat institutions as political and administrative units with the potential to become local governance units in the future. According to the committee's report, there is a lack of clarity regarding these institutions, with many images existing side by side, which tend to work against each other in the short run. It proposed that the district serve as the point of decentralization and that it be given taxation powers (to raise revenue). It enabled political parties to operate at this level. It abolished the three-tier panchayat system and proposed a two-tier system with Mandal panchayats as the next tier. However, it appears that the motivation for decentralization was purely technical; the real goal was to improve the planning process and counter the accusation of "too much planning" from above. At the political level, three state governments—West Bengal, Karnataka, and Andhra Pradesh—responded to the revitalization efforts. These states were ruled by non-Congress governments, and they took advantage of the report's opportunity to breathe new life into PRIs. Regular elections were held, and some powers were devolved to panchayats and panchayat samitis in order for them to perform local functions. However, the motivation for all of this in both West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh was political. The newly elected parties were attempting to consolidate and broaden their support and spheres of influence. Under constant threat from the Center, they reasoned that strengthening local-level institutions would be one way to stand up to it. If the Left parties in West Bengal were attempting to mobilize rural areas, N.T. Rama Rao, who won elections in Andhra Pradesh on the basis of his charisma, was in desperate need of consolidating his party's influence in the countryside. There was no plan in any of these states to decentralize governance by allowing panchayats to develop into powerful and autonomous institutions of self-government. The Karnataka experiment, on the other hand, was lauded as a daring attempt at decentralization. A new type of district administrative system was tried, and there was even talk of making the district government the third tier of the federal government. This experiment, however, was short-lived. The party that initiated this program lost the elections, and the party that was elected chose to reinstate the old system. 13 2.3.3 Panchayats of the Third Generation Even after the Congress Party regained power in 1980, the concern for participatory planning persisted. The Planning Commission issued a Working Group Report on District Planning in 1982, emphasizing the importance of public participation in order to "reduce the unequal distribution of power in rural areas." It went on to express dissatisfaction with existing institutional mechanisms of democratic decentralization, seeing them as having "fallen prey to power manipulation of the rural elite" and giving rise to "what may be called inner limits to public participation". Another Planning Commission committee, established in 1985 to review existing administrative arrangements for rural development and poverty alleviation programs, submitted its report in 1985. (GoI 1985). This committee emphasized that various rural development programs would become realistic and meaningful only if people's representatives were effectively participating in local-level planning, design formulation, scheme implementation, and beneficiary selection in anti-poverty and employment- generation programs: "In order that the felt needs of the local people and the area are articulated for planning, and priorities are effectively established and implemented, there is no better instrument to meet this need than the panchayati raj institutions". 2.3.4 The Constitutional Amendment regarding panchayats With these reports in hand, then-Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi convened a series of meetings with district collectors in Bhopal, Hyderabad, Imphal, Jaipur, and Coimbatore. The government then drafted a bill along the lines of the one proposed by L.M. Singhvi as an appendix to the Ashok Mehta Committee Report. While accepting the three-tier structure in his report, Singhvi made two strong points: (i)panchayatsshould be recognized as self- governing institutions; and (ii) these institutions should be provided by the Constitution. The government agreed with these suggestions, so in 1989, the 64th Amendment Bill was put before the Lok Sabha. The bill, however, was defeated in the Rajya Sabha. The states objected to the amendment because they felt the center was intervening directly at the local level and also attempting to introduce uniformity in the country. These amendments made it mandatory for each state to establish local self-government institutions (known as Panchayati Raj Institutions, or Panchayats in rural areas) at the village, intermediate, and district levels (except for states with fewer than 20 lakh people). The amendment stated that devolutionary powers would be left to the discretion of state legislatures. According to the amendment: 14 It may by law endow the Panchayats with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of local self-government [with respect to]: a. the preparation of plans of economic development and social justice; b. the implementation of schemes for economic development and social justice as may be entrusted to them, including those in relation to matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule. The Act's provisions were not mandatory, allowing states to respond at their will. The scope of responsibilities, particularly those concerned with law and order, was excluded, and the subjects in the Eleventh Schedule were only suggested. As a result of this design, while the Constitution mandated a structure and suggested the degree of autonomy to be granted, it was up to the states to determine how the structure would function and the degree of autonomy to be granted by enacting their own legislation. However, the Act has made several significant advances in recent years. It mandated that elections be held every five years and be overseen by the State Election Commission. The gram Sabha (the village assembly) was envisioned as the deliberative body of decentralized governance and the foundation of the panchayat system, with a uniform three-tier structure. Women's empowerment was mandated by reserving one-third of all elected bodies' seats, as well as the position of chairperson in each tier. Constituency rotation was also mandated in these cases. Reservations were also made available for scheduled castes and tribes. The Act calls for the establishment of a State Finance Commission every five years to ensure adequate financial resources for panchayats. District Planning Committees were made mandatory and constitutionally recognized. In making the

Ouriginal by Turnitin

gram sabha responsible for monitoring and evaluating local-level developmental programs, the amendment represents a significant shift from previous thinking about Panchayati Raj and a step toward participatory democracy. It has also been tasked with determining who will benefit from a specific program. The amendments' participatory nature can also be found in the effort to ensure the participation in decision-making processes of citizens who are typically excluded for social, economic, or gender reasons. As a result, women and members of the scheduled castes are given preference in seating at both the assembly and the functional levels. Furthermore, the establishment of an Election Commission ensures regular elections, and the establishment of a Finance Commission ensures a statutory provision of funds that is not dependent on the political leadership of the day. District Planning Committees have also been established. The cause of the panchayats' decline in the earlier phase was attributed to infrequent elections and insufficient funds. This flaw has now been addressed. A virtual democratic revolution has occurred, with 30 lakh representatives elected at the local level every five years, of which 10 lakh are women and more than 6.5 lakh are Dalits. Women and Dalits are also serving as panchayat heads. According to Chaudhri, prior to 1994, the elected representatives closest to the voters were members of the state legislative assembly. The panchayats, with each member representing a 15 few hundred people, are now the closest to the voters. The constitutional amendments have been a significant step forward in promoting local democracy and decentralization. This can only be sustained if elections are held on a regular and timely basis. The amendment mandated elections rather than leaving them up to the whims of state governments. Until now, the record has been fairly good—even more so as state-level political parties discover panchayat elections to be a good barometer of their own rural support. Also, candidates who are running for the first time in panchayat elections see it as their first step into politics. 2.4 Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report According to Laxmikanth, in January 1957, the Government of India appointed a committee to review the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to recommend improvements. Balwantray G. Mehta was the chairman of this committee. The committee issued its report in November 1957, recommending the implementation of the scheme of "democratic decentralization," which became known as panchayati raj. Its specific recommendations are as follows: A. Establishment of a three-tier Panchayati Raj system, with Gram Panchayats at the village and Zila Parishads at the district level. These tiers should be organically linked via an indirect election device. B. The village Panchayat should be made up of directly elected members, whereas the Panchayat Samiti and Zila Parishad should be composed of indirectly elected members. C. These bodies should be in charge of all planning and development activities. D. The executive body should be the Panchayat Samiti, while the advisory, coordinating, and supervising body should be the Zila Parishad. E. The chairman of the Zila Parishad should be the district collector. F. These democratic bodies should be given genuine power and responsibility. G. Appropriate resources should be transferred to these bodies to allow them to carry out their functions and fulfill their responsibilities. H. A system for future devolution of authority should be developed. 2.5

SA ayan Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

26/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 143 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 143 WORDS

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

27/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 122 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 122 WORDS

In January 1958, the National Development Council accepted the committee's recommendations. The Council did not insist on a single rigid pattern, instead allowing states 16 to develop their own patterns appropriate to local conditions. However, the fundamental principles and broad fundamentals should be the same across the country. Rajasthan was the first to implement Panchayati Raj. On October 2, 1959, the Prime Minister launched the scheme in Nagaur district. Rajasthan was followed by Andhra Pradesh, which implemented the system in 1959 as well. Following that, the majority of states adopted the system. Though most states had established Panchayati Raj institutions by the mid-1960s, there were differences between states in terms of the number of tiers, the relative position of samiti and parishad, their tenure, composition, functions, finances, and so on. Chakrabarty and Chand opined that the Balwantrai Mehta Committee report failed to revitalize panchayats as local governance institutions. A number of factors could have led to this. First, the study's motivation was to legitimize central government-led development programs rather than to establish panchayats as a legitimate body of community participation. Second, the Balwantrai Mehta Committee's failure was also influenced by the government and administration's elitist apathy toward panchayats. 2.6

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

28/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 82 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 82 WORDS

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

29/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

The cause of the panchayats' decline in the early phase after India's independence was attributed to infrequent elections and insufficient funds.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

30/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

In January 1957, the Government of India appointed a committee to review the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to recommend improvements. C. Balwantray G. Mehta was the chairman of this committee.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

31/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

in 1957 to study the implementation of the Community Development Plan (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) in to examine the work of the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953),

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India

32/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 46% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

Balwant Rai Mehta Committee The Government of India created the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee in 1957 to study the implementation of the Community Development Plan (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to

Balwant Rai Mehta Committee was a committee appointed by the Government of in to examine the working of the Community Development Programme (1952) and the National Extension Service (1953) and to

W https://zdocs.tips/doc/panchayat-raj-system-in-7p4mw5qj5xpj

33/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

The committee issued its report in November 1957, recommending the implementation of the scheme of "democratic decentralization," which became known as panchayati raj. 2.7

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

34/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

Model Questions A. How does local government strengthen democracy? B. PRIs in India are facing multifarious problems. Explain them. C.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

35/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 103 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 103 WORDS

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), “Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,”

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

36/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 18

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

37/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

G.V.K. Rao 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee 3.6Sarkaria Commission 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee 3.8

G.V.K. Rao Committee 1985 Dr. L.M. Singhvi Committee 1986 P.K. Thungon Committee 1989

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India

38/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 10 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 10 WORDS

Unit-III Asoke Mehta Committee and others: Background and Recommendations

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

39/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

Mehta Committee: Recommendations 3.4 The Committee of G.V.K. Rao 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee 3.6Sarkaria Commission 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee 3.8

SA uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

40/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

Conclusion 3.10Summary 3.11 Glossary 3.12Model Questions 3.13References 3.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, you will be able to

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

41/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	40 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	40 WORDS

The Janata Government appointed a committee on Panchayati Raj institutions in December 1977, chaired by Ashok Mehta. It submitted its report in August 1978, making 132 recommendations to revive and strengthen the country's declining Panchayati Raj system. 3.3

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

42/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 621 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 621 WORDS

Its main recommendations are as follows: A. The three-tier Panchayati Raj system should be replaced by a two-tier system consisting of a Zila Parishad at the district level and a Mandal Panchayat consisting of a group of villages covering a population of 15,000 to 20,000. B. A district should be the starting point for decentralization below the state level, under popular supervision. C. The Zila Parishad should be the executive body and be in charge of district-level planning. D. Political parties should be allowed to participate in panchayat elections at all levels. E. In order to mobilize their own financial resources, Panchayati Raj institutions should have mandatory taxation powers. F. A district-level agency and a legislative committee should conduct a regular social audit to ensure that funds designated for vulnerable social and economic groups are actually spent on them. G. The Panchayati Raj institutions should not be superseded by the state government. In the event of an urgent supersession, an election must be held within six months of the date of supersession. H. The Nyaya Panchayats must be kept separate from the development panchayats. They should be presided over by a judge who is fully competent. I. The Panchayati Raj elections should be organized and conducted by the state's Chief Electoral Officer in consultation with the Chief Election Commissioner. J. Development functions should be transferred to the Zila Parishad, and all development personnel should work under its control and supervision. 20 K. Voluntary organizations should play an important role in mobilizing public support for Panchayati Raj. L. A Panchayati Raj minister should be appointed to the state council of ministers to oversee the affairs of the Panchayati Raj institutions. M. Seats for SCs and STs should be allocated based on population. Due to the Janata government's collapse before the end of its term, no action could be taken at the central level on the recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee. However, the three states of Karnataka, West Bengal, and Andhra Pradesh took steps to revitalize the Panchayati Raj, taking into account some of the Ashok Mehta Committee's recommendations. 3.4 The Committee of G.V.K. Rao The Planning Commission established the Committee on Administrative Arrangements for Rural Development and Poverty Alleviation Programs in 1985, chaired by G.V.K. Rao. The Committee concluded that the development process was gradually bureaucratized and separated from Panchayati Raj.This phenomenon of bureaucratization of development administration as opposed to democratization weakened Panchayati Raj institutions, which turned panchayats into "grass without roots."As a result, the committee made these recommendations to strengthen and revitalize the Panchayati Raj system. A. The district-level body, the Zila Parishad, should be central to the democratic decentralization scheme. According to the document, "the district is the proper unit for planning and development, and the Zila Parishad should become the primary body for management of all development programs that can be handled at that level". B. Panchayati Raj institutions at the district and lower levels should be given a significant role in rural development programs, like planning, implementation, and monitoring. C. For effective decentralized district planning, some planning functions at the state level should be transferred to district level planning units. D. A District Development Commissioner position should be established. He should serve as the Zila Parishad's chief executive officer and be in charge of all district- level development departments. E. Elections to Panchayati Raj institutions should take place on a regular basis. It was discovered that elections for one or more tiers were overdue in eleven states. 21 Thus, in its scheme of decentralized field administration, the committee acknowledges a leading role

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

43/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

the Panchayati Raj in local planning and development.
The GV.K. Rao Committee Report (1986) differed

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

from the Dantwala Committee Report on Block-Level Planning (1978) and the Hanumantha Rao Committee Report on District Planning (1984). Both committees have recommended that the basic decentralized planning function be performed at the district level. 3.5 L.M. Singhvi Committee The L.M. Singhvi was appointed chairman of a committee on the "Revitalization of Panchayati Raj Institutions for Democracy and Development' by the Rajiv Gandhi government in 1986. It made the following suggestions: A. The institutions of Panchayati Raj should be constitutionally recognized, protected, and preserved. A new chapter in the Indian Constitution should be added for this purpose. As a result, their identity and integrity will be reasonably and substantially protected. It also proposed constitutional amendments to ensure Panchayati Raj elections are held on a regular, free, and fair basis. B. There should be Nyaya Panchayats for groups of villages. C. Reorganization of villages to make Gram Panchayats more viable. It also emphasized the Gram Sabha's significance, referring to it as the embodiment of direct democracy. D. Financial resources for village panchayats should be increased. E. In each state, judicial tribunals should be established to resolve disputes over the election of Panchayati Raj institutions, their dissolution, and other issues concerning their operation. 3.6 Sarkaria Commission The Sarkaria Commission (1988) was evaluating the federal structure, particularly with regard to center-state relations, and made a passing remark in its report on the nature of rural and urban local self-government. The Commission found that many local self-governing bodies were not functioning effectively owing to the fact that elections to these bodies were being phased out. The Commission also emphasized the need for uniformity of law in the states regarding the holding of periodic elections and supersessions of Panchayat Raj bodies. 3.7 P.K. Thungon Committee In 1989, under the chairmanship of Dr. P.K. Thungon, a subcommittee of the Parliamentary Consultative Committee attached to the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances, and

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

45/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 112 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 112 WORDS

formed to consider the type of political and administrative structure required in district planning. The Committee reported that the PRIs should be continuously recognized 22 and recommended that a constitutional provision be made to ensure timely and regular elections to these bodies, with terms of five years. According to the subcommittee, the Zilla Parishad should be the district's sole planning and development agency. It also recommended the formation of a planning and coordination committee at the state level under the leadership of the prime minister, with the presidents of the ZP serving as committee members. 3.8 V.N. Gadgil Committee The Indian National Congress also set up a committee

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

46/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

led by V.N. Gadgil and called the Committee on Policy and Programs. Its task was to figure out how to make PRIs work better. The Committee proposed a three-tier system of

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

47/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

reservation of constituencies for SC/STs and women to ensure adequate representation for the weaker sections, a five-year tenure for PRIs, and the establishment of a state finance commission. 3.9

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

48/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

Ashok Mehta submitted its report in August 1978, making 132 recommendations to revive and strengthen the Panchayati Raj system.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

49/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

Panchayati Raj institutions at the district and lower levels should be given a significant role in rural development programs, like planning, implementation, and monitoring. C. Both the Dantwala Committee and the Hanumantha Rao Committee have recommended that the basic decentralized planning function be performed at the district level. 3.11

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

50/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 64% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

the country's waning Panchayati Raj system. The Indian states of Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, and West Bengal

SA MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx (D144277369)

51/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 103 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 103 WORDS

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), “Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,”

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

52/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 24

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

53/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 56% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act 4.4 Conclusion 4.5 Summary 4.6 Glossary 4.7 Model Questions 4.8References 4.1 Learning Objectives By reading this unit, you will be able to

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

54/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

The 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act of 1992 is regarded as a turning point in the history of Indian local government.By granting it the much-desired constitutional status, it has effectively transformed the age-old tradition and institution of local government from a dependent to an independent status. This Act added Part-IX to the Indian Constitution. It is titled "The Panchayats" and contains provisions ranging from articles 243 to 243-0. Furthermore, the Act added the Eleventh Schedule to the Constitution. 4.3

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

55/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 54 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 54 WORDS

Act has given practical form to Article 40 of the Constitution, which states that "the state shall take steps to organize village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government." This article is part of the Directive Principles of state laws establishing the new Panchayati Raj system. The voluntary provisions, on the other hand, may be included at the states' discretion. Thus, the Act's voluntary provisions ensure that states have the right to consider local factors such as geographical, political, and administrative factors when implementing the new Panchayati Raj system.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

56/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 42% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

SA Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx (D141689289)

57/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 578 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 578 WORDS

The following are the Act's most notable features: Fixed Structure It outlined a three-tiered structure at the village, intermediate, and district levels. It also stated that an intermediary panchayat may not be formed in a state with a population of less than twenty lakhs. This consistent pattern of PRIS was required to reduce the structural confusion that existed prior to the amendment period (Article 243B). The Continuity The Amendment states unequivocally that PRIS will be in place for a fixed period of five years from the date of its first meeting. If a panchayat is dissolved and a new election is held, the newly elected panchayat is only required to serve for the remaining portion of the five- year term. An election must be held within six months of the date of dissolution(See Article 243 E). All of this was necessary to ensure panchayat continuity and to reduce the possibility of long-term supersessions of elected panchayats on political. Functions and authority The state legislature may grant the panchayats the powers and authority required for them to function as self-governing institutions. Such a scheme may include provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities to Panchayats at the appropriate level in relation to the preparation of plans for economic development and social justice; and (ii) the implementation of schemes for economic development and social justice entrusted to them, including those relating to the 29 matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule. 26 Representativeness The Amendment Act mandated that seats be reserved for the SC/ST population and women at all levels of panchayats. Article 243D provides for the reservation of seats for SC and ST in each panchayat based on their proportion to the total population of that panchayat, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in the panchayat through rotation. At least one-third of all panchayat seats, including those reserved for SC/ST, shall be reserved for women, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in a panchayat by rotation. This was an enabling provision that allowed previously marginalized groups to be represented in panchayats. The article also stated that when the period specified in Article 334 expires, the reservation of seats for SC/ST will cease to have any effect. Subclause 6 stated that state legislatures can reserve seats in panchayats for backward citizens and that nothing shall prevent them from doing so. Clause (1) of Article 244 expanded political space for the marginalized. The Panchayats (Extension to Scheduled Areas) Act, 1996, was enacted by Parliament to extend the 73rd Amendment to scheduled areas (PESA).

PESA is supposed to apply in eight states: Andhra Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Gujarat, Maharashtra, Bihar, Odisha, and Himachal Pradesh. Responsibility The provision of the gram Sabha aims to increase the elected representatives' accountability at the local level. According to Article 243A, a gram sabha may exercise at the village level such powers and functions as the legislature of a state may provide by law.Article 243 defined gram sabha as a body comprised of persons registered in the electoral rolls relating to a village comprised within the area of panchayat at the village level. The Gram Sabha is the only forum where all citizens can participate, debate, criticize, reject, and approve proposals made by gram panchayats. Gram Sabhas acts as a watchdog, provide transparency to panchayat activities, and increase accountability at the grassroots level. Appointment of the State Election Commission Article 243

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

our Constitution empowers state governors to appoint a State Election Commission. This body will be in charge of overseeing panchayat elections. This was necessary in order to free the panchayats from the clutches of the state bureaucracy and governmental machinery. Finances The state legislature may: (i)authorize a panchayat to levy, collect, and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; (ii) delegate duty to a panchayat for the collection of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees which are collected by the state government; (iii) provide for grants-in-aid to 27 panchayats from the state's Consolidated Fund; and (iv) establish funds for providing money to the Panchyats. Appointment of the State Finance Commission The governors of states are also empowered to form the State Finance Commission (Article 243L) to review the financial position of panchayats and make recommendations to the governor on financial matters such as the allocation of funds and finances between states and PRIs, as well as grants-in-aid to PRIs. PRIS cannot function as viable units unless they have a strong financial foundation. Structure of the District Planning Committee Under Article 243ZD of the Constitution, district planning committees (DPcs) are to be established at the district level in every state except Meghalaya, Mizoram, J&K, Nagaland, and the National Capital of Delhi, under Article 243ZD of the Constitution, to consolidate the plans prepared by panchayats and municipalities in the district and to prepare a draft plan for the district. The state legislature will pass legislation governing the composition of DPCs and how seats will be filled. Eleventh Schedule It includes the following twenty-nine functional elements that are within the scope of panchayats: Agriculture, as well as agricultural extension, Land enhancement, land reform implementation, land consolidation, and soil conservation, Water management, minor irrigation, and watershed development, Animal husbandry, dairying, and poultry production, Fisheries, Farm forestry and social forestry, Minor Forest yields, Small-scale enterprises, such as the food processing industry, Village and cottage industries, as well as Khadi, Housing in the rural area, Drinking Water, Fodder and fuel, Roads, culverts, bridges, ferries, and waterways, as well as other modes of communication, Rural electrification, including electricity distribution, Renewable energy sources, Poverty Reduction Program, Primary and secondary education, Technical education and vocational training,Adult education and non- formal education, Libraries, Cultural pursuits, Fairs and markets, Hospitals, primary health care centers, and dispensaries, health and sanitation facilities,

Family welfare, Women's and children's development, Social welfare, including disabled and mentally impaired welfare, The welfare of the lower classes, particularly the scheduled castes and tribes, Public Distribution System, maintenance of community assets. Provisions that are Compulsory and Voluntary Now, we shall separate between the obligatory (obligatory or compulsory) and voluntary (discretionary or optional) elements (features) of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act (1992), or the Part IX of the Constitution: 28 A. Mandatory Provisions A. Gram Sabha organization in a village or group of villages. B. Establishment of village, intermediate, and district panchayats. C. Elections to all panchayat seats at the village, intermediate, and district levels. D. Indirect elections for panchayat chairpersons at the intermediate and district levels. E. The minimum age for standing in panchayat elections should be 21 years old. F. Reservation of seats (both members and chairpersons) in panchayats at all three levels for SCS and STS. G. Reservation of one-third of panchayat seats (both members and chairpersons) for women at all three levels. H. Establishing a five-year term for panchayats at all levels, with new elections held within six months following the supersession of any panchayat. I. Establishment of a State Election Commission to oversee panchayat elections. J. Establishment of a State Finance Commission to assess the financial status of the panchayats every five years. B. Optional Provisions A. Providing representation to members of Parliament (both Houses) and the state legislature (both Houses) in the panchayats at different levels within their respective constituencies. B. Making seats (both members and chairpersons) available for backward classes in panchayats at any level. C. Delegating powers and authority to panchayats in order for them to act as self- governing entities (in brief, making them autonomous bodies). D. Devolution of authorities and duties to panchayats to formulate plans for economic growth and social justice, as well as to undertake some or all of the twenty-nine activities stated in the Eleventh Schedule of the Constitution. 29 E. Delegating financial authority to panchayats, allowing them to charge, collect, and allocate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees. Articles about the Panchayat Serial Number Article Number What it's about 01 243 Definitions 02 243A Gram Sabha 03 243B Constitution of panchayats 04 243C Composition of panchayats 05 243D Reservation of seats 06 243E Duration of panchayats, and so on 07 243F Disqualifications for membership 08 243G Powers, authority and responsibilities of panchayats 09 243H Powers to impose taxes by, and funds of, the panchayats 10 243I Constitution of finance commission to review financial position 11 243J Audit of accounts of panchayats 12 243K Elections to the panchayats 13 243L Application to union territories 14 243M Part not to apply to certain areas 15 243N Continuance of existing laws and panchayats 16 243O Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters 4.4

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

59/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 74 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 74 WORDS

The Act gives Panchayati Raj institutions a constitutional status. It has brought them under the jurisdiction of the Constitution's justiciable section. In other words, state governments are mandated by the Constitution to implement the new Panchayati Raj system in accordance with the Act's provisions. As a result, neither the formation of panchayats nor the holding of elections at regular intervals is any more dependent on the will of the state government. The Act

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

60/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

is a watershed moment in the country's evolution of grassroots democratic institutions. It shifts from representative to participatory democracy. Building democracy at the grassroots level in this country is a revolutionary idea. 4.5

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

61/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 58 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 58 WORDS

The 73rd Amendment Act gives Panchayati Raj institutions a constitutional status. 30 B. The 73rd amendment made it mandatory for each state to establish Local Self- Government Institutions (known as Panchayati Raj Institutions, or Panchayats in rural areas) at the village, intermediate, and district levels (except for states with fewer than 20 lakh people).

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

62/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 99 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 99 WORDS

The Amendment Act mandated that seats be reserved for the SC/ST population and women at all levels of panchayats. D. At least one-third of all panchayat seats, including those reserved for SC/ST, shall be reserved for women, and such seats may be allotted to different constituencies in a panchayat by rotation. E. The article also stated that when the period specified in Article 334 expires, the reservation of seats for SC/ST will cease to have any effect. F. The state legislature will pass legislation governing the composition of DPCs and how seats will be filled.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

63/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

The Constitutional Amendments have been a significant step forward in promoting local democracy and decentralization. 4.6 Glossary 73 rd Constitutional Amendment Act:

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

64/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

democracy at the grassroots level, as it is at the state or national level." 4.7

SA Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

65/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Discuss the basic features of the 73 rd Amendment Act. B. What were the main differences between the local governments before 73rd amendment and after that amendment? 4.8

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

66/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

67/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 65 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 65 WORDS

George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). 31 Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

68/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed. Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011).

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

69/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Unit-V The Impact of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act on India's Panchayat Raj Institutions

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

70/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Panchayat Raj) 5.4 Conclusion 5.5 Summary 5.6 Glossary 5.7 Model Questions 5.8References 5.1 Learning Objectives Following completion of this unit, you should be able to:

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

71/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 100 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 100 WORDS

According to Bhattacharya, panchayats in the post-73rd Amendment era have a uniform structure. They were able to institutionalize and strengthen panchayats. However, while structural impediments removed, procedural flaws remain. Elections are held on a regular basis. With a few exceptions, most states passed their Conformity Acts within one year of being directed and began preparing for elections. Today, over 21 lakh representatives are elected to three tiers of panchayats. More than 40% of these are women, 16% are SCs, and 32 11% are STs, making India the largest democratic country with the broadest democratic base possible. 5.3

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

Women, SCs, and STs have gained access to Panchayati Raj institutions as a result of the reservation. Without this, panchayats would remain in the hands of rural elites, as they had previously. Despite this, some provisions are causing practical difficulties and should be reconsidered. With reservation many people who come to power are first-timers with little experience. Many of the chairpersons are inexperienced, and bureaucracy usurps their power and functions and exerts indirect control over them. The concept of rotation prescribed by the Act in relation to reserved seats has created some complications. It is stated that seats shall be allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a panchayat at the end of every five years. If this policy is followed, no such candidate will have the opportunity to be re-elected to that seat a second time, as it is highly unlikely that these people will be allowed to contest from the same seat once the reservation is removed. If we assume that the majority of the reserved candidates are first-timers with little experience, many of these first-timers will also be last- timers, and by the time they gain experience, it will be time for them to leave office. It could be argued, however, that even if he or she is not re-elected, the exposure and experience which he or she get when in office, will not only empower but also raise their awareness levels. A woman or a person of a lower caste who is elected for at least one term is no longer the same ignorant person as before. He or she is likely to be more aware, confident, and involved in all collective matters. One of the goals of the 73rd Amendment was to find a way to incorporate common people into the political process and give them an opportunity to say in policymaking through the establishment of gram sabhas as key institutions. Several suggestions for revitalizing the gram sabhas were made. The Government of India declared 1999–2000 the Year of Gram Sabha in order to popularize the concept among the people. However, it has been discovered in many cases that gram sabhas, which were supposed to be the pivot of panchayati raj in the new dispensation, have not received adequate attention. First, gram sabhas are typically comprised of one large village or two to three villages combined, making the gathering exceptionally large. Participation in such large gatherings is meaningless. Villagers are often hesitant to express their needs and priorities in front of such a large crowd. As a result, only those in positions of authority speak, while the rest are merely observers.According to recommendations, the size of gram sabhas should be reduced. West Bengal, for example, established smaller units known as gram Sansads or ward sabhas to serve this purpose. If their size is reduced, not only will the gram sabhas become a more cohesive body, but it will also be easier for the villagers to attend such meetings. They now have to travel long distances to attend the meeting, which act as a deterrent to participate on those meeting. Ward sabhas should therefore be formed everywhere. Second, gram sabhas do not meet very frequently.The Constitution stipulates that it should meet at least twice a year. Unfortunately, the minimum is misconstrued as the maximum, and the majority of sabhas are only met twice. If they do not meet more frequently, it will be impossible for them to contribute meaningfully to the village's affairs. 33 The devolution of funds and functionaries is one of the prerequisites for successful decentralization. Decentralized units must have autonomy in carrying out their functions. They will continue to rely on the state and bureaucracy unless they have adequate funds and functionaries.PRIs are constitutionally mandated, but they do not have the necessary fuel because there is neither adequate financing from above nor adequate mobilization from below.The economic backwardness of the masses made local fund mobilization extremely challenging. Many Indian states have devolved as many as twenty-nine subjects to the PRIS; some have devolved fewer subjects, but most PRIS lack adequate funds and functionaries for functional devolution. There should be a clear understanding that local governments are self-governing institutions, not just delivery agencies. Another issue is that there is a lack of coordination and harmonious understanding among the three tiers of PRIS with regard to which functions will be carried out by which strata of PRI. Regarding the devolution of functionaries, it is frequently asserted that PRIS lacks sufficient functionaries. Gram panchayats with only one secretary and one job assistant are especially affected by the problem. The 73rd Amendment envisioned not only the administration of development projects by PRIS but also the initiation of planning at the local level. The 73rd Amendment mandated that the states establish their District Planning Committees (DPCs) and move toward decentralized planning. The DPCs were tasked with developing district-wide composite plans. Unfortunately, many states are still hesitant to set up DPC in their own states, stifling the idea of planning from the bottom up. Some states haven't set up their own DPCS yet. These include Andhra Pradesh, Gujarat, Haryana, Punjab, Tripura, Uttar Pradesh, Uttaranchal, Maharashtra, and Jharkhand. It is necessary to develop political will in order to properly implement these measures. The states have yet to take grassroots planning seriously. The Kerala People's Plan model, which was started in 1996 with the goal of giving local bodies and local people more power, was well-received and could be used in other states with minor changes, if needed. Another source of concern is the rise of parallel bodies in many states, which are infringing on PRIS's constitutionally mandated authority. It produces a division between functions and responsibilities. Some see it as an opportunity to ensure village development through the participation of alternative bodies, while others believe that the duality it creates leads to distracted efforts and wasteful expenditure. Some are concerned that these bodies are usurping the role of democratically elected and constitutionally established PRIs. The parallel bodies that were running in different states alongside the PRIs included the Gram Vikas Samitis in Haryana, the Janmabhoomi scheme in Andhra Pradesh, and the users' groups in Uttar Pradesh. The District Rural Development Agency is the most common parallel body (DRDAs). They were founded in the early 1980s and receive funding directly from central government programs. After 1993, when elected panchayats were established, the DRDAs continued to exist as parallel bodies, receiving funds from the central government. Creating such parallel bodies violates both the letter and spirit of the 73rd Amendment. It undermines panchayats, which are legally empowered to perform a variety of functions. Capacity building, as it is commonly known today, must be applied to panchayat members and villagers. It entails complete awareness of the entire panchayati raj system, proper training in panchayat activities, education of rural development schemes, fiscal prudence, 34 behavioural changes, and so on. They would be unable to make the best use of the Constitutional Amendment without all of this. Training and capacity-building initiatives are currently insufficient. Neo-literates, women, and underprivileged groups should be prioritized.Neo-literates, women, and underprivileged groups should be prioritized. Databases should be created and updated on a regular basis to pool all national, state, and district-level resources. States have already implemented e-government for panchayats. If properly implemented, it will have a positive impact on panchayats' delivery of services. It may also facilitate information sharing, which is currently very limited. For public accountability, official records should be made more accessible. When voters and elected representatives at the local level are so poorly informed, democratic decentralization cannot have a significant impact. 5.4 Conclusion Decentralization has its own possibilities. Instead of opposing PRIS in India, we must eliminate the obstacles in its way and ensure its success by removing the obstructions. India's Panchayati Raj has come a long way despite its flaws. It is nevertheless plagued by insufficient funds, a lack of citizen participation in planning, the ongoing weakness of gram sabhas, and administrative intervention. Despite these challenges, it is obvious that PRIs have contributed to an extraordinary expansion of the democratic basis of our nation. Thousands of men and women have occupied positions of authority that were formerly unimaginable. It emancipated women, Dalits, tribals, and others who had previously been completely marginalized. Today, they have the power to alter the focus of development. This lets them take care of their own needs and priorities and brings about development of their own communities. This is a significant accomplishment and a source of optimism for the panchayat system. Additionally, the PRIS has fostered the concept of participatory decision-making and devotion to community interests. This culture of collective approach should penetrate the consciousness of the people. Only then would they take an interest in panchayat operations and strive for their success. 5.5 Summary A.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

73/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	22 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	22 WORDS

After 1993, when elected panchayats were established, the DRDAs continued to exist as parallel bodies, receiving funds from the central government.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

74/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

Instead of opposing PRIS in India, we must eliminate the obstacles in its way and ensure its success by removing the obstructions.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

75/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS

India's Panchayati Raj has come a long way despite its flaws.

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

76/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

This is a significant accomplishment and a source of optimism for the panchayat system. 35 5.6 Glossary The

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

77/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

What are the problems that first-generation panchayats faced in India? Do you think the post-73 rd Amendment period was an improvement over it?

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

78/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 162 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 162 WORDS

What is democratic decentralization? Examine democratic decentralization in the context of the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act for Panchayats. 5.8 References Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand Kandpal, Public Administration in a Globalizing World: Theories and Practise, 2e (New Delhi: Sage, 2020). Bidyut Chakrabarty and Prakash Chand, Public Administration: From Government to Governance (Hyderabad: The Orient Blackswan, 2017). B.S.Baviskarand George Mathew (eds.) Inclusion and Exclusion in Local Governance: Field Studies from Rural India (New Delhi: SAGE Publications, 2009). Nirja Gopal Jayal, Amit Prakash and Pradeep K. Sharma (eds.) Local Governance in India: Decentralization and Beyond (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2007). Kuldeep Mathur, Panchayati Raj (New Delhi: Oxford University Press, 2013). Moitree Bhattacharya (Mukhopadhyay), "Democratic Decentralization and Panchayati Raj,"inContemporary India, Economy, Society, Politics, ed.Neera Chandhoke and Praveen Priyadarshi (New Delhi: Pearson Education India, 2009). M. Laxmikanth, Public Administration (New Delhi: Tata McGraw Hill Education, 2011). 36

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

79/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 48% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

raj 1.5. Conclusion 1.6. Summary 1.7. Key words 1.8. Model questions 1.9. References 1.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES After studying this unit, one should be able to- • The background of rural local government in India

SA ayan_Democratic Decentralization and the Panchayati Raj in India.docx (D146801947)

80/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee, the Asoka Mehta Committee instead suggested a two-tier structure of Panchayati raj. The two tiers were to be- 1. Zila Parishad at the Balwant Rai Mehta Committee, the Asoka Mehta Committee suggested a two tier structure of panchayati raj. These two-tiers were to be: • zila parishad at

W https://edenias.com/panchayati-raj-institutions-gs-articles/

81/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

district level. 2. Mandal panchayat, an administrative unit between village panchayat and panchayat Samiti. In the two-tier system, the district level; • mandal panchayat, an administrative unit between village panchayat and panchayat samiti. • In the two-tier system, the

W https://edenias.com/panchayati-raj-institutions-gs-articles/

82/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the earlier committee report. The recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee the earlier committee report. • However the recommendations of the Ashok Mehta Committee

W https://edenias.com/panchayati-raj-institutions-gs-articles/

83/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

states like Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and Tamil Nadu halted elections. At the same time, many new agencies were set up by the Central Government like -District Rural Development Agency, to take up development programmes in collaboration with the State Governments, States like Bihar, Uttar Pradesh and Tamil Nadu did not hold elections to panchayats for long. At the same time, many new agencies were set up by the Central Government like -District Rural Development Agency, to take up development programmes in collaboration with the State Governments,

W https://www.flexiprep.com/NIOS-Notes/Senior-Secondary/Political-Science/NIOS-Political-Science-Un ...

84/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS
a three-tier structure based on direct elections at all three tiers: • Village • Intermediate (			a three- tier structure based on direct elections at all the three tiers: village, intermediate

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

85/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS
members of the State Legislature and Parliament may also be represented in			members of the State Legislature and Parliament may also be represented in

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

86/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	10 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	10 WORDS
The middle-level panchayats are generally known as Panchayat Samitis			The middle-level panchayats are generally known as Panchayat Samitis.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

87/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS
Provisions have been made for the inclusion of the chairpersons of the village panchayats in the block and district-level panchayats. The reservation policy of			Provisions have been made for the inclusion of the chairpersons of the village panchayats in the block and district level panchayats. The provision regarding reservation of

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

88/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	95%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS
one-third of total seats being reserved for women, and one-third for women out of the Quota fixed for Scheduled Castes/Tribes. Reservation is also provided for offices of Chairpersons.			one-third of total seats are reserved for women, and one-third for women out of the Quota fixed for Scheduled Castes/Tribes. Reservation is also provided for offices of Chairpersons.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

89/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS
The reserved seats are at times allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a panchayat area			The reserved seats are allotted by rotation to different constituencies in a panchayat area.

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

90/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

State Legislatures can provide for further reservation for other backward classes (OBC) in panchayats

State Legislatures can provide for further reservation for other backward classes (OBC) in panchayats.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

91/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

The Amendment provides for the continuous existence of panchayats. The normal term of a panchayat is five years. If a panchayat is dissolved earlier, elections are held within six months.

The Amendment provides for the continuous existence of Panchayats. The normal term of a Panchayat is five years. If a Panchayat is dissolved earlier, elections are held within six months.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

92/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

electoral rolls, and declaration of results. (ii) Powers and responsibilities of panchayats State Legislatures electoral rolls and conduct of elections to panchayats. (ii) Powers and responsibilities of panchayats State Legislatures

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

93/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

agriculture, primary and secondary education, health and sanitation, drinking water, rural housing, the welfare of weaker sections, social forestry and agriculture, primary and secondary education, health and sanitation, drinking water, rural housing, the welfare of weaker sections, social forestry and

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

94/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 39 WORDS 50% MATCHING TEXT 39 WORDS

three levels of Panchayati raj- • the Gram Panchayats at the village level. • the Mandal Parishad or Block Samiti or Panchayat Samiti at the block level. • the Zila Parishad at the district level. 38

SA final PRI and MGNREGA .docx (D146921272)

95/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

Three-tier Structure of Panchayati Raj i) Panchayats at Village Level: This is the basic or grassroots level of Panchayati raj. The panchayat for a village or a group of villages includes

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

96/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

is an important feature of the 73rd amendment. Gram Sabha consists of all adult residents within a village or group of villages. Due to this fact it is the only institution of direct democracy in the country

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

97/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Generally, two meetings of Gram Sabha are held every year. In these meetings, the Gram Sabha as the general body of the people hears annual statements of accounts, audits or administrative reports of panchayats

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

98/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

It also recommends new development projects to be undertaken by panchayats for the development of the

SA uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

99/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

It also helps in identifying poor people in the village so that they may be given economic assistance

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

100/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

b) Gram Panchayat- The lower tier of the Panchayati raj system in the country is the village-level panchayat. It is known in most States as Gram Panchayat. The members of a Gram Panchayat are directly elected by the people

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

101/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

The number of members of a Gram Panchayat is fixed on the basis of

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

102/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

held on the basis of a single-member constituency. There is a reservation for one-third of the total number of seats for women, and some for Scheduled Castes and Tribes including one-third for women of Scheduled Castes and Tribes. Chairpersons of Gram Panchayats are called by different names in different States as 'Sarpanch, Pradhan or President. There is a Vice-Chairperson also

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

103/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

Both are elected by members of the panchayat. Gram Panchayats generally hold their meetings once a month

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

104/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Panchayats at all levels constitute committees for transactions of their business

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

105/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

that settled local disputes. They are set up to provide speedy and inexpensive justice

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

106/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

jurisdiction of Nyaya Panchayat varies from State to State – one such panchayat is set up for five or more-gram panchayats

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

107/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

panchayats. Their tenure is between 3 and 5 years, as determined by State law. Nyaya Panchayats generally deal with petty civil and criminal cases and

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

108/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

Panchayat Samiti: The second or middle tier of the Panchayati raj is Panchayat Samiti which acts as a bridge between Gram Panchayat and a Zila Parishad. The strength of a Panchayat Samiti also 42 depends on the population in a samiti area

Panchayat Samiti The second or middle tier of the Panchayati Raj is Panchayat Samiti, which a link between Gram Panchayat and a Zila Parishad. The strength of a Panchayat Samiti also depends on the population in a Samiti area.

W https://www.slideshare.net/prem1790/panchayati-raj-89640583

109/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

There are no lawyers to plead the cases in Nyaya Panchayat

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

110/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

In Panchayat Samiti, some members are directly elected. Sarpanchs/pradhans of gram panchayats are ex-officio members of Panchayat Samitis. However, not all the sarpanches of Gram Panchayats are members of Panchayat Samitis at the same time. The number varies from State to State and is

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

111/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

only chairpersons of some Gram Panchayats in a Samiti area are members of Panchayat Samiti at a time. In some panchayats, members of Legislative Assemblies and Legislative Councils as well as members of Parliament who belong to the Samiti area are co-opted as its members

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

112/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

Zila Parishad is the uppermost tier of the Panchayati raj system. This institution has some directly elected members whose number differs from State to State as it is also based on population. Chairpersons of Panchayat Samitis are ex-officio members of Zila Parishads. Members of Parliament, Legislative Assemblies and Councils belonging to the districts are often nominated members of Zila Parishads

Zila Parishad or district is the uppermost tier of the Panchayati Raj system. This institution has some directly elected members whose number differs from State to State as it is also based on population. Chairpersons of Panchayat Samitis are ex-officio members of Zila Parishads. Members of Parliament, Legislative Assemblies and Councils belonging to the districts are also nominated members of Zila Parishads.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

113/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Chairpersons of Panchayat Samitis are, generally elected from among the directly elected members

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

114/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The chairperson of a Zila Parishad, called Adhyaksha or President, is elected from among the directly elected members

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

115/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

politicisation of administration, entry of criminal elements in the elected bodies, rampant corruption, caste and group division, priority to self-interest over public welfare and electoral malpractices

politicisation of administration, entry of criminal elements in the elected bodies, rampant corruption, caste and group division, priority to self interest over public welfare and electoral malpractices.

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

116/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

The 73rd amendment seeks to radically alter the power relations in the villages by reserving seats for scheduled castes, tribes, backward classes and women.

The 73 rd amendment seeks to radically alter the power relations in the villages by reserving seats for scheduled castes, tribes, backward classes and women.

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

117/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

However, in the absence of proper education, training 43 and economic independence,

However, in the absence of proper education, training and economic independence,

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

118/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Urgent steps need to be taken to effectively deal with these problems in order to facilitate participatory development

Urgent steps need to be taken to effectively deal with these problems in order to facilitate participatory development.

W https://www.nios.ac.in/media/documents/srsec317newE/317EL16.pdf

119/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

Special meetings can also be convened to discuss special matters

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

120/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

one of the Directive Principles of the Constitution; Article 40 of which says that "The State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government." However, the one of the Directive Principles of State lays down that the State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government. In the

W https://www.india.gov.in/my-government/constitution-india/amendments/constitution-india-seventy-t ...

121/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 43 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 43 WORDS

the Directive Principles of the State policy, it was explicitly stated that- "the State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self- government".

the Directive Principles of State Policy down that the State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government.

W https://www.india.gov.in/my-government/constitution-india/amendments/constitution-india-seventy-t ...

122/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT ACT 1973 55 The West Bengal Panchayat Act of 1973 was introduced to reorganize, strengthen and expand the activities of Panchayats in rural areas of West Bengal.

West Bengal Panchayat (Amendment) Act, 2017 vide No. 1174-L dt. 16.10.2017 • West Bengal Panchayat (2nd Amendment) Act, 2017 vide No. 1176-L dt. 16.10.2017 An Act to reorganize, strengthen and expand the activities of Panchayats in rural areas of West Bengal

W https://wbxpress.com/west-bengal-panchayat-act-1973/

123/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

to enable them to act as units of self-government and strive for socioeconomic development and secure social justice for the people.

to enable them to act as units of self-government to strive for socio-economic development and securing social justice for the people

W https://wbxpress.com/west-bengal-panchayat-act-1973/

124/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

to the whole of West Bengal, except the areas which were to be under the provisions of the

to the whole of West Bengal, except the areas to which the provisions of- (a) the

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

125/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 65% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

THE WEST BENGAL PANCHAYAT ACT OF 1973 • For every Gram the State Government shall constitute a Gram Panchayat bearing the name of the

the West Bengal Panchayat Act, 1973. • District Planning Committee. - (1) For every district the State Government shall constitute a District Planning Committee bearing the name of the

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

126/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Jha, N. S. and P. C. Mathur (eds) (1999). "Decentralisation and Local Politics". Sage Publication. New Delhi.

SA Ch.-11._local_self_government_corrected_30.04.2022.docx (D136736777)

127/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Persons whose names are included in the electoral roll of the

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

128/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 48% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

of a Gram Panchayat shall, subject to the provisions of the Act hold office for a period of four years beginning from the date of its first meeting. •

SA TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 PDF.pdf (D116542424)

129/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

prescribed time. • The duties of a Gram Panchayat shall be to provide within the area under its jurisdiction

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

130/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

and drainage and the prevention of public nuisances; (b) curative and preventive measures in respect of malaria, smallpox, cholera or any other epidemic (

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

131/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 79% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

the sources of supply and storage of water; (d) the maintenance, repair and construction of public streets

SA MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx (D144277369)

132/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

and protection there. (e) the removal of encroachments of public streets or public places. (f) the protection and repair of

SA MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx (D144277369)

133/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

For every Block the State Government shall constitute a Panchayat Samiti bearing the name of the

For every district the State Government shall constitute a District Planning Committee bearing the name of the

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

134/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 79% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

of the Gram Panchayats within the Block, members of the House of the People and the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising of the Panchayat Samitis within the district; (ii) the members of the House of the People and the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

135/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

such other Sthayee Samiti or Samitis as the Panchayat Samiti may, subject to the approval of the State	Such other Sthayee Samiti or Samities as the Panchayat Samiti or Zillaparisad may be formed, Subject to the approval of the State

W http://14.139.211.59/bitstream/123456789/1552/11/11_chapter_02.pdf

136/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 79% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

For every district the State Government shall constitute a Zilla Parishad bearing the name of the district.	For every district the State Government shall constitute a District Planning Committee bearing the name of the district,

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

137/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

members of the House of the People or the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising the district or any part thereof, not being Ministers. (	members of the House of the People and the Legislative Assembly of the State elected thereto from a constituency comprising any part of the district, not being Ministers, (

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

138/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

upliftment of its area. (j) the control and administration of the Gram Panchayat Fund. (k) the imposition, assessment and collection of the taxes, rates or fees leviable under the 1973

SA MARTUZA SARKAR - POLITICAL SCIENCE - THESIS 03 CHAPTERS.docx (D144277369)

139/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

undertake schemes or adopt measures, including the giving of financial assistance, relating to

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

140/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

in the countryside. After the 73rd Amendment to the Indian Constitution, Panchayati Raj System has in the Indian culture. After the 73 rd Amendment to the Indian Constitution, Panchayate Raj System has

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

141/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	18 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	18 WORDS

Village-level democracy became a real prospect for India after 1992 with the 73rd amendment to the Constitution.

Village-level democracy became a real prospect for India in 1992 with the 73rd amendment to the Constitution,

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

142/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	68%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

The 73 rd Amendment Act has legally mandated that resources, responsibility and decision-making be devolved from the 73rd amendment to the Constitution, which mandated that resources, responsibility and decision-making be devolved from

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

143/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	33 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	33 WORDS

central government to the lowest unit of governance in the local rural governance structure. he Gram Sabha or the Village Assembly. A three-tier structure of local self-government was envisaged under this amendment central government to the lowest unit of the governance, the Gram Sabha or the Village Assembly. A three-tier structure of local self-government was envisaged under this amendment.

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

144/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

the fact that their recommendations are being poorly implemented by many state

the fact that their recommendations are being poorly implemented by many state

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

145/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

A large number of women, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe have been elected to these bodies and a tradition of justice and gender equality in political representation has been widely established

A large number of women, Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe have been elected to these bodies and a tradition of justice and gender equality in political representation has been widely established.

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

146/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

of any act, or management of any institution or organisation entrusted to it by the State Government or any other authority, (

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

147/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

a constituency of a Gram Panchayat delimited for the purpose of last preceding general election to a constituency of a Gram Panchayat delimited for the purpose of last preceding general elections to

W https://ir.nbu.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/2652/11/11_chapter%202.pdf

148/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Gram Sabha means a body consisting of persons registered in the electoral rolls pertaining to a

SA 9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical Science AMU.docx (D128332325)

149/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

LEARNING OBJECTIVES After studying this unit, you should be able to • Explain and understand the

LEARNING OUTCOME After studying this Unit you should be able to: • Understand the

W http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25827/1/Unit-12.pdf

150/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 67 WORDS 63% MATCHING TEXT 67 WORDS

of Gram Sabha- • Article 243(b) Gram Sabha can be defined as a body of persons registered in the electoral rolls relating to a village comprised within the area of panchayat at the village level. Article 243A states that a Gram Sabha may exercise such powers and perform such functions at the village level as the legislature of the State may by law provide. • of Gram Sabha Article 243(B) of the Constitution defines the as a body of persons registered in the electoral rolls relating to a village comprised within the area of Panchayat at the village level. With regard its powers authority, Article 243 (of the says that the may exercise such powers and perform such functions of the village level as the Legislature of a State may, by law, provide.

W http://epgp.inflibnet.ac.in/epgpdata/uploads/epgp_content/S001610/P001769/M023892/ET/1507267108Mo ...

151/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

a village specified by the Governor by public notification to be a village for the purposes of Part IX and includes a group of villages so specified.

a village specified by the Governor by public notification to be a village for the purposes of this Part and includes a group of villages so specified.

W https://www.lawglobalhub.com/article-243-243g-indian-constitution-1949/

152/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

PARTY, PANCHAYAT AND GRASSROOT DEMOCRACY: A STUDY OF POST-19777 PERIOD IN WEST BENGAL". The Indian Journal of Political Science, 74(2), 323–340.

SA Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

153/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

for grant of prospecting licence or mining lease for minor minerals in the Scheduled Areas. 76 •

SA R. THENDRALARASI - LAL1915, DISSERTATION.pdf (D110608635)

154/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

panchayats in the Scheduled Areas with such powers and authorities as considered necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-

Panchayats in the Scheduled Areas with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as institutions of self-

W https://edurev.in/studytube/Laxmikanth-Summary-Panchayati-Raj/c8dcbdfd-46de-48f2-9965-4642eb7b3f9d_t

155/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

alienation of land and takes appropriate action to restore any unlawfully alienated land of scheduled tribes. The alienation of land and to restore any unlawfully alienated land of a scheduled tribe. The

W https://www.insightsonindia.com/polity/functions-and-responsibilities-of-the-union-and-the-states ...

156/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

grant of concession for the exploitation of minor minerals by

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

157/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

employment in a financial year to every rural household whose adult members volunteer to do unskilled manual work. 6.

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

158/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

Article 40 of the Directive Principles of State Policy of the Indian Constitution gives directionto the state "to organise village panchayats

Article 40 of the Directive Principles of State Policy of the Constitution of which says: 'The state shall take steps to organize village panchayats

W http://www.egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/59173/1/Unit2.pdf

159/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

Panchayati Raj Institutions in India: An Appraisal", National Institute of Rural Development,

SA Chapter-1.pdf (D34109902)

160/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

The Constitution of India in Article 40 enshrines, " the state shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such power and authorities as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government".

SA Chapter 2.docx (D141430686)

161/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

three tier Panchayati Raj system (Gram Panchayat, Panchayati Samiti and Zila Parishad) directly elected

Three-tier Panchayati Raj system: gram panchayat, Panchayati Samiti and Zila Parishad. • Directly elected

W https://byjus.com/free-ias-prep/panchayati-raj/

162/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

the Gram panchayat and indirectly elected representatives to form Panchayat Samiti and Zila Parishad

the gram panchayat and indirectly elected representatives to constitute the Panchayat Samiti and Zila Parishad. •

W https://byjus.com/free-ias-prep/panchayati-raj/

163/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Panchayati Raj, with the aim to settle the local problems locally and to make the people politically conscious.

SA resubmit_uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D154554347)

164/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

post of District Development Commissioner who would act as the chief executive officer of the Zila Parishad and post of District Development Commissioner should be created. He should act the chief executive officer of the Zila Parishad and

W https://edurev.in/studytube/Laxmikanth-Summary-Panchayati-Raj/c8dcbdfd-46de-48f2-9965-4642eb7b3f9d_t

165/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	79%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

Currently, the Panchayati Raj system is present in all states barring Nagaland, Meghalaya and Mizoram and in all Union Territories except Delhi.

Currently, the Panchayati Raj system exists in all states except Nagaland, Meghalaya, and Mizoram, and in all Union Territories except Delhi.

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Panchayati_raj_in_India

166/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	37 WORDS	44%	MATCHING TEXT	37 WORDS

or village assemblies long before the independence of India as a self- governing Institutions which had distinct functions and were guided not only by the collective will but also by the collective will of the entire rural or village assemblies existed in ancient India as self-governing institutions which had distinct and well-defined functions. The institution of Panchayat represented not only the collective will, but also the collective wisdom of the entire rural

W https://rajpanchayat.rajasthan.gov.in/en-us/aboutus/history.aspx

167/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	10 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	10 WORDS

rural development, poverty alleviation,market, roads and drinking water etc

rural development, poverty alleviation, market, roads and drinking water etc.

W https://www.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of-the ...

168/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 155 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 155 WORDS

the following functional items to be dealt with this schedule. • Agriculture including agricultural expansion 83 • Land improvement, implementation of Land reforms, land consolidation and soil conservation • Agricultural husbandry dairying and poultry • Fisheries industry • Minor irrigation water management and watershed development • Social Forestry and farm forestry • Small scale industries in which food processing industry is involved • Minor forest produce • Safe water for drinking • Khadi village and cottage industry • Rural housing • Fuel and fodder • Rural electrification including distribution of electricity • Roads, culverts, bridge, ferries, waterways and other means of communication. • Education including primary and secondary school • Non-conventional source of energy • Technical training and vocational education • Adult and non-formal education • Public Distribution system • Maintenance of community assets • Welfare of weaker sections in particular of the Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribes. • Social welfare including the following functional items placed within the purview of the Agriculture including agricultural expansion 2. Land improvement, implementation of land reforms, land consolidation and soil conservation. 3. Animal Husbandry, Dairying and poultry 4. Fisheries Industry 5. Minor irrigation, water management and watershed development 6. Social forestry and farm forestry 7. Small scale industries in which food processing industry is involved 8. Minor forest produce 9. Safe water for drinking 10. Khadi, village and cottage industries 11. Rural housing 12. Fuel and fodder 13. Rural electrification, including distribution of electricity 14. Road, culverts, bridges, ferries, waterways and other means of communication 15. Education including primary and secondary schools 16. Non-conventional sources of energy 17. Technical training and vocational education 18. Adult and non-formal education 19. Public distribution system 20. Maintenance of community assets 21. Welfare of the weaker sections of the in particular of the schedule caste and schedule tribes 22. Social welfare, including

W https://www.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of-the ...

169/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

Welfare of the handicapped and mentally retarded • Family Welfare • Women and Child development • Markets and fairs • Health and sanitation including hospitals Primary Health centres and dispensaries • Cultural activities • Libraries • Poverty Alleviation Programmes

welfare of the handicapped and mentally retarded 23. Family welfare 24. Women and child development 25. Markets and Fairs 26. Health and sanitation including hospitals, primary health centres and dispensaries 27. Cultural activities 28. Libraries 29. Poverty Alleviation Programmes

W https://www.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of-the ...

170/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

a new part IX to the Constitution titled 'The Panchayats'

a new Part IX to the constitution titled "The Panchayats"

W https://www.slideshare.net/prem1790/panchayati-raj-89640583

171/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 102 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 102 WORDS

the Legislature of a state may by law, bestow upon the Panchayat with such powers and authorities as may be required to enable them to function as Institutions of self-Government and such law may contain provision for the devolution of powers and responsibility upon Panchayat, at the appropriate level, subject to such condition as may be specified therein with respect to • the preparation of plans for economic development and Social Justice • the implementation of scheme for economic development and Social Justice as may be interested to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the eleventh schedule.

the Legislature of a State may, by law, the Panchayats with such powers and authority as may be to enable them to function as institutions of self-government such law may contain provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities upon Panchayats at the appropriate level, subject to such conditions as may be specified therein, with respect to— (the preparation of plans for economic development and social justice; (b) implementation of for economic development and social justice as may be entrusted to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the Eleventh Schedule.

W https://www.lawglobalhub.com/article-243-243g-indian-constitution-1949/

172/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

that Gram Sabha may exercise such powers and perform certain functions at the village level as the Legislature of a state may by law provide.

that Gram Sabha may exercise such powers and perform such functions at the village level as the legislature of a state may by law provide.

W http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25827/1/Unit-12.pdf

173/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 56% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

tier system with Zila Parishad at the district level and Mondal Panchayatas a cluster of groups of villages with a combined population of 15000 to 20000

SA Priti Kale llm 4th seme.docx (D141689289)

174/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

there shall be constituted in every State Panchayats at the village (

There shall be constituted in every State, Panchayats at the village,

W https://m.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/panchayati-raj-system-in-india-1438141804-1

175/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 57 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 57 WORDS

After the 73 rd Amendment, • The scope of functions of Gram Panchayat was widened. Such important functions like preparation of Annual Development Plan of Panchayat area, annual budget, relief in natural calamities, removal of encroachment of public lands and implementation and monitoring of poverty alleviation programmes are now expected to be performed by

After the 73rd Amendment, the scope of functions of Gram Panchayat was widened. Such important functions like preparation of annual development plan of panchayat area, annual budget, relief in natural calamities, removal of encroachment on public lands and implementation and monitoring of poverty alleviation programmes are now expected to be performed by

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

176/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Selection of beneficiaries through Gram Sabhas, public distribution system,non- conventional energy source, improve chullahs, biogas plants have also been given to gram panchayats in some States. 1.4

Selection of beneficiaries through Gram Sabhas, public distribution system, non-conventional energy source, improved Chullahs, biogas plants have also been given to Gram Panchayats in some states.

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

177/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Gram Sabha is the general assembly of all the people of a village who have attained the age of 18 years and their name is entered in the voter list.

SA Chapter 2.docx (D141430686)

178/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 112 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 112 WORDS

Some States distinguish between obligatory that means compulsory and optional functions of gram panchayats while other states do not make this distinction. The civic functions relating to sanitation, clearing of public roads, minor irrigation, public toilets and lavatories, Primary Health Care, vaccination, the supply of drinking water, construction of public wells, rural electrification, social health and primary and adult education etc. are obligatory functions of Village Panchayat. The optional functions depend on the resources of the Panchayats. They may or may not perform such functions as tree plantation on road sides, setting up of breeding centre for cattle, organising child and maternity welfare, promotion of agriculture etc. 86 1.5

Some States distinguish between obligatory (compulsory) and optional functions of Gram Panchayats while other States do not make this distinction. • The civic functions relating to sanitation, cleaning of public roads, minor irrigation, public toilets and lavatories, primary health care, vaccination, the supply of drinking water, public wells, rural electrification, social health and primary and adult education, etc. are obligatory functions of village panchayats. • The optional functions depend on the resources of the panchayats. They may or may not perform such functions as tree plantation on roadsides, setting up of breeding centers for cattle, organizing child and maternity welfare, promotion of agriculture, etc. •

W https://www.civilsdaily.com/panchayati-raj-institution-evolution-features-composition-powers-func ...

179/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 107 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 107 WORDS

Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, the Legislature of a state may, by law, endow the panchayats with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as 'Institutions ofself-Government' and such law may contain provisions for the devolution of powers and responsibilities upon panchayats at the appropriate level, subject to such condition as may be specified therein, with respect to, • the preparation of plans for economic development and Social Justice • the implementation of schemes for economic development and Social Justice as may be entrusted to them including those in relation to the matters listed in the 11th schedule.

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

180/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

for the supply of water for drinking washing and bathing •

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

181/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

Construction, repair and maintenance of inter-village road and culverts on such roads and other means of communication. 5.

SA TANVEER dissertation on panchayat1111 NEW 24 PDF.pdf (D116542424)

182/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 40% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

the Central or State Government account for the bulk of its revenue, the Panchayat Raj Institution PRI's resource generation is the lifeblood of its finances. It also ensures the presence of a local taxation system that the Union or State Government transfers to a Panchayat forms the major component of its receipt, the Panchayat Raj Institutions on resource generation is the soul behind its financial standing. It is the existence of a local taxation system that

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

183/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

the other two tires rely solely on toll, fees and non-tax revenue to generate internals resources. The	the other two tiers rely solely on tolls, fees, and non-tax revenue to generate internal resources. • The

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

184/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Zila Parishad The Zila Parishad is the district level top tier of the Panchayati Raj.

SA uddinnazim787@gmail.com.docx (D153883557)

185/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

that the Legislature of a State may, by law, • Authorise a Panchayat to charge, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties and tolls and fees

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

186/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

taxes, charges tolls and fees imposed and collected by the state Government for such purposes and with such conditions and limits • Provide for

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

187/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 72% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, automobile registration, stamp duty, cess and a few others •	to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, cess on stamp duty, registration of vehicles, and a few others. •

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

188/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

a variety of taxes, levies, tolls and fees. Octroi, Property/House Tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, 94 taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/ fees, license fees, tax on non-agricultural land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/Conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fairs and festivals

a number of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees, such as: • Octroi, property/house tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/fees, license fees, tax on non-agriculture land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess, and tax on fairs and festivals,

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

189/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

received by or on behalf of the Panchayat as well as the withdrawal of such funds as may be stipulated by law • The

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

190/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Fund bearing the name of the Panchayat Samiti and there shall be placed to the credit thereof— (a) contribution and grants, if any, made by the Central or the State Government

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

191/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

the State Government; (b) contributions and grants, if any, made by the Zila Parishad 1 [or the Mahakuma Parishad or the Council] or any other local authority; (c) loans, if any, granted by the Central or the State Government

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

192/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 264 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 264 WORDS

there shall be constituted in every State at the district level a District Planning Committee to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in the district and to prepare a draft development plan for the district as a whole. The Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to — (a) the composition of the District Planning Committees; (b) the manner in which the seats in such Committees shall be filled: Provided that not less than four- fifths of the total number of members of such Committee shall be elected by, and from amongst, the elected members of the Panchayat at the district level and of the Municipalities in the district in proportion to the ratio between the population of the rural areas and of the urban areas in the district; (c) the functions relating to district planning which may be assigned to such Committees; (d) the manner in which the Chairpersons of such Committees shall be chosen. (3) Every District Planning Committee shall, in preparing the draft development plan, — (a) have regard to — (i) matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the Municipalities including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation; (ii) the extent and type of available resources whether financial or otherwise; (b) consult such institutions and organisations as the Governor may, by order, specify. The Chairperson of every District Planning Committee shall forward the development plan, as recommended by such Committee, to the Government of the State.

There shall be constituted in every State at the district level a District Planning Committee to consolidate the plans prepared by the Panchayats and the Municipalities in the district and to prepare a draft development plan for the district as a whole. (2) The Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to — (a) the composition of the District Planning Committees; (b) the manner in which the seats in such Committees shall be filled: Provided that not less than four-fifths of the total number of members of such Committee shall be elected by, and from amongst, the elected members of the Panchayat at the district level and of the Municipalities in the district in proportion to the ratio between the population of the rural areas and of the urban areas in the district; (c) the functions relating to district planning which may be assigned to such Committees; (d) the manner in which the Chairpersons of such Committees shall be chosen. (3) Every District Planning Committee shall, in preparing the draft development plan, — (a) have regard to — (i) matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the Municipalities including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation; (ii) extent and type of available resources whether financial or otherwise; (b) consult such institutions and organisations as the Governor may, by order, specify. (4) The Chairperson of every District Planning Committee shall forward the development plan, as recommended by such Committee, to the Government of the State.

W https://www.constitutionofindia.net/constitution_of_india/the_municipalities/articles/Article%20243ZD

193/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 249 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 249 WORDS

The Constitution of India provides the DPCs two specific responsibilities. In preparing the draft development plan, the DPC shall have regard to matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the municipalities, including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation and the extent and type of available resources, both financial or otherwise. The DPC in this endeavour, is also mandated to consult such institutions and organizations as may be specified. In order that the plans at different levels are prepared, there is need to strengthen the system comprising the machinery of planning and the process of consolidation of plans at the district level. There is confusion in states as to whether the DPC is to be established as a separate and permanent office or whether it denotes only a meeting that is periodically called and which can be serviced by a part-time secretariat. There is a feeling that the DPC ought not to emerge as yet another layer of bureaucracy to vet people's plans. At the same time, the fact that the DPC is held intermittently and 97 without permanent support undermines its effectiveness as a constitutional institution and a coordinating mentor. On balance, the DPC merits the status of a permanent institution, with adequate secretariat to service it at the district level. It could also be provided the means of drawing experts to assist it whenever required. 1.11

The Constitution of India provides the DPCs two specific responsibilities. In preparing the draft development plan, the DPC shall have regard to matters of common interest between the Panchayats and the municipalities, including spatial planning, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation and the extent and type of available resources, both financial or otherwise. The DPC in this endeavor, is also mandated to consult such institutions and organizations as may be specified. In order that the plans at different levels are prepared, there is need to strengthen the system comprising the machinery of planning and the process of consolidation of plans at the district level. There is confusion in states as to whether the DPC is to be established as a separate and permanent office or whether it denotes only a meeting that is periodically called and which can be serviced by a part-time secretariat. There is a feeling that the DPC ought not to emerge as yet another layer of bureaucracy to vet people's plans. At the same time, the fact that the DPC is held intermittently and without permanent support undermines its effectiveness as a constitutional institution and a coordinating mentor. On balance, the DPC merits the status of a permanent institution, with adequate secretariat to service it at the district level. It could also be provided the means of drawing experts to assist it whenever required.

W https://en.m.wikipedia.org/wiki/District_Planning_Committee

194/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Panchayati Raj is one of the fundamental pillars of Indian democracy • It

Panchayati Raj is one of the fundamental pillars of Indian democracy. It

W https://www.meritnation.com/cbse-class-6/social-science/ratna_sagar_civics/panchayati-raj-system/ ...

195/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

It is the system for self-government in rural area. • This system aims at development of rural areas with diligent effort. • It works towards development in field like agriculture, trade, industry, irrigation, communication, health, sanitation and

It is the system for self government in the rural areas. This system aims at the development of rural areas with diligent efforts. It works towards development in fields like agriculture, trade, industry, irrigation, sanitation and all receipts on account of tolls, rates and fees levied by it;

W https://www.meritnation.com/cbse-class-6/social-science/ratna_sagar_civics/panchayati-raj-system/ ...

196/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

(

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

197/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 3 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 3 WORDS

general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of- the-indian-constitution-1510219894-1 10.

General Knowledge Lists 2017-11-09T01:31:30Politics272 List of subjects covered in the 11th Schedule of the Indian Constitution

W https://www.jagranjosh.com/general-knowledge/list-of-subjects-covered-in-the-11th-schedule-of-the ...

198/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 1 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 1 WORDS

news/cities/Hyderabad/panchayats-should-focus-on-improving-own- revenue-sources-report/

News • Cities • Hyderabad Panchayats should focus on improving own revenue sources: report

W https://www.thehindu.com/news/cities/Hyderabad/panchayats-should-focus-on-improving-own-revenue-s ...

199/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 6 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 6 WORDS

polity/functions-and-responsibilities-of-the-union-and-the- states-issues-and-challenges-pertaining-to-the-federal-structure-devolution-of-powers-and-finances-up-to-local-levels-and-challenges-therein/devolution-of-powers-and-finances-up-to-local-levels-and-challenges-therein/73rd-amendment-act-panchayati-raj/ 101 19.

Polity » Functions and responsibilities of the Union and the States, issues and challenges pertaining to the federal structure, devolution of powers and finances up to local levels and challenges therein. » Devolution of Powers and Finances up to Local Levels and Challenges Therein. » 73rd amendment act- Panchayati Raj 73

W https://www.insightsonindia.com/polity/functions-and-responsibilities-of-the-union-and-the-states ...

200/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	3 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	3 WORDS
bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district- planning-committee-act-1994			Bare Act • State Acts and Rules • West Bengal State Laws • West Bengal District Planning Committee Act, 1994

W https://www.latestlaws.com/bare-acts/state-acts-rules/west-bengal-state-laws/west-bengal-district ...

201/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	44 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	44 WORDS
A significant portion of the Constitution deals with the structural empowerment of the panchayat raj system. But the true strength of these institutions in terms of autonomy and efficiency is dependent on theirfinancial position (including their capacity to generate their own resources)			A significant portion of Part IX of the Constitution, covering Articles 243C, 243D, 243E, 243 G, and 243 K, deals with the structural empowerment of the PRIs. • But the true strength of these institutions in terms of autonomy and efficiency is dependent on their financial position (including their capacity to generate their own resources). •

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

202/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	52 WORDS	62%	MATCHING TEXT	52 WORDS
finance ensures the proper functioning of the three tier Panchayati Raj System. It received constitutional status by the 73rd constitutional amendment act 1992.To empower the panchayat in managing its finance, the constitution transfers 29 items to the local governments and set up Finance Commission to ensure the resources for local bodies.			Finance ensures the proper functioning of third tier of the government. Panchayat constitute the third tier of the Indian government. It received constitutional status by the 73rd Constitutional Amendment Act, 1991. To empower the panchayat in delivering its financial and political mandate, the constitution transferred 29 items to the local governments and also set up the state finance commission to enhance the resources for local bodies.

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

203/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 308 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 308 WORDS

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS:- 1.3.1 Article 243(H) states that the state legislature may: • authorise a Panchayat to levy, collect and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; • assign to a Panchayat taxes, duties, tolls, and fees levied and collected by the state government • provide for Grants -in -aid to panchayats from the state consolidated fund and provide for the establishment of funds for crediting all money received, by or on behalf of the Panchayats and for the withdrawal of such money therefrom. 1.3.2 Article 243(I) state that every five years, • the governor of a state shall appoint a finance committee to review the financial position of the panchayats. • It is responsible for making the following recommendations to the Governor: 1.3.3 The principles that should govern: • The distribution of the net proceeds of the state's taxes, duties, tolls and fees between the state and the panchayats, as well as the allocation of shares among the panchayats at all levels. 103 • The assessment of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees that may be assigned on the panchayats. • Grants -in -aid to panchayats from the state's consolidated fund. • The measures required to improve the panchayats' financial position. • Any other matter referred to by the Governor in the interest of the panchayats' financial health. • The state legislature may specify the composition of the commission, the required qualifications of its members, and the manners in which they are selected. • The Governor must present the commission's recommendations as well as the action is taken report, to the state legislature. • The Central Finance Commission Shall also recommend measures to augment the consolidated fund of a state in order to supplement the resources of the panchayats in the states (based on the recommendations of the state finance commission). 1.4

Constitutional Provisions • Article 243(H) states that the state legislature may: • a panchayat to levy, collect, and appropriate taxes, duties, tolls, and fees; • assign to a panchayat taxes, duties, tolls, and fees levied and collected by the state government; • provide for grants-in-aid to panchayats from the state consolidated fund; and • provide for the establishment of funds for crediting all money received, by or on behalf of the Panchayats, and also the withdrawal of such money therefrom. • Article 243(I) states that every five years, the governor of a state shall appoint a finance committee to review the financial position of the panchayats. It is responsible for making the following recommendations to the Governor: • The principles that should govern: • The distribution of the net proceeds of the state's taxes, duties, tolls, and fees between the state and the panchayats, as well as the allocation of shares among the panchayats at all levels. • The assessment of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees that may be assigned on the panchayats. • Grants-in-aid to panchayats from the state's consolidated fund. • The measures required to improve the panchayats' financial position. • Any other matter referred to by the governor in the interest of the panchayats' financial health. • The state legislature may specify the composition of the commission, the required qualifications of its members, and the manner in which they are selected. • The governor must present the commission's recommendations, as well as the action is taken report, to the state legislature. • The Central Finance Commission shall also recommend measures to augment the consolidated fund of a state in order to supplement the resources of the panchayats in the states (based on the recommendations of the state finance commission).

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

204/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 40% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

the Central or State Government account for the bulk of its revenue, the Panchayat Raj Institution PRI's resource generation is the lifeblood of its finances. It also ensures the presence of a local taxation system that the Union or State Government transfers to a Panchayat forms the major component of its receipt, the Panchayat Raj Institutions on resource generation is the soul behind its financial standing. It is the existence of a local taxation system that

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

205/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

the other two tires rely solely on toll, fees and non-tax revenue to generate internals resources. The	the other two tiers rely solely on tolls, fees, and non-tax revenue to generate internal resources. • The

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

206/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Decentralization The transfer of control of an activity or organization to several local offices or authorities rather than one single one. •

SA ATIH TEKSENG ,DISSERTATION ON THE ROLE OF PANCHAYAT RAJ IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT OF ARUNACHAL PRADESH ... (D136162801)

207/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

that the Legislature of a State may, by law, • Authorise a Panchayat to charge, collect and appropriate such taxes, duties and tolls and fees

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

208/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

taxes, charges tolls and fees imposed and collected by the state Government for such purposes and with such conditions and limits • Provide for

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

209/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 72% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, automobile registration, stamp duty, cess, and a few others •	to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, cess on stamp duty, registration of vehicles, and a few others. •

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

210/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

a variety of taxes, levies, tolls, and fees. Octroi, Property/House Tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/ fees, license fees, tax on non-agricultural land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/Conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fairs and festivals

a number of taxes, duties, tolls, and fees, such as: • Octroi, property/house tax, profession tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, entertainment tax/fees, license fees, tax on non-agriculture land, fee on cattle registration, sanitation/drainage/conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess, and tax on fairs and festivals,

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

211/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

received by or on behalf of the Panchayat as well as the withdrawal of such funds as may be stipulated by law • The

SA Decentralised Planning and Development Works [final pdf].pdf (D32239146)

212/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

Fund bearing the name of the Panchayat Samiti and there shall be placed to the credit thereof— (a) contribution and grants, if any, made by the Central or the State Government

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

213/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

the State Government; (b) contributions and grants, if any, made by the Zila Parishad 1 [or the Mahakuma Parishad or the Council] or any other local authority; (c) loans, if any, granted by the Central or the State Government

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

214/222	SUBMITTED TEXT	153 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	153 WORDS

Committees on Panchayat Finance The standing committee on rural development which was chaired by Dr. P Venugopal submitted its report on the improvement in the functioning of the panchayat in 2018. The committee noted that mandatory meetings of panchayats were not taking place and had poor attendance, especially from the women representatives. The committee recommended that • the state government should put forward the mechanism of quorum in the meetings of Gram Sabha to ensure the participation of Panchayat representatives including women. • It recommended strengthening of the panchayat through capacity building and encouraging the state and the central government to provide training to help States prepare better Gram Panchayat development plans and become more responsive to citizens' needs. • It also recommended that recruitment and appointment of support and technical staff be expedited to ensure the smooth functioning of the panchayat. 107 1.7

Committees on Panchayat Finance The standing committee on rural development which was chaired by Dr. P Venugopal submitted its report on the improvement in the functioning of the panchayat in 2018. • The committee noted that mandatory meetings of panchayats were not taking place and had poor attendance, especially from the women representatives. The committee recommended that the state government should put forward the mechanism of quorum in the meetings of Gram Sabha to ensure the participation of Panchayat representatives including women. • It recommended strengthening of the panchayat through capacity building and encouraging the state and the central government to provide training to help States prepare better Gram Panchayat development plans and become more responsive to citizens' needs. • It also recommended that recruitment and appointment of support and technical staff be expedited to ensure the smooth functioning of the panchayat.

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

Ouriginal by Turnitin

215/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 334 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 334 WORDS

Panchayat Resource Generation The source of generation of finances for Panchayat are as follows: A major portion of Part IX of the constitution deals with structural empowerment of the Panchayati Raj institutions but the real strength in terms of both the autonomy and efficiency of this institution is dependent on their financial position including all their capacity to generate their own resources. Panchayat in our country receive funds in the following ways: • Loans or grants from the state government • Internal resource generation (tax and nontax) • Programme-specific allocations under Centrally sponsored schemes and the Additional Central Assistance. • All the grants from the union government are based on the recommendation of the Central Finance Commission as given in Article 280 of the constitution. Under Article 243-I devolution from the state government is based on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission. In absolute terms, the quantum of funds the Union or State Government transfers to a Panchayat forms the major component of its receipt, the Panchayat Raj Institutions on resource generation is the soul behind its financial standing. It is the existence of a local taxation system that encourages people's involvement in the affairs of an elected body. It makes the institution accountable to its citizens. Most of the taxation powers to village panchayats are given by State Panchayati Raj. The revenue domain of the intermediate and district panchayat both tax as well as non-tax has been kept smaller and confined to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, cess on stamp duty, registration of vehicles, and a few others. A study of various State Legislations indicates that several taxes, tolls, fees, and duties come under the jurisdiction of the village panchayats. This includes octroi property/ House Tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, license fees, tax on non-agriculture and, fee on registration of cattle sanitation/drainage, conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fair and festivals and profession tax. 1.8 15

Panchayat Resource Generation The source of generation of finances for Panchayat are as follows: • A major portion of Part IX of the constitution deals with structural empowerment of the Panchayati Raj institutions but the real strength in terms of both the autonomy and efficiency of this institution is dependent on their financial position including all their capacity to generate their own resources. Panchayat in our country receive funds in the following ways: • Loans or grants from the state government • Internal resource generation (tax and nontax) • Programme-specific allocations under Centrally sponsored schemes and the Additional Central Assistance. • All the grants from the union government are based on the recommendation of the Central Finance Commission as given in Article 280 of the constitution. • Under Article 243-I devolution from the state government is based on the recommendations of the State Finance Commission. • In absolute terms, the quantum of funds the Union or State Government transfers to a Panchayat forms the major component of its receipt, the Panchayat Raj Institutions on resource generation is the soul behind its financial standing. It is the existence of a local taxation system that encourages people's involvement in the affairs of an elected body. It makes the institution accountable to its citizens. • Most of the taxation powers to village panchayats are given by State Panchayati Raj. The revenue domain of the intermediate and district panchayat both tax as well as non-tax has been kept smaller and confined to secondary areas like ferry services, market, water and conservancy services, cess on stamp duty, registration of vehicles, and a few others. • A study of various State Legislations indicates that a number of taxes, tolls, fees, and duties come under the jurisdiction of the village panchayats. This includes octari House Tax, land tax/cess, taxes/tolls on vehicles, license fees, tax on non-agriculture and, fee on registration of cattle sanitation/drainage, conservancy tax, water rate/tax, lighting rate/tax, education cess and tax on fair and festivals and profession tax.

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

216/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

all receipts on account of tolls, rates and fees levied by it;
(

SA 7 Thesis Chapter Firoj Biswas GG9889 Geography AMU.docx (D118055363)

217/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 99 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 99 WORDS

Devolution of funds from higher levels of government is a significant component of panchayat's resources. • The existence of a local taxation system ensures citizens' participation in the affairs of an elected body. It also holdsthe institution responsible to its constituents. • In terms of own resource collection, Gram Panchayats are in better position because they have their own tax domain, whereas the other two tires rely solely on tolls,fees,and non- tax revenue to generate internal resources. • The majority of taxation powers have been delegated to village panchayats under the State Panchayat Raj Acts. 1.9.1

Devolution of funds from higher levels of government is a significant component of Panchayat's resources. • The existence of a local taxation system ensures citizens' participation in the affairs of an elected body. It also holds the institution responsible to its constituents. • In terms of own resource collection, Gram Panchayats are in a better position because they have their own tax domain, whereas the other two tiers rely solely on tolls, fees, and non-tax revenue to generate internal resources. • The majority of taxation powers have been delegated to Village Panchayats under the State Panchayati Raj Acts.

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

218/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

States across the country have not paid enough attention to the financial empowerment of panchayats. • The resource available to panchayats are limited. • Internal resource generation is limited at the panchayat level. This is due in part to a thin domain and in part to panchayats' own reluctance to collect revenue. • Panchayats

States across the country have not paid enough attention to the financial empowerment of Panchayats. • The resources available to panchayats are limited. • Internal resource generation is limited at the Panchayat level. This is due in part to a thin tax domain and in part to Panchayats' own reluctance to collect revenue. • Panchayats

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

219/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

A significant portion of grants from both the Union and

A significant portion of grants from both the Union and

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

220/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 66 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 66 WORDS

state governments are scheme specific. • Panchayats have limited discretion and flexibility when it comes to incurring expenses. • State governments are hesitant to devolve funds to panchayats due to their own fiscal constraints. • Panchayat cannot become effective Institutions of local self-government unless they have a strong financial foundation with clearly defined revenue resources that are properly managed to optimize resources. 1.10

state governments are scheme specific. • Panchayats have limited discretion and flexibility when it comes to incurring expenses. • State governments are hesitant to devolve funds to Panchayats due to their own fiscal constraints. Conclusion Conclusion • Panchayats cannot become effective institutions of local self-government unless they have a strong financial foundation with clearly defined revenue sources that are properly managed to optimize resources. •

W https://prepp.in/news/e-492-finances-gram-panchayats-indian-polity-notes

221/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Assigned/shared revenues are collected by State Government but transferred/ shared to with local bodies. •

Assigned/Shared revenues are one which are collected by the State Government but transferred/shared to/with local bodies.

W https://testbook.com/ias-preparation/panchayat-finance/amp/

222/222 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 57% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

by the concerned state government on the basis of accepted recommendation of the latest State Finance Commission (SFC) and in conformity with the following bands;

SA 9 Thesis Abubakar Siddique GC6129 ppolitical Science AMU.docx (D128332325)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Document Information

Analyzed document	CC-PA-09.pdf (D164996340)
Submitted	2023-04-25 13:10:00
Submitted by	Library NSOU
Submitter email	dylibrarian.plagchek@wbnsou.ac.in
Similarity	50%
Analysis address	dylibrarian.plagchek.wbnsou@analysis.urkund.com

Sources included in the report

W	URL: https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_5... Fetched: 2022-02-14 04:34:57	116
W	URL: http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf Fetched: 2021-06-13 10:01:27	188
W	URL: https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Managem... Fetched: 2022-12-17 00:45:21	17
SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx Document Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)	14
SA	dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx Document dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)	3
SA	Service Law project 16A047.docx Document Service Law project 16A047.docx (D72573240)	2
SA	Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf Document Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)	5
SA	DR. Atma Ram-Efforts for Administrative Reforms in India.docx Document DR. Atma Ram-Efforts for Administrative Reforms in India.docx (D23434349)	1
W	URL: http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf Fetched: 2022-06-30 09:22:26	8
SA	MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx Document MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)	6

SA	MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx Document MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)	9
SA	sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc Document sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)	3
SA	Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx Document Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx (D154785574)	2
W	URL: https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%2528PAR%2529_Rules.pdf Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:11:00	4
SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx Document CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)	5
SA	Hema S Pandey llm.docx Document Hema S Pandey llm.docx (D142172933)	1
W	URL: https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1 Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:11:00	4
SA	Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc Document Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)	5
SA	RamaRao Bonagani.docx Document RamaRao Bonagani.docx (D131384210)	2
W	URL: https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secr... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:11:00	6
W	URL: https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:11:00	15

Entire Document

Ouriginal by Turnitin

PREFACE In a bid to standardize higher education in the country, the University Grants Commission (UGC) has introduced Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) based on five types of courses viz. core, discipline specific, generic elective, ability and skill enhancement for graduate students of all programmes at Honours level. This brings in the semester pattern, which finds efficacy in sync with credit system, credit transfer, comprehensive continuous assessments and a graded pattern of evaluation. The objective is to offer learners ample flexibility to choose from a wide gamut of courses, as also to provide them lateral mobility between various educational institutions in the country where they can carry their acquired credits. I am happy to note that the University has been recently accredited by National Assessment and Accreditation Council of India (NAAC) with grade ''A''. UGC (Open and Distance Learning Programmes and Online Programmes) Regulations, 2020 have mandated compliance with CBCS for UG programmes for all the HEIs in this mode. Welcoming this paradigm shift in higher education, Netaji Subhas Open University (NSOU) has resolved to adopt CBCS from the academic session 2021- 22 at the Under Graduate Degree Programme level. The present syllabus, framed in the spirit of syllabi recommended by UGC, lays due stress on all aspects envisaged in the curricular framework of the apex body on higher education. It will be imparted to learners over the six semesters of the Programme. Self Learning Materials (SLMs) are the mainstay of Student Support Services (SSS) of an Open University. From a logistic point of view, NSOU has embarked upon CBCS presently with SLMs in English / Bengali. Eventually, the English version SLMs will be translated into Bengali too, for the benefit of learners. As always, all of our teaching faculties contributed in this process. In addition to this we have also requisitioned the services of best academics in each domain in preparation of the new SLMs. I am sure they will be of commendable academic support. We look forward to proactive feedback from all stakeholders who will participate in the teaching-learning based on these study materials. It has been a very challenging task well executed, and I congratulate all concerned in the preparation of these SLMs. I wish the venture a grand success. Professor (Dr.) Ranjan Chakrabarti Vice-Chancellor

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject : Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Personnel Administration Course Code : CC-PA-09 First Print—January, 2023 _____ Printed in accordance with the regulations of the Distance Education Bureau of the University Grants Commission

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Personnel Administration Course Code: CC-PA-09 : Board of Studies : : Members : Chandan Basu Dipankar Sinha Professor of History Professor of Political Science Director, School of Social Sciences, NSOU University of Calcutta Soma Ghosh Pujan Kumar Sen Professor of Political Science Professor of Public Administration Principal, HMM College for Women NSOU Barnana Guha Thakurta (Banerjee) Sital Prasad Nag Associate Professor of Political Science Associate Professor of Political Science NSOU NSOU Manoj Kumar Haldar Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Political Science Assistant Professor of Public Administration NSOU NSOU : Writers : : Editor : Block I Units 1-5 Pujan Kumar Sen Gobinda Naskar Assistant Professor of Political Science, Professor of Public Administration Sidho Kanho Birsha University NSOU Block II Units 1-5 : Format Editing : Partha Sarathi Dey Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Political Science, Assistant Professor of Public Administration Dinabandhu Mahavidyalaya NSOU Block III Units 1-5 Pradipta Mukherjee Assistant Professor of Political Science, HMM College for Women Block IV Units 1-5 Pratip Chattopadhyay Assistant Professor of Political Science, University of Kalyani Notification

All rights reserved. No part of this Self-Learning Material (SLM) may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from Netaji Subhas Open University.

A.B.Aich Registrar

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Personnel Administration Course Code: CC-PA-09 CONTENTS Block I Introduction .....1- 45 Block II Civil Service in India ..... 46 - 89 Block III Personnel Management and Practices ..... 90 - 141 Block IV Employer Employee Relations..... 142 - 176

1 CC IX Block-I Introduction

55% MATCHING BLOCK 1/416 W

Unit –I: Nature and Scope of Personnel Administration Structure 1.1 Objective 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Definition of Personnel Administration 1.4 Nature and Scope of Personnel Administration 1.5 Changing scope of Personnel Administration 1.6 Conclusion 1.7

Summing Up 1.8 Probable Questions 1.9 Further Reading 1.1 Objective After going through this unit learners will be able - •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 2/416 W

To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization. •

89% MATCHING BLOCK 3/416 W

To understand the several features of public personnel administration. • To discuss the several functions of personnel administration viz. Manpower; planning, recruitment, training, promotion, salary structuring, and employees' welfare; • To discuss the meaning and importance of public services; scope and functions of public services; • Explain the concept of personnel administration, and discuss the scope of personnel administration. 2 1.2

Introduction It is a fact that 'Personnel Administration' is one of the integral parts of the whole administrative system of a country. The process of personnel administration, therefore, is influenced by the collection of social, economic as well as political forces. It is not a fact denying that administration is a dynamic and continuous process that takes nature according to the demand of time. As a part of general administration, personnel administration also cannot be viewed without considering the changing situation of human society. Personnel administration of a country is one of the most crucial and complex problems of the whole administrative process. It is such an area where the frontier of private or business administration and what is properly known as public administration is. Both are an integral part of society and must reflect its compulsions and aspirations. In other words, personnel administration is the keystone of public administration, mainly concerned with managing and developing resources. It is not an isolated system. It is ultimately connected with the political culture and constitutional system. Be it public or private, as already mentioned personnel administration is the foundation of any administrative organization. It is the keystone in the sense that the administration is done by the personnel. Ruthnaswamy says – "However necessary and useful organization and machinery may be in administration, the importance of the manning of the administration is greater, for it is the men that work the machine. From the top to the bottom, from the centre to the circumference and in between, it is men that make the machinery of administration work". It constitutes one of the most important elements of 'good administration'.

86% MATCHING BLOCK 4/416 W

Walter R. Sharp observes - "Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities, and qualified personnel".

The effective and efficient functioning of any administrative organization depends upon the quality of personnel carrying out its administration. The policies and programmes of the organization are formulated and implemented by them. The success and the failure of an organization, therefore, rest on the personnel it employed. So, it has been pertinently remarked that the personnel is the ultimate source of administrative competence. Of course, it has to be also remembered that, "a theoretically perfect administrative structure and sound methods of work may be devised, but they will be of little or no avail if those who man the administration are unequal to their work".Because of this aspect, Walter R. Sharp says – "

96% MATCHING BLOCK 5/416 W

even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with well - trained, intelligent, imaginative and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best-planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated by mediocre or, disgruntled 3 people".

Despite this fact, it must be conceded that the well-ordered personnel system is the only instrument through which an administrative organization can accomplish the defined and desired goal. According to H. Finer, "Personnel is the sovereign factor in public administration". In a sense, the importance of personnel in administration cannot be questioned; because it constitutes the 'nervous system' of an organization. Personnel constitutes an important part of the organization. With the necessary skills, aptitude, integrity, and organizing capacity the personnel can build the image of their organizations as effective institutions in the nation-building process. In other words, human beings are a resource to an organization. Like any other material on economic resources, they represent an investment whose development and utilization require managing (i.e., planning, organization, leadership, and evaluation). There is a fundamental truth in the line that people are an organization's most important asset. In every organization, human resources are a pivotal variable without which the unresponsive assets are worthless. Therefore, human resources need to be understood in their proper perspective and utilized effectively to achieve the goals of an organization. This requires that human resources must be administered and administration implies that work should be effectively completed with and through other people. The process of administration is made up of four steps embracing the personnel dimension - getting them, preparing them, activating them, and keeping them. So, today personnel administration is becoming a very complicated and challenging task for those who are entrusted with the successful running of an organization. Beyond a doubt, personnel administration extremely helps in the nation's building process. Perhaps, considering this aspect of the personnel administration, Dr.Rajendra Prasad said at the ultimate session of the Constituent Assembly: "Whatever the constitution may or may not provide, the welfare of the country will depend upon how the country is administered. That will depend upon the men who administer it .... It requires men of strong character, men of vision, men who will not; sacrifice the interests of the country at large, for the sake of smaller groups, and areas and who rise above the prejudices which are born of these differences". Despite all this fact, it is observed today that there is a general trend in the organization to emphasize material and financial management to the utter neglect of personnel. The consequence of this is that the process of development takes longer, and sometimes even fails. The main reason for this is that the organizations concerned are not so attentive to the personnel who are the real agents of development and ultimately the beneficiaries of the process of development. Personnel, properly selected and given the job of their choice, produce excellent results otherwise they are a liability to the organization.

4 1.3 Definition of Personnel Administration: Popularly a question arises - what is 'Personnel Administration'? Before going to answer this relevant question, one must first have a clear-cut understanding of, the .term 'personnel'. The Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary of Current English lays down the meaning of 'personnel' as "staff; persons employed in any work, especially public undertakings and the armed forces". It is defined as "the body of persons employed - both managers as well as who are managed". In a sense, the term personnel means all the members working in an organization. Therefore the concept of Personnel Administration means the administration of human resources of an organization. It relates to the administration of persons employed in an organization. It is that branch of public administration that can help an organization in the management of personnel resources with the use of well - thought out principles, practices, and rationalized techniques in selecting, retaining, and developing personnel for the fulfillment of organizational objectives systematically and scientifically. It is both the art and science of planning, organizing, implementing, and evaluating the personnel resources in any organization to ensure their best use for the achievement of the objectives, goals, and targets of an organization. To be more specific, let us quote some definitions of authentic writers in this field: According to Glenn Stahl, personnel administration is the totality of concern with the human resources of an organization. It is one of the organization's major linkages with its environment. It applies to the values, ethics, the philosophy of that environment, and it in turn influences the environment. To whatever extent it is true in public service - simply because of its size and its relationship to the whole people.F. A. Nigro also defines personnel administration as "the art of selecting new employees and making use of old ones in such manner that the maximum quality and quantity of output and service are obtained from the working force". According to Ordway Tead, "Personnel Administration is the utilization of its best scientific knowledge of all kinds to the end that an organization as a whole and the corporate purpose and the individual purposes are being reconciled to the fullest possible extent, while the working together of these purposes realises also a genuine social benefit". Andrew F. Sikula defines "Personnel Administration is concerned basically with manpower on 'people', organizational resource of output". Defining Personnel Administration, Jucious says that it is "

95% MATCHING BLOCK 6/416 W

That field of management which has to do with planning, organizing, directing and controlling the functions of procuring, developing, maintaining and utilizing a labour force such that :(i) The objectives for which the Company is established are attained economically and effectively;(

ii) The

81% MATCHING BLOCK 7/416 W

objectives of all levels of personnel are served to the highest possible degree;(iii) The objectives of the Community are duly considered and served".

According to this definition, the administration is concerned with the 5 managerial (planning, organizing, directing, and controlling) and operative (procurement, development, maintenance, and utilisations) functions, to attain the organization's goals economically and effectively and meet the individual and social goals". Prof. Thomas G. Spates has given the following definition: "

94% MATCHING BLOCK 8/416 W

personnel administration is a code of the way of organizing and treating individuals at work so that they will each get the greatest possible realization of their intrinsic abilities, thus attaining maximum efficiency for themselves and their group, and thereby giving to the enterprise of which they are a part of its optimum results". In this definition, personnel administration has been regarded as a code that deals with the ways of organizing human resources in such a way that their potentialities are best utilized bringing them satisfaction and efficiency in their work and helping the organization in attaining its objectives, with a minimum of cost, in a competitive market. "It is that branch of management", says Scott and others, "which is responsible, on staff for concentrating on those aspects of operations which are primarily concerned with the relationship of management to employees and employees to employees and with the development of the individual and group. The objectives are to attain maximum individual development, desirable working relationship between employers and employees and employers and employees, and effective moulding of human resources as contrasted with physical resources". This definition puts importance on the staff group personnel activities and on assisting the operational personnel in performing the personnel duties such as maintenance of personal records; selection, transfer, and promotion of employees; and the responsibility of seeing that the company's policies relating to personnel practices and procedures are carried out. Pigors and Myers define personnel administration thus: "It is a method of developing potentialities of employees so that they get maximum satisfaction out of their work and give their best efforts to the organization". From the above definitions, it is clear that personnel administration is the art and science of policymaking, planning, decision-making, organizing, directing, controlling, and motivating human resources for securing, maintaining, developing integrating, involving, compensating as well as enriching human environment for the blooming of human skills and capacities in an organization, to secure organization and social objectives as well as employees satisfaction.

Nature of Personnel Administration

86% MATCHING BLOCK 9/416 W

Personnel function is crucial in any administrative organization. The organization cannot afford to ignore it. Hence it becomes a basic responsibility of the management, be it in the government or semi or 6 non-government organizations. The changes in the socio-economic environment affect management. The management environment keeps changing due to the changes that occur in the total socio-economic environment. The political environment also affects the work environment in an organization. Such changes get reflected in personnel administration. These changes can be: i) changing mix of the personnel entering government service organization ii) changing values of personnel

iii) increasing expectations of the government from their employees, and iv) increasing expectations of the people from the government at different levels. Thus management is affected by the changes in the social, economic, and political scenario. It has to keep up with these changes. A higher number from schedule castes, tribes, and other economically backward classes are joining the government service. A greater number of people with higher education, more women, and more technically skilled workers are also joining the government service. This has changed the ratios of the working force. With the proliferation of activities under 'development' and 'welfare' programmes, the employees are now expected to be more competent and efficient. People at large expect the administration to be efficient, effective, and sympathetic. People's involvement in administrative activities is increasing. Due to the constant demands on administration, the importance of personnel administration is also changing. Personnel is required to perform 'line and staff' functions. Activities directly related to the primary objective of an organization are called 'line' functions. The 'staff' functions are those which facilitate and assist the performance of line work. They are like secondary activities and enhance the effectiveness of the line agencies. For example, assistance in processing and supplying the required number of personnel and training and development of personnel are essentially staff functions. An organization cannot function without the assistance of line and staff personnel. At the same time, personnel functions cannot be isolated from the rest of the administrative functions. Personnel functions include both line and staff activities in an organization. Personnel administration does not always function in a formal organization. No organization can solely run based on formal rules and regulations, it comprises human beings who are structured in an authority and responsibility network to carry out the tasks and activities for the fulfillment of organizational objectives. This formal structure is supplemented, supported, or sometimes obstructed and on occasion taken over by the informal organization.

89% MATCHING BLOCK 10/416 W

An

91% MATCHING BLOCK 11/416 W

informal organization grows within the formal organization. It is a natural phenomenon and is based on social and cultural relations among the personnel 7 of formal groups. Political, economic, and psychological factors also contribute to the growth of

the

91% MATCHING BLOCK 12/416 W

informal organization. The functions of personnel administration are becoming more complicated day by day. The problems of personnel administration differ from one organization to the other. Big organizations have more tasks to perform, employ more people, and serve varied objectives. The task of personnel administration in such organizations becomes more intricate. As personnel administration deals with human beings all the time, the crucial functions of motivation and morale of employees have to be performed by it. It has to meet the growing needs of the people as well as satisfy the increasing expectations of its employees. 1.4

100% MATCHING BLOCK 13/416 W

Scope of personnel Administration: Personnel administration incorporates all characteristics of

the

90% MATCHING BLOCK 14/416 W

management of persons in an organization. The primary objective of personnel administration is to ensure

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 15/416 W

effective utilization of human possessions in pursuit of organizational goals. The personnel administration departments should design and establish an effective working relationship in the middle of all the members of an organization through

the

87% MATCHING BLOCK 16/416 W

division of organizational tasks into jobs, defining clearly the responsibility and authority for each job and its relation with other jobs in the organization. Personnel administration necessity tries to stimulate in the middle of the employee's feelings of dedication, attachment, and devotion to the organization. The aim is to establish amiable relations in the middle between the employees and do absent with frictional situations arising out of personal jealousies, rivalries, and prejudices. Personnel administration also has to curb unfavorable practices like favoritism and nepotism in an organization. Personnel administration has to give attention to

98% MATCHING BLOCK 17/416 W

several characteristics of management like recruitment, training, promotion, circumstances of service, employee welfare, employer-employee relations, and processes of morale and motivation. It has to develop links with the instant,

96% MATCHING BLOCK 18/416 W

intermediate, and external environments to create effective and efficient. As the tasks of

the

98% MATCHING BLOCK 19/416 W

organization increase, the responsibilities of personnel administration also augment accordingly. It is not possible to solve the troubles with a one-time and one-stroke decision. The larger the system more is the more complexities. Take, for instance, the Government of India, it is divided into ministries, departments, divisions, units, etc. It is spread over the whole length and breadth of the country. Millions of people work in it; they operate at dissimilar hierarchical stages and carry out a large diversity of functions. Many services and their division into groups constitute the whole workforce of the Central government. Approximately 8 similar is the situation in each state. Personnel administration has to accommodate all these characteristics. It requires continuous managerial input. Planning and providing for the regular supply of the needed manpower for unlike positions and in unlike numbers is a significant task of the government. The procedure of recruitment and utilization of each micro-unit of human resources calls for effective personnel administration, likewise, creating and maintaining desirable working relationships also calls

90% MATCHING BLOCK 20/416 W

98% MATCHING BLOCK 21/416 W

for a series of continuous efforts on the part of the personnel. Those responsible for personnel administration have to work for it constantly. The attainment of these two objectives becomes easier if the organization gives appropriate opportunities for individual development. These opportunities can be in the form of training, internal, and external mobility, promotion, recognition, and reward. They act as strong motivators and satisfiers. Besides, salary structuring of millions of employees is a wholesome task because each category has to be adequately and equitably compensated for the contribution it is expected to create towards

the

89% MATCHING BLOCK 22/416 W

organization's objectives. This is also a work of personnel administration. The working force also has to be subjected to sure disciplines to regulate

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 23/416 W

proper performance of duty. Framing of conduct rules, laying down procedures of disciplinary action, enforcement of those rules, and adoption of appropriate procedures are also a part of personnel administration. Employer-employee relations, provision for Joint Consultative Machinery,

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 24/416 W

establishment of public service tribunals for adjudication, adoption of welfare measures, and payment of retirement benefits, etc. to the employees are the added responsibilities of personnel administration. Trade unionism in the middle of government employees has increased throughout the past few decades. Both employer and employee unions have come up. There is now a dire need for expert skills to foresee personnel needs and troubles and to plan for their satisfaction and rectification. All this requires systematic personnel administration. Therefore the scope of personnel administration is wide and varied; moreover, it is continuously expanding with the changes in the environment. The scope of personnel administration is very wide. It is becoming diversified as the number of personnel is increasing in degree and complexity. It may be classified as under – o Personnel Functions:

76% MATCHING BLOCK 25/416 W

Personnel administration has to deal with various aspects like recruitment, training, promotion, conditions of service, employees welfare, and employee-employer relations. Today, more and more interest has been laid on the processes of morale and motivation to enhance the efficiency of personnel.

9 o Environmental Linkage: Personnel Administration has to develop links with the immediate, intermediate, and external environment to make itself effective and efficient. Particularly it has to develop a link with the political elite without whose direction, the personnel administration cannot function. o Constitutional Provisions and Executive Orders: Personnel administration has to function according to the constitutional provisions and executive orders. So, there is a need to understand the provisions of the constitution for understanding the scope and liquidation of authorities to deal with personnel issues and problems. Since there is an independent judiciary to deal with various personnel issues, there is also a need to understand the role of the judiciary in this context. o Personnel Associations or Unions: The employees unite in the form of associations or unions to get their genuine grievances redressed. Many of these associations or unions are legally recognized. So, there is a need to understand their role in personnel administration. o Responsibility to Legislature through the executive: For a clear understanding of the scope of personnel administration, one has to understand the role of parliamentary institutions like the Ombudsman, ParliamentaryCommissioners, Lokpal in the Centre, Lokayukta in States, etc., because, these are public beneficiaries at large. In addition, we must study the responsibilities of personnel administration to the legislature through the ministers or the legislative committees. 1.5 Changing Scope of Personnel Administration Now a day the scope of personnel administration has changed somewhat over the last few decades. But this change has been relatively slow in comparison to the changes in other areas of business, management, and administration. Many of these changes depend on the size of an organization in which the personnel function occurs, the managerial personnel philosophies, the growing importance of the functions, the changing managerial demands, employee needs, and societal concerns. Managerial and organizational planning are incoming areas, i.e., they are now going to receive substantially more attention; they did not have any prominence in the past. Training and managerial development and personnel research have become increasingly important today; while the importance of personnel appraisal, wage, and salary administration, has somewhat declined in terms of relative emphasis. Employee benefits and services, and workers' health and safety have always been important personnel concerns. Labour relations, public relations, and plant security are 'Outgoing'personnel sub-areas that 10 have been taken always from the personnel department because of their increased organizational importance. 1.6 Conclusion We can say personnel administration covers proper planning for work, selection, placement, and training of employees so selected distribution and assignment of work among them. It includes supervision, conduct and discipline, motivation, communication and welfare grievance settlement terms of employment, etc. It also deals with all other auxiliary functions starting from recruitment and ending with retirement. Personnel administration functions are comprehensive and cover the entire work career of the employment in respect of the organization. This function is universal and is useful for all organizations whether government, industry, hospital, or universities. 1.7 Summing Up Every organization has to keep its personnel satisfied irrespective of its nature.

81% MATCHING BLOCK 26/416 W

Personnel is the means through which organizations develop. In this unit, we familiarized ourselves with the concept, meaning, and nature of personnel administration. 1.8 Probable Questions Essay type questions i. Discuss the nature of Personnel Administration. ii. What are the basic characteristics of personnel administration? iii. Analyze the scope of Personnel Administration. Short questions i. What is meant by Personnel Administration? ii. What are the functions of personnel administration? iii. What do you mean by 'Line and Staff'? 1.9 Further Reading a) Ruthnaswamy M., Principles and Practice of Public Administration, Central Book Depot Allahabad, Fifth Revised Edition, 1974. b) Sharp, Walter R, Field Administration in the United Nations System, London, 1961. c) Naidu, S.P., Apparao, T., Mallikarjunayya, Elements of Modern Public Administration, S.Chand& Company (Pvt.) Ltd., 1986. d) Sikula, Andrew F., Personnel Administration, and Human Resource Management, John Wiley and Sons, Inc., New York, 1976.

11 Unit-II: Evolution of Personnel Administration Structure 2.1 Objective 2.2 Introduction 2.3 Evolution of Personnel Administration 2.4 Conclusion 2.5 Summing Up 2.6 Glossary/ Key Words 2.7 Probable Questions 2.8 Further Reading 2.1 Objective

78% MATCHING BLOCK 27/416 W

After going through this unit, learners will be able - • To explain the concept of personnel administration • To highlight its evolution and development 2.2

Introduction Personnel management began its development at the beginning of the 20th century. The leaders of large factories realized that the organization can achieve tremendous savings if the employee-related processes are centralized and managed using the same procedures and principles for all. They are also required to unify and upgrade voluntary social care programs and initiatives. Personnel administration developed into a healthy personnel management function. However, in the late 70s of the 20th century, 12 modern Human Resources Management has begun to evolve as the strategic response to the increased competition in the market. 2.3 Evolution of Personnel Administration The development of personnel administration in the U.K. and U.S.A. was largely voluntary, in India, the growth of personnel administration can be attributed to the efforts made by the government. While in the West, the revolutionary work in the field of personnel management was motivated by the managerial concern with the concept of welfare, in India, disorganized recruitment practices, rising labour unrest, loss of production, etc., initiated some interest in personnel management. In

88% MATCHING BLOCK 28/416 W

the

93% MATCHING BLOCK 29/416 W

U.K., personnel administration had its origin in the concept of welfare as propounded and practiced by some enlightened entrepreneurs, who sought the establishment of modern personnel administration. The term 'personnel management' actually originated in the U.S.A. F.W. Taylor's scientific management theory laid the foundation for the development of personnel administration. Taylor emphasized scientific selection and systematic training and development of the individual worker. H.L. Gantt, a secure associate of Taylor, in scientific management movements, foresaw the need for obtaining the willing cooperation of the worker. He maintained that it was not enough to tell the worker how to do a job, but it was also necessary to promote the skill and willingness to do a job. Mary Parker Follet also laid stress on training and development characteristics of management. The pioneers of scientific management, separately from rising efficiency, aimed at fighting fatigue and monotony in the middle of the workers. Elton Mayo's Hawthorne experiments and the human relations movement were a significant breakthroughs for personnel administration.

84% MATCHING BLOCK 30/416 W

These experiments paved the way for using the disciplines of sociology, psychology, industrial psychology, social psychology, etc., intending to understand employees and organizational behaviour and influence them through a motivational approach. All this led to the gradual development and development of a theory and practice of personnel management. There were also other events and influences which led to the growth of personnel management. Several revolutionary concepts like mass production, mass sharing, and mass financing evolved through industrial and business empires. The labour shortages throughout the world wars and several labour troubles posed a management challenge. With the Great Depression in 1929, big businesses suffered a severe setback. The State, the public, and the trade unions, aimed at efficient professional management. Their demands were

the

98% MATCHING BLOCK 31/416 W

elimination of waste and maximum utilization of possessions, particularly human possessions. All these 13 growths in America emphasized the fact that management of people or personnel management is just as significant as the management of production. The history of the development and growth of personnel management in our country is not very old. It was the Royal Commission on Labour that

81% MATCHING BLOCK 32/416 W

recommended in 1931 the appointment of Labour Officers to deal with the recruitment of labour to settle their grievances. The industrial disputes of the 1920s forced the government and businessmen to think in conditions of labour troubles and promotion of personnel management. The recognition of trade unions in India gave a new perspective on the employer and employee relationship. Entrepreneurs like the Tatas, Calico Mills, British India Corporation, etc. had appointed WelfareOfficers as early as 1920. These Labour Welfare Officers performed the functions of redresses of employee grievances and promoting industrial harmony. On the suggestion of the Government, the Indian Jute Mills Owners' Association appointed a Labour Officer to bring about a settlement of employee grievances in 1937 in Bengal with the mills, and through 1939 five more Labour Officers were appointed. Other Employers' Associations like

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 33/416 W

Indian Engineering Association, Indian Tea Association, the Engineering Association of India, etc., also followed the instance of

the

96% MATCHING BLOCK 34/416 W

Indian Jute Owners' Association in appointing labour officers. In 1941, the Government of India initiated the Tripartite Labour Conference with the representatives of the Government, labour, and employees to promote uniform labour legislation determine a procedure to settle industrial disputes, and promote consultations on industrial matters affecting the country. Now they have become permanent and regular characteristics of labour policy. In 1948, the Factories Act Rules laid down the appointment, duties, and qualifications of a new statutory officer in

the

91% MATCHING BLOCK 35/416 W

industry described as the Welfare Officer. The following years saw the emergence of yet another officer described as

100% MATCHING BLOCK 36/416 W

the Personnel Officer. The Personnel Officer deals with labour welfare, industrial relations, and personnel administration. Several companies in India now have specialized personnel departments and a full-time personnel officer in charge. 2.4

Conclusion Due to developmental tendencies,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 37/416 W

the number of personnel is rising at a very fast rate,

and

70% MATCHING BLOCK 38/416 W

expenditure on personnel is also correspondingly rising. There has also been a trend concerning the diversification in the personnel as more and more specialists, experts, and technicians are being appointed in government departments, and public, and private organizations. Modern personnel do not just deal with

the

90% MATCHING BLOCK 39/416 W

welfare of employees but also aim at achieving profits for the organization. The motive is to earn profits as well as benefits for the organization and its employees. 14 2.5 Summing Up Personnel administration is a description of how they were treated and managed will be relevant for a proper understanding of personnel administration from a historical perspective. 2.6 Probable Questions Essay type questions a) Discuss the evolution of personnel administration. b) Discuss the development of personnel administration in India. Short questions a) Analyze the Scientific management theory in the development of personnel administration. b) Write a short note on Elton Mayo's Hawthorne experiment. 2.7 Further Reading a) Mukherjee, B.C., Administration in Changing India, Blaze Publishers, Delhi, 1994. b)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 40/416 W

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.

c) Avasthi and S.R. Maheshwari, Public Administration, Lakshini Narain Agarwal, Agra, 1978. d) egyankosh.ac.in › bitstream › Unit-1 Unit-III: Function and Significance of Personnel Administration Structure 3.1 Objective 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Significance of Personnel Administration 3.4 Functions of Personnel Administration 3.5 How to Develop an Efficient Public Personnel System 3.6 Conclusion 3.7 Summing Up 3.8 Probable Questions 3.9 Further Reading 15 3.1 Objective After going through this unit learners will be able - • To utilize human resources effectively; and achieve effective utilization of human resources (besides material resources) for the attainment of organizational goals. • To establish and maintain a productive and self-respecting relationship among all the members of the organization. • To enable each person to make his maximum personal contribution to the effective working of the organization. 3.2 Introduction

81% MATCHING BLOCK 41/416 W

Personnel administration is that part of an administration that is concerned with people at work and with their relationships within an organization. It refers to the entire spectrum of an organization's interaction with its human resources from recruitment activity to the retirement process. 3.3

100% MATCHING BLOCK 42/416 W

Significance of Personnel Administration The quality of an organization is dependent on the quality of its employees, that is, the personnel it employs. With the development of science and technology and

the

98% MATCHING BLOCK 43/416 W

growth of welfare functions to meet the demands of expanding population organizations whether public or private, have to perform a large number of tasks varied and complex. It is only possible if the personnel engaged in the attainment of objectives are efficient and sincere. In the middle of the three components required for developmental tasks, personnel, money, and material, it is the personnel or the human element which determines the quality and quantity of the performance and output. Even the contribution of money and material to performance depends considerably upon their manipulation through the human beings in an organization. Walter R. Sharp has aptly remarked, “Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities, and qualified personnel... Even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with well-trained, intelligent, imaginative, and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best-planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated through mediocre or disgruntled people”.

a

100% MATCHING BLOCK 44/416 W

For that reason,

92% MATCHING BLOCK 45/416 W

we can say that without efficient personnel, organizational tasks can never be fulfilled. Without efficient bureaucracy, the government can never create its plans and policies a success. The performance of the organization and the growth of its personnel is connected with the competence of 16

the

96% MATCHING BLOCK 46/416 W

personnel constituting the organization. No country should neglect the development of human possessions. We also witness a complete wastage of human possessions due to unemployment, underemployment, and male employment. Positive steps have to be taken to remove these troubles. The augment in labour force necessity entails an augment in an

90% MATCHING BLOCK 47/416 W

economically active population. The greatest natural resource of a nation is its people. Investments in developing human possessions through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job-oriented programmes, and designing appropriate performance appraisal and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people high. These programmes accordingly influence organizational effectiveness. The most significant problem in public personnel administration is to ensure that vast manpower resource employed in the state sector yields the best possible return. The efficiency of public employees or the effectiveness of the personnel system depends on many factors, such as the quality of talent attracted to and retained in the public service,

the

93% MATCHING BLOCK 48/416 W

nature of training that the employees receive, values and motivation of employees, standards, and norms set up through formal and informal work groups, effectiveness in interpersonal relationships, styles of supervision and leadership, nature and adequacy of work tools and procedures for decision-creation and the character of interrelationships with the political procedure and social environment. The

Administrative Reforms Committee of India (

96% MATCHING BLOCK 49/416 W

ARC) had observed that “the present personnel system does not create for a rational and optimum utilization of human possessions within the civil service to the best advantage of administration as well as the community.” Throughout the last 40 years, the country has taken up past developmental responsibilities. This calls for an effective personnel system to formulate and carry out organizational functions. Public, as well as private organizations, are rising day by day, they both have an important role to play in the

92% MATCHING BLOCK 50/416 W

pursuit of developmental goals and it is only through the help of the right personnel and management of human possessions that these objectives can be realized. 3.4

Functions of Personnel Administration
Over the decades

68% MATCHING BLOCK 51/416 W

the personnel administrative system in the country has developed various functionalities. To create the public personnel system effectively, the ineffectiveness has to be properly recognized and removed. The Conference on Personnel Administration held in 1968 under the auspices of the Indian Institute of Public Administration(IIPA), New Delhi, lay that the existing personnel system did not meet the necessities of a desirable personnel administrative system. The existing system leaned too heavily on personnel.

Our choice is

97% MATCHING BLOCK 52/416 W

more "status-oriented" rather than"attainment-oriented". The personnel systems' sanction is based on the criterion of an outdated selection system through means of a 17 purely academic examination. The necessities i.e. the desirable ingredients of a good and sound personnel system were recognized as follows, namely: • The best man for the job • Rising professionalization • Competitiveness in selection for higher administrative positions • Placement to be job-oriented and not status trapped • Motivation for better performance • Equal pay for equal work • Objective evaluation of performance • Rational promotion and personnel development system • Appropriate organization of functions of government and • Appropriate policies and practices to enable optimum personnel performance. In a Seminar on "Public Services and Social Responsibility", organized through

the

94% MATCHING BLOCK 53/416 W

Indian Institute of Advanced Revised in Shimla (October 1973), some of the feature inadequacies and weaknesses of the public service system in India were recognized and debated. They were:

o

78% MATCHING BLOCK 54/416 W

Bureaucracy, especially its higher echelons, has acquired a class character. In operation, its instrumental role is often subordinated, and it emerges as an end in itself. o The gap flanked by the administration and the citizen is widening. o Though inedible, it is, nevertheless, true that bureaucracy has been rather insensitive to the needs of the latter and has lost reliability. o Nowadays bureaucracy has become a slow-moving and dull-witted giant. There are contradictions and incompatibilities at dissimilar stages of bureaucracy. o The public services have become a prisoner of their procedures and precedents. Negative thinking appears to prevail. This leads to action rationalized in several ways... o Public services are becoming increasingly inadequate in taking up new tasks and challenges. Even in the maintenance of law and order, bureaucracy often finds itself ineffective. In the economic field, its performance has usually been poor. It has rarely been able to take a dynamic view of emerging troubles. It tries to cure today's ill with yesterday's remedies, but quite often these do not work.

96% MATCHING BLOCK 55/416 W

Manpower planning creates long-range estimates of the general and specific manpower needs of the organization for dissimilar activities. By anticipating the need for several kinds of ability necessities and 18 stages of personnel, well in advance, a manpower plan can provide an

96% MATCHING BLOCK 56/416 W

adequate lead time for recruitment, selection, and training of such personnel. It controls delays and is a very effective device to develop the required sources from which needed personnel can be made accessible. The objectives of manpower planning are: o To ensure

the

92% MATCHING BLOCK 57/416 W

optimum use of human possessions currently employed o To assess or forecast future skills necessities if the organization's overall objectives are to be achieved o To give control measures to ensure that necessary possessions are accessible as and when required

o To determine the

82% MATCHING BLOCK 58/416 W

recruitment stage o To anticipate the weaknesses of organizational procedures and avoid unnecessary dismissals. o To determine the training stages o

94% MATCHING BLOCK 59/416 W

To give a basis for management o To assess future accommodation necessities. At the stage of manpower planning, planners have to take into consideration several things. The planner necessity takes into account all such variables which are beyond his/her control, these are wavering variables that always affect the functioning of an organization, for instance,

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 60/416 W

strength of an organization, investment, union rules, etc. The planners also have to identify those variables which are manipulative, for instance, productivity, incentives, training, etc. the planner's

100% MATCHING BLOCK 61/416 W

necessity determine in advance the time horizons of their plans since they affect the changeability of structures and functions within the system. Manpower planning can only be effective if goals are explicitly laid down. Manpower planning has to determine the quality and quantity of personnel needed for a specific job. The methods used for this purpose are job analysis, job account, job specification, workload analysis, and work force analysis. Without effective manpower planning, the other functions of personnel administration viz. recruitment, placement, training, promotion, the welfare of employees, etc. cannot be performed properly.

96% MATCHING BLOCK 62/416 W

In the general area of policy creation, the public services have not given a convincing account of themselves; they act through hunches and intuition rather than trained insights. In its Report on Personnel Administration, the Administrative ReformsCommission (ARC) (1968) while emphasizing the need for a new personnel system dealt with several characteristics of

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 63/416 W

personnel system in Central Government and highlighted its shortcomings. The first of these shortcomings, according to ARC, relates to

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 64/416 W

professional inadequacy of the system to face the great diversification of the functions which calls 19 for a diversity of skills in the higher administration. Secondly, ARC diagnosed that the “tenure system” through which non-professional and non-committed “birds of passage” is brought temporarily, impeded “structure up new expertise in personnel”. Thirdly, it laid that “generalist” which has been the hallmark of

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 65/416 W

Indian personnel system has lost "its validity in many fields and is declining in importance" as an inevitable consequence of rapidly "rising technological sophistication" in administration. Fourthly, it would be in

the

82% MATCHING BLOCK 66/416 W

public interest to cast the net wide and choose the best material to match jobs with the persons possessing the needed qualification. In the prevalent system, man job match is not ideal, nor is it consciously practiced, because of the application of the "cadre" concept. Fifthly, in the policy advice and managerial decisions where specialist—professionals are not expected "to involve themselves directly" the whole procedure is amateurish, frustrating, and time-consuming. Sixthly, there is irrationality in the "remuneration pattern of the dissimilar services" which does not "give for recognition of merit, adequate opportunities for promotion and continuous incentive for good performance". Eighthly, "adherence to seniority has proved damaging to quality". Finally "the present personnel system does not create for a rational and optimum utilization of human possessions". 3.5

How to Develop

100% MATCHING BLOCK 67/416 W

an Efficient Public Personnel System The public personnel system has to perform several vital tasks,

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 68/416 W

human element is the mainly crucial part of any system, and it has to be adequately utilized. Several dysfunctionalities that have developed in public services over the decades are posing a lot of hurdles in the pursuance of administrative objectives. The troubles like the rising gap flanked by the administration and citizens, the immobility of public services, red-tapist, obsolete methods of operation, etc. have to be tackled properly. To evolve an efficient public personnel system a much closer interaction is described flanked by the public servants and the citizens. The concept of isolation of civil servants from the public has to be absent. Constant interaction flanked by the public personnel and government can also solve the difficulties to a great extent, a positive and cordial relationship flanked by the minister and the public servant is needed. According to H. Finer, "Though adequately organized the political side of the government, though wise the political philosophy, high leadership, and command, these will be of no effect without the body of officials who are experts in applying power and wisdom to the scrupulous cases and are permanently and specially employed to do so." There is a need for citizens' participation in administrative processes. Citizens should not just be the recipients of the fruits of the implemented programmes, they necessity actively take part in the formulation, implementation, and monitoring of plans as well.

The

86% MATCHING BLOCK 69/416 W

role of voluntary agencies, planning bodies at the grassroots stage, and panchayat bodies have become very significant. These bodies' 20 necessities aim at

the

94% MATCHING BLOCK 70/416 W

optimal utilization of human possessions. Media can also play an effective role in removing the dysfunctionalities of public personnel administration. It can highlight the methods adopted through administration in

the

86% MATCHING BLOCK 71/416 W

removal of citizens' grievances. It can draw the attention of people to the difficulties faced by citizens in their interaction with the administrative personnel and the ways or methods through which they can voice them. Media can highlight the role of nongovernmental organizations and cooperatives in rising peoples' participation in administration. 3.5.1 Recruitment, Training, and Promotion of Personnel

100% MATCHING BLOCK 72/416 W

An organization has to create an assessment of its necessities in conditions of the number of personnel needed for a job, the definition of a job, the skills, and specialization it entails the duration for which personnel is required,

91% MATCHING BLOCK 73/416 W

the

98% MATCHING BLOCK 74/416 W

nature of work, etc. Manpower planning is engaged with these kinds of activities. Organizations whether large or small, whether public or private, are in constant need of manpower. They require men and women for dissimilar stages of positions for performing dissimilar types of jobs at dissimilar places and intervals. The number of personnel with defined skills and specializations needed at dissimilar periodic intervals has to be forecasted. Manpower planning predicts the number of personnel an organization will have to hire, train, or promote in a given period.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 75/416 W

Recruitment Once the determination of manpower needs has been made, the recruitment and selection processes can begin. Recruitment is the procedure of searching for prospective workers and stimulating them to apply for jobs in the organization. It is a positive function that aims at raising the selection ratio which is the number of applicants per job. In contrast, the selection procedure is a 'negative' function because it attempts to eliminate applicants leaving only the best to be absorbed into the organization. Recruitment determines the tone and caliber of the services whether public or private. A faulty recruitment policy inflicts a permanent weakness upon the administration. Not even an effective training policy can create faultily recruited persons bright and efficient. The vital elements of a sound recruitment policy contain: o Discovery and cultivation of the employment market for posts in the organization

o

89% MATCHING BLOCK 76/416 W

Use of attractive recruitment literature and publicity o Use of scientific tests for determining

the

81% MATCHING BLOCK 77/416 W

abilities of the candidates o Tapping capable candidates from within the organization o Placement programme which assigns the right man to the right job; and o A follow-up probationary programme as an integral part of the recruitment Procedure. 21 Recruitment implies matching the personnel features of potential employees with the job necessities. The sources of recruitment can be broadly classified into two: internal and external. Internal sources refer to the present working force of an organization. In the event of a vacancy, someone already on the payroll is promoted, transferred, or sometimes demoted. Filling a vacancy from an internal source has the advantages of raising the general stage of morale of existing employees and of providing the organization with more reliable information about the candidate's suitability. The major weakness of this source is that it may deprive the organization of a fresh outlook, originality, and initiative. External sources refer to the methods adopted by the organization to attract people from outside the organization through a thorough assessment of their qualifications, skills, and potential. Some of the methods of determining qualifications are the personal judgment of the appointing officer, certificates of skill, character, and education,

a

96% MATCHING BLOCK 78/416 W

record of previous experience (educational and professional), and examinations. Employment agencies, advertisements, field trips, educational institutions, professional meetings, employee referrals, unsolicited applicants, etc. are some examples of external sources of recruitment. An organization cannot fill its vacancies from one single source only. Itis necessary cautiously combine some of these services, weighing their cost and flexibility, the quality of personnel they supply, and their effect on the present work- force. A planned recruitment programme gives the organization with job applicants from whom a required number of selections are made. There is no standard selection procedure for recruitment. Usually, the selection is made through a written test or an interview, or both. The final step in the selection procedure is that of inducting the new employee into the new social setting of his/her work. This is done by familiarizing the employee with the new surroundings and the rules and regulations of the organization. Several training methods are used to upgrade the skills of the recruits and integrate their goals with the organizational goals; we will now discuss some of these methods. Training Training is a well-articulated effort to give for increased competence in the service, through imparting professional knowledge, broader vision, and correct patterns of behaviour, habits, and aptitudes. It should be a continuous procedure in response to a continuously felt need. Training helps the entrant by inculcating occupational ability and knowledge, through the creation of him/her familiarity with the objectives of the organization and his/her potential contribution to the furtherance of the department's or organization's goals. Training adjusts the employees with the constant changes in the goals and techniques of organizations. The deficiencies of the new appointees may be corrected by imparting them necessary training. Training helps broaden the vision and outlook of the appointees. It equips those already in the service for higher 22 positions and greater responsibilities, enhances the efficiency of the employees, and helps build the integrity and morale of the employees. The conditions of training and education are closely related. Training is the art of rising the knowledge and ability of an employee for doing a scrupulous job. It is concerned with imparting specific skills for a scrupulous purpose. On the other hand, education is a broader term; it is concerned with rising general knowledge and understanding of the employee's total environment. The need for training is universal. Everybody needs training to effectively discharge the obligations of his/her office. It is a continuous procedure. Training can be informal or formal. Informal training is training through doing work and learning from mistakes. The ultimate success of informal training depends upon the experience and seniority of the senior officer and his/her interest in the new entrant. Formal training aims to inculcate administrative skills in the personnel through well-defined courses. Formal training improves the quality of administration. Pre-entry training, orientation training, in-service training, vocational training, post-entry training, etc. are some examples of formal training. Dissimilar methods of imparting training can be lecture method, case revise method, syndicate method, etc. Whatever the methods, the vital aims of training are always:

94% MATCHING BLOCK 79/416 W

o

97% MATCHING BLOCK 80/416 W

inculcating fresh knowledge in the middle of the employees o upgrading their skills o familiarizing the inducts with the organization, its environment, work circumstances, rules, norms, and goals o attuning the employees to the new needs of the organization o broadening the views and outlook of employees o maintaining the morale of the employees

o

100% MATCHING BLOCK 81/416 W

development of novel attitudes and reducing waste, accidents, turnover, and absenteeism. Every administrative system necessity pays adequate attention to its training necessities. A well- trained, well-aware, and properly skilled personnel system is the very heart of an organization. Promotion Another vital function of personnel administration is promotion. The word 'promote' is derived from the Latin expression 'promoter', which means 'to move forward'. Promotion means the advancement of an employee to a job better than the present one in conditions of greater responsibilities, more prestige or status, greater ability and augment in pay. The need for promotion arises from a diversity of factors. An organization can retain the services of its personnel through the device of promotion. Lower positions in the organization can attract competent persons if it creates provisions for its personnel to move higher. A sound policy of promotion fosters a feeling of belongingness in the personnel, contributes towards the 23 stability of policies and practices, and leads to

94% MATCHING BLOCK 82/416 W

the

93% MATCHING BLOCK 83/416 W

structure of traditions and conventions in the organization. According to W.F. Willoughby, a sound promotion system should fulfill the following circumstances: o Adoption of standard specifications setting forth duties and qualifications required for promotions in the government service. o The classification of these positions into separate classes, series, grades, and services

o

100% MATCHING BLOCK 84/416 W

The inclusion within this classification of all the higher administrative positions except those having a political character

o

97% MATCHING BLOCK 85/416 W

The adoption, as far as possible of the principle of recruitment from within for filling up higher posts o The adoption of the principle of merit in determining the relative merits of employees eligible for advancement. The employees should be made aware not just of the opportunities for promotion open to them but also of the definite lines beside which such promotion is to be expected and the circumstances that necessity is fulfilled

through them in getting it. This means that there should be a definite goal before them towards which they can work. Two principles are used in the system of promotion: o Principle of seniority o

100% MATCHING BLOCK 86/416 W

Principle of merit. The principle of seniority is an age-old principle. Employees attach great importance to the length of service. According to H. Finer, "it is automatic and avoids the need for creation individual distinctions flanked by one person and another, of placing the young over the old, of measuring the responsibility for the result of promotion." But, this gives rise to two vital questions. Is the employee with the longest service necessarily the mainly competent? If employees automatically qualify for higher jobs through being senior, will new employees be motivated to provide good performance? Yet, seniority cannot be rejected altogether through using the internal method of promotion; the administration can keep the morale of employees high and also encourage a competitive spirit for better performance.

The

96% MATCHING BLOCK 87/416 W

use of external methods does give the competitive spirit to grow but the procedure affects the morale of the employees adversely. Using the principle of merit in promotion requires fair practices. To determine the merit of employees, a scientific system of 'performance appraisal' needs to be developed. It should be made as objective as possible. The appraisal should be of regular and continuous nature and should evaluate the quality, quantity, and styles of performance. It should contain also an 24 appraisal of the growth potential of an employee. Taking into consideration the weak and strong points of both principles, a mix of the two is adopted in the organizations while selecting candidates for promotion; both seniority and merit are given due weight to age. Each organization necessity has a sound promotion policy.

Therefore

69% MATCHING BLOCK 88/416 W

promotion has to be based on just and fair norms as it is a powerful means in the hands of the organization to reward its faithful workers. It is a powerful means to lead the employees toward the desired goals. Salary structuring The development of a sound salary system is a significant function of personnel administration. Salary has to be structured in such a way that the employees of the organization feel adequately rewarded and possessions accessible to the organization are optimally utilized. The following are the necessities for the development of a sound pay system: o The pay structure should be simple and rational the pay of a post should be related to the duties and responsibilities attached to that post

and

97% MATCHING BLOCK 89/416 W

it should take into consideration the qualifications and experience prescribed it should be comprehensive and adequate to enable the employee to have a feeling of the total emoluments and to maintain a sure standard of living and it should take into account the comparable salaries paid in alternative occupations. Clarity and adequacy are the standard tasks of a sound pay structure. Good compensation plans, are well-administered and

92% MATCHING BLOCK 90/416 W

have a salutary effect on the whole organization. Employees are happier in their work, cooperation, and loyalty are higher,

the

93% MATCHING BLOCK 91/416 W

productive output is up and quality is better. In the absence of such plans, compensations are determined subjectively based on haphazard and arbitrary decisions. This makes many inequities which are in the middle of the main dangerous sources of friction and low morale in an organization. Although there can be both monetary and non-monetary forms of compensation prevalent in an organization, it is the former which is the main vital element through which individuals are attracted to an organization, persuaded to remain there, and induced to engage in a behavior that is beneficial to the organization. Each organization should structure the salaries of its employees in such a way that no employee feels inadequately rewarded. Separately from vital salary, additional allowances such as house rent allowance, conveyance allowance, recreation allowance, leave encashment; festival loan, etc. can be given to the employees. Moreover, the salary scales have to be constantly revised because of price rises or augment in profits for the organization Employees' Welfare welfare of employees is one of the mainly significant functions of personnel administration, a good personnel system always gives top priority to the well- being of employees. A sound personnel 25 policy, proper recruitment and promotion techniques, conducive training methods, etc. make sure

The

95% MATCHING BLOCK 92/416 W

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 93/416 W

physical and mental condition of the employees so necessary for good performance. These circumstances need to be maintained as well.

The

89% MATCHING BLOCK 94/416 W

motivation of employees and the structure of their morale at dissimilar stages helps in maintaining these circumstances. All kinds of welfare programmes in an organization are to help in

the

88% MATCHING BLOCK 95/416 W

maintenance of these-circumstances only. Employees' benefit programmes make and stimulate morale which contributes to the creation and maintenance of favorable attitudes toward work and

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 96/416 W

work environment. These programmes contain fringe benefits such as holidays, dissimilar kinds of leave entitlement education facilities, canteen facilities, leave travel fare concession, etc.

Employees'

94% MATCHING BLOCK 97/416 W

physical condition is maintained through safety and health programmes, group health insurance plans, regular medical examinations, proper working circumstances like proper lighting, ventilation, space, and equipment, etc. These are all employee welfare measures. Maintenance of discipline and following a code of conduct in the organization also helps in creating a conducive work environment in the organization which is significant for employees' welfare. Penalties for violation of rules, under-performance, or non-performance vary widely in severity. The more usual forms of disciplinary action are warning or reprimand, reassignment to other duties, suspension from duty fora sure period, demotion to a position of lower rank or grade, and dismissal or removal from the service. Strict disciplinary actions are very essential as they augment the efficiency of work, raise the morale of the employees, and keep inefficient out of the organization. As a model employer, an organization gives several social welfare and security services

to

96% MATCHING BLOCK 98/416 W

its employees. These can be in the form of sure tangible benefits. Some of these benefits supply financial protection against sure risks such as illness accidents, unemployment, and loss of income due to retirement. Some other benefits give extra leisure, extra income, and

a

100% MATCHING BLOCK 99/416 W

better work environment. These programmes fulfill the physical, mental, financial, and recreational as well as the social needs of the employees. A proper retirement scheme is also very essential for employees' welfare. The organization needs to assure its employees have

91% MATCHING BLOCK 100/416 W

an easy and carefree life in their old age. The age of retirement can be anywhere flanked by 50 and 65. Proper retirement benefits attract talented persons to the organization; they help the system of promotion, and through these benefits efficiency of employees increases. Besides pensions, some other benefits such as allowances to take care of inflation, medical facilities, provident fund, family pension,

and

98% MATCHING BLOCK 101/416 W

travel concessions are also provided to retired employees. The primary aim of all these benefits is to give necessary means of livelihood and freedom from sure worries to the employees in their old age. Efforts necessary are

99% MATCHING BLOCK 102/416 W

made to give counseling to help the retired personnel utilize their time and money effectively. All possible information should be passed on to employees who are seeking 26 retirement, external expertise can also be used through the organization in conditions of financial planning, planning for a second career, etc. A cautiously devised retirement plan necessity always forms a part of

the

96% MATCHING BLOCK 103/416 W

planning package of an organization. Redressal of employees' grievances is yet another very significant characteristic of employee welfare programmes. The interests of the employees and the employers should not be in disagreement. Over the decades there has been a rising consciousness about the common needs and interests of the employees. There are several ways and channels to solve the troubles of the employees. Redressal cells in the organization should try to remove the grievances of the personnel quickly and systematically. The organization has to give its employees effective leadership. It has to generate the will to work in the middle of the employees. Inculcation of morale, of that spirit, that state of mind, which expresses itself in loyalty, enthusiasm, cooperation, pride in the service, and devotion to duty, is the end of the whole personnel system. Employees' necessity has a sense of security, attainment, and belongingness in the organization. Through attitude surveys and proper recruitment, selection, promotion, training,

92% MATCHING BLOCK 104/416 W

and

92% MATCHING BLOCK 105/416 W

salary structuring policies, an organization can formulate appropriate welfare schemes and develop a workable work environment for its employees. 3.6

Conclusion The

100% MATCHING BLOCK 106/416 W

success of any administrative system depends on how effectively it handles its personnel functions.

Men are the most important factor that determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 107/416 W

69% MATCHING BLOCK 108/416 W

With their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity, and organizing capacity, they can build the image of their organizations or effective institutions in the nation-building process. Personnel administration reduces the chasm between organizational objectives and the individual to the desirable extent by treating individuals at work in such a way that they will realize their maximum possible intrinsic abilities, to create an effective organization. 3.7 Summing Up Now organizations perform a large number of varied and complex tasks which require efficient, effective, able, and, competent personnel with the right aptitude and attitude. Investment in developing human resources through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job enrichment programs, and designing suitable performance appraisals and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people at a high level. The role of personnel administration is witnessed in the form of various policies and programs adopted for these purposes.

82% MATCHING BLOCK 109/416 W

27 3.8 Probable Questions Essay type questions 1. Discuss the functions of personnel administration. 2. How to develop an efficient public personnel system? 3. Discuss the significance of personnel administration. Short questions 1. Why training is necessary for newly appointed employees? 2. What are the standard methods for recruiting personnel for an organization? 3. Discuss the grievance redressal system of an organization. 3.9 Further Reading a) Maheshwari, S. R. Public Administration, Lakshini Narain Agarwal, Agra, 1988. b) Marx, F.M., Administrative State, University of Chicago Press, Chicago, 1957. c) Mukherjee, B.C., Administration in Changing India, Blaze Publishers, Delhi, 1994. d)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 110/416 W

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.

e) Avasthi and S.R. Maheshwari, Public Administration, Lakshini Narain Agarwal, Agra, 1978. Unit- IV:

87% MATCHING BLOCK 111/416 W

Public Services and their Role in Administrative System Structure 4.1 Objective 4.2 Introduction 4.3 Meaning 4.4

Relationship Flanked by the Government and Public Services 4.5 Scope of

80% MATCHING BLOCK 112/416 W

Public Services 4.6 Transition from Traditional' to 'Contemporary' State 4.7 Growth in the Functions of

Public Services 4.8 Role of Civil Services 4.8.1 The Changing Role of Public Services 4.9 Conclusion 4.10 Summing Up 4.11 Probable Questions
28 4.12 Further Reading 4.1 Objective After going through this unit learners will be able - • To ensure maximum individual development of the personnel. • To establish and maintain an adequate organizational structure and a desirable working relationship among all the members of the organization by dividing. • Organizational tasks into functions, positions jobs, authority, and responsibility. • To generate maximum group and individual development within the organization by offering opportunities for advancement to employees or by training and job education; by effecting transfers or by offering retraining facilities. 4.2 Introduction The executive segment of the government needs the support of an organization (Public Administration) for the proper formulation and implementation of its programmes. One of the important aspects of public administration is the 'public services', which are instruments of regulation, development, and change in administration. They are the most essential part of the administrative system. The role and functions of public services within the administrative system constitute an important focus of study. This Unit

65% MATCHING BLOCK 113/416 W

highlights
the role and importance of public services in the administrative system. It explains the meaning of public services and their essence in the context of the modern State. 4.3 Meaning "

97% MATCHING BLOCK 114/416 W

Public Services" are usually defined to mean the civil services constituted through the government to translate all its plans and programmes into implement able action. In common usage, civil service means that branch of governmental machinery that is concerned not with law creation but with law enforcing functions. In the executive branch of the government, there are two parts, the ministers, and civil servants. The civil servants carry out the orders of the ministers and advise them in policy formulation. According to E.N. Gladden, "Civil Service is the name of a significant government institution comprising the staffs of

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 115/416 W

central administration of the state. It s more for it stands for a spirit essential to the success of modem democracy, an ideal of vocation in public officials who devote their lives to the service of the community". In administrative phraseology, public services have a slightly wider connotation in the sense 29 that they are taken to cover, besides civil servants,

an

100% MATCHING BLOCK 116/416 W

extended group of employees who may be working in public sector undertakings, nationalized banks, and other quasi-governmental organizations funded wholly or partly through the government. While the civil servants are the holders of civil posts, whose remuneration in India is paid out of

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 117/416 W

Consolidated Fund of India, others are not so paid. In Britain, they are also accepted as "those servants of the crown other than holders of the political and judicial offices, who are employed in civil capability and of course, remunerated through budget passed through Parliament".In brief, as H. Finer stated "Civil Service is a professional body of officials, permanent, paid and skilled" and further, classified British Civil Service into three categories, administrative (policy formulation and execution); technical (scientific and specialized categories like doctors, engineers, etc.) and manipulative (executing orders of the first two classes). Public services are a significant instrument of political modernization in developing societies. A

91% MATCHING BLOCK 118/416 W

Well-knit and well-organized public bureaucratic structure precedes electoral democracy. It gives stability and stability to the system of government. Public services are a blend of sure characteristics viz. expertise, vitality, and leadership. This blend enables public services to function independently and efficiently. 4.4 Relationship Flanked by the Government and Public Services The art of governance and administration has been

an

97% MATCHING BLOCK 119/416 W

integral characteristic of human society. For governance, there has always been a government, whatever its form, and for carrying out the objectives of the government, there have always been public services. Public services have always been a significant arm of the government for the formulation, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of its programmes. Therefore, the type and the character of the public services would, no doubt, depend on the kind of government and the nature and scale of the tasks to be performed through it. As a consequence, whenever and wherever there is a change in the government, public services also experience a change to some extent. Bureaucrats have more knowledge, experience, intergovernmental ties, and time than politicians. Both are dependent on each other. The relationship flanked by the government and public services has provided that the dichotomy flanked by policy formulation and implementation can never be strictly maintained in practice. Experience has shown that this kind of departmentalization flanked by governmental and administrative activities is partly, but not wholly true. It is very hard for the government to be only concerned with policy formulation whereas for the services to only deal with

97% MATCHING BLOCK 120/416 W

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 121/416 W

administration of these formulated policies. Both in theory and practice, there is

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 122/416 W

frequent crossing of boundaries, as a result, a relationship of complementarily, mutuality, and inter-reliability

94% MATCHING BLOCK 123/416 W

has developed flanked by the 30 two. The government sets the goals for public services; hence it is instrumental as an instrument to achieve these goals. 4.5 Scope of Public Services The role of public services is changing with time. Status-quo-bound public services can never solve the new and rising administrative troubles. Public services have to change in a way that is conducive to the development

of

96% MATCHING BLOCK 124/416 W

innovative administrative programmes and systematic progress of the country. Its scope is widening and one cannot think of all-round development without effective public services. 4.6 Transition from Traditional' to 'Contemporary' State With the growth in the functions of the State, the rising expectations of people, and

the

96% MATCHING BLOCK 125/416 W

development of science and technology, the role of the government has undergone a substantial change. Government has to undertake the primary responsibility of governance of its people. This governance involves multifaceted functions in the political, social, and economic areas. Law and order, internal security, and defense against external aggression are some of the sovereign functions of the state. As no government can exist or acquire legitimacy in a political vacuum, the appropriate political systems necessity necessarily is devised for

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 126/416 W

survival and growth of the government. Likewise, since people can't live on politics alone, their socio-economic needs will also have to be catered to. Therefore social, political, and economic characteristics of governance become critical areas of concern for the administration. As the government grows and undertakes newer tasks and responsibilities,

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 127/416 W

administration also has to respond suitably and effectively. This administrative response is possible only with a proper and rational organization of the public services, for, administration will be reduced to nothing if there are no competent public services to assist it. When the state changes its ideological philosophy from the traditional to the modern, the administration also undergoes a fundamental change. Therefore, when the state transcends itself from "warfare" to "welfare", the administration undergoes a transition from a 'law and order' orientation to a 'developmental' orientation. Development becomes the focus and planning becomes essential, for it is only through systematic and scientific planning that resource mobilization and input utilization within the shortest time is possible to attain optimal output.

the

69% MATCHING BLOCK 128/416 W

The

92% MATCHING BLOCK 129/416 W

administration, therefore, has to pay attention to policy formulation, programme design, project management, and programme evaluation. For all this, efficient and effective public services are required since efficiency in the conduct of government business depends primarily on 31 the skill of personnel employed through the state. Government cannot afford to have the personnel, within the services, who are not fit. When the country adopts development-oriented goals and objectives, the governmental duties become not only socio-economically compulsive but also acquire new dimensions. This calls for efficient and qualified personnel. Plans for administrative reforms can only be successful if they are accompanied by a heightened attitude and motivated skill on the part of the public personnel. Competent personnel is, therefore the sinequanon of effective public services, and the qualities that are sought in public personnel are integrity, skill, dedication, devotion to duty, intelligence, and diligence. 4.7 Growth in the Functions of Public Services Public officials are required to perform all the tasks and duties arising out of the obligations of the government in rendering service to its people. Some of these tasks are, advising ministers on policy issues, supervising all characteristics of administrative, technical, and scientific programmes, economic and financial activities, social welfare, and services. They are also engaged with delegated legislation, administrative adjudication, and public relations. With the augment in the welfare functions the purpose and the scope of the administration have been reoriented. The U.N. Handbook noted

that

100% MATCHING BLOCK 130/416 W

the State is expected today to be the accelerator of economic and social change and no longer the preserver of the status quo. And in its new role as the prime mover and stimulator of national development, it is expected to spread the benefits of economic and social progress to everyone. No longer dare a government indefinitely limit the enjoyment of the fruits of the earth and of man's labour and ingenuity to a small privileged class. Moreover, the modern state is expected to achieve these purposes within the general framework of the consent of the people, and with due regard to the rule of law and individual human rights. It is hard today to find a State, whatever

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 131/416 W

present power structure that does not call itself a democracy, a government of the people. A modern State may act as the director, entrepreneur, or stimulator of private initiative, or indeed in all three capacities. In a socialist economy, practically all organized effort is placed in the public sector and its whole management becomes the concern of the public services. Several countries because of their prevailing social and economic circumstances and availability of possessions are committed to preserving the largest possible sphere of activity for private enterprise and local initiative. But even in these countries vast rising functions and activities concerning national stage opinion are undertaken through the government. Capitalist economies have witnessed an expansion of their public services. In these countries, several such areas have come up which are solely under the public sector, which the private sector is not able to enter.

92% MATCHING BLOCK 132/416 W

Public Services have become today one of the main essential parts of the government. Civil servants perform many functions. The major functions are: 32 Determination of Policy: Civil servants are actively involved in the formulation and determination of the policy of the country. Although the policy is the sphere of the legislature, the technical demands of the government's role call for the intervention of public servants in matters of policy formulation. The civil servants recommend policies to the ministers. The ministers being amateurs cannot understand the complexities of public policy and consequently act on the advice of the civil servants. So, civil servants greatly influence the formulation of national policy. The civil servants suggest alternatives to a policy that is practically enforceable as they know how the policy works in practice. Implementation of Legislation and Policies: The civil servants execute the policies passed through the legislature. Civil servants exercise a large sphere of discretion in the execution of laws and policies. He/she weighs cautiously all the factors that may affect implementation before taking action. They have to see whether the law or policy is favorable and enforceable, they necessity act impartially and honestly according to legislative standards and the rule of law. Delegated Legislation: The civil servants also frame departmental legislation. The legislature gives a broad outline of the legislation and delegates to the civil servants the power to create details of that legislation. Delegated legislation has become very useful because the legislature has no time to frame detailed rules and regulations and is not familiar with the complexities of modern legislation. The civil servants frame rules and regulations and issue orders per the legislation passed through the legislature. These rules are therefore scrutinized by the legislature again and then enforced through the civil servants. Administrative Adjudication: Civil servants today exercise quasi-judicial powers also. They determine the cases on issues involving the rights and obligations of private citizens or parties. Some judicial powers have to be in the hands of civil servants to secure

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 133/416 W

public interest and protect the poor from use. The growth of administrative adjudication is the result of the need to have reasonable and speedy justice in cases under social enactments and cases involving technical complexities. The civil servants enforce policies and so can provide judgment according to the necessities of the policies. Besides these, the routine functions of civil services are licensing and inspection, regulation of government policies, collection of taxes, taking note of working circumstances, etc. Therefore, in brief, civil servants perform the functions of:

o

88% MATCHING BLOCK 134/416 W

Advising the government concerning the programmes. o Providing the ministers with necessary information and statistics. o Implementing the plans, policies, and programmes formulated through the Government.

o

92% MATCHING BLOCK 135/416 W

Monitoring and evaluating the programmes of the Government. 33 o Carrying out the tasks delegated to them through the Government. o Determining cases on issues involving the rights and obligations of private citizens and parties. 4.8 Role of Civil Services Instrumentality Role There is a general agreement that civil services should play an instrumental role in its operation, in as much as it is not the master but agent of policy formulation and execution. It is, so, approximately universally expected, and considerably accepted, that the services should be so intended and structured as to respond systematically and willingly to the political leadership and policy parameters this essentially represents a philosophy of primacy of political control over

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 136/416 W

administrative system. Despite their participative and pervasive attendance in the policy programmes of the state, the public services are not supposed to stray too much from their instrumental role to become

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 137/416 W

prime mover behind policy creation. Fritz Morstein Marx credits “merit bureaucracies even in modern nation-states of the West as having contributed considerably to the viability of the policy” through “professional outlook to every conduct of governmental activities”." It is not the same thing to say that the public services cannot, should not, and need not, under any circumstances, involve themselves

in

96% MATCHING BLOCK 138/416 W

policy creation procedure, but through and large, the civil servants should not involve themselves in policy creation full- fledged Neutrality Role The neutral role of the civil services aligns with its instrumentality role. It is therefore clear that if civil services have to perform, in the right spirit of their structural functional framework, they have to be“neutral” in their approach, outlook, and activities. No way should their political values affect their conduct and behaviour. Civil servants are the objective, dispassionate and non-partisan band of professionals who should do a job entrusted to them with clinical proficiency, efficiency, and dedication. Once a policy has been decided and

a

99% MATCHING BLOCK 139/416 W

decision taken to implement the programme, all that civil servants should do is try to use all the accessible possessions in an optimum manner for the execution of the programme. In other words, the civil services necessity not is allowed to take political sides. The individual value system may certainly come into play while rendering advice to the ministers or at the time of strategizing for policy but not thereafter. The civil servants are not the political mediators but

the

91% MATCHING BLOCK 140/416 W

servants of the state. Political neutrality is the sinequanon of civil servants, the civil service and party politics should be kept poles separate. Therefore civil servants are expected to implement the policies 34 decided upon by the government. It is neither responsible for

the

91% MATCHING BLOCK 141/416 W

political content of programmes nor to defend them in public. Commitment Role Should the civil servants be committed to the cause of a party, the ruling party, or a person of the party? Intellectually? Emotionally? Ideologically? Where should their commitment lie? Such questions are very common and

96% MATCHING BLOCK 142/416 W

significant for understanding the commitment role of civil services. Dissimilar views have been expressed on the subject. The first and common view holds that commitment means that civil servants should be in accord with the policy objectives of the government. Secondly, it has been held that such a commitment should be to a new social and economic order and has to be consciously built and nurtured through the careers of civil servants. The third view is a corollary to the second view, it says that commitment should be related to the developmental philosophy of the state, societal, economic, and political, besides all the other modernizing and nation structure programmes Fourth view holds that commitment should, ideally, be to the ideals of the Constitution of the country which represents the communal wisdom of the people concerning the governance of the policy. And, ultimately, commitment has to be to the conscience of the civil servants, their beliefs, cultural and ethical values, and sense of justice and righteousness. Civil servants have often displayed their personal alignment, identification, and belongingness to political parties; they often display personal loyalty to “the boss”. This type of personalized commitment helps civil servants in better career progression and more accelerated delegation. But the term committed bureaucracy does not mean a bureaucracy loyal to a scrupulous political party; it does not even connote civil servants owing loyalty to a scrupulous individual, political person, or leader. It means that bureaucracy should be committed to the objectives, ideals, institutions, and modalities contained in the Constitution. Impersonality Role Civil services should, by and large, adopt an „impersonality" profile while dealing with matters concerning policies, programmes, and issues. Civil servants cannot afford to take or twist a decision based on the persons involved with it or the persons who can be affected by it, but should strictly conform to the principles, rules, guidelines, etc. They should govern the matters before the government, irrespective of the status, standing, and position of the affected individuals. Civil servants have to take a dispassionate approach to troubles. Anonymity Role 35 The role of anonymity requires that the minister has to answer for the actions of civil servants in the Parliament. The civil servants, therefore, are protected from criticism of Parliament. A minister has to protect the civil servant who has executed his/her definite order. Minister is also responsible to the Parliament for the wrong action of the civil servant. Therefore the principle of anonymity goes hand in hand with the principle of ministerial responsibility. It means that civil servants work behind the curtain; they cannot openly come out and play a predominant role in politics. They have to function in an environment of anonymity; this helps them in taking honest and objective decisions. Professional Role Civil servants are employed for their knowledge, ability, expertise, experience, competence, and merit. They necessarily utilize all their skills to implement the development programmes with full zeal and enthusiasm. Civil servants' necessity is trained to use all the mental, physical, and technical skills at hand in a mainly effective and efficient manner. The aim should be to train civil servants in such a way that maximum results can be achieved with minimum inputs at the least cost within the shortest time frame. Professional excellence, result motivation, and intellectual integrity should be their motives. Learning and continuing education should be built into the system itself, for that is the foundation for structuring a professional superstructure. The

96% MATCHING BLOCK 143/416 W

professional role of civil servants is the genesis of their subsistence. 4.8.1- The Changing Role of Public Services Because of the rising complexities of governmental tasks, future administrators necessity acquire knowledge in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioral sciences, modern tools of management, human relations in management, and administrative research and development. The Administrative Reforms Commission observed that the "role of generalists" in administration is losing its validity in many fields. This is an inevitable consequence of the rising application of science and technology in solving administrative troubles. In the context of the new challenges of change that public services have to face, the latter cannot escape two compulsions, one of version and the other of professionalization. Several factors like changing political scenarios, rising aspirations of people, expanding

the

95% MATCHING BLOCK 144/416 W

scale of administrative operations, rising size of administrative structure, and developing science and technology are forcing public services to adapt to the dissimilar changes and professionalize them. According to Gabriel A. Almond, public services have to attend to sure functions either in combination with political authorities, confidentially, independently, or single-handedly and openly. He recognizes even such functions and categorized them into input and output functions. Input functions are political socialization, interest articulation and aggregation, and 36 political communication. The output functions comprise rule creation, rule application, and rule adjudication. For discharging these functions properly, the public services necessities address themselves to two kinds of relationships, one of mutual compliance, referring to the "internality" relationship, and the other of version, relating to the '

95% MATCHING BLOCK 145/416 W

externality' relationship. Both influence the performance of public services and necessity, therefore, be integrated. To cope with these colossal functions, public services are necessary to

100% MATCHING BLOCK 146/416 W

acquire and develop appropriate and adequate capacities. Unless they are fully equipped, they cannot help in the attainment of the

94% MATCHING BLOCK 147/416 W

goals of the programmes and policies and can lead to a wide gap flanked by declared objectives and their realization. The public servants necessary undertake capability generation programmes (such programmes necessarily aim at rising the capability of public servants to perform administrative tasks properly) within the framework of specific needs, particularistic environment, local culture, and ethos. With the rising involvement of public services in the public sector enterprises and other quasi-government undertakings, they have to become more flexible and adaptable. 4.9

Conclusion The concept of a Welfare State has brought the government and public services closer to the people. There is, thus, a need to establish a cordial relationship between the public services, government, and people. Till now, civil servants have adhered to the models of morality, anonymity, commitment, and impersonality. 4.10 Summing Up

92% MATCHING BLOCK 148/416 W

The twentieth century, therefore, is witnessing an extension of governmental functions beyond all limits. The concept of welfare Stat and service e has been approximately universally accepted. Governments have taken up the responsibility of utilization of manpower, natural possessions, and technology to make an environment conducive to all-around economic development and social well- being. This further strengthens the role of public services. The demands of the people upon their government have become insistent, the government is measured to be an agency to meet these urgent demands and devise ways to overcome social and economic deficiencies in the administrative system. 4.11

Probable Questions Essay type questions i. Discuss the transition from the Traditional to Contemporary State. ii. Discuss the role of civil services in a modern state. Short questions 37 i. Mention the functions of public services. ii. Discuss the scope of public services. 4.12 Further Reading a) Wilter Dill, Scott. Clothier, Robert C., and Spriegel, William R., Personnel Management: Principles, Practices, and Point of View, Tata McGraw-Hill Publishing Company Ltd. New Delhi Sixth Edition, 1977. b) Paul, Pigors and Myre's Charles A., Personnel Administration: A Point of View and Method, McGraw-Hill Book Co. Kagakusha Ltd., Tokyo, 1961, Second Edition. c) egyankosh.ac.in › bitstream › Unit-1 Unit-V: Features

73% MATCHING BLOCK 149/416 W

of Public Personnel Administration in India Structure 5.1 Objective 5.2 Introduction 5.3 Role of Public Service Commission in Public Personnel

AdministrationConclusion 5.4 Summing Up 5.5 Probable Questions 5.6 Further Reading 5.1 Objective After going through this unit learners will be able: ✓ To reduce resistance amongst the employees by securing the integration of individuals and groups in such a manner that the employees feel a sense of involvement, commitment, and loyalty to the organization. In the absence of such integration, friction may develop which will produce inefficiency and lead to failure. 38 ✓ To reorganize and satisfy individual needs and group goals by offering adequate and equitable remuneration, and economic and social security so that the employees feel secure and work willingly and cooperate to achieve the organization's goals. ✓ To maintain high morale and better human relations inside the organization by sustaining and improving the conditions that have been established so that the employees may stick to their jobs. 5.2 Introduction

96% MATCHING BLOCK 150/416 W

Public personnel administration in India comprises the public services of the country. Through now you necessity is familiar with the meaning and scope of public services in India, and their role in the administrative system necessity has also become clear. The public personnel administration has sure features which are dissimilar from the private administration in several ways. Public personnel administration has to cater to the needs of a larger number of people and is engaged with the supply of varied services. Public personnel administration does not exist in a vacuum. It is the product of vital public policy, it operates under public scrutiny, it mirrors general social and economic circumstances, and it has a continuous impact on the general welfare. The government is dependent on the public personnel system for the implementation of its programmes, without proper utilization of human services, no policy, programme, or rule can be made successful. Present Public Personnel Administration is a Legacy of the Past The bureaucracy in India, especially the top bureaucracy is a spillover of British rule. The East India Company promoted a service structure for meeting their commercial and trading interests. In 1858 when the British Government took over the reins of administration in India, the political consolidation of the country and use of the country's possessions to serve its interests became its aims. This described minimum economic, social, and developmental activities but maximum administrative stranglehold. The superior civil services that are higher civil services were manned by either British or Indians recruited from higher economic and feudal strata of society. The lower subordinate stages comprised only the Indians. The whole system was an excellent instance of high and low, top and bottom, master and servant. The preponderant features of

the

85% MATCHING BLOCK 151/416 W

public personnel system were: o It was 'elitist', exclusive in outlook and approach, o It displayed despotism in action and

behavior, o

75% MATCHING BLOCK 152/416 W

It maintained safe and wide aloofness from the people, 39 o It developed structural rigidity and functional frigidity, o It was too hierarchic and precedent adherent, o It had no human relations orientation, o It had feudalist, and separatist attitudes and tempers, o It had no welfare or development motivation. India became independent in 1947, but could not develop or structure a novel public personnel system. Our Independence was accompanied by a painful partition of the country, communal riots, massive migration of displaced persons, and the influx of refugees. Moreover, we had to tackle the complicated troubles of integration of states, depletion of administrative personnel due to

the

96% MATCHING BLOCK 153/416 W

voluntary retirement of British ICS officers, and transfer of Muslim ICS officers to Pakistan. If the health of the economy was bad on account of the after-effects of the Second World War and partition, the condition of administration, particularly personnel administration was worse. The vital administrative structure remained the same. There were gaps in the cadre; experienced senior stage officers were very few and competent personnel were just not accessible. With the adoption of the Constitution in 1950 and the commencement of the first Five-Year Plan, a lot of pressure came to be laid on the personnel system. The elitist hierarchic authoritarian and rigid administration now had to be revamped to meet the Constitutional objectives of liberty, equality, fraternity, and justice. Our plan objectives viz. economic development, industrialization, modernization, and social justice put the administration under considerable strain, the administration had to be converted into a development, and welfare-oriented administration. We can say that after independence, two vital changes took place which greatly affected the role of civil service. First, with the adoption of the system of parliamentary democracy, the civil service became accountable to the political executive. Secondly, civil service became an instrument of development. Personnel system, for that matter any system necessity have a purpose which has to be related to the objectives of the organization. In the case of public personnel administration in India, its vital aim is the facilitation and fulfillment of the goals of the government. This is the rationale for creating government services; this is the justification for their subsistence. Once the goals have been formulated, the public personnel system necessity rises to implement the programmes and achieve the qualitative and quantitative targets through judiciously harnessing the accessible possessions, keeping two dimensions in view, time, and cost. For this purpose,

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 154/416 W

public personnel system is involved with the functions of recruitment, selection, placement, training, health, safety, performance rating, promotions, and

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 155/416 W

general welfare of the employees. 40 Augment in Development Functions The extension of social security benefits and an enlarged public aid to education have become very significant functions of the government. The government has assumed the larger responsibility of achieving

the

97% MATCHING BLOCK 156/416 W

security and well-being of all citizens. Implementation of these changes is not an easy task. The skills and experience of public service are required for this purpose. Public service is an essential social instrument, it bridges the gaps flanked by legislative content and its fulfillment. Public service can help to establish and strengthen the minimum circumstances required for economic development. It is responsible for laying down circumstances for the maintenance of law and order, development of infrastructural facilities, and favorable administrative structure. The public services through fixing sure general or specific output objectives play

a

95% MATCHING BLOCK 157/416 W

significant role in modifying the resource structure of the country. The public services have now taken control of government undertakings or semi- government bodies. Rising Number of Public Personnel Due to the augment in the social and economic functions of the government, the number of public personnel is rising at a very fast rate. As the tasks of the government are rising, the need for personnel to perform these tasks is also rising. A large number of new departments, corporations, commissions, and boards are now being set up. The Second Pay Commission had estimated that on April 1, 1948, there were 14,45,050 employees in the Central Government. On June 30, 1957, this figure had increased to 17,73,570. On January 1, 1965, it increased to 22,64,795. On January 1, 1981, it further increased to 32,27,539. This shows that with every new activity of government that aims at providing new services for the welfare of people, the number of government employees is constantly rising. Rising Number of Specialists in Public Services The concept of a Welfare State, augmented by the aspirations of people and the growth of science and technology has brought forth the demand for

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 158/416 W

rising role of specialists in administration. New specialism, new techniques,

and

96% MATCHING BLOCK 159/416 W

new methods are now being expected from civil servants. The role of specialists in public services has therefore become very crucial and their number in the services is constantly rising. Low Rate of Turnover of Employees in Government Service The rate of turnover of government employees is quite low in India. According to O Glenn Stahl, employees leave their jobs for a diversity of reasons like voluntary resignation, optional retirement, and 41 instances of death or frequent transfers. In India, people accept government service as a career and do not resign on their own due to permanency and moderately good circumstances of service. Reasonable hours of work, good leave entitlements, provident fund and retirement benefits, and housing and health facilities attract people to public services and are even able to retain them. Sound promotion policy is another factor that encourages public personnel and fosters a feeling of belongingness in them. In addition, an adequate retirement and pension system also encourages personnel to continue in service till their retirement. Therefore the turnover of public personnel is quite low. Mainlyreferences of turnover are confined to the vacancies occurring due to death, removal, dismissal, and retirement Classification of governmental position is a necessity for a career service based on merit. It enables rational standards or norms to be set up for the selection of personnel, permits uniformity in the method of describing dissimilar kinds of jobs, and establishes an alike basis for giving equal status and equal pay for equal work. There are two well- recognized systems of classification, one is Rank Classification, and the other is Duties or Position Classification. India follows the system of rank classification. In India, public personnel is classified into “classes” as well as “services”. We have four classes of service, class 1, class 2, class 3,

and

73% MATCHING BLOCK 160/416 W

class 4, these are now described as Group A, B, C, and D services, corresponding to differences in the responsibility of the work performed and the qualifications required. Another way of classification is into 'services'. Public personnel in India are directly recruited for dissimilar services e.g. Archaeological Services, Engineering Services, Post, and Telegraphs Traffic Services, etc. Once the public personnel is recruited to these services, they continue to be the members of the scrupulous service until they retire or resign. At present public services are classified into the following classes: o All-India Services

o Central Services, Group A, B, C & D o State Services o Specialist Services o Central Secretariat Services, Group A, B, C &D The

100% MATCHING BLOCK 161/416 W

rank classification system is very easy to understand and administer, it promotes mobility through facilitating transfers within the services, it is flexible in operation, and it opens more career opportunities for individuals. But this kind of system violates the principle of "equal pay for equal work", it does not describe the contents of any job in detail,

and

100% MATCHING BLOCK 162/416 W

it does not explain what is expected of a post. This system is not conducive to the formulation of scientific standards on which

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 163/416 W

selection of personnel, training, posting, transfer, career development, promotion, etc. may be organized. The position classification 42 system prevalent in the USA, Canada, and the Philippines, etc. has several advantages over the rank classification system prevalent in our country. Limited Political Rights of Civil Servants Very limited political rights of civil servants have been regarded as one of the essential circumstances to maintain the discipline, integrity, and political neutrality of the services. To ensure the political neutrality of public services, civil servants are denied direct participation in political activities.

86% MATCHING BLOCK 164/416 W

91% MATCHING BLOCK 165/416 W

Therefore we can conclude that the political rights of civil servants are very limited. The higher civil servant's necessity is above politics, as they have to serve the changing governments drawn from dissimilar political parties with the same vigor and honesty. According to Masterman Committee Report, "the public interest demands the maintenance of political impartiality in the Civil Service and confidence in that impartiality is an essential part of the structure of Government". So, the political rights of civil servants must be limited. 5.3 Role of Public Service Commission in Public Personnel Administration The Public Service Commission is an independent statutory body. In India, the Public Service Commission has been so intended to function only as an advisory body. All rights concerning the appointments of personnel are vested in the Government. The Constitution does not envisage a vital role for the Commission in personnel administration. The Constitution of India gives for aUnion Public Service Commission and for State Public Service Commissions beside a Joint Public Service Commission on the request of two or more state governments. The functions of the Union and State Public Service Commission may be summarized as follows:

o

94% MATCHING BLOCK 166/416 W

To advise the Government on matters concerning the method of recruitment and principles to be followed in creating appointments to the civil services either directly or through promotion. o To conduct examinations, written as well as personality tests, for appointments to the civil services of the respective governments. o To advise the government on matters relating to the suitability of candidates for promotion and transfer. Recommendations for such promotions are made through the concerned departments and Commission is requested to ratify them. o The Commission is consulted on matters relating to temporary appointments for periods flanked by one to three years, grant of extension of services, and re-employment of sure retired civil servants. 43 o The Commission is also consulted on matters relating to regularization of appointments, claims for the award of pension, claims for reimbursement of legal expenses incurred through the Government servants in defending legal proceedings instituted against them relating to acts done in the execution of their official duties, claims for pension, or compensation in respect of injuries sustained on duty. o The Commission is also consulted while creating order in any disciplinary case in circumstances like (i) censure; (ii) withholding of increments or promotions; (iii) reduction to a lower service, grade, or post; (iv) compulsory retirement; and (v) removal or dismissal from service.

o

96% MATCHING BLOCK 167/416 W

The Commission has to present to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, its annual report, with its recommendations. There is a provision that the Parliament and the State legislatures, as the case may be, may confer additional functions on their respective Public Service Commissions. Therefore the Public Service Commission is a recruiting agency with purely advisory roles, consulted also in sure disciplinary and other matters. There are some statutory restrictions on the powers of the Public Service Commission. According to an amendment in Article, 320, which was effected in 1961, the President doesn't need

96% MATCHING BLOCK 168/416 W

to consult the UPSC in a case where he proposes to create an order for the removal, dismissal, or reduction in rank of a civil servant after he is satisfied that such action is necessary for the interest of the security of the State.

78% MATCHING BLOCK 169/416 W

Conclusion Therefore we can say that it is the personnel that more than anything determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output of an organization. Even the contribution of money and material to the performance of an organization depends substantially upon their manipulation by the human beings in an organization. In a dynamic domestic and international situation, personnel that fails to keep in step in which changing times may well prove to be a great hindrance to socio-political development.

70% MATCHING BLOCK 170/416 W

Personnel constitutes an integral part of the organization. It is with their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity, and organizing capacity that they can build the image of their organizations as effective institutions in nation- building. Personnel administration with its ever-increasing responsibilities has become an

90% MATCHING BLOCK 171/416 W

indispensable part of management. There is a need for making personnel administration responsible for bringing about innovative changes in the structure of an organization, undertaking personnel research, and conducting attitude surveys with modified tendencies along with time.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 172/416 W

There is also a need for making personnel administration accountable for formulating cost-effective policies and programmes and establishing a positive relationship between the organization and the environment.

44 5.4 Summing Up Personnel

87% MATCHING BLOCK 173/416 W

administration is concerned with people at work and their relationships within an organization. It refers to the entire spectrum of an organization's interaction with its human resources from recruitment activity to

the

85% MATCHING BLOCK 174/416 W

retirement process. It involves personnel training and forecasting, appraising human performance, selection and staffing, training and development, and maintenance and improvement of performance and productivity. It is closely related to an organization's overall effectiveness.

Personnel administration is systematized, specialized knowledge and technique, which can help organizations in administering their personnel for achieving their optimum performance.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 175/416 W

To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization 5.5

Probable Questions Essay type questions a) Discuss the role of the Public Service Commission in Public Personnel Administration b) Discuss the features of the public personnel system. c)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 176/416 W

Write a short note on the scope of public personnel administration.

Short Questions a) Mention the classification of civil servants. b) Analyse critically the role of personnel in a third-world country like India 5.6 Further Reading a) Mukherjee, B.C., Administration in Changing India, Blaze Publishers, Delhi, 1994. b)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 177/416 W

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.

c) Avasthi and S.R. Maheshwari, Public Administration, Lakshini Narain Agarwal, Agra, 1978. d) egyankosh.ac.in › bitstream › Unit-1 45
46 Block-II Unit I Development of Civil Service in India Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Civil Service in Pre-Independent India 1.4 Civil Service in British India 1.5 Constitutional Provisions of Civil Services 1.6 Conclusion 1.7 Summing UP 1.8 Glossary 1.9 Model Questions 1.10 Further Readings and References 1.1 Objectives
The unit seeks - • To know the historical background of the civil service in India. • To comprehend the origins of public administration in India. • To acquiring an understanding of the procedures essential to India's administrative reforms. • To contextualize the changes in administration in India. • To evaluate the recommendations of different Commissions on Indian Civil service. 1.2 Introduction
47 The numerous permanent employees needed to run the government's operations are referred to as "civil services." It is the State's executive agency or action arm, responsible for carrying out its policies and decisions. In addition, based on professionalism the civil service provides guidance on policy-making. Policy formulation in today's complex environment needs the detailed and specialised knowledge which is made available by the civil service. 1.3 Civil Service in Pre-Independent India The Indian state has had some type of civil service since ancient times. Its beginnings can be traced back to the Mauryan era. For effective administration in the growing Mauryan Empire, meritorious public personnel were needed. The Mauryan government employed governmental officials in the name of Adhyakshas and Rajukas,. According to Kautilya's Arthasastra, the administrative apparatus is made up of seven fundamental components: the ruler

47% MATCHING BLOCK 178/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

Swamin, the bureaucracy Amatya, the territory Janapada, the fortified capital Durga, the treasury Kosa, the army Danda, and the Mitra (the ally).

Mantrins and amatyas made up the senior bureaucracy. The King's top advisers were the mantrins, and his personal staffs were the amatyas. The Arthashastra of Kautilya outlines the criteria for recruiting civil servants, the terms of their loyalty, the procedures for evaluating their performance, as well as the civil servants' code of conduct. The Arthashastra also mentions some checks and balances on their appointments and caution, and it also suggests a continuous watch on the operation of the civil service, including regularly updating the monarch on their performance.

48%	MATCHING BLOCK 180/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

A similar type of governing machinery also existed under the Gupta period. During the Mughal Empire in medieval India,

70%	MATCHING BLOCK 179/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

the mansabdari system was employed to manage the bureaucracy. The mansabdari system was essentially a pool of government servants who could be used for either civil or military purposes. Akbar began

80%	MATCHING BLOCK 181/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

land reforms and established the land revenue system, which ultimately became a major component of the Indian taxation system. His view of service was regulated and welfare-oriented. 1.4 Civil Service in British India 48 The British Empire's success in India was primarily due to its effective administrative structure, which was led by the Indian Civil Service, also known as the Imperial Civil Service.

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 182/416	SA	dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

The East India Company, established in 1600 AD, also had its own civil service, which was responsible for carrying out commercial functions. Lord Cornwallis introduced the civil service in India during British rule, so that the British territories in India could be administered better in 1715, Lord Robert Clive came to India, and undertook the task of purifying the services. He forced the servants of the company to sign 'covenants' with the company binding them not to accept presents or engage in private trade. It was for this reason that the services were classified as '

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 183/416	SA	Service Law project 16A047.docx (D72573240)

covenanted' and 'uncovenanted'. The covenanted civil service consisted of only Europeans (i.e., British personnel) occupying the higher posts in the government. The Uncovenanted services were the inferior posts created in the normal course of administration. Lord Cornwallis laid the foundation of a professional civil service in India with attractive salaries and certain rule based appointments, trainings, postings and promotions. He also made important administrative improvements, such as reserving all higher positions for European employees and enhancing their salary. The Charter Act of 1793 reaffirmed the notion of Europeans holding all positions of responsibility and authority. As a result, Indians held essentially no positions in the government during the first part of the 19th century. A select committee of the British Parliament sat in 1831–1832, to investigate the East India Company's affairs and the Indian administration. The committee wanted Indians to be admitted to higher civil services, which would strengthen their attachment to British dominion and lead to considerable savings in the expenses of the Indian Government. The Charter Act of 1833 is arguably the most important legislative intervention in India's public administration of all the statutes passed by the British Parliament to control the East India Company in India.

Ouriginal by Turnitin

68% MATCHING BLOCK 185/416 SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

The Charter Act of 1833 provided that 'No native of the said territories shall be, by reason only of his religion, place of birth, descent, colour or any of them be disabled from holding any place, office or employment under the Company.'

In 1837, an amendment bill allowed the company board to adopt limited competition as the basis for selection which was abolished by the recommendation of The Macaulay Committee in the year 1854. This committee proposed that the patronage-based structure of the East India Company be replaced with a high-quality permanent civil service that would be selected through competitive examinations.

40% MATCHING BLOCK 184/416 W

After 1855, the Indian Civil Service (ICS) began to recruit individuals strictly on the basis of their merit through open competition. It further suggested that applicants be between the ages of 18 and 23. The exams were scheduled to take place in London. As a result, in 1855, the first test under the new system for recruitment to the Indian public service was held.
49 Following the Indian War of Independence in 1857, the East India Company's dominion was abolished by the Government of India Act, which was passed by the British Parliament on August 2, 1858. By abolishing

41% MATCHING BLOCK 186/416 SA DR. Atma Ram-Efforts for Administrative Reform ... (D23434349)

the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, the act transferred the government, territories, and revenues from the company to the Crown. In the same year, the Crown issued a proclamation giving the secretary of state-in-council the authority to control appointments to the Indian civil service. He was to operate with the assistance and counsel of Her Majesty's civil service commissioners. In 1860, the maximum age for admission to the open competition was lowered to 22 years from 23 years; it was again reduced to 21 years in 1864 and in 1878 it was further reduced to 19 years; making it practically difficult for Indians to appear in the said examination at such a lower age in London. In the same year (1878), the secretary of state ordered that each member of the Covenanted Civil Service would be bound to serve anywhere in India. In this way, these services became all-India services. Between 1862 and 1875, 40 Indians completed (57 if those sitting more than once are included). Ten of these were successful. The number of Indian entrants dropped sharply after the introduction of the upper age limit of 19. From 1879-86 four out of 25 Indian entrants were successful, compared with five out of 46 between 1871 and 1874. This fall is not entirely explicable by the lower age limit; the exceptional years of 1873 and 1874 partly account for the high total of the last eight years under the 21 age limit: it seems that the less serious candidates stopped entering; it is possible that the statutory service creamed off a few who might otherwise have entered for the competition. The 1870 Act of India gave powers to the government to elevate Indians to the Covenanted Service from the Un-covenanted Service without examination, on the grounds of their performance and exceptional ability. This gave an opportunity to Indian officers to compete with European officers and secure promotion into the Indian Civil Service. However, to increase the association of Indians in administration, a commission under the leadership of Sir Charles Aitchison, the then lieutenant governor of Punjab, was appointed in 1986. The commission recommended that the services should be divided into three categories: imperial services, provincial services, and subordinate services. Each of them is organized into different units on the basis of duties such as Civil Service, Police Service, and Educational Service and so on. Recruitment to the first category was to continue, as before,

91% MATCHING BLOCK 188/416 SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

in England; however, recruitment to the other two categories was to be made by the provincial governments, partly on a competitive basis and partly through promotion from the subordinate services. Besides, this commission recommended that the age limit be raised to 23 years.

50 On the Indian side, there was an increasing demand for a greater share of superior civil services. Additionally, there was opposition to the separation of the services into imperial and provincial. With the outbreak of the First World War, a change in the attitude of the British government was visible, which was largely 'strategic' to solicit the support of the Indians in its war effort. The result was the adoption of the 1919 Montagu-Chelmsford Reform scheme which was guided by the committed goal of the government 'to increase the association of the Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions in India. In 1918, Mont-Fort report on Indian Constitutional Reforms suggested increasing the association of Indians with every department of administration and that examination should be held simultaneously in England and India for recruitment to the Superior Civil Service. In addition, it stipulated that Indians must make up 33% of higher level civil service positions in India, and this percentage should be increased by one and a half per cent annually. The Government of India Act of 1919, often known as "diarchy," decentralised government by assigning some responsibilities to the provinces and placing them under popular control. According to the rules framed under Section 96(B)-2 of the Act of 1919, the all-India services were mixed. These included the Indian Civil Service,

62% MATCHING BLOCK 187/416 W

41% MATCHING BLOCK 190/416 SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

the Indian Police Service, the Indian Forest Service, the Indian Civil Veterinary Service, the Indian Educational Service, the Indian Agriculture Service, the Indian Forest Engineering Service, the Indian Medical Service ( Civil) and the Indian Service of Engineers. The

83% MATCHING BLOCK 189/416 W

appointments to these services were made by the secretary of state. The all-India services were ultimately responsible to the government of India and to the secretary of state. Besides, in accordance with

100% MATCHING BLOCK 192/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

the Government of India Act of 1919, the Public Service Commission was established to hold examinations in India for the purpose of recruiting candidates for the All-India Services. This provision was, however, criticised due to the transfer of power to the provinces Members of the higher services began to agitate over their salaries and emoluments. The issue of further Indianisation of the services was being raised again and again. Against this background, the Royal Commission on Superior Services in India was appointed in 1923 to examine the issues relating to All-India Services, including the question of their Indianisation.

51 The Lee Commission submitted its report in 1924 and made the following main recommendations: (1)

57%	MATCHING BLOCK 191/416	W

The all-India services, including the Indian Civil Service, Indian Police Service, Indian Medical Services, and Indian Forest Service (

save for Mumbai), to which appointments were being made and regulated by the secretary of state. (2)

85%	MATCHING BLOCK 193/416	SA	MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

No further recruitment should be made for provincial governments, particularly in transferred fields, namely, the Indian Education Service, the Indian Agriculture Service (Civil), the Indian Veterinary Service, the

Roads and Building Branch of the Indian Service of Engineers and Forest Service in Bombay. The personnel for these services were, further, to be recruited by the provincial governments. (3) It is recommended that promotions from the provincial services fill 20% of the superior posts. Indians and Europeans should both have an equal amount of direct hiring in order to develop a 50 : 50 cadre in around 15 years. The ratio of direct hiring for the Indian Police Service was to be 5:3 for Europeans and Indians, respectively, with the remaining 20% coming from promotions within the provincial service. It was decided that the ratios for the Indian Forest Service and irrigation would be 75 and 25 percent, respectively, with the remaining 20 percent to be filled by promotion from the provincial service. (4) The British officers should have the freedom of retirement

66%	MATCHING BLOCK 196/416	SA	sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

on proportionate pensions if at any time the department in which they had been employed should be placed under the control of the concerned ministers. The Lee Commission was chastised for being pro-centre and anti-provincial, as well as for maintaining the All-India Services' exceptional advantages. Additionally, the retention of All-India Services became a hotly contested topic since nationalist leaders believed it to be incompatible with provincial autonomy. With the growing demand by Indians for a more responsible government, the British government constituted the joint committee on Indian Constitutional Reform (1933–1934) to frame a new constitution for India. However, this committee did not accept the view of the Indian nationalists that the all-India services were incompatible with the concept of provincial autonomy and, therefore, should be abolished. The committee felt that it was necessary to ensure the supply of British and Indian officers of high quality for running the administration of the central as well as the provincial governments. The Government of India Act, of 1935 while granting provincial autonomy, accepted in full the recommendations of the Joint Committee. In 1946, the issue of resuming all-India services was brought to light. The issue became critical since the secretary of state for India had suspended ICS and IPS recruitment throughout the war. Due to the changes happening at the time, recruitment was unable to begin even after the war was over.

52 On October 20 and 21, 1946, Sardar Vallabh Bhai Patel, the home minister at the time, called a conference of provincial premiers to decide on the administrative structure. He said that having services available throughout the entire country would make it easier for the centre and the provinces to communicate, enforce uniform administrative standards, and keep the central government informed of current events. He further said that the provincial administration would also benefit from the wider outlook and experience of the officers of the All India services. The conference accepted the necessity of the All-India Services, which was incorporated in the Constitution prepared by the constituent assembly. 1.5 Constitutional Provisions of Civil Services The creation of all-India services did not initially have a constitutional foundation provided by the Indian Constituent Assembly's drafting committee. It was believed that laws passed by the relevant legislatures should govern them rather than constitutional clauses. Sardar Patel, however, insisted on a constitutional provision to provide a solid and enduring foundation for civil services. Although legislative acts are easily amendable, Constitution might be difficult to change. Article 308-314 in part XIV of the constitution contains provisions with regard to all India services, Central Services and State Services. Article 309 empowers Parliament and the state legislatures to regulate the recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed, to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any state.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 194/416 W

92% MATCHING BLOCK 195/416 W

According to Article 3010, every person who is a member of a defence service or of a civil service of the Union or of an all-India service or holds any post connected with defence or any civil post under the Union holds office during the pleasure of the President, and every person who is a member of a civil service of a state or holds any civil post under a State holds office during the pleasure of the Governor of the state.

This means that any Government employee may be dismissed at any time and on any ground, without giving rise to any cause of action for wrongful dismissal except where the dismissal is in contravention of the Constitutional safeguards (Art 311). Article 312 provides that the Parliament can create new all India services (including an all-India judicial service)

98% MATCHING BLOCK 197/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in the national interest to do

so. 1.6
Conclusion

53 Although the civil service system existed in India from ancient times, the British introduced a well- organized civil service system in India. The British separated the military and politics in order to establish a rule of law rather than a rule of force. The notion that the country was not the ruler's personal estate was applied to British officials' presence in India. It altered the power culture of the Indian Subcontinent. The high standard of educational testing and competitive examinations, efficient training, and impersonal nature of public affairs distinguished the British Empire in India. 1.7 Summing UP • Since ancient times, the Indian state has had some form of civil service. • The origins of civil service can be traced back to the Mauryan era. • During British rule, Lord Cornwallis created the Indian civil service to improve the management of the British colonies in India. • In the first phase the British Civil Service was divided into two parts- covenanted and uncovenanted. • Only Europeans (i.e., British personnel) occupied the highest positions in the covenanted public service. The uncovenanted services were the lower-level positions produced during the usual process of administration. • The Indians had no place in the public services up to the first quarter of the 19 th century. • The Charter Act of 1833 granted Indians the right to higher civil service. • After 1855, the Indian Civil Service (ICS) began to recruit individuals strictly on the basis of their merit through open competition. • In 1918, Mont-Fort report on Indian Constitutional Reforms suggested increasing association of Indians with every department of administration and examination should be held simultaneously in England and India to recruitment to the Superior Civil Service. • The Public Service Commission was established to hold examinations in India for the purpose of recruiting candidates for the All-India Services in accordance with Government of India Act 1919. • After Independence, article 308-314 in part XIV of the constitution of India contains provisions with regard to all India services, Central Services and State Services.
54 1.8 Glossary • Development- The process in which someone or something grows or changes and becomes more advanced. • Civil Service: The body of government officials who are employed in civil occupations that is neither political nor judicial. In most countries the term refers to employees selected and promoted on the basis of a merit and seniority system, which may include examinations. 1.9 Model Questions Essay Type Questions: 1. Discuss the historical Background of the civil service in India. 2. Write an essay on the Civil Service in Pre-independent India. 3. Write a note on the Civil Service in British India. Long Questions: 1. Briefly describe the concept of bureaucracy as enumerated in the Arthashastra of Koutilya. 2. Discuss the changes that took place in the civil service system after the British government took over the rule of India in 1858. 3. Evaluate the recommendations of the Lee Commission Report in 1924. Short Questions: 1. What do you mean by Civil Service? 2. Give a brief outline on the bureaucracy in Medieval India. 3. What were the recommendations of the Macaulay Committee? 1.10 Further Readings and References 55 Bhattacharya, M., & Basu, A. (2014). Indian Administration. Kolkata: World Press.
Chakrabarty, B., & Chand, P. (2012). Public Administration in a Globalizing World
Theories and Practices. New Delhi: Sage. Ghosal,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 201/416 SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

A. K. (1944). Civil Service in India, Under the East India Company:

A Study in Administrative Development. Kolkata: University of Calcutta. Maheswari, S. (1968). Indian Administrations. New Delhi: Orient Longman. Mohyuddin, Z., & Ali, M. Y. (2021). The Development of Indian Civil Service in British India: An Analysis. Journal of Historical Studies , 7 (1), 80-90. Singh, H., & Singh, P. (2011). Indian Administration. New Delhi: Pearson. Unit II Classification of Civil Services Structure 2.1 Objectives 2.2 Introduction 2.3 All- India Services 2.3.1 Recruitment to IAS and IPS 2.3.2 Need for All- India services 2.4 Central Service 2.5 State Public Services 2.6 Conclusion 2.7 Summing UP 2.8 Glossary 2.9 Model Questions 2.10 Further Readings and References
56 2.1. Objectives
After studying the unit the learners would

71% MATCHING BLOCK 198/416 W

be able to ➢ Understand meaning, importance and bases of the classification of services in India ➢ explain the system of classification of services in India during the pre-Independence period ➢ Know the recruitment process of IAS and IPS ➢ Describe the present system of classification of civil services in India 2.2. Introduction A categorization in personnel administration refers to a grouping of distinct jobs according to their tasks and obligations. Classification gives the system some order and ensures that everyone who is classified together based on specific criteria is treated equally. Both civil and military activities are carried out by some officials. Therefore, civilian employment differs from military employment. Of course, both civil and military officers are a part of the state government. However, the two groups' roles are diverse, and as a result, a distinction has been made between the two kinds of officers. The Indian Constitution's Part XIV specifies various categories or types of services for India. The types and categories of services are not covered in detail in the Constitution.

71% MATCHING BLOCK 199/416 W

Civil services, after independence, have been categorised into three types- All India Services (IAS), Central Services and State Services. 2.3.

All- India Services All-India services are those that both the federal and state governments share. Members of these services are recruited and trained by the central government but are assigned to different states for work. They work for the central government on deputation, and after their predetermined term is up, they return to their assigned state. The Central and state governments jointly control the All-India services. Despite the fact that state governments have immediate control, the central government has final say. Any disciplinary action taken against these officers can only be taken by the central government. There are three all-India services available right now. They are the Indian Forest Services (IFS), Indian Police Services (IPS), and Indian Administrative Services (IAS). The Indian Civil Services (ICS) and 57 Indian Police (IPS) were replaced in 1947 and declared by the Constitution to be all-India services. The third all-India service, the Indian Forest Service, was founded in 1966. The All-India Services Act, LXII of 1951, gave the Indian government legal authority to establish regulations after consulting the State Governments appointed to All-India services. 2.3.1 Recruitment to IAS and IPS Article 312

96% MATCHING BLOCK 200/416 W

56% MATCHING BLOCK 202/416 W

88% MATCHING BLOCK 203/416 W

of the Constitution of India has constitutionalised the formation of Indian Administrative Services (IAS) and Indian Police

Services (IPS)

92% MATCHING BLOCK 207/416 SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

but the details of their recruitment, condition of service, etc. were to be laid down by a parliamentary legislation.

So, on October 15, 1951, the Parliament approved the All-India Services Act, 1951. This Act, as revised from time to time, governs the hiring practices and working conditions for all-Indian service workers. In order to fulfil the Act's objectives, this gives the federal government the authority to create regulations after consulting with the state governments. However, a number of methods are used to recruit candidates for the IAS and IPS, including: a) Direct recruitment through the UPSC's open competitive examination; b) Promotion from among the state civil service members; c) Selection from among the Emergency Commissioned and Short Service Commissioned Officers; and d) Special Selection. But the bulk of the IAS and IPS officers are recruited by UPSC through open competitive examination. It is to be noted here that the IAS and IPS officers are recruited through a combined examination, and a separate examination conducted for the recruitment of the officers of the Indian Forest Service. But from 2013 the Preliminary Examination will be common for the candidates applying for civil services Examination and Indian Forest Service Examination, and will act as a screening mechanism for selection of candidates for civil Services (main) Examination and Indian Forest Services (main) Examination. 2.3.2 Need for All- India services The All-India services were established during British rule to provide the steel frame of colonial administration, but they were continued after independence to serve a different purpose. The following arguments for the continuation of these services under the new arrangement may be summed up:

50% MATCHING BLOCK 204/416 W

The All- India services promote the unity and solidarity of the country by combating parochial attitudes of the 58 states. Because the officers of these services are generally posted in states other than their own,

73% MATCHING BLOCK 205/416 W

they are less susceptible to local and regional influences than officers from within the state would be. 1. By rotating the officials of this agency between the federal government and the states, communication between the two is made easier. 2. These services attract a wide range of applicants and are highly compensated in terms of reputation and respect. As a result, they are able to recruit better individuals than governmental services can. 3. The officers of the state services would be hesitant to provide independent advise to the state ministers, whereas the members of the All India services hold the important positions in the states. 4. In some states, there is a shortage of qualified candidates for high-level positions, and the All India Service fills the need. 5. There is inadequacy of the necessary man-power for the high bracket positions in some of the states, and All India service supplies the deficiency in such cases. 6. When there is failure of the constitutional machinery in a state, the president’s rule has to be declared. In such cases it is a great help to have men of All India services under the direct control of the centre to carry out the president’s policies.

85% MATCHING BLOCK 206/416 W

The All India Services have been criticised for the following reasons in addition to the merits that they have been given credit for. 1. The All India services contravene our constitution's federal principles. They work against state autonomy. As a result of the Lee Commission's 1924 recommendations, the dissolution of the majority of the Imperial services was taken into consideration. Although the centre is currently a democratically run organisation, serious issues could develop if other political parties control both the federal government and the states. 2. Since the central government, which establishes the state cadre of such services and has authority over them, recruits and trains the members of the All India Services stationed in the states, the concept of ministerial responsibility is broken when services are not under the minister's authority. 3. Opposition to All India services is also motivated by regional loyalties. While some states receive more than their fair share of All India services, others receive less. The setting of regional or state quotas based on population for the All India services was demanded as a result of this head.

59 4. It is also said that officers from outside the state find it difficult to understand the issues facing the people they work with and get their cooperation because they are unfamiliar with their languages and environments. Therefore, it is required that the recruits assigned to a state be its residents. 2.4. Central Service: The central civil services, which are entirely controlled by the central government, are chosen to manage the responsibilities given to the Union government by the Indian Constitution. According to the varying responsibilities of the work done and the necessary qualifications, the central civil service is divided into four classes or groups. In general, such classification is based on the pay scales associated with these positions. The names of these four groupings are Group-A, Group-B, Group-C, and Group-D. At present there are 60 group-A Central services. Some of them are Archaeological Science, Botanical Survey of India; Central Engineering Service; Central Information Service; Central Electrical Engineering Service; Central Health Service; Central Legal Service; Central Revenues Chemical Service; Central Water Engineering Service; Central Secretariat Service; General Central Service; Geological Survey of India; Indian Statistical Service; Indian Economic

47% MATCHING BLOCK 208/416 W

Service Indian Audit and Accounts Service; Indian Defence Accounts Service; Indian Foreign Service; Indian Inspection Service; Indian Meteorological Service; Indian Postal Service; Indian Posts and Telegraphs Traffic Service; Indian Revenue Service; Indian State Service;

Indian Supply Service; Mercantile Marine Training Ship Service; Mines Department; Overseas Communication Service; Survey of India; Telegraph Engineering Service; Zoological Survey of India; Railway Inspectorate Service; ; Telegraph Traffic Service and Railway Personnel Service. Most of the above cadres of Group-A Central Services have also corresponding group-B services. The group-C Central Services consist of clerical personnel while group-D consists of manual personnel. Thus group A and group B comprises gazette officers while group C and group-D are non-gazette.
2.5. State Public Services
60 In India, each state has its own public services, which are chosen by State Public Service Commissions or other authorities. The employees of state agencies are solely subject to the control of the state government which is concerned with the administration of state subjects such as agriculture, education, forest, health, planning, police, etc. The number of services differs from state to state. Services like the civil service, police service, forest service, judicial service, educational service, and sales tax services are provided to all states. The Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police

92% MATCHING BLOCK 209/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

90% MATCHING BLOCK 210/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

Service as well as the state services occupy the higher posts in the state administration.

Similar to the central services, the state services are divided into four categories: Class I (group A), Class II (group B), Class III (group C), and Class IV (group D) based on work and qualifications. Furthermore, state services are divided into two categories: gazetted and non-gazetted. The majority of the time, Class I (group A) and Class II (group B) services are gazette classes but Class III (group C) and Class IV (group D) services are not. For purposes of appointment, transfer, promotion, and recruiting, the Government Gazette publishes the names of members of the gazetted class; non-gazetted class members' names are not published. Furthermore, members of the gazetted class have various advantages that members of the non-gazetted class do not have. Also the members of gazetted class are called officers while those of non-gazetted class are called employees. According to the all-India services Act of 1951, promotions of officers working for the state services are required to fill senior positions in the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 214/416 SA Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx (D154785574)

Indian Administrative Services (IAS), Indian Police Services (IPS), and Indian Forest

Service that do not exceed 33.3%. Such promotions are carried out on the advice of a UPSC member or the selection committee established in each state for this purpose. 2.6. Conclusion A proper and systematic classification of personnel in government is very essential for the management of civil service in modern India. The USA, Japan, Canada etc. have adopted the system of position classification, while UK, India Pakistan etc. have adopted the system of rank classification. The basis of the rank classification system is the rank and the personal status of the incumbent. Each employee is placed in a particular class. The present classification system is criticised mainly on the ground that it promotes class consciousness which is not conducive to the efficient, smooth and harmonious functioning of the civil service. 61 2.7. Summing UP ➢ Classification gives the system some order and ensures that everyone who is classified together based on specific criteria is treated equally. ➢

63% MATCHING BLOCK 211/416 W

Civil services, after independence, have been categorized into three types- All India Services (IAS), Central Services and State Services. ➢

All-India services are those that both the federal and state governments share. ➢ There are three all-India services available right now. They are the Indian Forest Services (IFS), Indian Police Services (IPS), and Indian Administrative Services (IAS). ➢

52% MATCHING BLOCK 212/416 W

The All- India services promote the unity and solidarity of the country by combating parochial attitudes of the states. ➢ The central civil services, which are entirely controlled by the central government. ➢ The employees of state agencies are solely subject to the control of the state government which is concerned with the administration of state subjects. 2.8. Glossary Classification:

66% MATCHING BLOCK 213/416 W

In personnel administration classification means a grouping of various positions on the basis of their duties and responsibilities.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 215/416 W

Classification brings some orderliness into the system and makes for uniform treatment of all the people who are grouped together on certain criteria.

All-India Service Act 1951: This Act was enacted on 29 th October, 1951
to

100% MATCHING BLOCK 217/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

regulate the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to the All-India Services common to the Union and the States.

According to this law

88%	MATCHING BLOCK 216/416	W

the Central Government may, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned, [ including the State of Jammu and Kashmir [and by notification in the Official Gazette]] make

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 222/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

rules for the regulation of recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed to an All-India Service.

UPSC: The Union Public Service Commission, commonly abbreviated as UPSC, is India's premier central recruitment agency for recruitment of the entire Group 'A' officers under Government of India.
62 2.9. Model Questions Essay Type Questions: 1. Critically evaluate the present system of classification of civil service in India. 2. Point out the arguments for the continuation of the Indian Civil Service after Independence. 3.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 218/416	W

What are the types of the classification of services? Discuss their features.

Long Questions: 1. Write a short note on All India Civil Services in India. 2. Give an outline of Central Services in India. 3. Write a brief remark about State Civil Services in India. Short Questions: 1. What do you understand by classification? 2. Discuss the criticism against the All-India services in India 3. Write about how an IAS recruits. 2.10. References and Bibliography Bhattacharya, M., & Basu, A. (2014). Indian Administration. Kolkata: World Press.
Chakrabarty, B., & Chand, P. (2012). Public Administration in a Globalizing World
Theories and Practices. New Delhi: Sage. Maheswari, S. (1968). Indian Administrations.

62%	MATCHING BLOCK 219/416	W

New Delhi: Orient Longman. Misra, B. B. (1970). The Administrative History of India. London: Oxford University Press.

Singh, H., & Sachdeva, P. (2012). Public Administation . New Delhi: Pearson. Singh, H., & Singh, P. (2011). Indian Administration. New Delhi: Pearson.
63

58%	MATCHING BLOCK 220/416	W

Unit III Generalists and Specialists Structure 3.1 Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Meaning of Generalists and Specialists 3.4 Relation between Generalists and Specialists

Administrators in India 3.4.1 Areas of controversy 3.4.2 Arguments in favour of Specialists and Generalists 3.5 Attitude of Political Leaders on the Position of Generalists and Specialists 3.6 Recommendations of Administrative Reforms Commission 3.7
Conclusion 3.8 Summing UP 3.9 Glossary 3.10 Model Questions 3.11 Further Readings and References 1.11 3.1 Objectives
The present unit will help the learners: • To understand the meaning of generalists and specialists. • To distinguish between general administration and functional administration in the public service. • To describe the role of generalists and specialists in public service.

64 • To explain the controversy between the generalists and specialists. 3.2 Introduction In the government, there are two major functional categories: generalists and specialists. They are essential in the formulation of policies, their implementation, and in providing advise to political leaders. The nature of modern administration has become more specialised, necessitating the use of various kinds of staff with the requisite abilities, expertise, and characteristics. Although both of these types of functionaries are required in modern organisations, the debate between them has existed for ages and is today one of the most hotly debated topics in public administration. 1.12 3.3 Meaning of Generalists and Specialists A general civil servant does not possess any specialist or technical education. Recruitment of a general administrator is done on the basis of general educational qualifications and is open to all candidates who possess the minimum required educational qualification irrespective of the subject studied in the university. In its common usage, the term "generalist" refers to an all-around individual who takes pride in his versatility rather than having a particular speciality. He is also a versatile individual who is required to perform each task equally well as a specialist.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 221/416 W

According to L.D. White, "general administration is understood to mean those duties which are concerned with the formulation of policy; with the coordination and improvement of government machinery, and with the general management and control of the departments.' It assumes that a generalist administrator is concerned with all types of administrative processes performs the POSDCORB functions which are planning, organizing, staffing, directing, coordinating, reporting, and budgeting.

60% MATCHING BLOCK 223/416 W

Presthus, considers 'a generalist is an amateur administrator who has received an education in linguistics, poise and leadership, good intuitive judgment, the proper feelings, and a broad background rather than in highly specialised knowledge and skills. In India services of generalists includes Indian Administrative Service, Indian Revenue Service, Indian Police Service, Indian Foreign Service, Indian Portal Service, Indian Audit and Account Service, Central Secretariat Services and so on. The generalist services again fall into two groups- the first group consisting of functional services and the second consisting of the generalist administrative service. Each one of the functional services like Police, Income Tax, Central Excise, Audit and Accounts has a well defined functional area. On the other hand the administrative service which has been primarily organized for district administration, does not have well defined functional areas beyond the district level.

65 On the other hand, a specialist is an expert who has devoted time and study to a special branch of learning and has acquired specialised expertise in tackling problems in particular subjects or areas. As a result, he is not an all- rounder like a generalist.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 224/416 W

Specialists in government are those who are recruited to posts for which specialist, technical and other professional qualifications are essential. In India, specialists services include the Centre Health Service, Indian Meteorological Service, Indian Economic Service, Indian Statistical Service, Indian Forest Service, and Centre Engineering Service, and so on. 1.13 3.4 Relation between Generalists and Specialists Administrators in India

100% MATCHING BLOCK 225/416 W

In rendering advice to the political executives, policy-making and in implementation of policies the generalists and specialists servants play complementary roles. But for a long time, a controversy has been raging among administrators and scholars alike regarding the position and the role of the general administrators and functional specialists in the public service. In his article 'Generalists versus Specialist' A D Pandit pointed out that 'the generalist-specialist controversy has raised its head from time to time in Britain and countries which were formerly governed by the British and have retained either intact or with modifications, institutions and procedures of British origin, such as parliamentary democracy and a civil service recruited on merit'. Conflicts arise either from the perceptions of each about the role of the other or from differences in their occupational backgrounds. The thorny issue in the controversy is whether, in a democratic set up, the policy formulation should be done by the generalist-administrator or the specialists.

77% MATCHING BLOCK 226/416 W

The controversy between these two groups of functionaries is however age-old and still one of the fiery fought out issues of Public Administration.

52% MATCHING BLOCK 227/416 W

The heritage of the generalist being always at the top of administration can be traced back to the administrative philosophy of 19 th century England. In 1854, the British Northcote-Trivelyan Committee Report recommended a superior position for the members of the British administrative class (generalists) and a subordinate position for the members of the technical (specialists) services. Influenced by the British Northcote- Trivelyan Committee Report on the Indian Civil Service in 1854 also recommended the same position in India too. But in 1968, the Fulton Committee Report looked into this issue in light of the new circumstances and suggested giving professionals a better standing, a bigger responsibility, and professionalising higher civil services in Britain. However, despite a slight improvement in the standing of specialists, generalist domination continued to exist in this country.

66 Inspired by the British administrative philosophy, similar recommendations were made for corrective action in India by the Administrative Reforms Commission from 1966- 1970, the Estimates Committee of Parliament, and the Second Pay Commission from 1957 -1959. The current Indian administrative system is mostly dominated by generalists, in which policy-making and top administrative posts are occupied by generalist administrators belonging to the IAS of the government. He is the boss of many specialists working in those departments. The IAS has established itself as the elite corps in charge of filling important positions close to the President and Prime Minister, as well as other higher-level positions in charge of coordinating cabinet policies, managing hiring, training, and disciplinary procedures for the upper levels of the civil service. For instance, the IAS is the boss in the home ministry even though the Director General of Police hails from the IPS. A collector is an IAS who, in addition to the DSP or City Police Commissioner, performs magisterial duties of maintaining law and order. Similarly, the Director of Medical Education, the director of Technical Education, the Director of Higher Education, the Conservator of Archives, etc. are all technical and specialist officers who are answerable to the generalist IAS Secretaries in their respective ministries. The technical departments like Mines, Coal, Steel, Labour, Communications, Electricity, Information & Broadcasting, Defense, etc. are headed by IÁS officers, sidelining the specialists in those areas. This pattern of IAS paramountcy is also found in state and local governments. John J. Hebal considers that, 'problems between generalists and specialists began to arise as soon as specialisation developed in Indian administration, certainly by the late Nineteenth Century.' However,

88% MATCHING BLOCK 228/416 W

this predominance of generalists in administration led to discontent which has gained momentum in recent years. In several states of India, this controversy has been carried to the streets in such a severe manner that it has led to a complete breakdown of communication between the members of the IAS representing the generalist and the electrical engineers, representing the specialist. 1.14 3.4.1 Areas of controversy In the administrative system, the following issues are at the centre of the journalistic and expert disagreement. 1. The majority of top posts for policy formulation and consideration levels in the union and State governments are reversed for the members of IAS. In the other words, entry into these top posts is usually denied to the specialists. At the district level,

76%	MATCHING BLOCK 232/416	SA	MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

the District Collector who is the head of the district administration is a generalist civil servant per excellence. Not only that, the key posts at the regional level like Divisional Commissioner, Command Area Development Commissioner, and others, are manned by generalists.. 2. The pay and service conditions, including promotions, are more appealing and advantageous than those of the specialist. Generalists have a better and faster chance of changing into promotion than specialists.

67 3. Generalists have a larger range of inter-organizational mobility than specialists do. The IAS officers switch across departments, going from one to a municipal or public enterprise and vice versa. The specialists only move within their specific administrative divisions or departments. 4. The IAS officers who regarded the specialists as their subordinates do not give much consideration to the advice, proposals, and ideas of the professionals. 5. Generalist IAS officials evaluate and appraise the specialist's performance. 1.15 3.4.2 Arguments in favour of Specialists and Generalists Specialists argue that generalists are unsuitable for all policy-making positions due to a lack of professionalism and adequate knowledge. A developing country like India requires a scientific perspective, not an administrative one; specialists regard IAS generalists as rule-followers who lack the scientific temper that planned development requires. The policies that the generalists have formulated are unrealistic because they are not fully aware of the challenges that the specialists face in the effective implementation of policies. Administration in the future is going to be characterized by new developments in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioural sciences, decision-making, human relations in administration etc. Each of these areas requires professional intervention. On the other hand, the generalists believe that, while the technical soundness of a scheme can only be determined by specialists, mere technical soundness is insufficient. It is argued that a scheme should be examined from a variety of perspectives, including its financial and legal implications, administrative feasibility, political justifiability, and whether it is acceptable to Parliament and the public. The generalist contends that they are in a better position than specialists to perform higher management level jobs because they have broader and richer experience, ability, and caliber. Generalists are also influential in the problem-solving arena. Because the majority of important techno-professional work in government has become interdisciplinary, a single arbiter in the form of a generalist administrator is required to articulate a rational, cost-effective, and most beneficial alternative solution. Furthermore, they serve as a bridge between an amateur minister and a specialist, between pressure groups and the public interest, and between citizens and the government. 3.5 Attitude of Political Leaders on the Position of Generalists and Specialists India's political leadership was opposed to the IAS being placed in a pivotal position in comparison to technical personnel. In 1956, the President of India observed, "I see no reason why technical personnel should not be treated at par with administrative personnel and technical services should not be given the same emoluments

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 229/416	W

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 230/416	W

68 and advantages as the country's administrative services. In 1960, Jawaharlal Nehru stressed the importance of technocrats and scientists in the development of modern India, saying, "While our administrative services are generally good, it is wrong to think that people in the administrative services belong to some upper strata of society where others cannot reach. An engineer can work as an administrator, but an administrator cannot work without engineers because he does not know the job at all'. In 1967, the then Prime Minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, on the eve of a convocation address at the university of Roorkee emphatically asserted, "It is odd that the greatest doctors and engineers in the country who could be rated as the leaders of the profession and who save lives and add permanent assets to the nation can rarely hope to receive the pay or status of secretaries of minister. The brightest of our young men and women choose engineering and medicine. If they happen to go into government, they are very soon overtaken by the general administrator. This must change, and I am trying to change it. The administrative system must reflect the individual's contribution to human welfare and economic gain'. In our country, certain measures have been taken to reduce the controversy between generalists and specialists. In 1948, the Central Secretariat Service was created, which gave rise to a separate cadre of permanent secretariat officers. The Indian Economic Service, Indian Forest Service, and India Statistical Service have been created exclusively for specialists. The Planning Commission, the UGC, the Department of Atomic Energy, the Department of Space and Electronics, and the Department of Science and Technology are all led by scientists as secretaries or chairmen, as the case may be. Giving experts the ex-officio rank of Joint/Additional Secretary to the Government is another experiment that has been tried to give them their due respect in the areas of policy-making and administration. The majority of posts on the planning commission have been filled by specialists. 1.16 3.6 Recommendations of Administrative Reforms Commission Specialists were rarely promoted to the positions of secretary in the central or state governments

68%	MATCHING BLOCK 231/416	W

prior to

87%	MATCHING BLOCK 233/416	W

the release of the Administrative Reforms Commission's report on Personnel Administration (

April 1969). In addition, IAS members are also appointed as heads of departments in state government, with the exception of police and engineering, including technical ones like agriculture, animal husbandry, sales tax, etc.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 234/416	W

There are wage disparities between the IAS and other services, which exacerbates the resentment among employees of specialised departments like Indian Audit and Accounts, the

76%	MATCHING BLOCK 235/416	W

Railways, etc. at the federal level and agricultural, engineering, and other services at the state level.

69 In relation to the Generalists-Specialists debate, the Administrative Reforms Commission in 1969 made some recommendations, such as –i) All current services in the Government of India should be regrouped into eight functional categories so that the IAS shall no longer be a generalist but shall have a purely functional role of revenue administration. ii) Senior management posts may be selected from all relevant sources, the generalists and the specialists' iii) A rational pay structure should be adopted. iv)The practise of appointing generalist secretaries as part-time or full-time Chairmen or managing directors of public enterprises should be discontinued. 1.17 3.7 Conclusion Since India's independence, there has been conflicting between professionals and generalists in the civil service, and this rivalry has prevented the effective administration necessary to provide the infrastructure for social, economic, and political progress The sooner we allow experts to perform their legitimate functions, the more professionally public administration will function. The generalist nature of bureaucratic recruiting in India needs to end as soon as possible. The French approach should be adopted here. In France, top bureaucrats are chosen based on their specialised understanding of the subjects they would be tasked with handling. They are assigned to departments based on their areas of expertise. On the basis of their knowledge, they make a positive contribution to that department, and in the process, they amass enough expertise and experience there to warrant promotion. They are being appointed to the top policy-making roles or generalist positions when they reach seniority, accumulate sufficient experience, and have a mature and broad outlook to appropriately position their department's work within the entirety of governmental operations. 1.18 3.8 Summing UP • In the government, there are two major functional categories: generalists and specialists. • Like Britain in India there are controversies between them. • Reservation of top posts for generalists, unequal service conditions, treating specialists as their subordinates by generalists are the main issues of the controversy. • The specialists argue that a developing country like India requires a scientific perspective, not an administrative one. While generalists pointed out that technical soundness is not enough for formulation of any government scheme. It is crucial to examine a plan from a number of angles, including its financial and legal ramifications, administrative viability, political justifiability, and whether it is supported by Parliament and the general public.

70 • A number of political leaders consider that there would be equal hierarchy between generalist and specialist. • Administrative Reforms Commission (1969) tries to reduce the gap through its recommendations. 1.19 3.9 Glossary Generalists: a person whose knowledge, aptitudes, and skills are applied to a field as a whole or to a variety of different fields. Specialists: A specialist is a person who has a particular skill or knows a lot about a particular subject. Controversy: Controversy is a lot of discussion and argument about something, often involving strong feelings of anger or disapproval. 1.20 3.10 Model Questions Essay Type Questions: 1. Describe the issues that have caused conflict between administrative generalists and experts. 2. Describe the function of specialists in the administrative field. 3. What justifications do the generalists offer for their privileged position in administration? Long Questions: 1. What are the Administrative Reforms Commission's suggestions about generalists vs. specialists? 2. What are the Administrative Reforms Commission's recommendations for specialised services? 3. Briefly discuss the relation between generalists and specialists. Short Questions: 1. What do you mean by generalists? 2. What do you mean by specialists? 3. What are the specialists' arguments in support of their administration position?

71 1.21 3.11 Further Readings and References Bhattacharya, M., & Basu, A. (2014). Indian Administration. Kolkata: World Press.

Chakrabarty, B., & Chand, P. (2012). Public Administration in a Globalizing World

Theories and Practices. New Delhi: Sage. Fadia, H. S. (2008). Relationship between Generalists and specialists Administrators. The Indian Journal of Political Science , 69 (2), 287-300. Hebal, J. J. (1961). Generalist versus Specialist in the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Public Administration Review , 21 (1), 16-22. Kashikar, M. S. (2004). Case of Generalists v/s Specialists in Indian Bureaucracy and Need for Reforms. The Indian Journal of Political Science , 65 (4), 543-555. Maheswari, S. (1968). Indian Administrations.

62% MATCHING BLOCK 236/416 W

New Delhi: Orient Longman. Misra, B. B. (1970). The Administrative History of India. London: Oxford University Press.

Pandit, A. D. (1075). Generalist versus Specialist. India International Centre Quarterly , 2 (1), 57-62. Paracer, A. P. (1975). Role of Generalists and Specialists in Public Administration. Indian Journal of Public Administration , 21 (2), 197-207. Singh, H., & Sachdeva, P. (2012). Public Administation Public Administra tion. New Delhi: Pearson. Singh, H., & Singh, P. (2011). Indian Administration. New Delhi: Pearson. Welfare, M. o. (1970). Report of the Administrative Reforms Commission on Personnel Administration. New Delhi: Governement of India.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 237/416 SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

White, L. D. (1926). Introduction to the study of public administration.

New York: Macmillan. Unit IV
72 Concept of Representative Bureaucracy Structure 4.1 Objectives 4.2 Introduction 4.3 Meaning of Representative Bureaucracy 4.4 Conditions for Representative Bureaucracy 4.5 Democracy and Representative Bureaucracy 4.6 Type of Representative Bureaucracy 4.7 India and Representative Bureaucracy 4.8 Criticism against Representative Bureaucracy 4.9 Conclusion 4.10 Summing up 4.11 Glossary 4.12 Model Questions 4.13 Further Readings and References 1.22 Objective The present unit helps us: • To explain the meaning of representative bureaucracy • To know the necessary conditions for representative bureaucracy • To evaluate the role of representative bureaucracy in democracy • To point out various criticism against representative bureaucracy 1.23 Introduction The modern state cannot function without bureaucracy. It has a long history because it can be traced back to ancient writings from the Chinese, Greek, Roman, Egyptian, and Indian civilizations. The modern form of bureaucracy is the development of the 20th century. After World War II, bureaucracy firmly established
73 itself in every state. Representative bureaucracy is concerned with both the structure of the bureaucracy and the effects that representation has on the formulation and execution of policy. 1.24 Meaning of Representative Bureaucracy Representative bureaucracy is a form of representation that captures most or all aspects of a society's population in the governing body of the state. The term "representative bureaucracy" is widely given to J. Donald Kingsley's 1944 book Representative Bureaucracy, and since then it has gained popularity through the discussions of a few American scientists and British sociologists. Kingsley argues in his book that the English bureaucracy needed to "liberalise social class selection" because of the "dominance of social, political, and economic elites inside the British bureaucracy," which he says led to policies and programmes that did not serve the needs or interests of all social classes. In order to address this problem, Kingsley claims that "representative bureaucracy is important since there must be at least some administrators sympathetic to the programmatic objectives of the prevailing political party." Literally, representative bureaucracy means a civil service in which every economic class, caste, region or religion in a country is represented in exact proportion to its numbers in the population. In practice, its American proponents interpret it less literally to mean a bureaucracy drawn ‘from all social, racial and religious groups on the basis of ability' -but not necessarily in exact numerical proportion to produce 'a copy of the total society. According to the widely accepted notion of representative bureaucracy, diversity in the public workforce, particularly in terms of traits like colour and ethnicity, will aid in ensuring that varied groups' interests are represented in the processes of policy formulation and implementation. The idea holds that a bureaucrat's social and demographic background shapes their socialisation experiences and the formation of attitudes, beliefs, and opinions that ultimately influence their decisions on policy matters. As a result, the idea contends that when the bureaucracy reflects the populace, policy choices will generally reflect the populace's interests. A central theme of representative bureaucracy is the assumption that passive representation will lead to active representation, whereby bureaucrats act purposely on behalf of their counterparts in the general population. Therefore, a representative bureaucracy serves to make bureaucracy accountable by acting in accordance with the values of the general public and generating policy outcomes that are comparable to those generated if the entire population participated.

74 1.25 Conditions for Representative Bureaucracy Meier and Stewart (1992) propose three necessary conditions for representative bureaucracy: First, public administrators must have discretion in the decision-making and policy implementation process. Second, these bureaucrats must exercise this discretion in a policy area that has important implications for the group they represent. Finally, in order to ascertain a connection between the demographic backgrounds of bureaucrats and policy outcomes, these administrators must be directly associated with the decisions they make. Van Riper makes it clear that a representative bureaucracy must "(1) consist of a reasonable cross-section of the body politic in terms of occupation, class, geography, and the like, and (2) must be in general in tune with the ethos and attitudes of the society of which it is part. 1.26 Democracy and Representative Bureaucracy The notion of representation is central to both democratic principles and Weberian bureaucracy. According to Weber (1968), a stable, democratic government requires legitimacy and the representation of the governed. Legitimate representation entails the values of speaking up for and taking action on behalf of others. Scholars of representative bureaucracy have long argued that the decisions made by bureaucrats influence their own values and attitudes. According to representative bureaucracy theory, a demographically representative bureaucracy will develop policies that substantively represent the attitudes and wants of the public. Representative bureaucracies can promote democracy in various ways. As a number of scholars have pointed out, representation makes bureaucracies more responsive to the body politic, and can also increase government accountability. 1.27 Type of Representative Bureaucracy Various types of representation have been identified in studies of representative bureaucracy, such as passive, active, and symbolic representation. Passive representation happens when the demographics of bureaucratic agencies reflect those of the broader population. Several studies have shown that passive representation can be an indicator of diversity gains as well as a measure of the enfranchisement of diverse

75 communities. For an agency to be regarded as really representative, this variety must reflect the racial and ethnic diversity of the general population. Passive representation can help governmental entities appear more genuine by demonstrating a commitment to access to power and equal opportunity. Communities with different demographics may even feel "enfranchised" when a glaringly diverse bureaucracy works for them. As a result, passive representation serves a symbolic function. Passive representation examines if the bureaucracy's demographics are representative of the general public or whether women and minorities are underrepresented in governmental organisations. The idea of active representation, which allows bureaucrats to advocate for the needs and interests of their counterparts in the general population, was developed by Mosher in 1968. Almost solely, active representation concentrates on how representation influences the formulation and application of policy. Active representation, in particular, implies that bureaucrats would transform ideals resulting from comparable demographic origins into programmes, policies, and judgments that benefit clients with similar demographic origins. According to Meier (1975), there are three conditions which underpin active representation: (1) bureaucracies formulate and implement policy; (2) bureaucrats are able to exercise discretion within the parameters of political control and legal constraints, and (3) bureaucracies confront wider issues of responsibility and legitimacy in democracies. A gendered policy is one that adversely impacts women as a class or group, according to Keiser et al. (2002). Additionally, a female bureaucrat will act in the interests of women, so the gender of the bureaucrat is significant in the connection between citizen and bureaucrat. Numerous studies have shown that female bureaucrats actively represent women as a class in policy issues involving gender. Until about a century and a half ago, the highest positions in government and administration in all countries were held by people from a numerically limited upper class, regardless of whether the social organisation was feudal, mercantile, or semi-industrial, and the type of government was parliamentary, monarchic, or aristocratic. This was made acceptable by the notion that those in the upper class have certain skills. In the 18th and 19th centuries, it was replaced by a performance-oriented style of reference for two reasons. The first was the general growth of rationalism in Europe from the Renaissance onwards and its increasing influence in the late 18th century. In such a climate, it appears rather indefensible to ascribe abilities where they could be tested for by performance. The second reason was the patent failure of 'ascribed' groups in some European countries to deliver the goods. The most important historical feature, from our point of view, of this replacement of ascription by performance testing was that it coincided in time with the spread of democratic institutions.

76 1.28 India and Representative Bureaucracy There are several different ways in which the Indian public service system displays representative quality. There is no barrier for people of diverse regions, castes, and creeds to enter government services. Gender discrimination does not exist. There is no preference for those with a specific educational background that would ease their entry into civil services. However, the minimum and maximum age requirements to join the Indian civil service are 21 and 28 respectively. No more than three attempts may be made. Indian society is composed of different castes, some of which are scheduled in the Indian Constitution. The rich and powerful sections of Indian society deprived them of their due for a very long period in the past. India is inhabited by a large number of tribal people who have yet to join the mainstream of society. Modern culture has not made inroads among the tribes. These have also been given a privilege in terms of the reservation of seats for entry into the civil services. Then there are people known as OBCs or other backward castes, a part of society that has not shared the advantages of growth for one reason or another, and in order to bring them on equal footing, they have been granted the privilege of reservations in admittance to civil services. Reservations are also available for people with disabilities and migrants from nearby nations who are struggling economically and socially. These groups are given a total of 50% of the seats available for recruitment to the IAS and central services. This reservation ranges from 50 to 69% for the various provinces of the Indian Union. It was stated that Indian society was more rigidly divided into caste and religious groupings than economic classes, but these divisions were based on birth and had a greater impact on their members than class. The rationale for equal and proportionate representation of each caste and religious group was based on the possibility of recruits' sectional sympathies or even sectional loyalty causing harm to underrepresented groups. The danger was perceived as being much more real in late 19th and early 20th century India than elsewhere for two reasons: (1) India had a purely bureaucratic form of government with little democratic control, and (2) being a civil servant meant having more power than other people, power that could be used and was frequently claimed to be used by the administrator in favour of one's community. There was a compelling argument made in favour of distributing the two rare commodities of power and security in a more equitable—that is, proportionate—manner.

77 1.29 Criticism against Representative Bureaucracy Despite being well-designed, the representative bureaucracy hypothesis has four serious shortcomings. Firstly, all theorists start with the premise that traditional safeguards against administrative abuse— including judicial review, executive hierarchy, legislative budgeting, and oversight—are ineffectual. In view of Van Riper's claim that the federal bureaucracy is remarkably responsive, this assumption is particularly interesting. The claim that political controls are insufficient is typically refuted by pointing out that they are inefficient at stopping a determined administrator from misusing his authority since they are burdensome, rarely employed, and infrequently deployed. However, the efficiency of conventional political restrictions is an empirical issue that has never been thoroughly investigated. When external controls are ineffective, representative bureaucracy is offered as a method of democratic control. The requirement for a representative bureaucracy is reduced if such restrictions are sufficient. Secondly, the careful theorist rejects a bureaucracy representative in terms of current occupation and education because he demands expertise in government. Rigidly interpreted, the theory requires representativeness in terms of values, but failing that, the father's occupation, social class, region, and place of birth are substituted. But, as Mosher admits, we know very little about the relationship between a man's background and the values he presently holds. In short, instead of measuring representativeness directly, we are forced to use secondary variables with unknown linkages. The third critical point is the contention that socioeconomic characteristics determine values. Assuming that this is indeed true creates two additional complications arise. First of all, socialisation is a process of learning, and as such, it does not end when a bureaucrat joins the civil service at age 21. Orville Brim asserts that socialisation in childhood cannot adequately prepare a person for all the duties that would be demanded of him in later life. The process of socialisation is ongoing and "developmental in nature," building on past attitudes and skills to serve as a foundation for later, more difficult learning. Post- childhood socialisation differs from early childhood socialisation in that it places more emphasis on overt conduct than on motivation, on skills and knowledge, on the synthesis of prior knowledge rather than on the acquisition of new knowledge, and on realism, conflict resolution, and specificity. Second, compared to a randomly chosen group of people with the same familial social traits, government officials, especially upper-level civil servants, differ dramatically because they have a high rate of upward mobility. Over 90% of higher-level civil officers are professionals, and many of them are descended from farmers and other low-skilled workers.

78 The final criticism of the representative bureaucracy theory is the claim that the bureaucracy as a whole must be broadly representative of the American people. This is a misconception because the bureaucracy as a whole does not make any decisions; the individual agencies and bureaus and their dominant coalitions are the key elements. Every bureau, department, and agency, then, must be representative of the people for the theory to hold, or decisions made at this level must be appealable to a bureaucracy that is representative. It is not sufficient to be able to appeal to a political arm of the government such as Congress, a congressional committee, or the President because, as Long has argued, they are highly unrepresentative. In addition, it is not necessary for the entire bureau to be representative of the American people because the important decisions are centred at the top of the bureau. 1.30 Conclusion Thus, the core argument-stated differently in different contexts-is that bureaucrats take their class attitudes and prejudices into their official life, and that only when all classes (or castes) are properly represented in the civil service can their various demands and interests be given full attention. 1.31 Summing UP • Representative bureaucracy is a form of representation that captures most or all aspects of a society's population in the governing body of the state. • Representative bureaucracy serves to make bureaucracy accountable by acting in accordance with the values of the general public and generating policy outcomes that are comparable to those generated if the entire population participated. • Representative bureaucracy is classified mainly into two types- passive representation and active representation. • The Indian civil service has ensured representative bureaucracy as there is no barrier for people of diverse regions, castes, and creeds to enter the government services. 1.32 Glossary • Representative: a system of administration based upon organization into bureaus, division of labour, a hierarchy of authority, etc: designed to dispose of a large body of work in a routine manner.
79 • Representative Bureaucracy: Representative bureaucracy is one in which the ratio of each minority group in a particular government agency equals that group's percentage in the population in the area served by that office. • Passive: used to describe someone who allows things to happen or who accepts what other people do or decide without trying to change anything. • Active: very involved in the work of an organization or with a particular activity 1.33 Model Questions Essay Type Questions: 1. Write a note on the various types of representative bureaucracy. 2. Discuss the nature of representative bureaucracy in India. 3. Point out various criticisms against representative bureaucracy. Long Questions: 1. Explain the significance of representative bureaucracy in democracy. 2. Discuss the necessary conditions for representative bureaucracy. 3. Evaluate the role of representative bureaucracy in democracy. Short Questions: 1. Define representative bureaucracy. 2. Mention the various conditions for representative bureaucracy. 3. Discuss the relation between democracy and representative bureaucracy.
80 1.34 Further Readings and References Bradbury, M. D., & Kellough, J. E. (2008). Representative bureaucracy: Exploring the potential for active representation. Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory , 18, 697-714. Dolan, J. (2002). Representative Bureaucracy in the Federal Executive: Gender and Spending Priorities. Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory , 12 (3), 353-375. MILLER, K. J. (2012). Representative Bureaucracy and Multilevel Governance in the EU. History, and International Relations , 4 (1), 50-75. Nicholson-Crotty, K. J. (2006). Gender, Representative Bureaucracy, and Law Enforcement: The Case of Sexual Assault. Public Administration Review , 66 (6), 850-860. Rehfuss, J. A. (1986). A Representative Bureaucracy? Women and Minority Executives in California Career Service. Public Administration Review , 46 (5), 454-460. Riccucci, N. M., Ryzin, G. G., & Lavena, C. F. (2014). Representative Bureaucracy in Policing: Does It Increase Perceived Legitimacy? Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory , 24 (3), 537-551. Subramaniam, V. (1967). Representative Bureaucracy: A Reassessment. The American Political Science Review , 61 (4), 1010-1019. Unit V Changing Role of Civil Service in India Structure
81 5.1 Objectives 5.2 Introduction 5.3 Major Responsibilities of Civil Servants in British India 5.4 Major Responsibilities of Civil Servants in Independent India 5.4.1 Policy Making and Implementation 5.4.2 Serving the government 5.4.3 Providing Welfare and Protective Services to the People 5.4.4 Connecting Bridge between State and the Society 5.4.5 Developmental Function 5.4.6 Administrative Adjudication: 5.5 Major Criticisms of Indian Civil Services 5.6 Conclusion 5.7 Summing UP 5.8 Glossary 5.9 Model Questions 5.10 Further Readings and References 5.1 Objectives • The study provides a clear understanding of the importance of civil service in democracies. • The study aids in understanding the primary duties of civil servants in British India. • The study assists in analysing the key functions of civil servants in India. • The study contributes to a better understanding of the various obstacles to India's civil service's performance. 5.2 Introduction

82 All governments need some sort of administrative infrastructure to carry out their objectives. Hence, the civil service is the basis of a government. Theoretical studies have established that a well-operating civil service promotes sound policymaking, efficient service delivery, accountability, and responsibility in the use of public resources—all of which are key components of good governance. The primary goal of the civil service is to improve the administrative ability to carry out crucial governmental tasks. In the modern administrative state, public administration has become so significant that our development, upliftment, and progress depend mainly upon the efficient functioning of civil services. Lord Cornwallis is renowned as the "Father of Civil Services" in India for reforming and organising the civil services. In India, a civil service official is a servant of Indian society who is appointed on the basis of merit in the Civil Service Examination conducted by the Union Public Service Commission. 5.3 Major Responsibilities of Civil Servants in British India Maintaining law and order and fostering the growth of the colonial economy were the primary goals of the Indian administration in the years before independence. Our government was largely a police and judicial system for the protection of life and property, as well as a simple transportation and communication infrastructure for the export of raw resources to England. Additionally, it implied some form of industrial and trade control to safeguard British trade. It adopted a non-interventionist approach to social issues. The Indian Civil Service, which was a centralised and well-integrated hierarchy of permanent officials, served as the primary agency for carrying out these tasks. Its primary duties were regulatory, which did not require any technical expertise or creative or entrepreneurial thought. A government servant had no choice but to obey the rules and precedents in making decisions regarding all matters that came before him because all of its activities were bound by predetermined rules and regulations. 5.4 Major Responsibilities of Civil Servants in Independent India However, independence has; brought about political changes of such a far-reaching character that they have completely transformed the character and role of our civil service. The state is now responsible not only for fulfilling the needs of the citizens but also for owning a large portion of the national resources. It

83 owns our vital mineral and oil resources, manufactures steel and heavy machinery, generates and distributes electricity, owns and operates all modes of transportation, plans new towns and industries, and has significant influence over agricultural growth. In fact, our state now has quite broad powers of direction and control over our entire economic existence. In such a dynamic environment, the function of the civil servant has become more creative than a sedative and more positive than destructive. It performs the following functions in independent India: 5.4.1 Policy Making and Implementation Due to their administrative expertise, they are the “think tank” of the government. The civil servants, by virtue of their knowledge, experience, and understanding of public affairs assist the ministers in formulating policies and are responsible for implementing these policies. They collect data and information related to core issues. They assist in identifying major policy areas such as preparing major policy proposals, analysing various alternatives and solutions to societal problems requiring urgent attention, dividing the major policies into sub-policies, determining programmes of action; and suggesting modifications to the existing policy on the basis of its experience on the implementation front. It is also the responsibility of the civil servants to check the feasibility of the proposals in relation to the constitutional provisions. The civil service investigates the topic under consideration for policy development; it develops and reframes policy recommendations while keeping in mind viability, future prospects, available resources, acceptability, and so on. The civil services are also responsible for analysing policy recommendations in accordance with the requirements of the Constitution, the laws enacted by Parliament, and other existing rules and regulations. In this approach, the civil services contribute to the development of solid and effective policies. 5.4.2 Serving the government Serving the government that has been chosen by society is the main duty of civil service executives. No matter whether a political party is in control, civil services must provide the same standard of free, frank, impartial, and responsive advice as well as the same degree of professionalism in the administration and implementation of services, policies, and programmes.

84 5.4.3 Providing Welfare and Protective Services to the People As a welfare state, governments must carry out significant functions, including distributing social services, supplying necessities, and performing as managers of important industries, a controlling and regulating of private economic businesses and pursuits. Naturally, this has raised the significance of civic service. The survival and progress of human beings depend on the proper enforcement of laws against lawbreakers. Civil servants protect the lives and property of the people by maintaining law and order.

87%	MATCHING BLOCK 238/416	SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

People's welfare services including social security, old-age pensions, welfare of the weaker parts, poverty reduction, and so on, are being appreciated in the management in India by civil servants. 5.4.4 Connecting Bridge between State and the Society As one of the foremost agents of governance, the Civil Services form the connecting bridge between the state and society. The majority of government initiatives are overseen and carried out solely by civil officials, who work diligently to address citizens' problems as soon as possible and build trusting relationships with them. Hence, they assume importance, particularly in terms of eliminating the gulf between the expectations of the electorate and the outcomes of government initiatives. 5.4.5 Developmental Function Civil servants establish appropriate development goals and priorities in areas such as education, health, communications, and others in order to achieve economic development and welfare state goals. They also develop and carry out appropriate development strategies and programmes for the advancement of the nation. Additionally, the civil services perform a variety of developmental duties, such as closing the digital divide and promoting commerce, industry, and innovative agricultural methods. The civil service manages government-owned businesses, industrial enterprises, and public utility services. 5.4.6 Administrative Adjudication: The civil services also perform quasi-judicial services by settling disputes between the state and the citizens.

For this purpose, the Administrative Tribunals with civil servants as judges are established. The Income Tax Appellate Tribunal, Industrial Tribunals, and Railway Rates Tribunals are some of the examples of such tribunals in India. These tribunals function outside the ordinary court system.

85 The proper discharge of this duty on the part of the civil servant requires qualities of a highly moral order, such as, presentation of integrity, fearlessness, and independence of thought and utterance. 5.5 Major Criticisms of Indian Civil Services The

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 239/416	SA	MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

Indian bureaucracy has been the subject of adverse criticism by both Englishmen and Indians.

Lord Curzon, the Viceroy of India (1899-1905), once compared the government of India to an elephant- very stately, very dignified, but very slow in its movements. Soon after becoming Prime Minister in the Interim Central Government in 1946, Jawaharlal Nehru observed at the Meerut session of the Indian National Congress '... the (civil) services were fossilised in their mental outlook. They were wedded to bygone and absolute methods and refused to move with the times...' Our civil service has not yet been able to play its role adequately. Since the mid-1970s, the public image of civil servants in India began to change, particularly in terms of their adherence to the ideals of civil service, such as impartiality, ntrality, and integrity. Citizens have grown increasingly dissatisfied with civil servants as they have failed to improve service delivery. It seriously lacks vitality, initiative, and imagination. It is so tied down to precedents and routines that it is unable and unwilling to think ahead and take responsibility. The following are the criticisms against the civil service today in India: • The successful performance of government officials' duties is hampered by numerous outdated rules and procedures. • There is the issue of tenure insecurity. In addition, random transfers are common. • The effectiveness of civil officials is hampered by extensive political influence. Besides, Sundaram (1997) added that the credibility of the civil service among the public has been eroding due to the growing unholy nexus between politicians, civil servants, and criminals. Besides, there has been a low level of honesty, transparency, and accessibility in administration. • Another flaw contributing to their poor performance is the fact that they reward dishonest and dishonourable employees while underpaying loyal ones. Rao cited that rewards for high performance are not available to civil servants, which de-motivates honest, hard-working and meritorious officers. • Irregular promotion and empanelment weaken their ethics, self-esteem, and public service principles. • There is a lack of proper openness and accountability mechanisms.

Ouriginal by Turnitin

86 • They are alienated from the public, and they have poor knowledge of what people desire. Singh explains that the changing needs of citizens are not served due to traditional work culture. According to Paranjape, despite the changes that occurred in most industries and professions, civil servants generally continue to be the same: hierarchical, insensitive, slow, and monopolistic. They failed to succeed in becoming a force for change in the shifting socio-economic environment. However, in this context, the various governments have made several attempts to address these issues. A number of committees have been established to investigate the civil service issues and make recommendations. The creation of the First Administrative Reforms Commission (ARC) in 1966 was one of their major attempts. The Fifth Central Pay Commission (1994-97) recommended a 30% reduction in existing central government staff. BN Yugandhar committee (2003) made an important observation that the training imparted to the officers was inadequate. The United Progress Alliance (UPA-I) administration appointed the Second Administrative Reforms Commission in 2005. It was charged with identifying the necessary improvements in civil service. The second ARC proposed reforms that would focus on replacing hierarchy with teamwork and adopting Key Performance Targets. It also advocated holding government officials accountable for the production of outputs, which implied a transition from an output-to-outcome style. 5.6 Conclusion Since British administration civil services in India have been updated and made operational. In contemporary India, the civil service plays a critical role in enforcing norms and policies. Rapid economic growth has resulted in a rise in the amount of available work. The mindset of civil servants must shift from one of the controllers to one of the facilitators and from one of the providers to one of enablers. To take on these new challenges, they must arm themselves with the skills and talents required. 5.7 Summing up ➢ The civil service is the foundation of a government because all governments require some type of administrative infrastructure in order to accomplish their goals.
87 ➢ The basic purpose of civil service is to increase administrative capability in order to carry out critical governmental activities. ➢ Prior to independence, the Indian administration's main objectives were to uphold peace and order and promote the expansion of the colonial economy. ➢ After independence, the function of civil servants has become more creative than sedative, and more positive than destructive. ➢ Some important functions of civil servants are: policymaking and implementation, providing welfare and protective services to the people, connecting bridges between the state and society, performing quasi-judicial services etc. ➢ A number of committees have been established to investigate the civil service issues and make recommendations, such as the First Administrative Reforms Commission in 1966, the BN Yugandhar Committee (2003), Second Administrative Reforms Commission in 2005 etc. ➢ However, despite the formation of many committees and the implementation of reforms, civil servants have yet to go far to reach our expectation. ➢ Old rules and practises, job insecurity, haphazard political influence transfers, ties between politicians and civil servants, irregular promotions, a lack of adequate openness and accountability mechanisms, and the monopolistic, slow-moving, hierarchical, and insensitive mindsets of the civil servants are just a few of the challenges facing the Indian civil service. 5.8 Glossary Accountability: principle according to which a person or institution is responsible for a set of duties and can be required to give an account of their fulfilment to an authority that is in a position to issue rewards or punishment. Good Governance: It refers to the welfare in governance and improving the quality of governance. It enables the government to provide equal opportunities and fair delivery of goods and services to the people who are most marginal in society. Good Governance is, among other things, participatory, transparent and accountable. It is also effective and equitable. And it promotes the rule of law. Good governance ensures that political, social, and economic priorities are based on broad consensus in society and that the voices of the poorest and the most vulnerable are heard in decision making over the allocation of development resources.
88 Policy: A set of ideas or a plan of what to do in particular situations that has been agreed to officially by a group of people, a business organization, a government, or a political party. 5.9 Model Questions Essay Type Questions: 1. Discuss the main duties of civil servants in British India. 2. Write an essay on the key functions of civil officials in India. 3. Critically evaluate the various obstacles to India's civil service's performance. Long Questions: 1. Evaluate the importance of civil service in democracies. 2. Discuss the various criticisms of civil service in India. 3. Discuss the recommendations of the Second Reforms Commission. Short Questions: 1. How can the civil service ensure good governance? 2. Briefly discuss the role of civil servants as a policy maker. 3. Point out the development function of civil service in India. 5.10 Further Readings and References A. R. Tyagi. (1958). The Indian Journal of Political Science , 19 (4), 349-356.

86% MATCHING BLOCK 242/416 SA Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx (D154785574)

Kumar, C. J. (2015). Civil Service Reforms in India: Policy and Perspectives. The International Journal of Political Science / Volume 1 Number 1 /

January - June 2015 , 1 (1). Maheswari, S. (1968). Indian Administrations. New Delhi: Orient Longman. Recent initiatives for administrative reform in India. (1997). Indian Journal of Public Administration , 43 (3), 554.
89 Reddy, M. R. (2019). Indian Civil Services and Their Changing Role in the Context of Globalisation- A Pragmatic Approach. International Journal of Research and Analytical Reviews , 6 (1), 2348 –1269. Sabharwal, M., & Berman, E. M. (2013). Public administration in South Asia India, Bangladesh, and Pakistan. New York: Taylor & Fancis Group. Singh, H., & Singh, P. (2011). Indian Administration. New Delhi: Pearson.
90 Block-III Unit I Block: III Personnel Management and Practices Unit: I Personnel Agencies: UPSC AND SPSC Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Personnel Agencies in India 1.3.1 Department of Personnel & Training 1.3.2 Recruitment Agencies 1.3.3 National Recruitment Agency (NRA) 1.4 Evolution of Public Service Commission 1.5 Recruitment rules 1.6 Constitutional Provisions for Union and State Public Service Commissions 1.6.1 Composition of UPSC 1.6.2 Removal of the members of UPSC 1.6.3 Public Service Commission (Union & State – UPSC): Functions 1.6.4 Independence of UPSC 1.7 Conclusion 1.8 Probable questions 1.9 Further Readings
91 1.1 Objectives After reading this unit, the learner would be able to: Understand about the personnel agencies in India Know the evolution of the Personnel Agencies in Indian context. Understand the role of Department of Personnel & Training Discuss about the composition and functions of National Recruitment Agency (NRA) Explain the structure and functions of Union/State Public Service commissions. 1.2 Introduction To meet the goal of the public service delivery system and the objectives of the Government personnel management system played the utmost important role. For the effective functioning of administration, the role of 'Personnel' is very significant. Thus 'Personnel Administration' is the key element of public administration. However, there is still a debate that the administration is the instrument at the hands of political executives, then

100% MATCHING BLOCK 240/416 W

44% MATCHING BLOCK 241/416 W

who are responsible for the governance of the democratic country. The personnel play the pivot role in this regard. The comprehensive objectives of public administration or the government to a large extent depend upon the personnel in the public organizations. Functions of the government, implementation of its policies and programmes, to reach the goal of public service delivery system can only be done through the personnel. Thus, the tone and quality of public administration mostly determined by the personnel working in public institutions. In India Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) for the central government and State Public Service Commission (SPSC), in the state level, as the advisory bodies assigned for the task of recruitment and selection of personnel to civil service. All these activities in relation to personnel are the responsibility of the Department of Personnel which is the Central Personnel Agency (

55% MATCHING BLOCK 243/416 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 244/416 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 245/416 W

CPA). In this module the role, evolution and functions of Personnel Agencies, i.e. UPSC-SPSC will be discussed. 1.3 Personnel Agencies in India 1.3.1 Department of Personnel & Training

97% MATCHING BLOCK 246/416 W

The role of the Department of Personnel & Training can be conceptually divided into two parts, In its large nodal role, it acts as the formulator of policy and the watch-dog of the Government ensuring that certain accepted standards and norms, as laid down by it, are followed by all Ministries/Departments, in the recruitment, regulation of service conditions, posting/transfers, deputation of personnel as well as other related issues. Towards this end, guidelines are issued by it for the benefit of all Ministries/Departments and it monitors the implementation of these guidelines. It also advises all organizations of the Central Government on issues of personnel Management. At a more immediate level, the Department has the 92 direct responsibility of being the cadre controlling authority for the IAS and the three Secretariat Services in the Central Secretariat. The Department also operates the Central Staffing Scheme under which suitable officers from All India Services and Group 'A' Central Services are selected and then placed in posts at the level of Deputy Secretary/Director and Joint Secretary, on the basis of tenure deputation. The Department also deal with cases of appointment to posts of Chairman, Managing Director, full-time functional Director/Member of the Board of Management of various Public Sector Undertakings/ Enterprises, Corporations, Banks and financial institutions. It also deals with the assignment of Indian experts to various developing countries. It is also responsible for formulation and coordination of training policies for the All India and Central Services and providing support for the capacity building of State Government officials. 1.3.2 Recruitment Agencies (UPSC, SPSC) The two organizations through which the Department ensures recruitment of personnel for the Government are the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) and the Staff Selection Commission (SSC). The former is constituted under a provision of the Constitution and is responsible for conducting examinations for appointment to the higher civil services and civil posts under the Union Government; including recruitment to the All India Services. There is a mandatory provision for consulting the Commission on all matters relating to methods of recruitment, principles to be followed in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on all disciplinary matters. The SSC is responsible for making recruitment to subordinate staff such as Assistants, Stenographers etc.

In the state level State Public Service Commission (SPSC) manages the recruitment of the personnel of the states. The structure and functions of the UPSC and SPSC will be discussed in the letter part of the unit. The role and functioning of the Union Public Service Commission are like that of a watch-dog of the merit system in India. It recruits and appoints all groups A, B, C, and D of all India services. It is also known as the central recruiting agency because its appointment is related to central governance. In the present time, with the rising competition in India, the working of the Union Public Service Commission has become quite challenging. It is an arduous task to filter merit for the smooth governance of the country, but the commission regularly picks a right hand for it. 1.3.3 National Recruitment Agency (NRA) The Union Cabinet chaired by the Prime Minister in 2020 has decided to set up a National Recruitment Agency (NRA). The proposed NRA will conduct a common preliminary examination for various recruitments in the central government. At present, candidates seeking government jobs have to appear for separate examinations conducted by multiple recruiting agencies for various posts. After the advent of the NRA, the whole process would be unified and will make the cumbersome process easy for students and the agencies.

External site that opens in a new window External site that opens in a new window
93 NRA is a testing agency which would conduct the Common Eligibility Examination (CET) for non- gazetted Group B and C posts. Initially it will conduct the recruitment examinations for Railway Recruitment Boards (RRBs), Institute of Banking Personnel Selection (IBPS) and Staff Selection Commission (SSC) and would gradually expand its operations. National Recruitment Agency will be a Society registered under the Societies Registration Act,1860. The NRA will be a specialist body bringing the state-of-the-art technology and best practices to the field of Central Government recruitment. However, the present recruitment agencies i.e, IBPS, RRB and SSC will remain in place. Based on the screening done at the CET score level, final selection for recruitment shall be made through separate specialised Tiers (II, III, etc.) of examination which shall be conducted by these respective recruitment agencies. Composition It will be headed by a Chairman of the rank of the Secretary to the Government of India. The

87% MATCHING BLOCK 247/416 W

NRA will have representatives from the Ministry of Railways, Ministry of Finance/Department of Financial Services, Staff Selection Commission (SSC), Railway Recruitment Boards (RRBs) and Institute of Banking Personnel Selection (IBPS). 1.4 Public Service Commission: Evolution

96% MATCHING BLOCK 248/416 W

Act 1919, which for the first time recognized the need for the establishment of a Public Service Commission in India. It was of the view that an expert body, free from political interference should be set up, entrusted with the task of recruitment of civil servants and regulation of their service matters.

In 1924,

75% MATCHING BLOCK 249/416 SA Hema S Pandey llm.docx (D142172933)

the Lee Commission again recommended that the Statutory Public Service Commission contemplated by the Government of India Act 1919, should be set up without delay

with the following functions: i. Recruitment of personnel for the public services and the establishment of proper standards of qualification for admission to these services. ii. Quasi-judicial functions connected with the disciplinary control and protection of the service. It was not until 1926 that the Public Service Commission was set up for the first time consisting of four members in addition to the Chairman.

75% MATCHING BLOCK 253/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

The functions of the Commission were advisory in nature.

93% MATCHING BLOCK 250/416 W

The first Round Table Conference held in London in 1930, the British Government in its Constitutional proposals of 1933 and the Joint Committee on Indian Constitution Reforms (1933-34) emphasised the establishment of Public Service Commission in provinces in addition to the Federal Public Service Commission. These suggestions found a concrete shape in the Government of India Act 1935 which envisaged a Public Service Commission for the Federation and a Provincial Public Service Commission for each province or group of provinces. They were entrusted with the functions of conducting examinations for appointment to the public services and the government was under the obligation to consult the commission on major matters concerning their conditions of service. With effect from 1stApril, 1937, the then Public Service Commission at the Centre became the Federal Public Service 94 Commission (FPSC). With the promulgation of the Constitution of India on January 26, 1950, the Federal Public Service Commission came to be known as Union Public Service Commission (UPSC). The objectives of the UPSC, in broad terms are to: • Conduct written examination and interview for the purpose of appointment to a specified group of civil services and posts of the Government of India. • Advise the Government in matters of framing rules in regard to methods of recruitment, principles of promotion, disciplinary aspects, certain conditions of services such as disability pension etc. 1.5

100% MATCHING BLOCK 251/416 W

Recruitment rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far. 1.6

Constitutional Provisions for Union and State Public Service Commissions As per Article 315 of the Indian Constitution (In Part XIV - Chapter II), it has mentioned
that,

89% MATCHING BLOCK 252/416 W

there shall be a Public Service Commission for the Union and a Public Service Commission for each State. The Parliament may by law provide for the appointment of Joint Public Service Commission if two or more states agree that there be one Public Service Commission for that group of States, and if a resolution to that effect is passed by the House or where there are two Houses, by each House of the Legislature of each of those States. The Union Public Service Commission, if requested to do so by the Governor of a State, may with the approval of the President, agree to serve all or any of the needs of the State. 1.6.1

Composition of UPSC The Constitution does not specifically provide or mention the strength of the Union Public Service Commission. But generally, it consists of nine to eleven members. The conditions are as follows: 1. A chairman who is appointed by the President of India. He

Ouriginal by Turnitin

88%	MATCHING BLOCK 254/416	SA	MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

holds office for a tenure of six years until he attains the age of 65 years, whichever is earlier would be considered.

95 2.

52%	MATCHING BLOCK 255/416	SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

The President of India also appoints other members of the commission. But half of the members of the commission must be those who have been a central government or state government servant or employee for at least ten years. 3. There is no specific qualification prescribed in the Constitution of India for constituting the Union Public Service Commission. 4. If the present chairman of the commission is unable to perform his functions or the office of the chairman is vacant, then the President may appoint any member of the commission as acting chairman of the commission. 1.6.2 Removal of Members of UPSC The President has powers to remove any member or chairman of the commission on the following grounds: 1. If the member of the commission has become insolvent or bankrupt. 2. If any member of the commission is engaged in paid employment other than his office. 3. If the President feels that the member is unfit to continue his office due to the reason of infirmity of mind or body. 4. The President may also remove any member of the commission, including the chairman, on the grounds of misbehaviour. Note: But in case of misbehaviour the President has to consult the matter with the Supreme Court for its advice and opinion. Any advice rendered by the Supreme Court shall be binding on the President. And the President is bound to consider the advice. 5. The chairman of the commission enjoys special privileges that he can be removed only by the President in the manner prescribed in the Constitution and not otherwise. State Public Service Commission: Process of appointment and Eligibility of members The Chairman and other members of the SPSC are appointed by the Governor of the State.

54%	MATCHING BLOCK 256/416	SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 257/416	SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

The Governor of State are empowered by the Constitution of India to determine the conditions of service of the Chairman and other members of the State Public Service Commission A member of the SPSC shall hold office for a term of six years or till the age of 62 years, whichever is earlier Any person who has once held the office as a member of a Public Service Commission is ineligible for reappointment to that office.

84%	MATCHING BLOCK 261/416	SA	CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

The
person to be appointed as the members of the and State Public Service Commissions should not hold any office of profit under the central or the state government.
96 1.6.3 Public Service Commission (Union & State – UPSC): Functions The Union Public Service Commission performs various functions as stipulated in Article 320 of the Indian Constitution.

92% MATCHING BLOCK 258/416 W

The functions of the Public Service Commission are as follows • It shall be the duty of the Union and State Public Service Commissions to conduct examinations for appointments to the services of the Union and the State" respectively. • It shall also be the duty of the Union Public Service Commissions, if requested by any two or more States to assist those States in framing and operating schemes of recruitment for any services for which candidates possessing special qualifications are required. • It shall be the duty of the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service Commission, as the case may be, to advise on the following matters (on which a Public Service Commission shall have to be consulted) namely on: a) All matters relating to methods of recruitment to civil services and

for civil services and for civil

98% MATCHING BLOCK 259/416 W

posts; b) The principles to be followed in making appointments to civil services and posts and in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on the suitability of candidates for such appointments, promotion

and

95% MATCHING BLOCK 260/416 W

transfers; c) All disciplinary matters affecting a person serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State in a civil capacity, including memorials or petitions relating to such matters; d) Any claim by or in respect of a person who is serving or has served under the Government of India or the Government of a State, in a civil capacity, that any costs incurred by him in defending legal proceedings instituted against rum in respect of acts done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 262/416 W

A Public Service Commission shall also advice on any other matter which the President, or the case may be, the Governor of the State, may refer to them. It has further been provided that the President, in respect of the All-India services and also in respect

of

100% MATCHING BLOCK 263/416 W

other services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union (and the Governor in respect to other services and posts in connection with the affairs of states if

98% MATCHING BLOCK 264/416 W

necessary) a Public Service Commission to be consulted. It is pertinent to note that a Public Service Commission need not be consulted in respect of appointment or posts in the services in favour of any citizen belonging to the

88% MATCHING BLOCK 265/416 W

backward class or the manner in which claims of the members of the scheduled castes or tribes will be taken into consideration for appointment under Union or a State (in terms of Art. 335). Through an Act of the Parliament (or Legislature of a State), additional functions may also be extended to a Public Service Commission. The Public Service Commissions are required to present annually to the President (or Governor as the case may be), a report as to the work done by the Commission and such a 97 report shall be caused to be laid before each House of Parliament (or the Legislature of the State), together with a memorandum explaining the cases of non-acceptance by the Government of the advice of the Commission and the reasons thereof. 1.6.4 Independence of UPSC The members of the Union Public Service Commission enjoy security of tenure. They cannot be removed from the office on any other ground than specified in the Constitution.

70% MATCHING BLOCK 268/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

The salaries and allowances of the members are charged on the consolidated fund of India.

The chairman of commission after removal or retirement is not eligible for any other government job. Whereas other members of the commission are also not eligible to hold any central or state government office but can become chairman of the Union Public Service Commission or State Public Service Commission. 1.7

95% MATCHING BLOCK 266/416 W

Conclusion This is to note that the Commission have a duty, under Article 323 of the Constitution to present annually to the President a Report as to the work done by the Commission and on receipt of such report, the president shall cause a copy there of together with the Memorandum explaining, as respect the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before each House of the Parliament.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 267/416 W

The constitution provides for the establishment of a Joint State Public Service Commission for multiple states. Whereas the Union Public Service Commission and SPSC are created underneath the Indian constitution, the JSPSC could be constituted by a parliamentary act in responding to requests from state governments. Hence, the JSPSC is more of a statutory than just a constitutional entity. The Public Service Commissions are the fundamental framework that guarantees and defends the meritocracy of Indian government services. However, various modifications and reforms may be implemented to improve the efficiency of these commissions. Several improvements that can be implemented are as follows: 1, The Commission must act as a think-tank on matters pertaining. 2, The necessity of Decentralization. 3, Stay up to date with the times. 4, Participation of universities and research institutes in the operations of the State Public Service Commission and UPSC. The Public Service Commissions have indisputably done their duties with maximum effectiveness and would proceed to do so at a far greater level of competency if such changes are implemented. 1.8 Probable questions 1. Discuss the evolution of Publisc Service Commission in India. 2. Write a note on Personnel Agencies in India.
98 3. Analyse the Constitutional Provisions for Union and State Public Service Commissions 4. Evaluate the Composition and Functions of UPSC 5. Do you consider UPSC is an independent body? Argue your case. 6. Write a note on composition and functions of State Public Service Commission. 1.9 Further Readings Ramesh K Arora and Rajni Goyal ed. (2013), Indian Public Administration Institutions and Issues. (Third Edition), New Age International Publishers, New Delhi. T.N. Chaturvedi ed. (1989), Training in

52% MATCHING BLOCK 271/416 SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

Public administration: The Changing. Perspectives, IIPA, New Delhi. S.R. Maheshwari (1989), Indian Administration (4th Edition), Orient Longman,New Delhi

Mathur, Hari Mohan.1981,' Training of Civil Servants in India,' Training Division,Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms.Government ofIndia, New Delhi. Hari Mohan Mathur ed., (1982), Issues in In-Service Training, lIPA, New Delhi. Saxena, AP. (Ed),1985, Training in Government- Objectives and Opportunities, lIPA, New Delhi
https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1 Unit II Block: III Personnel Management and Practices Unit: II Recruitment in All India Services Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Evolution of Recruitment System (Reforms) 1.4 Recruitment System
99 11.1.1 1.5 All India Services 11.1.1 1.6 Mechanisation - Project SAMPERA 11.1.1 1.7 Recruitment Rules 1.8 Main Features of the System of Recruitment 1.9 Conclusion 11.1.1 11.1.1 11.1.1 1.1 Objectives This unit will help the learners to understand – The major reforms on recruitment system The Recruitment rules The basic features of the recruitment system Project SAMPERA 1.2 Introduction 100

63% MATCHING BLOCK 269/416 W

The All-India Services as provided in the Constitution are the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service,

the successor services to the ICS and IPS of the British days. Recently, a few more All- India Services had been added in the technical fields, viz., Indian Medical Service, Indian Statistical Service, Indian Engineering Service.
The

87% MATCHING BLOCK 270/416 W

All – India Services are common to the Union and the States and are composed

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 273/416	SA	sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

of officers who are in the exclusive employ of neither

and may at any time be at the disposal of either. In a Federation usually, the Central Government and the Governments of constituent States have separate services for the administration of subjects falling within their respective spheres of jurisdiction. The creation of All-India Services in our country is, therefore, something peculiar. Dr. Ambedkar, while explaining reasons for making this extraordinary provision for the creation of All- India Services had remarked, " The Indian administration, though, a dual polity, will have dual Service, but with one exception.

97%	MATCHING BLOCK 272/416	W

It is recognized that in every country there are certain posts in its administrative set-up which might be called strategic from the point of view of maintaining the standard of administration. There can be no doubt that the standard of administration depends upon the calibre of the civil servants who are appointed to these strategic posts. The Constitution provides that without depriving the States of their right to form their own Civil Services there shall be an All-India Service recruited on All-India basis with common qualifications, with uniform

91%	MATCHING BLOCK 274/416	SA	Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

scale of pay and members of which alone could be appointed to these strategic posts throughout the Union." 1.3

Evolution of Recruitment System (Reforms) The recruitment system of the civil servants in India has evolved over the years. The recruitment process has undergone many changes, especially post-independence to reflect the administration's requirements from time to time. Several commissions and committees were created to make recommendations on different aspects of recruitment. These recommendations are included in the Report on Public Administration by A.D. Gorwala, 1951; Report on the Public Services (Qualifications for Recruitment) Committee, 1956 – alternatively called Dr A. Ramaswami Mudaliar Committee Report;

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 275/416	SA	Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

Report on Indian and State Administrative Services and Problems of District Administration by V.T. Krishnamachari, 1962;

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 276/416	SA	dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

ARC's Report on Personnel Administration,1969; Report of the Committee on Recruitment Policy and Selection Methods, 1976 – 101

a.k.a the D.
S. Kothari Committee Report; Report of

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 277/416	SA	sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

the Committee to Review the Scheme of the Civil Services Examination, 1989 –

also known as the

70% MATCHING BLOCK 278/416 SA dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

Satish Chandra Committee Report; Report of the Civil Services Examination Review Committee, 2001, also known as Professor Yoginder K. Alagh Committee Report; Report of the Committee on Civil Service Reforms also known as the Hota Committee Report, 2004. A.D.Gorwala's Report (Report on Public Administration, 1951) recommended that recruitment to any government-grade must be done in such a fashion that there is no scope for patronage; it also proposed that this principle should hold good for the temporary staff as well. Dr A. Ramaswami Mudaliar Committee Report, 1956, on Public Services (Qualifications for Recruitment) proposed that a University degree should be the minimum educational qualification for recruitment into the higher services and ministerial & secretarial services, a University degree need not be mandatory. This Committee also recommended that the upper age bar for the highest administrative and executive services ought to be between the years of 21 and 23. The Krishnamachari Committee Report (

83% MATCHING BLOCK 280/416 SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

Report on Indian and State Administrative Services and Problems of District Administration by V.T. Krishnamachari, 1962) assessed the recruitment processes to Class I and Class II services in the State Governments and recommended that recruitments should be conducted yearly. The first ARC stressed on the importance of proper personnel planning and also management of cadre. It suggested that recruitment to the IAS/IFS

83% MATCHING BLOCK 279/416 W

and other non-technical Class I services should be made only through one competitive examination. It also recommended that the upper age bar for taking the civil services competitive examinations should be raised to 26 years. The First ARC further recommended that direct recruitment to Class II posts of Section Officers should be stopped and these posts may be filled by promotion of Assistants. The Commission also recommended that recruitment to clerical and other secretarial posts should be through simple objective tests. The Commission recommended the establishment of Recruitment Boards for the appointment of Class III & IV personnel. The D.S.

70% MATCHING BLOCK 283/416 SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

Kothari Committee Report on Recruitment Policy and Selection Methods, 1976, inter-alia recommended a drastic change in the system of examination. They recommended a two-stage examination process – a preliminary examination followed by a main examination. This Committee also proposed changes in the training process for the civil services. The Fifth Central Pay Commission suggested that employment on contract basis should be encouraged and Government employees should have the right to 102 retain their lien for 2 years if they wish to move to the private sector. The Civil Services Examination Review Committee, 2001 (chaired by Professor Y. K. Alagh) recommended many changes in the structure of the examination system for recruitment to the civil services. It favoured assessing the candidates in a common subject rather than on optional subjects. The Committee on Civil Service Reforms (Hota Committee Report, 2004) made recommendations, among other things on recruitment and recommended that the age for entrants to the higher civil services should be between 21-24 years with a relaxation of 5 years for SC/STs and 3 years for OBCs. The Hota Committee also suggested that aptitude and leadership tests may be introduced for selection and that probationers may be allowed one month after commencement of training to exercise their option for Services. 1.4 Recruitment System Under Article 320 of the Constitution of India, the Commission are, inter-alia, required to be consulted on all matters relating to recruitment to civil services and posts. Recruitment is made by one of the following three methods: 1. Direct Recruitment; 2. Promotion; and 3. Transfer Direct Recruitment is conducted broadly under the following two methods: a) Recruitment by competitive examination. b) Recruitment by selection through interview. Recruitment by Competitive Examination -Under the Constitution one of the functions of the Commission is to conduct examinations for appointment to Civil Services/Posts of the Union. In addition, competitive examinations are also held by the Commission under arrangements with the Ministry of Defence for entry to certain Defence Services, through the National Defence Academy, Indian Military Academy, Naval Academy, Air Force Academy and the Officers Training Academy. The Commission usually conducts over a dozen examinations every year on an all India basis. These include Examinations for recruitment to services/posts in various fields, such as Civil Services, Engineering, Medical and Forest Service, etc. 103 For an overview of examinations regularly held by the Commission. See "Overview of Examination" under this Chapter. At present the Union Public Service Commission conduct their examinations at numerous venues spread over 42 regular centers throughout the country. Recruitment by Selection is made by the following methods: 1. By Interview Only - Where the number of applicants is very large, it is not practicable to call for Interview all the applicants who fulfill the minimum eligibility conditions prescribed. The Commission, therefore, shortlist the candidates to be called for the interview on the basis of certain pre-determined criteria related to the job. A large number of recruitment cases is handled by the Commission by the method (1) above. 2. By Recruitment Test Followed By Interview -In this category, there are two types of procedure followed: a) An objective-type written and/or practical test to test the skill of the candidates followed by Interview, the final selection being decided by Interview, aided by the performance of the candidates in the written test and/or practical test. b) An objective-type written and/or practical test to screen candidates to be called for interview, the final selection being decided by Interview only. 11.1.1 1.5

96% MATCHING BLOCK 281/416 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 282/416 W

All India Services The All India Services Act, 1951 and Rules and Regulations framed thereunder regulate the recruitment and conditions of service in respect of the All India Services viz. Indian Administrative Service, Indian Police Service and Indian Forest Service. As far as direct recruitment to the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service Examination are concerned, it is done through the Civil Services Examination and for the Indian Forest Service through the Indian Forest Service Examination held by the Commission. The relevant Rules and Regulations provide that 33% of the vacancies in the IAS/IPS/IFS should be filled by promotion from amongst the officers of the State Service in consultation with the Commission. The Selection Committee presided over by Chairman/Member of the Commission consists of senior Government representatives of the Central Government and the State. 104 11.1.1 1.6 Mechanisation - Project SAMPERA The Commission have recently undertaken a project called "SAMPERA" (Screening and Mechanised Processing of Examination and Recruitment Applications). A simplified single sheet common application form for all the examinations has been devised which will be scanned by using OMR/ICR technology. The implementation of this project will mainly help in high speed scanning of data from forms eliminating manual entry. Other benefits will be accurate and faster generation of Admit Cards, Attendance lists with photo replica and signature facsimile of each candidate, and Error-free list of doubtful cases. The main aim of this project is to cope with the increasing volume of applications through innovations and mechanised handling so as to reduce the processing time and send communications faster to minimised errors. The cases of impersonation/malpractices will also be eliminated and wasteful expenditure will be reduced. 11.1.1 1.7 Recruitment Rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 284/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

The recruitment to All India Services and Central Services Group A &

B is made through

88% MATCHING BLOCK 286/416 SA Service Law project 16A047.docx (D72573240)

the Union Public Service Commission on the basis of the annual Civil Services Examination, a competitive civil service exam. The Combined Competitive Examination for the Civil Services is conducted in different centers spread all over the country. However, recruitment to the Indian Forest Service is through a different 105 procedure. Entry into the State Civil Services is through a competitive examination conducted by every state public service commission. 1.8 Main Features of the System of Recruitment The main features of the system of recruitment to all India services and central services may be summarized as under the following heads: 1. Eligibility or Qualification: The Candidates applying for the examination should ensure that they fulfill all eligibility condition for admission to examination. The recruiting agency take up verification of eligibility conditions with reference to original documents only after the candidate has qualified for interview/Personality Test. The eligibility of candidates includes age limit and educational qualifications. As such a candidate must have attained the age of 21 years and not more than 30 years of age. The upper age limit prescribed above will be relaxable up to a maximum of five years if a candidate belongs to a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe or Other Backward Classes; up to a maximum of five years if a candidate had ordinarily been domiciled in the State of Jammu & Kashmir during a particular period and up to a maximum of three years in the case of Defence Services personnel disabled in operations during hostilities with any foreign country or in a disturbed area and released as a consequence thereof. Relaxation for upper age limit is also granted upto a maximum of 10 years in the case of blind, deaf-mute and Orthopedically handicapped persons. A candidate must hold a graduate degree from a recognized university. Candidates having professional and technical qualifications recognized by the government are also eligible. 2. Preliminary Examination: The Preliminary Examination is held in May/June. Preliminary Examination will consist of two papers of Objective type (multiple choice questions). Paper I is of general studies (150marks) and paper II (300marks) is from a selected list of optional subjects for preliminary examinations. The question papers are set in Hindi as well as in English. The course content for the optional subjects will be of the degree level. Each paper is of two hours duration. Blind candidates are allowed an extra time of 20 minutes for each paper. Preliminary Examination is meant to serve as a screening test only; the marks obtained by the candidates who are declared qualified for admission to the Main Examination will not be counted for determining their final order of merit. As many as 23 subjects are listed for optional subject for preliminary examination.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 285/416 W

95% MATCHING BLOCK 288/416 SA RamaRao Bonagani.docx (D131384210)

106 Only those candidates who are declared by the Commission to have qualified in the Preliminary Examination in a year will be eligible for admission to the Main Examination of that year. 3. Main Examination: Main Examination is intended to assess the overall intellectual traits and depth of understanding of candidates rather than merely the range of their information and memory. It consists of a written examination and an interview test. The written examination will consist of 9 papers of conventional essay type in the selected subjects for main examination. Each paper is of 3 hours duration. Blind candidates will, however be allowed an extra time of thirty minutes at each paper. Papers for Main Examination Subjects Marks Paper I One of the Indian languages to be selected by the candidate from the Languages included in the Eighth Schedule of the Constitution. 300 Paper II English 300 Paper III Essay 200 Paper IV and V General Studies 300 each Paper VI, VII, VIII, & IX Any two subjects to be selected from the list of the optional subjects. Each subject will have two papers. 300 each The paper on Indian Language and English is of Matriculation or equivalent standard and is of qualifying nature. The marks obtained in these papers are not counted for ranking. The candidates from North-East India are exempted from this paper. Further, there are certain restrictions on combination of various papers. The question papers other than the Language papers are set both in Hindi and English. 4. Interview Test : Candidates who obtain minimum qualifying marks in the written part of the Main Examination shall be called for an interview. It is usually conducted in the month of April/May every year. The interview carries 300 marks with no minimum qualifying marks. Thus, the total marks come to 2300 (2000 written and 300 interview).

95% MATCHING BLOCK 287/416 W

The interview is intended to judge the mental calibre of a 107 candidate. In broad terms this is really an assessment of not only his intellectual qualities but also social traits and his interest in current affairs etc. Marks thus obtained by the candidates in the Main Examination (written part as well as interview) would determine their final ranking. Candidates will be allotted to the various Services keeping in view their ranks in the examination and the preferences expressed by them for the various Services and posts. There is also a medical test, especially rigid for IPS. Out of the final candidates selected top rankers are appointed as IAS officers. Once appointed, all probationary officers of the All India and Central Services will have to undergo compulsory foundation training. Note : Candidates will not be allowed to offer the following combinations of subjects : Political Science & International Relations and Public Administration Commerce & Accountancy and Management Anthropology and Sociology Mathematics and Statistics Agriculture and Animal Husbandry & Veterinary Science Management and Public Administration Of the Engineering subjects, viz., Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering and Mechanical Engineering– not more than one subject. Animal Husbandry & Veterinary Science and Medical Science. 1.9 Conclusion In order to attract the best talent a detailed procedure of examination followed by interview is followed. Union Public Service Commission, which conducts the examination all over India, derives its powers from the Constitution of India which has taken care to ensure its effective and impartial functioning free from any pressure and influence. The system and its pattern have been reviewed and revised many a time after Independence. Every effort is done to make the examination and the recruitment system as perfect as possible so that most promising youth gets attracted to the challenging career and the services can move in tandem with the changing times. Generally, the Civil Services examination consists of two rounds of written examination and interview. On the basis of performance in the preliminary round of written examination candidates get entry into the main examination. The numbers of candidates who are permitted to appear in the main examination are twelve to thirteen times of the number of vacancies in the year. After main examination the last stage of recruitment process takes place.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 289/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

The Government of India's All-India Services are a part of the Civil Services, which make up the country's permanent bureaucracy. The All India Services, which include the IAS (Indian Administrative Service), IPS (Indian Police Service), and IFoS (Indian Forest Service), are often regarded as the backbone of the Indian administrative establishment. As the name implies, all-India level services are provided at the national level, with personnel appointed by the central government after passing the UPSC examination. However, distinct state level cadres can apportion their jobs at both the central and state government levels. 1.10

Probable Questions 1. Write a brief note on the major reforms of the Recruitment System of All India Services. 2. Discuss briefly the basic features of Recruitment System. 3. Evaluate the Recruitment system after 2004. 4. Write a short not on project SAMPERA 1.11 Further Readings Ramesh K Arora and Rajni Goyal ed. (2013), Indian Public Administration Institutions and Issues. (Third Edition), New Age International Publishers, New Delhi.

 T.N. Chaturvedi ed. (1989), Training in

52% MATCHING BLOCK 290/416 SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

Public administration: The Changing. Perspectives, IIPA, New Delhi. S.R. Maheshwari (1989), Indian Administration (4th Edition), Orient Longman,New Delhi

Mathur, Hari Mohan.1981,' Training of Civil Servants in India,' Training Division,Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms.Government ofIndia, New Delhi. Hari Mohan Mathur ed., (1982), Issues in In-Service Training, lIPA, New Delhi. Saxena, AP. (Ed),1985, Training in Government- Objectives and Opportunities, lIPA, New Delhi https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1 Unit III 1.35 BLOCK : III Personal Management and Practices 1.36 Unit : III Training of IAS and IPS Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Training in India: A Historical perspective 1.4 Training Policy 1.5 Creation of National and State Training Commission

110 1.37 1.6 Training - Indian Administrative Service Officers (IAS) 1.38 1.7 Mid-Career/In-service training for IAS officers 1.39 1.8 Training-Indian police service (IPS) 1.9 Conclusion 1.10 Probable Questions 1.11 Further Readings 1.1 Objectives The objective of this topic is to discuss – The Historical background of training The training policy About the National and State Training Commission How IAS and IPS officers are trained Institutional and professional training in various fields 1.40 1.41 1.2 Introduction The administrative change in most common feature of the developing countries. In fact, the whole process of development administration, which has as its dominant premise a directed, planned and goal - oriented change in the society,

84% MATCHING BLOCK 291/416 SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

assumes that enhancing the capability and capacity of the administrators is a requisite, if not a prerequisite, of any worthwhile attempt at modernization.

The present Indian civil service structure, which evolved and matured during the British rule, plays considerable stress on preparing civil servants for the jobs that they have to perform in varied segments of national life. The present chapter examines a few important issue - areas of civil service and against that background, discusses the pattern of training for

83% MATCHING BLOCK 292/416 SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

two all India Services - The Indian Administrative Service and the Indian Police Service. 1.42 1.3 Training in India: A historical perspective Under the East India Company, the services were categorised on a rudimentary basis under covenanted and uncovenanted services. The controlling authorities of the East India Company were the Board of 111 Control and the Court of Directors. The latter body was the decision - making authority and each Director had the power to nominate one candidate to the covenanted civil service. This category consisted of all superior posts and was meant only for the Britishers. The uncovenanted category consisted of Indians, selected on the basis of competitive examinations in India or in England. However, a scrutiny of the available literature on this subject Before 1800, there was no systematic provision for training the civil servants, either reveals that a working knowledge of accounts was considered essential. Warren Hastings (1772-1785) had also proposed that the Company started training its servants in Persian , the official language . On 1 January, civil servants be taught languages and European studies before leaving for India. In 1790, a proposal was approved and a notification issued that each civil servant would in Council and the several languages which were necessary for the discharge of office have to be acquainted with the laws and regulations enacted by the Governor - General work. Marquis Wellesley (1760-1842) foreshadowed a new epoch in the history of training. He was of the opinion that the functions of the Company were increasing and the civil servants were not competent to handle the new chores. He put forth his opinion quite categorically when he said that the superior officers in the districts would rather keep these untrained personnel unemployed rather than having the work mismanaged and bungled. He made hasty arrangements for their training and his efforts materialised when the Court of Directors sanctioned the setting up of the Fort William College. Explaining the need for setting up the college, he said on 10 July 1800. The Fort William College was set up on 10 August 1800 in Calcutta. The Company decided that the next institute be set up in London so that it could be closely monitored. Hence in 1809, the East India College moved to Haileybury and established The Haileybury College It was abolished on 31 January 1858. Besides, the defects in the working of the college, the Act of 1853 and the Macaulay Report of 1854 led to its termination. The Charter Act of 1853 The trainees deputed to the college were mostly nominees of the Court of Directors . The Act of 1853 abolished the system of patronage and introduced the system of competitive examination as the basis of recruitment .

92% MATCHING BLOCK 294/416 SA RamaRao Bonagani.docx (D131384210)

For this purpose , a Civil Service Commission was set up in 1854 in London and competitive examinations were started in 1855. Hence, the college seemed an anomaly in the changed circumstances. Training for the civil servants recruited in UK was of two years - one year in England and one year's district training in India. For those recruited in India, the training spell in UK was of two years. Training in England was imparted in the four British universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin and London. The 112 subjects that were taught were classical and provincial languages, Indian law, history, economics, British history and constitutional law. At the end, there was an examination and the probationer were sent to India for Geld training, District training of one year gave the trainee a thorough grounding in the practical aspects of administrative work and village life. He was attached to the district Collector and given a thorough grounding in magisterial work, administration of revenue laws and survey and settlement. After this spell, the trainee received his first posting. The Royal Commission (Islington Commission) 1912, recommended that the training British universities be increased to three years, with emphasis on legal training. The commission also recommended the holding of an interprovincial conference of trainers. For the first time, it talked of interchange of ideas among trainers " by letting the men see on the spot, each other's training methods. From World War I to 1940, this was the pattern of training. In 1940, training in was stopped. A camp training school at Dehradun was set up in 1941 to train England recruits between 1941 and 1944. The rich legacy of administrative training during the British rule was substantially backed up and buttressed by the systematic efforts made after independence. Significant support to civil service training came with the commencement of planned development programmes in the country in 1951 when the First Five Year Plan was launched. Soon at was realized that the process of socio - economic development required the building up of cadres of trained administrators in all branches of the administrative system so that they could handle the new challenging tasks with increased competence and with an attitudinal orientation which would be more positively disposed to the process of development in the context of broader political , social and economic goals . A number of training institutes were set up at the national level . The foremost effort was the reorganization of the National Academy of Administration , now christened Lal Bahadur Shastri National Academy of Administration , at Mussoorie . Efforts were also made by the states to set up training institutions . The Home Ministry in the early 1950s addressed the states asking them to set up their own training institutes . The States Reorganisation Act of 1956 also made the state governments responsible for training ter civil servants . At that time , only two states had their own training institutions , UP (at Allahabad) and Bihar (at Ranchi) . Rajasthan was the third state to set up its training institute in 1957 , which is now called the Harish Chandra Mathur Rajasthan State Institute of Public Administration . Soon after , state after state set up their own training institutes . 1.4 Training Policy Most developing countries have failed to formulate a " systemic " policy that would promote integration of training with the rest of the public administrative system . There is conspicuous absence of clarity of 113 priorities , strategies and foci in the training enterprise . As a result , the training system in these countries has been characterized by ad hocism . India's position is somewhat better than the one prevailing in most other emergent nations but , even here , no attempt has been made to integrate training with the macro level planning effort . Whatever references one finds in the various plan documents are , at best , " indicative " in character , and these broad guidelines have not been adequately operationalized at the middle - range and micro levels . There was a clear need , therefore , for a holistic national training policy in India , which could spell out in detail , the objectives , long - term and short - term priorities , foci , strategies , content , methods , organization , evaluation and utilization of training and the synthesis of training with the broader socio - cultural , economic , technological and administrative environment of the country . The National Training Policy was formulated in 1996. It stipulates that training programmes should focus on evolving the attributes of commitment , responsiveness , awareness and accountability . For the purpose of imparting appropriate training , the civil services are divided into the following three levels : (a) The lower level functionaries of Group ' D ' and the lower stages of Group ' C services . (b) The supervisory and the middle management / administrative level (Group B ; lower stage of Group ' A ' , and higher stage of Group ' C ') . (c) Group ' A ' services and the All - India Services comprising the administrative and managerial levels . The National Training Policy envisages that each department should spend 1.5 percent of its annual budget on training . 1.43 1.5 Creation of National and State Training Commissions As already pointed out , in India , the Training Division at the central level keeps a continuous liaison with a large number of national and state level training institutions It also funds and sponsors several training programmes. Nevertheless , the Training Division's impact on the total training structure of the country is at best marginal . This is bound to be the case in a federal set - up where the major initiative for administrative training at regional and local levels rests with the state governments . As a result , state governments do not feel obliged to follow the guidelines of the central government in matters of training , unless these are backed by financial assistance . To canalize the training efforts being made at the central and the state leve a suggestion may be made here for the creation of new coordinating institutional form of a permanent National Training Commission headed by the Prime Minister who is the Minister for 114 Personnel , with the Joint Secretary , Training , as its Member Secretary Of course , continuing leadership will be provided by the State Minister for The commission should have permanent representatives from the Ministries Planning , Finance , Education , Agriculture , Industries and other major departments . Representatives of the Union Public Service Commission , public enterprises and state governments could also be made members of the commission . The commission should ir monitoring them in an effective manner . Although its character will be " advisory " , at as the apex organization for the formulation of national training policy and plans , and be commission's advice , in matters of allocation of financial resources , functional specialization of national and state level training institutions , setting up of new training istitutions and expansion of the existing ones , should be accorded utmost respect by de government , while making decisions in the realm of training systems . The linking of inancial assistance with programmatic development will enable the National Training Commission to influence the direction of development of the various training institutions the national and state levels . Needless to mention , such an effort at coordination will have to be supported by a massive investment in training . The present status of training coordination at the state level is even less effective than that prevailing at the central level . There is a manifest lack of integration in policy , planning , administration , foci , strategies , content and methodology of training at the sate , district and local levels . This problem can be overcome only when a State Training Board in each state is created by the respective state governments . These boards will be mutatis mutandis (with necessary charges) on the suggested pattern of the National Training Commission and would maintain continuous interaction and liaison with it . A State Training Board would be responsible for effecting horizontal , as well as vertical , -ordination in the training structure and would also facilitate the integration of the training functions with the personnel system as well as with the broader administrative system . 1.44 1.6 Training - Indian Administrative Service Officers (IAS) The candidates who are recommended by the commission (UPSC) to join the Lal Bahadur Shashtri National Academy of Administration (LBSNAA), Mussorie, Uttrakhand where they meet their colleagues for the first time. The total duration of the training period of IAS officers is 2 years which is divided into: Foundation Course: All the candidates who are recommended for Grade A posts including IAS, IPS and IFS are invited to join a 3-month-foundation course at LBSNAA. Thereafter, candidates of different services join their respective academies for training. While IFS join Foreign Services Institute in New Delhi, IRS officers join the National Academy of Direct Taxes, Nagpur and IAS officers have to stay back at LBSNAA.

115 Phase 1: Starting with a 15-week training program at LBSNAA, Phase 1 training also includes Bharat Darshan which is an all India tour program for IAS officers. The academic module includes Policymaking, land management, soft skills, project management, national security, e-gov, etc. They start their day at 6 AM in the morning with exercise drills and then attend lectures followed by cultural activities in the evening. Bharat Darshan: In phase 1 training, the IAS probationers are divided into small groups and are taken on a tour of India. This is part of the training program for them to experience the rich cultural diversity and heritage of India. District Training: It is a year-long training at the district level where the officers study the administrative set up in a particular district by being a part of it. Phase 2: The phase 2 starts with sharing their experiences of the Phase 1 training program with their colleagues. Discussion sessions where the officers articulate their thoughts on various developmental challenges and issues and the ways to resolve them are held during this period. Special sessions by distinguished subject matter experts are also held for them as a part of the learning exercise. Assistant Secretaryship: After completing the induction training session, the officers join their respective deputation. They work under the joint secretary in the ministries for a few months. Apart from the induction training for direct recruits, LBSNAA also holds induction training for the officers promoted from the State Civil Services to the IAS. Also, mid-career training programs are held for upskilling bureaucrats. The Kiran Aggarwal Committee constituted by the Department of Personnel and Training (DoPT) has recommended that the total training period for IAS officers be brought down from two years to one-and- a-half years. The step was suggested in view of the strong feedback received from recent batches of IAS officers about the relative sub-optimal effectiveness of attachments in the district and the relatively higher utility of independent charges for on-the-job learning. 1.45 1.7 Mid-Career/In-service training for IAS officers The Mid Career Training Programme was initiated in 2007 with the aim of imparting structured in-service training to IAS officers to prepare them for higher levels of responsibilities. Spanning three phases, viz. Phase-III, Phase-IV and Phase-V training programmes. The programme was initially outsourced to various national/ international institutions for a period of three years. Since 2010, the Academy (LBSNAA) has been mandated the responsibility of designing and delivering each of these courses.

116 Under the present system, one week in-service training programme is open to AIS officers (IAS, IPS & IFoS), officers working under the Central Staffing Scheme and officers of CSS/CSSS of the level of DS/Sr. PPS and above level officer. Training is imparted on a wide range of subjects and the topics of training may differ from year to year. All officers who are posted abroad are exempted from the in-service training programmes only for the period of their posting abroad. All the eligible officers are required to attend training programmes in accordance with the slots given to them unless they are specifically exempted or slotted for mid career training. Officers eligible for training are slotted by the Training Division, Department of Personnel and Training, Government of India, to programmes in accordance with their options (if any). The aim Phase-III mid-service training is - To equip officers who have completed seven to nine years of service for effective transition to strategy formulation and its implementation. The Objective of the Course is to make the officer able: To appreciate contemporary developments in political economy at the national and global level To equip officers with tools, skills and knowledge that will help them achieve 'excellence in implementation' of programs. To design and implement BPR in Government and leveraging IT to improve public service delivery To strengthen communication, inter-personal and team-building skills and appreciate the centrality of values in governance. The aim Phase-III mid-service training is - To equip officers who have completed fifteen to sixteen years of service for effective transition to policy formulation and better implementation. The Objective of the Course is to make the officer able to: Appreciate contemporary developments in political economy at the global and national level, Understand the process of public policy formulation, analysis and evaluation, Enhance domain knowledge in the context of public policy, Strengthen leadership and negotiation skills, and, Appreciate the centrality of values in governance. The aim Phase-III mid-service training is - To equip officers who have completed twenty-six to twenty- eight years of service for effective transition to strategy formulation and its implementation. The Objective of the Course is to make the officer able to: Develop a wider global and national perspective in order to formulate strategies to meet future challenges Understand the importance of inter-sectoral policy design and implementation Provide effective leadership in her work environment Reinforce service networks essential for policy formulation and implementation

117 1.46 1.8 Training-Indian police service (IPS) The Ministry of Home Affairs of the Government of India , which is the cadre - controlling authority of the Indian Police Service (IPS) , is responsible for the training of the IPS . Training for the IPS is divided into categories similar to those for the IAS , viz . induction training and in - service training . Induction training for the IPS is divided into the following three phases : 1. Foundational , 2. Institutional or Professional Training , and 3. District or Field Training. 4. Phase II training (1 month): Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel National Police Academy (SVPNPA), Hyderabad The foundation course is held at the LSBNAA together with all the other civil services recruits. Then they move on to the phase I part of the training. This is also called the Basic Course. This is conducted at the Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel National Police Academy (SVPNPA or just NPA) at Hyderabad. The chief aim of the basic course is to build capacity for the probationers to meet the unique challenges in the field. The objectives of the basic course are: • Build capacity through the matrix of sensitization, orientation and competency. • Impart professional knowledge and understanding. • Develop professional, organizational and community skills. • Nurture human values, right attitudes and appropriate behaviour in professional and personal life and to inculcate sensitivity. • Develop overall personality (character, self-discipline, habits, soft skills, norms, etiquette, values, etc.). • Transform the probationers into leaders of police stations and police districts. The second phase was about enhancing knowledge about the state cadres they are allocated to including learning the state language. This training takes place at State Police Academies which lasts for a period of three weeks. This phase also includes a practical training component where trainees are given the responsibility of handling police stations. They are also attached to district police headquarters to observe and learn on the go about policing. This phase lasts for a period of six months.

118 The main objectives of this training programme will be: • To prepare the IPS Officers for the next level competency that is mainly concerned with public interaction. • To enable them to possess the necessary skills and attitudes to discharge their responsibilities effectively. The subjects included in the basic course are as follows: 11.1.1 Compulsory Indoor Subjects for IPS: 1. Police in Modern India 2. Indian Evidence Act, 1872 3. Indian Penal Code, 1860 4. Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 5. Special Laws 6. Crime Prevention & Criminology 7. Investigation 8. Forensic Medicine 9. Forensic Science (Theory and Practicals) 10. Maintenance of Public Peace and Order 11. Internal Security 12. Police Leadership and Management 13. Ethics and Human Rights 14. Information & Communication Technology 1. Compulsory Indoor Subjects: 1. Physical Fitness (PT, athletics, gymnasium, sports, cross country races up to 20 km) 2. Drill 3. Yoga 4. Unarmed combat

119 5. Swimming 6. Field Craft & Tactics and Map Reading (ambush setting, counter-ambush maneuvers, use of terrain for tactical movement, setting up counter-insurgency camps, map-reading, movement with and without the aid of GPS, Route marches up to 40 km with full battle load, handling explosives, etc.) 7. Equitation (horse riding) 8. First Aid and Ambulance Drill The lessons also include rock climbing, assault training and weapons training (assembling/disassembling, handling and firing of revolvers, pistols, machine guns, rifles, mortars, grenades, etc.) a) Optional subjects for IPS training: 1. Police Telecommunications and Control Room Operations 2. Hindi 3. Regional language (depending on the cadre) 4. Motor Mechanism and Driving 1.47 1.9 Conclusion Indian training structure, though one of the most elaborate in the developing world, needs to be strengthened and moulded into a more effective instrument of intervention in the process of socio - economic and administrative development. Some major steps which might prove useful in this sphere are : preparation of perspective and long - term training plans , setting up of a National Training Commission and state - level Training Boards for effecting coordination among training institutions , integration of training with the total public administrative and particularly personnel administrative system , laying stress on a sounder system of evaluating the impact of civil service training , developing professional training faculty and rectifying the imbalance in the training system by giving due importance to the training of lower level bureaucrats . These key points highlight the more fundamental issues involved in redesigning civil service training for sounder public management development, both in India and in other developing countries. The need of improvement in IPS training process has been felt for many years to ensure effective policing as IPS officers are becoming a manager rather than a leader. Their main objective is to focus on the

120 management of politicians to carry out political results and therefore are left to ease the day-to-day functioning, while common people are rarely focused upon. Although the Indian Police is the principal guardian of law and order in our country, it continues to be governed by the colonial and outdated police laws that were passed in 1861. The Indian Constitution has made it a state subject to give responsibility to the state governments for their communities along with police services but

96% MATCHING BLOCK 293/416 W

several committees on police reforms have recommended major reforms in the police system with systematic accountability. 1.10

Probable Questions: 1. Write a note evolution training of civil servants in India. 2. Discuss the training policy in India. 3. Analyse the role of the National and State Training Commission. 4. Examine how IAS officers are being trained. 5. Write a note on the training method for IPS officers. 1.48 1.11 Further readings: Philip Woodruff , The Men Who Ruled India : The Founders (London : Jonathan Cape , 1935). BB Mishra , Central Administration of the East India Company , 1773-1834 (Bombay : Oxford University Press , 1959). NC Roy , The Civil Service in India (Calcutta : Firma K.L. Mukhopadhyaya , 1958) Rajni Goyal , " Civil Service Training in India : An Evolutionary Perspective , " Administrative Change , XIII (July 1985 - June 1986). B N Puri , " The Training of Civil Servants under the Company, " Journal of LBS National Academy of Administration , XII (July 1967). S R Maheshwari, The Evolution of Indian Administration (Agra: Lakshmi Narain Agarwal, 1970) Abdel Fattah A Shamleh , Administration of Training in India (Jaipur : Arihant , 1994)
121 Unit IV Unit: Promotion of IAS and IPS Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Promotions for Indian Administrative Service (IAS) 11.1.1 1.4 IAS Promotion List and IAS Promotion Rules 1.5 Ranks of IAS officers 1.6 Recent 'Modi'fications 1.7 Promotion for Indian Police Service (IPS)
122 1.8 Ranks of the Indian Police Service (IPS) 1.9 Conclusion 1.10 Probable Questions: 1.11 Further readings: 1.1 Objectives Through this unit the learners will be able to – Understand the basic rules of Promotion of IAS and IPS Examine the ranks of IAS and IPS officers Know the methods, procedures of promotion Analyse the recent modifications in relation to promotion of IAS officers 1.2 Introduction The Indian

92% MATCHING BLOCK 295/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

Administrative Service and Indian Police Service are of the All India Services with the Indian Forest Service. 123 Candidates who are selected as IAS Officers are trained to manage Government affairs. Every civil servant is allotted to a particular office with policy framing and implementing as the major responsibility in that particular area. The policy issues are framed, modified, and interpreted in this post under the direct supervision of the Administrative Office with the consent of the Minister. On the advice of the officer, the implementation of the policies is also done. The policy-making matters of the government mechanism depend on the civil servant rank. The process of implementation includes supervision as well as visiting/touring. The allotment of huge funds to and by the field officers mandates supervision and the concerned officials are answerable to queries made in the Parliament.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 296/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

The Indian Police Service (IPS) being one of the All India Services is accountable for public safety, internal security, and law and order. After independence (1948), the Imperial Police (IP) was replaced by the Indian Police Service. The Indian Police Service in itself is not a law enforcement agency but it is the body to which all the senior police officers belong to irrespective for whichever agency they work. An IPS officer faces several life-threatening and is imperilled to harsh conditions. The Director-General of Police of the Indian Police Service is entrusted with the overall law and order of the entire State, while the Superintendent of Police for the entire District and the Deputy Commissioner or the Commissioner of Police for Metropolitan Cities or the entire city respectively. An IPS officer as the Commissioner of Police enjoys magisterial powers. The Indian Police Service (IPS) though not equal to the Indian Administrative Service (IAS) is the only service in the country that comes close to the IAS considering the Power, Authority, and Speed in promotion whether at the State or in the Government of India. 1.3 Promotions for Indian Administrative Service (IAS) The Department of Personnel and Training of Government of India prescribed the following rules of current promotion system –

124 The formal channel of promotions for all the All India Services and other Group 'A' Services is their respective state/departmental cadre. In respect of the All India Services, guidelines for such promotions are issued by the respective administrative ministries of the Government of India, namely the DoPT for the IAS, the Home Ministry for the IPS and the Ministry of Environment & Forests for the IFoS. Though the guidelines are distinct, they are broadly similar in content. They cover issues such as minimum requirements for promotion, as well as the composition of the Screening Committee. The guidelines for promotion to the super-time and higher levels are as follows: • For promotion to Super Time Scale, a member of the service should be working in the selection grade and should have completed 16 years of service. The Screening Committee should consist of the Chief Secretary as Chairman and two other officers working in the grade of Principal Secretary in the State Government concerned as Members. • For promotion to the post of Principal Secretary to the State Government, the zone of consideration consists of officers in the super time scale who have completed 25 years of service. The Screening Committee will be chaired by the Chief Secretary and will have two other members, the senior most officer working in the grade of Chief Secretary, and the senior most officer working in the grade of Principal Secretary. • For promotion to the grade of Chief Secretary, the Screening Committee shall consist of Chief Secretary, one officer working in this grade in the cadre, and another officer of the cadre serving in the Government of India in the same grade. In respect of the All India Services, the requirement of consultation with the UPSC has been dispensed with, under the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Consultation) Regulation, 1958. However, in case of other Group A Services (except for the Indian Foreign Service), the Departmental Promotion Committees are chaired by the UPSC. As per the notification no. 20011/4/92-AIS-II of Ministry of Personnel, P.G. & Pensions; Department of Personnel & Training, Government of India, dated 28th March, 2000 the Principles Regarding Promotion of Members of The Indian Administrative Service are as follows; I. Appointment to Senior Time Scale- An officer is eligible for appointment to the Senior Time Scale on completion of 4 years' service, subject to the provisions of rule 6A of the IAS (Rectt.) Rules, 1954. A Committee consisting of the Chief Secretary and two officers of atleast Supertime Scale level of the State

125 Government concerned shall evaluate the performance of the eligible officers for deciding their suitability for promotion to posts in the Senior Time Scale. Subject to availability of posts, this scale can be allowed from or after 1st January during the relevant year in which officers become eligible for this scale. II. Appointment to the Junior Administrative Grade- An officer is eligible for appointment in the Junior Administrative Grade on completing 9 years of service. This grade is non-functional and shall be admissible without any screening, as a matter of course, to all the officers of the Senior Time Scale from Ist January of the relevant year, except in cases where any disciplinary/criminal proceedings are pending against the officer. III. Appointment to The Selection Grade - An officer of the Junior Administrative Grade shall be eligible for appointment to the Selection Grade on completion of 13 years of service as per the proviso to rule 3(2A) of the IAS (Pay) Rules, 1954. A Committee consisting of the Chief Secretary and two officers of the concerned State Government, in the Supertime Scale or above, shall screen the eligible members of the Service for promotion in this grade. This grade will be available from or after 1st January of the relevant year subject to availability of vacancies in this grade. IV. Promotion in The Supertime Scale- The members of the Service who are working in the Selection Grade and have completed 16 years of service2 shall be eligible for appointment in the Supertime Scale at any time during the year of their eligibility, subject to availability of vacancies in this grade. The Screening Committee to consider officers for promotion in this scale would consist of the Chief Secretary as Chairman and 2 officers working in the grade of Principal Secretary within the State Government concerned, as members. If, however, there is only one officer working in the grade of Principal Secretary to the Government available in the cadre, the senior-most Supertime Scale officer available in the cadre may be included in the in the Committee. V. Promotion in The First Above Supertime Scale i.e. Principal Secretary to The State Government- The zone of consideration for promotion in this grade may consist of the Supertime Scale level officers who have completed 25 years' service. Promotion of officers thus cleared could be made at any time during the relevant year, provided vacancies in this grade are available. The Screening Committee to consider officers for promotion in this scale will consist of the Chief Secretary as Chairman and one senior-most officer each working in the grades of Chief Secretary to the Government and Principal Secretary to the Govt. respectively in the cadre, as members. If an officer of the grade of Principal Secretary to the

126 Government is not available in the cadre, the senior-most officer of the same level of the cadre working in the government of India may be taken as a member. VI. Promotion in The Grade of Chief Secretary The zone of consideration for promotion in this grade would consist of all the members of the Service who have completed 30 years of service. Appointment in this grade would be made from amongst the officers thus cleared, at any time during the relevant year and subject to the provisions of rule 9(7) of the I.A.S. (Pay) Rules, 1954. The Screening Committee for this purpose shall consist of the Chief Secretary concerned, one officer working in this grade in the cadre and another officer of the cadre serving in Government of India in the same grade. 11.1.1 1.4 IAS Promotion List and IAS Promotion Rules The IAS promotion list is based upon their years of service, and certain guidelines are set up by the government regarding promotion. These guidelines are also called IAS promotion rules and few major rules or guidelines are: • Screening committees are set up for each post, and they have to ensure that the suitability of the candidate is considered while choosing for promotion in an just and objective manner. • The committee has to fill in vacancies every year, and thus the committee should meet frequently on a fixed date every year. There should be a time schedule laid down in advance and the state government must ensure the proper functioning of the committee • The number of vacancies must be predetermined and accurate. Vacancies due to death or retirement should be taken into account whereas short-term vacancies for personal leaves or holiday should not be taken into account 1.5 Ranks of IAS officers

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 297/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

Below given are the ranks that an IAS officer will hold during his tenure.

Years of Service Post 1-4 ASP/SDM/ Assistant Commissioner
127

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 302/416	SA	Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

The ranks are given to the civil servant based on their seniority in the civil services. 1.6

Recent 'Modi'fications

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 298/416	W

Until recently, a typical file in a department would move from the undersecretary to the deputy secretary or the director. Here, it should be pointed out that functionally, there was no difference between a deputy secretary and a director. After a certain number of years, the deputy secretary was promoted 'in situ' as the director. Under the new dispensation, the distinction between the undersecretary and deputy secretary has also been removed. Thus, even though the undersecretary will be promoted to a deputy secretary and then to a director, the function will remain the same and the frills and pay scales will improve at each level. The technical name given for such in situ promotions is 'Non-Functional scale'. In the case of the Indian Administrative Service (IAS), an officer reaches the director's position in the usual course — in the 12th year of service. In terms of their pay scale, they move from the Junior Administrative Grade to the Selection Grade, and this changes their entitlements with regard to housing and travel perquisites – directors are entitled to travel Executive class /AC I in trains and the daily allowance on tour is higher. 5-8

ADM/Deputy Secretary/Undersecretary 9-12 DM/Joint Secretary/Deputy Secretary 13-16 DM/ Special Secretary cum Director/ Director 16-24 Divisional Commissioner/ Secretary Cum Commissioner/ Joint Secretary 25-30 Divisional Commissioner/ Principal Secretary/ Additional Secretary 30-33 Additional Chief Secretary 34-36 Chief Secretary 37+ Cabinet Secretary of India
128

100% MATCHING BLOCK 299/416 W

A batch usually gets empanelled as a Joint Secretary (JS) in the 16th year. Officers move into what is called the 'Super Time' scale. Here, they are entitled to business class for both domestic and international travel. State governments usually follow the Government of India norms with regard to travel entitlements, though, technically, the state governments can issue their own orders with regard to these perquisites. Typically, a JS has a tenure of five years, and they constitute the 'cutting edge' of the government. Although in smaller departments, files moved straight from the JS to the Secretary, in large departments like education, health, agriculture, commerce, and finance, the JS would normally submit the files to the Additional Secretary (AS). For decision levels in which the JS was the final authority, an endorsement at the level of AS was the norm, but in most cases, the file would go up to the Secretary. As per the revised norms, on completion of three decades of service, a JS will be designated as an AS in situ, provided, of course, they are empanelled as AS or AS equivalent. However, both the JS and the AS will submit the files directly to the Secretary, and so, the Additional Secretary is now akin to a non- functional scale!

100% MATCHING BLOCK 300/416 W

One may well ask, what then are the charms of being an AS? Well, the AS is the first to get invited to the Rashtrapati Bhawan for the 'at home' on Independence Day and Republic Day. They also get to witness the Independence Day parade from the ramparts of the Red Fort. To the outsider, the nuances of these fine distinctions may appear frivolous, but these do make a lot of difference to the officers (and their spouses!). The tenure of the AS is not very long, and the current government is trying to empanel officers to the rank of Secretary soon thereafter to ensure that they get a longer tenure in that position. This is also necessitated by the fact that after 1995, the average entry-level age increased from 25 to 28 years. Finally, when an officer becomes a Secretary to the Union government, they move to the apex scale in terms of pay and receive the status and treatment of a 'state guest' on an official visit to a state government, with all the attendant protocols besides an entitlement to use the reserved lounge at the airport.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 301/416 W

The moot question for consideration is: Does the reduction of two layers of decision-making in the government make a difference? It certainly does, for under the revised norms, each of the three levels will have a specific mandate. In the first instance, the undersecretary or deputy secretary or director will initiate the note with basic information about the scheme/programme/issue in question. It will list the budgetary provisions, past 129 precedents, references to related decisions as well as parliamentary assurances, if any, on the subject and recommend a course of action. At the level of the JS and AS inputs from other divisions within the ministry, autonomous bodies, SPVs (Special Purpose Vehicles), PSUs (Public Sector Undertakings) and/or industry chambers will be factored. In case the issue concerns more than one state, inputs from the state government are also taken on board. The file will now be put up to the Secretary who will take a 360-degree view and also look at the implications for the related ministries. Thus, any view on the procurement of cereal by the Food Corporation of India (FCI) or pulses by NAFED (National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India) would certainly involve the ministries of agriculture, food, consumer affairs, and commerce. 1.7

Promotion for Indian Police Service (IPS) The officers are thus appointed by the Indian Union and States both. The lowest rank at which an IPS officer is selected or he/she enters the services is of Deputy Superintendent of Police (DSP) which is then promoted to Additional Superintendent of Police (ASP). The pay scale of both these services has very few differences. DSP is pay level 10 and ASP is 'pay level 11'. When an IPS is appointed in Delhi, he/she may get the rank of Assistant Commissioner of Police or Additional Deputy Commissioner of Police. The highest rank an IPS officer would get in a state would be of the Director General of Police (DGP). The DGP is the head of the State Police Forces. On a similar pay scale, the promotion of any IPS as compared to other services in the Government of India would be of the Director of Intelligence Bureau or Secretary in the Cabinet. The equivalence would be the same. The pay scale is of level 17 at this position and the pay would be almost INR 225000. Everyone knows that an IPS is selected through UPSC CSE conducted every year. Then you will have to undergo a one year training course at Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel National Police Academy (SVPNPA) in Hyderabad. Probation- After training ,officers will be sent to their state cadres. In states,they will get the designation of Assistant Superintendent of Police with Grade Pay of 5400 and pay band 3 (Rs 15,600–39,100). ASP is a probation period post in which the officer will learn from seniors about how the police mechanisms work in the grass root level.

130 Senior Time Scale- After probation officer will get the Senior Time Scale at the 5th year of his service now he is promoted as the Additional Superintendent ff Police in the districts and If he serves in any city commissionerate then the post will be of Additional Deputy Commissioner of Police where grade pay becomes 6600. Junior Administrative Grade- After having some experiences about policing for 9 years the officer gets promoted to the Junior Administrative Grade (JAG). At this period, he or she does mainly managerial jobs. They seldom go to the spot of crime or trouble. JAG officers get the post of Superintendent of Police (SP) in districts and in city police they get the post of Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP) . At the time of JAG , grade pay becomes 7600. It is the highest grade pay in scale 3 (15,600–39,100) Selection Grade- An IPS gets promoted to the Selection Grade after a continuous service of 13 years. in this grade the officer gets the post of Senior Superintendent of Police (SSP) in district level. In the cities , the selection grade officer becomes Additional Commissioner of Police. In SG payband changes from PB3 to PB4(37,400–67,000). Grade pay of 8700. Super Time Scale- After serving the police dept for a period of 14 years, the IPS is upgraded to Super Time Scale. In the states the officers of this scale occupy post of a Deputy Inspector General of Police (DIG) and can be the Commissioner in the small city police organizations. The grade pay is 8900 in PB4. Senior Administrative Grade- An IPS gets the SAG after 18 years of service. At this stage he/she becomes an Inspector General of Police (IG). In SAG they are entitled to have the grade pay of 10000 in PB4. Higher Administrative Grade- An IPS officer becomes eligible for HAG after 25 years of satisfactory service. The officer gets the rank of Additional Director General of Police (ADG). These officers enjoy PB5(67,000–79,000) with grade pay of 12000. Apex Scale- Officers with brilliant career record and 30 years experience can reach the Apex Scale with pay scale 80,000(Fixed). Director General of Police (DG) gets this scale . The COMMISSIONER of megacity police forces also gets the Apex Scale.

131 Deputation in Central Paramilitary Forces- The higher ranks of the Paramilitary Forces are generally occupied by the IPS officers. They are often deputed to command the forces like CRPF, BSF, ITBP, CISF. IPS Officers take the posts of DIG, IG, ADG, Special DG or DG. Deputation in Other Central Security Agencies- They are also deputed to Central Security Agencies like CBI, NIA, IB, NCRB , etc Sometimes, a few IPS officers got selected in Central Ministries as Joint Secretaries or similar capacities. Especially, Ministry of Home in Centre and States recruits some IPS officers in their secretariats. Another deputation pots exists for IPS officers in various Public Sector Undertaking companies. They are given the posts of Vigilance Commissioners. 1.8 Ranks of the Indian Police Service (IPS) The following are the ranks that an IPS officer takes charge as during her/his tenure in the service. • Assistant Superintendent of Police (Sub-division for 2 years' probation) • Superintendent of Police or Deputy Commissioner of Police (After 4 years in service) • Junior Administrative Grade (After 9 years in service) • Selection Grade (After 13 years in service) • Deputy Inspector General of Police or Additional Commissioner of Police (After 14 years in service) • Inspector-General of Police (After 18 years in service) • Additional Director General of Police (After 25 years in service) • Finally, the Director-General of Police (after 30 years in service) The Director-General of Police and Commissioner of Police is the head of the entire police force of the State or Metropolitan City like Chennai, Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai, etc., and below him/her comes the Additional DGP or Special Police Commissioner. While the inspector General or Joint Commissioner of Police is the head of specialized police force like the Criminal Investigation Department, Special Branch etc.

97% MATCHING BLOCK 317/416 SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

It is to mentioned here that promotions in initial stages is based on seniority subject to rejection of the unfit, however, post selection grade it is based on merit and seniority. Some scholars raised question in this context, as they believe that this method puts political leaders over the top of the IPS officers.
132 1.9 Conclusion Promotion is related to effectiveness of the Government that depends upon IAS and IPS officers efficiency and credibility. Recently the Government has taken a step to modify the promotion pattern to accelerate the public service delivery system.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 303/416 W

While this is a positive step in reducing hierarchy and making the government more functional, there is a new irritant called 'equivalent', which has been institutionalised over the last few years. At the level of AS and Secretaries, an officer is now being empanelled as AS or AS equivalent, or Secretary and Secretary equivalent. More often than not, after a gap of six months to a year, those in the equivalent category are upgraded to the full status of AS or Secretary. A Secretary equivalent is not supposed to become the Secretary in charge, but in terms of 'frills', they are equal to the Secretary and get to be a state guest on their travel. However, there are multiple instances when officers who have been empanelled as Secretary-equivalents have been made Secretaries and those who are empanelled as Secretaries given positions that are 'Secretary equivalent'. 1.10

Probable Questions: 1. Discuss the basic rules of Promotion of IAS officers. 2. Evaluate the basic rules of Promotion of IPS officers. 3. Write a note on the ranks of IAS officers. 4. Discuss the ranks of IPS officers 5. Analyse the recent modifications in relation to promotion of IAS officers. 1.11 Further readings: NC Roy , The Civil Service in India (Calcutta : Firma K.L. Mukhopadhyaya , 1958) Rajni Goyal , " Civil Service Training in India : An Evolutionary Perspective , " Administrative Change , XIII (July 1985 - June 1986). B N Puri , " The Training of Civil Servants under the Company, " Journal of LBS National Academy of Administration , XII (July 1967). S R Maheshwari, The Evolution of Indian Administration (Agra: Lakshmi Narain Agarwal, 1970)
133 https://theprint.in/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 304/416 W

opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secretary- now-come-closer/1063990/

Notification no. 20011/4/92-AIS-II of Ministry of Personnel, P.G. & Pensions; Department of Personnel & Training, Government of India, dated 28th March, 2000 Unit V Unit: V Performance Appraisal Structure 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Objectives of Performance Appraisal 1.4 Annual Performance Appraisal System – APR 1.5 360 degree Appraisal 1.6 Recommendations for Good Performance appraisal 1.7 Conclusion 1.8 Probable Questions 1.9 Further reading 1.1 Objectives From this unit learners will be able to - Understand the Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System in India Evaluate the need for PAR Analyse the changing nature of PAR Understand 360 degree model of PAR Point out the problems or challenges associated with the PAR system 134 Examine the probable recommendations to curb the challenges 1.2 Introduction Based on the recommendations of the

92% MATCHING BLOCK 305/416 W

Surinder Nath Committee constituted to review the system of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group 'A' Services through the All India Service (PAR) Rules, 2007 which was amended on 31st March, 2008 and then on 2019.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 306/416 W

The Performance Appraisal Report is an important document. It provides the basic and vital inputs for further development of an officer.

Currently the performance of civil servants is assessed through Annual Confidential Report (ACR) prepared by superior authority. If the 360 degree performance appraisal report supplements the ACR, it will lead to a hazy conclusion on the performance of the employees evaluated. The questionnaire meant for evaluation must be based on relevant aspects the employees are associated with. In the corporate world the system of 360 degree performance appraisal fits well assessment is done on specific metrics such as sales growth, targets, customer satisfaction etc. However, bureaucracy in India cannot be evaluated on such metrics as it involves intricacies of public service. Further, bureaucracy in India is said to be infatuated with unfounded apathy to the existing work culture and suffer from lack of values and ethics. The second Administrative Reform Commission highlighted this deficiency in the existing performance appraisal system. As such bureaucracy in India suffers from sense of closely-knit fraternity, where assessment of the subordinates by the superior authorities' remains always biased. Moreover, the 360 degree performance appraisal system is less an instrument to facilitate promotion than to enhance performance and efficiency. The validity of the system in bureaucratic performance evaluation in India cannot be fully assessed unless it is implemented properly.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 307/416 W

One-time annual reviews, single-source feedback, appraisals conducted purely for evaluative purposes, and simple quantitative metrics are inadequate for employee growth. The transition towards a more holistic, developmental appraisal process is identified as a shift from 'annual confidential report' to 'performance appraisal' which underpins the reforms in the Indian higher Civil Services. For the Civil Services, this change is most obvious in two specific reform ideas. The first is the shift from the Annual Confidential Report (ACR) to the Annual Performance Appraisal Report (APAR) system in 2007. The aim of this transition was to solve two problems: to improve the quality of appraisals so they aid in employee development, and to bring in more transparency in the appraisal process. Specific changes such as new rating scales, domain assignment and target setting were recommended to achieve these goals. 135 The second shift is the introduction of the 360-degree review or Multi Source Feedback (MSF) process, a supplement to the APAR, which aims to broaden the scope of those who evaluate the civil servants. While getting feedback from sources outside the immediate seniors and colleagues of an employee have certain benefits, the 360-degree process has also been criticised for increasing bias and subjectivity in the appraisal process. 1.3

Objectives of Performance Appraisal Following are the objectives of PAR - ▪

69% MATCHING BLOCK 308/416 W

Training and Placement ▪ Feedback and Counselling ▪ Planning of work ▪ Promotion ▪ Recognition ▪ Strengthening Good Governance In line with these objectives, the APAR (

in a definite

91% MATCHING BLOCK 309/416 W

format) incorporated components to measure areas for skill upgradation through training and to recognise exceptional contributions in service.

One should follow the mandatory time schedule. PAR to be recorded by 31 st December, failing which assessment to be on the basis of overall record and self-assessment. PAR would be one reporting, reviewing and accepting authority for a given period of time only. 1.4 Annual Performance Appraisal System - APR In Performance Appraisal, assessment of performance of employees is undertaken periodically for determining their output and their abilities. Performance appraisal is carried out to serve many purposes such as promotion / demotion, compensation, training and so on. It also helps the higher authorities to determine the effectiveness of selection procedure of the employees.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 310/416 W

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 3 of the All India Services Act, 1951, (61 of 1951), and in supersession of the All India Services (Confidential Rolls) Rules, 1970, except as respect things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned, hereby makes the following rules, called the All India Services (Performance Appraisal Report - PAR) Rules, 2007.

As per the rule -
136 (1)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 311/416 W

A performance appraisal report assessing the performance, character, conduct and qualities of every member of the Service shall be written for each financial year or as may be specified by the Government in the Schedule 2: Provided that a performance appraisal report may not be written in such cases as may be specified by the Central Government, by general or special order: Provided further that if a performance appraisal report for a financial year is not recorded by 31st of December of the year in which the financial year ended, no remarks may be recorded thereafter and the officer may be assessed on the basis of the overall record and self assessment for the year, if he has submitted his self-assessment on time. (2) Subject to the provisions of sub-rule (4), a performance appraisal report shall also be written when either the reporting or reviewing authority or the member of the Service reported upon relinquishes charge of the post, and, in such a case, it shall be written at the time of the relinquishment or ordinarily within one month of such relinquishment. (3) Where more than one performance appraisal reports are written on a member of the Service during the course of a financial year each such report shall indicate the period to which it pertains: Provided that only one report shall be written on a member of the Service for a particular period during the course of the financial year and there shall be a single reporting, reviewing and accepting authority at each level of assessment which shall be specified in the channel for writing performance appraisal reports by the concerned Ministries and State Governments and in no circumstances more than one person shall write the performance appraisal reports in the capacity of reporting, reviewing or accepting authority for a given period of time: Provided further that if more than one person of the same superior level supervises the performance of the member of Service, the Government shall identify the person to report or review well in advance of the relevant assessment year. (4) Where the reporting authority has not seen, but the reviewing authority has seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which the performance appraisal report is to be written the reviewing authority shall write the performance appraisal report of any such member for any such period. (5) Where, both the reporting authority and the reviewing authority have not seen and the accepting authority has seen, as referred to in sub-rule (4), the performance of any such member, the accepting authority shall write the performance appraisal of any such member during such period. (6) Where the reporting authority, the reviewing authority and the accepting authority have not seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which 137 the report is to be written, the Government shall make an entry to that effect in the performance appraisal report for any such period. (7) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (1), (2), (4) and (5), it shall not be competent for the reporting authority, the reviewing authority or the accepting authority to write a performance appraisal report after he demits office where the authority writing the performance appraisal report is not a Government servant. Explanation. - For the purposes of this rule, "a Minister" shall not be construed as having demitted the office if he continues to be a Minister in the Council of Ministers with a different portfolio or in the Council of Ministers immediately reconstituted after the previous Council of Ministers of which he was a Minister with the same or a different portfolio provided the Prime Minister or the Chief Minister, as the case may be, continues in office.'

It is to be noted here that an amendment has been made through All India Services (Performance Appraisal Report) (Amendment) Rules, 2019 in context of form 1 of rule 4 of the 2007 rules. 1.5 360 degree Appraisal Originated in 1940s, this system of assessment of employees is considered a best practice in the corporate and business world. Under this process feedback of the employee is received from all those who are a part of his/her professional life. It is a holistic approach for obtaining information from peers, subordinates, and internal and external customers, about the employee's performance. It is based on the assessment of an individual's management styles, competencies and behaviour by colleagues horizontally and vertically by involving his boss, peers and direct reports in the organization.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 312/416 W

Empanelment is the process by which civil servants are chosen for top positions in the government, like that of the Joint Secretary and above. Until 2016, empanelment at senior levels of administration was done solely based on performance appraisal reports. The APAR system, which replaced the ACR system in 2007, required full disclosure of evaluation and ratings to the officer concerned (Department of Personnel and Training, 2007; Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). According to the DoPT's submission to the Standing Committee Report on Appraisals, this shift made it increasingly difficult to identify the best officers, as all ratings were 'outstanding'. This led to a revision in empanelment guidelines in 2016 to provide for the collection of Multi Source Feedback (MSF), termed the '360-degree review'. The new mechanism was introduced as a supplement to the APAR system, which would use feedback from important stakeholders to identify candidates for further evaluation. An expert panel would take feedback on seven attributes including leadership, ownership, and honesty from a minimum of five stakeholders—seniors, juniors, peers, external 138 stakeholders and serving secretaries (Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). The adoption of MSF in 2016 as a reform measure was distinct from the adoption of the APAR system in 2007 and it was conceived of as a supplement to, and not part of the APAR. For this reason, this paper treats MSF, or 360-degree reviews, as a standalone reform theme separate from the APAR. The SNC (2003) mooted the idea of 360-degree reporting to "supplement the formal APAR regime with an institutionalised means of ascertaining the reputations of civil servants, consistent with our culture and ethos" (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003, section 5.12.2). The committee justified this suggestion by citing the use of similar mechanisms by international organisations and foreign governments as a supplement to the performance appraisal system. The rationale behind MSF was that the reputation of civil servants within their professional circles would provide an accurate assessment of their capabilities (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003). While acknowledging the potential and utility of this system, the Second ARC argued that "in the context of India where strong hierarchical structures exist and for historical and social reasons it may not be possible to introduce this system unless concerns of integrity and transparency are addressed" (2008, p. 228). Most recently in 2018, the NITI Aayog recommended the complete replacement of appraisal reports with MSF (NITI Aayog, 2018). It is, therefore, important to revisit the concerns and criticism levied against the MSF system. 1.6

Recommendations for Good Performance appraisal A good performance appraisal must consist all of the following characteristics: 1. Setting appropriate work standards for employees. The standards set must be rigorous and achievable. 2. The performance appraisal should be done by assessing the employee's actual performance to the relative standards set. 3. Each supervisor responsible to provide feedback to employees with the aim of motivating him or her and to eliminate performance deficiencies or to continue to perform above par. Some of the traditional methods discuss earlier fails to incorporate the above stated features because PA is assessed based on "knowledge, initiative, loyalty, leadership and judgment". Hence, there is a keen need for Indian organisation to transform and adopt the modern techniques of appraisal such as MBO, 360 degree, 720 degree, BARS, Human Resource Accounting, Balance Score Card, Electronic Performance Monitoring, Assessment Centers and etc.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 313/416 W

The Seventh Pay Commission recommended changes in the APAR system before linking it to the Results Framework Documents (

97% MATCHING BLOCK 314/416 W

RFD). First, there needed to be an alignment of department and individual performance. The department, which should derive its objectives from the concerned ministry's vision, 139 should make these clear to its personnel. Second, it pointed out that the APAR system needs to take into consideration the prioritisation of tasks while ranking officers. It suggested that this be done by prioritising tasks and using Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) to assign weights to each task. Third, it suggested that APAR should focus on assessing performance rather than the individual's personality. In this line, it recommended that there should be a 60 per cent weight on work output, and 40 per cent weight on personal attributes (instead of 60 per cent for personal and 40 per cent for work outputs that exist in the APAR system). Fourth, it recommended synchronised timelines between APAR and RFDs. Last, the Commission recommended the introduction of online APAR systems for all central government officers and employees. This recommendation was made after noting the success of the SPARROW (

Smart performance appraisal report recording online window),

100% MATCHING BLOCK 315/416 W

which was introduced for IAS officers, and allowed for adherence to the prescribed timelines in filling up the APARs. 1.7

Conclusion Performance evaluation holds a great importance in every organization i.e. corporate, business and also government organization. It is an essential medium through which the organization concerned prepares blueprint for future development and growth. The performance of every government servant is evaluated on an annual basis through his/her Annual Confidential Report (ACR). ACR is an important document providing the basic and vital inputs for assessing the performance of the Government servant and his/her suitability personal advancement, promotion, deputation, foreign or any other important assignments purported to be undertaken by him/her. The system of confidential reports about the performance of government servants is a means to an end, and not an end in itself. It is not a fault-finding process, but a development one.The main performance measure is the amount of money spent and the success of the schemes, programmes and projects is generally evaluated in terms of the inputs consumed. Its primary objective is to realize successful utilization of government policies and programmes. As the appraisal process is solely conducted by the superior authorities, chances for biased opinions are many in the final report. If the evaluated employee is not found in the good book of the evaluator, the report may be antithetical to the fact. If the true intent of personnel performance evaluation is meant to increase efficiency and boost morale of the employees, ACR practised in government sector does not fit the bill. A greater weightage is given to subjective factors than objective in the performance appraisal, from which promotions and postings flow. The current system assigns 60% weightage to personal attributes and functional competency (a subjective assessment) and just 40% to work output (an objective assessment).
140 The need of the hour is to infuse corporate blood into the bureaucracy by giving more weightage to results than to the personalities of the employees. The performance appraisal system should be tuned with the demands of changing time when competency of the employees matters a lot for improving the quality of bureaucracy. It should aim at enhancing core competencies of the civil servants in order to make them essential for carrying out good governance in India.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 316/416 W

Recent reform literature has rightly identified that moving towards this more holistic and constructive approach to performance can resolve structural problems in the current system. As alluded to by the Second

Administrative Reform Commission,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 318/416 W

real change in organisational culture emerges only in an environment where employees feel valued and experience a sense of progress and organisational concern. 1.8

Probable Questions 1. Write a brief note on the Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System in India. 2. Evaluate the need for Personnel Appraisal Report. 3. Analyse the changing nature of Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System in India. 4. Discuss the 360 degree model of Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System in India. 5. Point out the problems or challenges associated with the Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System. 6. What measures can be adopted to curb the challenges associated with the Personnel Appraisal Report (PAR) System? Discuss. 1.9 Further reading Aggarwal, A., & Thakur, G. S. M. (2013). Techniques of Performance Appraisal-A Review. International Journal of Engineering and Advanced Technology (IJEAT) ISSN, 2249-8958.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 319/416 W

Behr, J. (2019, November 22). Getting the Most Out of 360-Degree Reviews. Harvard Business Review. https:// hbr.org/2019/11/getting-the-most-out-of-360-degreereviews (open source)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 320/416 W

Department of Personnel and Training. (2007). The All India Service (Performance Appraisal Report) Rules, 2007. Government of India

https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%28PAR%29_Rules.pdf (open source)

93% MATCHING BLOCK 321/416 W

MS, N. (2018, August). Why India's civil servants are disaffected with the 360-degree empanelment process for top central government posts. The Caravan. https:// caravanmagazine.in/government- policy/whyindias-civil-servants-disaffected-with-360-degreeempanelment (open source) 141

100% MATCHING BLOCK 322/416 W

Surinder Nath Committee. (2003). Report of the Group Constituted to Review the System of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group "A" Services (p. 64). Government of India. https://dopt.gov.in/executivesummary (open source)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 323/416 W

Unnikrishnan, A., Sharma, S., Sharma, K.R. (2022, March). Debates on Administrative Reform in India: Performance Management. Centre for Policy Research, State Capacity Initiative Working Paper No. 2022.3

https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf (open source) V. Balu (2006). Human Resource management, Sri Venkateswara Publications 142 Block IV: Employer-Employee Relations Unit-I: Employees Union Structure: 1.1: Objective- 1.2: Introduction 1.3: Definition and Function of Employees Union 1.4: Evolution of Employees Union in India 1.5: Nature and Scope of Employees Union 1.6: Summary 1.7: Sample Questions 1.8: Suggested Readings 1.1: Objective- After reading this present unit students will be able (a) to understand the definition, functions, evolution, nature and scope of employees union. (b) to appreciate that Employees unions contribute negatively and positively to both workers and employers. However, it turns out that it better the employer-to-employee relationship due to the formality and advantages brought about by trade unions to both parties, but it should be noted that it equally stresses this relationship since it profits more to the workers. (c) to realise that Unions represent individual members in grievances and disciplinary hearings. They also provide certain financial and legal benefits to members, including assistance with claims to employment tribunals and personal injury claims. 1.2: Introduction Trade unions are voluntary organisations formed to represent workers' interests, which working people are free to join or not. The principal purpose of a trade union is to regulate employee relations with an employer through: (i)collective bargaining (negotiation about pay and other conditions of employment) (ii)consultation (discussions about business and workplace issues that affect levels of employment and terms and conditions of employment). A collective agreement is a joint agreement made by the employer and the union to which both are committed. Unless it is in writing and contains a provision to the contrary, a collective agreement does not constitute a legally enforceable contract. Consultation is a process where the employer discusses issues with the union. Where it is "genuine" consultation, the employer will respond in detail to the points made by union representatives. However, the outcome of consultation is 143 usually a managerial decision rather than an agreement, although that managerial decision may be influenced by the representations made by the trade union representatives. Unions represent individual members in grievances and disciplinary hearings. They also provide certain financial and legal benefits to members, including assistance with claims to employment tribunals and personal injury claims. Many unions also have political funds (separate from their general funds) which enable them to engage in political lobbying and, in some cases, affiliation to a political party. Members of a trade union cannot lawfully be required to contribute to the union's political fund. 1.3: Definition and Functions of Employees Union: Independent employees union can be seen as one which is not to be under the control or domination of an employer. Statutory rights on consultation and recognition for collective bargaining which are given to trade unions only apply to unions that are independent.

87% MATCHING BLOCK 324/416 W

The extent of Employer-Employee relations in public service depends vastly on the nature of Civil Service unionism. The harmony and hostility of relations rests with the strengths and weakness and the philosophy of unionism among the government employees. Public-Employee relations are also governed by the changing nature of the public employer and its dictatorial or democratic attitude in solving the mutual problems. In this Unit, we propose to study the objectives of Civil Service unionism, the origin and growth of employees unions and also the important functions and activities of the employees' union. The Employees Unions regarded themselves as a part of the administration. They are yearning for opportunities for full participation in the development of the country. The employees unions are positive assets to sound and progressive administration. The following may be said to be the objectives behind the establishment of organisations: 1) To acquaint the government with the point of view of the employees as there might be many problems where the management and the employees might be having differing point of views. 2) The organisation provide

91% MATCHING BLOCK 325/416 W

85% MATCHING BLOCK 326/416 W

an opportunity to the government to know the opinion of the employees on any given issue. No government can possibly contact all its employees individually. They could be easily contacted through the medium of the organisation. The opinion of the organisation is the collective opinion of the employees. 3) The organisation belongs to the employees. It stands with them through thick and thin. There is a feeling of oneness between the employees and the organisation. 4) The associations meet the social expectations of the members. It satisfies the ego of the office bearer. They feel that they are doing something useful and beneficial for their members. The unions make it possible for employees to express their point of view to the government as a whole, while developing a feeling of oneness between the employees and the administration. Thus, they help in developing harmonious relations between government and employees. The employees unions provide a feeling of identification with the securing of certain personal objectives. They want to do something for themselves. They provide an outlet for natural social aspirations of employees. The unions want to promote efficiency, protect merit systems and improve the quality of administration. 5)

according to Walters and Mishel (2003), compensation of workers members of trade union and those who are not a member of the trade union have been greatly impacted by these trade unions, whereby they clearly state that "Unions raise wages of unionized workers by roughly 20% and raise compensation, including both wages and benefits, by about 28%. 6)In addition to that, Walters and Mishel (2003) emphasize the advantages that trade unions have brought to workers such as reduction in wage inequality between the blue-collar and white-collar workers, setting 144 of ubiquitous payment standards followed by the member and non-member employers, benefiting of job advantages such as paid leaves, where they precise that 8% to 28% of worker are more likely to profit from health insurance from employers as well as other advantages. Based on their assertions, it is clear that trade-union greatly empower workers hence affecting the employer-to-employee relationship positively. "Unions play a pivotal role both in securing legislated labour protections and rights such as safety and health, overtime, and family/medical leave and in enforcing those rights on the job" Walters and Mishel (2003). Everything comes at a cost, so the cost of empowering workers and giving them more advantages at the workplace is clear that in the financial perspective, it is not of great advantage to employers since it means that employers need to spend more money in following regulations put in place by these trade-unions. The fact workers have these advantages does not mean that trade unions have no disadvantages to workers, especially for non-members. Some of these disadvantages according to Unions and Pettinger (2019) are unemployment due to high labour competitive market (high pays, mean employers should get the best workers for the pay too in order to balance the expenses), inflation due to high wages pushed up by powerful unions, productivity loss due to strikes, confrontations and difficulty to have an impact due to lack of organization. Important functions of employees union are: (a)

73% MATCHING BLOCK 327/416 W

Protecting the rights of employees including ventilation of grievances and negotiation with the government. (b)Undertaking measures for social, economic, and cultural advancement of the employees. (c)Promoting academic matters including publication of journals and other literature. (d)Settlement of disputes through joint consultation/collective bargaining. (

e)

90% MATCHING BLOCK 328/416 W

Achieving free trade union rights including full citizenship with right to contest elections. (f)To ensure the framing of labour legislation to guarantee the growth of free trade unionism without discrimination between government and non-government labour. 1.4:

Evolution of Employees Union in India:

During

94% MATCHING BLOCK 329/416 W

the early British rule, there was little or no consciousness of common needs and interests among civil servants because of the greater inheritance and partnership in the administration by the English rulers. Indians who were largely employed at the pleasure of the Britishers, had little or no interest in the formation of an association and whatever urge there was, got submerged in the movement of the people for realisation of the goal of India's independence. Of course, before World War I there were associations of government employees such as the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants of India and Burma (1897), the Indian Civil Service Association (1918), etc. but they were mostly manned

by Britishers

Ouriginal by Turnitin

91% MATCHING BLOCK 330/416 W

and the Anglo-Indians. Hence, their existence carried not much significance in the development of unions except as a matter of historical interest. During the British rule of centralised administration, the general mass of lower and middle level civil servants did not find an opportunity to get organised. By the beginning of the 20th century, however, modern association had secured for itself a place in the economic and political life of the country. Employees organised themselves to press their demands but, by and large, it was only in those cases where they could evoke public sympathy that they succeeded, and such sympathy was hard to come by. After World War I, political and economic conditions in the country caused, partly by the freedom struggle led by Mahatma Gandhi and his followers and partly by the drain theory advocated by Dadabhai Naoroji as the cause of poverty of India, roused new aspirations in the minds of civil servants to form associations. Further the establishment of the International Labour Organisation (1919) had its impact on the growth of trade unions and staff associations in the country. Lower grade employees working in the Railways and the Post and Telegraph Department began to organise themselves into unions. While some unions chose to operate independently others felt the need for coordination of their activities 145 at the national level. The formation in 1920 of the All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC) was a manifestation of these urges. Further, the enactment of the Trade Union Act, 1926, facilitated the formation and growth of trade/staff unions in India. The setting up of the popular governments in the provinces in the late thirties under the Government of India Act, 1935, quickened the pace of the growth of unions and staff associations in the provinces. The Act vested in the governors the responsibility to "safeguard the interests and rights of civil servants. During World War II (1939-45) the relations between the government and its employees further deteriorated. Economic conditions began to worsen and the cost of living rose very high and this made the life of employees, especially the low paid, difficult. As a result, of an intense agitation resorted to by the unions of the Railways and the Postal employees for the amelioration of their condition of service, the government appointed a "Pay Commission" to go into the whole question of scale of wages, pensions and other conditions of service and also the question of setting up some machinery for negotiations between the government and the United Kingdom. The Commission was pained to find that there was "an absolute distrust on the part of many grades of public servants as to their ever receiving a fair response from the government to their representations". It strongly recommended that the administration should encourage and foster the growth of unions of civil servants. This recommendation gave a further impetus to the development and organisation of civil service associations. After the attainment of Independence, employees in the civil service felt pride in the formation of association. Slowly and gradually, all classes of civil servants began to organise themselves into associations. The Government of India felt the importance of associations and consequently an article to this end was incorporated in the draft constitution now the Indian Constitution in force from 26 January, 1950, which provides for the right to 'form associations and unions' subject to 'public order or morality'. Civil servants enjoy this fundamental right as much as any other group of citizens and their right to form unions or associations is no different from workers outside the government. This article is a milestone in the development of staff associations and unions in India as a whole. The civil servants outside the Railways and the P&T largely remained unorganised. There were loose organisations among the Income Tax, Audit and Accounts, Customs, Civil Aviations and Public Works Departments. The All India Federation of Income Tax Employees, though formed in 1949, was not recognised by the government as its President Asoka Mehta was not an employee of the Income Tax Department. It was only recognised in 1954 after its re-birth in 1953. It is now one of the strong federations with about 40 affiliated associations/unions.

The All
India Non-Gazetted Audit and Accounts Association was only recognised in 1956, though the employees started organising since 1923. It was de-recognised in 1959 and it took long time to get re-recognition. The All India Ordinance Employees Federation was set up in 1947 with heterogeneous Defence workers organisations. In May 1953, they united and formed All India Defence Employees Federation (AIDEF). In 1959, forty unions affiliated to the AIDEF left it and formed the Indian National Defence Workers Federation (INDWF) with the support of Indian National Trade Union Congress (INTUC). Both the Federations have been recognised

94% MATCHING BLOCK 331/416 W

by

100% MATCHING BLOCK 332/416 W

the government. The employees unions in the Defence Ministry are large in number and strong in their representative capabilities. In 1947, there were 27 unions in P & T recognised

by

93% MATCHING BLOCK 333/416 W

the government. The government initiated a Realignment scheme, proposing all the unions to come under one Federation. Accordingly, all the Non- Gazetted employees of P & T were realigned into nine All India Trade Unions and National Federation of P & T Employees (NFPTE) came into existence in 1954. Since then till 1968, the NFPTE enjoyed exclusive recognition. In 1969, the P & T Department recognised rival unions and the Federation of National P & T Organisation (FNPTO). In spite of rivalry, the employees unions in P & T are very strong. The All India Railwaymen's Federation (AIRF) was formed in 1924. It has been one of the powerful trade unions in India under the eminent leadership of V.V. Giri, Jaya Prakash Narayan, N.M. Joshi, Peter 146 Alvares and George Fernandes. Till 1948, AIRF had the privilege of the exclusive recognition of the government. In 1949, the government also recognised a new organisation, namely the Indian National Railway Workers' Federation (INRWF). In 1953, a merger of the AIRF and INRWF took place and a new Federation in the name of National Federation of Indian Railwaymen (NFIR) came into existence. However, despite the unity efforts in 1957, the AIRF was revived. The former INRWF retained the name of NFIR. In 1974, a third Federation, viz., the Indian Railway Workers Federation was formed with the support of AITUC. There are also category-wise All India Associations, for Station Masters, Locomen Running Staff, Guards, Signals and Telecommunication Staff, Commercial Clerks, Ministerial Staff. The recognition of category-wise unions also became strong. 1.5:

Nature and Scope of Employees Union

95% MATCHING BLOCK 334/416 W

The organisation of employees was confronted with a number of problems during their growth and stabilisation. The most crucial problem was the struggle to achieve the right to form Unions/Associations. The Right of Association is central to the concept of constitutional democracy. It is difficult for anybody to function without freedom to associate with others. People find much of their identity in some form of group activity in economic, social, political and professional terms. It must be the obligation of the government to protect the right of Association from invasion and to refrain from making inroads into the right by its own activities. The Constitution of India under Article 19(1)(c) guarantees the right to form associations and unions to its citizens. It is natural that government employees also resort to take up association type of activity for protecting their service conditions.

91% MATCHING BLOCK 335/416 W

It is pertinent to note that the grant and continuance of recognition provides a legal status to the Union/Association

94% MATCHING BLOCK 336/416 W

to represent the grievances of employees, negotiate and bargain with the employer. Recognition encourages legitimate union activity. The Indian Trade Union Act, 1926 did not extend its provisions to the civil servants. The Trade Union Law has made no provision for compulsory recognition of unions by the employers. In spite of the limitations and restrictions the employees organisations focussed their grievances from time to time since the 1920s. To curb the mounting unrest and the threat of direct action, the government issued the Central Civil Services (Conduct) Rules, 1955 and they were amended in 1964. In 1959, a new set of Rules known as the Central Civil Service (Recognition of Service Associations) Rules, 1959 were made under Article 309 and clause 5 of Article 148 of the Constitution of India. The provisions of the Rules laid certain conditions for purposes of recognition: a) No person, who is not a government servant, is connected with the affairs of the Association. b) The executive of the Association is elected from amongst the members only. c) The Association shall not respond to support the cause of individual government servants. d) It shall not maintain any political fund or lend itself to the propagation of the views of any political party or politician. The Ministry of Labour issued separate rules for recognition of unions of workers who are industrial employees. According to these rules: a) The membership of

the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 337/416 W

union must be confined to workmen employed in the same industry or industries closely allied or connected with each other. 147 b) The union must be a representative of all workmen employed in that industry. No class of workmen must be excluded from membership. c) The union must be registered under the Trade Union Law. d) The union must make a suitable provision in their constitution regarding the procedure for declaring strikes. The Railway Ministry also issued another set of rules for the recognition of associations of Non-Gazetted Railway servants. However, they are not very different from the Rules of the Labour Ministry. The grant and continuance of recognition under the Labour and Railway Ministry's Rules rests with the discretion of the government and the Rules of Ministry of Home Affairs (Rules of Recognition, 1959) also provide recognition only when specified conditions are

99% MATCHING BLOCK 338/416 W

fulfilled. Except in the case of civil servants who are governed by the Recognition Rules of 1959, both Labour Ministry's rules and the Railway Ministry's rules permit the association of outsiders as the executive of the unions. However, the former employees and retired employees are allowed in civil service associations. The Recognition Rules of 1959 restricted the free movement of trade unions. According to the rules every association which seeks recognition has to submit a list of members and office bearers and must have at least 15 per cent of a distinct category of government servants as members. The rules were stringent and demanded liberal application of the rules. For a long time the government had not followed any clear policy in regard to recognition. The unions had to fight and struggle to get the recognition as different ministries had followed different recognition rules.

The Recognition Rules of 1959, have undergone a further change in the form of Central Civil Services (Recognition of Service Association) Rules, 1993. These Rules have been notified in part (II), Section 3, Sub-Section (I) of the Gazette of India dated 5 th November 1993. These Rules apply to all Service Association of Central Government employees including civilian employees in the defence services, but not to industrial employees of Ministry of Railways and workers employed in Defence installation of Ministry of Defence for whom separate Rules for Recognition exist. The Service Association which fulfils the following conditions may be recognised by the government, namely, a) An application for recognition of Service Association has been made to the Government containing Memorandum of Association, Constitution Bye-Laws of the Association, Names of the Office-Bearers, total membership and any other information as may be required by the Government; b) The Service Association has been formed primarily with the object of promoting the common service interest of its members; c) Membership of the Service Association has been restricted to a distinct category of Government Servants having common interest, all such Government Servants' being eligible for membership of the Service Association; d) (i) the Association represents minimum 35 per cent of total number of a category of employees provided that where there is only one Association which commands more than 35 per cent membership, another Association with second highest membership, although less than 35 per cent may be recognised if it commands at least 15 per cent membership; (ii) The membership of the Government Servant shall be automatically discontinued on his ceasing to belong to such a category; e) Government employees who are in service shall be members or office bearers of the Service Association; 148 f) The Service Association shall not be formed to represent the interests, or on the basis, of any caste, tribe or religious denomination or of any group within or section of such caste, tribe or religious denomination; g) The Executive of the Service Association has been appointed from amongst the members only; h) The funds of the Service Association consist inclusively of subscriptions from members and grants, if any made by the Government, are applied for the furtherance of the objects of the Service Association. 1.6: Summary

94% MATCHING BLOCK 339/416 W

Public employees have in many countries demanded the right to form Employees Unions. There is a high degree of variation among the public employee organisations and in the nature of formal relations between the unions and their governments. Their fundamental objectives are to get redressed of the grievances of the employees pertaining to the service conditions through joint consultation, collective bargaining and by direct action if felt necessary.

85% MATCHING BLOCK 340/416 W

Ultimately they have aimed at maintenance of harmonious relations between the government and employees by settling their problems through negotiations in a peaceful manner in order

100% MATCHING BLOCK 341/416 W

to promote efficiency protect merit system and improve the effectiveness of the administration. Contrary to what it might seem, trade unions are not only profitable to workers but are also beneficial to employers because they permit an employer to negotiate wages with greater simplicity, greater employee satisfaction resulting in higher productivity, reduction in employee turnover and better competitiveness due to ease in the change process. 1.7: Sample Questions Essay Type: 1. Discuss the evolution of employees union in India. 2. Analyse the changing nature and scope of employees union. Long Type: 1. Describe the functions of employees union. 2. Explain the various rules of recognition of employees union. Short Type: 1. Write a short note on definition of employees union. 2. Identify the importance of Indian Constitutional provisions for strengthening employees union. 1.8: Suggested Readings 149 Aggarwal, A.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 342/416 W

P. (1972). Freedom of Association in Public Employment. Journal of Indian Law Institute. 14(1): 1-20.

Goel, S.L. & Rajneesh, S. (2008). Public Personnel Administration Theory & Practice. New Delhi, India: Deep & Deep Publications Pvt. Ltd. Nigro, F.A. (1963). Public Personnel Administration. Pennsylvania, USA: Hott Rinehart and Winston. Rao V.B. (1978). Employer-Employee Relations. New Delhi, India: Concept Publishing House. Rao V.B. (2008). Public Administration: Steel or Plastic Frame. Delhi, India: Kalpaz Publications. Walters, M. and Mishel, L., 2003. How unions help all workers. [online] Economic Policy Institute. Unit-2: Joint Consultative Machinery Structure: 2.1: Objective- 2.2: Introduction 2.3: Definition and Functions of Joint Consultative Machinery 2.4: Evolution of Joint Consultative Machinery 2.5: Changing Nature and Scope of Joint Consultative Machinery
150 2.6: Summary 2.7: Sample Questions 2.8: Suggested Readings 2.1: Objective- After reading this unit, students should be able: (a)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 343/416 W

to understand the significance of the joint consultation in civil service staff relations (

b) to explain the evolution of joint consultative machinery (c)to provide an

95% MATCHING BLOCK 344/416 W

outline the functions of the Joint Consultative Councils and the Board of Arbitration (d) to evaluate the functioning of the Joint Consultative Machinery, and (f) to discuss suggestions for the improvement. 2.2: Introduction The history of the civil service staff relations is characterised by the recognition of the fact that employees at work like to be treated as human beings. The recognition of the human dignity was one of the cardinal factors that lead to the resolutions of the grievances of the employees in a peaceful manner, in democratic method and at regular periods. The early employer-employee relations in the government service followed the traditional pattern, where the government employees were expected to owe unquestionable loyalty to the State. Therefore, the conditions of service of the employees were determined unilaterally by the government without consulting the employees. The labour in the private sector secured benefits in matters of wages and working conditions as a result of effective labour organisation and militant actions. This led to the conviction among government employees' organisations that through joint and united efforts and concerted action only they could ensure improvement in their service conditions. Accordingly, the government employees resorted to strikes and brought pressure on the government to negotiate in good faith with its employees. They demanded the State 'to be a model employer for promoting sound employer- employee relations. Modern democratic governments with large-scale administrative organisations committed to the all-round development of the society cannot carry out their policies and programmes without the active cooperation and participation of

the

91% MATCHING BLOCK 345/416 W

employees. Therefore, harmonious staff relations are absolutely necessary for ad3ministrativeefficiency and it is not possible for the governments to maintain cordial relations without an effective form of consultation and negotiation. For this reason, the civil service staff relations policies and programmes must be consistently blasted on the principles of democratic government. Strikes by the government employees, it was realised, cannot be prohibited without

Joint Commutative

96% MATCHING BLOCK 346/416 W

providing suitable framework of joint consultation, collective negotiation procedures and methods of dispute settlement by compulsory arbitration. As such, establishment of a grievance redressed and disputes solving machinery was considered the "essential half-way house" between the unilateral imposition of conditions of service in the public employment by the state as employer on the one hand, and deadlocks and strikes on the other. It was felt that all matters relating to pay, hours of work and conditions of service may be negotiated by the representatives of the employees and the employer. Thus, the discussions in joint consultative bodies generally relate to the exchange of information and consideration of the suggestions for improving safety, security, health and welfare and increase of productive efficiency. The results of such mutual discussions usually take the shape of recommendations framing the final decision to the government. The emphasis in joint consultation is 151 mainly on informal method and cooperation based on common interests and good faith to improve the working conditions of employees and to increase the efficiency of administration. The simple aim of such relationship is to facilitate and promote peaceful resolution of conflicting interests. 2.3:

Definition and Functions of Joint Consultative Machinery

83% MATCHING BLOCK 347/416 W

After discussions between the government and the employees organisation, the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On many aspects of the scheme the employees organisations expressed doubts and opposed certain proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including inpustrial employees) under one umbrella. Therefore, there were discussions on many occasions at all levels for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair'trial be given to the scheme. Thus, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees

was

92% MATCHING BLOCK 348/416 W

inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was considered "opening of a new chapter" and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation. The Scheme was designed "with the object of promoting harmonious relations and securing the greatest measure of cooperation between the government and its employees in matters of common concern, and with the further object of increasing the efficiency of the public service combined with the well-being of those employed" The Scheme is a voluntary one. The government and the employees unions and associations who participate in the scheme are required to subscribe to a Declaration of Joint Intent. Accordingly, both the sides (the government and the staff associations and unions) agreed to a full and frank discussions on all matters in the Joint Councils to reach agreements. The unique feature of the Scheme is its coverage of both industrial and non-industrial of the government. In this regard it differs from the Whitley System which is concerned with only non-industrial civil service. Another difference is that the J.C.M. Scheme does not cover "the class I, class I1 services, employees of industrial establishment and the union territories and police personnel" Yet another difference is that the fundamental objective of Whitley System viz., to provide machinery for dealing with grievances and to bring together experience and points of view of representatives of different classes and grades of civil service is not stated in the J.C.M. Scheme.\ The J.C.M. provides for a three-tier structure and Joint Councils at the National, I ~departmental, regional and office

93% MATCHING BLOCK 349/416 W

levels. The J.C.M. Scheme is a bi-partite body consisting of the representatives of the government (official side) and the representations of the recognised employees organisations (staff side). The official side is nominated by the government and the staff side seats allocated to different associations/unions/federations recognised

by

88% MATCHING BLOCK 350/416 W

the government. The Scheme broadly covers about 3 million regular class I11 and IV civil employees of the Central Government including industrial employees working in the departmentally run undertakings like the Railways and workshops and production units of various ministries. Though the Indian J.C.M. Scheme was modelled after the Whitley System in U.K., the Indian Scheme could not inculcate in its scheme, the spirit and the long experience of the Whitley system. It is more a joint consultative machinery than a bi-partite participative agency. The Joint Councils deal with all matters concerning the conditions of work, standards of work, efficiency and staff welfare. However, in matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited only to matters of general principles and individual cases are not considered. The Councils may appoint Committees to study and report on any matter falling within t5eir scope. All the agreements reached between the official and staff sides of a council will become operative subject to the final authority of the Cabinet. If the matter is arbitral and a final disagreement were to be recorded it may be referred to 152 arbitration, if either side desires so. However, compulsory arbitration is not available at regional office council level.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 351/416 W

Compulsory arbitration is a part of the scheme for Joint Consultation Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration for Central Government Employees.

The

98% MATCHING BLOCK 352/416 W

government is required to appoint a Board of Arbitration under clause 19 of the scheme. The Board consists of three members. one is drawn from a panel of five names submitted by the official side, second from a similar panel submitted by the staff side of the National Council, and the third a Chairman, who is an independent. The Chairman and the members are selected by the Ministry of Labour. The first Board of Arbitration was established in July 1968. The jurisdiction of the arbitration matters is limited to: a) pay and allowance b) weekly hours of work and c) leave of 'a class or grade of employees'. Individual cases are not subject to compulsory arbitration. Guidelines are laid down for the Board of Arbitration to arrive at decisions and its jurisdiction in certain matters is barred. Further, matters determined by the government in accordance with the recommendations of a commission are not arbitrable for a period of five years from the date of the recommendations and orders issued by the Government in pursuance of the recommendations of the Board of Arbitration remain in operation for three years. The recommendations of the Board of Arbitration are binding on both the sides but the Parliament may modify or reject them on grounds of national economy or social justice. In the very first and second meetings of the National Council the government rejected to refer to the compulsory arbitration the major demands of the staff side like the 'need' based minimum wage, and merger of D. A. with basic pay. On this issue the employees went on a day's token strike on 16th September 1968 much against the Declaration of Joint Intent. During 1968-88, a total number of about 200 references were made to the Board of Arbitration and it gave 175 awards. In more than 150 cases the staff side either fully or partially benefited. The number of employees benefited due to the awards of the Board of Arbitration runs into millions. Most of the cases referred were pertained to pay scales and allowances. The arbitration awards clearly favoured the claims of the staff side. In a way, compulsory, arbitration in India contributed to development of harmonious staff relations in the Government of India. 2.4:

98% MATCHING BLOCK 353/416 W

Evolution of Joint Consultative Machinery It was the introduction of 'Whitleyism' in 1919 in the British Civil Service Staff relations hailed by several countries as the novel method in the area of human relations. The Whitley system which involves formal as well as informal consultations and negotiations leading to agreement or arbitration has been an example followed in a large number of countries of the British Commonwealth with certain modifications. The staff relations in the British Civil Service are maintained through Whitley councils method. The Civil Service National Whitley Council is responsible for joint consultation on conditions of service affecting civil servants in general irrespective of the department to which they belong. The Departmental Whitley Councils are responsible for staff matters within their departments. Local Whitley Committees discuss matters affecting the local working conditions and day-to-day problems. The Government of India and the organisations of employees struggled nearly for three decades to have staff relations on the pattern of Whitley Councils in the U.K. The issue was first raised in 1928 anti again in 1942. The Royal Commission on Labour in 1931 recommended the establishment of a joint standing machinery for Railways. However, the Home Department did not accept the proposals, in spite of the favourable attitude of the Labour Department. The government referred the matter to thc Central (First) Pay Commission in 1946 to enquire on "The machinery for negotiating and setting the questions relating to conditions of service which may arise out of differences between government and its employees".

With a concept to maintain a healthy employees- employer environment, the Union Govt started the Scheme for Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration in the year 1964 to settle the 153 matters related to the Central Govt employees through negotiations in a time bound manner. The scheme says that it has been introduced with the object of promoting harmonious relations and of securing the greatest measure of cooperation between the Government, in its capacity as employer, and the general body of its employees in matters of common concern, and with the object, further, of increasing the efficiency of the public service.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 354/416 W

Applicability 3. The Scheme covers all regular civil employees of the Central Government, except: a. the Class I services; b. the Class II services, other than the Central Secretariat Services and the other comparable services in the headquarters organization of the Government; c. persons in industrial establishments employed mainly in managerial or administrative capacity, and those who being employed in supervisory capacity draw salary in scales going beyond Rs. 2900/- per mensem; d. employees of the Union Territories; and e. police personnel. Scope of Joint Councils

65% MATCHING BLOCK 355/416 W

The scope of the Joint Councils includes all matters relating to conditions of service and work, welfare of employees and improvement of efficiency and standards of work, provided, however, that (i) in regard to

96% MATCHING BLOCK 356/416 W

matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited to matters of general principles only, and (ii) individual cases are not considered. While the National Council deals only with matters affecting Central Government employees generally, such as pay of common categories of staff, allowances, etc., the Departmental Council deals with matters affecting only the employees in the Ministries/Departments concerned. The Office/Regional Councils deal with regional or local issues only. Structure of Joint Councils The Scheme provides for setting up Joint Councils at the National, Departmental and Regional/Office levels. The National Council is the apex body. Its Constitution is given in Appendix III. The detailed rules governing the Conduct of Business of the National Council are given in Appendix IV. Departmental Councils under the Scheme are set up in the Ministries/Departments. A Model Constitution of the Departmental Council is added at Appendix V. There will normally be one Departmental Council for each Department. For two or more small Departments under a Ministry, there may, however, be a single Council, especially if the nature of duties in the departments are similar. The instructions governing the Conduct of Business of the Departmental Councils are at Appendix VI. There will also be Regional/Office Councils where the structure of a department permits the setting up of such a Council. The Model Constitution of the Office Council is at Appendix VII. Composition of various Joint Councils is as follows: Maximum number of representatives Official Side Staff Side National Council 25 60 Departmental Council 10 20 to 30 Office Council 5 8 The Chairman may, in addition, nominate any temporary member to the Official Side in connection with any particular item to be discussed at the meeting of the Council. Distribution of staff side seats Where there are two or more Unions/Associations representing different categories of staff the Chairman shall distribute the total permissible representation on the Council on the basis of the respective numerical strengths of the categories concerned. Where there are two or more Associations/Unions representing the same categories of staff the total permissible representation shall be distributed by the Chairman on the basis of the respective membership of each Union/Association. If there has been change in the membership of the Association/Union proportional representation given could only be changed after verification of membership to be done in the manner advised by the Chief Labour Commissioner. Distribution of seats may also be done by the Chairman in consultation with the Associations/Unions in any other manner acceptable to Associations/Unions. It further says that: Conduct of business in the Joint Councils: Frequency of Meetings The ordinary meetings of the Council shall be held as often as necessary, and not less than once in four months.

91% MATCHING BLOCK 357/416 W

A notice of an ordinary meeting shall be sent to all members not less than fifteen days before the date of the meeting. As far as may be possible, the date of the next ordinary meeting shall be fixed at each meeting of the Council. Meetings of the Joint Council at Office level shall be held at least once in two months. A special meeting of the Council may be called by the Chairman on his own or on a request from either the Official Side or from the Leader of the Staff Side. A notice of such a meeting shall be sent to all members not less than then days before the date of meeting. GOI decision The meetings of the Departmental councils should be held regularly in accordance with the relevant provisions in the rules for conduct of business of the various 154 Departmental Councils. (O.M. No. 4/1/67-JCA, dated 5-3-1968). Nomination of representatives on the Staff Side by recognized Employees' Organisations (1) At the commencement of the constitution and thereafter when occasions arise each recognized employees' organisation, which term shall include a Federation, a Confederation, an Association and a Union eligible for representation on the Council, shall be intimated in form 'A' the number of members it may nominate on the Council. (2) On receipt of intimation as in clause (1), a recognized employees' organization may intimate in form 'B' the names of its representatives nominated by its Executive Committee. (3) In the event of retirement, resignation, death etc. of a representative of an employees' organization such organization may nominate or, in the case or retirement re-nominate its representative in form 'C'. (4) On receipt of intimation under clause (2) and (3) above, as the case may be, the Chairman of the Council shall consider whether the nomination is in accordance with the provisions of the scheme and inform the employees' organization concerned. 2.5: Changing Nature and Scope of Joint Consultative Machinery

97% MATCHING BLOCK 358/416 W

As per the decisions of the Cabinet sub-committee the Staff Committees were renamed as Staff Councils without any change in their constitution, objects and the rules of procedure. A Coordinating Committee consisting of representatives of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Finance, Works, Housing and Supply and the concerned ministry was constituted to decide matters which remained unresolved in the Staff Councils. The Ministry administratively concerned with Staff Councils decide what matters should be brought before the Coordinating Committee. The Staff Councils during their existence (1954-59) made many recommendations. Most of them were accepted and implemented by different Ministries. But they were unimportant items like water coolers, transport facilities, grant of leave, office uniforms, canteen facilities, dispensaries and first aid boxes etc. Neither the machinery t of administration was improved nor the important grievances of the employees were redressed. The Second Pay Commission report observed "due to lack of will on the part of the Government to accept the principles of joint consultation failed as an effective instrument for prevention of the disputes." Therefore, the Second Pay Commission proposed that "the situation required the 'establishment of machinery which fully in spirit and largely in form followed the Whitley Machinery in the United Kingdom". Thus, the Staff Committees and Councils had "little in common with the Whitley Machinery" and failed to square up with the real Whitley spirit. In India, the government civil employees have not shown any remarkable preference for a joint consultative machinery. On the other, the government did not consult the organisations of the employees when it introduced the Staff Committees and Councils. It was a unilateral attempt for a bilateral purpose. The Whitley cause also could not be served in the absence of arbitration machinery for resolving the disputed matters. Further, due to thcir advisory nature the scope of the Staff Committees/Councils and their activities were much restricted and the way in which they were handled by the officers further limited their utility. There was no Central Joint Staff Council like the National Whitley Council to consider issues of common and general application to all the employees of the Ministries. As the Civil Service Unions Associations were not involved, the organised sections of employees declared no faith, rejected the Councils and considered them as "merely eye-wash". The officials at the top level were responsible for the ineffective functioning of Staff Councils for want of Whitley thinking. The staff representatives on the Committees/Councils lacked the necessary leadership to represent their views effectively. In actual practice, they merely acted as forums for the staff to ventilate their grievances and put forward them to the nominees of the government in the Staff Councils.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 359/416 W

In 1960, the Central Government employees went on strike for five days from July 11-16. One of their demands was the establishment of joint consultative machinery (J.C.M.). Immediately, the Government decided to set up the J.C.M. and proposed a scheme. Accordingly, three-tier machinery with joint 155 consultation at the Central, the Departmental and regional and local levels as supplementary to existing arrangements was ' proposed. The scheme covered all the civil employees of the Central Government including the P&T Department, Civil Aviation Department and the Ministry o Defence. The Scheme proposed an arbitration tribunal with a limited compulsory arbitration provision. The government during 1960-61 proposed to bring two bills before the Parliament to give statutory effect to the proposed J.C.M. and ban strikes by government employees. The employees' organisations protected against the proposals of the government and refused to give up right to strike and disassociate outsiders from their organisations. After discussions between the government and the employees organisations, the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On many aspects of the scheme the employees organisations expressed doubts and opposed certain proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including inpustrial employees) under one umbrella. Therefore, there were discussions on many occasions at all levels for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair trial be given to the scheme. Thus, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees was inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was considered "opening of a new chapter" and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation. 2.6:

Summary

100% MATCHING BLOCK 360/416 W

Despite the limitations of the scope and jurisdiction of the joint consultation and arbitration, the Government and Civil Service Unions realised the utility of the scheme over a period time. If the scope of the joint consultation is widened and full opportunities are provided for the staff to participate in administration it is easy to secure the cooperation of the staff and responsibility in personnel administration. Further, the official side has to change much of its bureaucratic attitude to the problems of the employees and towards the spirit of joint consultation and negotiation. 2.7:

Sample Questions Essay Type: 1. Discuss the rationale for establishment of joint consultative machinery. 2. Analyse the various stages of evolution of joint consultative machinery. Long Type: 1. Describe the role of arbitration in joint consultative machinery 2. Explain the various efforts of Government of India towards establishing joint consultative machinery. Short Type: 1. Write a short note on staff council 2. Identify the scenario in Britain leading to formation of joint consultative machinery. 2.8: Suggested Readings

93% MATCHING BLOCK 361/416 W

Bhaskara Rao V. 1978. Employer-Employee Relations: A Critical Study of 156 Government of India and its Employees, Concept Publishing House. Delhi. Henry Parris, 1973. Staff Relations in the Civil Service - Fifty Years of Whitleyism, George Allen & Unwin Ltd.: London. Saxena Pradeep, 1987. Personnel Administration and Management, Printwell Publishers: Jaipur.

Unit-3: Rights of Public Servants Structure: 3.1: Objective- 3.2: Introduction 3.3: Classification of Rights 3.4: Effects of Right of Public Servants 3.5: Employee-Employer relation and Rights of Public Servants 3.6: Summary 3.7: Sample Questions 3.8: Suggested Readings 3.1: Objective- The objective of the unit is to make the students understand the basic argument of rights of public servants so that they should be able to: (a)

92% MATCHING BLOCK 362/416 W

explain the fundamental and other rights guaranteed to the citizens and the public servants (b)discuss the restrictions imposed by the government in exercise of the rights by Public Servants (c)highlight the service rights of the government employees. (

d)employment relationship is the legal link between employers and employees. It exists when a person performs work or services under certain conditions in return for remuneration. (e) the key point of reference for determining the nature and extent of employers'

93% MATCHING BLOCK 363/416 W

rights and obligations towards their workers. 157 3.2: Introduction In regard to various rights of public servants, different countries have evolved different systems of rights over a period of time depending upon the genius of their peoples their historical background, the stage of their economic development and their political and administrative structure. The public servants are first citizens and then employees. But they have a special duty to maintain the structure of the states' Law and Order. There is a special status of double status applicable to the employees as citizens and as Public Servants. Their position is closely related to the conception of democratic government which expects employees to render

100% MATCHING BLOCK 364/416 W

faithful service to all the people, without the thought of their own interests. There are also arguments that public employees must be granted the role of ,the normal citizen even though they are public employees and they cannot be treated as second class citizens.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 365/416 W

The constitutions of different countries guarantee certain fundamental rights to all the citizens irrespective of birth, caste, creed, colour

or

100% MATCHING BLOCK 366/416 W

sex. The public servants are the citizens of the country, constitutions empower the states to regulate their rights and impose obligations on the public servants.

The employment relationship is the legal link between employers and employees. It exists when a person performs work or services under certain conditions in return for remuneration. It is through the employment relationship, however defined, that reciprocal rights and obligations are created between the employee and the employer. It has been, and continues to be, the main vehicle through which workers gain access to the rights and benefits associated with employment in the areas of labour law and social security. The issue has become more and more important because of the increasingly widespread phenomenon of dependent workers who lack protection because of one or a combination of the following factors: (a) the scope of the law is too narrow or it is too narrowly interpreted; (b) the law is poorly or ambiguously formulated so that its scope is unclear; (c) the employment relationship is disguised; (d) the relationship is objectively ambiguous, giving rise to doubt as to whether or not an employment relationship really exists; (e) the employment relationship clearly exists but it is not clear who the employer is, what rights the worker has and who is responsible for them; and (f) lack of compliance and enforcement. 3.3: Classification of Rights The rights guaranteed to the citizen by the Constitution may be classified into following: 1.

89% MATCHING BLOCK 367/416 W

Personal Rights Some of the personal rights are: 158 a) Right to life and liberty: The private life of an individual is considered a matter of his conscience, freedom of which is guaranteed by all the states. The Constitution of India (Article 21) provides protection of life and liberty to all persons. It includes also the freedom of movement. b) Equality before law and equal protection of law (Article 14): It means that the state cannot discriminate the citizens on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex, or place of birth. However, Article 15 provides protective discrimination and reservations for women, children, backward castes, scheduled castes and scheduled tribes as "Socially and Educationally Backward Classes of Citizens" in the matters of education and employment.

c)

91% MATCHING BLOCK 368/416 W

Right to freedom of Religion (Articles 25-28): Under this right, all persons have the freedom of coscience and the right to profess, practise and propagate religion under certain regulations. d) Right to private property: Under this right all the persons may acquire, hold and dispose property. e) Right to practise any profession or to carry out any occupation, trade or business.\ The Constitution guarantees all these rights to the citizens, but in regard to the public servants, the state regulates their personal conduct and private relationships which tend to affect their integrity, reputation, confidence and the dignity of the public office. Therefore, the governments through Civil Servants Conduct Rules and Codes prescribed and regulated the required behaviour from the public employees. The relationship between the government and the civil servants rests on contractual basis Any breach of the code, conduct rules and the contract leads to different types of punishment, dismissal from service. However, the imposition of these restrictions is not an abrogation of their fundamental rights or an invasion of fundamental rights 2. Civil Rights With regard to civil servants, civil life, the state regulates their conduct and private relationship in so far as they tend to affect their integrity and reputation. In view of this, certain restrictions are placed on an official's right to take part in private business. In most cases, it is positively forbidden for an official to have any business dealings in the fields with which helshe comes into contact in the ordinary course of him/her duties. The temptations which might arise could place an unreasonable - strain on one's integrity, particularly if his official duties require him to control certain branches of business. Therefore, certain restrictions, limitations are imposed by the Civil Service Regulations. Except with the previous permission of the government, no civil servant can engage in trade or business or in support of the business owned or managed by any members of the family. American government restricts the personal right of civil servants in the sense that they cannot coach anybody either individually or in group in order to prepare him/her for taking the competitive examinations for entry into government service. It is improper for any government servant to be associated with any such programme either by way of tuition or in any other manner. The government servants cannot accept the membership of such societies, institutions or clubs which oblige their members to go on strike in pursuance of their objectives. But with the framework of the rules the federal employees have the right to petition to the Congress either individually or collectively. In France the civil servants enjoy civic rights more than any other country. They may join any political party. They have the right to strike. These rights have wide and far-reaching consequences. The government servants in India, U.K. and U.S.A. do not have such rights. Right to Contract Freedom of contract is a fundamental right of the citizens. In view of the integrity and impartiality, for the civil service this right to contract is restricted.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 369/416 W

Right to Vindication of his Acts or Character In parliamentary democracy where the civil servants are expected to be in the background and where they are supposed to be neutral, the minister holds responsibility for the commissions and omissions of the civil servants. As such, in India, the civil servants are precluded from taking recourse to a law court or to the 159 press for the vindication of any of their official acts which has been subject matter of adverse criticism or attach of defamatory character. However, in France, the civil servants have the right to file suits in the courts against such administrative decisions which have an adverse impact on the collective interests of the civil service and in the event of violation of rules and norms of personnel administration. The government employees are also required to so manage their personal affairs as to avoid habitual indebtedness of insolvency as it affects their own reputation as well as the government. Subscriptions and Gifts Civil servants are not allowed to ask for or accept any contributions or associating themselves with the raising of any fund in pursuance of any object. It was declared that in the interest of maintaining the efficiency and integrity of government employees, it is essential to prevent them from soliciting or receiving funds for any purpose unconnected with his office. Public employees also cannot accept any gifts. Even their family members are also not permitted to accept any such gifts. They have to report to the government when they accept any gifts and seek permission of the government to accept them. 3.

87% MATCHING BLOCK 370/416 W

Political Rights The right of political activities of the public servants in a democratic government is determined by the constitutional theory of government. Political neutrality of civil servants has been regarded as one of the cardinal conditions for the success of a democratic government While the concept of political neutrality has been kept intact, particularly of the higher civil service, a distinction has been drawn between national and local political activities. The civil servants has been classified into (a) the politically free group (b) the political activity, subject to permission. In regard to local political activities, barring those civil servants who are required to obtain permission for participation, all others allowed to take part in those activities. A civil servant in the politically free group who is contesting for parliament is obliged to submit his resignation before nomination. He is entitled to be reinstated in the post whether he is elected to parliament or not. All staff in the intermediate and restricted groups who have not been given permission to engage in any of the political activities are expected at all times to maintain a reserve in political matters and not to put themselves forward prominently on one side or the other. 4.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 371/416 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 372/416 W

91% MATCHING BLOCK 373/416 W

Trade Union Rights Right to Association The public servants in Australia and France enjoy the right to association with trade unions. In Canada, India, Germany and England certain restrictions are imposed upon public servants' right to association. In Germany its Civil Servants may join or form only those associations whose objectives are in keeping the objectives of existing constitutional order only. In Canada and England the public servants are not allowed to associate with outside unions. In India the right to association has been guaranteed to every citizen. Public Servants, therefore, are free to form associations or join associations already in existence, but the government would consult or negotiate with only those associations which have been recognised by it. In United States the public employees are legally free to form associations and unions and to associate themselves with outside associations or organisations. Right to Strike Whether the civil servant's right to strike is granted or not, this right is exercised widely in India, France, Canada, Australia, America and in England. In England the public servants are not denied the right to strike under the law. In France they have the right to strike. In Germany, however, public servants right to strike does not exist under the law. The penalties for violating the law include loss of one's job. In India all non-industrial public servants are denied the right to strike the law. The public employees in America do not have right to strike, under the provisions of the Act of 1947 strikes by the Government Servants 160 had been declared illegal. In all the countries, wherever the employees go on illegal strikes, penalties or punishments are awarded as per the disciplinary or Conduct Rules. 5. Service Rights Civil Service has a special relationship with its government when compared to the relationship between employer and employee in private employment. The civil service enjoys good prospects of public employment like the security of tenure, career, service facilities, superannuate benefits. On the other it maintains relations with the public in whom the state sovereignty lies. As such the civil service occupies a key position in the government. Therefore, the state provides certain service rights to the employees to enable them to discharge their rightful job in the right manner. Appointment Today, the public employer in democratic countries guarantees equal protection of the laws to all citizens seeming public employment. However, under the constitutional provisions or executive orders certain 'reservations' are made to the minorities and backward communities and socially weak. The judiciary has viewed such representative public services as desirable. However, the principle of equality of opportunity cannot be denied by the process of selection. But, discriminatory law in respect of residential\ qualifications, age, language, etc., may be enacted by the state. Thus, in India, reservations are provided in public employment rights. The state is empowered to require every able-bodied person within its jurisdiction to work for a reasonable period for "public purposes" such as Defence services, Home guards, social services etc. Public employees are expected to serve anywhere under any conditions prescribed by the government. Lie Tenure Public employment is more attractive dueto its life tenure and prestige attached to it. However, the sovereign employer enjoys the pleasure to terminate, dismiss the services of any employee, without assigning any reasons for such kind of action. The principle of 'during the pleasure of the government' has now been converted in practice into 'during the good behaviour'.

The civil servants are also entitled to certain privileges, facilities, allowances, advancements and promotions under the rules prescribed from time to time. The government cannot alter the conditions of their service to the disadvantage of the employees except by changing the existing Laws and

100% MATCHING BLOCK 374/416 W

Rules. Procedural safeguards in the event of removal or dismissal The constitution and the rules framed under the provisions of the constitution provides certain important procedural safeguards to prevent any injustice. Any punishment can be imported on the civil servant only according to prescribed procedure, which is laid down in India under Classification, Control and Appeal Rules (CCA Rules). As per the Rules no civil servant can be removed or dismissed by an authority subordinate to the one who appointed him. No one can be removed or dismissed until the civil servant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken. Compulsory retirement before the age of superannuation is not considered removal or dismissal as there is no substantial loss of accrued service benefits like pension etc. 3.4:

Effects of Right of Public Servants

98% MATCHING BLOCK 375/416 W

Although the service tenure of all government employees is at the pleasure of the government, normally, they hold office during the good behaviour and their terms of service are regulated by Executive Rules and Administrative orders. Such of the Rules and Orders are issued subject to the provisions of the constitution. Sometimes the government is required to consult the public service commission for their opinion. Therefore, the governments cannot make rules and change rules without constitutional authority, 161 The government is further required to place these rules and regulations on the Table of the Legislature for their approval. Thus, the civil servants enjoy privileges and rights guaranteed by the constitution. The civil servants are not at the mercy of the executive government without changing the existing rules.

A general discussion took place on the scope of the employment relationship in 2003 and in 2006 the International Labour Conference adopted the Recommendation (No. 198) concerning the Employment Relationship . This Recommendation covers: • the formulation and application of a national policy for reviewing at appropriate intervals and, if necessary, clarifying and adapting the scope of relevant laws and regulations, in order to guarantee effective protection for workers who perform work in the context of an employment relationship; • the determination - via a listing of pertinent criteria - of the existence of such a relationship, relying on the facts relating to the performance of work and the remuneration of the worker, notwithstanding how the relationship is characterized in any contrary arrangement that may have been agreed between the parties; and • the establishment of an appropriate mechanism - or the use of an existing one - for monitoring developments in the labour market and the organization of work so as to be able to formulate advice on the adoption and implementation of measures concerning the employment relationship. In preparation for these discussions at the ILC, the Office undertook a number of national studies that demonstrate that many workers suffer from a lack of protection arising from disguised or ambiguous employment relationships, relationships that fall outside the scope of legislation, are under-regulated, or are ignored by enforcement bodies. The ILO, furthermore, assists constituents in developing national policies and setting up monitoring and implementation mechanisms. It also promotes good practices at the national and international levels concerning the determination and use of employment relationships. 3.5: Employee-Employer relation and Rights of Public Servants In most democratic countries public servants have to seek prior permission of the competent authorities for publishing a book or article or for speaking to general audiences. However, Australia takes a somewhat more lenient attitude towards the violation of these norms by its civil servants than Canada, India or England. in the United States of America the Hatch Act of 1939 allowed its federal employees to express their views on political subjects, rather than only to express them privately. However, at the same time, it proclaimed that the Act was intended to prohibit the same activities that the Civil Service Commission considered legitimate under 1907 Regulations, which allowed only private expression. The second Hatch Act of 1940 extended these regulations to positions in state employment and allowed public employees to express their opinion on 'candidates' as well as on political subjects. A French official outside his office can criticise the government and express views contrary to the general policy of government. But he cannot express personal criticism directed towards the work of the particular service to which he belongs. Similarly in Germany, outside the service a public servant can express his personal opinions on political questions also. He cannot adopt a standpoint which is in opposition to the government. But he must have a certain regard for his position. The law of 1953 obliges him to exercise that moderation and discretion with regard to political activities which ificrimbent upon him in his position as servant of the community. In India, the Civil Servants cannot express against any policy or action of the government. They cannot also express on any matter pertaining to politics of parties and matters of public controversy. 162 Criticism of Government Policy According to the Civil Service (Conduct) Rules in India, government servants are not permitted to communicate anything to the press, make any public utterance, make any statement of fact or opinion which has the effect of an adverse criticism of any policy of the government or which leads to embarrassing relations between the internalgovernmental agencies and the governments of foreign states. The employees are also forbidden from giving any evidence without prior permission to any inquiry which is not duly authorised. The purpose of this restriction is to maintain the political neutrality of the civil services and to keep them away from public controversies and to enable the civil servants to serve the government of the day with all the loyalty. In Britain, the civil servants have freedom to express their opinions on non-political matters of public importance provided they do not direct their activities towards any party politics. In U.S.A. the government may restrict the exercise by itsemployees of their right to criticise government policy. The employees may be disciplined: a) if their criticism is false and is made with actual malice, b) if criticism involves disclosure of\ information which is confidential, c) if the criticism is made outside the channels prescribed by, or is in violation of a statute, Executive order or regulation, and d) if the criticism adversely affects job performances, discipline, work relationships or the goals of the organisation. Speech and Expression on Political Matters In India the civil servants are prohibited from participating in any political activity and movement. They cannot make any public expression of their views other than those of purely literary, scientific or artistic nature. They are restricted from participating in any way in the editing, managing any publication. Thus, they are completely deprived of the freedom of press. In Britain, the civil servants those who involve in the formulation and execution of public policy (executive group) have no freedom of expression on political matters. However, the Minor and Manipulative Groups, whose duties are of only routine character have freedom to political expression as well as activity. 3.6:

99% MATCHING BLOCK 376/416 W

Summary Though the civil servants are more enlightened citizens,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 377/416 W

all the rights guaranteed by the constitutions of different countries, do not guarantee such rights to their public employees. The grant of different rights and their denial is governed by the theory of the constitutional government and the place and role assigned to the public servants. The government servants for this purpose are classified into Industrial, Non- industrial, Administrative and Clerical, Ministerial and accordingly were given the rights depending upon their extent and nature of participation in the arrangement of public offices. All the governments in theory believe in the concept of sovereign employer in which the public employers are 'Government Servants', required

to

100% MATCHING BLOCK 378/416 W

conduct themselves under a framework of Rules, Regulations. However, they are not second class citizens but enjoy certain privileges and facilities more than the ordinary citizen. 2.7:

Sample Questions Essay Type: 1. Discuss the effect of rights of public servants on employee-employer relation. 2. Analyse the various types of rights of public servants. Long Type:
163 1. Describe the ways in which trade union rights are different from service rights 2. Explain the contribution of democratic political system in maintaining rights of public servants Short Type: 1. Write a short note on International Labour Organisation principles on rights 2. Identify the features of political rights of public servants 3.8: Suggested Readings

100% MATCHING BLOCK 379/416 W

Singh Biswanath. 1964. 'Political Rights of Civil Servants in India' Indian Journal of Public Administration, Vol. X I , No. 2. Parris Henry, 1973.

Civil Service Staff Relations,

91% MATCHING BLOCK 380/416 W

Allen & Unwin: London. Jay M. Shafrit, Walter L.. Balk, Albert C. Hyde, and David H. Rosenbloom. 1971. Personnel Management in Government : Politics and Process, Marcel Dekker. New York. Tyagi A.R. 1961. Rights and Obligations of Civil Servants in India. Atma Ram & Sons: Delhi.

Unit-4: Motivation and Morale Structure: 4.1: Objective- 4.2: Introduction 4.3: Definition, Objective and Type of Motivation 4.4: Definition, Factors and Type of Morale
164 4.5: Measures to improve Motivation and Morale 4.6: Summary 4.7: Sample Questions 4.8: Suggested Readings 4.1: Objective- Objective of this unit is to make students : (a)

91% MATCHING BLOCK 381/416 W

understand the importance of human factor in an organisation, which will have a significant impact upon over all organisational out-put (b)outline the findings of the psychologists and behaviouralists from the viewpoint of human relations (c)realise that motivation and morale are caused by management policies and practices (d)explain the meaning of motivation and morale along with the factors effecting them know about the different types of motivation and morale causing the organisational efficiency (e)analyse some important measures in building morale, through workable motivational methods. 4.2: Introduction

The problem of human behaviour is fundamental and instinctive in any organisational set-up. It is a complicated issue for the organisation to make its members to adjust themselves to the needs of organisation. They necessarily sacrifice their own independence on various types of group and associational membership. Their voluntary behaviour needs to be changed into required behaviour in the general interest of the organisation. Under the influence of the required behaviour, the individual assumes the responsibilities and expresses loyalties and commitments towards the organisation as a whole. There are different methods, to turn the voluntary behaviour into a required behaviour. Perhaps no area of personnel administration has been more debated than human motivation due to the development of the scientific knowledge about human behaviour. The movement of behavioural revolution contributed much for better understanding of human behaviour. During early era of personnel administration as being different from the efficiency experts, they approached the problem of increasing efficiency as a human relation problem rather than as a mechanical one. Hence the felines and behaviour of employees are considered in personnel system. Normally, the driving force, so pervasive in history and so common among all races and seems to be composed both of an inner need to achieve and a response to external challenges. It is felt that what an individual believes about himself has a profound effect on how he behaves.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 382/416 W

To

98% MATCHING BLOCK 383/416 W

understand any individual we need to know what he thinks, what values he holds, what his goals are, as well as how his basic biological and social needs are met and what abilities he has. Therefore, drive and motivation is of utmost importance as it constitutes the base for the administrative function of planning and organising. The personnel department of an organisation must devote considerable time and efforts in for and achieving high level of morale. Because it is the only solution for the problems arising like employees feeling alienated and organisational goals, underutilisation of their potential skills and capabilities to achieve optimisation and feeling of frustration while discharging their duties. Hence motivation should be the continuous process for effective functioning of the organisation 165 4.3:

Definition, Objective and Type

94% MATCHING BLOCK 384/416 W

of Motivation The term motivation is derived from the Latin word 'emovere' which means 'to move'. Motivation is the complex of psychological forces. Motivation is something that moves person into action and inspires him to continue in the course of action already initiated. There are different definitions of motivation. Stanlay Vanace opines that 'motivation implies any motion or desire which so conditioned one's will that the individual is propelled into action'. Dale and Beach felt motivation as 'a willingness to expend energy to achieve a goal or reward'. Shartte understood motivation as 'a reported urge or tension to move in a given direction or to achieve certain goals'. According to the above definitions motivation is considered as the art of stimulating people to take desired course of action. It involves arousing needs and desires by impelling individuals towards purposive behaviour. A motive is a need or desire which directs the behaviour. It reflects an urge to move in an expected manner to achieve a specified goal. It results when the needs of an employee are satisfied through proper incentives and rewards. Human behaviour is the result of their desires, needs and wants and motivation involves creation of a will to work for accomplishment of institutional goals. Without needs there can be no motivation and one of the biggest problems in motivating the employees is that one does not have the same needs. Moreover motivation is influenced by a number of factors both inside and outside the organisation. Motivation requires the identification of personal goals with institutional goals.

According to

97% MATCHING BLOCK 385/416 W

Skinner motivation objectively exists to make an individual being learn what may regarded as positive behaviour i.e. desirable behaviour. Abraham Maslow observes that the objective of motivation is always to create a need for an individual. It is just like the process of lower needs being satisfied and the higher needs gradually emerging (Hierarchy or Needs). Frederick Herzberg felt that the important objective of motivation is to provide opportunities to become a better expert on one's job, to handle more demanding assignments, to control one's own work rather than be supervised. Mclelland opined that the objective of motivation is to create a strong desire in an individual, where he derives a special kind of joy in successfully attaining an objective in accomplishing a task. in facing up to a challenge rather than monetary or other rewards. Victor Wroom thinks that motivation should work as a means of communication for increasing positive values in the employees. Obviously the objectives of motivation are to increase efficiency by good performance. Motives are abundant and divergent. There is no single strategy that will motivate the employees forever and everywhere. The motives for individuals to work

99% MATCHING BLOCK 386/416 W

are numerous There are basically two types of motivation: a) Negative motivation, and b) Positive motivation. Negative Motivation The traditional form of motivation emphasises more on authority. This approach consists of forcing people to work by threatening to fire them if they do not. It believes that man is inherently lazy, pleasure seeking,\ despises work. To prevent him from doing so, there must be close supervision. This approach further assumes that employees' performance would be increased by fear, which causes the people to act in a certain way. Because they are afraid of the consequences like, lay-off, demotions, and dismissals. This approach paid off fairly well in the early days of the industrial revolution when workers and their families were so close to starvation. Imposition of punishment frequently results in frustration among those punished, leading to the development of maladaptive behaviour. The negative motivation also creates a hostile state of mind and unfavourable attitude to the job. The approach of negative motivation had proved to be ineffective as the employees were responding to them perversely. In recent years, however, people have begun to expect more from their jobs than sheer punishment. 166 Positive Motivation The behavioural approach is much sophisticated than traditional approach which recognises the importance of positive aspects of motivation. Positive motivation involves the possibility of increased motive satisfaction. Positive motivation is a process of attempting to influence others to do their best, and thereby adopting good human relations. It seeks to create an environment which will make the individual talent flourish and encourages informal communications positively. Positive motivation is generally based on rewards. The positive motivation may be extrinsic or intrinsic. The extrinsic motivators can be enjoyed after completion of work. The intrinsic factors are those which occur at the time of performance of work. Since positive motivation appears to be more workable, now let us discuss the role of some positive motivators, which promote efficiency. 4.4:

Definition, Factors and Type of Morale Though the

95% MATCHING BLOCK 387/416 W

organisation's focus is always on performance, based on wst-benefit approach, it was felt imperative to consider the issue of morale in a wider perspective. From the institutional pin1 of view, the problem of employee's morale is that of stimulating a feeiing of togetherness, a sense of identification with the job. It is more conducive to the achievement of institutional goals. It Is important because performance and efficiency of operation depends upon employee's morale.

To

99% MATCHING BLOCK 388/416 W

attain these high standards of morale it is essential to enlist the feelings of employees and their abilities in the work. 'Morale' is an attitude of satisfaction with desire to continue in and willingness to strive for the goals of a particular organisation. There are two important elements. Firstly, that the individual shares the purpose which gives him enthusiasm, energy and self-discipline. Secondly, the responsibility of the authorities to infuse the feeling of togetherness, a sense of identification and his consideration for other members of the institution. Further, morale is viewed as 'the capacity of a group to pull together persistently and ' consistently in pursuit of common purpose'. This capacity is subjective and differs from person to person depending upon the people's interest in a particular work. This capacity is inherent in every individual and is seen in their attitudes towards particular work.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 389/416 W

There appear to be two groups of morale i.e., a) Individual and b) Group morale Individual Morale The components of morale are still rather elusive, despite growing agreement upon several generalisations. One of these generalisations is that the group climate must provide opportunity for individual self-expression or self-accommodation by the members of the group. Another is that the occupational context must furnish outlets for the individuals pride in his own workmanship. Still another and more important is that members of the group must find it easy to accept the purposes and values of the group as their own so that they have a sense of belonging to the group or identity with it. All these may be described as individualistic bases of morale. Group Morale Hawthorne studies pointed out, pride in group is an important component of morale. Employees like to belong to be part of and be accepted by the group even where and employee dislikes the actual work itself. He may have high morale, stemming from his pleasure of group with his group work. Where there is a well integrated group, there would be high group morale, as well as individual morale. Since good supervision correlated.with good group morale, special attention should be paid to the training programme of supervisory staff. Whether it is group or individual morale, it must be evaluated from time to time in the interest of the organisation. There are four factors which effect the morale of the employees in an organisation. They are as follows: i) The organisation itself(ii) Nature of work of employee(iii) Supervisory techniques(iv) Fellow employees

98% MATCHING BLOCK 390/416 W

Whether of an individual or a group, the level of morale must be observed and expressed largely in terms of complex reactions. Most employers who are concerned with employee morale 167 recognise the necessity for careful analysis of all expressions of employee reactions. There are several methods of survey of morale. Some of the methods are as under: Attitude Survey These surveys depend upon questionnaires, which are administered orally or in writing from any employees. By answering these questionnaires, employees indicate their attitude towards a wide range of conditions related to their work. Analysis of their replies provides a guide to general levels of morale as well as more specific indications of their likes and dislikes in the prevailing employment situation. Morale Interviews By frequent and periodic interviews with employees their morale can be assessed. In these visits, the interviewer encourages the employeeto speak freely and frankly in respect of his job, his supervisors, his fellow employees, and any other conditions affecting his employment without any fear or hazard to his status in the organisation. Spies and Informers In earlier times the employers are used to hire spies and placed them in various departments for the specific purpose of finding out what employees thought of their jobs and of working conditions in the organisation. After formation of employees unions and associations this practice was almost given up and it became outdated. Morale survey methods are varied from one organisation to another. However, it all depends upon the nature of the work of employee, organisation, authorities' outlook, and size of the organisation etc. Indices of Morale, as it is an attendant condition of an activity rather than an activity itself, can be measured only indirectly. The following are some of the indices of employee's morale. a) Absenteeism: Where there is high morale, employees make efforts to be on time and avoid absence. A high rate of absenteeism indicates poor morale. b) Turnover: Sometimes greater turnover of labour may be included in the indices of poor morale. It may not be true in all cases. Young employees in unskilled jobs have higher turnover rate than older employees in higher positions. c) Grievances: Some grievances may arise out of poor morale. d) Output Level: High level of output may indicate high level of morale but the output may be increased even by fear. The employees with higher level of morale may produce low output due to substandard tools or deliberate plan to restrict output. These may not be the proper measuring rods of morale. But the level of output will also exhibit the level of morale. 4.5: Measures to Improve

Motivation and Morale The exact nature and extent of motivator would depend upon the internal and external factors prevailing in a given organisation. Some of the important motivators which can promote efficiency are: Job enrichment; Delegation of authority; Job security; Status and pride; Participation;

100% MATCHING BLOCK 391/416 W

Congenial work environment. Motivation is some form of exchange between the individual and his work environment. The congenial work environment gives to the individual sets of preference or values which constitute the goals towards which the instinctual drives are expressed. Further, the work environment is the source of norms of behaviour which draws the lines between good and bad, right and wrong, legitimate and illegitimate.

89% MATCHING BLOCK 392/416 W

Morale is not static. It is subject to daily, or even to monetary fluctuations. It is also subject to long-term secular trends. It is useful to think of long-term morale trends as responses to pressures and supports. Usually policy on morale seeks to develop and maintain high levels of morale among employees through appropriate means. The following measures are suggested for morale building: 168 Job Satisfaction: The personnel policy should make jobs as interesting and satisfying as possible; it tends to encourage a favourable and enthusiastic group action. Job Training: Job training, orientation, education, apprentice training and a broad variety of general educational efforts will help in building up employees' morale. Recognition of Aspirations: Recognition of individual aspirations and goals, and definite provision of means by which such goals can be achieved will go a long way in boosting morale. Unrest: A careful study must be

84% MATCHING BLOCK 393/416 W

made on various indices of employees unrest, with the ultimate objective of constructive guidance and action. Counselling Interviews: Counselling Interviews help to discover the feelings of employees. Opportunities: promising opportunities like good promotional avenues, good working conditions, satisfactory remuneration and other benefits for personal development. Relations: The supervisory staff should ensure, human relations, informal relations, fact finding and adopt participative and employee orientated attitude. Facilities: Apart from the above measures, the facilities lik'e, transport, housing, health, family welfare, children's education, and other recreational facilities would also help in building up employees morale. 4.6:

Summary

83% MATCHING BLOCK 394/416 W

Motivation and morale are the two sides of a coin. In fact, the level of performance of an individual is a function of both motivation and morale, the former determines what\ one will do while the latter determines what one

100% MATCHING BLOCK 395/416 W

can do. Morale is an outcome of motivation. Motivation is an internal mechanism, which results in one's willingness to devote time and energy to the needs of an organisation. Many behaviouralists like Maslow and Herberg have examined the problem of motivation, and they have observed that the ultimate objective of motivation is to work for betterment of organisation and individual as well.

For

100% MATCHING BLOCK 396/416 W

the management, it is unavoidable to a considerable attention towards maintenance of high level of morale among their employees. Factors influencing morale are various. The problem of an organisation will become the base for selection of the factors that motivate employees to work with morale. Fluctuation in levels of employees morale is not unusual. However, the type of motivation will be the responsible factor for such changes.

The

100% MATCHING BLOCK 397/416 W

primary responsibility of all personnel managers is to see that the desired level of morale is maintained among their employees by periodical check up. 4.7:

Sample Questions Essay Type: 1. Discuss the definition and objective of motivation. 2. Analyse the various ways in which morale can be uplifted. Long Type: 1. Describe the ways in which motivation can be increased 2. Explain the factors for measuring morale. Short Type: 1. Write a short note on Abraham Maslow on motivation 169 2. Define morale 4.8: Suggested Readings

100% MATCHING BLOCK 398/416 W

Pigors Paul & Charless, A Myer, 1973. Personnel Administration: A. Point of View & a Method, McGraw Hill: New York. Strauss & Sayless, 1960. Personnel: The Human Problems of Management, Princeton Hall : England

100% MATCHING BLOCK 399/416 W

Dale Yoder, 1959. Personnel: Principles and Policies, Prentice Hall : England Dubin, 1970. Human Relations

100% MATCHING BLOCK 400/416 W

in Administration. Prentice Hall of India : New Delhi Glenn, 0 Stahl, 1971. Public Personnel Administration. Harper and Row Publishers; New York

Unit-5: Administrative Ethics and Integrity in Civil Service Structure: 5.1: Objective- 5.2: Introduction 5.3: Definition and feature of administrative ethics and integrity
170 5.4: Challenges before administrative ethics and integrity 5.5: Measures to standardise integrity and ethics in administration 5.6: Summary 5.7: Sample Questions 5.8: Suggested Readings 5.1: Objective- The unit is designed in a way so that students should be able to: (a)

90% MATCHING BLOCK 401/416 W

discuss the essentials to ensure the practice of administrative ethics; (b)describe the causes for decline of integrity in civil services; (c)discuss the legal framework to check corruption; and (

d)suggest measures for improvement of integrity in civil services. 5.2: Introduction Workplace integrity can take many forms, but it most commonly relates to possessing upstanding character traits and work ethics, such as sound judgment, honesty, dependability, and loyalty.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 402/416 W

There is a need to develop both human and modern technology to improve efficiency. However, priority should be given to human development. These are two aspects to development technical and human. Organisations had usually been more sensitive to possibilities offered to them by the achivements of modern technology than to the refinements of human behaviour as revealed by the sciences of sociology and psychology. On the other hand, lessons drawn from experience showed that technical innovations deriving from the engineering sciences encountered considerable resistance unless supported by corresponding changes in human attitudes and behaviour. In an era of rapid change, the improvement of management in its human aspect had become a critical issue. It is important to make full use of the findings of social sciences which endeavoured to be instrumental in giving guidance in the behaviour of individuals and groups in varying circumstances. Organisations, should, therefore, be conceived as complex socio-technical systems whose management requires both technical skills and insight into the motives of human behaviour. It is widely agreed that manipulation and lack of ethics produce strong negative side effects and reduce organisational effectiveness. With this important value commitment, the organisations may shift their styles and climate from direction, control and surveillance to providing help, support and instruction. Mutuality and collaboration between the leaders and the led, self-control and mutual support an essential for creating an organic organisation. The basic principle that "in helping others, one is helping one's oneself", should be ingrained in the character. Then alone, the system would reflect it. On the public administrations, managers and political leaders depend, to a great extent, the work atmosphere. Only when human beings are treated as human beings, only when, none in the system feels that he/she is being exploited then only he/she can give his/her best to the organisation. 5.3: Definition and feature of administrative ethics and integrity Integrity is defined as a person's dedication to a set of moral ideals, and it is often related to characteristics such as honesty, virtue, accountability, dependability, responsibility, and loyalty. Integrity is exemplified 171 by strong ethical and moral ideals that are upheld in all circumstances. This core principle is critical for forming strong, trust-based professional relationships, and it is a key attribute that companies look for in potential employees during the hiring process. Observe and adhere to corporate policies –Workplace regulations are designed to provide guidance on anything from conduct to dress code. Following corporate policy allows you to make well-informed judgments based on the firm's beliefs and goals. Prepare to work –Many of us know folks who are willing to delegate but reluctant to do the work themselves. On the other hand, employees who have integrity are willing to go above and beyond with their work and assist others when necessary. Set a good example -Your work style and attitude toward others will help provide the groundwork for what you value most in others, particularly those who report to you. Working to a high quality and keeping a professional demeanor inspires others to do the same. Respect the views of others, even if you disagree with them – No matter how pleasant your workplace is, there will inevitably be instances when you disagree with someone else's viewpoint. It's still crucial to be respectful, listen, and consider what the other person is saying in these situations. Take responsibility for your mistakes – Everyone makes mistakes now and then. Accepting responsibility for your mistakes reveals that you are honest and receptive to constructive criticism, both of which are characteristics shared by people who have a high level of workplace integrity. Key Traits of Integrity: (a) Be considerate of others. (b) Be trustworthy. (c) Be responsible and trustworthy. (d) Have decent morals (e) Wait patiently (f) Be self-aware and dependable. (g) Be truthful and respectful. (h) Be dedicated to your work. (i) Make good decisions. (j) Morals are important. (k) Be of assistance.(l) Make the proper decision. (m) Be nice to others. No business likes a dishonest employee, but the reasons for looking for someone with integrity go far beyond merely wanting a trustworthy staff. Integrity in the workplace contributes to a positive culture in which employees collaborate well, trust one another, respect one another, rely on one another, and be sympathetic. This working culture promotes a motivated, happy staff, which is often more productive than a workforce with a lack of integrity. Workplace integrity promotes an ethical approach to internal decision- making. A corporation with loyal, trustworthy employees is more inclined to prioritize their well-being. An employer who hires people with integrity may be confident that their employees will work to the best of their abilities and put in the necessary hours without being supervised. Employees should be able to feel assured that they would not cheat, deceive, or cut corners. A corporation can build a stronger framework that forms the foundations of a business that offers quality service and has a good reputation by hiring employees with integrity. Clients, vendors, and customers will recognize that the organization is trustworthy and will not exploit them. It is crucial to display integrity at work regardless of your position, whether an intern or a CEO. Integrity is essential for an entry-level employee to sustain a good employee- employer relationship. It also helps you become a respected team member and someone people feel comfortable approaching and relying on. To set a positive example for those who look up to them and learn from them, persons in senior positions or positions of influence should display integrity in all parts of their work. To establish a strong connection with employees, employers must demonstrate integrity. Being open and honest with employees about proposed business changes or probable layoffs, for example, may result in an unpleasant dialogue in the short term. Still, in the long run, this transparency helps to develop trust and a positive working environment.

172 11.1.1 Examples of Integrity at Workplace: (i) Show on time and work your designated hours– Being on time demonstrates that you value the organization and your responsibilities. You and your employer have agreed that you will be available to work at a specific time or within a specific time frame. (ii) Be Prepared to Work– Integrity is demonstrated by demonstrating that you are prepared to get your hands dirty rather than simply delegating and yelling commands from the sidelines. Employees with integrity aid their co-workers and go above and beyond the call of duty to assist others. (iii) Do not make false promises– While it may be tempting to claim you can do something in order to impress someone, your co-workers and boss will place far more trust and respect in you if you just commit to accomplishing things you know you can and will do. (iv) Be Up Front About Your Weakness– When it comes to your professional talents, honesty is the best policy. If you can't do something, don't pretend to be able to do it. Covering up your failure to complete a task may have a negative impact on your relationships with co-workers and cause them to lose trust in you. It can also impair productivity because you may be wasting time on a problem you're having trouble with when you could be working on something else. (v) Professionally Handle Conflict– Workplace conflict is typical; personalities collide, and one person's beliefs differ from those of another. Demonstrate integrity by dealing with conflict in a professional manner that avoids personalizing the situation. Listen carefully, consider what the other person has to say, and maintain a courteous demeanor. (vi) Be Accountable for Your Actions– Covering up your mistakes may make you appear untrustworthy. Integrity is demonstrated by admitting your faults and accepting responsibility. Because no one is flawless all of the time, it is preferable to demonstrate your ability to accept responsibility rather than deflecting blame or attempting to conceal an error. Covering anything up with a minor lie might lead to you telling more and more lies until you lose track of your own tale and get caught. If this happens, it may harm your working relationship with your boss and co-workers. (vii)Maintain Confidentiality– It can be tempting to reveal something private to shed light on a situation or to feel more powerful, but maintaining confidentiality is an important aspect of being a trustworthy employee or employer. (viii)Be Accountable– Integrity entails being self-aware and supporting those around you. It's simple to concentrate on your work, leave when it's done, and tune out everything else. Being accountable, on the other hand, entails accepting responsibility for achieving positive outcomes. By isolating yourself and refusing to work as part of a team, only performing what is requested of you, you convey the idea that you don't care whether the entire situation turns out well or badly. 5.4: Challenges before administrative ethics and integrity

93% MATCHING BLOCK 403/416 W

Deviation from normal standards of lack of integrity takes various shapes in the form of corruption, patronage (based on communalism, sectarianism, nepotism and favouritism) and undue influence. Bribery, nepotism, misuse of power or influence, black marketing and similar other practices are not all that is meant by corruption. In fact, anyone wasting public money, lacks integrity. In general terms, corruption may be defined as the deliberate and intentional/exploitation of one's position, status or ,resources directly or indirectly, for personal aggrandisement whether it be in terms of material gain or enhancement of power, prestige or influence beyond what is legitimate or sanctioned by commonly accepted norms to the detriment of the interests of other persons or the community as a whole.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 404/416 W

There are various causes of corruption which result in lack of integrity. These can be discussed under the following headings. 173 i) Historical Causes - In India, corruption has its roots in the colonial rule of the past. British administration was not interested in the overall development of the country. Handsomely, lower posts were offered to Indians. Salaries to these posts were very low. So they indulged' in corrupt practices. After World War II, scarcities led to many types of controls. It gave added opportunities to these low paid employees to resort to corrupt practices. Then it became habitual. It was during World War

II

98% MATCHING BLOCK 405/416 W

that corruption reached the highest mark in India. The climate for integrity which had been rendered unhealthy by wartime controls and scarcities was further aggravated by the post-war flush of money and the consequent inflation. ii) Environmental Causes - The second important cause of corruption in public service is 'fast urbanisation and industrialisation where material possessions, position and economic power determine the status and prestige of a in the society. Since salaries are low and inflation is unabated, poor civil servants fall easy prey to corrupt practices in order to maintain status in the society. iii) Economic Causes - Inadequate remuneration of salary scales and rising cost of living is probably one of the important causes of corruption. In recent years, the fast rising cost of living has brought down the real income of various sections of the community, particularly the salaried classes. The urge to appear prestigious by material possessions has encouraged those who had the opportunities to succumb to temptations. iv) Lack of Strong Public Opinion Against the Evil of Corruption - People do not report to government against corrupt officials. Instead they offer bribes

to get their illegitimate claims accepted. People must fight against corruption and build a strong public opinion against corruption.
v)

93% MATCHING BLOCK 406/416 W

Complicated and Cumbersome Procedures and Working of Government Offices - It is alleged that the working of certain government departments, e.g., the Customs and Central Excise, Imports and Exports, Railways, Supplies and Disposals, Police,\ Income Tax., etc, is complicated, cumbersome and dilatory. This has encouraged the growth of dishonest practices like the system of 'speedy money'. vi) Inadequate Laws to Deal with Corruption - Indian Penal Code and other laws which deal with corruption cases are outmoded and provide insufficient penalties. It takes too much time to get a corrupt officials punished under the laws. Summary trials and stricter punishments should be awarded to end corruption. Therefore the laws will have to be changed.accordingly. vii) Undue Protection Given to the Public Services in India - Article 31 1 of the Indian Constitution which provides protection to civil servants, as interpreted by our courts, made it difficult to deal effectively with corrupt public servants. Reluctance of higher officials to take disciplinary action against corrupt officials due to their collusion with them has further aggravated the situation.

viii) Collusion of Commercial and Industrial Magnates and Others to Serve their

94% MATCHING BLOCK 407/416 W

Individual Interests - Big businessmen, dishonest merchants, suppliers and contractors, bribe the civil servants in order to get undue favours from them. Sometimes they share a portion of their ill earned profit with the government servants. ix)

96% MATCHING BLOCK 408/416 W

Pressure Groups -Pressure Groups like Indian Chamber of Commerce, 'Trade Associations, State Chambers of Commerce, are said to help in breeding corruption through their activities of getting favours for their communities. They influence ruling elite through dinners, parties, luncheons. etc. 5.5:

Measures to standardise integrity and ethics in administration

100% MATCHING BLOCK 409/416 W

Santhanam Committee on Prevention of Corruption- The Santhanam Committee, which was appointed in June- 1962 to review existing instruments for combating corruption and to advise on practical measures to make anti-corruption measures more effective, submitted its report in March 1964.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 410/416 W

Central Vigilance Commission (C.V.C.) -The Central Vigilance Commission has jurisdiction and powers in respect of matters to which the executive powers of the Central Government extend. Its jurisdiction 174 thus, extends to all employees of the Central Government and the employees in public undertakings, corporate bodies and other organisations dealing with any matter falling within the executive powers of the Central Government. Also, the Delhi Metropolitan Council and the New Delhi Municipal Committee fall within the purview of the commission.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 411/416 W

State Vigilance Commission- The Santhanam Committee on prevention of corruption made detailed recommendations in 1964 for strengthening of the Vigilance Organisption in each Ministry/ Department to make it more effective. While the primary responsibility for the maintenance of purity, integrity and efficiency in each organisation continues to vest in the Secretary of the Ministry or the Head of the Department, an officer in each Ministry/ Department has been designated as Chief Vigilance Officer and entrusted with vigilance work. While acting as Special Assistant to the Secretary or ,the Head of the Department in all matters pertaining to vigilance, he provides a link between the Central Vigilance Commission and the Ministries/ Departments.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 412/416 W

Central Bureau of Investigation- Apart from vigilance organisation id every ministry and department, the centralised agency for anti-corruption work viz. the Central Bureau of Investigation, which functions administratively under the Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms. The latter formulates all policy matters pertaining to vigilance and discipline among public servants. It also coordinates the activities of various heads of departments and functions as the nodal authority in the matter of administrative culture.

81% MATCHING BLOCK 413/416 W

Institutions of Lok Pa1 and Lok Ayukta- The 'Administrative Reform Commission, recommended in 1966 to the Central Government, the setting up of the Institutions of Lok Pal and Lok Ayukta which are analogous to the parliamentary commissioner in England and New Zealand, for redress of public grievances.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 414/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

Some suggestions may be given to improve integrity in the civil services. i) Maintain Conditions of Service Attractive - Government officials, particularly at lower level, are forced by poverty to regard office holding as a source of income which they would seek to maximise. Public services are rendered in exchange for extra money, services, which tend to be bad and slow if no bribe is given. Raising of pay, consequently, is a basic means to wipe out the widespread bribery in the civil services. It is good that Government has set up the Fourth National Pay Commission to look into the salary structure of federal employees. ii) Simplification of Working of Government Machinery- The root cause to proliferation of corruption seems to be the complicated procedures of Government offices. These procedures need to be evaluated and simplified. . Delays must be prevented and officials made fully responsive to the needs of all the people. ill) Public opinion creation against corruption- Corruption will flourish till the general mass of people resist it with determination and strength. Most of all, the elimination of corruption requires a widespread and steadfast opposition to it, coupled with'the courage to act against it. There can be no doubt that the people of India can get rid of corruption. iv) High Standard of Service Practice by High Official- High Officials having considerable discretionary powers must be thoroughly disciplined to refuse gifts, invitations and other favours. In this context, it is pertinent to note the efforts made by the government to carry the quest for integrity at the divisional and district levels. At the divisional level, there is a Divisional Vigilance Board which consists of the Divisional Committees, Deputy Inspector General of Police and a Divisional Vigilance Commissioner. At the district level, there is a District Vigilance Officer who is appointed by the District 175 Collector, Deputy Commissioner from among his/ her gazetted assistants in consultation with the Divisional Vigilance Board. There has, thus, emerged a web of vigilance agencies in the country. TO streamline this quest for integrity, the Vigilance Commissioners of all States hold an annual conference which is presided over by the Chief Vigilance Commissioner. This annual gathering serves useful purpose, it provides a forum for the discussion of mutual problems and exchange of experiences, and gives publicity to vigilance reports of the Government at both the Central and State levels, thus inspiring people's confidence in the Government's sincerity of purposes. However, this does not imply that corruption in public administration has been eliminated or is under control. Far from it, corruption has entered every nook and corner of India's public life, and the country's public administration is ridden with it. This has happened largely because there is no political will to remove it. 5.6:

Summary

98% MATCHING BLOCK 416/416 SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

It is the fundamental responsibility of the management to spell out clearly as to how the ever increasing size of the Government and rising expectations of the people call for high ethical and professional standards on the part of government employees. Accordingly, the public officials are expected to furnish examples of incorrupt behaviour as their actions have a direct impact on the character of the community. The tools and techniques adopted by the Government of India and the State Governments in this challenging task have been highlighted.

Employers will also be more comfortable with employees who display integrity; they may offer them greater responsibilities, promote them sooner, trust them to represent the firm publicly, give them the opportunity to head a team, and share secret information with them. In the workplace, honesty facilitates communication and results in a more stable and effective organization. While integrity is a trait rather than a talent, it is nonetheless something that may be improved. By going over the integrity traits and examples in this article, you should be able to identify your own strengths and weaknesses and work on the areas that need improvement. 5.7: Sample Questions Essay Type: 1. Discuss the features of administrative integrity. 2. Analyse the various challenges facing administrative ethics and integrity. Long Type: 1. Describe the measures to improve standards of administrative ethics and integrioty 2. Explain the ways in which ethics and integrity can be sustained in workplace. Short Type: 1. Write a short note on legal safeguards in India to integrity 2. Define integrity. 5.8: Suggested Readings

176

92% MATCHING BLOCK 415/416 W

Avasthi, A. & Maheshwari, S., 1987. Mlic Administration; Lakshmi Narain Agrawal : Agra. Goel S.L, 1984. Public Personnel Administration; Staling Publisher Pvt. Ltd. : New Delhi. Jain, R.B., 1976. Contemporary Isrues in Indian Administration; Vhhal Publications : New Delhi.

Hit and source - focused comparison, Side by Side

Submitted text As student entered the text in the submitted document.

Matching text As the text appears in the source.

1/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Unit –I: Nature and Scope of Personnel Administration Structure 1.1 Objective 1.2 Introduction 1.3 Definition of Personnel Administration 1.4 Nature and Scope of Personnel Administration 1.5 Changing scope of Personnel Administration 1.6 Conclusion 1.7	UNIT 1 CONCEPT, NATURE AND SCOPE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION . Structure 1.0 1.1 1 . Objectives Introduction Concept of Personnel Administration 1.2.1 Personnel Administration : Meaning 1.2.2 Nature of Personnel Administration 1.3 1.4 1.5 1.6 1.7 1.8 1.9 Personnel Administration : Evolution and Development Scope of Personnel Administration Conclusion

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

2/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization. •	To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

3/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 66 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 66 WORDS

To understand the several features of public personnel administration. • To discuss the several functions of personnel administration viz. Manpower; planning, recruitment, training, promotion, salary structuring, and employees' welfare; • To discuss the meaning and importance of public services; scope and functions of public services; • Explain the concept of personnel administration, and discuss the scope of personnel administration. 2 1.2	to: Discuss the several features of public personnel administration India; Discuss the several functions of personnel administration viz. Manpower; planning, recruitment, training, promotion, salary structuring and employees' welfare; Discuss the meaning and importance of public services; Highlight the scope and functions of public services; Explain the concept of personnel administration; and Discuss the scope of personnel administration.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

4/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Walter R. Sharp observes - "Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities, and qualified personnel".

Walter R. Sharp has aptly remarked, "Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities and qualified personnel...

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

5/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with well - trained, intelligent, imaginative and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best-planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated by mediocre or, disgruntled 3 people".

Even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with well- trained, intelligent, imaginative, and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated through mediocre or disgruntled people.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

6/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

That field of management which has to do with planning, organizing, directing and controlling the functions of procuring, developing, maintaining and utilizing a labour force such that :(i) The objectives for which the Company is established are attained economically and effectively;(

that field of management which has to do with planning, organizing and controlling the functions of procuring, developing, maintaining and utilizing a labour force, such that the (a) objectives for which the company is established are attained economically and effectively, (

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

7/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

objectives of all levels of personnel are served to the highest possible degree;(iii) The objectives of the Community are duly considered and served".

objectives of all levels of personnel are served to the highest possible degree; " objectives of the'community are duly considered and served."

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

8/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 51 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 51 WORDS

personnel administration is a code of the way of organizing and treating individuals at work so that they will each get the greatest possible realization of their intrinsic abilities, thus attaining maximum efficiency for themselves and their group, and thereby giving to the enterprise of which they are a part personnel administration is a code of the ways of organizing and treating individuals at work so that they will each get the greatest possible realization of their intrinsic abilities, therefore attaining maximum efficiency for themselves and their group and thereby giving to the enterprise of which they are a part,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

9/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	100 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	100 WORDS

Personnel function is crucial in any administrative organization. The organization cannot afford to ignore it. Hence it becomes a basic responsibility of the management, be it in the government or semi or 6 non-government organizations. The changes in the socio-economic environment affect management. The management environment keeps changing due to the changes that occur in the total socio-economic environment. The political environment also affects the work environment in an organization. Such changes get reflected in personnel administration. These changes can be: i) changing mix of the personnel entering government service organization ii) changing values of personnel

Personnel function is crucial in any administrative organization. The organization cannot afford to ignore it. Hence it becomes a vital responsibility of the management, be in the government or in semi or non-government organizations. The changes in the socio-economic environment have its effect on management. The management environment keeps changing due to the changes that occur in the total socio-economic environment. The political environment also affects the work environment in an organization. Such changes get reflected in personnel administration. These changes can be: Changing mix of the personnel entering government service organization Changing values of personnel

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

10/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 312 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 312 WORDS

expectations of the people from the government at different levels. Thus management is affected by the changes in the social, economic, and political scenario. It has to keep up with these changes. A higher number from schedule castes, tribes, and other economically backward classes are joining the government service. A greater number of people with higher education, more women, and more technically skilled workers are also joining the government service. This has changed the ratios of the working force. With the proliferation of activities under 'development' and 'welfare' programmes, the employees are now expected to be more competent and efficient. People at large expect the administration to be efficient, effective, and sympathetic. People's involvement in administrative activities is increasing. Due to the constant demands on administration, the importance of personnel administration is also changing. Personnel is required to perform 'line and staff' functions. Activities directly related to the primary objective of an organization are called 'line' functions. The 'staff' functions are those which facilitate and assist the performance of line work. They are like secondary activities and enhance the effectiveness of the line agencies. For example, assistance in processing and supplying the required number of personnel and training and development of personnel are essentially staff functions. An organization cannot function without the assistance of line and staff personnel. At the same time, personnel functions cannot be isolated from the rest of the administrative functions. Personnel functions include both line and staff activities in an organization. Personnel administration does not always function in a formal organization. No organization can solely run based on formal rules and regulations, it comprises human beings who are structured in an authority and responsibility network to carry out the tasks and activities for the fulfillment of organizational objectives. This formal structure is supplemented, supported, or sometimes obstructed and on occasion taken over by the informal organization.

expectations of the people from the government at dissimilar stages. Therefore management is affected through the changes in the social, economic, and political scenario. In fact it has to keep up with these changes. A higher number from schedule castes, tribes and other economically backward classes are joining the government service. A greater number of people with higher education, more women, and more technically skilled workers are also joining the government service. This has really changed the ratios of working force. With the proliferation of activities under „development" and „welfare" programmes, the employees are now expected to be more competent and efficient. People at large expect the administration to be efficient, effective, and sympathetic. People"s involvement in administrative activities is rising. Due to the constant demands on administration, the role of personnel administration is also changing. Personnel are required to perform „line" and „staff" functions; Activities directly related to the primary objective of an organization are described as „line" functions. The „staff" functions are those which facilitate and assist the performance of line work. They are in the nature of secondary activities and enhance the effectiveness of the line agencies. For instance, assistance in processing and supplying the required number of personnel and training and development of personnel are essentially staff functions. An organization cannot function without the assistance of line and staff personnel. At the same time, personnel function cannot be isolated from the rest of the administrative functions. Personnel functions contain both line and staff activities in an organization. Personnel administration does not always function in a formal organization. No organization can solely run on the basis of formal rules and regulations, it comprises human beings who are structured in an authority and responsibility network in order to carry out the tasks and activities for the fulfillment of organizational objectives. This formal structure is complemented, supported or sometimes obstructed and on occasions taken over through the informal organization.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

11/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

informal organization grows within the formal organization. It is a natural phenomenon and is based on social and cultural relations among the personnel 7 of formal groups. Political, economic, and psychological factors also contribute to the growth of	Informal organization grows within the formal organization. It is a natural phenomenon and is based on social and cultural relations in the of the of formal groups. Political, economic, and psychological factors also contribute to the growth of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

12/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 100 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 100 WORDS

informal organization. The functions of personnel administration are becoming more complicated day by day. The problems of personnel administration differ from one organization to the other. Big organizations have more tasks to perform, employ more people, and serve varied objectives. The task of personnel administration in such organizations becomes more intricate. As personnel administration deals with human beings all the time, the crucial functions of motivation and morale of employees have to be performed by it. It has to meet the growing needs of the people as well as satisfy the increasing expectations of its employees. 1.4	informal organization. The functions of personnel administration are becoming more complicated day through day. The troubles of personnel administration differ from one organization to the other. Big organizations have more tasks to perform; they employ more people and serve varied objectives. The task of personnel administration in such organizations becomes more intricate. As personnel administration deals with human beings all the time, the crucial functions of motivation and morale of employees have to be performed through it. It has to meet the rising needs of the people as well as satisfy the rising expectations of its employees.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

13/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

Scope of personnel Administration: Personnel administration incorporates all characteristics of	SCOPE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION Personnel administration incorporates all characteristics of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

14/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

management of persons in an organization. The primary objective of personnel administration is to ensure	management of persons in organization. The primary objective of personnel administration is to ensure

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

15/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

effective utilization of human possessions in pursuit of organizational goals. The personnel administration departments should design and establish an effective working relationship in the middle of all the members of an organization through effective utilization of human possessions in pursuit of organizational goals. The personnel administration departments should design and establish an effective working relationship in the middle of all the members of an organization through

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

16/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 92 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 92 WORDS

division of organizational tasks into jobs, defining clearly the responsibility and authority for each job and its relation with other jobs in the organization. Personnel administration necessity tries to stimulate in the middle of the employee's feelings of dedication, attachment, and devotion to the organization. The aim is to establish amiable relations in the middle between the employees and do absent with frictional situations arising out of personal jealousies, rivalries, and prejudices. Personnel administration also has to curb unfavorable practices like favoritism and nepotism in an organization. Personnel administration has to division of organizational tasks into jobs, defining clearly the responsibility and authority for each job and its relation with other jobs in the organization. Personnel administration necessity tries to enthuse in the middle of the employees feelings of commitment, involvement, and loyalty to the organization. The aim is to establish cordial relations in the middle of the employees and do absent with frictional situations arising out of personal jealousies, rivalries and prejudices. Personnel administration also has to curb unfavorable practices like favoritism and nepotism in an organization. Personnel administration has to

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

17/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

several characteristics of management like recruitment, training, promotion, circumstances of service, employee welfare, employer-employee relations, and processes of morale and motivation. It has to develop links with several characteristics of management like recruitment, training, promotion, circumstances of service, employee‟s welfare, employer-employee relations, and processes of morale and motivation. It has to develop links with

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

18/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

intermediate, and external environments to create effective and efficient. As the tasks of intermediate, and external environment to create itself effective and efficient. As the tasks of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

19/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

organization increase, the responsibilities of personnel administration also augment accordingly. It is not possible to solve the troubles with a one-time and one-stroke decision. The organization increase, the responsibilities of personnel administration also augment accordingly. It is not possible to solve the troubles with a one-time and one-stroke decision. Larger the

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

20/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 146 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 146 WORDS

larger the system more is the more complexities. Take, for instance, the Government of India, it is divided into ministries, departments, divisions, units, etc. It is spread over the whole length and breadth of the country. Millions of people work in it; they operate at dissimilar hierarchical stages and carry out a large diversity of functions. Many services and their division into groups constitute the whole workforce of the Central government. Approximately 8 similar is the situation in each state. Personnel administration has to accommodate all these characteristics. It requires continuous managerial input. Planning and providing for the regular supply of the needed manpower for unlike positions and in unlike numbers is a significant task of the government. The procedure of recruitment and utilization of each micro-unit of human resources calls for effective personnel administration, likewise, creating and maintaining desirable working relationships also Larger the system more is the complexities. Take for instance, the Government of India, it is divided into ministries, departments, divisions, units etc. It is spread over the whole length and breadth of the country. Lakhs of people work in it; they operate at dissimilar hierarchical stages and carry out a large diversity of functions. A number of services and their division into groups constitute the whole workforce of the Central government. Approximately similar is the situation in each state. Personnel administration has to cater to all these characteristics. It requires continuous managerial input. Planning and providing for the regular supply of the needed manpower for dissimilar positions and in dissimilar numbers is an significant task of the government. The procedure of recruitment and utilization of each micro-unit of human resource calls for effective personnel administration, likewise, creating and maintaining desirable working relationships also for a series of continuous efforts on the part of the personnel. Those responsible for personnel administration have to work for it constantly. The attainment of these two objectives becomes easier if the organization gives appropriate opportunities for individual development. These opportunities can be in the form of training, internal, and external mobility, promotion, recognition, and reward. They act as strong motivators and satisfiers. Besides, salary structuring of millions of employees is a wholesome task because each category has to be adequately and equitably compensated for the contribution it is expected to create towards for a series of continuous efforts on the part of the personnel. Those responsible for personnel administration have to work for it constantly. The attainment of these two objectives becomes easier if the organization gives appropriate opportunities for individual development. These opportunities can be in the form of training, internal, and external mobility, promotion, recognition, and reward. They act as strong motivators and satisfiers. Besides, salary structuring of lakhs of employees is a wholesome task because each category has to be adequately and equitably compensated for the contribution it is expected to create towards organization's objectives. This is also a work of personnel administration. The working force also has to be subjected to sure disciplines to regulate organization"s objectives. This is also a work of personnel administration. The working force also has to be subjected to sure in order to regulate proper performance of duty. Framing of conduct rules, laying down procedures of disciplinary action, enforcement of those rules, and adoption of appropriate procedures are also a part of personnel administration. Employer-employee relations, provision for Joint Consultative Machinery, proper performance of duty. Framing of conduct rules, laying down procedures of disciplinary action, enforcement of those rules and adoption appropriate procedures are also a part of personnel administration. Employer-employee relations, provision for Joint Consultative Machinery,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

21/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 95 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 95 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

22/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

23/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

24/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 99 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 99 WORDS

establishment of public service tribunals for adjudication, adoption of welfare measures, and payment of retirement benefits, etc. to the employees are the added responsibilities of personnel administration. Trade unionism in the middle of government employees has increased throughout the past few decades. Both employer and employee unions have come up. There is now a dire need for expert skills to foresee personnel needs and troubles and to plan for their satisfaction and rectification. All this requires systematic personnel administration. Therefore the scope of personnel administration is wide and varied; moreover, it is continuously expanding with the changes in establishment of public service tribunals for adjudication, adoption of welfare measures and payment of retirement benefits etc. to the employees are the added responsibilities of personnel administration. Trade unionism in the middle of government employees has increased throughout the past few decades. Both employer and employee unions have come up. There is now a dire need for expert skills to foresee personnel needs and troubles and to plan for their satisfaction and rectification. All this requires systematic personnel administration. Therefore the scope of personnel administration is wide and varied; moreover it is continuously expanding with the changes in

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

25/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

Personnel administration has to deal with various aspects like recruitment, training, promotion, conditions of service, employees welfare,

Personnel administration has to concentrate on various aspects of management like recruitment, training, promotion, conditions of service, employees welfare,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

26/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS
Personnel is the means through which organizations develop. In this unit, we familiarized ourselves with the			Personnel are the means through which organisations develop. In this unit we familiarised ourselves with the

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

27/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	78%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS
After going through this unit, learners will be able - • To explain the concept of			After going through this unit, you will be able to: ? Explain the classification of

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

28/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	73 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	73 WORDS
development of personnel administration in the U.K. and U.S.A. was largely voluntary, in India, the growth of personnel administration can be attributed to the efforts made by the government. While in the West, the revolutionary work in the field of personnel management was motivated by the managerial concern with the concept of welfare, in India, disorganized recruitment practices, rising labour unrest, loss of production, etc., initiated some interest in personnel management. In			development of personnel administration in U.K. and U.S.A. was largely voluntary, in India, the growth of personnel administration can be attributed to the efforts made through the government. While in the West, the pioneering work in the field of personnel management was motivated through the managerial preoccupation with the concept of welfare, in India, unsystematic recruitment practices, rising labour unrest, loss of production etc., initiated some interest in personnel management. In

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

29/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 160 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 160 WORDS

U.K., personnel administration had its origin in the concept of welfare as propounded and practiced by some enlightened entrepreneurs, who sought the establishment of modern personnel administration. The term 'personnel management' actually originated in the U.S.A. F.W. Taylor's scientific management theory laid the foundation for the development of personnel administration. Taylor emphasized scientific selection and systematic training and development of the individual worker. H.L. Gantt, a secure associate of Taylor, in scientific management movements, foresaw the need for obtaining the willing cooperation of the worker. He maintained that it was not enough to tell the worker how to do a job, but it was also necessary to promote the skill and willingness to do a job. Mary Parker Follet also laid stress on training and development characteristics of management. The pioneers of scientific management, separately from rising efficiency, aimed at fighting fatigue and monotony in the middle of the workers. Elton Mayo's Hawthorne experiments and the human relations movement

U.K., personnel administration had its origin in the concept of welfare as propounded and practiced through some of the enlightened entrepreneurs, who sought the establishment of modern personnel administration. The term personnel management actually originated in the U.S.A. It was F.W. Taylor"s scientific management which laid the foundation for the development of personnel administration. Taylor laid emphasis on scientific selection and systematic training and development of the individual worker. H.L. Gantt, a secure associate of Taylor, in scientific management movements, foresaw the need for obtaining the willing cooperation of the worker. He maintained that it was not enough to tell the worker how to do a job, but it was also necessary to promote the skill and willingness to do a job. Mary Parker Follet also laid stress on training and development characteristics of management. The pioneers of scientific management, separately from rising efficiency, aimed at fighting fatigue and monotony in the middle of the workers. Mainly significant breakthrough for personnel administration Elton Mayo"s Hawthorne experiments and the human relations movement.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

30/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 124 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 124 WORDS

These experiments paved the way for using the disciplines of sociology, psychology, industrial psychology, social psychology, etc., intending to understand employees and organizational behaviour and influence them through a motivational approach. All this led to the gradual development and development of a theory and practice of personnel management. There were also other events and influences which led to the growth of personnel management. Several revolutionary concepts like mass production, mass sharing, and mass financing evolved through industrial and business empires. The labour shortages throughout the world wars and several labour troubles posed a management challenge. With the Great Depression in 1929, big businesses suffered a severe setback. The State, the public, and the trade unions, aimed at efficient professional management. Their demands were

These experiments paved the way for using the disciplines of sociology, psychology, industrial psychology, social psychology etc., with a view to understanding employees and organizational behaviour and influencing them through a motivational approach. All this led to the gradual development and development of a theory and practice of personnel management. There were also other events and influences which led to the growth of personnel management. Several revolutionary concepts like mass production, mass sharing and mass financing were evolved through industrial and business empires. The labour shortages throughout the world wars and several labour troubles posed a challenge to management. With the Great Depression in 1929) big business suffered a severe setback. The State, the public and the trade unions, aimed at efficient professional management. Their demands were

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

31/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

elimination of waste and maximum utilization of possessions, particularly human possessions. All these 13 growths in America emphasized the fact that management of people or personnel management is just as significant as the management of production. The elimination of waste and maximum utilization of possessions, particularly human possessions. All these growths in America emphasized the fact that management of people or personnel management is just as significant as the management of production. the

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

32/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 137 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 137 WORDS

recommended in 1931 the appointment of Labour Officers to deal with the recruitment of labour to settle their grievances. The industrial disputes of the 1920s forced the government and businessmen to think in conditions of labour troubles and promotion of personnel management. The recognition of trade unions in India gave a new perspective on the employer and employee relationship. Entrepreneurs like the Tatas, Calico Mills, British India Corporation, etc. had appointed WelfareOfficers as early as 1920. These Labour Welfare Officers performed the functions of redresses of employee grievances and promoting industrial harmony. On the suggestion of the Government, the Indian Jute Mills Owners' Association appointed a Labour Officer to bring about a settlement of employee grievances in 1937 in Bengal with the mills, and through 1939 five more Labour Officers were appointed. Other Employers' Associations like recommended in 1931 the appointments of Labour Officers to deal with the recruitment of labour to settle their grievances. The industrial disputes of 1920 s forced the government and businessmen to think in terms of labour problems and promotion of personnel management. The recognition of trade unions in India gave a new perspective to the employer and employee relationship. Entrepreneurs like the Tatas, Calico Mills, British India Corporation etc. had appointed Welfare Officers as early as 1920. These Labour Welfare Officers performed the functions of redressal of employee grievances and promotion of industrial harmony. , In 1937 in Bengal, on the suggestion of the Government, the Indian Jute Mills Owners' Association appointed a Labour Officer to bring about a settlement of employee grievances with the mills and by 1939 five more Labour Officers were appointed. Other Employers' Associations like

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

33/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

Indian Engineering Association, Indian Tea Association, the Engineering Association of India, etc., also followed the instance of

Indian Engineering Association, Indian Tea Association, the Engineering Association of India etc., also followed the instance of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

34/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

Indian Jute Owners' Association in appointing labour officers. In 1941, the Government of India initiated the Tripartite Labour Conference with the representatives of the Government, labour, and employees to promote uniform labour legislation determine a procedure to settle industrial disputes, and promote consultations on industrial matters affecting the country. Now they have become permanent and regular characteristics of labour policy. In 1948, the Factories Act Rules laid down the appointment, duties, and qualifications of a new statutory officer in

Indian Jute Owners" Association in appointing labour officers. In 1941, the Government of India initiated the Tripartite Labour Conference with the representatives of Government, labour and employees in order to promote uniform labour legislation determine a procedure to settle industrial disputes, and promote consultations on industrial matters affecting the country. Now they have become permanent and regular characteristics of labour policy. In 1948, the Factories Act Rules laid down the appointment, duties and qualifications of a new statutory officer in

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

35/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

industry described as the Welfare Officer. The following years saw the emergence of yet another officer described industry described the Welfare Officer. The following years saw the emergence of yet another officer described

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

36/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

the Personnel Officer. The Personnel Officer deals with labour welfare, industrial relations, and personnel administration. Several companies in India now have specialized personnel departments and a full-time personnel officer in charge. 2.4

the Personnel Officer. The Personnel Officer deals with labour welfare, industrial relations, and personnel administration. Several companies in India now have specialized personnel departments and a full- time Personnel Officer in charge.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

37/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the number of personnel is rising at a very fast rate,

the number of personnel is rising at a very fast rate,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

38/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

expenditure on personnel is also correspondingly rising. There has also been a trend concerning the diversification in the personnel as more and more specialists, experts, and technicians are being appointed in government departments, and public, and private organizations. Modern personnel do not just deal with expenditure on personnel is also correspondingly increasing. There has also been a trend in regard tc the diversification in the personnel as more and more specialists, experts and technicians are being appointed in government departments, public and private organisations. Contemporary personnel does not just deal with

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

39/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

welfare of employees but also aim at achieving profits for the organization. The motive is to earn profits as well as benefits for the organization and its employees. 14 2.5 Summing Up Personnel administration

welfare of employees but also aim at achieving profits for the organization. The motive is to earn profits as well as benefits for the organization and its employees. SCOPE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

40/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.

Ghosh, P, 1969. Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd.: New Delhi.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

41/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

Personnel administration is that part of an administration that is concerned with people at work and with their relationships within an organization. It refers to the entire spectrum of an organization's interaction with its human resources from recruitment activity to Personnel administration is that part of administration which is concerned with people at work and with their relationships within an organization. It refers to the whole spectrum of an organization"s interaction with its human possessions from recruitment activity to

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

42/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Significance of Personnel Administration The quality of an organization is dependent on the quality of its employees, that is, the personnel it employs. With the development of science and technology and

SIGNIFICANCE OF PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION The quality of an organization is dependent on the quality of its employees, that is, the personnel it employs. With the development of science and technology and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

43/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 134 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 134 WORDS

growth of welfare functions to meet the demands of expanding population organizations whether public or private, have to perform a large number of tasks varied and complex. It is only possible if the personnel engaged in the attainment of objectives are efficient and sincere. In the middle of the three components required for developmental tasks, personnel, money, and material, it is the personnel or the human element which determines the quality and quantity of the performance and output. Even the contribution of money and material to performance depends considerably upon their manipulation through the human beings in an organization. Walter R. Sharp has aptly remarked, "Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities, and qualified personnel... Even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with growth of welfare functions in order to meet the demands of expanding population the whether public or private, have to perform a large number of tasks varied and complex. It is only possible if the personnel engaged in the attainment of objectives are efficient and sincere. In the middle of the three components required for developmental tasks, personnel, money and material, it is the personnel or the human element which determines the quality and quantity of the performance and output. Even the contribution of money and material to performance depends considerably upon their manipulation through the human beings in an organization. Walter Sharp has aptly remarked, "Good administration is a composite of effective organization, adequate material facilities and qualified personnel... Even poorly devised machinery may be made to work if it is manned with well-trained, intelligent, imaginative, and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best-planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated through mediocre or disgruntled people".

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

44/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

well- trained, intelligent, imaginative, and devoted staff. On the other hand, the best planned organization may produce unsatisfactory results if it is operated through mediocre or disgruntled people.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

45/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

we can say that without efficient personnel, organizational tasks can never be fulfilled. Without efficient bureaucracy, the government can never create its plans and policies a success. The performance of the organization and the growth of its personnel is connected with the competence of 16

we can say that without efficient personnel, the organizational tasks can never be fulfilled. Without efficient bureaucracy, the government can never create its plans and policies a success. The performance of the organization and growth of its personnel is connected with the competence of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

46/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	50 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	50 WORDS

personnel constituting the organization. No country should neglect the development of human possessions. We also witness a complete wastage of human possessions due to unemployment, underemployment, and male employment. Positive steps have to be taken to remove these troubles. The augment in labour force necessity entails an augment in personnel constituting the organization. No country should neglect the development of human possessions. We also witness a complete wastage of human possessions due to unemployment, underemployment, and male employment. Positive steps have to be taken to remove these troubles. The augment in labour force necessity entail an augment in economically active population. The greatest natural resource of a nation is its people. Investments in developing human possessions through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job-oriented programmes, and designing appropriate performance appraisal and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people high. These programmes accordingly influence organizational effectiveness. The most significant problem in public personnel administration is to ensure that vast manpower resource employed in the state sector yields the best possible return. The efficiency of public employees or the effectiveness of the personnel system depends on many factors, such as the quality of talent attracted to and retained in the public service, economically active population. The greatest natural resource of a nation is its people. Investments in developing human possessions through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job-enrichment programmes and designing appropriate performance appraisal and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people high. These programmes consequently influence organizational effectiveness. The mainly significant problem in public personnel administration is to ensure that vast manpower resource employed in the state sector yields the best possible return. Efficiency of public employees or the effectiveness of personnel system depend on many factors, such as the quality of talent attracted to and retained in the public service,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

47/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	111 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	111 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

48/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	56 WORDS	93%	MATCHING TEXT	56 WORDS

nature of training that the employees receive, values and motivation of employees, standards, and norms set up through formal and informal work groups, effectiveness in interpersonal relationships, styles of supervision and leadership, nature and adequacy of work tools and procedures for decision-creation and the character of interrelationships with the political procedure and social environment. The nature of training which the employees receive, values and motivation of employees, standards and norms set up through formal and informal work groups, effectiveness in inter- personal relationships, styles of supervision and leadership, nature and adequacy of work tools and procedures for decision-creation and the character of interrelationships with the political procedure and social environment. The

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

49/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 77 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 77 WORDS

ARC) had observed that “the present personnel system does not create for a rational and optimum utilization of human possessions within the civil service to the best advantage of administration as well as the community.” Throughout the last 40 years, the country has taken up past developmental responsibilities. This calls for an effective personnel system to formulate and carry out organizational functions. Public, as well as private organizations, are rising day by day, they both have

ARC had observed that “the present personnel system does not create for a rational and optimum utilization of human possessions within the civil service to the best advantage of administration as well as the community.” Throughout the last 40 years, the country has taken up past developmental responsibilities. This calls for an effective personnel system in order to formulate and carry out organizational functions. Public as well as private organizations are rising day through day, they both have

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

50/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

pursuit of developmental goals and it is only through the help of the right personnel and management of human possessions that these objectives can be realized. 3.4

pursuit of developmental goals and it is only through the help of right personnel and management of the human possessions that these objectives can be realized.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

51/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 72 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 72 WORDS

the personnel administrative system in the country has developed various functionalities. To create the public personnel system effectively, the ineffectiveness has to be properly recognized and removed. The Conference on Personnel Administration held in 1968 under the auspices of the Indian Institute of Public Administration(IIPA), New Delhi, lay that the existing personnel system did not meet the necessities of a desirable personnel administrative system. The existing system leaned too heavily on

The personnel administrative system in the country has developed sure functionalities and dysfunctionalities over era. In order make the more effective and efficient the dysfunctionalities have to be appropriately recognized and removed. The Conference on Personnel Administration held in 1968 under the auspices of Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi, lay that “the existing personnel system did not meet the necessities of a desirable personnel administrative system. The existing system leaned too heavily on

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

52/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 128 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 128 WORDS

more “status-oriented” rather than“attainment-oriented”. The personnel systems’ sanction is based on the criterion of an outdated selection system through means of a 17 purely academic examination. The necessities i.e. the desirable ingredients of a good and sound personnel system were recognized as follows, namely: • The best man for the job • Rising professionalization • Competitiveness in selection for higher administrative positions • Placement to be job-oriented and not status trapped • Motivation for better performance • Equal pay for equal work • Objective evaluation of performance • Rational promotion and personnel development system • Appropriate organization of functions of government and • Appropriate policies and practices to enable optimum personnel performance. In a Seminar on “Public Services and Social Responsibility”, organized through	more “status-oriented” rather than “attainment-oriented”. The cadre system"s sanction is based on the criterion of an outdated selection system through means of a purely academic examination. The necessities i.e. the desirable ingredients of a good and sound personnel system were recognized as follows, namely: The best man for the job Rising professionalization Competitiveness in selection for higher administrative positions Placement to be job-oriented and not status trapped Motivation for better performance Equal pay for equal work Objective evaluation of performance Rational promotion and personnel development system Appropriate organization of functions of government and appropriate policies and practices to enable optimum personnel performance. In a Seminar on “Public Services and Social Responsibility”, organized through

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

53/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

Indian Institute of Advanced Revised in Shimla (October 1973), some of the feature inadequacies and weaknesses of the public service system in India were recognized and debated. They were:	Indian Institute of Advanced Revise in Shimla (October 1973), some of the feature inadequacies and weaknesses of the public service system in India were recognized and debated. They were:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

54/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 174 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 174 WORDS

Bureaucracy, especially its higher echelons, has acquired a class character. In operation, its instrumental role is often subordinated, and it emerges as an end in itself. o The gap flanked by the administration and the citizen is widening. o Though inedible, it is, nevertheless, true that bureaucracy has been rather insensitive to the needs of the latter and has lost reliability. o Nowadays bureaucracy has become a slow-moving and dull-witted giant. There are contradictions and incompatibilities at dissimilar stages of bureaucracy. o The public services have become a prisoner of their procedures and precedents. Negative thinking appears to prevail. This leads to action rationalized in several ways... o Public services are becoming increasingly inadequate in taking up new tasks and challenges. Even in the maintenance of law and order, bureaucracy often finds itself ineffective. In the economic field, its performance has usually been poor. It has rarely been able to take a dynamic view of emerging troubles. It tries to cure today's ill with yesterday's remedies, but quite often these do not work.

Bureaucracy, especially its higher echelons, has acquired a class character. In operation, its instrumental role is often subordinated, and it emerges as an end in itself. 2) The gap between the administration and the citizen is widening. Though unpalatable, it is, nevertheless, true that bureaucracy has been somewhat insensitive to the needs of the latter and has lost credibility. 3) The public services are immobilised by their size. Today bureaucracy has.become a slow-moving and dull-witted giant. 4) There are contradictions and incompatibilities at different levels of bureaucracy. Frequent confrontations between these paralyse the entire machine. 5) The public services have become a prisoner of their own procedures and precedents. Negative thinking appears to prevail. This leads to inaction rationalised in various ways. . ' 6) public services are becoming increasingly inadequate in taking up the new tasks and challenges. Even in the maintenance of law and order, bureaucracy often finds itself ineffective. In the economic field, its performance has generally been poor. It has rarely been able to take a dynamic view of the emerging problems. It tries to chre today's ill with yesterday's remedies, quite often these do not work. 7)

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

55/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

Manpower planning creates long-range estimates of the general and specific manpower needs of the organization for dissimilar activities. By anticipating the need for several kinds of ability necessities and 18 stages of personnel, well in advance, a manpower plan

Manpower planning creates long range estimates of the general and specific manpower needs of the organization for dissimilar activities. Through anticipating the need for several kinds of ability necessities and stages of personnel, well in advance, a manpower plan

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

56/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 43 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 43 WORDS

adequate lead time for recruitment, selection, and training of such personnel. It controls delays and is a very effective device to develop the required sources from which needed personnel can be made accessible. The objectives of manpower planning are: o To ensure adequate lead time for recruitment, selection, and training of such personnel. It controls delays and is a very effective device to develop the required sources from which needed personnel can be made accessible. The objectives of manpower planning are: To ensure

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

57/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

optimum use of human possessions currently employed o To assess or forecast future skills necessities if the organization's overall objectives are to be achieved o To give control measures to ensure that necessary possessions are accessible as and when required

optimum use of human possessions currently employed To assess or forecast future skills necessities if the organization"s overall objectives are to be achieved To give control measures to ensure that necessary possessions, are accessible as and when required

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

58/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

recruitment stage o To anticipate the weaknesses of organizational procedures and avoid unnecessary dismissals. o To determine recruitment stage To anticipate the weaknesses of organizational procedures and avoid unnecessary dismissals. To determine

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

59/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 56 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 56 WORDS

To give a basis for management o To assess future accommodation necessities. At the stage of manpower planning, planners have to take into consideration several things. The planner necessity takes into account all such variables which are beyond his/her control, these are wavering variables that always affect the functioning of an organization, for instance,

To give a basis for management To assess future accommodation necessities . At the stage of manpower planning, planners have to take into consideration several things. The planner necessity takes into account all such variables which are beyond his/her control, these are wavering variables which always affect the functioning of an organization, for instance

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

60/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

strength of an organization, investment, union rules, etc. The planners also have to identify those variables which are manipulative, for instance, productivity, incentives, training, etc. the strength of an organization, investment, union rules etc. The planners also have to identify those variables which are manipulative, for instance, productivity, incentives, training etc. the necessity determine in advance the time horizons of their plans since they affect the changeability of structures and functions within the system. Manpower planning can only be effective if goals are explicitly laid down. Manpower planning has to determine the quality and quantity of personnel needed for a specific job. The methods used for this purpose are job analysis, job account, job specification, workload analysis, and work force analysis. Without effective manpower planning, the other functions of personnel administration viz. recruitment, placement, training, promotion, necessity determine in advance the time horizons of their plans since they affect the changeability of structures and functions within the system. Manpower planning can only be effective if goals are explicitly laid down. Manpower planning has to determine the quality and quantity of personnel needed for a specific job. The methods used for this purpose are job analysis, job account, job specification, workload analysis, and work force analysis. Without effective manpower planning, the other functions of personnel administration viz. recruitment, placement, training, promotion,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

61/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 85 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 85 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

62/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 54 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 54 WORDS

In the general area of policy creation, the public services have not given a convincing account of themselves; they act through hunches and intuition rather than trained insights. In its Report on Personnel Administration, the Administrative ReformsCommission (ARC) (1968) while emphasizing the need for a new personnel system dealt with several characteristics of

In the general area of policy creation, the public services have not given a convincing account of themselves; they act through hunches and intuition rather than trained insights. In its Report on Personnel Administration, the Administrative Reforms Commission (ARC) (1968) while emphasizing the need for a new personnel system dealt with several characteristics of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

63/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

personnel system in Central Government and highlighted its shortcomings. The first of these shortcomings, according to ARC, relates to personnel system in Central Government and highlighted its shortcomings. The first of these shortcomings, according to ARC, relates to

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

64/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 64 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 64 WORDS

professional inadequacy of the system to face the great diversification of the functions which calls 19 for a diversity of skills in the higher administration. Secondly, ARC diagnosed that the “tenure system” through which non-professional and non-committed “birds of passage” is brought temporarily, impeded “structure up new expertise in personnel”. Thirdly, it laid that “generalist” which has been the hallmark of professional inadequacy of the system to face the great diversification of the functions which calls for a diversity of skills in the higher administration. Secondly, ARC diagnosed that the “tenure system” through which non-professional and non committed „birds of passage" are brought temporarily, impeded “structure up new expertise in personnel"." Thirdly, it laid that “generalist” which has been the hallmark of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

65/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Indian personnel system has lost “its validity in many fields and is declining in importance” as an inevitable consequence of rapidly “rising technological sophistication” in administration. Fourthly, it would be in

Indian personnel system has lost "its validity in many fields and is declining in importance” as an inevitable consequence of rapidly “rising technological sophistication” in administration. Fourthly, it would be in

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

66/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 126 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 126 WORDS

public interest to cast the net wide and choose the best material to match jobs with the persons possessing the needed qualification. In the prevalent system, man job match is not ideal, nor is it consciously practiced, because of the application of the “cadre” concept. Fifthly, in the policy advice and managerial decisions where specialist—professionals are not expected “to involve themselves directly” the whole procedure is amateurish, frustrating, and time-consuming. Sixthly, there is irrationality in the “remuneration pattern of the dissimilar services” which does not “give for recognition of merit, adequate opportunities for promotion and continuous incentive for good performance”. Eighthly, “adherence to seniority has proved damaging to quality”. Finally “the present personnel system does not create for a rational and optimum utilization of human public interest to cast the net wide and choose the best material in an effort to'hatch jobs with the persons possessing needed qualification. In the prevalent system, man-job-match is not ideal, nor is it consciously practised, in view of the application of " cadre" concept. Fifthly, in the policy advice and managerial decisions where specialist-professionals are not expected "to involve themselves directly" the whole process is amateurish, frustrating and time consuming. - Sixthly, there is irrationality in the "remuneration pattern of the different services" which does not "provide for recognition of merit, adequate opportunities for ~romotion and continuous incentive for good ~erformance." I t I < 1 I Eighthly, "adherence to seniority has proved damaging to quality." Finally "the present personnel system does not make for a rational and optimum utilisation of human

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

67/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

an Efficient Public Personnel System The public personnel system has to perform several vital tasks,	AN EFFICIENT PUBLIC PERSONNEL SYSTEM The public personnel system has to perform several vital tasks,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

68/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 230 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 230 WORDS

human element is the mainly crucial part of any system, and it has to be adequately utilized. Several dysfunctionalities that have developed in public services over the decades are posing a lot of hurdles in the pursuance of administrative objectives. The troubles like the rising gap flanked by the administration and citizens, the immobility of public services, red-tapist, obsolete methods of operation, etc. have to be tackled properly. To evolve an efficient public personnel system a much closer interaction is described flanked by the public servants and the citizens. The concept of isolation of civil servants from the public has to be absent. Constant interaction flanked by the public personnel and government can also solve the difficulties to a great extent, a positive and cordial relationship flanked by the minister and the public servant is needed. According to H. Finer, "Though adequately organized the political side of the government, though wise the political philosophy, high leadership, and command, these will be of no effect without the body of officials who are experts in applying power and wisdom to the scrupulous cases and are permanently and specially employed to do so." There is a need for citizens' participation in administrative processes. Citizens should not just be the recipients of the fruits of the implemented programmes, they necessity actively take part in the formulation, implementation, and monitoring of plans as well.	human element is the mainly crucial part of any system, and it has to be adequately utilized. Several dysfunctionalities that have developed in the public services over the decades are posing a lot of hurdles in the pursuance of administrative objectives. The troubles like the rising gap flanked by the administration and citizens, the immobility of public services, red-tapist, obsolete methods of operation etc. have to be tackled properly. In order to evolve an efficient public personnel system a much more closer interaction is described for flanked by the public servants and the citizens. The concept of isolation of civil servants from the public has to be done absent with. Constant interaction flanked by the public personnel and government can also solve the difficulties to a great extent, a positive and cordial relationship flanked by the minister and the public servant is needed. According to H. Finer, "Though adequately organized the political side of the government, though wise the political philosophy, high leadership and command, these will be of no effect without the body of officials who are experts in applying power and wisdom to the scrupulous cases and are permanently and specially employed to do so." There is a need for citizen"s participation in administrative processes. Citizens should not just be the recipients of the fruits of the implemented programmes, they necessity actively take part in the formulation, implementation and monitoring of plans as well.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

69/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

role of voluntary agencies, planning bodies at the grassroots stage, and panchayat bodies have become very significant. These bodies' 20 necessities aim at	Role of voluntary agencies, planning bodies at the grassroots stage and panchayat bodies has become very significant. These bodies necessity aim at

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

70/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	30 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	30 WORDS

optimal utilization of human possessions. Media can also play an effective role in removing the dysfunctionalities of public personnel administration. It can highlight the methods adopted through administration in optimal utilization of human possessions. Media can also play an effective role in removing the dysfunctionalities of public personnel administer It can highlight the methods adopted through administration in

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

71/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	59 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	59 WORDS

removal of citizens' grievances. It can draw the attention of people to the difficulties faced by citizens in their interaction with the administrative personnel and the ways or methods through which they can voice them. Media can highlight the role of nongovernmental organizations and cooperatives in rising peoples' participation in administration. 3.5.1 Recruitment, Training, and Promotion of Personnel removal of citizens grievances. It can draw the attention of people to the difficulties faced through citizens in their interaction with the administrative personnel and the ways or methods through which they can voice them. Media can highlight the role of nongovernmental organizations and cooperatives in rising people"s participation in administration. FUNCTIONS AND SIGNIFICANCE OF PERSONNEL

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

72/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

An organization has to create an assessment of its necessities in conditions of an organization has to create an assessment of its necessities in conditions of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

73/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	18 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	18 WORDS

definition of a job, the skills, and specialization it entails the duration for which personnel is required, definition of a job, the skills, and specialization it entails the duration for which personnel are required,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

74/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 88 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 88 WORDS

nature of work, etc. Manpower planning is engaged with these kinds of activities. Organizations whether large or small, whether public or private, are in constant need of manpower. They require men and women for dissimilar stages of positions for performing dissimilar types of jobs at dissimilar places and intervals. The number of personnel with defined skills and specializations needed at dissimilar periodic intervals has to be forecasted. Manpower planning predicts the number of personnel an organization will have to hire, train, or promote in a given period.

nature of work etc. Manpower planning is engaged with these kind of activities. Organizations whether large or small, whether public or private, are in constant need of manpower. They require men and women for dissimilar stages of positions for performing dissimilar types of jobs at dissimilar places and intervals. The number of personnel with defined skills and specializations needed at dissimilar periodic intervals has to be forecasted. Manpower planning predicts the number of personnel an organization will have to hire, train, or promote in a given period.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

75/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 142 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 142 WORDS

Recruitment Once the determination of manpower needs has been made, the recruitment and selection processes can begin. Recruitment is the procedure of searching for prospective workers and stimulating them to apply for jobs in the organization. It is a positive function that aims at raising the selection ratio which is the number of applicants per job. In contrast, the selection procedure is a 'negative' function because it attempts to eliminate applicants leaving only the best to be absorbed into the organization. Recruitment determines the tone and caliber of the services whether public or private. A faulty recruitment policy inflicts a permanent weakness upon the administration. Not even an effective training policy can create faultily recruited persons bright and efficient. The vital elements of a sound recruitment policy contain: o Discovery and cultivation of the employment market for posts in the organization

Recruitment Once the determination of manpower needs has been made, the recruitment and selection processes can begin. Recruitment is the procedure of searching for prospective workers and stimulating them to apply for jobs in the organization. It is a positive function which aims at raising the selection ratio that is the number of applicants per job opening. In contrast, the selection procedure is a „negative" function because it attempts to eliminate applicants leaving only the best to be absorbed in the organization. Recruitment determines the tone and caliber of the services whether public or private. A faulty recruitment policy inflicts a permanent weakness upon the administration. Not even an effective training policy can create faultily recruited persons bright and efficient. The vital elements of a sound recruitment policy contain: Discovery and cultivation of the employment market for posts in the organization

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

76/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Use of attractive recruitment literature and publicity o Use of scientific tests for determining

Use of attractive recruitment literature and publicity Use of scientific tests for determining

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

77/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	198 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	198 WORDS

abilities of the candidates o Tapping capable candidates from within the organization o Placement programme which assigns the right man to the right job; and o A follow-up probationary programme as an integral part of the recruitment Procedure. 21 Recruitment implies matching the personnel features of potential employees with the job necessities. The sources of recruitment can be broadly classified into two: internal and external. Internal sources refer to the present working force of an organization. In the event of a vacancy, someone already on the payroll is promoted, transferred, or sometimes demoted. Filling a vacancy from an internal source has the advantages of raising the general stage of morale of existing employees and of providing the organization with more reliable information about the candidate's suitability. The major weakness of this source is that it may deprive the organization of a fresh outlook, originality, and initiative. External sources refer to the methods adopted by the organization to attract people from outside the organization through a thorough assessment of their qualifications, skills, and potential. Some of the methods of determining qualifications are the personal judgment of the appointing officer, certificates of skill, character, and education, abilities of the candidates tapping capable candidates from within the placement programme which assigns the right man to the right job; and a follow-up probationary programme as an integral part of the recruitment Recruitment implies matching the personnel characteristics of potential employees with the job requirements. The sources of recruitment can be broadly classified into two: internal and external. Internal sources refer to the present working force of an organisation. In the event of a vacancy, someone already on the payroll is promoted, transferred or sometimes demoted. Filling a vacancy from internal source has the advantages of increasing the general level of morale of existing'employees and of providing to the organisation a more reliable information about the candidate's suitability. The major weakness of this source is that it may deprive the organisation of a fresh outlook, originality and initiative. External sources refer to the methods adopted by the organisation to attract people from outside the organisation through a thorough assessment of their qualifications, skills and potential. Some of the methods of determining qualifications are the personal judgement of the appointing officer, certificates of ability, character and education,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

78/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 232 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 232 WORDS

record of previous experience (educational and professional), and examinations. Employment agencies, advertisements, field trips, educational institutions, professional meetings, employee referrals, unsolicited applicants, etc. are some examples of external sources of recruitment. An organization cannot fill its vacancies from one single source only. Itis necessary cautiously combine some of these services, weighing their cost and flexibility, the quality of personnel they supply, and their effect on the present work- force. A planned recruitment programme gives the organization with job applicants from whom a required number of selections are made. There is no standard selection procedure for recruitment. Usually, the selection is made through a written test or an interview, or both. The final step in the selection procedure is that of inducting the new employee into the new social setting of his/her work. This is done by familiarizing the employee with the new surroundings and the rules and regulations of the organization. Several training methods are used to upgrade the skills of the recruits and integrate their goals with the organizational goals; we will now discuss some of these methods. Training Training is a well-articulated effort to give for increased competence in the service, through imparting professional knowledge, broader vision, and correct patterns of behaviour, habits, and aptitudes. It should be a continuous procedure in response to a continuously felt need. Training helps the entrant by inculcating occupational ability and knowledge, through record of previous experience (educational and professional) and examinations. Employment agencies, advertisements, field trips, educational institutions, professional meetings, employees" referrals, unsolicited applicants etc. are some examples of the external sources of recruitment. An organization cannot fill its vacancies from one single source only. It necessity cautiously combine some of these services, weighing their cost and flexibility, the quality of personnel they supply and their effect on the present work force. A planned recruitment programme gives the organization with job applicants from whom a required number of selections are made. There is no standard selection procedure for recruitment. Usually the selection is made through a written test or an interview or both. The final step in the selection procedure is that of inducting the new employee into the new social setting of his/her work. This is done through familiarizing the employee with the new surroundings and the rules and regulations of the organization. Several training methods are used to upgrade the skills of the new recruits and integrate their goals with the organizational goals; we will now discuss some of these methods. Training Training is a well-articulated effort to give for increased competence in the service, through imparting professional knowledge, broader vision, and correct patterns of behaviour, habits, and aptitudes. It should be a continuous procedure in response to a continuously felt need. Training helps the entrant through inculcating occupational ability and knowledge, through department's or organization's goals. Training adjusts the employees with the constant changes in the goals and techniques of organizations. The deficiencies of the new appointees may be corrected by imparting them necessary training. Training helps broaden the vision and outlook of the appointees. It equips those already in the service for higher 22 positions and greater responsibilities, enhances the efficiency of the employees, and helps build the integrity and morale of the employees. The conditions of training and education are closely related. Training is the art of rising the knowledge and ability of an employee for doing a scrupulous job. It is concerned with imparting specific skills for a scrupulous purpose. On the other hand, education is a broader term; it is concerned with rising general knowledge and understanding of the employee's total environment. The need for training is universal. Everybody needs training to effectively discharge the obligations of his/her office. It is a continuous procedure. Training can be informal or formal. Informal training is training through doing work and learning from mistakes. The ultimate success of informal training depends upon the experience and seniority of the senior officer and his/her interest in the new entrant. Formal training aims to inculcate administrative skills in the personnel through well-defined courses. Formal training improves the quality of administration. Pre-entry training, orientation training, in-service training, vocational training, post-entry training, etc. are some examples of formal training. Dissimilar methods of imparting training can be lecture method, case revise method, syndicate method, etc. Whatever the methods, the vital aims of training are always:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

79/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 261 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 261 WORDS

department"s or organization"s goals. Training adjusts the employees with the constant changes in the goals and techniques of organizations. The deficiencies of the new appointees may be corrected through imparting them necessary training. Training helps broaden the vision and outlook of the appointees. It equips those already in the service for higher positions and greater responsibilities, it enhances the efficiency of the employees, and helps build integrity and morale of the employees. The conditions training and education are closely related. Training is the art of rising the knowledge and ability of an employee for doing a scrupulous job. It is concerned with imparting specific skills for a scrupulous purpose. On the other hand education is a broader term; it is concerned with rising general knowledge and understanding of the employee"s total environment. The need for training is universal. Everybody needs training so as to effectively discharge the obligations of his/her office. It is a continuous procedure. Training can be informal or formal. Informal training is training through doing the work and learning from mistakes. The ultimate success of informal training depends upon the experience and seniority of the senior officer and his/her interest in the new entrant. The aim of formal training is to inculcate administrative skills in the personnel through well-defined courses. Informal training improves the quality of administration. Pre-entry training, orientation training, in-service training, vocational training, post-entry training etc. are of the examples of formal training. Dissimilar methods of imparting training can be lecture method, case revise method, syndicate method etc. Whatever be the methods, the vital aims of training are always:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

80/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

inculcating fresh knowledge in the middle of the employees o upgrading their skills o familiarizing the inducts with the organization, its environment, work circumstances, rules, norms, and goals o attuning the employees to the new needs of the organization o broadening the views and outlook of employees o maintaining the morale of the employees

inculcating fresh knowledge in the middle of the employees o upgrading their skills o familiarizing the inducts to the organization, its environment, work circumstances, rules, norms and goals o attuning the employees to the new needs of the organization o broadening the views and outlook of employees o maintaining the morale of the employees

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

81/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 57 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 57 WORDS

development of novel attitudes and reducing waste, accidents, turnover, and absenteeism. Every administrative system necessity pays adequate attention to its training necessities. A well- trained, well-aware, and properly skilled personnel system is the very heart of an organization. Promotion Another vital function of personnel administration is promotion. The word 'promote' is derived from the Latin expression 'promoter',

Development of novel attitudes; and reducing waste, accidents, turnover and absenteeism . Every administrative system necessity pays adequate attention to its training necessities. A well trained, well-aware and properly skilled personnel system is the very heart of an organization. Promotion Another vital function of personnel administration is promotion. The word „promote" is derived from the Latin expression „promoter",

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

82/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 91 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 91 WORDS

advancement of an employee to a job better than the present one in conditions of greater responsibilities, more prestige or status, greater ability and augment in pay. The need for promotion arises from a diversity of factors. An organization can retain the services of its personnel through the device of promotion. Lower positions in the organization can attract competent persons if it creates provisions for its personnel to move higher. A sound policy of promotion fosters a feeling of belongingness in the personnel, contributes towards the 23 stability

advancement of an employee to a job better than the present one in conditions of greater responsibilities, more prestige or status, greater ability and augment in pay. The need for promotion arises from a diversity of factors. An organization is able to retain the services of its personnel through the device of promotion. Lower positions in the organization are able to attract competent persons if it creates provisions for its personnel to move higher. A sound policy of promotion fosters a feeling of belongingness in the personnel, contributes towards the stability

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

83/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

structure of traditions and conventions in the organization. According to W.F. Willoughby, a sound promotion system should fulfill the following circumstances: o Adoption of standard specifications setting forth duties and qualifications required for promotions in the government service. o The classification of these positions into separate classes, series, grades, and services

structure of traditions and conventions in the organization. According to W.F. Willoughby, a sound promotion system should fulfill the following circumstances: Adoption of standard specifications setting forth duties and qualifications required for promotions in the government service The classification of these positions into separate classes, series, grades and services

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

84/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	18 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	18 WORDS

The inclusion within this classification of all the higher administrative positions except those having a political character

The inclusion within this classification of all the higher administrative positions except those having a political character

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

85/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	72 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	72 WORDS

The adoption, as far as possible of the principle of recruitment from within for filling up higher posts o The adoption of the principle of merit in determining the relative merits of employees eligible for advancement. The employees should be made aware not just of the opportunities for promotion open to them but also of the definite lines beside which such promotion is to be expected and the circumstances that necessity

The adoption, as far as possible of the principle of recruitment from within for filling up of higher posts The adoption of the principle of merit in determining the relative merits of employees eligible for advancement. The employees should be made aware not just of the opportunities for promotion open to them but also of the definite lines beside which such promotion is to be expected and the circumstances that necessity

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

86/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	127 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	127 WORDS

Principle of merit. The principle of seniority is an age-old principle. Employees attach great importance to the length of service. According to H. Finer, “it is automatic and avoids the need for creation individual distinctions flanked by one person and another, of placing the young over the old, of measuring the responsibility for the result of promotion.” But, this gives rise to two vital questions. Is the employee with the longest service necessarily the mainly competent? If employees automatically qualify for higher jobs through being senior, will new employees be motivated to provide good performance? Yet, seniority cannot be rejected altogether through using the internal method of promotion; the administration can keep the morale of employees high and also encourage a competitive spirit for better performance.

Principle of merit. The principle of seniority is an age-old principle. Employees attach great importance to the length of service. According to H. Finer, “it is automatic and avoids the need for creation individual distinctions flanked by one person and another, of placing the young over the old, of measuring the responsibility for the result of promotion.” But, this gives rise to two vital questions. Is the employee with the longest service necessarily the mainly competent? If employees automatically qualify for higher jobs through being senior, will new employees be motivated to provide good performance? Yet, seniority cannot be rejected altogether through using the internal method of promotion; the administration can keep the morale of employees high and also encourage a competitive spirit for better performance.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

87/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 125 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 125 WORDS

use of external methods does give the competitive spirit to grow but the procedure affects the morale of the employees adversely. Using the principle of merit in promotion requires fair practices. To determine the merit of employees, a scientific system of 'performance appraisal' needs to be developed. It should be made as objective as possible. The appraisal should be of regular and continuous nature and should evaluate the quality, quantity, and styles of performance. It should contain also an 24 appraisal of the growth potential of an employee. Taking into consideration the weak and strong points of both principles, a mix of the two is adopted in the organizations while selecting candidates for promotion; both seniority and merit are given due weight

Use of external method does give for the competitive spirit to grow but in the procedure affects the morale of the employees adversely. Using the principle of merit in promotion requires fair practices. In order to determine the merit of employees, a scientific system of „performance appraisal" needs to be developed. It should be made as objective as possible. The appraisal should be of regular and continuous nature and should evaluate the quality, quantity, and styles of performance. It should contain also an appraisal of the growth potential of an employee. Taking into consideration the weak and strong points of both the principles, a mix of the two is adopted in the organizations while selecting candidates for promotion; both seniority and merit are given due weight

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

88/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 123 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 123 WORDS

promotion has to be based on just and fair norms as it is a powerful means in the hands of the organization to reward its faithful workers. It is a powerful means to lead the employees toward the desired goals. Salary structuring The development of a sound salary system is a significant function of personnel administration. Salary has to be structured in such a way that the employees of the organization feel adequately rewarded and possessions accessible to the organization are optimally utilized. The following are the necessities for the development of a sound pay system: o The pay structure should be simple and rational the pay of a post should be related to the duties and responsibilities attached to that post promotion has to be hased on just and fair norms as it is a powerful means in the hands of the organisation to reward its faithful workers. It is a powerful means to lead the employees towards the desired goals. 2.2.3 Salary Structuring I I Development of a sound salary-system is an important function of personnel administration. Salary has to be structured in such a way that the employees of the organisation feel adequately rewarded and resources available to the organisation are optimaly utilised.~the requirements for the development of a sound pay system : a the pay structure should be simple and rational the pay of a post should be related to the duties and responsibilities attached to that post

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

89/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 65 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 65 WORDS

it should take into consideration the qualifications and experience prescribed it should be comprehensive and adequate to enable the employee to have a feeling of the total emoluments and to maintain a sure standard of living and it should take into account the comparable salaries paid in alternative occupations. Clarity and adequacy are the standard tasks of a sound pay structure. Good compensation plans, it should take into consideration the qualifications and experience prescribed it should be comprehensive and adequate to enable the employee to have a feeling of the total emoluments and to maintain a sure standard of living and it should take into account the comparable salaries paid in alternative occupations. Comprehensibility and adequacy are the standard tasks of a sound pay structure. Good compensation plans,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

90/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

have a salutary effect on the whole organization. Employees are happier in their work, cooperation, and loyalty are higher, have a salutary affect on the whole organization. Employees are happier in their work, cooperation and loyalty are higher,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

91/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 164 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 164 WORDS

productive output is up and quality is better. In the absence of such plans, compensations are determined subjectively based on haphazard and arbitrary decisions. This makes many inequities which are in the middle of the main dangerous sources of friction and low morale in an organization. Although there can be both monetary and non-monetary forms of compensation prevalent in an organization, it is the former which is the main vital element through which individuals are attracted to an organization, persuaded to remain there, and induced to engage in a behavior that is beneficial to the organization. Each organization should structure the salaries of its employees in such a way that no employee feels inadequately rewarded. Separately from vital salary, additional allowances such as house rent allowance, conveyance allowance, recreation allowance, leave encashment; festival loan, etc. can be given to the employees. Moreover, the salary scales have to be constantly revised because of price rises or augment in profits for the organization Employees' Welfare productive output is up and quality is better. In the absence of such plans compensations are determined subjectively on the basis of haphazard and arbitrary decisions. This makes many inequities which are in the middle of the mainly dangerous sources of friction and low morale in an organization. Although there can be both monetary and non monetary forms of compensation prevalent in an organization, yet it is the former which is the mainly vital element through which individuals are attracted to an organization, persuaded to remain there and induced to engage in a behaviour that is beneficial to the organization. Each organization should structure the salaries of its employees in such a way that no employee feels inadequately rewarded. Separately from vital salary, additional allowances such as house rent allowance, conveyance allowance, recreation allowance, leave encashment; festival loan etc. can be given to the employees. Moreover the salary scales have to be constantly revised in view of price rise or augment in profits for the organization Employees, Welfare

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

92/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

welfare of employees is one of the mainly significant functions of personnel administration, a good personnel system always gives top priority to the well- being of employees. A sound personnel 25 policy, proper recruitment and promotion techniques, conducive training methods, etc. make sure

Welfare of employees is one of the mainly significant functions of personnel administration, a good personnel system always gives topmost priority to the well- being of employees. A sound personnel policy, proper recruitment and promotion techniques, conducive training methods etc. a sure

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

93/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

physical and mental condition of the employees so necessary for good performance. These circumstances need to be maintained as well.

physical and mental condition of the employees so necessary for good performance. These circumstances need to be maintained as well.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

94/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

motivation of employees and the structure of their morale at dissimilar stages helps in maintaining these circumstances. All kinds of welfare programmes in an organization are to help in

Motivation of employees and structure up of their morale at dissimilar stages helps in maintaining these circumstances. All kinds of welfare programmes in an organization are to help in

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

95/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

maintenance of these-circumstances only. Employees' benefit programmes make and stimulate morale which contributes to the creation and maintenance of favorable attitudes toward work and maintenance of these-circumstances only. Employees" benefit programmes make and stimulate morale which contributes to the creation and maintenance of favorable attitude towards work and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

96/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

work environment. These programmes contain fringe benefits such as holidays, dissimilar kinds of leave entitlement education facilities, canteen facilities, leave travel fare concession, etc.

work environment. These programmes contain fringe benefits such as holidays, dissimilar kinds of leave entitlement education facilities, canteen facilities, leave travel fare concession etc.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

97/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 151 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 151 WORDS

physical condition is maintained through safety and health programmes, group health insurance plans, regular medical examinations, proper working circumstances like proper lighting, ventilation, space, and equipment, etc. These are all employee welfare measures. Maintenance of discipline and following a code of conduct in the organization also helps in creating a conducive work environment in the organization which is significant for employees' welfare. Penalties for violation of rules, under-performance, or non-performance vary widely in severity. The more usual forms of disciplinary action are warning or reprimand, reassignment to other duties, suspension from duty fora sure period, demotion to a position of lower rank or grade, and dismissal or removal from the service. Strict disciplinary actions are very essential as they augment the efficiency of work, raise the morale of the employees, and keep inefficient out of the organization. As a model employer, an organization gives several social welfare and security services

physical condition is maintained through safety and health programmes, group health insurance plans, regular medical examinations, proper working circumstances like proper lighting, ventilation, space, and equipment etc. These are all employees" welfare measures. Maintenance of discipline and following a code of conduct in the organization also helps in creating conducive work environment in the organization which is significant for employees" welfare. Penalties for violation of rules, for mis performance or for non-performance vary widely in severity. The more usual forms of disciplinary action are warning or reprimand, reassignment to other duties, suspension from duty a sure period of time, demotion a position of lower rank or grade and dismissal or removal from the service. Strict disciplinary actions are very essential as they augment the efficiency of work, raise the morale of the employees, and keep the inefficient out of the organization. As a model employer, an organization gives several social welfare and security services

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

98/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

its employees. These can be in the form of sure tangible benefits. Some of these benefits supply financial protection against sure risks such as illness accidents, unemployment, and loss of income due to retirement. Some other benefits give extra leisure, extra income, and its employees. These can be in the form of sure tangible benefits. Some of these benefits supply financial protection against sure risks such as illness accident, unemployment, and loss of income due to retirement. Some other benefits give extra leisure, extra income and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

99/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

better work environment. These programmes fulfill the physical, mental, financial, and recreational as well as the social needs of the employees. A proper retirement scheme is also very essential for employees' welfare. The organization needs to assure its employees better work environment. These programmes fulfill the physical, mental, financial, and recreational as well as the social needs of the employees. A proper retirement scheme is also very essential for employees" welfare. The organization needs to assure its employees

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

100/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 64 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 64 WORDS

an easy and carefree life in their old age. The age of retirement can be anywhere flanked by 50 and 65. Proper retirement benefits attract talented persons to the organization; they help the system of promotion, and through these benefits efficiency of employees increases. Besides pensions, some other benefits such as allowances to take care of inflation, medical facilities, provident fund, family pension, an easy and carefree life in their old age. The age of retirement can be anywhere flanked by 50 and 65. Proper retirement benefits attract talented persons to the organization; they help the system of promotion, through these benefits efficiency of employee"s increases. Besides pension, some other benefits such as allowances to take care of inflation, medical facilities, provident fund, family pension,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

101/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

travel concessions are also provided to retired employees. The primary aim of all these benefits is to give necessary means of livelihood and freedom from sure worries to the employees in their old age. Efforts travel concessions are also provided to the retired employees. The primary aim of all these benefits is to give necessary means of livelihood and freedom from sure worries to the employees in their old age. Efforts

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

102/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 63 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 63 WORDS

made to give counseling to help the retired personnel utilize their time and money effectively. All possible information should be passed on to employees who are seeking 26 retirement, external expertise can also be used through the organization in conditions of financial planning, planning for a second career, etc. A cautiously devised retirement plan necessity always forms a part of

made to give counseling to help the retired personnel to utilize their time and money effectively. All possible information should be passed on to employees who are seeking retirement, external expertise can also be used through the organization in conditions of financial planning, planning for a second career etc. A cautiously devised retirement plan necessity always forms a part of planning package of an organization. Redressal of employees' grievances is yet another very significant characteristic of employee welfare programmes. The interests of the employees and the employers should not be in disagreement. Over the decades there has been planning package of an organization. Redressal of employees" grievances is yet another very significant characteristic of employees" welfare programmes. The interests of the employees and the employers should not be in disagreement. Over the decades there has been common needs and interests of the employees. There are several ways and channels to solve the troubles of the employees. Redressal cells in the organization should try to remove the grievances of the personnel quickly and systematically. The organization has to give its employees effective leadership. It has to generate the will to work in the middle of the employees. Inculcation of morale, of that spirit, that state of mind, which expresses itself in loyalty, enthusiasm, cooperation, pride in the service, and devotion to duty, is the end of the whole personnel system. Employees' necessity has a sense of security, attainment, and belongingness in the organization. Through attitude surveys and proper recruitment, selection, promotion, training, common needs and interests of the employees. The employees" several ways and channels to solve the troubles of the employees. Redresall cells in the organization should try to remove the grievances of the personnel quickly and systematically. The organization has to give to its employee"effective leadership. It has to generate the will to work in the middle of the employees. Inculcation of morale, of that spirit, that state of mind, which expresses itself in loyalty, enthusiasm, cooperation, pride in the service and devotion to duty, is the end of the whole personnel system. Employee"s necessity has a sense of security, attainment, and belongingness in the organization. Through attitude surveys and proper recruitment, selection, promotion, training,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

103/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 39 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 39 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

104/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 116 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 116 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

105/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

salary structuring policies, an organization can formulate appropriate welfare schemes and develop a workable work environment for its employees. 3.6

salary structuring policies, an organization can formulate appropriate welfare schemes and develop a conducive work environment for its employees.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

106/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

success of any administrative system depends on how effectively it handles its personnel functions.

Success of any administrative system depends on how effectively it handles its personnel functions.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

107/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output.

determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

108/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

With their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity, and organizing capacity, they can build the image of their organizations or effective institutions in	with their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity and organising capacity that they can build the imaee of their oreanisations as effective institutions in

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

109/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

in developing human resources through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job enrichment programs, and designing suitable performance appraisals and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people	in developing human possessions through training, career development, planning, counseling, selection, job-enrichment programmes and designing appropriate performance appraisal and reward systems can go a long way in maintaining the morale and motivation of people

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

110/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.	Ghosh, P, 1969. Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd.: New Delhi.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

111/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

Public Services and their Role in Administrative System Structure 4.1 Objective 4.2 Introduction 4.3 Meaning 4.4	PUBLIC SERVICES AND THEIR ROLE IN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM Structure 3.0 3.1 3.2 3.3 3.4 Objectives Introduction Meaning

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

112/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Public Services 4.6 Transition from Traditional' to 'Contemporary' State 4.7 Growth in the Functions of	public services. Transition from Traditional' to 'Modern' State With the growth in the functions of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

113/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 74 WORDS 65% MATCHING TEXT 74 WORDS

executive segment of the government needs the support of an organization (Public Administration) for the proper formulation and implementation of its programmes. One of the important aspects of public administration is the 'public services', which are instruments of regulation, development, and change in administration. They are the most essential part of the administrative system. The role and functions of public services within the administrative system constitute an important focus of study. This Unit executive segment of the government needs the help of an organisation which may be termed Public Administration for the proper formulation and implementaiion of its programmes. One of the important parts of Public Administration is the 'public sen4ces1. Public services is an instrument of development and change. It has become one of the most essential and vital parts of the administrative system. The role and functions of the public services within the administrative system constitute an important focus of study. This unit

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

114/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 99 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 99 WORDS

Public Services" are usually defined to mean the civil services constituted through the government to translate all its plans and programmes into implement able action. In common usage, civil service means that branch of governmental machinery that is concerned not with law creation but with law enforcing functions. In the executive branch of the government, there are two parts, the ministers, and civil servants. The civil servants carry out the orders of the ministers and advise them in policy formulation. According to E.N. Gladden, "Civil Service is the name of a significant government institution comprising the staffs of Public Services" are usually defined to mean the civil services constituted through the government to translate all its plans and programmes into implement able action. In common usage, civil service means that branch of governmental machinery which is concerned not with law creation but with law enforcing functions. In the executive branch of the government, there are two parts, the ministers, and civil servants. The civil servants carry out the orders of the ministers and advise them in policy formulation. According to E.N. Gladden, "Civil Service is the name of an significant government institution comprising the staffs of central administration of the state. It s more for it stands for a spirit essential to the success of modem democracy, an ideal of vocation in public officials who devote their lives to the service of the community". In administrative phraseology, public services have a slightly wider connotation in the sense 29 that they are taken to cover, besides civil servants, central administration of the state. It s more for it stands for a spirit essential to the success of modem democracy, an ideal of vocation in public officials who devote their lives to the service of the community"" In administrative parlance, public services have a slightly wider connotation in the sense that they are taken to cover, besides civil servants,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

115/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 65 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 65 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

116/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

extended group of employees who may be working in public sector undertakings, nationalized banks, and other quasi-governmental organizations funded wholly or partly through the government. While the civil servants are the holders of civil posts, whose remuneration in India is paid out of extended group of employees who may be working in public sector undertakings, nationalized banks and other quasi-governmental organizations funded wholly or partly through the government. While the civil servants are the holders of civil posts, whose remuneration in India is paid out of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

117/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 98 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 98 WORDS

Consolidated Fund of India, others are not so paid. In Britain, they are also accepted as "those servants of the crown other than holders of the political and judicial offices, who are employed in civil capability and of course, remunerated through budget passed through Parliament".In brief, as H. Finer stated "Civil Service is a professional body of officials, permanent, paid and skilled" and further, classified British Civil Service into three categories, administrative (policy formulation and execution); technical (scientific and specialized categories like doctors, engineers, etc.) and manipulative (executing orders of the first two classes). Public services are

Consolidated Fund of India, others are not so paid. In Britain, they are also accepted as "those servants of the crown other than holders of the political and judicial offices, who are employed in civil capability and of course, remunerated through budget passed through Parliament." In brief, as H. Finer stated "Civil Service is a professional body of officials, permanent, paid and skilled" and further, classified British Civil Service into three categories, administrative (policy formulation and execution); technical (scientific and specialized categories like doctors, engineers etc.) and manipulative (executing orders of the first two classes). Public services are

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

118/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

Well-knit and well-organized public bureaucratic structure precedes electoral democracy. It gives stability and stability to the system of government. Public services are a blend of sure characteristics viz. expertise, vitality, and leadership. This blend enables public services to function independently and efficiently. 4.4 Relationship Flanked by the Government and Public Services The art of governance and administration has been

Well-knit and well-organized public bureaucratic structure precedes electoral democracy. It gives stability and stability to the system of government. Public services are a blend of sure characteristics viz. expertise, vitality, and leadership. This blend enables the public services to function in independent and efficient manner. RELATIONSHIP FLANKED BY THE GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICES The art of governance and administration has been

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

119/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

integral characteristic of human society. For governance, there has always been a government, whatever its form, and for carrying out the objectives of the government, there have always been public services. Public services have always been integral characteristic of human society. For governance, there has always been a government, whatever is its form, and for carrying out the objectives of the government, there have always been the public services. Public services have always been

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

120/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 149 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 149 WORDS

formulation, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of its programmes. Therefore, the type and the character of the public services would, no doubt, depend on the kind of government and the nature and scale of the tasks to be performed through it. As a consequence, whenever and wherever there is a change in the government, public services also experience a change to some extent. Bureaucrats have more knowledge, experience, intergovernmental ties, and time than politicians. Both are dependent on each other. The relationship flanked by the government and public services has provided that the dichotomy flanked by policy formulation and implementation can never be strictly maintained in practice. Experience has shown that this kind of departmentalization flanked by governmental and administrative activities is partly, but not wholly true. It is very hard for the government to be only concerned with policy formulation whereas for the services to only deal with formulation, implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of its programmes. Therefore, the type, and the character of the public services would, no doubt, depend on the kind of the government and the nature and the scale of the tasks to be performed through it. As a consequence, whenever and wherever there is a change in the government, the public services also undergo a change to some extent. Bureaucrats have more knowledge, experience, intergovernmental ties, and time than the politicians. Both are dependent on each other. The relationship flanked by the government and public services has provided that the dichotomy flanked by policy formulation and implementation can never be strictly maintained in practice. Experience has shown that this kind of departmentalization flanked by governmental and administrative activities is partly, but not wholly true. It is very hard for the government to be only concerned with policy formulation whereas for the services to only deal with

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

121/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

administration of these formulated policies. Both in theory and practice, there is administration of these formulated policies. Both in theory and practice, there is

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

122/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

frequent crossing of boundaries, as a result, a relationship of complementarily, mutuality, and frequent crossing of boundaries, as a result a relationship of complementarily, mutuality and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

123/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 70 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 70 WORDS

has developed flanked by the 30 two. The government sets the goals for public services; hence it is instrumental as an instrument to achieve these goals. 4.5 Scope of Public Services The role of public services is changing with time. Status-quo-bound public services can never solve the new and rising administrative troubles. Public services have to change in a way that is conducive to the development

has developed flanked by the two. The government sets the goals for public services; hence it is instrumental as a tool to achieve these goals. SCOPE OF PUBLIC SERVICES The role of public services is changing with time. A status-quo bound public services can never solve the new and rising administrative troubles. Public services have to change in a way that is conducive to the development

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

124/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

innovative administrative programmes and systematic progress of the country. Its scope is widening and one cannot think of all-round development without effective public services. 4.6 Transition from Traditional' to 'Contemporary' State With the growth in the functions of the State, innovative administrative programmes and systematic progress of the country. Its scope is widening and one cannot think of all-round development without effective public services. Transition from Traditional' to ' State With the growth in the functions of the State,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

125/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

development of science and technology, the role of the government has undergone a substantial change. Government has to undertake the primary responsibility of governance of its people. This governance involves multifaceted functions in the political, social, and economic areas. Law and order, internal security, and defense against external aggression are some of the sovereign functions of the state. As no government can exist or acquire legitimacy in a political vacuum, the appropriate political systems necessity necessarily is devised for development of science and technology, the role of the government has undergone a substantial change. Government has to undertake the primary responsibility of governance of its people. This governance involves multifaceted functions in the political, social, and economic areas. Law and order, internal security, defense against external aggression are some of the sovereign functions of the state. As no government can exist or acquire legitimacy in a political vacuum, the appropriate political systems necessity necessarily is devised for survival and growth of the government. Likewise, since people can't live on politics alone, their socio-economic needs will also have to be catered to. Therefore social, political, and economic characteristics of governance become critical areas of concern for the administration. As the government grows and undertakes newer tasks and responsibilities, survival and growth of the government. Likewise, since people can"t live on politics alone, their socio-economic needs will also have to be catered to. Therefore social, political, and economic characteristics of governance become critical areas of concern for the administration. As the government grows and undertakes newer tasks and responsibilities,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

126/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 51 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 51 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

127/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

administration also has to respond suitably and effectively. This administrative response is possible only with a proper and rational organization of the public services, for, administration also has to respond suitably and effectively. This administrative response is possible only with a proper and rational organization of the public services, for,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

128/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 95 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 95 WORDS

administration will be reduced to nothing if there are no competent public services to assist it. When the state changes its ideological philosophy from the traditional to the modern, the administration also undergoes a fundamental change. Therefore, when the state transcends itself from "warfare" to "welfare", the administration undergoes a transition from a 'law and order' orientation to a 'developmental' orientation. Development becomes the focus and planning becomes essential, for it is only through systematic and scientific planning that resource mobilization and input utilization within the shortest time is possible to attain optimal output.

administration will be reduced to nothing if there are no competent public services to assist it. When the state changes its ideological philosophy from the traditional to the modern, the administration also undergoes a fundamental change. Therefore, when the state transcends itself from „warfare" to „welfare", the administration undergoes a transition from „ law and order" orientation to „ developmental" orientation. If development becomes the focus, planning becomes essential, for it is only through a systematic and scientific planning that the resource- mobilization and input-utilization within the shortest time is possible in order to attain optimal output.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

129/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 240 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 240 WORDS

administration, therefore, has to pay attention to policy formulation, programme design, project management, and programme evaluation. For all this, efficient and effective public services are required since efficiency in the conduct of government business depends primarily on 31 the skill of personnel employed through the state. Government cannot afford to have the personnel, within the services, who are not fit. When the country adopts development-oriented goals and objectives, the governmental duties become not only socio-economically compulsive but also acquire new dimensions. This calls for efficient and qualified personnel. Plans for administrative reforms can only be successful if they are accompanied by a heightened attitude and motivated skill on the part of the public personnel. Competent personnel is, therefore the sinequanon of effective public services, and the qualities that are sought in public personnel are integrity, skill, dedication, devotion to duty, intelligence, and diligence. 4.7 Growth in the Functions of Public Services Public officials are required to perform all the tasks and duties arising out of the obligations of the government in rendering service to its people. Some of these tasks are, advising ministers on policy issues, supervising all characteristics of administrative, technical, and scientific programmes, economic and financial activities, social welfare, and services. They are also engaged with delegated legislation, administrative adjudication, and public relations. With the augment in the welfare functions the purpose and the scope of the administration have been reoriented. The U.N. Handbook noted

Administration therefore has to pay attention to policy formulation, programme design, project management and programme evaluation. For all this, efficient and effective public services are required since efficiency in the conduct of government business depends primarily on the skill of personnel employed through the state. Government cannot afford to have personnel, within the services, who are not fit. Meritorious and competent. When the country adopts development oriented goals and objectives, the governmental duties become not only socio-economic ally compulsive but also acquire new dimensions. This calls for efficient and qualified personnel. Plans for administrative reforms can only be successful if they are accompanied through a heightened attitude and motivated skill on the part of the public personnel. A competent personnel is, therefore the sinequanon of an effective public services and the qualities that are sought for in public personnel are integrity, skill, dedication, devotion to duty, intelligence, and diligence. Growth in the Functions of Public Services The public officials are required to perform all the tasks and duties arising out of the obligations of the government in rendering service to its people. Some of these tasks are, advising ministers on policy issues, supervising all characteristics of administrative, technical, and scientific programmes, economic and financial activities, social welfare, and services. They are also engaged with delegated legislation, administrative adjudication, and public relations. With the augment in the welfare functions the purpose and the scope of the administration have been totally reoriented. The U.N. Handbook noted:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

130/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 120 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 120 WORDS

the State is expected today to be the accelerator of economic and social change and no longer the preserver of the status quo. And in its new role as the prime mover and stimulator of national development, it is expected to spread the benefits of economic and social progress to everyone. No longer dare a government indefinitely limit the enjoyment of the fruits of the earth and of man's labour and ingenuity to a small privileged class. Moreover, the modern state is expected to achieve these purposes within the general framework of the consent of the people, and with due regard to the rule of law and individual human rights. It is hard today to find a State, whatever

The State is expected today to be the accelerator of economic and social change and no longer the preserver of the status quo. And in its new role as the prime mover and stimulator of national development, it is expected to spread the benefits of economic and social progress to everyone. No longer dare a government indefinitely limit the enjoyment of the fruits of the earth and of man"s labour and ingenuity to a small privileged class. Moreover, the modern state is expected to achieve these purposes within the general framework of the consent of the people, and with due regard to the rule of law and individual human rights. It is hard today to find a State, whatever present power structure that does not call itself a democracy, a government of the people. A modern State may act as the director, entrepreneur, or stimulator of private initiative, or indeed in all three capacities. In a socialist economy, practically all organized effort is placed in the public sector and its whole management becomes the concern of the public services. Several countries because of their prevailing social and economic circumstances and availability of possessions are committed to preserving the largest possible sphere of activity for private enterprise and local initiative. But even in these countries vast rising functions and activities concerning national stage opinion are undertaken through the government. Capitalist economies have witnessed an expansion of their public services. In these countries, several such areas have come up which are solely under the public sector, present power structure that does not call itself a democracy, a government of the people. A modern State may act as the director, entrepreneur, or stimulator of private initiative, or indeed in all the three capacities. In a socialist economy practically all organized effort is placed in the public sector and its whole management becomes the concern of the public services. Several countries because of their prevailing social and economic circumstances and availability of possessions are committed to reserving the largest possible sphere of activity to private enterprise and local initiative. But even in these countries vast rising functions and activities concerning national stage opinion are undertaken through the government. The capitalist economies have witnessed an expansion of their public services. In these countries, several such areas have come up which are solely under the public sector,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

131/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 136 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 136 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

132/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 337 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 337 WORDS

Public Services have become today one of the main essential parts of the government. Civil servants perform many functions. The major functions are: 32 Determination of Policy: Civil servants are actively involved in the formulation and determination of the policy of the country. Although the policy is the sphere of the legislature, the technical demands of the government's role call for the intervention of public servants in matters of policy formulation. The civil servants recommend policies to the ministers. The ministers being amateurs cannot understand the complexities of public policy and consequently act on the advice of the civil servants. So, civil servants greatly influence the formulation of national policy. The civil servants suggest alternatives to a policy that is practically enforceable as they know how the policy works in practice. Implementation of Legislation and Policies: The civil servants execute the policies passed through the legislature. Civil servants exercise a large sphere of discretion in the execution of laws and policies. He/she weighs cautiously all the factors that may affect implementation before taking action. They have to see whether the law or policy is favorable and enforceable, they necessity act impartially and honestly according to legislative standards and the rule of law. Delegated Legislation: The civil servants also frame departmental legislation. The legislature gives a broad outline of the legislation and delegates to the civil servants the power to create details of that legislation. Delegated legislation has become very useful because the legislature has no time to frame detailed rules and regulations and is not familiar with the complexities of modern legislation. The civil servants frame rules and regulations and issue orders per the legislation passed through the legislature. These rules are therefore scrutinized by the legislature again and then enforced through the civil servants. Administrative Adjudication: Civil servants today exercise quasi-judicial powers also. They determine the cases on issues involving the rights and obligations of private citizens or parties. Some judicial powers have to be in the hands of civil servants to secure

Public Services have become today one of the mainly essential and vital of the government. The civil servants perform a number of functions. The major functions are: Determination of Policy: The civil servants are actively involved in the formulation and determination of the policy of the country. Although policy is the sphere of the legislature, the technical demands of the government"s role call for the intervention of public servants in the matters of policy formulation. The civil servants recommend policies to the ministers. The ministers being amateurs cannot understand the complexities of the public policy and consequently act on the advice of the civil servants. So, the civil servants greatly influence the formulation of the national policy. The civil servants suggest alternatives to policy which practically enforceable as they know how the policy works in practice. Implementation of Legislation and Policies: The civil servants execute the policies passed through the legislature. The civil servants exercise a large sphere of discretion in the execution of laws and policies. He/she weighs cautiously all the factors that may affect implementation before taking an action. They have to see whether the law or policy is favorable and enforceable, they necessity act impartially and honestly according to legislative standards and the rule of law. Delegated Legislation: The civil servants also frame departmental legislation. The legislature gives a broad outline of the legislation and delegates to the civil servants the power to create details of that legislation. Delegated legislation has become very useful because the legislature has no time to frame detailed rules and regulation and is not familiar with the complexities of the modern legislation. The civil servants frame rules and regulations and issue orders in accordance with the legislation passed through the legislature. These rules are therefore scrutinized through the legislature again and then enforced through the civil servants. Administrative Adjudication: The civil servants today exercise quasi- judicial powers also. They determine the cases on issues involving the rights and obligations of private citizens or parties. Some judicial powers have to be in the hands of civil servants in order to secure public interest and protect the poor from use. The growth of administrative adjudication is the result of the need to have reasonable and speedy justice in cases under social enactments and cases involving technical complexities. The civil servants enforce policies and so can provide judgment according to the necessities of the policies. Besides these, the routine functions of civil services are licensing and inspection, regulation of government policies, collection of taxes, taking note of working circumstances, etc. Therefore, in brief, civil servants perform the functions of:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

133/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 87 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 87 WORDS

public interest and protect the poor from use. The growth of administrative adjudication is the result of the need to have reasonable and speedy justice in cases under social enactments and cases involving technical complexities. The civil servants enforce policies and so are able to provide judgment according to the necessities of the policies. Besides these, the routine functions of civil services are licensing and inspection, regulation of government policies, collection of taxes, taking note of working circumstances etc. Therefore in brief, civil servants perform the functions of:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

134/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

Advising the government concerning the programmes. o Providing the ministers with necessary information and statistics. o Implementing the plans, policies, and programmes formulated through the Government.

Advising the government concerning the programmes. Providing the ministers with necessary information and statistics. Implementing the plans, policies, and programmes formulated through the Government.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

135/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 120 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 120 WORDS

Monitoring and evaluating the programmes of the Government. 33 o Carrying out the tasks delegated to them through the Government. o Determining cases on issues involving the rights and obligations of private citizens and parties. 4.8 Role of Civil Services Instrumentality Role There is a general agreement that civil services should play an instrumental role in its operation, in as much as it is not the master but agent of policy formulation and execution. It is, so, approximately universally expected, and considerably accepted, that the services should be so intended and structured as to respond systematically and willingly to the political leadership and policy parameters this essentially represents a philosophy of primacy of political control over

Monitoring and evaluating the programmes of the Government. Carrying out the tasks delegated to them through the Government. Determining cases on issues involving rights and obligations of private citizens and parties. ROLE-MODELS FOR CIVIL SERVICES Instrumentality Role There is a general agreement that the civil services should play basically an instrumental role in its operation, in as much as it is not the master but agent of policy formulation and execution. It is, so, approximately universally expected, and considerably accepted, that the services should be so intended and structured as to respond systematically and willingly to the political leadership and policy parameters this essentially represents a philosophy of primacy of political control over

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

136/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

administrative system. Despite their participative and pervasive attendance in the policy programmes of the state, the public services are not supposed to stray too much from their instrumental role to become	administrative system. Despite their participative and pervasive attendance in the policy programmes of the state, the public services are not supposed to stray too much from their instrumental role to become

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

137/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

prime mover behind policy creation. Fritz Morstein Marx credits "merit bureaucracies even in modern nation-states of the West as having contributed considerably to the viability of the policy" through "professional outlook to every conduct of governmental activities"." It is not the same thing to say that the public services cannot, should not, and need not, under any circumstances, involve themselves	prime mover behind policy creation. Fritz Morstein Marx credits "merit bureaucracies even in modern nation states of the West as having contributed considerably to the viability of the policy" through "professional outlook to every conduct of governmental activities"." It is not the same thing to say that the public services cannot, should not and need not, under any circumstances, involve themselves

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

138/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 106 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 106 WORDS

policy creation procedure, but through and large, the civil servants should not involve themselves in policy creation full- fledged Neutrality Role The neutral role of the civil services aligns with its instrumentality role. It is therefore clear that if civil services have to perform, in the right spirit of their structural functional framework, they have to be"neutral" in their approach, outlook, and activities. No way should their political values affect their conduct and behaviour. Civil servants are the objective, dispassionate and non-partisan band of professionals who should do a job entrusted to them with clinical proficiency, efficiency, and dedication. Once a policy has been decided and	policy creation procedure, but through and large, the civil servants should not involve themselves in policy creation full-fledged Neutrality Role The neutrality role of the civil services is in consonance with its instrumentality role. It is therefore clear that if civil services have to perform, in the right spirit of their structural functional framework, they have to be "neutral" in their approach, outlook, and activities. No way should their political values affect their conduct and behaviour. Civil servants are the objective, dispassionate and non-partisan band of professionals who should do a job entrusted to them with clinical proficiency, efficiency, and dedication. Once a policy has been decided and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

139/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

decision taken to implement the programme, all that civil servants should do is try to use all the accessible possessions in an optimum manner for the execution of the programme. In other words, the civil services necessity not is allowed to take political sides. The individual value system may certainly come into play while rendering advice to the ministers or at the time of strategizing for policy but not thereafter. The civil servants are not the political mediators but decision taken to implement the programme, all that civil servants should do is to try to use all the accessible possessions in an optimum manner for the execution of the programme. In other words, the civil services necessity not is allowed to. Take political sides. The individual value system may certainly come into play while rendering advice to the ministers or at the time of strategizing for policy but not thereafter. The civil servants are not the political mediators but

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

140/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

servants of the state. Political neutrality is the sinequanon of civil servants, the civil service and party politics should be kept poles separate. Therefore civil servants are expected to implement the policies 34 decided upon by the government. It is neither responsible for servants of the state. Political neutrality is the sinequanon of civil servants, the civil service and party politics should be kept poles separately. Therefore the civil servants are expected to implement the policies decided upon through the government. It is neither responsible for political content of programmes nor to defend them in public. Commitment Role Should the civil servants be committed to the cause of a party, the ruling party, or a person of the party? Intellectually? Emotionally? Ideologically? Where should their commitment lie? Such questions are very political content of programmes nor it has to defend it in public. Commitment Role Should the civil servants be committed to the cause of a party, or the ruling party or a person of the party? Intellectually? Emotionally? Ideologically? Where should their commitment lie? Answers to such questions are very

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

141/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

142/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 574 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 574 WORDS

significant for understanding the commitment role of civil services. Dissimilar views have been expressed on the subject. The first and common view holds that commitment means that civil servants should be in accord with the policy objectives of the government. Secondly, it has been held that such a commitment should be to a new social and economic order and has to be consciously built and nurtured through the careers of civil servants. The third view is a corollary to the second view, it says that commitment should be related to the developmental philosophy of the state, societal, economic, and political, besides all the other modernizing and nation structure programmes Fourth view holds that commitment should, ideally, be to the ideals of the Constitution of the country which represents the communal wisdom of the people concerning the governance of the policy. And, ultimately, commitment has to be to the conscience of the civil servants, their beliefs, cultural and ethical values, and sense of justice and righteousness. Civil servants have often displayed their personal alignment, identification, and belongingness to political parties; they often display personal loyalty to “the boss”. This type of personalized commitment helps civil servants in better career progression and more accelerated delegation. But the term committed bureaucracy does not mean a bureaucracy loyal to a scrupulous political party; it does not even connote civil servants owing loyalty to a scrupulous individual, political person, or leader. It means that bureaucracy should be committed to the objectives, ideals, institutions, and modalities contained in the Constitution. Impersonality Role Civil services should, by and large, adopt an „impersonality" profile while dealing with matters concerning policies, programmes, and issues. Civil servants cannot afford to take or twist a decision based on the persons involved with it or the persons who can be affected by it, but should strictly conform to the principles, rules, guidelines, etc. They should govern the matters before the government, irrespective of the status, standing, and position of the affected individuals. Civil servants have to take a dispassionate approach to troubles. Anonymity Role 35 The role of anonymity requires that the minister has to answer for the actions of civil servants in the Parliament. The civil servants, therefore, are protected from criticism of Parliament. A minister has to protect the civil servant who has executed his/her definite order. Minister is also responsible to the Parliament for the wrong action of the civil servant. Therefore the principle of anonymity goes significant for understanding the commitment role of the civil services. Dissimilar views have been expressed on the subject. The first and the common view hold that commitment means that the civil servants should be in accord with the policy objectives of the government. Secondly, it has been held that such a commitment should be to a new social and economic order, and has to be consciously built and nurtured through the careers of civil servants". The third view is a corollary to the second view, it says that commitment should be related to the developmental philosophy of the state, societal, economic and political, besides all the other modernizing and nation- structure programmes Fourth view holds that commitment should, ideally, be to the ideals of the Constitution of the country which represents the communal wisdom of the people concerning the governance of the policy. And, ultimately, commitment has to be to the conscience of the civil servants, their belief, cultural and ethical values, and sense of justice and righteousness. Civil servants have often displayed their personal alignment, identification, and belongingness to political parties; they often display personal loyalty to „the boss". This type of personalized commitment helps the civil servants in better career progression and more accelerated delegation. But the term committed bureaucracy does not mean a bureaucracy loyal to a scrupulous political party; it does not even connote civil servants owing loyalty to a scrupulous individual, political person or leader. It means that bureaucracy should be committed to the objectives, ideals, institutions, and modalities contained in the Constitution. Impersonality Role Civil services should, through and large adopt an „impersonality" profile while dealing with matters concerning policies, programmes and issues. Civil servants cannot afford to take or twist a decision on the basis of the persons involved with it or the persons who can be affected through it, but should strictly conform to the principles, rules, guidelines etc. They should govern the matters before the government, irrespective of the status, standing, and position of the affected individuals. Civil servants have to take a dispassionate approach to troubles. Anonymity The role of anonymity requires that the minister has to answer for the actions of civil servants in the Parliament. The civil servants therefore are protected from criticism of Parliament. A minister has to protect the civil servant who has executed his/her definite order. Minister is also responsible to the Parliament for the wrong action of the civil servant. Therefore the principle of anonymity goes hand in hand with the hand in hand with the principle of ministerial responsibility. It means that civil servants work behind the curtain; they cannot openly come out and play a predominant role in politics. They have to function in an environment of anonymity; this helps them in taking honest and objective decisions. Professional Role Civil servants are employed for their knowledge, ability, expertise, experience, competence, and merit. They necessarily utilize all their skills to implement the development programmes with full zeal and enthusiasm. Civil servants' necessity is trained to use all the mental, physical, and technical skills at hand in a mainly effective and efficient manner. The aim should be to train civil servants in such a way that maximum results can be achieved with minimum inputs at the least cost within the shortest time frame. Professional excellence, result motivation, and intellectual integrity should be their motives. Learning and continuing education should be built into the system itself, for that is the foundation for structuring a professional principle of ministerial responsibility. It means that civil servants work behind the curtain; they cannot openly come out and play a predominant role in politics. They have to function in an environment of anonymity; this helps them in taking honest and objective decisions. Professionalism Role The civil servants are employed for their knowledge, ability, expertise, experience, competence, and merit. They necessity utilize all their skills to implement the development programmes with full zeal and enthusiasm. The civil servants necessity is trained to use all the mental, physical, and technical skills at hand in a mainly effective and efficient manner. The aim should be to train civil servants in such a way that maximum results can be achieved with minimum inputs at the least cost within the shortest time frame. Professional excellence, result motivation, and intellectual integrity should be their motives. Learning and continuing education should be built into the system itself, for that is the foundation for structure a professional

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

143/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 132 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 132 WORDS

professional role of civil servants is the genesis of their subsistence. 4.8.1- The Changing Role of Public Services Because of the rising complexities of governmental tasks, future administrators necessity acquire knowledge in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioral sciences, modern tools of management, human relations in management, and administrative research and development. The Administrative Reforms Commission observed that the "role of generalists" in administration is losing its validity in many fields. This is an inevitable consequence of the rising application of science and technology in solving administrative troubles. In the context of the new challenges of change that public services have to face, the latter cannot escape two compulsions, one of version and the other of professionalization. Several factors like changing political scenarios, rising aspirations of people, expanding

Professional role of the civil servants is the genesis of their subsistence. THE CHANGING ROLE OF PUBLIC SERVICES In view of the rising complexities of governmental tasks, the future administrators necessity acquire knowledge in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioral sciences, modern tools of management, human relations in management and administrative research and development. The Administrative Reforms Commission observed that the "role of generalists" in administration is losing its validity in many fields. This is an inevitable consequence of the rising application of science and technology in solving administrative troubles. In the context of the new challenges of change that the public services have to face, the latter cannot escape two compulsions, one of version and the other of professionalization. Several factors like changing political scenario, rising aspirations of people, expanding

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

144/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 114 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 114 WORDS

scale of administrative operations, rising size of administrative structure, and developing science and technology are forcing public services to adapt to the dissimilar changes and professionalize them. According to Gabriel A. Almond, public services have to attend to sure functions either in combination with political authorities, confidentially, independently, or single-handedly and openly. He recognizes even such functions and categorized them into input and output functions. Input functions are political socialization, interest articulation and aggregation, and 36 political communication. The output functions comprise rule creation, rule application, and rule adjudication. For discharging these functions properly, the public services necessities address themselves to two kinds of relationships, one of mutual compliance, referring to scale of administrative operations, rising size of administrative structure and developing science and technology are forcing public services to adapt to the dissimilar changes and professionalize itself. According to Gabriel A. Almond, the public services have to attend to sure functions either in combination with political authorities, confidentially, independently or single handedly and openly. He recognized seven such functions and categorized them into input and output functions. Input functions are political socialization, interest articulation and aggregation and political communication. The output functions comprise rule-creation, rule application and rule adjudication. For discharging these functions properly, the public services necessity address themselves to two kinds of relationships, one of mutual compliance, referring to „

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

145/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

externality' relationship. Both influence the performance of public services and necessity, therefore, be integrated. To cope with these colossal functions, public services

externality" relationship. Both influence the performance of public services and necessity therefore be integrated. To cope up with these colossal functions, the public services

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

146/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

acquire and develop appropriate and adequate capacities. Unless they are fully equipped, they cannot help in acquire and develop appropriate and adequate capacities. Unless they are fully equipped, they cannot help in

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

147/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 82 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 82 WORDS

goals of the programmes and policies and can lead to a wide gap flanked by declared objectives and their realization. The public servants necessary undertake capability generation programmes (such programmes necessarily aim at rising the capability of public servants to perform administrative tasks properly) within the framework of specific needs, particularistic environment, local culture, and ethos. With the rising involvement of public services in the public sector enterprises and other quasi-government undertakings, they have to become more flexible and adaptable. 4.9

goals of the programmes and policies and can lead to a wide gap flanked by declared objectives and their realization. The public servants necessity undertake capability generation programmes (such programmes necessity aim at rising the capability of public servants in order to perform the administrative tasks properly) within the framework of specific needs, particularistic environment, local culture and ethos. With the rising involvement of public services in the public sector enterprises and other quasi- government undertakings, they have to become more flexible and adaptable.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

148/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 100 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 100 WORDS

The twentieth century, therefore, is witnessing an extension of governmental functions beyond all limits. The concept of welfare Stat and service e has been approximately universally accepted. Governments have taken up the responsibility of utilization of manpower, natural possessions, and technology to make an environment conducive to all-around economic development and social well- being. This further strengthens the role of public services. The demands of the people upon their government have become insistent, the government is measured to be an agency to meet these urgent demands and devise ways to overcome social and economic deficiencies in the administrative system. 4.11

The twentieth century, therefore, is witnessing an extension of governmental functions beyond all limits. The concept of welfare and service State has been approximately universally accepted. Governments have taken up the responsibility of utilization of manpower, natural possessions, and technology to make an environment conducive to all-round economic development and social well-being. This further strengthens the role of public services. The demands of the people upon their government have become insistent, the government is measured to be an agency to meet these urgent demands and devise ways to overcome social and economic deficiencies in the administrative system.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

149/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

of Public Personnel Administration in India Structure 5.1 Objective 5.2 Introduction 5.3 Role of Public Service Commission in Public Personnel of public personnel administration in India, Explain. ..... 2) Discuss the role of Public Service Commission in public personnel

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

150/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 290 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 290 WORDS

Public personnel administration in India comprises the public services of the country. Through now you necessity is familiar with the meaning and scope of public services in India, and their role in the administrative system necessity has also become clear. The public personnel administration has sure features which are dissimilar from the private administration in several ways. Public personnel administration has to cater to the needs of a larger number of people and is engaged with the supply of varied services. Public personnel administration does not exist in a vacuum. It is the product of vital public policy, it operates under public scrutiny, it mirrors general social and economic circumstances, and it has a continuous impact on the general welfare. The government is dependent on the public personnel system for the implementation of its programmes, without proper utilization of human services, no policy, programme, or rule can be made successful. Present Public Personnel Administration is a Legacy of the Past The bureaucracy in India, especially the top bureaucracy is a spillover of British rule. The East India Company promoted a service structure for meeting their commercial and trading interests. In 1858 when the British Government took over the reins of administration in India, the political consolidation of the country and use of the country's possessions to serve its interests became its aims. This described minimum economic, social, and developmental activities but maximum administrative stranglehold. The superior civil services that are higher civil services were manned by either British or Indians recruited from higher economic and feudal strata of society. The lower subordinate stages comprised only the Indians. The whole system was an excellent instance of high and low, top and bottom, master and servant. The preponderant features of Public personnel administration in India comprises the public services of the country. Through now you necessity is familiar with the meaning and scope of public services in India, their role in the administrative system necessity has also become clear. The public personnel administration has sure features which are dissimilar from the private administration in several ways. Public personnel administration has to cater to the needs of larger number of people and is engaged with the supply of varied services. Public personnel does not exist in a vacuum. It is the product of vital public policy, it operates under public scrutiny, it mirrors general social and economic circumstances, and it has a continuous impact upon the general welfare. The government is dependent on the public personnel system for the implementation of its programmes, without proper utilization of human services, no policy, programme or rule can be made successful. Present Public Personnel Administration is a Legacy of the Past The bureaucracy in India, especially the top bureaucracy is a spillover of British rule. The East India Company promoted a service structure for meeting their commercial and trading interests. In 1858 when the British Government took over the reigns of administration in India, the political consolidation of the country and use of the country"s possessions to serve its own interests became its aims. This described for minimum economic, social, and developmental activities but maximum administrative stranglehold. The superior civil services that are the higher civil services were manned through either British or Indians recruited from higher economic and feudal strata of society. The lower subordinate stages comprised only the Indians. The whole system was an excellent instance of high and low, top and bottom, master and servant. The preponderant features of public personnel system were: o It was 'elitist', exclusive in outlook and approach, o It displayed despotism in action and public personnel system were: It was „elitist", exclusive in outlook and approach It displayed despotism in action and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

151/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

152/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	110 WORDS	75%	MATCHING TEXT	110 WORDS

It maintained safe and wide aloofness from the people, 39 o It developed structural rigidity and functional frigidity, o It was too hierarchic and precedent adherent, o It had no human relations orientation, o It had feudalist, and separatist attitudes and tempers, o It had no welfare or development motivation. India became independent in 1947, but could not develop or structure a novel public personnel system. Our Independence was accompanied by a painful partition of the country, communal riots, massive migration of displaced persons, and the influx of refugees. Moreover, we had to tackle the complicated troubles of integration of states, depletion of administrative personnel due to

It maintained safe and wide aloofness from the people It developed structural rigidity and functional frigidity It was too hierarchic and precedent adherent It had no human relations orientation It had feudalist, and separatist attitude and temper It had no welfare or development motivation . India became independent in 1947, but could not develop or structure a novel public personnel system. Our Independence was accompanied painful partition of the country, communal riots, and massive migration of displaced persons and influx of refugees. Moreover we had to tackle with the complicated troubles of integration of states, depletion of administrative personnel due to

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

153/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 297 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 297 WORDS

voluntary retirement of British ICS officers, and transfer of Muslim ICS officers to Pakistan. If the health of the economy was bad on account of the after-effects of the Second World War and partition, the condition of administration, particularly personnel administration was worse. The vital administrative structure remained the same. There were gaps in the cadre; experienced senior stage officers were very few and competent personnel were just not accessible. With the adoption of the Constitution in 1950 and the commencement of the first Five-Year Plan, a lot of pressure came to be laid on the personnel system. The elitist hierarchic authoritarian and rigid administration now had to be revamped to meet the Constitutional objectives of liberty, equality, fraternity, and justice. Our plan objectives viz. economic development, industrialization, modernization, and social justice put the administration under considerable strain, the administration had to be converted into a development, and welfare-oriented administration. We can say that after independence, two vital changes took place which greatly affected the role of civil service. First, with the adoption of the system of parliamentary democracy, the civil service became accountable to the political executive. Secondly, civil service became an instrument of development. Personnel system, for that matter any system necessity have a purpose which has to be related to the objectives of the organization. In the case of public personnel administration in India, its vital aim is the facilitation and fulfillment of the goals of the government. This is the rationale for creating government services; this is the justification for their subsistence. Once the goals have been formulated, the public personnel system necessity rises to implement the programmes and achieve the qualitative and quantitative targets through judiciously harnessing the accessible possessions, keeping two dimensions in view, time, and cost. For this purpose, voluntary retirement of British ICS officers and transfer of Muslim ICS officers to Pakistan. If the health of the economy was bad on account of the after effects of the Second World War and partition, the condition of administration, particularly personnel administration was worse. The vital administrative structure remained the same. There were gaps in the cadre; experienced senior stage officers were very few in number and competent personnel were just not accessible. With the adoption of the Constitution in 1950 and commencement of our first five Year Plan, lot of pressure came to be laid on the personnel system. The elitist hierarchic authoritarian and rigid administration now had to be revamped in order to meet the Constitutional objectives of liberty, equality, fraternity, and justice. Our plan objectives viz. economic development, industrialization, modernization, and social justice put the administration under considerable strain, the administration had to be converted into a development, and welfare oriented administration. We can say that after Independence, two vital changes took place which greatly affected the role of civil service. First, with the adoption of the system of parliamentary democracy, the civil service became accountable to the political executive. Secondly, civil service became an instrument of development. Personnel system, for that matter any system necessity have a purpose which has to be related to the objectives of the organization. In the case of public personnel administration in India, its vital aim is the facilitation and fulfillment of the goals of government. This is the rationale for creating the government services; this is the justification for their subsistence. Once the goals have been formulated, the public personnel system necessity rise to implement the programmes and achieve the qualitative and quantitative targets through judiciously harnessing the accessible possessions, keeping two dimensions in view, time, and cost. For this purpose,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

154/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

public personnel system is involved with the functions of recruitment, selection, placement, training, health, safety, performance rating, promotions, and public personnel system is involved with the functions of recruitment, selection, placement, training, health, safety, performance-rating, promotions, and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

155/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 43 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 43 WORDS

general welfare of the employees. 40 Augment in Development Functions The extension of social security benefits and an enlarged public aid to education have become very significant functions of the government. The government has assumed the larger responsibility of achieving general welfare of the employees. Augment in Development Functions The extension of social security benefits and an enlarged public aid to education have become very significant functions of the government. The government has assumed the larger responsibility of achieving

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

156/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 95 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 95 WORDS

security and well-being of all citizens. Implementation of these changes is not an easy task. The skills and experience of public service are required for this purpose. Public service is an essential social instrument, it bridges the gaps flanked by legislative content and its fulfillment. Public service can help to establish and strengthen the minimum circumstances required for economic development. It is responsible for laying down circumstances for the maintenance of law and order, development of infrastructural facilities, and favorable administrative structure. The public services through fixing sure general or specific output objectives play

security and well-being of all citizens. Implementation of these changes is not an easy task. The skills and experience of public service is required for this purpose. The public service is an essential social instrument, it bridges the gaps flanked by legislative content and its fulfillment. Public service can help to establish and strengthen the minimum circumstances required for economic development. It is responsible for laying down circumstances for the maintenance of law and order, development of infrastructural facilities and favorable administrative structure. The public services through fixing sure general or specific output objectives play

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

157/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 195 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 195 WORDS

significant role in modifying the resource structure of the country. The public services have now taken control of government undertakings or semi- government bodies. Rising Number of Public Personnel Due to the augment in the social and economic functions of the government, the number of public personnel is rising at a very fast rate. As the tasks of the government are rising, the need for personnel to perform these tasks is also rising. A large number of new departments, corporations, commissions, and boards are now being set up. The Second Pay Commission had estimated that on April 1, 1948, there were 14,45,050 employees in the Central Government. On June 30, 1957, this figure had increased to 17,73,570. On January 1, 1965, it increased to 22,64,795. On January 1, 1981, it further increased to 32,27,539. This shows that with every new activity of government that aims at providing new services for the welfare of people, the number of government employees is constantly rising. Rising Number of Specialists in Public Services The concept of a Welfare State, augmented by the aspirations of people and the growth of science and technology has brought forth the demand for	significant role in modifying the resource structure of the country. The public services have now taken control of government undertakings or semi-government bodies. Rising Number of Public Personnel Due to the augment in the social and economic functions of the government, the number of public personnel is rising at a very fast rate. As the tasks of the government are rising, the need for personnel to perform these tasks is also rising. A large number of new departments, corporations, commissions, and boards are now being set up. The Second Pay Commission had estimated that on April 1, 1948, there were 14, 45,050 employees in the Central Government. On June 30, 1957, this figure had increased to 17, 73,570. On January 1, 1965, it increased to 22, 64,795. On January 1, 1981, it further increased to 32, 27,539. This shows that with every new activity of government that aims at providing new services for the welfare of people, the number of government employees is constantly rising. Rising Number of Specialists in Public Services The concept of Welfare State, augment in the aspirations of people and the growth of science and technology has brought forth the demand for

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

158/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

rising role of specialists in administration. New specialism, new techniques,	rising role of specialists in administration. New specialism, new techniques,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

159/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 302 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 302 WORDS

new methods are now being expected from civil servants. The role of specialists in public services has therefore become very crucial and their number in the services is constantly rising. Low Rate of Turnover of Employees in Government Service The rate of turnover of government employees is quite low in India. According to O Glenn Stahl, employees leave their jobs for a diversity of reasons like voluntary resignation, optional retirement, and 41 instances of death or frequent transfers. In India, people accept government service as a career and do not resign on their own due to permanency and moderately good circumstances of service. Reasonable hours of work, good leave entitlements, provident fund and retirement benefits, and housing and health facilities attract people to public services and are even able to retain them. Sound promotion policy is another factor that encourages public personnel and fosters a feeling of belongingness in them. In addition, an adequate retirement and pension system also encourages personnel to continue in service till their retirement. Therefore the turnover of public personnel is quite low. Mainlyreferences of turnover are confined to the vacancies occurring due to death, removal, dismissal, and retirement Classification of governmental position is a necessity for a career service based on merit. It enables rational standards or norms to be set up for the selection of personnel, permits uniformity in the method of describing dissimilar kinds of jobs, and establishes an alike basis for giving equal status and equal pay for equal work. There are two well- recognized systems of classification, one is Rank Classification, and the other is Duties or Position Classification. India follows the system of rank classification. In India, public personnel is classified into “classes” as well as “services”. We have four classes of service, class 1, class 2, class 3, new methods are now being expected from the civil servants. The role of the specialists in public services has therefore become very crucial and their number in the services is constantly rising. Low Rate of Turnover of Employees in Government Service The rate of turnover of government employees is quite low in India. According to O Glenn Stahl, the employees leave their jobs for a diversity of reasons like voluntary resignation, optional retirement, and instances of death or frequent transfers. In India people accept the government service as a career and do not resign on their own due to permanency and moderately good circumstances of service. Reasonable hours of work, good leave entitlements, provident fund and retirement benefits, and housing and health facilities attract the people to public services and are even able to retain them. Sound promotion policy is another factor encourages public personnel and fosters a feeling of belongingness in them. In addition, an adequate retirement and pension system also encourage personnel to continue in service till their retirement. Therefore the turnover of public personnel is quite low. Mainly references of turnover are confined to the vacancies occurring due to death, removal, dismissal, and retirement Classification of governmental position is a necessity for a career service based on merit. It enables rational standards or norms to be set up for the selection of personnel, permits uniformity in the method of describing dissimilar kinds of jobs, and establishes an alike basis for giving equal status and equal pay for equal work. There are two well-recognized systems of classification, one is Rank Classification, and the other is Duties or Position Classification. India follows the system of rank classification. In India, the public personnel classified into „classes" as well as „services". We have four classes of service, class 1, class 2, class 3,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

160/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 94 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 94 WORDS

class 4, these are now described as Group A, B, C, and D services, corresponding to differences in the responsibility of the work performed and the qualifications required. Another way of classification is into ‘services’. Public personnel in India are directly recruited for dissimilar services e.g. Archaeological Services, Engineering Services, Post, and Telegraphs Traffic Services, etc. Once the public personnel is recruited to these services, they continue to be the members of the scrupulous service until they retire or resign. At present public services are classified into the following classes: o All-India Services class 4, these are now Group A, B, C and D services, corresponding to differences in the responsibility of the work performed and the qualifications required. Another way of classification is into 'services'. Public personnel in India are directly recruited to different services e.g. Archaeological Service, Engineering Service, Post and Telegraphs Traffic ztc. Once the public personnel are recruited to these services, they continue to be the members of the particular service until they retire or resign. At presedt public services are classified into the following classes : 1) 2) 3) 4) 5) All-India Services

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

161/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 58 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 58 WORDS

rank classification system is very easy to understand and administer, it promotes mobility through facilitating transfers within the services, it is flexible in operation, and it opens more career opportunities for individuals. But this kind of system violates the principle of “equal pay for equal work”, it does not describe the contents of any job in detail,

Rank classification system is very easy to understand and administer, it promotes mobility through facilitating transfers within the services, it is flexible in operation, and it opens more career opportunities for individuals. But this kind of system violates the principle of „equal pay for equal work", it does not describe the contents of any job in detail,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

162/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

it does not explain what is expected of a post. This system is not conducive to the formulation of scientific standards on which it does not explain what is expected of a post. This system is not conducive to the formulation of scientific standards on which

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

163/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

selection of personnel, training, posting, transfer, career development, promotion, etc. may be organized. The position classification 42 system prevalent in the USA, Canada, and selection of personnel, training, posting, transfer, career development, promotion etc. may be organized. The position classification system prevalent in the USA, Canada, and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

164/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 60 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 60 WORDS

rank classification system prevalent in our country. Limited Political Rights of Civil Servants Very limited political rights of civil servants have been regarded as one of the essential circumstances to maintain the discipline, integrity, and political neutrality of the services. To ensure the political neutrality of public services, civil servants are denied direct participation in political activities.

rank classification system prevalent in our country. Limited Political Rights of Civil Servants Very limited political rights of the civil servants have been regarded as one of the essential circumstances to maintain the discipline, integrity, and political neutrality of the services. To ensure political neutrality of the public services, the civil servants are denied direct participation in the political activities.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

165/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 193 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 193 WORDS

Therefore we can conclude that the political rights of civil servants are very limited. The higher civil servant's necessity is above politics, as they have to serve the changing governments drawn from dissimilar political parties with the same vigor and honesty. According to Masterman Committee Report, "the public interest demands the maintenance of political impartiality in the Civil Service and confidence in that impartiality is an essential part of the structure of Government". So, the political rights of civil servants must be limited. 5.3 Role of Public Service Commission in Public Personnel Administration The Public Service Commission is an independent statutory body. In India, the Public Service Commission has been so intended to function only as an advisory body. All rights concerning the appointments of personnel are vested in the Government. The Constitution does not envisage a vital role for the Commission in personnel administration. The Constitution of India gives for aUnion Public Service Commission and for State Public Service Commissions beside a Joint Public Service Commission on the request of two or more state governments. The functions of the Union and State Public Service Commission may be summarized as follows:

Therefore we can conclude that the political rights of the civil servants are very limited. The higher civil servants necessity is above politics, as they have to serve the changing governments drawn from dissimilar political parties with the same vigor and honesty. According to Masterman Committee Report, "the public interest demands the maintenance of political impartiality in the Civil Service and confidence in that impartiality is an essential part of the structure of Government ". So, it necessary that political rights of the civil servants are limited. Role of Public Service Commission in Public Personnel Administration The Public Service Commission is an independent statutory body. In India, the Public Service Commission has been so intended as to function only as an advisory body. All rights concerning the appointments of personnel are vested in the Government. The Constitution does not envisage vital role for the Commission in personnel administration. The Constitution of India gives for a Union Public Service Commission and for State Public Service Commissions beside with a Joint Public Service Commission on the request of two or more state governments. The functions of the Union and State Public Service Commissions may be summarized as follows:

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

166/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 220 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 220 WORDS

To advise the Government on matters concerning the method of recruitment and principles to be followed in creating appointments to the civil services either directly or through promotion. o To conduct examinations, written as well as personality tests, for appointments to the civil services of the respective governments. o To advise the government on matters relating to the suitability of candidates for promotion and transfer. Recommendations for such promotions are made through the concerned departments and Commission is requested to ratify them. o The Commission is consulted on matters relating to temporary appointments for periods flanked by one to three years, grant of extension of services, and re-employment of sure retired civil servants. 43 o The Commission is also consulted on matters relating to regularization of appointments, claims for the award of pension, claims for reimbursement of legal expenses incurred through the Government servants in defending legal proceedings instituted against them relating to acts done in the execution of their official duties, claims for pension, or compensation in respect of injuries sustained on duty. o The Commission is also consulted while creating order in any disciplinary case in circumstances like (i) censure; (ii) withholding of increments or promotions; (iii) reduction to a lower service, grade, or post; (iv) compulsory retirement; and (v) removal or dismissal from service.

To advise the Government on matters concerning the method of recruitment and principles to be followed in creation appointments to the civil services either directly or through promotion. To conduct examinations, written as well as personality tests, for appointments to the civil services of the respective governments. To advise the government on matters relating to the suitability of candidates for promotion and transfer. Recommendations for such promotions are made through the concerned departments and Commission is requested to ratify them. The Commission is consulted on matters relating to temporary appointments for periods flanked by one to three years, grant of extension of services and re-employment of sure retired civil servants. The Commission is also consulted on matters relating to regularization of appointments, claims for the award of pension, claims for reimbursement of legal expenses incurred through the Government servants in defending legal proceedings instituted against them relating to acts done in the execution of their official duties, claims for pension, or compensation in respect of injuries sustained on duty. The Commission is also consulted while creation of an order in any disciplinary case in the circumstances like, (i) censure; (ii) withholding of increments or promotions; (iii) reduction to a lower service, grade or post; (iv) compulsory retirement; and (v) removal or dismissal from service.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

167/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 96 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 96 WORDS

The Commission has to present to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, its annual report, with its recommendations. There is a provision that the Parliament and the State legislatures, as the case may be, may confer additional functions on their respective Public Service Commissions. Therefore the Public Service Commission is a recruiting agency with purely advisory roles, consulted also in sure disciplinary and other matters. There are some statutory restrictions on the powers of the Public Service Commission. According to an amendment in Article, 320, which was effected in 1961,

The Commission has to present to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, its annual report, with its recommendations. There is a provision that the Parliament and the State legislatures, as the case may be, may confer additional functions on their respective Public Service Commissions. Therefore the Public Service Commission is a recruiting agency with purely advisory role, consulted also in sure disciplinary and other matters. There are some statutory restrictions on the powers of the Public Service Commissions. According to an amendment in Article, 320, which was effected in 1961,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

168/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	45 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	45 WORDS

to consult the UPSC in a case where he proposes to create an order for the removal, dismissal, or reduction in rank of a civil servant after he is satisfied that such action is necessary for the interest of the security of the State.

to consult the UPSC in a case where he proposes to create an order for the removal, dismissal or reduction in rank of a civil servant after he is satisfied that such action is necessary in the interest of the security of the State..

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

169/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	51 WORDS	78%	MATCHING TEXT	51 WORDS

Conclusion Therefore we can say that it is the personnel that more than anything determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output of an organization. Even the contribution of money and material to the performance of an organization depends substantially upon their manipulation by the human beings in CONCLUSION Thus we can say that it is the personnel which more than anything else determines the quantity and quality of the performance and output of an organisation. Even the contribution of money and material to the performance of an organisation depends substantially upon their manipulation by the human beings in

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

170/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	42 WORDS	70%	MATCHING TEXT	42 WORDS

Personnel constitutes an integral part of the organization. It is with their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity, and organizing capacity that they can build the image of their organizations as effective institutions in nation- building. Personnel administration with its ever-increasing responsibilities has become

Personnel constitute an integral part of the organisa!ion. It is with their requisite skills, aptitude, integrity and organising capacity that they can build the imaee of their oreanisations as effective institutions in natinn h ~ i i l d i n ~ . Personnel administration with its ever increasing responsibilities has become

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

171/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

indispensable part of management. There is a need for making personnel administration responsible for bringing about innovative changes in the structure of an organization, undertaking personnel research, and conducting attitude surveys indispensable part of management. There is a need for making personnel administration responsible for bringing about innovative changes in the structure of organisation, undertaking personnel research and conducting attitude surveys.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

172/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

There is also a need for making personnel administration accountable for formulating cost-effective policies

There is also a need for making personnel administration accountable for formulating cost effective policies

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

173/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

administration is concerned with people at work and their relationships within an organization. It refers to the entire spectrum of an organization's interaction with its human resources from recruitment activity to administration which is concerned with people at work and with their relationships within an organization. It refers to the whole spectrum of an organization"s interaction with its human possessions from recruitment activity to

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

174/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	35 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	35 WORDS

retirement process. It involves personnel training and forecasting, appraising human performance, selection and staffing, training and development, and maintenance and improvement of performance and productivity. It is closely related to an organization's overall effectiveness.

retirement procedure. It involves personnel planning and forecasting, appraising human performance, selection and staffing, training and development and maintenance and improvement of performance and productivity. Personnel administration is closely related to an organization"s overall effectiveness.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

175/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization 5.5

To obtain these objectives, personnel administration is concerned with planning, organizing, directing, coordinating, and controlling the cooperative efforts of individuals within an organization.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

176/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

Write a short note on the scope of public personnel administration.

Write a short note on the scope of public personnel administration. 2.

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

177/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Ghosh, P., Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd., New Delhi, 1969.

Ghosh, P, 1969. Personnel Administration in India, Sudha Publications (P) Ltd.: New Delhi.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

178/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 47% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

Swamin, the bureaucracy Amatya, the territory Janapada, the fortified capital Durga, the treasury Kosa, the army Danda, and the Mitra (the ally).

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

179/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

the mansabdari system was employed to manage the bureaucracy. The mansabdari system was essentially a pool of government servants who could be

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

180/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 48% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

checks and balances on their appointments and caution, and it also suggests a continuous watch on the operation of the civil service, including regularly updating the monarch on their performance.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

181/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

land reforms and established the land revenue system, which ultimately became a major component of the Indian taxation system. His view of service

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

182/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the Indian Civil Service, also known as the Imperial Civil Service.

SA dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

183/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

covenanted' and 'uncovenanted'. The covenanted civil service consisted of only Europeans (i.e., British personnel) occupying the higher posts in the government. The Uncovenanted

SA Service Law project 16A047.docx (D72573240)

184/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 40% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

that the patronage-based structure of the East India Company be replaced with a high-quality permanent civil service that would be selected through competitive examinations.

that the patronage-based system of the East India Company should be substituted by a lasting civil service, entry into which would be grounded on merit through a competitive entrance examination.

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

185/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

The Charter Act of 1833 provided that 'No native of the said territories shall be, by reason only of his religion, place of birth, descent, colour or any of them be disabled from holding any place,

SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

186/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

the Court of Directors and the Board of Control, the act transferred the government, territories, and revenues from the company to the Crown. In

SA DR. Atma Ram-Efforts for Administrative Reforms in India.docx (D23434349)

187/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

of the government 'to increase the association of the Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions of the Parliament to give for the rising association of Indians in every branch of Indian administration and for the gradual development of sell governing institutions

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

188/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

in England; however, recruitment to the other two categories was to be made by the provincial governments, partly

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

189/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

appointments to these services were made by the secretary of state. The all-India services were ultimately responsible to the government of India and

Appointments to personnel administration were to be made by the Secretary of State. The All-India Services were ultimately responsible to the Government of India and

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

190/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 41% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

the Indian Police Service, the Indian Forest Service, the Indian Civil Veterinary Service, the Indian Educational Service, the Indian Agriculture Service, the Indian Forest Engineering Service, the Indian Medical Service (

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

191/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 57% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The all-India services, including the Indian Civil Service, Indian Police Service, Indian Medical Services, and Indian Forest Service (

the only All India Services which survived were the Indian Civil Service, Indian Police, Indian Service of Engineers (Irrigation Branch), Indian Medical Service (Civil Branch) and Indian Forest Service (

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

192/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the Government of India Act of 1919, the Public Service Commission

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

193/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

No further recruitment should be made for provincial governments, particularly in transferred fields, namely, the Indian Education Service, the Indian Agriculture Service (Civil), the Indian Veterinary Service, the

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

194/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

the state legislatures to regulate the recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed, to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any state.

the appropriate Legislature regulate the recruitment, and conditions of service of persons appointed, to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State:

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

195/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 83 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 83 WORDS

According to Article 3010, every person who is a member of a defence service or of a civil service of the Union or of an all-India service or holds any post connected with defence or any civil post under the Union holds office during the pleasure of the President, and every person who is a member of a civil service of a state or holds any civil post under a State holds office during the pleasure of the Governor of the state.

According to Article 310, every person who is a member of a defence service or the civil service of the Union or an All India Service or holds any post connected with defence or any civil post under the Union holds office during the pleasure of the President, and every person who is a member of a civil service of a state or holds a civil post under a state holds office during the pleasure of the Governor of the State.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

196/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

on proportionate pensions if at any time the department in which they had been employed should be placed under the control of

SA sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

197/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in the national interest to do

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

198/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

be able to ➢ Understand meaning, importance and bases of the classification of services in India ➢ explain the system of classification of services in India during the pre-Independence period ➢ Know the

be able to : state the meaning, importance and bases of the classification of services discuss the advantages and types of classification explain the system of classification of services in India during the pre-Independence period describe the

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

199/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

Civil services, after independence, have been categorised into three types- All India Services (IAS), Central Services and State Services. 2.3.

Civil Services, after Independence, have been categorised into three types-All India Services (common to both Centre & States), Central Services (for purely Central subjects) and State Services (

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

200/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

services are recruited and trained by the central government but are assigned to different states services are recruited and trained by the central government, but they are assigned to different states.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

201/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

A. K. (1944). Civil Service in India, Under the East India Company:

SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

202/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	56%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

the Constitution to be all-India services. The third all-India service, the Indian Forest Service, was founded in 1966. The All-India Services Act, the Constitution relates to the All India Services. A new All India Services, the Indian Forest Service, was constituted in July 1966, though an amendment to the All India Services Act, 1951

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

203/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	18 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	18 WORDS

of the Constitution of India has constitutionalised the formation of Indian Administrative Services (IAS) and Indian Police

of the Constitution of India has constitutionalised the 'formation of Indian Administrative Service Civil Services in Indb (IAS) and Indian Police

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

204/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	50%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

The All- India services promote the unity and solidarity of the country by combating parochial attitudes of the 58 states. Because the officers of these services are generally posted

The all-India Services also help in promoting the unity and solidarity of India by combating the parochial attitudes of the States. the officers belonging to these services are posted

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

205/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	73%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

they are less susceptible to local and regional influences than officers from within the state they are less likely to succumb to local and regional pressures than officers from within the state. ?

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

206/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

of All India services under the direct control of the centre to carry out the president's policies.

of All India services who are under the direct control of the centre, would carry out the president's policies

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

207/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

but the details of their recruitment, condition of service, etc. were to be laid down by a parliamentary legislation.

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

208/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 47% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Service Indian Audit and Accounts Service; Indian Defence Accounts Service; Indian Foreign Service; Indian Inspection Service; Indian Meteorological Service; Indian Postal Service; Indian Posts and Telegraphs Traffic Service; Indian Revenue Service; Indian State Service;

Service, Indian Audit and Account Service, Indian Defence Accounts Service, Indian Foreign Service, Indian Postal Service, Indian Revenue Service, Central Legal Service, Central Information Service, Indian Statistical Service, Indian Economic Service.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

209/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

which is concerned with the administration of state subjects such as agriculture, education, forest, health, planning, police, etc. The

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

210/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Service as well as the state services occupy the higher posts in the state administration.

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

211/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 63% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

Civil services, after independence, have been categorized into three types- All India Services (IAS), Central Services and State Services. ➢

Civil Services, after Independence, have been categorized into three kinds—All India Services (common to both Centre & States), Central Services (for purely Central subjects) and State Services (

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

212/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

The All- India services promote the unity and solidarity of the country by combating parochial attitudes of the states. ➢ The

The all-India Services also help in promoting the unity and solidarity of India by combating the parochial attitudes of the States. Normally, the

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

213/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

In personnel administration classification means a grouping of various positions on the basis of their duties and responsibilities.

In personnel administration classification means grouping of several positions on the basis of their duties and responsibilities.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

214/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Indian Administrative Services (IAS), Indian Police Services (IPS), and Indian Forest

SA Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx (D154785574)

215/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

Classification brings some orderliness into the system and makes for uniform treatment of all the people who are grouped together on certain criteria.

Classification brings some orderliness into the system and makes for uniform treatment of all the people who are. grouped together on certain criteria.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

216/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

the Central Government may, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned, [

the Central Government, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned,

W https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%2528PAR%2529_Rules.pdf

217/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

regulate the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to the All-India Services common to the Union and the States.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

218/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

What are the types of the classification of services? Discuss their features.

What are the types of the classification of services? Discuss their features.
.....
.....
.....
..... 8.6

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

219/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

New Delhi: Orient Longman. Misra, B. B. (1970). The Administrative History of India. London: Oxford University Press.

New Delhi. M s m , B.B. 1970. The Administrative History of India, Oxford University Press:

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

220/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Unit III Generalists and Specialists Structure 3.1 Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Meaning of Generalists and Specialists 3.4 Relation between Generalists and Specialists

UNIT 9 GENERALISTS AND SPECIALISTS Structure Objectives Introduction Generalists-Meaning Role of Generalists Specialists-Meaning Role of Specialists Controversy between the Generalists and Specialists

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

221/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

According to L.D. White, "general administration is understood to mean those duties which are concerned with the formulation of policy; with the coordination and improvement of government machinery, and with

According to Leonard White “general administration is understood to mean those duties which are concerned with the formulation of policy; with the coordination and improvement of government machinery and with

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

222/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

rules for the regulation of recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed to an All-India Service.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

223/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

a generalist administrator is concerned with all types of administrative processes performs the POSDCORB functions which are planning, organizing, staffing, directing, coordinating, reporting, and budgeting.	a generalist administrator is concerned with all kinds of administrative procedure indicated through the word POSDCORB i.e. planning, organizing, staffing, directing, coordinating, reporting, and budgeting

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

224/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

Specialists in government are those who are recruited to posts for which	Specialists in government, are so, those who are recruited to posts for which

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

225/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

In rendering advice to the political executives, policy-making and in implementation of policies the	in rendering advice to the political executives, policy making-and in implementation of policies. The

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

226/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

The controversy between these two groups of functionaries is however age-old and still one of the fiery fought out issues of Public Administration.	The controversy between these two groups of functionaries, both of whom are necessary in modem organisations, is however age old, and still one of the fiercely fought-out issues of Public Administration.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

227/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

The heritage of the generalist being always at the top of administration can be traced back to the administrative philosophy of 19	The ancestry of the generalist dominating the administrative machinery at the top can be traced to the administrative philosophy of

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

228/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

this predominance of generalists in administration led to discontent which has gained momentum in recent years. In this predominance of the generalists in administration led to discontent which has gained momentum in recezt years. In

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

229/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

future is going to be characterized by new developments in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioural sciences, decision-making, human relations in administration etc. Each of these areas future is going to be characterised by new developments in the fields of science and technology, social and behavioural sciences, decision making, human relations in management etc. Each of these areas

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

230/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

arbiter in the form of a generalist administrator is required to articulate a rational, cost-effective, arbiter in the form of a generalist administrator is needed to articulate a rational, cost- effective,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

231/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

of Administrative Reforms Commission Specialists were rarely promoted to the positions of secretary in the central or state governments of the Administrative Reforms Commission on Personnel Administration (April 1969), the specialists were rarely promoted to the posts of secretaries in the central or state governments.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

232/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

the District Collector who is the head of the district administration is a

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

233/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the release of the Administrative Reforms Commission's report on Personnel Administration (	the recommendations of the Administrative Reforms Commission's Report on Personnel Administration,

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

234/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

including technical ones like agriculture, animal husbandry, sales tax, etc.	including technical ones like agriculture, animal husbandry, sales tax, etc.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

235/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Railways, etc. at the federal level and agricultural, engineering, and other services at the state	Railways, etc. at the central and the agricultural, engineering and other services at the state

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

236/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

New Delhi: Orient Longman. Misra, B. B. (1970). The Administrative History of India. London: Oxford University Press.	New Delhi. M s m , B.B. 1970. The Administrative History of India, Oxford University Press:

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

237/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

White, L. D. (1926). Introduction to the study of public administration.

SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

238/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

the lives and property of the people by maintaining law and order.

SA CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

239/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Indian bureaucracy has been the subject of adverse criticism by both Englishmen and Indians.

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

240/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

administration is the instrument at the hands of political executives,

administration is the instrument at the'hands of political executives

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

241/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 44% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

who are responsible for the governance of the democratic country. The personnel play the pivot role in this regard. The comprehensive objectives of public administration who are responsible for the governance of the country in a democratic set up, the personnel constitute the pivot around which administration revolves. The broad goals of Public Administration,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

242/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

Kumar, C. J. (2015). Civil Service Reforms in India: Policy and Perspectives. The International Journal of Political Science / Volume 1 Number 1 /

SA Pushpender Yadav and Sandip Tripathi.docx (D154785574)

243/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 55% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

the personnel. Thus, the tone and quality of public administration mostly determined by the personnel working in public the personnel in administration. The total tone and quality of Public Administration is in fact dependent upon the personnel working in public

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

244/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

the task of recruitment and selection of personnel to civil

the task of recruitment and selection of personnel to civil

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

245/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS
the Department of Personnel which is the Central Personnel Agency (			the Department of Personnel which is the Central Personnel Agency.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

246/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 376 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 376 WORDS

The role of the Department of Personnel & Training can be conceptually divided into two parts, In its large nodal role, it acts as the formulator of policy and the watch-dog of the Government ensuring that certain accepted standards and norms, as laid down by it, are followed by all Ministries/Departments, in the recruitment, regulation of service conditions, posting/transfers, deputation of personnel as well as other related issues. Towards this end, guidelines are issued by it for the benefit of all Ministries/Departments and it monitors the implementation of these guidelines. It also advises all organizations of the Central Government on issues of personnel Management. At a more immediate level, the Department has the 92 direct responsibility of being the cadre controlling authority for the IAS and the three Secretariat Services in the Central Secretariat. The Department also operates the Central Staffing Scheme under which suitable officers from All India Services and Group 'A' Central Services are selected and then placed in posts at the level of Deputy Secretary/Director and Joint Secretary, on the basis of tenure deputation. The Department also deal with cases of appointment to posts of Chairman, Managing Director, full-time functional Director/Member of the Board of Management of various Public Sector Undertakings/ Enterprises, Corporations, Banks and financial institutions. It also deals with the assignment of Indian experts to various developing countries. It is also responsible for formulation and coordination of training policies for the All India and Central Services and providing support for the capacity building of State Government officials. 1.3.2 Recruitment Agencies (UPSC, SPSC) The two organizations through which the Department ensures recruitment of personnel for the Government are the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) and the Staff Selection Commission (SSC). The former is constituted under a provision of the Constitution and is responsible for conducting examinations for appointment to the higher civil services and civil posts under the Union Government; including recruitment to the All India Services. There is a mandatory provision for consulting the Commission on all matters relating to methods of recruitment, principles to be followed in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on all disciplinary matters. The SSC is responsible for making recruitment to subordinate staff such as Assistants, Stenographers etc.

The role of the Department of Personnel & Training can be conceptually divided into two parts, In its large nodal role, it acts as the formulator of policy and the watch-dog of the Government ensuring that certain accepted standards and norms, as laid down by it, are followed by all Ministries/Departments, in the recruitment, regulation of service conditions, posting/transfers, deputation of personnel as well as other related issues. Towards this end, guidelines are issued by it for the benefit of all Ministries/Departments and it monitors the implementation of these guidelines. It also advises all organizations of the Central Government on issues of personnel Management. At a more immediate level, the Department has the direct responsibility of being the cadre controlling authority for the IAS and the three Secretariat Services in the Central Secretariat. The Department also operates the Central Staffing Scheme under which suitable officers from All India Services and Group 'A' Central Services are selected and then placed in posts at the level of Deputy Secretary/ Director and Joint Secretary, on the basis of tenure deputation. The Department also deal with cases of appointment to posts of Chairman, Managing Director, full-time functional Director/Member of the Board of Management of various Public Sector Undertakings/ Enterprises, Corporations, Banks and financial institutions. It also deals with the assignment of Indian experts to various developing countries. It is also responsible for formulation and coordination of training policies for the All India and Central Services and providing support for the capacity building of State Government officials Recruitment Agencies The two organizations through which the Department ensures recruitment of personnel for the Government are the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) and the Staff Selection Commission (SSC). The former is constituted under a provision of the Constitution and is responsible for conducting examinations for appointment to the higher civil services and civil posts under the Union Government; including recruitment to the All India Services. There is a mandatory provision for consulting the Commission on all matters relating methods of and Development NOTES Self-Instructional 66 Material recruitment, principles to be followed in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on all disciplinary matters. The SSC is responsible for making recruitment to subordinate staff such as Assistants, Stenographers etc.

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

247/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

of the rank of the Secretary to the Government of India. The

of the rank of Joint Secretary to the Government of India. The

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

248/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	53 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	53 WORDS

Act 1919, which for the first time recognized the need for the establishment of a Public Service Commission in India. It was of the view that an expert body, free from political interference should be set up, entrusted with the task of recruitment of civil servants and regulation of their service matters.

Act, 1919, which for the first time recognized the need for the setting up of a Public Service Commission in India. It was of the view that an expert body, free from political interference should be set up, entrusted with the task of recruitment of civil servants and regulation of their service matters.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

249/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	26 WORDS	75%	MATCHING TEXT	26 WORDS

the Lee Commission again recommended that the Statutory Public Service Commission contemplated by the Government of India Act 1919, should be set up without delay

SA Hema S Pandey llm.docx (D142172933)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

250/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 232 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 232 WORDS

The first Round Table Conference held in London in 1930, the British Government in its Constitutional proposals of 1933 and the Joint Committee on Indian Constitution Reforms (1933-34) emphasised the establishment of Public Service Commission in provinces in addition to the Federal Public Service Commission. These suggestions found a concrete shape in the Government of India Act 1935 which envisaged a Public Service Commission for the Federation and a Provincial Public Service Commission for each province or group of provinces. They were entrusted with the functions of conducting examinations for appointment to the public services and the government was under the obligation to consult the commission on major matters concerning their conditions of service. With effect from 1stApril, 1937, the then Public Service Commission at the Centre became the Federal Public Service 94 Commission (FPSC). With the promulgation of the Constitution of India on January 26, 1950, the Federal Public Service Commission came to be known as Union Public Service Commission (UPSC). The objectives of the UPSC, in broad terms are to: • Conduct written examination and interview for the purpose of appointment to a specified group of civil services and posts of the Government of India. • Advise the Government in matters of framing rules in regard to methods of recruitment, principles of promotion, disciplinary aspects, certain conditions of services such as disability pension etc. 1.5

the first Round Table Conference held in London in 1930, the British Government in its Constitutional proposals of 1933 and the Joint Committee on Indian Constitutional Reforms (1933-34) emphasized the establishment of Public Service Commission in provinces in addition to the Federal Public Service Commission. These suggestions found a concrete shape in the Government of India Act 1935 which envisaged a Public Service Commission for the Federation and a Provincial Public Service Commission for each province or group of provinces. They were entrusted with the functions of conducting examinations for appointment to the public services and the government was under an obligation to consult the commission on major matters concerning their circumstances of service. With effect from 1st April, 1937, the then Public Service Commission at the Centre became the Federal Public Service Commission (FPSC).With the promulgation of the Constitution of India on January 26, 1950, the Federal Public Service Commission came to be recognized as the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC). The objectives of the UPSC, in broad conditions are: To conduct written examination and interview for the purpose of appointment to a specified group of civil services and posts of the Government of India To advise the Government in matters of framing rules in regard to methods of recruitment, principles of promotion, disciplinary characteristics, sure circumstances of services such as disability pension etc.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

251/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 160 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 160 WORDS

Recruitment rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far. 1.6

Recruitment Rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far.

W https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1

252/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 116 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 116 WORDS

there shall be a Public Service Commission for the Union and a Public Service Commission for each State. The Parliament may by law provide for the appointment of Joint Public Service Commission if two or more states agree that there be one Public Service Commission for that group of States, and if a resolution to that effect is passed by the House or where there are two Houses, by each House of the Legislature of each of those States. The Union Public Service Commission, if requested to do so by the Governor of a State, may with the approval of the President, agree to serve all or any of the needs of the State. 1.6.1

there shall be a Public Service Commission for the Union and a Public Service Commission for each State; Parliament may through law for the appointment of Joint Public Service Commission if two or more states agree that there be one Public Service Commission for that group of States, and if a resolution to that effect is passed through the House or where there are two Houses, through each House of the Legislature of each of those States. The Union Public Service Commission, if requested to do so through the Governor of a State, may with the approval of the Presidents, agree to serve all or any of the needs of the State.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

253/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

service. It was not until 1926 that the Public Service Commission was set up for the first time consisting of four members in addition to the Chairman.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

254/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

holds office for a tenure of six years until he attains the age of 65 years, whichever is earlier

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

255/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

The President of India also appoints other members of the commission. But half of the members of the commission

SA CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

256/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 54% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

engaged in paid employment other than his office. 3. If the President feels that the member is unfit to continue his office

SA CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

257/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

members The Chairman and other members of the SPSC are appointed by the Governor of the State.

SA CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

258/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 141 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 141 WORDS

The functions of the Public Service Commission are as follows • It shall be the duty of the Union and State Public Service Commissions to conduct examinations for appointments to the services of the Union and the State" respectively. • It shall also be the duty of the Union Public Service Commissions, if requested by any two or more States to assist those States in framing and operating schemes of recruitment for any services for which candidates possessing special qualifications are required. • It shall be the duty of the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service Commission, as the case may be, to advise on the following matters (on which a Public Service Commission shall have to be consulted) namely on: a) All matters relating to methods of recruitment to civil services and the functions of the Public Service Commission are as foll~It shall be the duty of the Union and State Public Service Commissions to conduct examination for appointments to the services of the Union and the services of the respectively. It shall also be the duty of the Union Public Service Commissions, if requested by any two more States to assist those States in framing and operating schemes of recruitment for any services for which candidates possessing special qualifications are required. It shall be the duty the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public , Service commission, as the case may be, to advise on the following matters (on which a Public Service Commission shall have to be consulted),---namely, Pmmaael a) all matters relating to methods of recniitment to civil services and posts; b) The principles to be followed in making appointments to civil services and posts and in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on the suitability of candidates for such appointments, posts; b) on the principles to be followed in making appointment to civil services and posts and in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and the suitability of candidates for such appointments,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

259/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

260/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 106 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 106 WORDS

transfers; c) All disciplinary matters affecting a person serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State in a civil capacity, including memorials or petitions relating to such matters; d) Any claim by or in respect of a person who is serving or has served under the Government of India or the Government of a State, in a civil capacity, that any costs incurred by him in defending legal proceedings instituted against rum in respect of acts done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State.

transfers; c) all disciplinary matters affecting a person serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State in c i d capacity, including memorials or petitions relating to such matters; d) on any claim by or in respect of a person who is serving or has served under the Government of India or the Government of a State, in a civil capacity, that any costs incurred by him in defending legal proceedings instituted against him in respect of acts done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State;

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

261/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 59 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 59 WORDS

the Chairman and other members of the State Public Service Commission A member of the SPSC shall hold office for a term of six years or till the age of 62 years, whichever is earlier Any person who has once held the office as a member of a Public Service Commission is ineligible for reappointment to that office.

SA CH._15._Bureaucracy_and_Politics_in_India.docx (D136736781)

262/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 47 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 47 WORDS

A Public Service Commission shall also advice on any other matter which the President, or the case may be, the Governor of the State, may refer to them. It has further been provided that the President, in respect of the All-India services and also in respect

A Public Service Commission shall also on any other matter which the President, or as the case may be, the Governor of the State, may refer to them. It has further been provided that the President, in respect of the all-India services and also in respect

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

263/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

other services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union (and the Governor in respect to other services and posts in connection with other services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union (and the Governor in respect to other services and posts in connection with

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

264/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

necessary) a Public Service Commission to be consulted. It is pertinent to note that a Public Service Commission need not be consulted in respect of appointment or posts in the services in favour of any necessary for a Public Service Commission to be consulted. It is pertinent to note that a Public Service Commission need not be consulted in respect of appointment or posts in the services in favour of any backward class or the manner in which claims of the members of the scheduled castes or tribes will be taken into consideration for appointment under Union or a State (in terms of Art. 335). Through an Act of the Parliament (or Legislature of a State), additional functions may also be extended to a Public Service Commission. The Public Service Commissions are required to present annually to the President (or Governor as the case may be), a report as to the work done by the Commission and such a 97 report shall be caused to be laid before each House of Parliament (or the Legislature of the State), together with a memorandum explaining the cases of non-acceptance by the Government of the advice of the Commission and the reasons thereof. 1.6.4 Independence of UPSC The members of the Union Public Service Commission backward class citizens or the manner in which claims of the members of the scheduled castes or tribes will be taken into consideration for appointment under Union or a State (in terms of Art. 335). Through an Act of the Parliament (or Legislature of a State), additional functions may a s be extended to a Public Service Commission. lo The Public Service Commissions will be required to present annually to the President (or Governor as the case may be) a report as to the work done by the Commission and such a report shall be caused to be laid before each House of Parliament (or the Legislature of the State), together with a memorandum explaining the cases of non-acceptance by the Government of the advice of the commission and the reasons therefor. 10.9 ADVISORY ROLE OF THE PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

265/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 144 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 144 WORDS

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

266/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS of the Union Public Service Commission or State Public Service Commission. 1.7

of the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service commission,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

267/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 76 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 76 WORDS

the Commission have a duty, under Article 323 of the Constitution to present annually to the President a Report as to the work done by the Commission and on receipt of such report, the president shall cause a copy there of together with the Memorandum explaining, as respect the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before each House of the Parliament.

The Commission have a duty, under Article 323 of the Constitution to present annually to the President a Report as to the work done by the Commission and on receipt of such report, the president shall cause a copy there of together with the Memorandum explaining, as respect the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before each House of the Parliament. •

W https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1

268/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

The salaries and allowances of the members are charged on the consolidated fund of India.

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

269/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 63% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

The All-India Services as provided in the Constitution are the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service, the All India Services Act in 1951, under Article 312 of the constitution. Apart from the Indian Administrative Service and the Indian Police Service,

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

270/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

All – India Services are common to the Union and the States and

All India Services common to the Union and the States and

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

271/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Public administration: The Changing. Perspectives, IIPA, New Delhi. S.R. Maheshwari (1989), Indian Administration (4th Edition), Orient Longman,New Delhi

SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

272/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

It is recognized that in every country there are certain posts in its administrative set-up which might be called strategic from the point of view of maintaining the standard of administration. There can be no doubt that the standard of administration depends upon the calibre of the civil servants who are appointed to these strategic posts. The Constitution provides that

It is recognized that in every country there are certain posts in its administrative set-up, which might be called strategic from the point of view of maintaining the standard of administration—there can be no doubt that the standard of administration depends upon the calibre of the Civil Servants, who are appointed to these posts—The Constitution provides that

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

273/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

of officers who are in the exclusive employ of neither

SA sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

274/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

scale of pay and members of which alone could be appointed to these strategic posts throughout the Union."
1.3

SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

275/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Report on Indian and State Administrative Services and Problems of District Administration by V.T. Krishnamachari, 1962;

SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

276/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

ARC's Report on Personnel Administration,1969; Report of the Committee on Recruitment Policy and Selection Methods, 1976 – 101

SA dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

277/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

the Committee to Review the Scheme of the Civil Services Examination, 1989 –

SA sharnappa.Palekar.Political Sciene.2016.doc (D18302150)

278/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Satish Chandra Committee Report; Report of the Civil Services Examination Review Committee, 2001, also known as Professor Yoginder K. Alagh Committee Report; Report of the Committee

SA dissertation by Anand kumar to alok sir.docx (D138857810)

279/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	83%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

and other non-technical Class I services should be made only through one competitive examination. It and other non technical Class I Services, recruitment should be made only through a single competitive examination, it

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

280/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	83%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

Report on Indian and State Administrative Services and Problems of District Administration by V.T. Krishnamachari, 1962) assessed the

SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

281/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 368 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 368 WORDS

Article 320 of the Constitution of India, the Commission are, inter-alia, required to be consulted on all matters relating to recruitment to civil services and posts. Recruitment is made by one of the following three methods: 1. Direct Recruitment; 2. Promotion; and 3. Transfer Direct Recruitment is conducted broadly under the following two methods: a) Recruitment by competitive examination. b) Recruitment by selection through interview. Recruitment by Competitive Examination -Under the Constitution one of the functions of the Commission is to conduct examinations for appointment to Civil Services/Posts of the Union. In addition, competitive examinations are also held by the Commission under arrangements with the Ministry of Defence for entry to certain Defence Services, through the National Defence Academy, Indian Military Academy, Naval Academy, Air Force Academy and the Officers Training Academy. The Commission usually conducts over a dozen examinations every year on an all India basis. These include Examinations for recruitment to services/posts in various fields, such as Civil Services, Engineering, Medical and Forest Service, etc. 103 For an overview of examinations regularly held by the Commission. See "Overview of Examination" under this Chapter. At present the Union Public Service Commission conduct their examinations at numerous venues spread over 42 regular centers throughout the country. Recruitment by Selection is made by the following methods: 1. By Interview Only - Where the number of applicants is very large, it is not practicable to call for Interview all the applicants who fulfill the minimum eligibility conditions prescribed. The Commission, therefore, shortlist the candidates to be called for the interview on the basis of certain pre-determined criteria related to the job. A large number of recruitment cases is handled by the Commission by the method (1) above. 2. By Recruitment Test Followed By Interview -In this category, there are two types of procedure followed: a) An objective-type written and/or practical test to test the skill of the candidates followed by Interview, the final selection being decided by Interview, aided by the performance of the candidates in the written test and/or practical test. b) An objective-type written and/or practical test to screen candidates to be called for interview, the final selection being decided by Interview only. 11.1.1 1.5

Article 320 of the Constitution of India, the Commission are, inter-alia, required to be consulted on all matters relating to recruitment to civil services and posts. Recruitment is made by one of the following three methods: • Direct Recruitment; • Promotion; and • Transfer Direct Recruitment is conducted broadly under the following two methods: • Recruitment by competitive examination. • Recruitment by selection through interview. Recruitment by Competitive Examination Under the Constitution one of the functions of the Commission is to conduct examinations for appointment to Civil Services/Posts of the Union. In addition, competitive examinations are also held by the Commission under arrangements with the Ministry of Defence for entry to certain Defence Services, through the National Defence Academy, Indian Military Academy, Naval Academy, Air Force Academy and the Officers Training Academy. The Commission usually conducts over a dozen examinations every year on an all India basis. These include Examinations for recruitment to services/posts in various fields, such as Civil Services, Engineering, Medical and Forest Service, etc. For an overview of examinations regularly held by the Commission. See "Overview of Examination" under this Chapter. At present the Union Public Service Commission conduct their examinations at numerous venues spread over 42 regular centers throughout the country. Recruitment by selection Recruitment by Selection is made by the following methods: • By Interview Only • By Recruitment Test Followed By Interview By Interview only Where the number of applicants is very large, it is not practicable to call for Interview all the applicants who fulfill the minimum eligibility conditions prescribed. The Commission, therefore, shortlist the candidates to be called for the interview on the basis of certain pre-determined criteria related to the job. A large number of recruitment cases is handled by the Commission by the method (1) above. By written test followed by Interview In this category, there are two types of procedure followed: • An objective-type written and/or practical test to test the skill of the candidates followed by Interview, the final selection being decided by Interview, aided by the performance of the candidates in the written test and/or practical test. • An objective-type written and/or practical test to screen candidates to be called for interview, the final selection being decided by Interview only.

W https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1

282/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 440 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 440 WORDS

All India Services The All India Services Act, 1951 and Rules and Regulations framed thereunder regulate the recruitment and conditions of service in respect of the All India Services viz. Indian Administrative Service, Indian Police Service and Indian Forest Service. As far as direct recruitment to the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service Examination are concerned, it is done through the Civil Services Examination and for the Indian Forest Service through the Indian Forest Service Examination held by the Commission. The relevant Rules and Regulations provide that 33% of the vacancies in the IAS/IPS/IFS should be filled by promotion from amongst the officers of the State Service in consultation with the Commission. The Selection Committee presided over by Chairman/Member of the Commission consists of senior Government representatives of the Central Government and the State. 104 11.1.1 1.6 Mechanisation - Project SAMPERA The Commission have recently undertaken a project called "SAMPERA" (Screening and Mechanised Processing of Examination and Recruitment Applications). A simplified single sheet common application form for all the examinations has been devised which will be scanned by using OMR/ICR technology. The implementation of this project will mainly help in high speed scanning of data from forms eliminating manual entry. Other benefits will be accurate and faster generation of Admit Cards, Attendance lists with photo replica and signature facsimile of each candidate, and Error-free list of doubtful cases. The main aim of this project is to cope with the increasing volume of applications through innovations and mechanised handling so as to reduce the processing time and send communications faster to minimised errors. The cases of impersonation/malpractices will also be eliminated and wasteful expenditure will be reduced. 11.1.1 1.7 Recruitment Rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules

All India Services The All India Services Act, 1951 and Rules and Regulations framed thereunder regulate the recruitment and conditions of service in respect of the All India Services viz. Indian Administrative Service, Indian Police Service and Indian Forest Service. As far as direct recruitment to the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service Examination are concerned, it is done through the Civil Services Examination and for the Indian Forest Service through the Indian Forest Service Examination held by the Commission. The relevant Rules and Regulations provide that 33% of the vacancies in the IAS/IPS/IFS should be filled by promotion from amongst the officers of the State Service in consultation with the Commission. The Selection Committee presided over by Chairman/Member of the Commission consists of senior Government representatives of the Central Government and the State. Mechanisation - Project Sampera The Commission have recently undertaken a project called "SAMPERA" (Screening and Mechanised Processing of Examination and Recruitment Applications). A simplified single sheet common application form for all the examinations has been devised which will be scanned by using OMR/ICR technology. The implementation of this project will mainly help in high speed scanning of data from forms eliminating manual entry. Other benefits will be accurate and faster generation of Admit Cards, Attendance lists with photo replica and signature facsimile of each candidate, and Error-free list of doubtful cases. The main aim of this project is to cope with the increasing volume of applications through innovations and mechanised handling so as to reduce the processing time and send communications faster to minimised errors. The cases of impersonation/malpractices will also be eliminated and wasteful expenditure will be reduced. Recruitment Rules In accordance with the provisions contained in Article 320 of the Constitution read with the provisions of Union Public Service Commission (Exemption from Consultation) Regulations 1958, Recruitment Rules of all Group 'A' and Group 'B" posts in various Ministries/Departments of Government of India are required to be framed in Consultation with the Commission. Consultation with the Commission is also necessary for framing/amending Recruitment Rules for certain categories of posts under the Employees State Insurance Corporation, The Delhi Municipal Corporation, The New Delhi Municipal Council, Employees Provident Fund Organisation etc. under the relevant Acts made by Parliament in pursuance of the provisions of Article 321. All proposals for framing/amending Recruitment Rules are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far.	are examined keeping in view the cadre structure of the organisation and the circulars issued by the Govt. from time to time. After approval, the Commissions' advice in the matter is communicated to the Ministry/Department concerned. More than 14000 Recruitment Rules have been framed/amended so far.

W https://www.upsc.gov.in/recruitment-1

283/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

Kothari Committee Report on Recruitment Policy and Selection Methods, 1976, inter-alia recommended a drastic change in the system of examination. They recommended a two-stage examination process – a preliminary examination followed by a main examination. This Committee also proposed changes in the training

SA Prasoon_Public Administration MU_139.pdf (D57561254)

284/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

The recruitment to All India Services and Central Services Group A &

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

285/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

the system of recruitment to all India services and central	the system of recruitment to All India Services and Central

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

286/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

the Union Public Service Commission on the basis of the annual Civil Services Examination, a competitive civil service

SA Service Law project 16A047.docx (D72573240)

287/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

The interview is intended to judge the mental calibre of a 107 candidate. In broad terms this is really an assessment of not only his intellectual qualities but also social traits and his interest in current affairs

The test is intended to judge the mental calibre of a candidate. In broad terms this is really an assessment of not only his intellectual qualities but also social traits and his interest in current affairs.

W https://mis.alagappauniversity.ac.in/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/2/PG_M.A._Personnel%20Management ...

288/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

a candidate must have attained the age of 21 years and not

SA RamaRao Bonagani.docx (D131384210)

289/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 95 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 95 WORDS

The Government of India's All-India Services are a part of the Civil Services, which make up the country's permanent bureaucracy. The All India Services, which include the IAS (Indian Administrative Service), IPS (Indian Police Service), and IFoS (Indian Forest Service), are often regarded as the backbone of the Indian administrative establishment. As the name implies, all-India level services are provided at the national level, with personnel appointed by the central government after passing the UPSC examination. However, distinct state level cadres can apportion their jobs at both the central and state government levels. 1.10

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

290/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Public administration: The Changing. Perspectives, IIPA, New Delhi. S.R. Maheshwari (1989), Indian Administration (4th Edition), Orient Longman,New Delhi

SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

291/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

assumes that enhancing the capability and capacity of the administrators is a requisite, if not a prerequisite, of any worthwhile attempt at modernization.

SA MHYS-45 INDIAN ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEM.docx (D161284834)

292/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

two all India Services - The Indian Administrative Service and the Indian Police Service. 1.42 1.3 Training in

SA Administrative Reforms in India - 1-34p (1).doc (D37899736)

293/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

several committees on police reforms have recommended major reforms in the police system with systematic accountability. 1.10

Several committees on police reforms have recommended major reforms in the police system coupled with systematic accountability.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Indian_Administration.pdf

294/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

For this purpose , a Civil Service Commission was set up in 1854 in London and competitive examinations were started in 1855. Hence, the

SA RamaRao Bonagani.docx (D131384210)

295/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 143 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 143 WORDS

Administrative Service and Indian Police Service are of the All India Services with the Indian Forest Service. 123 Candidates who are selected as IAS Officers are trained to manage Government affairs. Every civil servant is allotted to a particular office with policy framing and implementing as the major responsibility in that particular area. The policy issues are framed, modified, and interpreted in this post under the direct supervision of the Administrative Office with the consent of the Minister. On the advice of the officer, the implementation of the policies is also done. The policy-making matters of the government mechanism depend on the civil servant rank. The process of implementation includes supervision as well as visiting/touring. The allotment of huge funds to and by the field officers mandates supervision and the concerned officials are answerable to queries made in the Parliament.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

296/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 193 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 193 WORDS

The Indian Police Service (IPS) being one of the All India Services is accountable for public safety, internal security, and law and order. After independence (1948), the Imperial Police (IP) was replaced by the Indian Police Service. The Indian Police Service in itself is not a law enforcement agency but it is the body to which all the senior police officers belong to irrespective for whichever agency they work. An IPS officer faces several life-threatening and is imperilled to harsh conditions. The Director-General of Police of the Indian Police Service is entrusted with the overall law and order of the entire State, while the Superintendent of Police for the entire District and the Deputy Commissioner or the Commissioner of Police for Metropolitan Cities or the entire city respectively. An IPS officer as the Commissioner of Police enjoys magisterial powers. The Indian Police Service (IPS) though not equal to the Indian Administrative Service (IAS) is the only service in the country that comes close to the IAS considering the Power, Authority, and Speed in promotion whether at the State or in the Government of India. 1.3 Promotions for Indian Administrative Service (IAS) The

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

297/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Below given are the ranks that an IAS officer will hold during his tenure.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

298/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 194 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 194 WORDS

Until recently, a typical file in a department would move from the undersecretary to the deputy secretary or the director. Here, it should be pointed out that functionally, there was no difference between a deputy secretary and a director. After a certain number of years, the deputy secretary was promoted 'in situ' as the director. Under the new dispensation, the distinction between the undersecretary and deputy secretary has also been removed. Thus, even though the undersecretary will be promoted to a deputy secretary and then to a director, the function will remain the same and the frills and pay scales will improve at each level. The technical name given for such in situ promotions is 'Non-Functional scale'. In the case of the Indian Administrative Service (IAS), an officer reaches the director's position in the usual course — in the 12th year of service. In terms of their pay scale, they move from the Junior Administrative Grade to the Selection Grade, and this changes their entitlements with regard to housing and travel perquisites – directors are entitled to travel Executive class /AC I in trains and the daily allowance on tour is higher. 5-8

Until recently, a typical file in a department would move from the undersecretary to the deputy secretary or the director. Here, it should be pointed out that functionally, there was no difference between a deputy secretary and a director. After a certain number of years, the deputy secretary was promoted 'in situ' as the director. Under the new dispensation, the distinction between the undersecretary and deputy secretary has also been removed. Thus, even though the undersecretary will be promoted to a deputy secretary and then to a director, the function will remain the same and the frills and pay scales will improve at each level. The technical name given for such in situ promotions is 'Non-Functional scale'. In the case of the Indian Administrative Service (IAS), an officer reaches the director's position in the usual course — in the 12th year of service. In terms of their pay scale, they move from the Junior Administrative Grade to the Selection Grade, and this changes their entitlements with regard to housing and travel perquisites – directors are entitled to travel Executive class /AC I in trains and the daily allowance on tour is higher.

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

299/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	213 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	213 WORDS

A batch usually gets empanelled as a Joint Secretary (JS) in the 16th year. Officers move into what is called the 'Super Time' scale. Here, they are entitled to business class for both domestic and international travel. State governments usually follow the Government of India norms with regard to travel entitlements, though, technically, the state governments can issue their own orders with regard to these perquisites. Typically, a JS has a tenure of five years, and they constitute the 'cutting edge' of the government. Although in smaller departments, files moved straight from the JS to the Secretary, in large departments like education, health, agriculture, commerce, and finance, the JS would normally submit the files to the Additional Secretary (AS). For decision levels in which the JS was the final authority, an endorsement at the level of AS was the norm, but in most cases, the file would go up to the Secretary. As per the revised norms, on completion of three decades of service, a JS will be designated as an AS in situ, provided, of course, they are empanelled as AS or AS equivalent. However, both the JS and the AS will submit the files directly to the Secretary, and so, the Additional Secretary is now akin to a non- functional scale!

A batch usually gets empanelled as a Joint Secretary (JS) in the 16th year. Officers move into what is called the 'Super Time' scale. Here, they are entitled to business class for both domestic and international travel. State governments usually follow the Government of India norms with regard to travel entitlements, though, technically, the state governments can issue their own orders with regard to these perquisites. Typically, a JS has a tenure of five years, and they constitute the 'cutting edge' of the government. Although in smaller departments, files moved straight from the JS to the Secretary, in large departments like education, health, agriculture, commerce, and finance, the JS would normally submit the files to the Additional Secretary (AS). For decision levels in which the JS was the final authority, an endorsement at the level of AS was the norm, but in most cases, the file would go up to the Secretary. As per the revised norms, on completion of three decades of service, a JS will be designated as an AS in situ, provided, of course, they are empanelled as AS or AS equivalent. However, both the JS and the AS will submit the files directly to the Secretary, and so, the Additional Secretary is now akin to a non-functional scale!

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

300/416 SUBMITTED TEXT	190 WORDS	100% MATCHING TEXT	190 WORDS

One may well ask, what then are the charms of being an AS? Well, the AS is the first to get invited to the Rashtrapati Bhawan for the 'at home' on Independence Day and Republic Day. They also get to witness the Independence Day parade from the ramparts of the Red Fort. To the outsider, the nuances of these fine distinctions may appear frivolous, but these do make a lot of difference to the officers (and their spouses!). The tenure of the AS is not very long, and the current government is trying to empanel officers to the rank of Secretary soon thereafter to ensure that they get a longer tenure in that position. This is also necessitated by the fact that after 1995, the average entry-level age increased from 25 to 28 years. Finally, when an officer becomes a Secretary to the Union government, they move to the apex scale in terms of pay and receive the status and treatment of a 'state guest' on an official visit to a state government, with all the attendant protocols besides an entitlement to use the reserved lounge at the airport.

One may well ask, what then are the charms of being an AS? Well, the AS is the first to get invited to the Rashtrapati Bhawan for the 'at home' on Independence Day and Republic Day. They also get to witness the Independence Day parade from the ramparts of the Red Fort. To the outsider, the nuances of these fine distinctions may appear frivolous, but these do make a lot of difference to the officers (and their spouses!). The tenure of the AS is not very long, and the current government is trying to empanel officers to the rank of Secretary soon thereafter to ensure that they get a longer tenure in that position. This is also necessitated by the fact that after 1995, the average entry-level age increased from 25 to 28 years. Finally, when an officer becomes a Secretary to the Union government, they move to the apex scale in terms of pay and receive the status and treatment of a 'state guest' on an official visit to a state government, with all the attendant protocols besides an entitlement to use the reserved lounge at the airport.

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

301/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 208 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 208 WORDS

The moot question for consideration is: Does the reduction of two layers of decision-making in the government make a difference? It certainly does, for under the revised norms, each of the three levels will have a specific mandate. In the first instance, the undersecretary or deputy secretary or director will initiate the note with basic information about the scheme/programme/issue in question. It will list the budgetary provisions, past 129 precedents, references to related decisions as well as parliamentary assurances, if any, on the subject and recommend a course of action. At the level of the JS and AS inputs from other divisions within the ministry, autonomous bodies, SPVs (Special Purpose Vehicles), PSUs (Public Sector Undertakings) and/or industry chambers will be factored. In case the issue concerns more than one state, inputs from the state government are also taken on board. The file will now be put up to the Secretary who will take a 360-degree view and also look at the implications for the related ministries. Thus, any view on the procurement of cereal by the Food Corporation of India (FCI) or pulses by NAFED (National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India) would certainly involve the ministries of agriculture, food, consumer affairs, and commerce. 1.7

The moot question for consideration is: Does the reduction of two layers of decision-making in the government make a difference? It certainly does, for under the revised norms, each of the three levels will have a specific mandate. In the first instance, the undersecretary or deputy secretary or director will initiate the note with basic information about the scheme/programme/issue in question. It will list the budgetary provisions, past precedents, references to related decisions as well as parliamentary assurances, if any, on the subject and recommend a course of action. At the level of the JS and AS inputs from other divisions within the ministry, autonomous bodies, SPVs (Special Purpose Vehicles), PSUs (Public Sector Undertakings) and/or industry chambers will be factored. In case the issue concerns more than one state, inputs from the state government are also taken on board. The file will now be put up to the Secretary who will take a 360-degree view and also look at the implications for the related ministries. Thus, any view on the procurement of cereal by the Food Corporation of India (FCI) or pulses by NAFED (National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India) would certainly involve the ministries of agriculture, food, consumer affairs, and commerce.

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

302/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

The ranks are given to the civil servant based on their seniority in the civil services. 1.6

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

303/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 147 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 147 WORDS

While this is a positive step in reducing hierarchy and making the government more functional, there is a new irritant called 'equivalent', which has been institutionalised over the last few years. At the level of AS and Secretaries, an officer is now being empanelled as AS or AS equivalent, or Secretary and Secretary equivalent. More often than not, after a gap of six months to a year, those in the equivalent category are upgraded to the full status of AS or Secretary. A Secretary equivalent is not supposed to become the Secretary in charge, but in terms of 'frills', they are equal to the Secretary and get to be a state guest on their travel. However, there are multiple instances when officers who have been empanelled as Secretary-equivalents have been made Secretaries and those who are empanelled as Secretaries given positions that are 'Secretary equivalent'. 1.10

While this is a positive step in reducing hierarchy and making the government more functional, there is a new irritant called 'equivalent', which has been institutionalised over the last few years. At the level of AS and Secretaries, an officer is now being empanelled as AS or AS equivalent, or Secretary and Secretary equivalent. More often than not, after a gap of six months to a year, those in the equivalent category are upgraded to the full status of AS or Secretary. A Secretary equivalent is not supposed to become the Secretary in charge, but in terms of 'frills', they are equal to the Secretary and get to be a state guest on their travel. However, there are multiple instances when officers who have been empanelled as Secretary-equivalents have been made Secretaries and those who are empanelled as Secretaries given positions that are 'Secretary equivalent'.

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

304/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 2 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 2 WORDS

opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secretary- now-come-closer/1063990/

Opinion Modi govt takes IAS promotions to next level— Additional, Joint Secretary now come closer

W https://theprint.in/opinion/modi-govt-takes-ias-promotions-to-next-level-additional-joint-secreta ...

305/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

Surinder Nath Committee constituted to review the system of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group 'A' Services

Surinder Nath Committee. (2003). Report of the Constituted to Review the System of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group "A" Services (

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

306/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

The Performance Appraisal Report is an important document. It provides the basic and vital inputs for further development of an officer.

The Performance Appraisal Report is an important document. It provides the basic and vital inputs for further development of an officer.

W https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%2528PAR%2529_Rules.pdf

307/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 210 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 210 WORDS

One-time annual reviews, single-source feedback, appraisals conducted purely for evaluative purposes, and simple quantitative metrics are inadequate for employee growth. The transition towards a more holistic, developmental appraisal process is identified as a shift from 'annual confidential report' to 'performance appraisal' which underpins the reforms in the Indian higher Civil Services. For the Civil Services, this change is most obvious in two specific reform ideas. The first is the shift from the Annual Confidential Report (ACR) to the Annual Performance Appraisal Report (APAR) system in 2007. The aim of this transition was to solve two problems: to improve the quality of appraisals so they aid in employee development, and to bring in more transparency in the appraisal process. Specific changes such as new rating scales, domain assignment and target setting were recommended to achieve these goals. 135 The second shift is the introduction of the 360-degree review or Multi Source Feedback (MSF) process, a supplement to the APAR, which aims to broaden the scope of those who evaluate the civil servants. While getting feedback from sources outside the immediate seniors and colleagues of an employee have certain benefits, the 360-degree process has also been criticised for increasing bias and subjectivity in the appraisal process. 1.3

one-time annual reviews, single-source feedback, appraisals conducted purely for evaluative purposes, and simple quantitative metrics are inadequate for employee growth. The transition towards a more holistic, developmental appraisal process is identified as a shift from ' performance appraisal' to 'performance management'—an idea that underpins the reforms in the Indian higher Civil Services as well. For the Civil Services, this change is most obvious in three specific reform ideas. The first is the shift from the Annual Confidential Report (ACR) to the Annual Performance Appraisal Report (APAR) system in 2007. The aim of this transition was to solve two problems: to improve the quality of appraisals so they aid in employee development, and to bring in more transparency in the appraisal process. Specific changes such as new rating scales, domain assignment and target setting were recommended to achieve these goals. The second shift is the introduction of the 360-degree review or Multi- Source Feedback (MSF) process, a supplement to the APAR, which aims to broaden the scope of those who evaluate the civil servants. While getting feedback from sources outside the immediate seniors and colleagues of an employee have certain benefits, the 360-degree process has also been criticised for increasing bias and subjectivity in the appraisal process.

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

308/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Training and Placement ▪ Feedback and Counselling ▪ Planning of work ▪ Promotion ▪ Recognition ▪ Strengthening Good Governance In line with these objectives, the APAR (

training and placement, feedback and counselling, planning of work, promotion, recognition of outstanding work, and strengthening governance (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003). line with these suggestions, the APAR

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

309/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

format) incorporated components to measure areas for skill upgradation through training and to recognise exceptional contributions in service.

format incorporated components to gauge areas for skill upgradation through training and to recognise exceptional contributions in service (

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

310/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	77 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	77 WORDS

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 3 of the All India Services Act, 1951, (61 of 1951), and in supersession of the All India Services (Confidential Rolls) Rules, 1970, except as respect things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned, hereby makes the following rules, called the All India Services (Performance Appraisal Report - PAR) Rules, 2007.

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 3 of the All India Services Act, 1951, (61 of 1951), and in supersession of the All India Services (Confidential Rolls) Rules, 1970, except as respect things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government, after consultation with the Governments of the States concerned, hereby makes the following rules, namely: - 1.Short title, commencement and application.- (1) These rules may called the All India Services (Performance Appraisal Report) Rules, 2007. (2)

W https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%2528PAR%2529_Rules.pdf

311/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 643 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 643 WORDS

A performance appraisal report assessing the performance, character, conduct and qualities of every member of the Service shall be written for each financial year or as may be specified by the Government in the Schedule 2: Provided that a performance appraisal report may not be written in such cases as may be specified by the Central Government, by general or special order: Provided further that if a performance appraisal report for a financial year is not recorded by 31st of December of the year in which the financial year ended, no remarks may be recorded thereafter and the officer may be assessed on the basis of the overall record and self assessment for the year, if he has submitted his self-assessment on time. (2) Subject to the provisions of sub-rule (4), a performance appraisal report shall also be written when either the reporting or reviewing authority or the member of the Service reported upon relinquishes charge of the post, and, in such a case, it shall be written at the time of the relinquishment or ordinarily within one month of such relinquishment. (3) Where more than one performance appraisal reports are written on a member of the Service during the course of a financial year each such report shall indicate the period to which it pertains: Provided that only one report shall be written on a member of the Service for a particular period during the course of the financial year and there shall be a single reporting, reviewing and accepting authority at each level of assessment which shall be specified in the channel for writing performance appraisal reports by the concerned Ministries and State Governments and in no circumstances more than one person shall write the performance appraisal reports in the capacity of reporting, reviewing or accepting authority for a given period of time: Provided further that if more than one person of the same superior level supervises the performance of the member of Service, the Government shall identify the person to report or review well in advance of the relevant assessment year. (4) Where the reporting authority has not seen, but the reviewing authority has seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which the performance appraisal report is to be written the reviewing authority shall write the performance appraisal report of any such member for any such period. (5) Where, both the reporting authority and the reviewing authority have not seen and the accepting authority has seen, as referred to in sub-rule (4), the performance of any such member, the accepting authority shall write the performance appraisal of any such member during such

A performance appraisal report assessing the performance, character, conduct and qualities of every member of the Service shall be written for each financial year or as may be specified by the Government in the Schedule 2: Provided that a performance appraisal report may not be written in such cases as may be specified by the Central Government, by general or special order: Provided further that if a performance appraisal report for a financial year is not recorded by 31st of December of the year in which the financial year ended, no remarks may be recorded thereafter and the officer may be assessed on the basis of the overall record and self assessment for the year, if he has submitted his self-assessment on time. (2) Subject to the provisions of sub-rule (4), a performance appraisal report shall also be written when either the reporting or reviewing authority or the member of the Service reported upon relinquishes charge of the post, and, in such a case, it shall be written at the time of the relinquishment or ordinarily within one month of such relinquishment. (3) Where more than one performance appraisal reports are written on a member of the Service during the course of a financial year each such report shall indicate the period to which it pertains: Provided that only one report shall be written on a member of the Service for a particular period during the course of the financial year and there shall be a single reporting, reviewing and accepting authority at each level of assessment which shall be specified in the channel for writing performance appraisal reports by the concerned Ministries and State Governments and in no circumstances more than one person shall write the performance appraisal reports in the capacity of reporting, reviewing or accepting authority for a given period of time: Provided further that if more than one person of the same superior level supervises the performance of the member of Service, the Government shall identify the person to report or review well in advance of the relevant assessment year. (4) Where the reporting authority has not seen, but the reviewing authority has seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which the performance appraisal report is to be written the reviewing authority shall write the performance appraisal report of any such member for any such period. (5) Where, both the reporting authority and the reviewing authority have not seen and the accepting authority has seen, as referred to in sub-rule (4), the performance of any such member, the accepting authority shall write the performance appraisal of any such member during such period. (6) Where the reporting authority, the reviewing authority and the accepting authority have not seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which 137 the report is to be written, the Government shall make an entry to that effect in the performance appraisal report for any such period. (7) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (1), (2), (4) and (5), it shall not be competent for the reporting authority, the reviewing authority or the accepting authority to write a performance appraisal report after he demits office where the authority writing the performance appraisal report is not a Government servant. Explanation. - For the purposes of this rule, "a Minister" shall not be construed as having demitted the office if he continues to be a Minister in the Council of Ministers with a different portfolio or in the Council of Ministers immediately reconstituted after the previous Council of Ministers of which he was a Minister with the same or a different portfolio provided the Prime Minister or the Chief Minister, as the case may be, continues in office.'

period. (6) Where the reporting authority, the reviewing authority and the accepting authority have not seen the performance of a member of the Service for at least three months during the period for which the report is to be written, the Government shall make an entry to that effect in the performance appraisal report for any such period. 4 (7) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (1), (2), (4) and (5), it shall not be competent for the reporting authority, the reviewing authority or the accepting authority to write a performance appraisal report after he demits office where the authority writing the performance appraisal report is not a Government servant. Explanation. - For the purposes of this rule, "a Minister" shall not be construed as having demitted the office if he continues to be a Minister in the Council of Ministers with a different portfolio or in the Council of Ministers immediately reconstituted after the previous Council of Ministers of which he was a Minister with the same or a different portfolio provided the Prime Minister or the Chief Minister, as the case may be, continues in office. 6.

W https://dopt.gov.in/sites/default/files/IAS%2528PAR%2529_Rules.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Empanelment is the process by which civil servants are chosen for top positions in the government, like that of the Joint Secretary and above. Until 2016, empanelment at senior levels of administration was done solely based on performance appraisal reports. The APAR system, which replaced the ACR system in 2007, required full disclosure of evaluation and ratings to the officer concerned (Department of Personnel and Training, 2007; Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). According to the DoPT's submission to the Standing Committee Report on Appraisals, this shift made it increasingly difficult to identify the best officers, as all ratings were 'outstanding'. This led to a revision in empanelment guidelines in 2016 to provide for the collection of Multi Source Feedback (MSF), termed the '360-degree review'. The new mechanism was introduced as a supplement to the APAR system, which would use feedback from important stakeholders to identify candidates for further evaluation. An expert panel would take feedback on seven attributes including leadership, ownership, and honesty from a minimum of five stakeholders—seniors, juniors, peers, external 138 stakeholders and serving secretaries (Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). The adoption of MSF in 2016 as a reform measure was distinct from the adoption of the APAR system in 2007 and it was conceived of as a supplement to, and not part of the APAR. For this reason, this paper treats MSF, or 360-degree reviews, as a standalone reform theme separate from the APAR. The SNC (2003) mooted the idea of 360-degree reporting to "supplement the formal APAR regime with an institutionalised means of ascertaining the reputations of civil servants, consistent with our culture and ethos" (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003, section 5.12.2). The committee justified this suggestion by citing the use of similar mechanisms by international organisations and foreign governments as a supplement to the performance appraisal system. The rationale behind MSF was that the reputation of civil servants within their professional circles would provide an accurate assessment of their capabilities (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003). While acknowledging the potential and utility of this system, the Second ARC argued that "in the context of India where strong hierarchical structures exist and for historical and social reasons it may not be possible to introduce this system unless concerns of integrity and transparency are addressed" (2008, p. 228).

Empanelment is the process by which civil servants are chosen for top positions in the government, like that of the Joint Secretary and above. Until 2016, empanelment at senior levels of administration was done solely based on performance appraisal reports. The APAR system, which replaced the ACR system in 2007, required full disclosure of evaluation and ratings to the officer concerned (Department of Personnel and Training, 2007; Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). According to the DoPT's submission to the Standing Committee Report on Appraisals, this shift made it increasingly difficult to identify the best officers, as all ratings were 'outstanding'. This led to a revision in empanelment guidelines in 2016 to provide for the collection of Multi Source Feedback (MSF), termed the '360-degree review'. The new mechanism was introduced as a supplement to the APAR system, which would use feedback from important stakeholders to identify candidates for further evaluation. An expert panel would take feedback on seven attributes including leadership, ownership, and honesty from a minimum of five stakeholders—seniors, juniors, peers, external stakeholders and serving secretaries (Department Related Parliamentary Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice, 2017). The adoption of MSF in 2016 as a reform measure was distinct from the adoption of the APAR system in 2007 and it was conceived of as a supplement to, and not part of the APAR. For this reason, this paper treats MSF, or 360-degree reviews, as a standalone reform theme separate from the APAR. The SNC (2003) mooted the idea of 360-degree reporting to "supplement the formal APAR regime with an institutionalised means of ascertaining the reputations of civil servants, consistent with our culture and ethos" (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003, section 5.12.2). The committee justified this suggestion by citing the use of similar mechanisms by international organisations and foreign governments as a supplement to the performance appraisal system. The rationale behind MSF was that the reputation of civil servants within their professional circles would provide an accurate assessment of their capabilities (Surinder Nath Committee, 2003). While acknowledging the potential and utility of this system, the Second ARC argued that "in the context of India where strong hierarchical structures exist and for historical and social reasons it may not be possible to introduce this system unless concerns of integrity and transparency are addressed" (2008, p. 228).

Most recently in 2018, the NITI Aayog recommended the complete replacement of appraisal reports with MSF (NITI Aayog, 2018). It is, therefore, important to revisit the concerns and criticism levied against the MSF system. 1.6

Most recently in 2018, the NITI Aayog recommended the complete replacement of appraisal reports with MSF (NITI Aayog, 2018). It is, therefore, important to revisit the concerns and criticism levied against the MSF system.

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

313/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

The Seventh Pay Commission recommended changes in the APAR system before linking it to the

The Seventh Pay Commission recommended changes in the APAR system before linking it to the

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

314/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 175 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 175 WORDS

RFD). First, there needed to be an alignment of department and individual performance. The department, which should derive its objectives from the concerned ministry's vision, 139 should make these clear to its personnel. Second, it pointed out that the APAR system needs to take into consideration the prioritisation of tasks while ranking officers. It suggested that this be done by prioritising tasks and using Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) to assign weights to each task. Third, it suggested that APAR should focus on assessing performance rather than the individual's personality. In this line, it recommended that there should be a 60 per cent weight on work output, and 40 per cent weight on personal attributes (instead of 60 per cent for personal and 40 per cent for work outputs that exist in the APAR system). Fourth, it recommended synchronised timelines between APAR and RFDs. Last, the Commission recommended the introduction of online APAR systems for all central government officers and employees. This recommendation was made after noting the success of the SPARROW (

RFD. First, there needed to be an alignment of department and individual performance. The department, which should derive its objectives from the concerned ministry's vision, should make these clear to its personnel. Second, it pointed out that the APAR system needs to take into consideration the prioritisation of tasks while ranking officers. It suggested that this be done by prioritising tasks and using Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) to assign weights to each task. Third, it suggested that APAR should focus on assessing performance rather than the individual's personality. In this line, it recommended that there should be a 60 per cent weight on work output, and 40 per cent weight on personal attributes (instead of 60 per cent for personal and 40 per cent for work outputs that exist in the APAR system). Fourth, it recommended synchronised timelines between APAR and RFDs. Last, the Commission recommended the introduction of online APAR systems for all central government officers and employees. This recommendation was made after noting CENTRE FOR POLICY RESEARCH STATE CAPACITY INITIATIVE Page 12 of 15 the success of the SPARROW,

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

315/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

which was introduced for IAS officers, and allowed for adherence to the prescribed timelines in filling up the APARs. 1.7

which was introduced for IAS officers, and allowed for adherence to the prescribed timelines in filling up the APARs.

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

316/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Recent reform literature has rightly identified that moving towards this more holistic and constructive approach to performance can resolve structural problems in the current system. As alluded to by the Second

Recent reform literature has rightly identified that moving towards this more holistic and constructive approach to performance can resolve structural problems in the current system. As alluded to by the Second

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

317/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 183 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 183 WORDS

the posts of Vigilance Commissioners. 1.8 Ranks of the Indian Police Service (IPS) The following are the ranks that an IPS officer takes charge as during her/his tenure in the service. • Assistant Superintendent of Police (Sub-division for 2 years' probation) • Superintendent of Police or Deputy Commissioner of Police (After 4 years in service) • Junior Administrative Grade (After 9 years in service) • Selection Grade (After 13 years in service) • Deputy Inspector General of Police or Additional Commissioner of Police (After 14 years in service) • Inspector-General of Police (After 18 years in service) • Additional Director General of Police (After 25 years in service) • Finally, the Director-General of Police (after 30 years in service) The Director-General of Police and Commissioner of Police is the head of the entire police force of the State or Metropolitan City like Chennai, Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai, etc., and below him/her comes the Additional DGP or Special Police Commissioner. While the inspector General or Joint Commissioner of Police is the head of specialized police force like the Criminal Investigation Department, Special Branch etc.

SA Hema Pandey llm 4th seme.docx (D141969426)

318/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

real change in organisational culture emerges only in an environment where employees feel valued and experience a sense of progress and organisational concern. 1.8

real change in organisational culture emerges only in an environment where employees feel valued and experience a sense of progress and organisational concern (

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

319/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Behr, J. (2019, November 22). Getting the Most Out of 360-Degree Reviews. Harvard Business Review. https://hbr.org/2019/11/getting-the-most-out-of-360-

Behr, J. (2019, November 22). Getting the Most Out of 360-Degree Reviews. Harvard Business Review. https://hbr.org/2019/11/getting-the-most-out-of-360-

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

320/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

Department of Personnel and Training. (2007). The All India Service (Performance Appraisal Report) Rules, 2007. Government of India

Department of Personnel and Training. (2007). The All India Service (Performance Appraisal Report) Rules, 2007. Government of India.

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

321/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

MS, N. (2018, August). Why India's civil servants are disaffected with the 360-degree empanelment process for top central government posts. The Caravan. https://caravanmagazine.in/government- policy/whyindias-civil-servants-disaffected-with-360-

MS, N. (2018, August). Why India's civil servants are disaffected with the 360-degree empanelment process for top central government posts. The Caravan. https://caravanmagazine.in/government-policy/why- indias-civil-servants-disaffected-with-360-

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

322/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

Surinder Nath Committee. (2003). Report of the Group Constituted to Review the System of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group "A" Services (p. 64). Government of India. https://dopt.gov.in/

Surinder Nath Committee. (2003). Report of the Group Constituted to Review the System of Performance Appraisal, Promotion, Empanelment and Placement for the All India Services and other Group "A" Services (p. 64). Government of India. https://dopt.gov.in/

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

323/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

Unnikrishnan, A., Sharma, S., Sharma, K.R. (2022, March). Debates on Administrative Reform in India: Performance Management. Centre for Policy Research, State Capacity Initiative Working Paper No. 2022.3

Unnikrishnan, A., Sharma, S., Sharma, K.R. (2022, March). Debates on Administrative Reform in India: Performance Management. Centre for Policy Research, State Capacity Initiative Working Paper No. 2022.3

W https://cprindia.org/wp-content/uploads/2022/03/Performance-Management_5-March-22.pdf

324/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 84 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 84 WORDS

SUBMITTED TEXT	MATCHING TEXT
The extent of Employer-Employee relations in public service depends vastly on the nature of Civil Service unionism. The harmony and hostility of relations rests with the strengths and weakness and the philosophy of unionism among the government employees. Public-Employee relations are also governed by the changing nature of the public employer and its dictatorial or democratic attitude in solving the mutual problems. In this Unit, we propose to study the objectives of Civil Service unionism, the origin and growth of employees unions and	The extent of Employer-Employee relatims in public service depends vastly on the' nature of Civil Service unionism. The harmony and hostility of relations rests with the strengths and weaknesses and the philosophy of uniohism among the government employees. Public-Employee relatims are also governed by the changing nature of the public employer, its dictatorial o r dehocratic attitude in solving the mutual problems. In this unit, we propose to study the objectives of Civil Service unionism, the origin and growth of employees unions and

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

325/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 75 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 75 WORDS

SUBMITTED TEXT	MATCHING TEXT
administration. They are yearning for opportunities for full participation in the development of the country. The employees unions are positive assets to sound and progressive administration. The following may be said to be the objectives behind the establishment of organisations: 1) To acquaint the government with the point of view of the employees as there might be many problems where the management and the employees might be having differing point of views. 2) The	administration. They are yearning for opportunities for full participation in the development of the country. The employees unions are positive assets to sound and progressive administration. The following may be said to be the objectives behind the establishment of organisations: To acquaint the government with the point of view of the employees. There might be several troubles where the management and the employees might be having differing points of views. the

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

326/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 196 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 196 WORDS

an opportunity to the government to know the opinion of the employees on any given issue. No government can possibly contact all its employees individually. They could be easily contacted through the medium of the organisation. The opinion of the organisation is the collective opinion of the employees. 3) The organisation belongs to the employees. It stands with them through thick and thin. There is a feeling of oneness between the employees and the organisation. 4) The associations meet the social expectations of the members. It satisfies the ego of the office bearer. They feel that they are doing something useful and beneficial for their members. The unions make it possible for employees to express their point of view to the government as a whole, while developing a feeling of oneness between the employees and the administration. Thus, they help in developing harmonious relations between government and employees. The employees unions provide a feeling of identification with the securing of certain personal objectives. They want to do something for themselves. They provide an outlet for natural social aspirations of employees. The unions want to promote efficiency, protect merit systems and improve the quality of administration. 5)

an opportunity to the government to know the opinion of the employees on any given issue. No government could perhaps get in touch with all its employees individually. They could be easily contacted through the medium of the organization. The opinion of the organization is the communal opinion of the employees. The organization belongs to the employees. It stands with them through thick and thin. There is a feeling of oneness flanked by the employees and the organization. The associations meet the social expectations of the members. It satisfies the ego of the office bearer. They feel that they are doing something useful and beneficial to their members. The unions create it possible for employees to express their point of view to the government as a whole, while developing a feeling of oneness flanked by the employees and the administration. Therefore, they help in developing harmonious relations flanked by government and employees. The employees unions give a feeling of identification with the securing of sure personal objectives. They want to do something for themselves. They an outlet for natural social aspirations of employees. The unions want to promote efficiency, protect merit systems and improve the quality of administration.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

327/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

Protecting the rights of employees including ventilation of grievances and negotiation with the government. (b)Undertaking measures for social, economic, and cultural advancement of the employees. (c)Promoting academic matters including publication of journals and other literature. (d)Settlement of disputes through joint consultation/collective bargaining. (

Protecting the rights of employees including ventilation of grievances and negotiations with the government. Undertaking measures for social, economics, and cultural advancement of the ' employees. Promoting academic matters including publication of Journals and other literature. Settlement of disputes through joint consultation1collective bargaining.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

328/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	38 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	38 WORDS

Achieving free trade union rights including full citizenship with right to contest elections. (f)To ensure the framing of labour legislation to guarantee the growth of free trade unionism without discrimination between government and non-government labour. 1.4:

Achieving free trade union rights including full citizenship with right to contest elections. To ensure the framing of labour legislation to guarantee the growth of free trade unionism without discrimination flanked by government and non-government labour.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

329/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	113 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	113 WORDS

the early British rule, there was little or no consciousness of common needs and interests among civil servants because of the greater inheritance and partnership in the administration by the English rulers. Indians who were largely employed at the pleasure of the Britishers, had little or no interest in the formation of an association and whatever urge there was, got submerged in the movement of the people for realisation of the goal of India's independence. Of course, before World War I there were associations of government employees such as the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants of India and Burma (1897), the Indian Civil Service Association (1918), etc. but they were mostly manned the early British rule, there was little or no consciousness of common needs and interests in the middle of civil servants because of the greater inheritance and partnership in the administration through the English rulers. Indians who were largely employed at the pleasure of the Bruisers, had little or no interest in the formation of an association and whatever urge there was, got submerged in the movement of the people for realization of the goal of India"s independence. Of course, before World War I there were associations of government employees such as the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants of India and Burma (1897), the Indian Civil Service Association (1918) etc. but they were mostly manned

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

and the Anglo-Indians. Hence, their existence carried not much significance in the development of unions except as a matter of historical interest. During the British rule of centralised administration, the general mass of lower and middle level civil servants did not find an opportunity to get organised. By the beginning of the 20th century, however, modern association had secured for itself a place in the economic and political life of the country. Employees organised themselves to press their demands but, by and large, it was only in those cases where they could evoke public sympathy that they succeeded, and such sympathy was hard to come by. After World War I, political and economic conditions in the country caused, partly by the freedom struggle led by Mahatma Gandhi and his followers and partly by the drain theory advocated by Dadabhai Naoroji as the cause of poverty of India, roused new aspirations in the minds of civil servants to form associations. Further the establishment of the International Labour Organisation (1919) had its impact on the growth of trade unions and staff associations in the country. Lower grade employees working in the Railways and the Post and Telegraph Department began to organise themselves into unions. While some unions chose to operate independently others felt the need for coordination of their activities 145 at the national level. The formation in 1920 of the All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC) was a manifestation of these urges. Further, the enactment of the Trade Union Act, 1926, facilitated the formation and growth of trade/staff unions in India. The setting up of the popular governments in the provinces in the late thirties under the Government of India Act, 1935, quickened the pace of the growth of unions and staff associations in the provinces. The Act vested in the governors the responsibility to "safeguard the interests and rights of civil servants. During World War II (1939-45) the relations between the government and its employees further deteriorated. Economic conditions began to worsen and the cost of living rose very high and this made the life of employees, especially the low paid, difficult. As a result, of an intense agitation resorted to by the unions of the Railways and the Postal employees for the amelioration of their condition of service, the government appointed a "Pay Commission" to go into the whole question of scale of wages, pensions and other conditions of service and also the question of setting up some machinery for negotiations between the government and the United Kingdom. The Commission was pained to find that there was "an absolute distrust on the part of many grades of public servants as to their ever and the Anglo-Indians. Hence their subsistence accepted not much significance in the development of unions except as a matter of historical interest. Throughout the British rule of centralised administration, the general mass of lower and middle stage civil servants did not find an opportunity to get organised. Through the beginning of the 20th century, though, modern association had secured for itself a place in the economic and political life of the country. Employees organised themselves to press their demands but, through and large, it was only in those cases where they could evoke public sympathy that they succeeded, and such sympathy was hard to come through. After World War I, political and economic circumstances in the country caused, partly through the freedom thrash about led through Mahatma Gandhi and his followers and partly through the drain theory advocated through Dadabhai Naoroji as the cause of poverty of India, roused new aspirations in the minds of civil servants to form associations. Further the establishment of the International Labour Organization (1919) had its impact on the growth of trade unions and staff associations in the country. Lower grade employees working in the Railways and the Post and Telegraph Department began to organize themselves into unions. While some unions chose to operate independently others felt the need for coordination of their activities at the national stage. The formation in 1920 of the All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC) was a manifestation of these urges. Further the enactment of the Trade Union Act, 1926, facilitated the formation and growth of trade/staff unions in India. The setting up of the popular governments in the provinces in the late thirties under the Government of India Act, 1935, quickened the pace of the growth of unions and staff associations in the provinces. The Act vested in the governors the responsibility to "safeguard the interests and rights of civil servants. Throughout World War II (1939-45) the relations flanked by the government and its employees further deteriorated. Economic circumstances began to worsen and the cost of living rose very high and this made the life of employees, especially the low paid, hard. As a result of an intense agitation resorted to through the unions of the Railways and the Postal employees for the amelioration of their condition of service, the government appointed a "Pay Commission" to go into the whole question of scale of wages, pensions and other circumstances of service and also the question of setting up some machinery for negotiations flanked by the government and the United Kingdom. The Commission was pained to find that there receiving a fair response from the government to their representations". It strongly recommended that the administration should encourage and foster the growth of unions of civil servants. This recommendation gave a further impetus to the development and organisation of civil service associations. After the attainment of Independence, employees in the civil service felt pride in the formation of association. Slowly and gradually, all classes of civil servants began to organise themselves into associations. The Government of India felt the importance of associations and consequently an article to this end was incorporated in the draft constitution now the Indian Constitution in force from 26 January, 1950, which provides for the right to 'form associations and unions' subject to 'public order or morality'. Civil servants enjoy this fundamental right as much as any other group of citizens and their right to form unions or associations is no different from workers outside the government. This article is a milestone in the development of staff associations and unions in India as a whole. The civil servants outside the Railways and the P&T largely remained unorganised. There were loose organisations among the Income Tax, Audit and Accounts, Customs, Civil Aviations and Public Works Departments. The All India Federation of Income Tax Employees, though formed in 1949, was not recognised by the government as its President Asoka Mehta was not an employee of the Income Tax Department. It was only recognised in 1954 after its re-birth in 1953. It is now one of the strong federations with about 40 affiliated associations/unions.

was "an absolute distrust on the part of several grades of public servants as to their ever getting a fair response from the government to their representations". It strongly recommended that the administration should encourage and foster the growth of unions of civil servants. This recommendation gave a further impetus to the development and organization of civil service associations. Post-Independence After the attainment of Independence, employees in the civil service felt pride in the formation of association. Slowly and slowly, all classes of civil servants began to organize themselves into associations. The Government of India felt the importance of associations and consequently an article to this end, was incorporated in the draft constitution now the Indian Constitution in force from 26 January, 1950. Gives for The right to "form associations and unions" subject to "public order or morality". Civil servants enjoy this fundamental right as much as any other group of citizens, and their right to form unions or associations is no dissimilar from workers outside the government. This article is a milestone in the development of staff associations and unions in India as a whole. The civil servants outside the Railways and the P&T largely remained unorganized. There were loose organisations in the middle of the Income Tax, Audit and Accounts, Customs, Civil Aviations and Public Works Departments. The All-India Federation of Income Tax Employees, though shaped in 1949, was not recognized through the government as its President Asoka Mehta was not an employee of the Income Tax Department. It was only recognized in 1954 after its re-birth in 1953. It is now one of the strong federations the about 40 affiliated associations/unions.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

331/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 89 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 89 WORDS

only recognised in 1956, though the employees started organising since 1923. It was de-recognised in 1959 and it took long time to get re-recognition. The All India Ordinance Employees Federation was set up in 1947 with heterogeneous Defence workers organisations. In May 1953, they united and formed All India Defence Employees Federation (AIDEF). In 1959, forty unions affiliated to the AIDEF left it and formed the Indian National Defence Workers Federation (INDWF) with the support of Indian National Trade Union Congress (INTUC). Both the Federations have been recognised	only recognized in 1956, though the employees started organizing since 1923. It was de-recognized in 1959 and it took long time to get re-recognition. The All-India Ordinance Employees Federation was set up in 1947 with heterogeneous Defence workers organisations. In May 1953, they united and shaped All-India Defence Employees Federation (AIDEF). In 1959, forty unions affiliated to the AIDEF left it and shaped the Indian National Defence Workers Federation (INDWF) with the support of Indian National Trade Union Congress (INTUC). Both the Federations have been recognized

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

332/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

the government. The employees unions in the Defence Ministry are large in number and strong in their representative capabilities. In 1947, there were 27 unions in P & T recognised	the government. The employees unions in the Defence Ministry are large in number and strong in their representative capabilities. In 1947, there were 27 unions in P&T recognized

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

333/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 260 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 260 WORDS

the government. The government initiated a Realignment scheme, proposing all the unions to come under one Federation. Accordingly, all the Non- Gazetted employees of P & T were realigned into nine All India Trade Unions and National Federation of P & T Employees (NFPTE) came into existence in 1954. Since then till 1968, the NFPTE enjoyed exclusive recognition. In 1969, the P & T Department recognised rival unions and the Federation of National P & T Organisation (FNPTO). In spite of rivalry, the employees unions in P & T are very strong. The All India Railwaymen's Federation (AIRF) was formed in 1924. It has been one of the powerful trade unions in India under the eminent leadership of V.V. Giri, Jaya Prakash Narayan, N.M. Joshi, Peter 146 Alvares and George Fernandes. Till 1948, AIRF had the privilege of the exclusive recognition of the government. In 1949, the government also recognised a new organisation, namely the Indian National Railway Workers' Federation (INRWF). In 1953, a merger of the AIRF and INRWF took place and a new Federation in the name of National Federation of Indian Railwaymen (NFIR) came into existence. However, despite the unity efforts in 1957, the AIRF was revived. The former INRWF retained the name of NFIR. In 1974, a third Federation, viz., the Indian Railway Workers Federation was formed with the support of AITUC. There are also category-wise All India Associations, for Station Masters, Locomen Running Staff, Guards, Signals and Telecommunication Staff, Commercial Clerks, Ministerial Staff. The recognition of category-wise unions also became strong. 1.5:

the government. The government initiated a Realignment scheme, proposing all the unions to come under one Federation. Accordingly, all the Non-Gazetted employees of P&T were realign into nine All-India Trade Unions and National Federation of P&T Employees (NFPTE) came into in 1954. Since then till 1968, the NFPTE enjoyed exclusive recognition. In 1969, the P&T Department recognized rival unions and the Federation of National P&T Organization (FNPTO). In spite of rivalry, the employees unions in P&T are very strong. The All-India Railway men's Federation (AIRF) was shaped in 1924. It has been one of the powerful trade unions in India under the eminent leadership of V.V. Giri, Jaya Prakash Narayan, N.M. Joshi, Peter Alvares and George Fernandes. Till 1948 AIRF had the privilege of the exclusive recognition of the government. In 1949, the government also recognized a new organization, namely, the Indian National Railway Workers" Federation (INRWF). In 1953, a merger of the AIRF and INRWF took place and a new Federation in the name of National Federation of Indian Railway men (NFIR) came into subsistence. Though, despite the unity efforts in 1957, the AIRF was revived. The Former INRWF retained the name of NFIR. In 1974, a third Federation viz., the Indian Railway Workers Federation was shaped with the support of AITUC. There are also category-wise All India Associations, for Station Masters, Locomen Running Staff, Guards, Signals and Telecommunication Staff, Commercial Clerks, Ministerial Staff. The recognition of category-wise unions also became strong;

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

334/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 143 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 143 WORDS

The organisation of employees was confronted with a number of problems during their growth and stabilisation. The most crucial problem was the struggle to achieve the right to form Unions/Associations. The Right of Association is central to the concept of constitutional democracy. It is difficult for anybody to function without freedom to associate with others. People find much of their identity in some form of group activity in economic, social, political and professional terms. It must be the obligation of the government to protect the right of Association from invasion and to refrain from making inroads into the right by its own activities. The Constitution of India under Article 19(1)(c) guarantees the right to form associations and unions to its citizens. It is natural that government employees also resort to take up association type of activity for protecting their service conditions.

The organisation of employees was confronted with a number of problems during their growth and stabilisation. The most crucial problem was the struggle to achieve the right to form Unions/Associations. The Right of Association is central to the concept of constiputional democracy. It is difficult for any body to function without freedom to associate with others. People find much of their identity in some form of group activity in economic, social, political and professional terms. It must be the obligation of the government to protect the right of Association from invasion and to refrain from making inroads into the right by its c-n activities. The Constitution of India under Article 19(l)(c) guarantees the right to form associations and unions to its citizens. It is natural that government employees also resort to take up association type of activity for protecting their service conditions. 22.6

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

335/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

It is pertinent to note that the grant and continuance of recognition provides a legal status to the

It is pertinent to note that the grant and continuanco'of recognition provides a legal status to the

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

336/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 235 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 235 WORDS

to represent the grievances of employees, negotiate and bargain with the employer. Recognition encourages legitimate union activity. The Indian Trade Union Act, 1926 did not extend its provisions to the civil servants. The Trade Union Law has made no provision for compulsory recognition of unions by the employers. In spite of the limitations and restrictions the employees organisations focussed their grievances from time to time since the 1920s. To curb the mounting unrest and the threat of direct action, the government issued the Central Civil Services (Conduct) Rules, 1955 and they were amended in 1964. In 1959, a new set of Rules known as the Central Civil Service (Recognition of Service Associations) Rules, 1959 were made under Article 309 and clause 5 of Article 148 of the Constitution of India. The provisions of the Rules laid certain conditions for purposes of recognition: a) No person, who is not a government servant, is connected with the affairs of the Association. b) The executive of the Association is elected from amongst the members only. c) The Association shall not respond to support the cause of individual government servants. d) It shall not maintain any political fund or lend itself to the propagation of the views of any political party or politician. The Ministry of Labour issued separate rules for recognition of unions of workers who are industrial employees. According to these rules: a) The membership of

to represent the grievances of employees, negotiate and bargain with the employer. Recognition encourages legitimate union activity. The Indian Trade Union Act, 1926 did not extend its provisions to the civil servants. The ~mpbla-hpb)rcd * R. Trade Union Law has made no provision for compulsory recognition of unions by the employers. In spite of the limitations and restrictions the employees organisations focused their grievances from time to time since the 1920s. T o curb the mounting unrest and the threat of direct action, the government issued the Central Civil Services (Conduct) Rules, 1955 and they were amended in 1964. In 1959, a new set of Rules known as the Central Civil Service (Recognition of Service Associations) Rules, 1959 were made under Article 30%and clause 5 of Article 148 of the Constitution of India. The provisions of the Rules laid certain conditions for purposes of recognition: a) No person, who is not a government servant, is connected with the affairs of the Association. b) The executive of the Association is elected from amongst rhe members only. c) The Association shall not respond to support the cause of individual government servants. d) It shall not maintain any political fund or lend itself to the propagation of the views of any political party or politician. r The Ministry of ~ a b o uissued separate rules for recognition of unions of workers who are industrial employees. According to these Rules: a) The membership of union must be confined to workmen employed in the same industry or industries closely allied or connected with each other. 147 b) The union must be a representative of all workmen employed in that industry. No class of workmen must be excluded from membership. c) The union must be registered under the Trade Union Law. d) The union must make a suitable provision in their constitution regarding the procedure for declaring strikes. The Railway Ministry also issued another set of rules for the recognition of associations of Non-Gazetted Railway servants. However, they are not very different from the Rules of the Labour Ministry. The grant and continuance of recognition under the Labour and Railway Ministry's Rules rests with the discretion of the government and the Rules of Ministry of Home Affairs (Rules of Recognition, 1959) also provide recognition only when specified conditions union must be confined to workmen employed in the same industry or industries closely allied or connected with each other. b) The union must be a representative of all workmen employed in that industry. No class of workmen must be excluded from membership. c) The union must be registered under the Trade Union Law. d) The union must make a suitable provision in their constitution regarding the procedure for declaring strikes. The Railway Ministry also issued another set of rules for the recognition of associations of Non-Gazetted Railway servants. However, they are not very different from the Rules of the Labour Ministry. The grant and continuance of recognition under the Labour and Railway Ministry's Rules rests with the discretion of the government and the Rules of Ministry of Home Affairs (Rules of Recognition, 1959) also provide recognition only when specified conditions

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

337/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 145 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 145 WORDS

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

338/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 146 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 146 WORDS

fulfilled. Except in the case of civil servants who are governed by the Recognition Rules of 1959, both Labour Ministry's rules and the Railway Ministry's rules permit the association of outsiders as the executive of the unions. However, the former employees and retired employees are allowed in civil service associations. The Recognition Rules of 1959 restricted the free movement of trade unions. According to the rules every association which seeks recognition has to submit a list of members and office bearers and must have at least 15 per cent of a distinct category of government servants as members. The rules were stringent and demanded liberal application of the rules. For a long time the government had not followed any clear policy in regard to recognition. The unions had to fight and struggle to get the recognition as different ministries had followed different recognition rules.

fulfilled. Except in the case of civil servants who are governed by the Recognition Rules of 1959, both Labour Ministry's rules and the Railway Ministry's rules permit the association of outsiders as the executive of the unions. However, the former employees and Retired Employees are allowed in civil service associations. The Recognition Rules of 1959 restricted the free movement of trade unions. According to the rules every association which seeks recognition has to submit a list of members and office bearers and must have at least 15 per cent of a distinct category of government servants as members. The rules were stringent and demanded liberal application of the rules. For a long the government had not followed any clear policy in regard to recognition. The unions had to fight and struggle to get the recognition as different ministries had followed different recognition rules.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

339/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 69 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 69 WORDS

Public employees have in many countries demanded the right to form Employees Unions. There is a high degree of variation among the public employee organisations and in the nature of formal relations between the unions and their governments. Their fundamental objectives are to get redressed of the grievances of the employees pertaining to the service conditions through joint consultation, collective bargaining and by direct action if felt necessary.

Public employees have in many countries demanded the right to form Employees Unions. There is a high degree of variation among the public employee organisations and in the nature of formal relations between the unions and their governments. Their fundamental objectives are to get redressal of the grievances of the employees pc,rtaining to the service conditions through joint consultation, collective bargaining and by direct action if felt necessary.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

340/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

Ultimately they have aimed at maintenance of harmonious relations between the government and employees by settling their problems through negotiations in

Ultimately they aim at maintenance of harmonious relations between the government and employees by settling their problems through negotiation in

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

341/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

to promote efficiency protect merit system and improve the effectiveness of

to promote efficiency, protect merit system and improve the effectiveness of

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

342/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

P. (1972). Freedom of Association in Public Employment. Journal of Indian Law Institute. 14(1): 1-20.

P. 1972. 'Freedom of Association in Public Employment, Journal of Indian Law Institute,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

343/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

to understand the significance of the joint consultation in civil service staff relations (

to: understand the significance of the joint consultation in civil service staff relations

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

344/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 258 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 258 WORDS

outline the functions of the Joint Consultative Councils and the Board of Arbitration (d) to evaluate the functioning of the Joint Consultative Machinery, and (f) to discuss suggestions for the improvement. 2.2: Introduction The history of the civil service staff relations is characterised by the recognition of the fact that employees at work like to be treated as human beings. The recognition of the human dignity was one of the cardinal factors that lead to the resolutions of the grievances of the employees in a peaceful manner, in democratic method and at regular periods. The early employer-employee relations in the government service followed the traditional pattern, where the government employees were expected to owe unquestionable loyalty to the State. Therefore, the conditions of service of the employees were determined unilaterally by the government without consulting the employees. The labour in the private sector secured benefits in matters of wages and working conditions as a result of effective labour organisation and militant actions. This led to the conviction among government employees' organisations that through joint and united efforts and concerted action only they could ensure improvement in their service conditions. Accordingly, the government employees resorted to strikes and brought pressure on the government to negotiate in good faith with its employees. They demanded the State 'to be a model employer for promoting sound employer- employee relations. Modern democratic governments with large-scale administrative organisations committed to the all-round development of the society cannot carry out their policies and programmes without the active cooperation and participation of outline the functions of the Joint Consultative Councils and the Board of Arbitration evaluate the funtioning of the Joint Consultative Machinery, and discuss suggestions for the improvement. INTRODUCTION The history of the civil service staff relations is characterised by the recognition of the fact that employees at work like to be treated as human beings. The recognition of the human dignity was one of the cardinal factors that lead to the resolutions of the grievances of the employees in a peaceful manner, in democratic method and at regular periods. The early employer-employee relations in the government service followed the traditional pattern, where the government employees were expected to owe unquestionable loyality to the State. Therefore, the conditions of service of the employees were determined unilaterally by the government without consulting the employees. The labour in the private sector secured benefits in matters of wages and working conditions as a result of effective labour organisation and militant actions. This led to the conviction among government employees' organisations that through joint and united efforts and concerted action only they could ensure improvement in their service conditions. Accordingly, the government employees resorted to strikes and brought pressure on the government to negotiate in good faith with its employees. They demanded the State'to be a model employer for promoting sound employer-employee relations. Modern democratic governments with large-scale administrative organisations committed to the all-round development of the society cannot carry out their policies and programmes without the active cooperation and participation of

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

345/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 64 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 64 WORDS

employees. Therefore, harmonious staff relations are absolutely necessary for ad3ministrativeefficiency and it is not possible for the governments to maintain cordial relations without an effective form of consultation and negotiation. For this reason, the civil service staff relations policies and programmes must be consistently blasted on the principles of democratic government. Strikes by the government employees, it was realised, cannot be prohibited without	employees. Therefore, harmonious staff relations are absolutely necessary for ad3ministrative efficiency and it is not possible for the governments to maintain cordial relations without an effective form of consult.ation and negotiation. For this reason, the civil service staff relations policies and programmes must be consistently blased on the principles of democratic government. Strikes by the government employees, it was realised, cannot be prohibited without

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

346/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 195 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 195 WORDS

providing suitable framework of joint consultation, collective negotiation procedures and methods of dispute settlement by compulsory arbitration. As such, establishment of a grievance redressed and disputes solving machinery was considered the "essential half-way house" between the unilateral imposition of conditions of service in the public employment by the state as employer on the one hand, and deadlocks and strikes on the other. It was felt that all matters relating to pay, hours of work and conditions of service may be negotiated by the representatives of the employees and the employer. Thus, the discussions in joint consultative bodies generally relate to the exchange of information and consideration of the suggestions for improving safety, security, health and welfare and increase of productive efficiency. The results of such mutual discussions usually take the shape of recommendations framing the final decision to the government. The emphasis in joint consultation is 151 mainly on informal method and cooperation based on common interests and good faith to improve the working conditions of employees and to increase the efficiency of administration. The simple aim of such relationship is to facilitate and promote peaceful resolution of conflicting interests. 2.3:	providing suitable framework of joint consultation, collective negotiation procedures and methods of dispute settlement by compulsory arbitration. As such, establishment of a grievance redressal and disputes solving machinery was considered the "essential half-way house" between the unilateral imposition of conditions of service in the public employment by the state as employer on the one hand, and deadlocks and strikeson the other. It was felt that all matters relating to pay, hours of work and conditions of service may be negotiated by the representatives of the employees and the employer. Thus, the discussions in joint consultative bodies generally relate to the exchange of information and consideration of the suggestions for improving safety, security, health and welfare and increase of productive efficiency. :The results of such mutual discussions usually take the shape of recommendatiorls framing the final decision to the government. The emphasis in joint coilsultation is mainly on informal method and cooperation based on common interests and good faith to improve the working conditions of employees and to increase the efficiency of administration. The simple aim of such relationship is to facilitate and promote peaceful resolution of conflicting interests.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

347/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	106 WORDS	83%	MATCHING TEXT	106 WORDS

After discussions between the government and the employees organisation, the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On many aspects of the scheme the employees organisations expressed doubts and opposed certain proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including inpustrial employees) under one umbrella. Therefore, there were discussions on many occasions at all levels for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair'trial be given to the scheme. Thus, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees

After discussions flanked by the government and the employees organisations the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On several characteristics of the scheme the employee"s organisations expressed doubts and opposed sure proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including industrial employees) under one umbrella. So, there were discussions on several occasions at all stages for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair trial be given to the scheme. Therefore, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

348/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 267 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 267 WORDS

inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was considered "opening of a new chapter" and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation. The Scheme was designed "with the object of promoting harmonious relations and securing the greatest measure of cooperation between the government and its employees in matters of common concern, and with the further object of increasing the efficiency of the public service combined with the well-being of those employed" The Scheme is a voluntary one. The government and the employees unions and associations who participate in the scheme are required to subscribe to a Declaration of Joint Intent. Accordingly, both the sides (the government and the staff associations and unions) agreed to a full and frank discussions on all matters in the Joint Councils to reach agreements. The unique feature of the Scheme is its coverage of both industrial and non-industrial of the government. In this regard it differs from the Whitley System which is concerned with only non-industrial civil service. Another difference is that the J.C.M. Scheme does not cover "the class I, class I1 services, employees of industrial establishment and the union territories and police personnel" Yet another difference is that the fundamental objective of Whitley System viz., to provide machinery for dealing with grievances and to bring together experience and points of view of representatives of different classes and grades of civil service is not stated in the J.C.M. Scheme.\ The J.C.M. provides for a three-tier structure and Joint Councils at the National, I ~departmental, inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was measured “opening of a new chapter” and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation. THE SALIENT CHARACTERISTICS OF J.C.M. SCHEME The Scheme was intended “with the object of promoting harmonious relations and securing the greatest measure of cooperation flanked by the government and its employees in matters of common concern, and with the further object of rising the efficiency of the public service combined with the well-being of those employed” The Scheme is a voluntary one. The government and the employees unions and associations who participate in the scheme are required to subscribe to a Declaration of Joint Intent. Accordingly, both the sides (the government and the staff associations and unions) agreed to a full and frank discussions on all matters in the Joint Councils to reach agreements. The unique characteristic of the Scheme is its coverage of both industrial and non-industrial of the government. In this regard it differs from the Whitley System which is concerned with only non-industrial civil service. Another variation is that the J.C.M. Scheme does not cover “the class I, class II services, employees of industrial establishment and the union territories and police personnel” Yet another variation is that the fundamental objective of Whitley System viz., to give machinery for dealing with grievances and to bring together experience and points of view of representatives of dissimilar classes and grades of civil service is not stated in the J.C.M. Scheme. The J.C.M. gives for a three-tier structure and Joint Councils at the National, Departmental,

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

349/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

levels. The J.C.M. Scheme is a bi-partite body consisting of the representatives of the government (official side) and the representations of the recognised employees organisations (staff side). The official side is nominated by the government and the staff side seats allocated to different associations/unions/

levels. The J.C.M. Scheme is a bi-partite body , consisting of the representatives of the government (official side) and the representations oft he recognised employees organisations (staff side). The official side is nominated by the government and the staff side seats allocated to different associations/unions/

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

350/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 205 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 205 WORDS

the government. The Scheme broadly covers about 3 million regular class I11 and IV civil employees of the Central Government including industrial employees working in the departmentally run undertakings like the Railways and workshops and production units of various ministries. Though the Indian J.C.M. Scheme was modelled after the Whitley System in U.K., the Indian Scheme could not inculcate in its scheme, the spirit and the long experience of the Whitley system. It is more a joint consultative machinery than a bi-partite participative agency. The Joint Councils deal with all matters concerning the conditions of work, standards of work, efficiency and staff welfare. However, in matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited only to matters of general principles and individual cases are not considered. The Councils may appoint Committees to study and report on any matter falling within t5eir scope. All the agreements reached between the official and staff sides of a council will become operative subject to the final authority of the Cabinet. If the matter is arbitral and a final disagreement were to be recorded it may be referred to 152 arbitration, if either side desires so. However, compulsory arbitration is not available at regional office council	the government. The Scheme broadly covers about 3 million regular class III and IV civil employees of the Central Government including industrial employees working in the departmentally run undertakings like the Railways and workshops and production units of several ministries. Though the Indian J.C.M. Scheme was modeled after the Whitley System in U.K., the Indian Scheme could not inculcate in its scheme, the spirit and the long experience of the Whitley system. It is more a joint consultative machinery than a bi-partite participative agency. THE FUNCTIONS OF COUNCILS The Joint Councils deal with all matters concerning the circumstances of work, standards of work, efficiency and staff welfare. Though, in matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited only to matters of general principles and individual cases are not measured. The Councils may appoint Committees to and report on any matter falling within their scope. All the agreements reached flanked by the official and staff sides of a council will become operative subject to the final authority of the Cabinet. If the matter is arbitral and a final disagreement was to be recorded it may be referred to arbitration, if either side desires so. Though, compulsory arbitration is not accessible at local/office council

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

351/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Compulsory arbitration is a part of the scheme for Joint Consultation Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration for Central Government Employees.	Compulsory arbitration is a part of the scheme for joint consultation machinery and Compulsory Arbitration for central government employees.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

352/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 376 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 376 WORDS

government is required to appoint a Board of Arbitration under clause 19 of the scheme. The Board consists of three members. one is drawn from a panel of five names submitted by the official side, second from a similar panel submitted by the staff side of the National Council, and the third a Chairman, who is an independent. The Chairman and the members are selected by the Ministry of Labour. The first Board of Arbitration was established in July 1968. The jurisdiction of the arbitration matters is limited to: a) pay and allowance b) weekly hours of work and c) leave of 'a class or grade of employees'. Individual cases are not subject to compulsory arbitration. Guidelines are laid down for the Board of Arbitration to arrive at decisions and its jurisdiction in certain matters is barred. Further, matters determined by the government in accordance with the recommendations of a commission are not arbitrable for a period of five years from the date of the recommendations and orders issued by the Government in pursuance of the recommendations of the Board of Arbitration remain in operation for three years. The recommendations of the Board of Arbitration are binding on both the sides but the Parliament may modify or reject them on grounds of national economy or social justice. In the very first and second meetings of the National Council the government rejected to refer to the compulsory arbitration the major demands of the staff side like the 'need' based minimum wage, and merger of D. A. with basic pay. On this issue the employees went on a day's token strike on 16th September 1968 much against the Declaration of Joint Intent. During 1968-88, a total number of about 200 references were made to the Board of Arbitration and it gave 175 awards. In more than 150 cases the staff side either fully or partially benefited. The number of employees benefited due to the awards of the Board of Arbitration runs into millions. Most of the cases referred were pertained to pay scales and allowances. The arbitration awards clearly favoured the claims of the staff side. In a way, compulsory, arbitration in India contributed to development of harmonious staff relations in the Government of India. 2.4:

government is required to appoint a Board of Arbitration under clause 19 of the scheme. The Board consists of three members. one is drawn from a panel of five names ~ ~ p ~ o y ~ r - ~ m RehUons e p~oye submitted by the official side, second from a similar panel submitted by the staff side of the National Council, and the third a Chairman, who is an independent. The Chairman and the members are selected by the Ministry of Labour. The first Board of Arbitration was established in July 1968. The jurisdiction of the arbitration matters is limited to: a) pay and allowance b) weekly hours of work and c) leave of 'a class or grade of employees'. Individual cases are not subject to compulsory arbitration. Guidelines are laid down for the Board of Arbitration to arrive at decisions and its jurisdiction in certain matters is barred. Further, matters determined by the government in accordance with the recommendations of a commission are not arbitrable for a period of five years from the date of the recommendations and orders issued by the Government in pursuance of the recommendations of the Board of Arbitration remain in operation for three years. The recommendations of the Board of Arbitration are binding on both the sides but the Parliament may modify or reject them on grounds of national economy or social justice. In the very first and second meetings of the National Council the government rejected to refer to the compulsory arbitration the major demands of the staff side like the 'need' based minimum wage, and merger of D. A. with basic pay. On this issue the employees went on a day's token strike on 16th September 1968 much against the Declaration of Joint Intent. During 1968-88, a total number of about 200 references were made to the Board of Arbitration and it gave 175 awards. In more than 150cases the staff side either fully or partially benefited. The number of employees benefited due to the awards of the Board of Arbitration runs into millions. Most of the cases referred were pertained to pay scales and allowances. The arbitration awards clearly favoured the claims of the staff side. In a way, compulsory, arbitration in India contributed to development of harmonious staff relations in the Government of India.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

353/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 254 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 254 WORDS

Evolution of Joint Consultative Machinery It was the introduction of 'Whitleyism' in 1919 in the British Civil Service Staff relations hailed by several countries as the novel method in the area of human relations. The Whitley system which involves formal as well as informal consultations and negotiations leading to agreement or arbitration has been an example followed in a large number of countries of the British Commonwealth with certain modifications. The staff relations in the British Civil Service are maintained through Whitley councils method. The Civil Service National Whitley Council is responsible for joint consultation on conditions of service affecting civil servants in general irrespective of the department to which they belong. The Departmental Whitley Councils are responsible for staff matters within their departments. Local Whitley Committees discuss matters affecting the local working conditions and day-to-day problems. The Government of India and the organisations of employees struggled nearly for three decades to have staff relations on the pattern of Whitley Councils in the U.K. The issue was first raised in 1928 anti again in 1942. The Royal Commission on Labour in 1931 recommended the establishment of a joint standing machinery for Railways. However, the Home Department did not accept the proposals, in spite of the favourable attitude of the Labour Department. The government referred the matter to thc Central (First) Pay Commission in 1946 to enquire on "The machinery for negotiating and setting the questions relating to conditions of service which may arise out of differences between government and its employees".

EVOLUTION OF JOINT CONSULTATIVE MACHINERY I t was the introduction of 'Whitleyism' in 1919 in the British Civil Service Staff relations hailed by several countries as the novel method in the area of human relations. The Whitley system which involves formal as well as informal consultations and negotiations leading to agreement or arbitration has been an example followed in a large number of countries of the British Commonwealth with certain modifications. The staff relations in the British Civil Service are maintained through Whitley councils method. The Civil Service National Whitley Council is responsible for joint consultation on conditions of service affecting civil servants in general irrespective of the department to which they belong. The Departmental Whitley Councils are responsible for staff matters within their departments. Local Whitley Committees discuss matters affecting the local working conditions and day-to-day problems. The Government of India and the organisations of employees struggled nearly for three decades to have staff relations on the pattern of Whitley Councils in the U.K. The issue was first raised in 1928 anti again in 1942. The Royal Commission on Labour in 1931 recommended the establishment of a joint standing machinery for Railways. However, the Home Department did not accept the proposals, in spite of the favourable attitude of the Labour Department. The government referred the matter to thc Central (First) Pay Commission in 1946 t o enquire on "The machinery for negotiating and setting the questions relating to conditions of service which may arise out of differences between government and its employees".

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

354/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

its employees in matters of common concern, and with the object, further, of increasing the efficiency of the public service.

its employees in matters of common concern, and with the further object of increasing the efficiency of the public service

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

355/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	65%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

The scope of the Joint Councils includes all matters relating to conditions of service and work, welfare of employees

The scope and functions of these councils include all matters relating to the conditions of service and work, welfare of the employees,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

356/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited to matters of general principles matters of recruitment, promotion and discipline, consultation is limited only to matters of general principles

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

357/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

as often as necessary, and not less than once in four months.

as often as necessary and not less than once in three or four months.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

358/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	445 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	445 WORDS

As per the decisions of the Cabinet sub-committee the Staff Committees were renamed as Staff Councils without any change in their constitution, objects and the rules of procedure. A Coordinating Committee consisting of representatives of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Finance, Works, Housing and Supply and the concerned ministry was constituted to decide matters which remained unresolved in the Staff Councils. The Ministry administratively concerned with Staff Councils decide what matters should be brought before the Coordinating Committee. The Staff Councils during their existence (1954-59) made many recommendations. Most of them were accepted and implemented by different Ministries. But they were unimportant items like water coolers, transport facilities, grant of leave, office uniforms, canteen facilities, dispensaries and first aid boxes etc. Neither the machinery t of administration was improved nor the important grievances of the employees were redressed. The Second Pay Commission report observed "due to lack of will on the part of the Government to accept the principles of joint consultation failed as an effective instrument for prevention of the disputes." Therefore, the Second Pay Commission proposed that "the situation required the 'establishment of machinery which fully in spirit and largely in form followed the Whitley Machinery in the United Kingdom". Thus, the Staff Committees and Councils had "little in common with the Whitley Machinery" and failed to square up with the real Whitley spirit. In India, the government civil employees have not shown any remarkable preference for a joint consultative machinery. On the other, the government did not consult the organisations of the employees when it introduced the Staff Committees and Councils. It was a unilateral attempt for a bilateral purpose. The Whitley cause also could not be served in the absence of arbitration machinery for resolving the disputed matters. Further, due to thcir advisory nature the scope of the Staff Committees/Councils and their activities were much restricted and the way in which they were handled by the officers further limited their utility. There was no Central Joint Staff Council like the National Whitley Council to consider issues of common and general application to all the employees of the Ministries. As the Civil Service Unions Associations were not involved, the organised sections of employees declared no faith, rejected the Councils and considered them as "merely eye-wash". The officials at the top level were responsible for the ineffective functioning of Staff Councils for want of Whitley thinking. The staff representatives on the

As per the decisions of the Cabinet sub-committee the Staff Committees were renamed as Staff Councils without any change in their constitution, objects and the rules of procedure. A Coordinating Committee consisting of representatives of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Finance, Works, Housing and Supply and the concerned ministry was constituted to decide matters which remained unresolved in the Staff Councils. The Ministry administratively concerned with Staff Councils decide what matters should be brought before the Coordinating Committee. The Staff Councils during their existence (1954-59) made many recommendations. Most of them were accepted and implemented by different Ministries. But they were unimportant items like water coolers, transport facilities, grant of leave, office uniforms, canteen facilities, dispensaries and first aid boxes etc. Neither the machinery of administration was improved nor the important grievances of the employees were redressed. The Second Pay Commission report observed "due to lack of will on the part of the Government to accept the principles of joint consultation failed as an effective instrument for prevention of the disputes." Therefore, the Second Pay Commission proposed that "the situation required the 'establishment of machinery which fully in spirit and largely in form followed the Whitley Machinery in the United Kingdom". Thus, the Staff Committees and Councils had "little in common with the Whitley Machinery" and failed to square up with the real Whitley spirit. In India, the government civil employees have not shown any remarkable preference for a joint consultative machinery. On the other, the government did not consult the organisations of the employees when it introduced the Staff Committees and Councils. It was a unilateral attempt for a bilateral purpose. The Whitley cause also could not be served in the absence of arbitration machinery for resolving the disputed matters. and Further, due to thcir advisory nature the scope of the Staff CommitteeslC~uncils their activities were much restricted and the way in which they were handled by the officers further limited their utility. There was no Central Joint Staff Council like the National Whitley Council to consider issues of common and general application to all the employees of the Ministries. As the Civil Service UnionslAssociations were not involved, the organised sections of employees declared no faith, rejected the Councils and considered them as "merely eye-wash". The officials at the top level were responsible for the ineffective functioning of Staff Councils for want of Whitley thinking. The staff representatives on the Committees/Councils lacked the necessary leadership to represent their views effectively. In actual practice, they merely acted as forums for the staff to ventilate their grievances and put forward them to the nominees of the government in the Staff Councils.

Committees/Councils lacked the necessary leadership to represent their views effectively. In actual practice, they merely acted as forums for the staff to ventilate their grievances and put forward them to the nominees of the government in the Staff Councils.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

359/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 299 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 299 WORDS

In 1960, the Central Government employees went on strike for five days from July 11-16. One of their demands was the establishment of joint consultative machinery (J.C.M.). Immediately, the Government decided to set up the J.C.M. and proposed a scheme. Accordingly, three-tier machinery with joint 155 consultation at the Central, the Departmental and regional and local levels as supplementary to existing arrangements was ' proposed. The scheme covered all the civil employees of the Central Government including the P&T Department, Civil Aviation Department and the Ministry o Defence. The Scheme proposed an arbitration tribunal with a limited compulsory arbitration provision. The government during 1960-61 proposed to bring two bills before the Parliament to give statutory effect to the proposed J.C.M. and ban strikes by government employees. The employees' organisations protected against the proposals of the government and refused to give up right to strike and disassociate outsiders from their organisations. After discussions between the government and the employees organisations, the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On many aspects of the scheme the employees organisations expressed doubts and opposed certain proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including inpustrial employees) under one umbrella. Therefore, there were discussions on many occasions at all levels for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair trial be given to the scheme. Thus, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees was inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was considered "opening of a new chapter" and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation. 2.6:

In 1960, the Central Government employees went on strike for five days from July 11-16. One of their demands was the establishment of joint consultative machinery (J.C.M.). Immediately, the Government decided to set u p the J.C.M. and proposed a scheme. Accordingly, three-tier machinery with joint consultation at the Central, the Departmental and regionaYlocal levels as supplementary to existing arrangements was ' proposed. The scheme covered all the civil employees of the Central ~ o v e r n m e n t including the P&T Department, Civil Aviation Department and the Ministry of Defence. The Scheme proposed an arbitration tribunal with a limited compulsory arbitration provision. The government during 1960-61proposed to bring two bills before the Parliament to give statutory effect to the proposed J.C.M. and ban strikes by government employees. The employees' organisations protected against the proposals of the government and refused to give up right to strike and disassociate outsiders from their organisations. After discussions between the government and the employees organisation~ the Government of India decided in 1963 to introduce a scheme for joint consultative machinery and compulsory arbitration. On many aspects of the scheme the employees organisations expressed doubts and opposed certain proposals of the government. The government wanted to bring all the employees (including inpustrial employees) under one umbrella. Therefore, there were discussions on many occasions at all levels for three years and all the doubts were clarified and there was a general consensus that a fair'trial be given to the scheme. Thus, the Joint Consultative Machinery and Compulsory Arbitration Scheme for Central Government Employees was inaugurated on October 28,1966. The inauguration of the Scheme of J.C.M. was considered "opening of a new chapter" and hoped that the relationship of Governments with its employees would enter a new era of more fruitful cooperation.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

360/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 96 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 96 WORDS

Despite the limitations of the scope and jurisdiction of the joint consultation and arbitration, the Government and Civil Service Unions realised the utility of the scheme over a period time. If the scope of the joint consultation is widened and full opportunities are provided for the staff to participate in administration it is easy to secure the cooperation of the staff and responsibility in personnel administration. Further, the official side has to change much of its bureaucratic attitude to the problems of the employees and towards the spirit of joint consultation and negotiation. 2.7:

Despite the limitations of the scope and jurisdiction of the joint consultation and arbitration, the Government and Civil Service Unions realised the utility of the scheme over a period time. If the scope of the joint consultation is widened and full opportunities are provided for the staff to participate in administration it is easy to secure the cooperation of the staff and responsibility in personnel administration. Further, the official side has to change much of its bureaucratic attitude to the problems of the employees and towards the spirit of joint consultation and negotiation.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

361/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 60 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 60 WORDS

Bhaskara Rao V. 1978. Employer-Employee Relations: A Critical Study of 156 Government of India and its Employees, Concept Publishing House. Delhi. Henry Parris, 1973. Staff Relations in the Civil Service - Fifty Years of Whitleyism, George Allen & Unwin Ltd.: London. Saxena Pradeep, 1987. Personnel Administration and Management, Printwell Publishers: Jaipur.

Bhaskara Rao V. 1978. Employer-Employee Relations: A Critical Study of Government of lndia and its Employees, Concept Publishing House. Delhi. I i I Henry Parris, 1973. Staff Relations in the Civil Service - Fifv Years of Whitleyism, George Allen & Unwin Ltd.: London. Saxena Pradeep, 1987. Personnel Administration and Management, Printwell Publishers: Jaipur.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

362/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

explain the fundamental and other rights guaranteed to the citizens and the public servants (b)discuss the restrictions imposed by the government in exercise of the rights by Public Servants (c)highlight the service rights of the government employees. (

explain the fundamental and other rights guaranteed to the citizens and the public servants discuss the restrictions imposed by the government in exercise of the rights by Public Servants highlight the service rights of the government employees.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

363/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 116 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 116 WORDS

rights and obligations towards their workers. 157 3.2: Introduction In regard to various rights of public servants, different countries have evolved different systems of rights over a period of time depending upon the genius of their peoples their historical background, the stage of their economic development and their political and administrative structure. The public servants are first citizens and then employees. But they have a special duty to maintain the structure of the states' Law and Order. There is a special status of double status applicable to the employees as citizens and as Public Servants. Their position is closely related to the conception of democratic government which expects rights and impose obligations on the servants. In regard to various rights of public servants, different countries have evolved different systems of rights over a period of time depending upon the genius of their peoples. their historical background, the stage of their economic development and their political and administrative structure. The public servants are first citizens and then employees. But they have a special duty to maintain the structure of the states' Law and Order. There is a special status of double status applicable to the employees as citizens and as Public Servants. Their position is closely related to the conception of democratic government which expects faithful service to all the people, without the thought of their own interests. There are also arguments that public employees must be granted the role of ,the normal citizen even though they are public employees and they cannot be treated as second class citizens.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

364/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 45 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 45 WORDS

faithful service to all the people, without the thought of their own interests. There are also arguments that public employees must be granted the role of the normal citizen even though they are public employees and they cannot be treated as second class citizens.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

365/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

The constitutions of different countries guarantee certain fundamental rights to all the citizens irrespective of birth, caste, creed, colour

The constitutions of different countries guarantee certain fundamental rights to all the citizens irrespective of birth, caste, creed, colour

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

366/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

sex. The public servants are the citizens of the country, constitutions empower the states to regulate their rights and impose obligations on the public servants.

sex. The public servants are the citizens of the country, constitutions empower the states to regulate their rights and impose obligations on the public servants.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

367/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	126 WORDS	89%	MATCHING TEXT	126 WORDS

Personal Rights Some of the personal rights are: 158 a) Right to life and liberty: The private life of an individual is considered a matter of his conscience, freedom of which is guaranteed by all the states. The Constitution of India (Article 21) provides protection of life and liberty to all persons. It includes also the freedom of movement. b) Equality before law and equal protection of law (Article 14): It means that the state cannot discriminate the citizens on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex, or place of birth. However, Article 15 provides protective discrimination and reservations for women, children, backward castes, scheduled castes and scheduled tribes as "Socially and Educationally Backward Classes of Citizens" in the matters of education and employment.

PERSONAL RIGHTS Some of the personal rights are: Right to life and liberty: The private life of an individual is measured a matter of his conscience, freedom of which is guaranteed through all the states. The Constitution of India (Article 21) gives protection of life and liberty to all persons. It comprises also the freedom of movement. Equality before law and equal protection of law (Article 14): It means that the state cannot discriminate the citizens on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex, or place of birth. Though, Article 15 gives protective discrimination and reservations for women, children, backward castes, scheduled castes and scheduled tribes as “Socially and Educationally Backward Classes of Citizens” in the matters of education and employment.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

368/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 510 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 510 WORDS

Right to freedom of Religion (Articles 25-28): Under this right, all persons have the freedom of coscience and the right to profess, practise and propagate religion under certain regulations. d) Right to private property: Under this right all the persons may acquire, hold and dispose property. e) Right to practise any profession or to carry out any occupation, trade or business.\ The Constitution guarantees all these rights to the citizens, but in regard to the public servants, the state regulates their personal conduct and private relationships which tend to affect their integrity, reputation, confidence and the dignity of the public office. Therefore, the governments through Civil Servants Conduct Rules and Codes prescribed and regulated the required behaviour from the public employees. The relationship between the government and the civil servants rests on contractual basis Any breach of the code, conduct rules and the contract leads to different types of punishment, dismissal from service. However, the imposition of these restrictions is not an abrogation of their fundamental rights or an invasion of fundamental rights 2. Civil Rights With regard to civil servants, civil life, the state regulates their conduct and private relationship in so far as they tend to affect their integrity and reputation. In view of this, certain restrictions are placed on an official's right to take part in private business. In most cases, it is positively forbidden for an official to have any business dealings in the fields with which helshe comes into contact in the ordinary course of him/her duties. The temptations which might arise could place an unreasonable - strain on one's integrity, particularly if his official duties require him to control certain branches of business. Therefore, certain restrictions, limitations are imposed by the Civil Service Regulations. Except with the previous permission of the government, no civil servant can engage in trade or business or in support of the business owned or managed by any members of the family. American government restricts the personal right of civil servants in the sense that they cannot coach anybody either individually or in group in order to prepare him/her for taking the competitive examinations for entry into government service. It is improper for any government servant to be associated with any such programme either by way of tuition or in any other manner. The government servants cannot accept the membership of such societies, institutions or clubs which oblige their members to go on strike in pursuance of their objectives. But with the framework of the rules the federal employees have the right to petition to the Congress either individually or

Right to freedom of Religion (Articles 25-28): Under this right, all persons have the freedom of conscience and the right to profess, practice and propagate religion under sure regulations. Right to private property: Under this right all the persons may acquire, hold and dispose property. Right to practice any profession or to carry out any occupation, trade or business. The Constitution guarantees all these rights to the citizens, but in regard to the public servants, the state regulates their personal conduct and private relationships which tend to affect their integrity, reputation, confidence and the dignity of the public office. So, the governments through Civil Servants Conduct Rules and Codes prescribed and regulated the required behaviour from the public employees. The relationship flanked by the government and the civil servants rests on contractual basis. Any breach of the code, conduct rules and the contract leads to dissimilar kinds of punishment, dismissal from service. Though, the imposition of these restrictions is not an abrogation of their fundamental rights or an invasion of fundamental rights. CIVIL RIGHTS Right to Private Trade and With regard to civil servants, civil life, the state regulates their conduct and private relationship in so far as they tend to affect their integrity and reputation. In view of this, sure restrictions are placed on an official"s right to take part in private business. In mainly cases, it is positively forbidden for an official to have any business dealings in the fields with which he/she comes into get in touch with in the ordinary course of his/her duties. The temptations which might arise could place an unreasonable strain on one"s integrity, particularly if his official duties require him to control sure branches of business. So, sure restrictions, limitations are imposed through the Civil Service Regulations. Except with the previous permission of the government, no civil servant can engage in trade or business or in support of the business owned or supervised through any members of the family. American government restricts the personal right of civil servants in the sense that they cannot coach anybody either individually or in group in order to prepare him/her for taking the competitive examinations for entry into government service. It is improper for any government servant to be associated with any such programme either through way of tuition or in any other manner. The government servants cannot accept the membership of such societies, institutions or clubs which oblige their members to go on strike in pursuance of their objectives. But with the framework of the rules the federal employees have the right to petition to the collectively. In France the civil servants enjoy civic rights more than any other country. They may join any political party. They have the right to strike. These rights have wide and far-reaching consequences. The government servants in India, U.K. and U.S.A. do not have such rights. Right to Contract Freedom of contract is a fundamental right of the citizens. In view of the integrity and impartiality, for the civil service this right to contract is restricted.

Congress either individually or collectively. In France the civil servants enjoy civic rights more than any other country. They may join any political party. They have the right to strike. These rights have wide and far-reaching consequences. The government servants in India, U.K. and U.S.A. do not have such rights. Right to Contract Freedom of contract is a fundamental right of the citizens. In view of the integrity and impartiality, for the civil service this right to contract is restricted.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

369/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 270 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 270 WORDS

Right to Vindication of his Acts or Character In parliamentary democracy where the civil servants are expected to be in the background and where they are supposed to be neutral, the minister holds responsibility for the commissions and omissions of the civil servants. As such, in India, the civil servants are precluded from taking recourse to a law court or to the 159 press for the vindication of any of their official acts which has been subject matter of adverse criticism or attach of defamatory character. However, in France, the civil servants have the right to file suits in the courts against such administrative decisions which have an adverse impact on the collective interests of the civil service and in the event of violation of rules and norms of personnel administration. The government employees are also required to so manage their personal affairs as to avoid habitual indebtedness of insolvency as it affects their own reputation as well as the government. Subscriptions and Gifts Civil servants are not allowed to ask for or accept any contributions or associating themselves with the raising of any fund in pursuance of any object. It was declared that in the interest of maintaining the efficiency and integrity of government employees, it is essential to prevent them from soliciting or receiving funds for any purpose unconnected with his office. Public employees also cannot accept any gifts. Even their family members are also not permitted to accept any such gifts. They have to report to the government when they accept any gifts and seek permission of the government to accept them. 3.

Right to Vindication of his Acts or Character In parliamentary democracy where the civil servants are expected to be in the background and where they are supposed to be neutral, the minister holds responsibility for the commissions and omissions of the civil servants. As such, in India, the civil servants are precluded from taking recourse to a law court or to the press for the vindication of any of their official acts which has been subject matter of adverse criticism or attach of defamatory character. Though, in France, the civil servants have the right to file suits in the courts against such administrative decisions which have an adverse impact on the communal interests of the civil service and in the event of violation of rules and norms of personnel administration. The government employees are also required to so manage their personal affairs as to avoid habitual indebtedness of insolvency as it affects their own reputation as well as the government. Subscriptions and Gifts Civil servants are not allowed to ask for or accept any contributions or associating themselves with the raising of any fund in pursuance of any object. It was declared that in the interest of maintaining the efficiency and integrity of government employees, it is essential to prevent them from soliciting or getting funds for any purpose unconnected with his office. Public employees also cannot accept any gifts. Even their family members are also not permitted to accept any such gifts. They have to report to the government when they accept any gifts and seek permission of the government to accept them.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

370/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 47 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 47 WORDS

Political Rights The right of political activities of the public servants in a democratic government is determined by the constitutional theory of government. Political neutrality of civil servants has been regarded as one of the cardinal conditions for the success of a democratic government While the Political Activity The right of political activities of the public servants in a democratic government is determined through the constitutional theory of government. Political neutrality of civil servants has been regarded as one of the cardinal circumstances for the success of a democratic government. The concept of political neutrality has been kept intact, particularly of the higher civil service, a distinction has been drawn between national and local political activities. The civil servants has been classified into (a) the politically free group (b) the concept of political neutrality has been kept intact, particularly of the higher civil service, a distinction has been drawn between national and local political activities. The civil servants has been classified into (a) the politically free group (b) the 1 .

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

371/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

372/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 121 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 121 WORDS

political activity, subject to permission. In regard to local political activities, barring those civil servants who are required to obtain permission for participation, all others allowed to take part in those activities. A civil servant in the politically free group who is contesting for parliament is obliged to submit his resignation before nomination. He is entitled to be reinstated in the post whether he is elected to parliament or not. All staff in the intermediate and restricted groups who have not been given permission to engage in any of the political activities are expected at all times to maintain a reserve in political matters and not to put themselves forward prominently on one side or the other. 4.

political activity, subject to permission. In regard to local political activities, barring those civil servants who are required to obtain permission for participation, all others allowed to take part in those activities. A civil servant in the politically free group who is contesting for parliament is obliged to submit his resignation before nomination. He is entitled to be reinstated in the post whether he is elected to parliament or not. All staff in the intermediate and restricted groups who have not been given permission to engage in any of the political activities are expected at all times to maintain a reserve in political matters and not to put themselves forward prominently on one side or the other.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

373/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	582 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	582 WORDS

Trade Union Rights Right to Association The public servants in Australia and France enjoy the right to association with trade unions. In Canada, India, Germany and England certain restrictions are imposed upon public servants' right to association. In Germany its Civil Servants may join or form only those associations whose objectives are in keeping the objectives of existing constitutional order only. In Canada and England the public servants are not allowed to associate with outside unions. In India the right to association has been guaranteed to every citizen. Public Servants, therefore, are free to form associations or join associations already in existence, but the government would consult or negotiate with only those associations which have been recognised by it. In United States the public employees are legally free to form associations and unions and to associate themselves with outside associations or organisations. Right to Strike Whether the civil servant's right to strike is granted or not, this right is exercised widely in India, France, Canada, Australia, America and in England. In England the public servants are not denied the right to strike under the law. In France they have the right to strike. In Germany, however, public servants right to strike does not exist under the law. The penalties for violating the law include loss of one's job. In India all non-industrial public servants are denied the right to strike the law. The public employees in America do not have right to strike, under the provisions of the Act of 1947 strikes by the Government Servants 160 had been declared illegal. In all the countries, wherever the employees go on illegal strikes, penalties or punishments are awarded as per the disciplinary or Conduct Rules. 5. Service Rights Civil Service has a special relationship with its government when compared to the relationship between employer and employee in private employment. The civil service enjoys good prospects of public employment like the security of tenure, career, service facilities, superannuate benefits. On the other it maintains relations with the public in whom the state sovereignty lies. As such the civil service occupies a key position in the government. Therefore, the state provides certain service rights to the employees to enable them to discharge their rightful job in the right manner. Appointment Today, the public employer in democratic countries guarantees equal protection of the laws to all citizens seeming public employment. However, under the constitutional provisions or executive orders certain 'reservations' are made to the minorities and backward communities and socially weak. The judiciary has viewed such

TRADE UNION RIGHTS Right to Association The public servants in Australia and France enjoy the right to association with trade unions. In Canada, India, Germany and England sure restrictions are imposed upon public servants" right to association. In Germany its Civil Servants may join or form only those associations whose objectives are in keeping the objectives of existing constitutional order only. In Canada and England the public servants are not allowed to associate with outside unions. In India the right to association has been guaranteed to every citizen. Public Servants, are free to form associations or join associations already in subsistence, but the government would consult or negotiate with only those associations which have been recognized through it. In United States the public employees are legally free to form associations and unions and to associate themselves with outside associations or organisations. Right to Strike Whether the civil servant"s right to strike is granted or not, this right is exercised widely in India, France, Canada, Australia, America and in England. In England the public servants are not denied the right to strike under the law. In France they have the right to strike. In Germany, though, public servants right to strike does not exist under the law. The penalties for violating the law contain loss of one"s job. In India all non-industrial public servants are denied the right to strike the law. The public employees in America do not have right to strike, under the provisions of the Act of 1947 strikes through the Government Servants had been declared illegal. In all the countries, wherever the employees go on illegal strikes, penalties or punishments are awarded as per the disciplinary or Conduct Rules. SERVICE RIGHTS Civil Service has a special relationship with its government when compared to the relationship flanked by employer and employee in private employment. The civil service enjoys good prospects of public employment like the security of tenure, career, service facilities, super annuity benefits. On the other it maintains relations with the public in whom the state sovereignty lies. As such the civil service occupies a key position in the government. So, the state gives sure service rights to the employees to enable them to discharge their rightful job in the right manner. Appointment Today, the public employer in democratic countries guarantees equal protection of the laws to all citizens seeking public employment. Though, under the constitutional provisions or executive orders sure „reservations" are made to the minorities and backward communities and socially weak. The judiciary has viewed representative public services as desirable. However, the principle of equality of opportunity cannot be denied by the process of selection. But, discriminatory law in respect of residential\ qualifications, age, language, etc., may be enacted by the state. Thus, in India, reservations are provided in public employment rights. The state is empowered to require every able-bodied person within its jurisdiction to work for a reasonable period for "public purposes" such as Defence services, Home guards, social services etc. Public employees are expected to serve anywhere under any conditions prescribed by the government. Lie Tenure Public employment is more attractive dueto its life tenure and prestige attached to it. However, the sovereign employer enjoys the pleasure to terminate, dismiss the services of any employee, without assigning any reasons for such kind of action. The principle of 'during the pleasure of the government' has now been converted in practice into 'during the good behaviour'.

such representative public services as desirable. Though, the principle of equality of opportunity cannot be denied through the procedure of selection. But, discriminatory law in respect of residential qualifications, age, language, etc., may be enacted through the state. Therefore, in India, reservations are provided in public employment of SCs and STs. The state is empowered to require every able-bodied person within its jurisdiction to work for a reasonable period for “public purposes” such as Defence services, Home guards, social services etc. Public employees are expected to serve anywhere under any circumstances prescribed through the government. Life Tenure Public employment is more attractive due to its life tenure and prestige attached to it. Though, the sovereign employer enjoys the pleasure to terminate, dismiss the services of any employee, without assigning any reasons for such type of action. The principle of „throughout the pleasure of the government" has now been converted in practice into „throughout the good behaviour".

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

374/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 138 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 138 WORDS

Rules. Procedural safeguards in the event of removal or dismissal The constitution and the rules framed under the provisions of the constitution provides certain important procedural safeguards to prevent any injustice. Any punishment can be imported on the civil servant only according to prescribed procedure, which is laid down in India under Classification, Control and Appeal Rules (CCA Rules). As per the Rules no civil servant can be removed or dismissed by an authority subordinate to the one who appointed him. No one can be removed or dismissed until the civil servant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken. Compulsory retirement before the age of superannuation is not considered removal or dismissal as there is no substantial loss of accrued service benefits like pension etc. 3.4:

rules. Procedural safeguards in the event of removal or dismissal The constitution and the rules framed under the provisions of the constitution provides certain important procedural safeguards to prevent any injustice. Any punishment can be imported on the civil servant only according to prescribed procedure, which is laid down in India under Classification, Control and Appeal Rules (CCA Rules). As per the Rules no civil servant can be removed or dismissed by an authority subordinate to the one who appointed him. No one can be removed or dismissed until the civil servant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken. Compulsory retirement before the age of superannuation is not considered removal or dismissal as there is no substantial loss of accrued service benefits like pension etc. ."& /

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

375/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 131 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 131 WORDS

Although the service tenure of all government employees is at the pleasure of the government, normally, they hold office during the good behaviour and their terms of service are regulated by Executive Rules and Administrative orders. Such of the Rules and Orders are issued subject to the provisions of the constitution. Sometimes the government is required to consult the public service commission for their opinion. Therefore, the governments cannot make rules and change rules without constitutional authority, 161 The government is further required to place these rules and regulations on the Table of the Legislature for their approval. Thus, the civil servants enjoy privileges and rights guaranteed by the constitution. The civil servants are not at the mercy of the executive government without changing the existing rules.

Although the service tenure of all government employees is at the pleasure of the government, normally, they hold office during the good behaviour and their terms of service are regulated by Executive Rules and Administrative orders. Such of the Rules and Orders are issued subject to the provisions of the constitution. Sometimes the government is required to consult the public service commission for their opinion. Therefore, the governments cannot make rules and change rules without constitutional authority, The government is further required to place the'se rules and regulations.on the Table of the Legislature for their approval. Thus, the civil servants enjoy privileges and rights guaranteed by the constitution. The civil servants are not at the mercy of the executive government without changing the existing rules.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

servants have to seek prior permission of the competent authorities for publishing a book or article or for speaking to general audiences. However, Australia takes a somewhat more lenient attitude towards the violation of these norms by its civil servants than Canada, India or England. in the United States of America the Hatch Act of 1939 allowed its federal employees to express their views on political subjects, rather than only to express them privately. However, at the same time, it proclaimed that the Act was intended to prohibit the same activities that the Civil Service Commission considered legitimate under 1907 Regulations, which allowed only private expression. The second Hatch Act of 1940 extended these regulations to positions in state employment and allowed public employees to express their opinion on 'candidates' as well as on political subjects. A French official outside his office can criticise the government and express views contrary to the general policy of government. But he cannot express personal criticism directed towards the work of the particular service to which he belongs. Similarly in Germany, outside the service a public servant can express his personal opinions on political questions also. He cannot adopt a standpoint which is in opposition to the government. But he must have a certain regard for his position. The law of 1953 obliges him to exercise that moderation and discretion with regard to political activities which ificrimbent upon him in his position as servant of the community. In India, the Civil Servants cannot express against any policy or action of the government. They cannot also express on any matter pertaining to politics of parties and matters of public controversy. 162 Criticism of Government Policy According to the Civil Service (Conduct) Rules in India, government servants are not permitted to communicate anything to the press, make any public utterance, make any statement of fact or opinion which has the effect of an adverse criticism of any policy of the government or which leads to embarrassing relations between the internalgovernmental agencies and the governments of foreign states. The employees are also forbidden from giving any evidence without prior permission to any inquiry which is not duly authorised. The purpose of this restriction is to maintain the political neutrality of the civil services and to keep them away from public controversies and to enable the civil servants to serve the government of the day with all the loyalty. In Britain, the civil servants have freedom to express their opinions on non-political matters of public importance provided they do not direct their activities towards any party politics. In

servants have to seek prior permission of the competent authorities for publishing a book or article or for speaking to general audiences. However, Australia takes a somewhat morelenient attitude towards the violation of these norms by its civil servants than Canada, India or England. in the United States of America the Hatch Act of 1939allowed its federal employees to express their views on political subjects, rather than only to express them privately. However, at the same time, it proclaimed that the Act was intended to prohibit the same activities that the Civil Service Commission considered legitimate under 1907 Regulations, which allowed only private expression. The second Hatch Act of 1940 extended these regulations to positions in state employment and allowed public employees to express their opinion on 'candidates' as well as on political subjects. A French official outside his office can criticise the government and express views contrary to the general policy of government. But he cannot express personal criticism directed towards the work of the particular service to which he belongs. Similarly in Germany, outside the service a public servant can express his personal opinions on political questions also. He cannot adopt a standpoint which is in opposition to the government. But he must have a certain regard for his position. The law of 1953obliges him to exercise that moderation and discretion with regard to political activities which ificrimbent upon him in his position as servant of the community. In India, the Civil Servants cannot express against any policy or action of the government. They cannot also express on any matter pertaining to politics of parties and matters of public controversy. Criticism of Government Policy According to the Civil Service (Conduct) Rules in India, government servants are not permitted to communicate anything to the press, make any public utterance, make any statement of fact or opinion which has the effect of an adverse criticism of any policy of the government or which leads to embarrassing relations between the internalgovernmental agencies and the governments of foreign states. The employees are also forbidden from giving any evidence without prior permission to any inquiry which is not duly authorised. The purpose of this restriction is to maintain the political neutrality of the civil services and to keep them away from public controversies and to enable the civil servants to serve the government of the day with all the loyalty. In Britain, the civil servants have freedom to express their opinions on non-political matters of public importance provided they do not direct their activities towards any party politics. In

U.S.A. the government may restrict the exercise by itsemployees of their right to criticise government policy. The employees may be disciplined: a) if their criticism is false and is made with actual malice, b) if criticism involves disclosure of\ information which is confidential, c) if the criticism is made outside the channels prescribed by, or is in violation of a statute, Executive order or regulation, and d) if the criticism adversely affects job performances, discipline, work relationships or the goals of the organisation. Speech and Expression on Political Matters In India the civil servants are prohibited from participating in any political activity and movement. They cannot make any public expression of their views other than those of purely literary, scientific or artistic nature. They are restricted from participating in any way in the editing, managing any publication. Thus, they are completely deprived of the freedom of press. In Britain, the civil servants those who involve in the formulation and execution of public policy (executive group) have no freedom of expression on political matters. However, the Minor and Manipulative Groups, whose duties are of only routine character have freedom to political expression as well as activity. 3.6:

U.S.A. the government may restrict the exercise by itsemployees of their right to criticise government policy. The employees may be disciplined: a) if their criticism is false and is made with actual malice, b) if criticism involves disclosure of information which is confidential, c) if the criticism is made outside the channels prescribed by, or is in violation of a statute, Executive order or regulation, and d) if the criticism adversely affects job performances, discipline, work relationships or the goals of the organisation. Speech and Expression on Political Matters In India the civil servants are prohibited from participating in any political activity and movement. They cannot make any public expression of their views other than those of purely literary, scientific or artistic nature. They are restricted from participating in any way in the editing, managing any publication. Thus, they are completely deprived of the freedom of press. In Britain, the civil servants those who involve in the formulation and execution of public policy (executive group) have no freedom of expression on political matters. However, the Minor and Manipulative Groups, whose duties are of only routine character have freedom to political expression as well as activity.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

377/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 103 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 103 WORDS

all the rights guaranteed by the constitutions of different countries, do not guarantee such rights to their public employees. The grant of different rights and their denial is governed by the theory of the constitutional government and the place and role assigned to the public servants. The government servants for this purpose are classified into Industrial, Non- industrial, Administrative and Clerical, Ministerial and accordingly were given the rights depending upon their extent and nature of participation in the arrangement of public offices. All the governments in theory believe in the concept of sovereign employer in which the public employers are 'Government Servants', required

all the rights guaranteed by the constitutions of different countries, do not guarantee such rights to their public employees. The grant of different rights and their denial is governed by the theory of the constitutional government and the place and role assigned to the public servants. The government servants for this purpose are classified into Industrial, Non-industrial, Administrative and Clerical, Ministerial and accordingly were given the rights depending upon their extent and nature of participation in the arrangement of public offices. All the governments in theory believe in the concept of sovereign employer in which the public employers are 'Government Servants', required

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

378/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

conduct themselves under a framework of Rules, Regulations. However, they are not second class citizens but enjoy certain privileges and facilities more than the ordinary citizen. 2.7:

conduct themselves under a framework of Rules, Regulations. However, they are not second class citizens but enjoy certain privileges and facilities more than the ordinary citizen. 24.11

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

379/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

Singh Biswanath. 1964. 'Political Rights of Civil Servants in India' Indian Journal of Public Administration, Vol. X I , No. 2. Parris Henry, 1973.

Singh Biswanath. 1964. 'Political Rights of Civil Servants in India' Indian Journal of Public Administration, Vol. X I , No. 2. Parris Henry, 1973.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

380/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 68 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 68 WORDS

Allen & Unwin: London. Jay M. Shafrit, Walter L.. Balk, Albert C. Hyde, and David H. Rosenbloom. 1971. Personnel Management in Government : Politics and Process, Marcel Dekker. New York. Tyagi A.R. 1961. Rights and Obligations of Civil Servants in India. Atma Ram & Sons: Delhi.

Allen & Unwin: London. Jay M. Shafrit, Walter L.. Balk, Albert C. Hyde, and David H . Rosenbloom. 197%. Personnel Management in Government : Politics and Proc,rss, Marcel Dekker. New York. Tyagi A.R. 1961. Rights and Obligations of Civil Servunts in India. Atma Ram & Sons: Delhi. 24.13

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

381/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 91 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 91 WORDS

understand the importance of human factor in an organisation, which will have a significant impact upon over all organisational out-put (b)outline the findings of the psychologists and behaviouralists from the viewpoint of human relations (c)realise that motivation and morale are caused by management policies and practices (d)explain the meaning of motivation and morale along with the factors effecting them know about the different types of motivation and morale causing the organisational efficiency (e)analyse some important measures in building morale, through workable motivational methods. 4.2: Introduction

understand the importance of human factor in an organisation, which will have a significant impact upon over all organisational out-put outline the findings of the psychologists and behaviouralists from the viewpoint of human relations realise that motivation and morale are caused by management policies and practices explain the meaning of motivation and morale along with the factors effecting them know about the different types of motivation and morale causing the organisational efficiency and analyse some important measures in build~ng morale, through workable motivational methods. 25.1 INTRODUCTION

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

382/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 199 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 199 WORDS

organisation. They necessarily sacrifice their own independence on various types of group and associational membership. Their voluntary behaviour needs to be changed into required behaviour in the general interest of the organisation. Under the influence of the required behaviour, the individual assumes the responsibilities and expresses loyalties and commitments towards the organisation as a whole. There are different methods, to turn the voluntary behaviour into a required behaviour. Perhaps no area of personnel administration has been more debated than human motivation due to the development of the scientific knowledge about human behaviour. The movement of behavioural revolution contributed much for better understanding of human behaviour. During early era of personnel administration as being different from the efficiency experts, they approached the problem of increasing efficiency as a human relation problem rather than as a mechanical one. Hence the felines and behaviour of employees are considered in personnel system. Normally, the driving force, so pervasive in history and so common among all races and seems to be composed both of an inner need to achieve and a response to external challenges. It is felt that what an individual believes about himself has a profound effect on how he behaves.

organisation. They necessarily sacrifice their own independence on various types of group and associational membership. Their voluntary behaviour needs to be changed into required behaviour in the general interest of the organisation. Under the influence of the required behaviour, the individual assumes the responsibilities and expresses loyalties and commitments towards the organisation as a whole. There are different methods, to turn the voluntary behaviour into a required behaviour. Perhaps no area of personnel administration has been more debated than human motivation due to the development of the scientific knowledge about human behaviour. The movement of behavioural a p p ~ u a chas contributed much for better understanding i~ of human behaviour. During early era of personnel administration as being different from the efficiency experts, they approached the problem of increasing efficiency as a - human ~ r o b l e m rather than as a mechanical one. Hence the feelines and behaviour of ! l i employees are considered in personnel system. Normally, the driving force, so pervasive in history and so common among all races and seems to be composed both of an inner need to achieve and a response to external challenges. It is felt that what an individual believes about himself has a profound effect on how he behaves.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

383/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 131 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 131 WORDS

understand any individual we need to know what he thinks, what values he holds, what his goals are, as well as how his basic biological and social needs are met and what abilities he has. Therefore, drive and motivation is of utmost importance as it constitutes the base for the administrative function of planning and organising. The personnel department of an organisation must devote considerable time and efforts in for and achieving high level of morale. Because it is the only solution for the problems arising like employees feeling alienated and organisational goals, underutilisation of their potential skills and capabilities to achieve optimisation and feeling of frustration while discharging their duties. Hence motivation should be the continuous process for effective functioning of the organisation 165 4.3:

understand any individua! we need to know what he thinks, what values he holds, what his goals are, as well as how his basic biological and social needs are met and what abilities he has. Therefore, drive and motivation is of utmost importance as it constitutes the base for the administrative function of planning and organising. The personnel department of an organisation must devote considerable time and efforts in for and achieving high level of morale. Because it is the only solution for the problems arising like employees feeling alienated and organisational goals, underutilisation of their potential skills and capabilities to achieve optimisation and feeling of frustration while discharging their duties. Hence motivation should be the continuous process for effective functioning of the organisation.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

384/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	262 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	262 WORDS

of Motivation The term motivation is derived from the Latin word 'emovere' which means 'to move'. Motivation is the complex of psychological forces. Motivation is something that moves person into action and inspires him to continue in the course of action already initiated. There are different definitions of motivation. Stanlay Vanace opines that 'motivation implies any motion or desire which so conditioned one's will that the individual is propelled into action'. Dale and Beach felt motivation as 'a willingness to expend energy to achieve a goal or reward'. Shartte understood motivation as 'a reported urge or tension to move in a given direction or to achieve certain goals'. According to the above definitions motivation is considered as the art of stimulating people to take desired course of action. It involves arousing needs and desires by impelling individuals towards purposive behaviour. A motive is a need or desire which directs the behaviour. It reflects an urge to move in an expected manner to achieve a specified goal. It results when the needs of an employee are satisfied through proper incentives and rewards. Human behaviour is the result of their desires, needs and wants and motivation involves creation of a will to work for accomplishment of institutional goals. Without needs there can be no motivation and one of the biggest problems in motivating the employees is that one does not have the same needs. Moreover motivation is influenced by a number of factors both inside and outside the organisation. Motivation requires the identification of personal goals with institutional goals.

OF MOTIVATION The term motivation is derived from the Latin word „emovere" which means „to move". Motivation is the complex of psychological forces. Motivation is something that moves a person into action and inspires him to continue in the course of action already initiated. There are dissimilar definitions of motivation. Stanley Vanace opines that „motivation implies any motion or desire which so conditioned one"s will that the individual is propelled into action". Dale and Beach felt motivation as „a willingness to expend energy to achieve a goal or reward". Shartte understood motivation as „a reported urge or tension to move in a given direction or to achieve sure goals". According to the above definitions motivation is measured as the art of stimulating people to take desired course of action. It involves arousing needs and desires through impelling individuals towards purposive behaviour. A motive is a need or desire which directs the behaviour. It reflects an urge to move in an expected manner to achieve a specified goal. It results when the needs of an employee are satisfied through proper incentives and rewards. Human behaviour is the result of their desires, needs and wants and motivation involves creation of a will to work for accomplishment of institutional goals. Without needs there can be no motivation and one of the major troubles in motivating the employees is that one does not have the same needs. Moreover motivation is influenced through a number of factors both inside and outside the organization. Motivation requires the identification of personal goals with institutional goals.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

385/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	191 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	191 WORDS

Skinner motivation objectively exists to make an individual being learn what may regarded as positive behaviour i.e. desirable behaviour. Abraham Maslow observes that the objective of motivation is always to create a need for an individual. It is just like the process of lower needs being satisfied and the higher needs gradually emerging (Hierarchy or Needs). Frederick Herzberg felt that the important objective of motivation is to provide opportunities to become a better expert on one's job, to handle more demanding assignments, to control one's own work rather than be supervised. Mclelland opined that the objective of motivation is to create a strong desire in an individual, where he derives a special kind of joy in successfully attaining an objective in accomplishing a task. in facing up to a challenge rather than monetary or other rewards. Victor Wroom thinks that motivation should work as a means of communication for increasing positive values in the employees. Obviously the objectives of motivation are to increase efficiency by good performance. Motives are abundant and divergent. There is no single strategy that will motivate the employees forever and everywhere. The motives for individuals

Skinner motivation objectively exists to make an individual being learn what may regarded as positive behaviour i.e. desirable behaviour. b) Abraham Maslow observes that the objective of motivation is always to create a need for an individual. It is just like the process of lower needs being satisfied and the higher needs gradually emerging (Hierarchy or Needs). c) Frederick Herzberg felt that the important objective of motivation is to provide opportunities to become a better expert on one's job, to handle more demanding assignments, to control one's own work rather than be supervised. d) Mclelland opined that the objective of motivation is to create a strong desire in an individual, where he derives a special kind of joy in successfully attaining an objective in accomplishing a task. in facing up to a challenge rather than monetary or other rewards. e) Victor Wroom thinks that motivation should work as a means of communication for increasing positive values in the employees. Obviously the objectives of motivation are to increase efficiency by good performance. Motives are abundant and divergent. There is no single strategy that will motivate the employees forever and every where. The motives for individuals

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

386/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 327 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 327 WORDS

are numerous There are basically two types of motivation: a) Negative motivation, and b) Positive motivation. Negative Motivation The traditional form of motivation emphasises more on authority. This approach consists of forcing people to work by threatening to fire them if they do not. It believes that man is inherently lazy, pleasure seeking,\ despises work. To prevent him from doing so, there must be close supervision. This approach further assumes that employees' performance would be increased by fear, which causes the people to act in a certain way. Because they are afraid of the consequences like, lay-off, demotions, and dismissals. This approach paid off fairly well in the early days of the industrial revolution when workers and their families were so close to starvation. Imposition of punishment frequently results in frustration among those punished, leading to the development of maladaptive behaviour. The negative motivation also creates a hostile state of mind and unfavourable attitude to the job. The approach of negative motivation had proved to be ineffective as the employees were responding to them perversely. In recent years, however, people have begun to expect more from their jobs than sheer punishment. 166 Positive Motivation The behavioural approach is much sophisticated than traditional approach which recognises the importance of positive aspects of motivation. Positive motivation involves the possibility of increased motive satisfaction. Positive motivation is a process of attempting to influence others to do their best, and thereby adopting good human relations. It seeks to create an environment which will make the individual talent flourish and encourages informal communications positively. Positive motivation is generally based on rewards. The positive motivation may be extrinsic or intrinsic. The extrinsic motivators can be enjoyed after completion of work. The intrinsic factors are those which occur at the time of performance of work. Since positive motivation appears to be more workable, now let us discuss the role of some positive motivators, which promote efficiency. 4.4:

are numerous. I 25.4 TYPES OF MOTIVATION There are basically two types of motivation: a) Negative motivation, and b) Positive motivation. Negative Motivation I The traditional form of motivation emphasises more on authority. This approach consists of forcing people to work by threatening to fire them if they do not. It believes that man is inherently lazy, pleasure seeking, despises work. To prevent him from doing so, there must be close supervision. This approach further assumes that employees' performance would be increased by fear, which causes the people to act in a certain way. Because they are afraid of the consequences like, lay-off, demotions, and dismissals. This approach paid off fairly well in the early days of the industrial revolution when workers and their families were so close to starvation. Imposition of punishment frequently results in frustration among those punished, leading to the development of maladaptive behaviour. The negative motivation also creates a hostile state of mind and unfavourable attitude to the job. The approach of negative motivation had proved to be ineffective as the employees were responding to them perversely. In recent years, however, people have begun to expect more from their jobs than sheer punishment. Positive Motivation ,The behavioural approach is much sophisticated than traditional approach which /Irecognises the importance of positive aspects of motivation. Positive motivation involves the possibility of increased motive satisfaction. Positive motivation is a process of attempting to influence others to do their best, and thereby adopting good human relations. It seeks to create an environment which will make the individual talent flourish and encourages informal communications positively. Positive motivation is generally based on rewards. The positive motivation may be extrinsic or intrinsic. The extrinsic motivators can be enjoyed after completion of work. The intrinsic factors are those which occur at the time of performance of work. Since positive motivation appears to be more workable, now let us discuss the role of some positive motivators, which promote efficiency. 25.5

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

387/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 74 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 74 WORDS

organisation's focus is always on performance, based on wst-benefit approach, it was felt imperative to consider the issue of morale in a wider perspective. From the institutional pin1 of view, the problem of employee's morale is that of stimulating a feeiing of togetherness, a sense of identification with the job. It is more conducive to the achievement of institutional goals. It Is important because performance and efficiency of operation depends upon employee's morale.

organisation's focus is always on performance, based on wst-benefit approach, it was felt imperative to consider the issue of morale in a wider perspective. From the institutional p i n 1 of view, the problem of employee's morale is that of stimulating a feeiing of togetherness, a sense of identification with the job. I t is more conducive to the achievement of institutional goals. It Is important because performance and efficiency of operation depends upon employee's morale.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

388/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 146 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 146 WORDS

attain these high standards of morale it is essential to enlist the feelings of employees and their abilities in the work. 'Morale' is an attitude of satisfaction with desire to continue in and willingness to strive for the goals of a particular organisation. There are two important elements. Firstly, that the individual shares the purpose which gives him enthusiasm, energy and self-discipline. Secondly, the responsibility of the authorities to infuse the feeling of togetherness, a sense of identification and his consideration for other members of the institution. Further, morale is viewed as 'the capacity of a group to pull together persistently and ' consistently in pursuit of common purpose'. This capacity is subjective and differs from person to person depending upon the people's interest in a particular work. This capacity is inherent in every individual and is seen in their attitudes towards particular work.

attain these high standards of morale it is essential to enlist the feelings of employees and their abilities in the work. 'Morale' is an attitude of satisfaction with desire to continue in and willingess to strive for the goals of a particular organisation. There are two important elements. Firstly, that the individual shares the purpose which gives him -. enthusiasm, energy and self-discipline. Secondly, the responsibility of the authorities to infuse the feeling of togetherness, a sense of identification and his consideration for other members of the institution. Further, morale is viewed as 'the capacity of a group to pull together persistently and consistently in pursuit of common purpose'. This capacity is subjective and differs from person to person depending upon the people's interest in a particular work. This capacity is inherent in every individual and is seen in their attitudes towards particular work. ' -- --

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

389/416 SUBMITTED TEXT	269 WORDS	98% MATCHING TEXT	269 WORDS

There appear to be two groups of morale i.e., a) Individual and b) Group morale Individual Morale The components of morale are still rather elusive, despite growing agreement upon several generalisations. One of these generalisations is that the group climate must provide opportunity for individual self-expression or self-accommodation by the members of the group. Another is that the occupational context must furnish outlets for the individuals pride in his own workmanship. Still another and more important is that members of the group must find it easy to accept the purposes and values of the group as their own so that they have a sense of belonging to the group or identity with it. All these may be described as individualistic bases of morale. Group Morale Hawthorne studies pointed out, pride in group is an important component of morale. Employees like to belong to be part of and be accepted by the group even where and employee dislikes the actual work itself. He may have high morale, stemming from his pleasure of group with his group work. Where there is a well integrated group, there would be high group morale, as well as individual morale. Since good supervision correlated.with good group morale, special attention should be paid to the training programme of supervisory staff. Whether it is group or individual morale, it must be evaluated from time to time in the interest of the organisation. There are four factors which effect the morale of the employees in an organisation. They are as follows: i) The organisation itself(ii) Nature of work of employee(iii) Supervisory techniques(iv) Fellow employees

There appear to be two groups of morale i.e., a) Individual and b) Group morale Individual Morale The components of morale are still rather elusive, despite growing agreement upon several generalisations. One of these generalisations is that the group climate must provide opportunity for individual self-expression or self-accommodation by the members of the group. Another is that the occupational context must furnish outlets for the individuals pride in his own workmanship. Still another and more important is that members of the group must find it easy to accept the purposes and values of the group as their own so that they have a sense of belonging to the group or identity with it. All these may be described as individualistic bases of morale. Group Morale Hawthorne studies pointed out, pride in group is an important component of morale. Employees like to belong to be part of and be accepted by the group even where and employee dislikes the actual work itself. H e may have high morale, stemming from his pleasure of group with his group work. Where there is a well integrated group, there would be high group morale, as well as individual morale. Since good supervision correlated.with good group morale, special attention should be paid to the training programme of supervisory staff. Whether it is group or individual morale, it must be evaluated from time to time in the interest of the organisation. 25.8 FACTORS EFFECTING MORALE There are four factors which effect the morale of the employees in an organisation. They are as follows: i) The organisation itself ii) Nature of work of employee iii) Supervisory techniques iv) Fellow employees

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

390/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 442 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 442 WORDS

Whether of an individual or a group, the level of morale must be observed and expressed largely in terms of complex reactions. Most employers who are concerned with employee morale 167 recognise the necessity for careful analysis of all expressions of employee reactions. There are several methods of survey of morale. Some of the methods are as under: Attitude Survey These surveys depend upon questionnaires, which are administered orally or in writing from any employees. By answering these questionnaires, employees indicate their attitude towards a wide range of conditions related to their work. Analysis of their replies provides a guide to general levels of morale as well as more specific indications of their likes and dislikes in the prevailing employment situation. Morale Interviews By frequent and periodic interviews with employees their morale can be assessed. In these visits, the interviewer encourages the employeeto speak freely and frankly in respect of his job, his supervisors, his fellow employees, and any other conditions affecting his employment without any fear or hazard to his status in the organisation. Spies and Informers In earlier times the employers are used to hire spies and placed them in various departments for the specific purpose of finding out what employees thought of their jobs and of working conditions in the organisation. After formation of employees unions and associations this practice was almost given up and it became outdated. Morale survey methods are varied from one organisation to another. However, it all depends upon the nature of the work of employee, organisation, authorities' outlook, and size of the organisation etc. Indices of Morale, as it is an attendant condition of an activity rather than an activity itself, can be measured only indirectly. The following are some of the indices of employee's morale. a) Absenteeism: Where there is high morale, employees make efforts to be on time and avoid absence. A high rate of absenteeism indicates poor morale. b) Turnover: Sometimes greater turnover of labour may be included in the indices of poor morale. It may not be true in all cases. Young employees in unskilled jobs have higher turnover rate than older employees in higher positions. c) Grievances: Some grievances may arise out of poor morale. d) Output Level: High level of output may indicate high level of morale but the output may be increased even by fear. The employees with higher level of morale may produce low output due to substandard tools or deliberate plan to restrict output. These may not be the proper measuring rods of morale. But the level of output will also exhibit the level of morale. 4.5: Measures

Whether of an individual or a group, the level of morale must be observed and expressed largely in terms of complex reactions. Most employers who are concerned with employee morale recognise the necessity for careful analysis of all expressions of employee reactions. There are several methods of survey of morale. Some of the methods are as under: Attitude Survey These surveys depend upon questionnaires, which are administered orally or in writing their from any employees. By answering these questionnaires, employees ~ ndicate attitude towards a wide range of conditions related to their work. Analysis of their replies provides a guide to general levels of morale as well as more specific indications of their likes and dislikes in the prevailing employment situation. Morale Interviews By frequent and periodic interviews with employees their morale can be assessed. In these visits, the interviewer encourages the employeeto speak freely and frankly in respect of his job, his supervisors, his fellow employees, and any other conditions affecting his employment without any fear or hazard to his status in the organisation. Spies and Informers In earlier times the employers are used to hire spies and placed them in various departments for the specific purpose of finding out what employees thought of their jobs and of working conditions in the organlsation. After formation of employees unions and associations this practrce was almost given up and it became outdated. Morale survey methods are varied from one organisation to another. However, it all depends upon the nature of the work of employee, organisation, authorities' outlook, and size of the organisation etc. Indices of Morale Morale, as it is an attendant condition of an activity rather than an activity itself, can be measured only indirectly. The following are some of the indices of employee's morale. a) Absenteeism: Where there is high morale, employees make efforts to be on time and avoid absence. A high rate of absenteeism indicates poor morale. ~mpl~ytr-~mplop Relations b) Turnover: Sometimes greater turnover of labour may be included in the indices of poor morale. It may not be true in all cases. Young employees in unskilled jobs have higher turnover rate than older employees in higher positions. c) Grievances: Some grievances may arise out of poor morale. d) Output Level: High level of output may indicate high level of morale but the output may be increased even by fear. The employees with higher level of morale may produce low output due to substandard tools or deliberate plan to restrict output. These may not be the proper measuring rods of morale. But the level of

to Improve	output will also exhibit the level of morale. 25.10 MEASURES TO IMPROVE

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

391/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 68 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 68 WORDS

Congenial work environment. Motivation is some form of exchange between the individual and his work environment. The congenial work environment gives to the individual sets of preference or values which constitute the goals towards which the instinctual drives are expressed. Further, the work environment is the source of norms of behaviour which draws the lines between good and bad, right and wrong, legitimate and illegitimate.	Congenial Work Environment Motivation is some form of exchange between the individpal and his work environment. The congenial work environment gives to the individual sets of preference or values which constitute the goals towards which the instinctual drives are expressed. Further, the work environment is the source of norms of behaviour which draws the lines between good and bad, right and wrong, legitimate and illegitimate.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

392/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 149 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 149 WORDS

Morale is not static. It is subject to daily, or even to monetary fluctuations. It is also subject to long-term secular trends. It is useful to think of long-term morale trends as responses to pressures and supports. Usually policy on morale seeks to develop and maintain high levels of morale among employees through appropriate means. The following measures are suggested for morale building: 168 Job Satisfaction: The personnel policy should make jobs as interesting and satisfying as possible; it tends to encourage a favourable and enthusiastic group action. Job Training: Job training, orientation, education, apprentice training and a broad variety of general educational efforts will help in building up employees' morale. Recognition of Aspirations: Recognition of individual aspirations and goals, and definite provision of means by which such goals can be achieved will go a long way in boosting morale. Unrest: A careful	Morale is not static. It is subject to daily, or even to monetary fluctuations. It is also subject to long-term secular trends. It is useful to think of long-term morale trends as responses to pressures and supports. Usually policy on morale seeks to develop and maintain high stages of morale in the middle of employees through appropriate means. The following measures are suggested for morale Job Satisfaction: The personnel policy should create jobs as motivating and satisfying as possible; it tends to encourage a favorable and enthusiastic group action. Job Training: Job training, orientation, education, apprentice training and a broad diversity of general educational efforts will help in structure up employees" morale. Recognition of Aspirations: Recognition of individual aspirations and goals, and definite provision of means through which such goals can be achieved will go a long way in boosting morale. Unrest: A careful

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

393/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 93 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 93 WORDS

made on various indices of employees unrest, with the ultimate objective of constructive guidance and action. Counselling Interviews: Counselling Interviews help to discover the feelings of employees. Opportunities: promising opportunities like good promotional avenues, good working conditions, satisfactory remuneration and other benefits for personal development. Relations: The supervisory staff should ensure, human relations, informal relations, fact finding and adopt participative and employee orientated attitude. Facilities: Apart from the above measures, the facilities lik'e, transport, housing, health, family welfare, children's education, and other recreational facilities would also help in building up made on several indices of employee"s unrest, with the ultimate objective of constructive guidance and action. Counseling Interviews: Counseling Interviews help to discover the feelings of employees. Opportunities: Promising opportunities like good promotional avenues, good working circumstances, satisfactory remuneration and other benefits for personal development. Relations: The supervisory staff should ensure, human relations, informal relations, fact finding and adopt participative and employee orientated attitude. Facilities: Separately from the above measures, the facilities like, transport, housing, health, family welfare, children"s education, and other recreational facilities would also help in structure up

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

394/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

Motivation and morale are the two sides of a coin. In fact, the level of performance of an individual is a function of both motivation and morale, the former determines what\ one will do while the latter determines what

Motivation and morale are the two sides of a coin. In fact, the level of performance of an individu'dl is a function of both motivation'and morale, the former determines what o n e will d o while the latter determines what can do. Morale is an outcome of motivation. Motivation is an internal mechanism, which results in one's willingness to devote time and energy to the needs of an organisation. Many behaviouralists like Maslow and Herberg have examined the problem of motivation, and they have observed that the ultimate objective of motivation is to work for betterment of organisation and individual as well.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

395/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 63 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 63 WORDS

can do. Morale is an outcome of motivation. Motivation is an internal mechanism, which results in one's willingness to devote time and energy to the needs of an organisation. Many behaviouralists like Maslow and Herberg have examined the problem of motivation, and they have observed that the ultimate objective of motivation is to work for betterment of organisation and individual as well.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

396/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 68 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 68 WORDS

the management, it is unavoidable to a considerable attention towards maintenance of high level of morale among their employees. Factors influencing morale are various. The problem of an organisation will become the base for selection of the factors that motivate employees to work with morale. Fluctuation in levels of employees morale is not unusual. However, the type of motivation will be the responsible factor for such changes.

the management, it is unavoidable to a considerable attention towards maintenance of high level of morale among their employees. Factors influencing morale are various. The'problem of an organisation will become the base for selection of the factors that motivate employees to work with morale. Fluctuation in levels of employees morale is not unusual. However, the type of motivation will be the responsible factor for such changes.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

397/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

primary responsibility of all personnel managers is to see that the desired level of morale is maintained among their employees by periodical check up. 4.7:

primary responsibility of all personnel managers is to see that the desired level of morale is maintained among their employees by periodical check up. !

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

398/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

Pigors Paul & Charless, A Myer, 1973. Personnel Administration: A. Point of View & a Method, McGraw Hill: New York. Strauss & Sayless, 1960. Personnel: The Human Problems of Management, Princeton Hall : England

Pigors Paul & Charless, A Myer, 1973. Personnel Administration: A. Point of View & a Method, McGraw Hill: New York. Strauss & Sayless, 1960. Personnel: The Human Problems of Management, Princeton Hall : England 25.14

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

399/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Dale Yoder, 1959. Personnel: Principles and Policies, Prentice Hall : England Dubin, 1970. Human

Dale Yoder, 1959. Personnel: Principles and Policies, Prentice Hall : England Dubin, 1970. Human

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

400/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 50 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 50 WORDS

in Administration. Prentice Hall of India : New Delhi Glenn, 0 Stahl, 1971. Public Personnel Administration. Harper and Row Publishers; New York

in Administration. Prentice Hall of India : New Delhi Glenn, 0 Stahl, 1971. Public Personnel Administration. Harper and Row Publishers; New York ,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

401/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

discuss the essentials to ensure the practice of administrative ethics; (b)describe the causes for decline of integrity in civil services; (c)discuss the legal framework to check corruption; and ( discuss the essentials to ensure the practice of administrative ethics; describe the causes for decline of integrity in civil services; discuss the legal framework to check corruption; and

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

402/416	SUBMITTED TEXT	232 WORDS	98%	MATCHING TEXT	232 WORDS

There is a need to develop both human and modern technology to improve efficiency. However, priority should be given to human development. These are two aspects to development technical and human. Organisations had usually been more sensitive to possibilities offered to them by the achivements of modern technology than to the refinements of human behaviour as revealed by the sciences of sociology and psychology. On the other hand, lessons drawn from experience showed that technical innovations deriving from the engineering sciences encountered considerable resistance unless supported by corresponding changes in human attitudes and behaviour. In an era of rapid change, the improvement of management in its human aspect had become a critical issue. It is important to make full use of the findings of social sciences which endeavoured to be instrumental in giving guidance in the behaviour of individuals and groups in varying circumstances. Organisations, should, therefore, be conceived as complex socio-technical systems whose management requires both technical skills and insight into the motives of human behaviour. It is widely agreed that manipulation and lack of ethics produce strong negative side effects and reduce organisational effectiveness. With this important value commitment, the organisations may shift their styles and climate from direction, control and surveillance to providing help, support and instruction. Mutuality and collaboration between the leaders and the led, self-control and mutual support an essential for creating an organic organisation. The

There is a need to develop both human and modern technology to improve efficiency. However, priority should be given to human development. These are two aspects to development technical and human. Organisations had usually been more sensitive to possibilities offered to them by the achivements of modern technology than to the refinements of human behaviour as revealed by the sciences of sociology and psychology. On the other hand, lessons drawn from experience showed that technical innovations deriving from the engineering sciences encountered considerable resistance unless supported by corresponding changes in human attitudes and behaviour. In an era of rapid change, the improvement of management in its human aspect had become a critical issue. It is important to make full use of the findings of social sciences which endeavoured to be instrumental in giving guidance in the behaviour of individuals and groups in varying circumstances. Organisations, should, therefore, be conceived as complex socio-technical systems whose management requires both technical skills and insight into the motives of human behaviour. It is widely agreed that manipulation and lack of ethics produce strong negative sideeffects and reduce organisational effectiveness. With this important value commitment, the organisations may shift their styles and climate from direction, control and surveillance to providing help, support and instruction. Mutuality and collaboration between the leaders and the led, self-control and mutual support an essential for creating an organic organisation. the

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

403/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 122 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 122 WORDS

Deviation from normal standards of lack of integrity takes various shapes in the form of corruption, patronage (based on communalism, sectarianism, nepotism and favouritism) and undue influence. Bribery, nepotism, misuse of power or influence, black marketing and similar other practices are not all that is meant by corruption. In fact, anyone wasting public money, lacks integrity. In general terms, corruption may be defined as the deliberate and intentional/exploitation of one's position, status or ,resources directly or indirectly, for personal aggrandisement whether it be in terms of material gain or enhancement of power, prestige or influence beyond what is legitimate or sanctioned by commonly accepted norms to the detriment of the interests of other persons or the community as a whole.

Deviation from normal standards of lack of integrity takes various shapes in the form of corruption, patronage (based on communalism, sectarianism, nepotism and favouritism) and undue influence. Bribery, nepotism, misuse of power or influence, black marketing p r o f i t ~ r i n g and similar other practices are not all that is meant by corruption. In fact, anyone wasting public money, lacks integrity. In general terms, corruption may be defined as the deliberate and intentional/exploitation of one's position, status or ,resources directly or indirectly, for personal aggrandisement whether it be in terms of material gain o r enhancement of power, prestige or influence beyond what is legitimate or sanctioned by commonly accepted norms to the detriment of the interests of other persons or the community a s a whole.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

404/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 107 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 107 WORDS

There are various causes of corruption which result in lack of integrity. These can be discussed under the following headings. 173 i) Historical Causes - In India, corruption has its roots in the colonial rule of the past. British administration was not interested in the overall development of the country. Handsomely, lower posts were offered to Indians. Salaries to these posts were very low. So they indulged' in corrupt practices. After World War II, scarcities led to many types of controls. It gave added opportunities to these low paid employees to resort to corrupt practices. Then it became habitual. It was during World War

There are various causes of corruption which result in lack of integrity. These can be discussed under the following headings. i) Historical Causes In India, corruption has its roots in the colonial rule of the past. British administration was not interested in the overall development of the country. All .. .. -. . . . . - . < . . . .. handsomely. Lower posls were offered to Indians. Salaries to these posts were very low. S o they indulged' in corrupt practices. After World War 11, scarcities led to many types of controls. It gave added opportunities to these low paid employees to resort to corrupt practices. Then it became habitual. It was during World War

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

405/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 188 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 188 WORDS

that corruption reached the highest mark in India. The climate for integrity which had been rendered unhealthy by wartime controls and scarcities was further aggravated by the post-war flush of money and the consequent inflation. ii) Environmental Causes - The second important cause of corruption in public service is 'fast urbanisation and industrialisation where material possessions, position and economic power determine the status and prestige of a in the society. Since salaries are low and inflation is unabated, poor civil servants fall easy prey to corrupt practices in order to maintain status in the society. iii) Economic Causes - Inadequate remuneration of salary scales and rising cost of living is probably one of the important causes of corruption. In recent years, the fast rising cost of living has brought down the real income of various sections of the community, particularly the salaried classes. The urge to appear prestigious by material possessions has encouraged those who had the opportunities to succumb to temptations. iv) Lack of Strong Public Opinion Against the Evil of Corruption - People do not report to government against corrupt officials. Instead they offer bribes that corruption reached the highest mark in India. The climate for integrity which had been rendered unhealthy by wartime controls and scarcities was further aggravated by the post-war flush of money and the consequent inflation. ii) Environmental Causes The second important cause of corruption in public service is 'fast urbanisation and industrialisation where material possessions, position and economic power determine the status and prestige of a in the society. Since salaries are low and inflation is unabated, poor civil servants fall easy prey to corrupt practices in order to maintain status in the society. iii) Economic Causes Inadequate remuneration of salary scales and rising cost of living is probably one of the important causes of corruption. In recent years, the fast rising cost of living has brought down the real income of various sections of the community, particularly the salaried classes. The urge to appear prestigious by material possessions has encouraged those who had the opportunities to succumb to temptations. iv) Lack of Strong Public Opinion Against the Evil of Corruption People d o not report to government against corrupt officials. Instead they offer bribes

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

406/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 178 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 178 WORDS

Complicated and Cumbersome Procedures and Working of Government Offices - It is alleged that the working of certain government departments, e.g., the Customs and Central Excise, Imports and Exports, Railways, Supplies and Disposals, Police,\ Income Tax., etc, is complicated, cumbersome and dilatory. This has encouraged the growth of dishonest practices like the system of 'speedy money'. vi) Inadequate Laws to Deal with Corruption - Indian Penal Code and other laws which deal with corruption cases are outmoded and provide insufficient penalties. It takes too much time to get a corrupt officials punished under the laws. Summary trials and stricter punishments should be awarded to end corruption. Therefore the laws will have to be changed.accordingly. vii) Undue Protection Given to the Public Services in India - Article 31 1 of the Indian Constitution which provides protection to civil servants, as interpreted by our courts, made it difficult to deal effectively with corrupt public servants. Reluctance of higher officials to take disciplinary action against corrupt officials due to their collusion with them has further aggravated the situation.

Complicated and Cumbersome Procedures and Working of Government Offices It is alleged that the working of sure government departments, e.g., the Customs and Central Excise, Imports and Exports, Railways, Supplies and Disposals, Police, Income Tax, etc, is complicated, cumbersome and dilatory. This has encouraged the growth of dishonest practices like the system of „speedy money". Inadequate Laws to Deal with Corruption Indian Penal Code and other laws which deal with corruption cases are outmoded and give insufficient penalties. It takes too much time to get a corrupt officials punished under the laws. Summary trials and stricter punishments should be awarded to end corruption. So the laws will have to be changed accordingly. Undue Protection Given to the Public Services in India Article 311 of the Indian Constitution which gives protection to civil servants, as interpreted through our courts, made it hard to deal effectively with corrupt public servants. Reluctance of higher officials to take disciplinary action against corrupt officials due to their collusion with them has further aggravated the situation.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

407/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Individual Interests - Big businessmen, dishonest merchants, suppliers and contractors, bribe the civil servants in order to get undue favours from them. Sometimes they share a portion of their Individual Interests Big businessmen, dishonest merchants, suppliers and contractors, bribe the civil servants in order to get undue favors from them. Sometimes they share a portion of their

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

408/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

Pressure Groups -Pressure Groups like Indian Chamber of Commerce, 'Trade Associations, State Chambers of Commerce, are said to help in breeding corruption through their activities of getting favours for their communities. They influence ruling elite through dinners, parties, luncheons. etc. 5.5:

Pressure Groups Pressure Groups like Indian Chamber of Commerce, Trade Associations, State Chambers of Commerce, are said to help in breeding corruption through their activities of getting favors for their communities. They influence ruling elite through dinners, parties, luncheons, etc.

W http://niilmuniversity.in/coursepack/humanities/Principles_of_Personnel_Administration.pdf

409/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 43 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 43 WORDS

Santhanam Committee on Prevention of Corruption- The Santhanam Committee, which was appointed in June-1962 to review existing instruments for combating corruption and to advise on practical measures to make anti-corruption measures more effective, submitted its report in March 1964.

Santhanam Committee on Prevention of Corruption The Santhanam Committee, which'was appointed in June-1962 to review existing instruments for combating corruption and to advise on practical measures to make anti-corruption measures more effective, submitted its report in March 1964.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

410/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 85 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 85 WORDS

Central Vigilance Commission (C.V.C.) -The Central Vigilance Commission has jurisdiction and powers in respect of matters to which the executive powers of the Central Government extend. Its jurisdiction 174 thus, extends to all employees of the Central Government and the employees in public undertakings, corporate bodies and other organisations dealing with any matter falling within the executive powers of the Central Government. Also, the Delhi Metropolitan Council and the New Delhi Municipal Committee fall within the purview of the commission.

Central Vigilance Commiesion (C.V.C.) The Central Vigilance Commission has jurisdiction and powers in respect of matters to which the executive powers of the Central Government extend. Its jurisdiction thus, extends to all employees of the Central Government and the employees in public undertakings, corporate bodies and other organisations dealing with any matter falling within the executive powers of the Central Government. Also, the Delhi Metropolitan Council and the New Delhi Municipal Committee fall within the purview of the commission.,

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

411/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 113 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 113 WORDS

State Vigilance Commission- The Santhanam Committee on prevention of corruption made detailed recommendations in 1964 for strengthening of the Vigilance Organisption in each Ministry/ Department to make it more effective. While the primary responsibility for the maintenance of purity, integrity and efficiency in each organisation continues to vest in the Secretary of the Ministry or the Head of the Department, an officer in each Ministry/ Department has been designated as Chief Vigilance Officer and entrusted with vigilance work. While acting as Special Assistant to the Secretary or ,the Head of the Department in all matters pertaining to vigilance, he provides a link between the Central Vigilance Commission and the Ministries/ Departments.

State Vigilance Commission The Santhanam Committee on prelention of corruption made detailed recommendations in 1964 for strengthening of the Vigilance Organisption in each Ministry/ Department to make it more effective. While the primary responsibility for the maintenance of purity, integrity and efficiency in each organisation continues to vest in the Secretary of the Ministry or the Head of the Department, an officer in each Ministry/ Department has been designated as Chief Vigilance Officer and entrusted with vigilance work. While acting as Special Assistant to the Secretary or ,the Head of the Department in all matters pertaining to vigilance, he provides a link between the Central Vigilance Commission and the Ministries/ Departments.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

412/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 72 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 72 WORDS

Central Bureau of Investigation- Apart from vigilance organisation id every ministry and department, the centralised agency for anti-corruption work viz. the Central Bureau of Investigation, which functions administratively under the Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms. The latter formulates all policy matters pertaining to vigilance and discipline among public servants. It also coordinates the activities of various heads of departments and functions as the nodal authority in the matter of

Central Bureau of Investigation Apart from vigilance organisation id every ministry and department, the centralised agency for anti-corruption work viz. the Central Bureau of Investigation, which functions administratively under the Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms. The latter formulates all policy matters pertaining to vigilance and ' discipline among public servants. It also coordinates the activities of various heads of departments and fu~~ctions the nodal authority in the matter of

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

413/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

Institutions of Lok Pa1 and Lok Ayukta- The 'Administrative Reform Commission, recommended in 1966 to the Central Government, the setting up of the Institutions of Lok Pal and Lok Ayukta which are analogous to the parliamentary commissioner in England and New Zealand, for redress of public grievances.

Institutions of Lok Pa1 and Lok Ayukta The 'Administrative R e o r k Commission, recommeded in 1966 to the Central Government, the setting up of the Institutions of Lok Pal and Lok Ayukta which are analogous to the parliamentary commissioner in England and Newzealand, for redress of public grievances.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

414/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 467 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 467 WORDS

Some suggestions may be given to improve integrity in the civil services. i) Maintain Conditions of Service Attractive - Government officials, particularly at lower level, are forced by poverty to regard office holding as a source of income which they would seek to maximise. Public services are rendered in exchange for extra money, services, which tend to be bad and slow if no bribe is given. Raising of pay, consequently, is a basic means to wipe out the widespread bribery in the civil services. It is good that Government has set up the Fourth National Pay Commission to look into the salary structure of federal employees. ii) Simplification of Working of Government Machinery- The root cause to proliferation of corruption seems to be the complicated procedures of Government offices. These procedures need to be evaluated and simplified. . Delays must be prevented and officials made fully responsive to the needs of all the people. ill) Public opinion creation against corruption- Corruption will flourish till the general mass of people resist it with determination and strength. Most of all, the elimination of corruption requires a widespread and steadfast opposition to it, coupled with'the courage to act against it. There can be no doubt that the people of India can get rid of corruption. iv) High Standard of Service Practice by High Official- High Officials having considerable discretionary powers must be thoroughly disciplined to refuse gifts, invitations and other favours. In this context, it is pertinent to note the efforts made by the government to carry the quest for integrity at the divisional and district levels. At the divisional level, there is a Divisional Vigilance Board which consists of the Divisional Committees, Deputy Inspector General of Police and a Divisional Vigilance Commissioner. At the district level, there is a District Vigilance Officer who is appointed by the District 175 Collector, Deputy Commissioner from among his/ her gazetted assistants in consultation with the Divisional Vigilance Board. There has, thus, emerged a web of vigilance agencies in the country. TO streamline this quest for integrity, the Vigilance Commissioners of all States hold an annual conference which is presided over by the Chief Vigilance Commissioner. This annual gathering serves useful purpose, it provides a forum for the discussion of mutual problems and exchange of experiences, and gives publicity to vigilance reports of the Government at both the Central and State levels, thus inspiring people's confidence in the Government's sincerity of purposes. However, this does not imply that corruption in public administration has been eliminated or is under control.

Far from it, corruption has entered every nook and corner of India's public life, and the country's public administration is ridden with it. This has happened largely because there is no political will to remove it. 5.6:

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

415/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

Avasthi, A. & Maheshwari, S., 1987. Mlic Administration; Lakshmi Narain Agrawal : Agra. Goel S.L, 1984. Public Personnel Administration; Staling Publisher Pvt. Ltd. : New Delhi. Jain, R.B., 1976. Contemporary Isrues in Indian Administration; Vhhal Publications : New Delhi.

Avasthi, A. & Maheshwari, S., 1987. M l i c Administration; Lakshmi Narain Agrawal : Agra. Goel S.L, 1984. Public Personnel Administration; Staling Publisher Pvt. Ltd. : New Delhi. Jain, R.B., 1976. Contemporary Isrues in Indian Administration; Vhhal Publications : New Delhi.

W https://docshare.tips/ignou39s-public-administration-material-part-4-personnel-adminstration_574b ...

416/416 SUBMITTED TEXT 88 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 88 WORDS

It is the fundamental responsibility of the management to spell out clearly as to how the ever increasing size of the Government and rising expectations of the people call for high ethical and professional standards on the part of government employees. Accordingly, the public officials are expected to furnish examples of incorrupt behaviour as their actions have a direct impact on the character of the community. The tools and techniques adopted by the Government of India and the State Governments in this challenging task have been highlighted.

SA MHYS-45 Indian Administrative System.docx (D151906351)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Document Information

Analyzed document	CC-PA-10.pdf (D164996485)
Submitted	2023-04-25 13:11:00
Submitted by	Library NSOU
Submitter email	dylibrarian.plagchek@wbnsou.ac.in
Similarity	25%
Analysis address	dylibrarian.plagchek.wbnsou@analysis.urkund.com

Sources included in the report

SA	NS Final Public finance(1).doc Document NS Final Public finance(1).doc (D154339682)	2
W	URL: http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(Englis... Fetched: 2022-07-16 15:45:30	41
W	URL: https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-i... Fetched: 2021-08-18 13:52:43	12
W	URL: https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf Fetched: 2022-08-30 13:57:52	83
W	URL: https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Finan... Fetched: 2023-01-23 12:32:50	30
W	URL: https://gacbe.ac.in/pdf/ematerial/18MPA13C-U1.pdf Fetched: 2021-11-06 03:30:00	1
W	URL: https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf Fetched: 2021-11-18 03:29:00	6
W	URL: http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Ad... Fetched: 2021-02-01 22:59:04	11
W	URL: http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf Fetched: 2021-09-30 07:27:15	38

W	URL: https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration... Fetched: 2022-08-31 03:40:08	11
W	URL: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Public_finance Fetched: 2019-09-25 00:02:16	1
W	URL: https://www.managementstudyguide.com/financial-management.htm Fetched: 2019-10-13 18:17:41	3
W	URL: https://www.wallstreetmojo.com/public-finance/ Fetched: 2020-12-11 21:07:38	2
SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc Document Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)	17
SA	deepa Eco.docx Document deepa Eco.docx (D28771015)	1
SA	CHAPTER 4.docx Document CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)	9
W	URL: https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:11:00	5
SA	THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf Document THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf (D75607893)	2
W	URL: https://www.downtoearth.org.in/coverage/economy/analysis-of-union-budget-since-1947-56867 Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	2
SA	FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf Document FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf (D75551780)	2
SA	An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_its_impact_m_grwoth_and_development_of_c._g._state.pd Document An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_its_impact_m_grwoth_and_development_of_c._g._state.pdf (D16312470)
W	URL: https://www.livemint.com/companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the-single-biggest-reform-in-the... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	4
W	URL: https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01 Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	3
W	URL: https://www.financialexpress.com/what-is/non-tax-revenue-meaning/1762795/ Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	1

W	URL: https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027... Fetched: 2021-10-31 23:08:59	5
W	URL: http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/fiscal-policy/role-of-fiscal-policy-for-mobilisation-of-res... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	1
SA	ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx Document ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx (D50257214)	2
W	URL: http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	4
SA	Unit 10 formatted.doc Document Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)	7
W	URL: https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/finance-ministers-who-shaped-indias-economy/... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:13:00	1
W	URL: http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25657/1/Unit-11.pdf Fetched: 2022-11-02 11:12:14	3
W	URL: https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/budget-through-the-years-the-men-who-... Fetched: 2023-04-25 13:12:00	2
SA	5.docx Document 5.docx (D40607909)	3
W	URL: https://iaraedu.com/pdf/ijair-volume-v-issue-i-january-march.pdf Fetched: 2023-03-30 03:05:31	1
W	URL: https://www.ijbmi.org/papers/Vol(5)6/M05060950107.pdf Fetched: 2022-01-14 19:45:41	1
SA	Budgetary policy of the union government since the fifth five year plan.pdf Document Budgetary policy of the union government since the fifth five year plan.pdf (D34932924)	1
W	URL: https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/82418/1/Unit-4.pdf Fetched: 2023-02-23 13:37:47	2
SA	Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx Document Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152106823)	3
SA	04_Chapter_3.pdf Document 04_Chapter_3.pdf (D121264304)	1

SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx
Document Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152125726) 1

Entire Document

PREFACE In a bid to standardize higher education in the country, the University Grants Commission (UGC) has introduced Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) based on five types of courses viz. core, discipline specific, generic elective, ability and skill enhancement for graduate students of all programmes at Honours level. This brings in the semester pattern, which finds efficacy in sync with credit system, credit transfer, comprehensive continuous assessments and a graded pattern of evaluation. The objective is to offer learners ample flexibility to choose from a wide gamut of courses, as also to provide them lateral mobility between various educational institutions in the country where they can carry their acquired credits. I am happy to note that the University has been recently accredited by National Assessment and Accreditation Council of India (NAAC) with grade "A". UGC (Open and Distance Learning Programmes and Online Programmes) Regulations, 2020 have mandated compliance with CBCS for UG programmes for all the HEIs in this mode. Welcoming this paradigm shift in higher education, Netaji Subhas Open University (NSOU) has resolved to adopt CBCS from the academic session 2021- 22 at the Under Graduate Degree Programme level. The present syllabus, framed in the spirit of syllabi recommended by UGC, lays due stress on all aspects envisaged in the curricular framework of the apex body on higher education. It will be imparted to learners over the six semesters of the Programme. Self Learning Materials (SLMs) are the mainstay of Student Support Services (SSS) of an Open University. From a logistic point of view, NSOU has embarked upon CBCS presently with SLMs in English / Bengali. Eventually, the English version SLMs will be translated into Bengali too, for the benefit of learners. As always, all of our teaching faculties contributed in this process. In addition to this we have also requisitioned the services of best academics in each domain in preparation of the new SLMs. I am sure they will be of commendable academic support. We look forward to proactive feedback from all stakeholders who will participate in the teaching-learning based on these study materials. It has been a very challenging task well executed, and I congratulate all concerned in the preparation of these SLMs. I wish the venture a grand success. Professor (Dr.) Ranjan Chakrabarti Vice-Chancellor

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject : Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Financial Administration Course Code : CC-PA-10 First Print—January, 2023 _____ Printed in accordance with the regulations of the Distance Education Bureau of the University Grants Commission

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Financial Administration Course Code: CC-PA-10 : Board of Studies : : Members : Chandan Basu Dipankar Sinha Professor of History Professor of Political Science Director, School of Social Sciences, NSOU University of Calcutta Soma Ghosh Pujan Kumar Sen Professor of Political Science Professor of Public Administration Principal, HMM College for Women NSOU Barnana Guha Thakurta (Banerjee) Sital Prasad Nag Associate Professor of Political Science Associate Professor of Political Science NSOU NSOU Manoj Kumar Haldar Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Political Science Assistant Professor of Public Administration NSOU NSOU : Writers : : Editor : Block I Units 1-5 Shiladitya Chakraborty Titu Bardhan Faculty of Political Science, Professor of Political Science Vidyasagar Metropolitan College University of Kalyani Block II Units 1-5 : Format Editing : Sayani Malakar Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Political Science, Assistant Professor of Public Administration Hoogly Women's College NSOU Block III Units 1-5 Tanwir Arshed Assistant Professor of Political Science, Presidency University Block IV Units 1-5 Debajit Goswami Assistant Professor of Public Administration, NSOU Notification

46% MATCHING BLOCK 1/328 SA NS Final Public finance(1).doc (D154339682)

All rights reserved. No part of this Self-Learning Material (SLM) may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from Netaji Subhas Open University.

A.B.Aich Registrar

Netaji Subhas Open University Under Graduate Degree Programme Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) Subject: Honours in Public Administration (HPA) Financial Administration Course Code: CC-PA-10 CONTENTS Block I Introduction ..... 1- 57 Block II Fiscal Policy ..... 58 - 100 Block III Budget ..... 101 - 122 Block IV Control over Finance ..... 123 - 158

1 BLOCK I INTRODUCTION UNIT 1 NATURE AND SCOPE OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE 1.1.Learning Objectives 1.2.Introduction 1.3.Nature of financial administration 1.3.1 Traditional view 1.3.2 Modern view 1.4. Scope of financial administration 1.5.Indian financial administration 1.6.Conclusion 1.7.Summary 1.8.Key words 1.9.Model questions 1.10. References 1.1

LEARNING

93% MATCHING BLOCK 2/328 W

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you will be able to- • Understand the meaning and nature of financial administration • Discuss in detail the role of the Executive and the Legislature in financial administration • Explain the significance of financial administration • Understand the financial administration in India along with its various functionaries. • Learn about the financial institutions and their role in driving the Indian economy forward. 1.2 INTRODUCTION

100% MATCHING BLOCK 3/328 W

The term financial administration refers to certain rules and methods relating to revenue and expenditure be it any institution especially of meta nature.

96% MATCHING BLOCK 12/328 W

Financial administration is the crucial 2 aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is impossible without money or finance and for that reason financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. The task of public administration or government is to levy taxes and this job is uniquely performed by the legislature. But the executive organ cannot levy taxes beyond what is needed to keep the economy running and maintaining economic stability.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 4/328 W

Again, the executive will have to give explanation to the legislature for the money it has collected and spent under the norms of financial accountability so that no public money is defrauded from the public exchequer. Thus, in general terms

81% MATCHING BLOCK 5/328 W

financial administration simply includes the earning or collection of money and expenditure of the collected money for the economic growth and stability of the system and the nation. When studied in detail though, the simpler explanations pave way for detailed nuanced and at times expansive meanings of the concept. One of which explanations takes the purview of institutionalism, stating that financial administration studies the role of the government in the economy. It is the definitive branch of economics which assesses the Government revenue and Government expenditure of the Public Authorities and the adjustment of one or the other to achieve desirable effects and avoid undesirable ones.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 6/328 W

In simpler terms the goal of financial administration is centred around creating stable economic situations for the benefit of the national economy based on public income and expenditure.

96% MATCHING BLOCK 7/328 W

It is a subject which has the distinction of intimate interaction between theory and practice. It acquires a meaning and usefulness only in the context of institutional framework of the economy based on economic structures that not only control but regulate the resources (in economic terms) of the country with reference to which it is being studied. The theoretical concepts and policy applications in public finance feed upon and grow out of each other based upon a strong academic history of the realms of both public administration as well as economics.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 8/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 9/328 W

No single theoretical model can adequately fit in the framework of every economy since its institutional framework is a thing unique to itself across systems applied by various nation states.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 10/328 W

It is important, therefore, that the discussion of public finance should be in the context of a single economy as in this chapter it is based on Indian financial administration. When dealing with Indian 3 financial administration we generally refer it as a part of public administration because of the reason that Indian economy is not a completely privatised economy, it has both the features of controlled as well as lenient market tendencies but the major control of the economy is under the Finance ministry of the Union Government of India.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 11/328 W

Public financial administration has a direct influence on the overall quality of life of the masses. It is concerned with that part of the government which is action-oriented. Recent years have witnessed a heated debate on several theoretical and policy issues covering several segments of public finance, including the role of fiscal policy. Pleas are being made for a thorough restructuring of its various theoretical and policy premises and the framework within which these should be conducted. Exponential growth and transformation in global financial system and worldwide meltdown caused by it have fuelled rethinking on the role of fiscal policy with a special focus on economic stability and growth—both in developed and developing countries. India, like the rest of the world, has also been deeply affected by these developments.

Recent changes in the tax regime under the GST reforms under the GST council has brought the single most effective change in the financial structure of the country. The larger impact of the policy change is still being studied. The administrative section of the government though has various long-term goals based on the current political economic situation of the global order. 1.3 NATURE OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION

100% MATCHING BLOCK 13/328 W

In general terms, financial administration implies administration relating to the management of collecting revenues and expenditure for running the public administration. There are various ways of collecting revenues such as levying taxes, borrowing money from public and financial institutions, collection of money for development works etc. Collection of money in any form is not all. Since the government is a public organisation, it is legally bound to give explanation to the public for the money it collects from which source and in what way, and for what purposes it spends the money it collects. Here ties the planning for collecting money and spending it for various purposes. Both the income and expenditure are guided by plans or certain definite rules and regulations. 4

Majorly

100% MATCHING BLOCK 14/328 W

there are two different views regarding the nature of financial administration.

In the classical differentiation of most public administrative terms

89% MATCHING BLOCK 21/328 W

these are – 1.3.1. Traditional view Traditional view advocates to conceive financial administration as a sum total of activities undertaken in pursuit of generation, regulation and distribution of monetary resources needed for the sustenance and growth of public organisations by the state.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 15/328 W

They emphasise upon that set of administrative functions in a public organisation which relate to an arrangement of flow of funds as well as to regulating mechanisms and processes which ensure proper and productive utilisation of these funds for public good.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 16/328 W

When one looks at this view from systems perspective, it represents an integral sub- system of supportive system. A financial administrator shoulders responsibility for ensuring adequate financial backing for running public organisation in the most efficient manner which in the case of India is the Finance ministry.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 17/328 W

The participants of this system are considered as financial managers and they discharge managerial functions of financial nature ( both political as well as professional).

98% MATCHING BLOCK 18/328 W

The central thesis of pure theory of public finance is that public finance should deal with the problems of public income, public expenditure and public debt in an objective manner without any relation to a set of values and premises of the political party in power. Accordingly, theorists of financial administration subscribing to this view take a value-neutral stand. For instance, Jaze Gaston reflects this view when he says that financial administration is that part of government organisation which deals with the collection, preservation and distribution of public funds.

As in the case of India this view has been widely accepted as well as implemented. The Financial Administration in India is a part of general administration. The purpose of Public Administration is to see that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes is properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory. 1.3.2.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 19/328 W

Modern

100% MATCHING BLOCK 20/328 W

view 5 The modem view considers financial administration as an-integral part of the overall management process of public organisations rather than one of raising and disbursing public funds. It includes all the activities of all persons engaged in public administration, for quite obviously almost every public official takes decisions which are bound to have some direct or indirect consequences of financial nature. Further, it rejects the value-neutral stand of the traditional theory. It combines in itself three prominent theories of public finance, viz., the socio-political theory as expounded by Wagner, Edgeworth and Pigou, the functional theory of Keynesian perspective and activating view of modem public finance theorists.

Though Indian system had incorporated the Keynesian perspective for long the 1994 reforms and subsequent governments have brought in the modern public finance theorists who support a collaborative role for the government rather than a controlling role. 1.4. SCOPE OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION According to Gaston Jaze's definition, the government organisation deals with the following four aspects
of

97% MATCHING BLOCK 32/328 W

financial administration. These include: 1) The collection, preservation and distribution of public funds. 2) The coordination of public revenues and expenditure. 3) The management of credit operations on behalf of the State. 4) The general control of the financial affairs of the government. In modern governments all the above aspects are dealt with by the Finance Department and its subordinate agencies which include both the public representative section in the form of ministers inside a government as well as professional section based on meritocracy which comprises of the bureaucracy of the state. Though the Finance Department or the Finance Ministry may be considered as central financial agency of modem governments, it cannot be equated with financial administration.

79% MATCHING BLOCK 22/328 W

The ministry of the department's

87% MATCHING BLOCK 23/328 W

role constitutes financial management rather than financial administration. As a financial manager it deals with the systems, tools and techniques contributing to economic decision making in government which are constituted in the form of various institutions

6 such as departments, committees, councils and boards which are part of the holistic administrative process.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 24/328 W

These processes are, in fact, the integral part of financial administration of the country, but

96% MATCHING BLOCK 25/328 W

the scope of financial administration is much wider than what these processes suggest. Legal experts support the idea that financial administration refers to the financial processes and institutions involved in legislative financial control. In their view, the scope of financial administration encompasses the preparation of estimates, appropriation of funds, expenditure control, accounting, audit, reporting, review and so on. In a democratic context, this view may gain wider acceptance as it ensures executive responsibility to legislature. But, the experience of modem democracies has shown that the legislative involvement in the determination of the desired volume, range and direction of programmes, the use of independent judgement relating to the financial resources required by administrative agencies is becoming nominal day by day. It is a known fact that the average member of the legislature is not adequately informed to ensure effective control over executive. Thus, the view appears to be of no significant validity. Further, legislative control of financial aspects of the government does not represent the scope of financial administration in its entirety. Yet another view advocates a budget-oriented outline for the scope of financial administration. According to them the scope of financial administration is limited to the preparation of budget, the enactment of budget and execution of budget. Though the budget is the core of financial administration, certain operations which precede budget preparation are equally important. There is a pertinent need to include planning process as an integral part of financial administration. In the ultimate analysis, there is a need to adopt an integrated approach so that all the above views are incorporated into the scope of public administration. As an outcome of such an approach, the following aspects emerge as the core areas of financial administration.

i)

92% MATCHING BLOCK 26/328 W

Financial In a restrictive sense one may consider budgeting as planning since its basic concern is to facilitate the formulation and adoption of policies and programmes with a view to achieving the goals of government. Financial planning includes the concerns in terms of whole range of government policy and it demands a time frame and a perception of the inter relationships among policies. It looks at a 7 policy in the framework of long-term economic consequences started. The Planning commission of India was the pioneer institution of such planning in post independent India. Nehruvian influences though were found in abundance in the institution, many give the credit of the idea to Subhas Bose's proposals for post independent Indian economic rejuvenation. There is a need to coordinate planning and budgeting. The concept of planning-programming-. Budgeting System (PPBS) represents an attempt in this direction. Financial Administration, under this phase, considers the sources and forms of finance, forecasting expenditure needs, desirable fund flow patterns and so on. ii) Budgeting Budgeting is the core of any financial administration without which allocation, implementation and application of planning will go haywire.

89% MATCHING BLOCK 27/328 W

88% MATCHING BLOCK 28/328 W

It includes examination and formulation of important aspects as fiscal policy, equity and social justice making it not only an economic factor but a socio economic one which has to bring a balance of objective realities with subjective distributive justice as well.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 29/328 W

It also deals with principles and practices associated with refinement of budgetary system and its operative processes as with new infrastructure the process of budgeting improves and attempts to cater to the needs of the hour for the society as well as the structure of state and economy. iii) Resource mobilisation Resource mobilisation is simply bringing in the resources together for creating mechanisms of economic planning. This process includes the imposition of taxes, collection of rates and taxes etc. These are associated with resource mobilisation effort tas a whole.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 30/328 W

Due to the ever-increasing commitments of government, budgetary deficits have become regular feature of government finance. In this context deficit financing assumes greater importance. But deficit financing, if used in an unrestrained manner, may prove to be a dangerous problem for a nation's economy for it can cause galloping inflation.

This not only threatens the national economy but also puts immense pressure on the federative units with the nation state.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 31/328 W

Another challenge faced by administration is tax evasion and growth of parallel economy namely the illegal ways of defrauding public money in the form of stashing money in offshore accounts, hawala transactions and black marketing of public goods and 8 services to harm the mainstream and finance destructive elements.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 33/328 W

Finally public debt constitutes yet another element of state resources. The recent case of Sri Lanka is a pertinent example of how uncontrolled public debt can lead to uncontrollable inflation which may derail the economy of nation and cause massive public dissatisfaction.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 34/328 W

The proceeds of debt mobilisation effort should be used only for capital financing. Thus, modem financial administrator has to be fully conversant with all the dimensions of resource mobilisation efforts iv) Investment decisions investments are a huge part of public expenditure especially in the case of a huge and diverse nation such as India. Funding for social welfare programmes as well as infrastructural investments require huge investments from the government.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 35/328 W

Since massive investments have been made in the public sector, a thorough knowledge of the concepts, techniques and methodology of project appraisal is indispensable for a financial administrator.

The investment initiatives require close monitoring and are therefore a very important facet of financial administration. v) Expenditure control Modern governments have a huge expenditure responsibility. The coordination of such finances is as important as control over such expenditure, in absence of which wastefulness increases and harms the public exchequer greatly.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 36/328 W

Finances of the modem governments are becoming quite inelastic. Almost every government is suffering from resource crunch. Further, the society cannot be taxed beyond a certain point without doing a great damage to the economy as a whole. Thus, there is an imperative need for careful utilisation of resources to avoid wastage and financial drain of public money.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 37/328 W

Executive control is a process aimed at achieving this ideal. Legislative control is aimed at the protection of the individual tax payers' interest as well as public interest. There is also the need to ensure the accountability of the executive to the legislature. vi) Accounting, Reporting and Auditing

Accountability forms an important feature of not only public administration but any modern democracy. Without checks and balances any system is susceptible to corruption and crumble.
9 Accounting for the money utilised, reporting of utilisation and discrepancies and auditing in case of questions of misappropriation, misutilisation, misgovernance create the trio of accountability measures under financial administration.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 38/328 W

These aspects are designed to aid both the executive control and legislative control. In India, the Comptroller and Auditor General (C & AG) and the Indian Audit and Accounts Department over which the C & AG presides ensure that the accounting and audit functions are performed in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 39/328 W

Comptroller and Auditor General of India controls the entire financial system of the country at the Union and as well at the state levels. 1.5.

INDIAN FINANCIAL ADMINISTARTION The government of India is the authority that looks after the totality of public exchequer's assets in the economy. The financial administration in India is a system of institutions that controls all the above- mentioned functions requisite for stabilised functioning of the economy. Financial administration in India is a dynamic process that involves various institutions and comprise of an on-going chain of operations, performed by the following agencies: i. The Executive (primarily the Finance Ministry), which needs funds for allocation and monitoring. ii. The Legislature, which alone can grant funds for various projects at a national level comprising of both the government and the opposition in the parliament.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 40/328 W

99% MATCHING BLOCK 41/328 W

iii. The Finance Commission. iv. The Indian Audit and Accounts Department. v. The Parliamentary Committees. The executive powers of the central government have been vested in the President, to be exercised by him or her either directly or through officers' subordinate to him or her, in accordance with the Constitution (Article 53). The Finance Ministry is an important ministry within the Government of India. It is the leading state administration institution in the field of finances. It develops financial policy, coordinates and organizes its implementation, as well as performs other functions stated in the 10 external regulatory enactments. India has a parliamentary form of government. Our Parliament or the Union Legislature, the supreme legislative body in the country, comprises two Houses— Lok Sabha (House of the People) and Rajya Sabha (Council of States). The main function of both the Houses of parliament is to pass laws. The law proposal originates in the Parliament in the form of a bill. There are four types of bills that come up before the Parliament, namely ordinary or nonmoney bill, money bill, constitution amendment bill and budget. Of these four types of bills, money bill and budget pertain to financial administration. Article 110 clearly defines what constitutes a 'money bill'. The Speaker of the Lok Sabha certifies whether a bill is a 'money bill' or a non-money bill. Money bill can be introduced, only along with the prior recommendation of the President, in the Lok Sabha and not in the Rajya Sabha. The Rajya Sabha cannot reject the money bill. It can only make recommendations.

Budgeting serves as a powerful tool of coordination. Its

97% MATCHING BLOCK 50/328 W

ends are served by devices, such as, justification of estimates, supervision of the use of appropriated funds, timing of the rate of expenditures, and the like. It inculcates, or should inculcate, cost-consciousness and this feeling should permeate all levels of administration including the operating level. Budgeting presents an opportunity for evaluating programmes and policies, thereby identifying obsolete or unnecessary activities and giving a call for their discontinuance.

Every year, the Indian budget is presented before Its lower chamber in the parliament i.e., the Lok Sabha. The Finance Ministry under the government of India prepares the budget in accordance with the various functionaries including the political (ministers) and the professional (bureaucrats).

86% MATCHING BLOCK 42/328 W

The budget pre 2017 was presented in two parts: (a) Railway Budget (b) General Budget. Railway budget was presented by the railway minister while the general budget is presented by the Finance Minister. The budget passes through various stages in both the houses of the parliament. In 2017, the Railway Budget was merged with the Union Budget, ending a practice that began in 1924 under the British. A NITI Aayog commission submitted a white paper recommendation to do away 11 with the practice. The recommendation was submitted to then Railway Minister Suresh Prabhu and passed by the minister. The merger offered more elbow-room to the finance ministry for better allocation of resources. "It also facilitated multi-modal transport planning between railways, inland waterways, and highways." However, then finance minister Arun Jaitley had mentioned that "the functional autonomy of railways will be maintained."

85% MATCHING BLOCK 43/328 W

The financial administration is very significant aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is not possible without money or finance and for that reason the financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. The Ministry of Finance concerns itself with taxation, financial legislation, financial institutions, capital markets, centre and state finances, and the Union Budget. The Union Finance Ministry of India comprises five departments— i. Department of Economic Affairs ii. Department of Expenditure iii. Department

Financial Administration of Revenue iv. Department of Financial Services v. Department of Disinvestments. 1.6 CONCLUSION Financial administration has become a crucial component of modern nation states. Economic logic dictates that without monetary exchange of some form or the other the existence of stable political system is untenable at best. All societies thus have their financial administrative systems as an integral component of its public administrative system today. In contemporary India, financial administration began to assume the multifaceted role in order to secure maximum human welfare based on not only the needs of the society created post 1947 but the society that existed in continuum pre-1947.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 44/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 45/328 W

Financial administration, in its evolutionary process, has proved to be, a dynamic entity capable of developing itself into a potential measure to meet requirements of changing socio-economic demands from time to time.

The comprehensive bureaucratic order maintained under the government of India 12 and its various functionaries have kept the financial administration of India at par with the demands of the society for development as well as the international order for maintaining cordial economic ties of trade and finance without jeopardizing the economic structure of the state or of the aspirations of the people.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 46/328 W

Of late, financial administration has assumed the role of a provider of choices with regard to ends and means as major changes have been brought about by the requisite institutions. As

100% MATCHING BLOCK 47/328 W

discussed, its scope is expanding day by day and at present it encompasses many dynamic aspects which are ushering new changes not only in the national context but international as well. Examples may include conventional attributes such as financing, planning and budgeting, resource mobilisation as well as newer avenues of joint public private investment, public expenditure based on decentralisation of both powers and responsibilities, control including financial control etc. 1.7 SUMMARY • Financial administration is an important facet of modern-day public administration. It concerns itself with the monetary affairs of the state and public money. • There are various ways on how one views financial administration, there are traditional views of holistic subjectivity as well as the modern view of distributive or federative objectivity. • In India financial administration is a structural process encompassing the both the legislative and the executive of the state in being a part of planning, budgeting, investment, policy making, policy review as well as accountability measures. • With the change of time, financial administration has become more dynamic, people responsive and cooperative. India's shift from Planning commission to NITI Aayog is an example of such a shift. 1.8

100% MATCHING BLOCK 48/328 W

KEY WORDS • Audit: It is an objective examination and evaluation of the financial statements to make sure that the financial records are fair and accurate. 13 • Subsidies: It is a benefit given to an individual, business, or institution, usually by the government. It is usually in the form of a cash payment or a tax reduction. •

Laissez Faire: Non-interference policy of the government in economic affairs. •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 49/328 W

Budget: It is an estimation of revenue and expenses over a specified future period of time and is utilized by governments, businesses, and individuals. A budget is basically a financial plan for a defined period. • Zero-based budgeting: It is a method of budgeting in which all expenses must be justified for each new period. •

Planned economy: An economy in which production, investment, prices, and incomes are determined centrally by the government. 1.9 MODEL QUESTIONS

87% MATCHING BLOCK 51/328 W

Short questions • What are the financial powers of the President of India? • What is the role of the legislature in the financial administration of the country? • Write a short note on the bills that pertain to financial administration. Medium question • What is a vote on account? • Write the functions of the

Comptroller and Auditor General of India? •
Financial administration is the backbone of any country- Explain

96% MATCHING BLOCK 52/328 W

Long questions • Discuss the functions of the Finance Ministry. • Examine the significance of financial administration. •

Discuss why

100% MATCHING BLOCK 53/328 W

the financial administration is considered the centre of public administration? 14 1.10

REFERENCES Chakrabarty, Bidyut and Chand, P. (2015), Public Administration in a Globalizing world, Sage India.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 54/328 W

Goel. S.L. (2008.) Public Financial Administration. New Delhi: Deep and Deep Publications. Singh, S.K. 2001. Public Finance in Theory and Practice. New Delhi: S. Chand & Company Ltd.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 55/328 W

Fadia, B.L. and Kuldeep Fadia. (2011.) Public Administration. Agra: Sahitya Bhawan.

87% MATCHING BLOCK 56/328 W

Lall, G.S. (1976) Financial Administration in India, Delhi: H.P.J. Kapoor.

Mahajan, S and Mahajan, A. (2014), Financial Administration in India, Delhi: PHI Learning Pvt. Ltd, 2014. UNIT 2 OBJECTIVES
AND PRINCIPLES OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE 2.1.Learning Objectives 2.2.Introduction 2.3.Objectives

48% MATCHING BLOCK 57/328 W

of financial administration 2.4.Principles of financial administration 2.5.Conclusion 2.6.Summary 2.7.Key words 2.8.Model questions 2.9.References 15 2.1 LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one will be able to- • Discuss the goals of fiscal policies of governments aimed at securing certain socio-economic welfare as judged and decided under the aegis of public policies • Describe ways and means as well as appropriate institutional instruments to secure an understanding about how fiscal policies create situations for achieving public policy-oriented goals. • Explain how the Indian financial administration has done

100% MATCHING BLOCK 58/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 71/328 W

in formulation and execution of fiscal measures through certain fiscal institutions and processes

over the years. • Highlight the economic

75% MATCHING BLOCK 59/328 W

trends and their usefulness in facing contemporary challenges especially by India. • Discuss the need to comprehend various aspects of financial administration as a way out to consider contemporary socio-economic problems and the solutions therefor. 2.2

INTRODUCTION Any form of administration is only as strong as the principles it stands upon and functions upon and the objectives it seeks to achieve for the larger good. Since the industrial age, governments have played the role of an arbitrator to ensure that market forces aren't hindered in their goal for liberalised trade. Governments have had a single objective of affording protection to the basic socio-economic framework of the system and providing a shield

100% MATCHING BLOCK 60/328 W

from hostile forces threatening the system from inside as well as outside. In this context, financial administration supported the concept of judicious use of public money without wastage for public welfare with minimum harm to the market structure as its goal. The regulatory and welfare functions to the sphere of government which includes security, law enforcement and health have been added to the functional role of financial administration. It has been supported and articulated in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment for public good and protection of state.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 61/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 62/328 W

It was expected to achieve the broad objectives spelled out in public policies from time to time

with the

86% MATCHING BLOCK 63/328 W

aim to achieve the objectives of the government with the 16 maximum possible level of efficiency at the least expenditure, the very crux of Lockean liberalism thus was expounder under such a system. Though there is has been no universal agreement about ends of the State which range for mobilisation for self-preservation to safeguarding basic human requirements to the creation of a welfare state with a commitment to socio-economic equity wishing to raise the quality of life of its citizens in preference to military conflict-based expansion as espoused by the lebensraum theory of Adolf Hitler. There cannot be a single set of universal truth-based objectives, other than efficiency and economy, which can be visualised by a student of financial administration. Though situational objectives based in terms of certain common targets pursued by financial administration can be found

91% MATCHING BLOCK 64/328 W

70% MATCHING BLOCK 65/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 66/328 W

all over the world when one looks at the experiences of the governments throughout the world, such an exercise doesn't help in providing a concrete prescription of a set of objectives. The goal thus is not to get a solution for every system but to analyse the intricacies that make each system/state different and unique and provide objectives that can be reached based on common minimums for ushering economic growth under a stable and competent financial administration. 2.3 OBJECTIVES OF

62% MATCHING BLOCK 67/328 W

FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION The unpredictability of capitalist forces of the modern market in the developed countries, have led to an enlarged scope of financial administration.

This system has been largely

100% MATCHING BLOCK 68/328 W

characterised by deficit budgets, massive public debt and deficit financing.

Despite all this these features have been the backbone of modern democratic structures where excess public funding is a rarity and social welfare a necessity.

88% MATCHING BLOCK 69/328 W

Similarly, in the developing countries, where governments have assumed the role of a facilitator of development, fiscal policies and administration embark upon a set of multiple objectives.

These are targeted to bring in

98% MATCHING BLOCK 70/328 W

stability, development, self-reliance, reduction of interpersonal inequalities in income and wealth, and balanced regional development. These countries also utilise the same instruments of action to achieve the above-mentioned goals.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 72/328 W

There are certain fundamental objectives of financial administration which transcend, politico-economic compulsions.

Even though political ideologies, or economic doctrines create the necessary situations for functioning of the state 17 it is the fundamental objectives that provide long term basis for economic stability as well as development of nation and the continuance of its system. These are as follows: 1)

76% MATCHING BLOCK 73/328 W

Management of finances of the Public: Public authorities are concerned with the satisfaction of human wants and their major problem is to ensure the best application to secure given ends with limited resources at their disposal. In this context, the focus is to be on structured mobilisation of resources and their rational deployment, which must be in conformity with the rising expectations of the people. 2) Implementation of projects and programmes:

100% MATCHING BLOCK 74/328 W

An important facet of 21 st century financial administration coming from 20 th century itself is related to ensuring optimal public investment. This has to be maintained through decisions based on project formulation, appraisal and implementation. The emphasis has shifted from expenditure control to the implementation of projects within the stipulated time schedule and expenditure limitations. 3) Provision for public goods and social services: Since the benefits from public goods and social goods are available to everyone in the society. The goods are provided to every one irrespective of one's contribution to public exchequer. So, the system maintains that no one will offer payments for the supply of such goods. Provision of public goods like public parks, social services like public health, sanitation cannot be left to the private sector which is motivated by profit rather than service to the people. Budgetary support for such services become a valid concern for fiscal policy makers. 4) Growth, Employment and Price Stability: Modem governments tend to focus their attention on socially desired rate of economic growth, high employment and a reasonable degree of price level stability and a positive balance of payments position. Achievement of these objectives cannot come about automatically and thus, there is always a

96% MATCHING BLOCK 75/328 W

93% MATCHING BLOCK 76/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 77/328 W

need for policy initiatives on the part of public authorities to ensure

58% MATCHING BLOCK 78/328 W

the fulfilment of such objectives. 5) Capital Formation: Economic development of a nation, largely depends upon the capital formation.

This goal is achieved through increased savings of both the populace and the government. Despite this there is no evidence that supports the idea that any amount of State's coercive power can 18 achieve this objective. Appropriate financial and fiscal measures such as discriminatory taxation and monetary policy instruments are necessary requisites

100% MATCHING BLOCK 79/328 W

94% MATCHING BLOCK 80/328 W

to accomplish this objective. 6) Productive deployment of funds: A major problem of under-developed countries is the allocation of required funds between competing projects and programmes.

Deployment of funds is thus a crucial factor in judicious use of public money.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 81/328 W

In order to ensure flow of investible funds into desirable channels proper mechanisms are a necessity. For this goal various organisations in different systems

100% MATCHING BLOCK 82/328 W

lays down guidelines regarding priorities for different types of investment for both public as well as private sector. The finance ministry

in India

100% MATCHING BLOCK 83/328 W

takes up the task of ensuring adherence to national priorities both in the public sector and the private sector. 7) Facilitating smooth flow of parliamentary processes: The basic tenet of

and objective

100% MATCHING BLOCK 84/328 W

representative governments throughout the world is the supremacy of the representative institutions.

Any democracy can only function smoothy with public representation based on universal adult suffrage which in turn tends to provide legitimacy and exert

98% MATCHING BLOCK 85/328 W

their control over executive branch of the government. One of the most important dimensions of this is the control of legislature over use of public funds. Financial administration through its budgetary process and audit function enables and ensures the supremacy of the legislative body over the executive. 8) Achievement of equity and equality: The distribution of income and wealth depends upon the distribution of factors of production and factor pricing determined through the market mechanism. It also depends upon the transmission of property rights through inheritance as well as personal earning abilities. Such distribution may not be in conformity with what society considers a "fair" or "just" state of distribution. Equity, however, has to be achieved through an evolutionary process without giving scope for class conflicts and large-scale violence. There should be a progressive reduction in the concentration of economic power. At the same time, equal opportunities for every one in every sphere will have to ensure non-occurrence of fresh inequalities. Financial administration, through its fiscal policies, such -as progressive taxation; grants, subsidies etc. can help movement towards greater equality of wealth and opportunities. 19 2.4 PRINCIPLES OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION 1)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 86/328 W

The principle of primacy of public interest, public choice and public policy

Public interest is the prime factor that determines financial administration as a whole.

61% MATCHING BLOCK 87/328 W

Public interest can be interpreted in various ways such as the common good, the general welfare, the overall quality of life of people as individual and society as a collective. In simpler terms the collective realisation of social values, rights and privileges is a necessary to conduct smooth functioning of financial administration in a state. The need for any responsible administration is to concentrate on those types of activities which make a definite and justifiable contribution to the accomplishment of public interest and public satisfaction that can be expressed in the implementation of public policies. It is quite essential to realise that financial policy is expected to meet the broad aims as spelt out in public policies. One should be clear about the meaning of public choice

96% MATCHING BLOCK 88/328 W

70% MATCHING BLOCK 89/328 W

as

100% MATCHING BLOCK 90/328 W

public choice is a choice which encompasses common life and is shared by all. 2) The principle of political direction and control

The politico-legal framework of a state is of great importance for conditioning of both public and private activities.

80% MATCHING BLOCK 91/328 W

This structure is found in basic laws of the land and in prevailing customs, conventions and traditions by which political ideals and ideas exist and develop within a system. Financial administration, as a subsystem of public administration, should agree to these political ideas and ideals as expressed through the constitutional process of the society. Further,

there is always a need to adjust financial administration

100% MATCHING BLOCK 92/328 W

to the political structure of a particular society to which it is attached. In the 21 st century, most countries have accepted democratic ideas and ideals

98% MATCHING BLOCK 93/328 W

and have replaced all the previous structures and ideals. Therefore, the system of financial administration is to be organised and operated in a manner so as to secure compliance with the will of legislature as expressed through the various democratic statuettes enshrined. These may include laws such as - Appropriation Act, the Finance Act and other policy devices. The nature of these laws is both public and fiscal. In order to ensure its control over financial administration of the executive government, the legislature (parliament) takes an account of financial functions through an independent audit organisation like the

90% MATCHING BLOCK 94/328 W

C & AG in India.
20 2)

81% MATCHING BLOCK 95/328 W

The Principle of Correspondence This principle suggests a causal relationship between the objectives of financial administration and the functions of the administration. In simpler terms,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 96/328 W

the human and material resources necessary to accomplish such objectives must have a flexible yet strong correspondence between them.

91% MATCHING BLOCK 97/328 W

The type of functions, the personnel required to handle them and the physical facilities necessary for the purpose should have a rational mutual interrelationship. The objectives and the functions should provide the basis for staffing and equipping of the financial organisation to serve the people in a better manner which respects the democratic rational system of the present order. 4). The Principle of Unity of Organisation and Management and Objectives Unity of organisation is the source of strength for any organisation be it private or public. Most thinkers of public administration link

73% MATCHING BLOCK 98/328 W

this principle to centralisation-based efficiency. While it should not be taken to mean centralisation of every minute detail at the top of hierarchy but it does mean that the work is coordinated between the different financial and non-financial agencies and highly evaluated by the top officials of the government.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 99/328 W

Experiences of developing countries have exposed the inadequacy of centralised decision making that had followed conservative protection of domestic markets based on centralised planning post 2 nd World War. The most widespread tenet of financial administration today revolves around the facet of centralised direction and decentralised decision making and decision implementation. The concept of administrative financial control has slowly given way to the concept of management of results. This principle supports centralised guidance for facilitating decentralised decision making with a view to securing maximum production (quantity) as well as optimum utility (quality). The concept of national planning of various developing countries can be taken as an example of such ideal. 5) The principle of stability and balance Any system to function at its optimum requires stability and balance between its functioning units as well as constituting units. The feature is maintained by recruitment of regularised and trained personnel. There is also a requirement to have a backup force to maintain the stability of the 21 administration and thus, this principle calls upon financial organisations to not only recruit and maintain a stable order of personnel but

80% MATCHING BLOCK 100/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 101/328 W

develop capacity to withstand losses of specific trained personnel without serious consequences to effectiveness, and efficiency. For this purpose, there is need for effective-manpower planning together with a good programme for human resource development. 6) The principle of simplicity and flexibility

The 21 st century is the century of democracy with most countries shifting to democratic forms of government based on popular mandate of the people. People become the core of democratic sovereignty in all such countries.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 102/328 W

All other democratic institutions, including parliament, derive their authority from the people.

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 103/328	W

Therefore, it is very essential that the financial system and its procedures should be simplified in such a manner so as to become accessible to the commonfolk. If this principle is implemented properly, it can reduce cost and

78%	MATCHING BLOCK 104/328	W

economise the system to a great extent. The principle of flexibility implies that the financial organisation should develop capacity to adjust itself. to fluctuations on work flows, human compositions and physical facilities. 7) The principle of conduct, discipline and regularity The officials of public financial organisations are supposed to act ethically and set high ethical standards as they are the custodians of public money and keep the system working flawlessly. Income tax officials as sentries to keep public money safe

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 105/328	W

could be very effective in preventing tax evasion by setting ethical examples themselves by their on-field actions.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 106/328	W

The principle of discipline implies that the objectives, rules and regulations, the policies, procedures and programmes must be honoured by each and every member of a public financial organisation. Any financial organisation can only function effectively with a strict structure of firm financial discipline. What is needed is voluntary or self-discipline to reach desired goals.

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 107/328	W

The principle of regularity implies that no financial organisation, can afford to function at intervals.

It's a continuous process of administration that makes it competent and thus must be maintained diligently. 8) The principle of Public Trust and Accountability
22 The responsibility of any financial administration is to collect and disburse public funds as a public trust. But as alike any other system it is never full proof and susceptible to malpractice making it quite vulnerable and which in turn

94%	MATCHING BLOCK 108/328	W

can lead to misuse of these funds for personal interest. Financial administration has therefore to be held publicly answerable for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional, moral and aspirational. Here accountability implies answerability for one's responsibility and for trust bestowed in an official.

Crimes are to be punished by dismissal and redressal of requisite nature. 2.5 CONCLUSION Over the years the functional role of financial administration has undergone a major change. It has come to be viewed

100% MATCHING BLOCK 109/328 W

in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment of the same to engage public funds for the benefit of the larger masses in an equitable manner. Any form of financial administration is expected to subserve the broad objectives specified in public policies of a given time, there remains certain fundamental objectives which are pursued by financial administrators to maximise the output from the system without endangering it partially or wholly. As is evident from the experience of developed and underdeveloped countries, in the unit, management of the finances of public funds, facilitation of economic growth of the country, ensuring full employment of the populace, price stability of commodities in the domestic market and equitable distribution of wealth between the people are some of the important objectives of financial administration. Cultural diversities impede the system to lay down universal principles of financial administration but their existence in some form or the other is universally accepted. However, based upon the experience in international and inter-cultural contexts, it can be inferred certain principles to serve as broad guidelines. These include, primacy of public policy and political direction and control; unity of organisation and management; correspondence among objectives, functions and resources; stability; simplicity; balance and flexibility etc. Financial administration in India reached an advanced position from as early as 4th century B.C as mentioned under Kautilya's Arthshastra to the leeway provided by the Narsimha Rao government in the early 1990's. There is much in the fiscal history of India that one can feel proud of. A beginning has been made to establish modern system of financial

23 administration during British period and the post independent developmental model supported by a people responsive financial administration has provided Indian democracy to function in a manner which is unique in South Asian countries. 2.6 SUMMARY • Financial administration is dynamic affair and has undergone many changes since the inception of nation state and its functionaries. • Every potent system must have certain principles on which its groundings are based upon and provide the structural strength to the system. • The goals of financial administration are to be people oriented, structures, regulated, and maintained by a professionally trained personnel system of officers who are of high moral fabric in execution of duties to execute public good based on policies mandated by government and stop any form of misappropriation. • Financial administration has to be held publicly accountable and thus has to be answerable to the electorate

100% MATCHING BLOCK 110/328 W

for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional for economic democracy to sustain itself in a nation. 2.7 KEY WORDS • Capital- an amount of money that you use to start a business or to put in a bank, etc. so that you earn more money (interest) on it. • Subsystem- a self-contained system within a larger system. • Equity- the quality of being fair and impartial. • Personnel- the people who work for a large organization. • Exchequer- the government department that receives and gives out public money, in the UK and some other countries 2.8 MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • Explain capital formation? • Why discipline is a central tenet of any administrative force/personnel?

24 • Explain the principle of trust and accountability? • What is Comptroller and Auditor General? Medium questions • Explain the Principle of Unity of Organisation and Management and Objectives? • Mention the 8 objectives of financial administration? • What are the budgetary concepts which are to be kept in mind while engaging in planning of finances? Long questions • What are the budgetary concepts which have found their way into Indian economic reforms package? • Explain how financial administration has changed post economic liberalisation in India? • Explain the goals and mechanisms for ensuring accountability in financial administration? 2.9 REFERENCES

92% MATCHING BLOCK 111/328 W

Sundharam, K.P.M., (1974.) Indian Public Finance and Financial Administration, Fourth Edition, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi. Thavaraj, M.

J., (1978.) Financial Administration of India, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi.
Adams, H.C., (1908.) The Science of Finance, Henry Holt and Company: New York. Bhargava, R.N., (1977.) Indian Public Service, Bhargava & Sons: Chandausi.
25 UNIT 3 SIGNIFICANCE OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE 3.1.Learning Objectives 3.2.Introduction 3.3.Significance of Financial Administration 3.4.Independent India's financial administration 3.5.Conclusion 3.6.Summary 3.7.Key words 3.8.Model questions 3.9.References 3.1.
LEARNING

88% MATCHING BLOCK 112/328 W

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one will be able to- • Discuss the significance of financial

administration in a country. • Learn about how financial administration impacts the economy of any nation. • Learn the various ways of how financial stability enhances a nation's bureaucratic standing. • Enhance the outlook already provided in earlier chapters and create a encourage to think critically about financial administrative measures. 3.2. INTRODUCTION Modern day capitalism is centred around market policies structured inherently in money transaction controlled and coordinated by both national and international institutions. This system is based around the goal of maximising profit on neoliberal grounds. Most democracies in the world today have accepted the above-mentioned system to create stable national economies, create jobs, balance fiscal policy and participate in international trade. In order to sustain such a comprehensively complex structure a system of coordinated personnel is a must to be kept at all the requisite institutions. Private institutions are more entrenched in profit creation processes and thus susceptible to vulnerabilities. Such vulnerabilities have harmed the present economic structure many times, the biggest of which 26 were the crash of 1930's and the crash of 2008. National economies cannot afford to be hit in such a manner. National governments aren't spenders of public money but rather trustees of public money. Using the said money for profit seeking is risky and detrimental to the national exchequer. This may lead to financial crash, inflation, budgetary decline, stagflation and even bankruptcy. To avoid all such dangerous circumstances national governments in most democracies, tend to have an established institutionalisation of financial administration within the larger ambit of public administration which is simply called bureaucracy. Such an administration works with a professional personnel force to look after the due processes related with public finance. This administration formulates polices for better management of national finances and to create and regulate structures to lead national economic growth, stabilised business atmosphere. The principles and goals of financial administration is centred around creating strong economic structures, tangible economic relationships, stable markets, avert economic blunders, stop misappropriation, regulate inflow and outflow, create accountability and implement public policy for public good and enhancing the country's economic standing nationally as well as globally. Democracies favour such structures immensely and thus are rendered to public representatives for insight, oversight and formulation with the professional bureaucracy looking after the on-field implementation and review of the policies passed in the legislature. The significance of such an organisation is immense both theoretically and practically. The unit discusses how this significance is expressed in modern day democracies with pertinent examples from the Indian financial administration. 3.3. SIGNIFICANCE The significance of financial administration in any nation is entrenched not only in its functioning but in the constitution as well. Most modern democracies have a clear mention of how finances of the state are to be maintained and looked after by various agencies and the agencies are given constitutional mandate to perform such duties. The significance of financial administration can be discussed under the following heads: Success of Promotion Depends on Financial Administration.

27 Financial planning is of utmost importance to any well-established order. It is through this planning that any stable authority decides upon how to spend its finances over a specific period of time. Promotion of businesses in a nation requires intricate planning of investment into the ventures and thus takes the effort of a well-oiled machinery under an adept financial administrator. One of the most important reasons of failures of business promotions is a defective financial plan. If the plan adopted fails to provide sufficient money to meet the requirement of fixed aspirations or it fails to assume the obligations by the corporations without establishing earning power, the business cannot be carried on successfully. Hence sound financial plan is very necessary for the success of any economic enterprise. Smooth Running of an Enterprise. Any national economy requires an unencumbered and stable functioning of its subsidiaries. National economy is the largest enterprise that a financial administration takes care of. The decisions taken by such an administration is of national importance. Sound financial planning is therefore necessary for the smooth running of such an enterprise especially when it is considered with public money. Money is to an economy what oil is to an engine. As finance is required at each stage of an enterprise undertaken by the government which starts from basic policy formulation to promotion, incorporation, development, expansion and administration of day-to-day working etc., a smooth- running machinery is a must to keep the system functioning and being responsive to the demands of the national and international economy working. To meet all such demands a proper administration of finance is very necessary. Proper financial administration means the study, analysis and evaluation of all financial problems to be faced by the management and to take proper decision with reference to the present circumstances in regard to the procurement and utilization of funds. Financial Administration Coordinates Various Functional Activities. Financial administration provides complete coordination between various functional areas such as policy promotion, implementation as well as creating a feedback loop. to achieve the organizational goals. If financial management is defective, the efficiency of all other departments can, in no way, be

28 maintained. As already mentioned, finance is the core of any administration functioning (oil to an engine) and other arms of the system are only as good as the financing done to them for implementation of respective policies. For example, the salaries of public officials are paid under the consolidated fund of India according to Indian laws, the allocation done accordingly by the finance department which revises it every year depending on the situation of the economy. This keeps the bureaucracy functional and active at work as regular payments means a safe work culture and subsequently an active bureaucracy keep the system running smoothly. The disbursement though isn't done by the finance department it is the coordinating authority between various public functionaries as in this case the public personnel department is with the finance department. Thus, financial administration occupies a central place in the organization which controls and coordinates all other activities in the concern of monetary matters. Focal Point of Decision-Making. No administration can function with haphazard work culture especially in the public sector. Public finance therefore is not a department that can be toyed or put through difficulties as the fate of a population and economic tidings of country lies with it. Financial administration thus needs to be a system capable of being objective in its approach, realistic about its goals and competent at its functioning to meet its desired goals. Financial administration provides scientific analysis of all facts and figures through various financial tools, such as different financial statements, budgets etc., which help in evaluating the effectiveness of the plan in the given circumstances, so that a proper decision can be taken to minimize the risk involved in the plan. This creates a system of responsible decision making under the administration which provides a holistic overview of the machinations required to keep the system functioning. Determinant of Success. It has been recognized, even in India that the financial administrators play a very important role in the success of the national economic structure by advising the top legislative units as well as the top

29 executive units of which they are a part. They are the ones that provide the solutions of the various financial problems as experts. They present important facts and figures regarding financial position on the performance of various functionaries of the government in a given period before the competent authority in such a way so as to make it easier for the authorities to evaluate the progress of the departments concerned to amend suitably the principles and policies of the department concerned. The financial administration in the form of the finance ministry assists the government in its decision- making process by suggesting the best possible alternative out of the various alternatives of the problem available on grounds of policies. Hence, financial management helps the government at different levels in taking financial decisions that are to benefit the country as whole. Measure of Performance. The performance of the government can be measured by its financial results, by determining the value of the economy in various quarters of a financial years based on various standards such as GDP (Gross domestic product), GNP (Gross national product), FDI (Foreign direct investment), total exports and imports, increase of foreign exchange reserves etc. Financial decisions therefore are finally determined to be success or failure based on the review on performance, which again is a function of the financial administrators. The budget presented every year isn't only a planning mechanism for future but also acts as retrospective instrument explaining what changes are to be brought on based on last year's policies. Therefore, financial administration is of paramount importance because not only for the present and future but also for the past. 3.4. INDEPENDENT INDIA'S FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION It was in 1947 that India broke the shackles of socio-political as well as economic dependence from the colonial powers.

84% MATCHING BLOCK 113/328 W

Independence brought basic changes in the political context of financial administration. The principle of executive responsibility to the legislature was formalised extensively.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 114/328 W

The budgetary and other systems and procedures were tuned to subserve this principle and its implementation.

The institutions that were created to monitor monetary policy with the legislature were called legislative committees. These legislative committees began taking an active interest in the 30 form, content, legality and regularity of public spending as office bearers and guardians of public money. One of the most crucial functionaries created was the position of Comptroller and Auditor General of India, an office created to enshrine and implement the principle of public accountability on various institutions of the government both at the centre and at the states.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 115/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 116/328 W

The Comptroller and Auditor-General became a constitutional authority with a responsibility to aid legislative control and exercise accountability measures regarding utilisation of public money.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 117/328 W

The financial administration gradually shifted its focus from stability to welfare of the people, development and equity of the country and the populace as a whole.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 118/328 W

Planning and Budgeting got united in the form of Performance Budgeting in 1974 which gave result orientation to financial processes. The system of financial control has been basically restructured so as to make it an instrument of plan implementation. Significant powers were delegated to various departments requiring budgetary allocation for implantation of public policies

100% MATCHING BLOCK 119/328 W

through various delegation schemes such as the schemes of 1955, 1958, 1962, 1968 and 1975. The responsibility for financial control was thus rendered to such departments that require money for implementation of policies and achieves the same by investment, procurement and other methods.

This was broadly achieved by

100% MATCHING BLOCK 120/328 W

two means- First one was the scheme of Integrated Financial Advice and the second was the separation of audit and accounts. In order to meet the growing financial needs of development expenditure, budget became an instrument of resource mobilisation. Consequently, several steps were taken to rationalise tax structure.

Various mechanisms were drawn up to assist the process some of the prominent ones were the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 121/328 W

Kaldor's tax proposals, Wanchoo Committee Report, Jha Committee Report. 1.

Jha Committee: The Indirect Taxa- Enquiry Committee was constituted by the Government of India under the chairmanship of L.K. Jha in 1974. It was set up with the objectives of examining the role of indirect taxation in promoting economic use of scarce resources, in mobilising, its impact on prices and costs and to suggest suitable reforms in the indirect taxation system. 2. Wanchoo Committee: The Direct taxes Enquiry Committee set up by the Government of India in 1970 under chairmanship of Mr. Justice R.N. Wanchoo. The Committee was to 31 recommend concrete, effective measures for unearthing black money, checking avoidance of tax, suggest improvements in tax assessment and administration These initiatives stand out as instances to rationalise the public expenses of the country and suggest changes to make taxation policies more coordinated to help the organisations enhance management of public finances. Deficit finance became a regular feature as the government. The government had to bear costs of various welfare schemes to propel development of the country based on enhancing the capabilities of the population. Nationalisation of banking system was considered as an instrument to channel national funds towards development activities.

78% MATCHING BLOCK 122/328 W

Financial administration thus too a major burden of helping the country achieve its developmental goals with budget deficits especially from the public sector. The public sector in turn

100% MATCHING BLOCK 123/328 W

assumed significant importance in advancing the goals of development and equity

as investment increased in this sector rapidly. The financial administration thus took on a massive rejuvenation for a newly decolonised country and though the successes of stabilisation, regularity, efficiency, equity was visible, as with every form of bureaucratic order,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 124/328 W

there were certain undesirable consequences. Galloping inflation, sinking balance of payments position, increasing negative returns from public sector, shrinking public savings and resource base etc. have made some negative impact on the overall picture of Indian economy. These problems

100% MATCHING BLOCK 125/328 W

have had a cumulative impact on financial administration in such a way that the government had to take steps to set right these tendencies,

which again stands testament to the fact that the efficiency of financial administration in India is not only in its active role of maintaining the cohesiveness of Indian financial structure but also learning from the negative impacts of certain policies and reacting to those in a manner that shows the administration is learning with every step. 3.5. CONCLUSION To sum up, financial administration isn't only about its goals and principles and how it functions, it is also about why it is necessary in the modern system. Any form of public administration is as good as its financial resources without which its nothing but a sitting duck susceptible to the fluctuations of the market vulnerabilities and collapse. At every level from policy formulation to implementation to feedback and reaction based on the feedback the financial administrators perform functions are at 32 most times unfathomable to the common masses, but it is these functions that keep the lowest and highest institution within the system functioning in a manner that enhances growth, welfare, safety, balance and above all freedom. In India the function undertaken by the Finance ministry does all these and much more to keep the national exchequer safe from volatile and destructive consequences. Considering the 70+ years of our independence with only minor shocks that have rattled the national economy, it can be safely assumed that the financial administration of India has been functioning responsibly using the public money judiciously and creating a system where growth is supported holistically and in an unencumbered way. 3.6. SUMMARY • Financial administration is not only about goal achievement but also about how the process re-energises the system to keep performing in a cohesive manner. • Every department in a government is centred around the finance provided by the financial administration which allocates money based on budgetary requirements. There is a necessity of different departments to coordinate amongst themselves to keep the process of public financing active and also create a feedback system where if problems faced during implementation, corrective measures could be taken. • The significance of financial administration isn't limited to performance but also keeping public finance safe, the system responsive to change and correction after getting feedback upon completion of government projects related to funding. • Indian administration has gone from decolonised dependent system to a centralised independent one over the course of 70 years. The most recent change has been the deregulation of powers and decentralisation of responsibilities to be more people oriented and create processes that enhance public faith. • The Wanchoo Committee and the Jha Committee have tried to bring in major taxation changes in the system to keep it functioning in a people-oriented manner and stopping it from becoming a slow centralising authority.

33 • The Finance ministry does all the primary functions to keep the national exchequer safe from volatile and destructive consequences and assist in contributing to the overall development of the country in financial matters directly and helping in other situations indirectly. 3.7. KEY WORDS • Unencumbered- Not slowed down, or retarded; free to move, advance, or go forward. • Vulnerability- The condition of needing supportive or protective social services and community resources. • Testament- Evidence of a structured and resolute manner. • Cumulative- Formed by or resulting from accumulation or the addition of successive parts or elements. • Inflation- A persistent, substantial rise in the general level of prices related to an increase in the volume of money and resulting in the loss of value of currency. • Sitting duck- Prone to attack in a situation of being incapable to act or respond in a situation • Decolonised- The state of coming out of being under the rule of a country or gaining independence from a colonial power. • GDP- GDP stands for "Gross Domestic Product" and represents the total monetary value of all final goods and services produced (and sold on the market) within a country during a period of time (typically 1 year). • GNP- Gross National Product (GNP) is the total value of all finished goods and services produced by a country's citizens in a given financial year, irrespective of their location. GNP also measures the output generated by a country's businesses located domestically or abroad. • FDI- Foreign direct investment (FDI) is when a company takes controlling ownership in a business entity in another country. With FDI, foreign companies are directly involved with day-to-day operations in the other country. This means they aren't just bringing money with them, but also knowledge, skills and technology.
34 3.8. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • Name any three mechanisms brought in to rationalise the taxation process in India? • What is the meaning of GDP? • What can happen to the national economy if the financial administrators are not performing their duties properly? Medium questions • Which is the institution that coordinates the various departments' budgetary demands in Indian government? • Administration in India is a matter between the politicians and bureaucrats explain the statement? • Write a short note on the importance of financial stability for a nation? Long questions • Discuss the significance of financial administration in modern democracies? • Explain in detail why the smooth and regulated functioning of the financial administrator in a country important for its economy? • List any 3 ways in which public administration enhances the development of national economy? 3.9. REFERENCES
Lall,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 126/328 W

G.S., (1976.) Public Finance and Financial Administration in India, H.P. Kapoor: New Delhi.

Reed, B.J. (1997) Public Finance administration, Sage publications, New Delhi.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 127/328 W

Musgrave & Musgrave, (1989.) Public Finance in Theory and Practice, McGraw Hill Book Company: New York. 35

Adams, H.C., (1908). The Science of finance, Henry Holt and Company:

85% MATCHING BLOCK 128/328 W

New York Thavaraj, M.J., (1978.) Financial Administration of India, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi.

UNIT 4 DISTINCTION BETWEEN PRIVATE AND PUBLIC FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE 4.1.Learning Objectives 4.2.Introduction 4.3.What is private financial administration (management) 4.4.What is public financial administration 4.5.Conclusion 4.6.Summary 4.7.Key words 4.8.Model

81% MATCHING BLOCK 129/328 W

questions 4.9.References 4.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one should be able to: • Explain the meaning

and the concept of private financial administration. • Describe the differences between public institutions and private institutions in handling respective finances. • Discuss how public finance is oriented towards public policy. • Discuss how private finance is oriented towards profit maximisation. • Bring out the distinction between public and private financial administration both in terms of institutions and processes.
36 4.2. INTRODUCTION Finance is an important function is any business as money is required to support its various activities. No organization in the modern world can survive without a regulated flow of finance. It is the money that flows into any organisation be it public or private that keeps the machine running. The consequences of such a smooth function in case of public institution is the proper implementation of public policies put forward by the state machinery to achieve general public good/welfare. For private institutions the same leads to profit making for the increase and expansion of the institution's economic power and keeping the workforce agile and active for better performance. Public finance implies broadly the money that is with the government. It is the branch of economics that assesses the government revenues and expenditure and its adjustment to achieve the desirable objectives. Thus, comprehending the essence of public finance depends upon an understanding of the nature of economics. This comprehension in modern democracies is done by means of public financial administrators looking after public money. The same is there in private institutions in the form of financial managers who take care of the operations of the institutions keeping the investors' money safe and yield profits. Financial administration is very important to every type of organization. It refers to that part of managerial activity concerned with the procurement and utilization of funds for business purposes. Howard and Upton have defined the financial administration as it involves the application of general management principles to financial operations. The scope of financial administration is very wide and it should not be considered to be merely restricted for raising of capital. It also covers other aspects of financing such as assessing the needs of capital, raising sufficient amount of funds, cost of financing, budgeting, maintain liquidity, lending and borrowing policies, dividend policies and so on. Finance is considered as the life-blood of any business. It is defined as the provision of money at the time it is needed. In the early half of the 20 th century, the job of financial administration was largely confined to the acquisition of funds for meeting the demands of the institutions. Private business firms continued to expand in this era. As the private domain of markets and the markets itself became larger. With increased diversity, greater control of financial operation took precedence and became important. In

40% MATCHING BLOCK 130/328 W

37 such a scenario, businesses would remain mere institutions of daily capital rotation rather than serve as developmental structures for their investors and their operators unless adequate money is available to convert them into reality. In essence private financial management is concerned with broadly four tasks. The first and foremost is estimation of the fixed and working capital requirements; secondly, formulation of capital structure; thirdly, procurement of fixed and working capital; and fourthly, management of earnings. With an effective means of implanting the above-mentioned requirements a stable private institution can be financed properly. Thus, a competent form of structure is always necessary to maintain the principles of the finance management so that mismanagement, misappropriation and other form of derailment can be avoided. 4.3. WHAT IS PRIVATE FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION (MANAGEMENT) As per Francis Fukuyama, the fall of USSR had led to the erosion of substitutive ideologies to market capitalism. Though the theorist has recently taken his assumption back and retracted, the evident truth of modern-day economics is that market politics are heavily sided with the capitalist section worldwide rather than the alternatives of few other nations. In such a scenario where, private business takes precedence in global economy over public financial progression it can be rightly assumed that financial management has grown by leaps and bounds in the present order. To put in simple terms financial management is a managerial activity concerned with planning and controlling of the firm's financial resources to generate returns on its invested funds. The goals of such a firm/institution is primarily raising and using of capital for generating funds and paying returns to the suppliers of capital. This is the core finance function of a firm. Thus, the prerogative for financial managers in private sector remains that the funds raised by the company shall be invested in the best investment opportunities, with an expectation of future benefits. The process of financial management includes various processes that are crucial to an effective utilisation of funds for the company's benefit planning. These processes include organizing, directing and controlling the financial activities such as procurement and utilization of funds of the enterprise. It also means applying general management principles to financial resources of the enterprise.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 131/328 W

The scope of financial management includes:
38 •

94% MATCHING BLOCK 132/328 W

Investment decisions: includes investment in fixed assets (called as capital budgeting). Investments in current assets are also a part of investment decisions called as working capital decisions. • Financial decisions: relate to the raising of finance from various resources which will depend upon decision on type of source, period of financing, cost of financing and the returns thereby. • Dividend decision: The finance manager has to take decision with regards to the net profit distribution. Net profits are generally divided into two: a) Dividend for shareholders- dividend and the rate of it has to be decided. b) Retained profits- amount of retained profits has to be finalized which will depend upon expansion and diversification plans of the enterprise. The financial management of any institution has to take three important decisions to enhance its economic quality in terms of objective goals- (i) Investment decision- decisions about where to invest fund and in what amount, (ii) Financing decision- decision that answer the question regarding from where to raise funds and in what amount for investment into the company. (iii) Dividend- the amount of money the institution needs to pay for functioning. In simpler terms how much to pay dividend and how much to retain for future expansion. In order to make these decisions the management must have a clear understanding of the objective sought to be achieved. It is generally agreed that the financial objective of the firm should be maximization of owner's economic welfare. There are two widely discussed approaches or criterion of maximizing owners' welfare – (i) Profit maximization. (ii) Wealth maximization. It should be noted here that objective is used in the sense of goal or goals or decision criterion for the three decisions involved.

39 Profit Maximization: Maximization of profits is the process of increasing the gains of a company over a particular period of time on investments, sale or production. Therefore, maximisation of profits is very often considered as the Financial Management's main objective of a business enterprise. The shareholders, the owners of the business invest their funds in the business with the hope of getting returns and the expectation is always targeted at gaining higher dividend on their investment. It is always the profitability of the business which is considered the prime indicator of the sound condition of the organization. The core reason behind this is the fact that it safeguards the economic interests of various social groups which are directly or indirectly connected with the company which includes but doesn't limit itself to the shareholders, creditors and employees. The ideals remains that these units get reasonable return for their contributions to the entity. The proper execution of this is possible only when the company earns higher profits for itself or accumulates sufficient profits to discharge the obligations that are to be honoured by them. Wealth Maximization: The factor of wealth maximization is a universally accepted criterion for financial decision making across institutions. Wealth of an entity is to be calculated in simple terms by adding the assets and subtracting the debts of the entity. If after such a calculation there is an excess resource remaining with the entity that can be termed as wealth of the entity The value of an asset is generally to be viewed in terms of benefits it can produce over the cost of capital investment. Ira Solomon of Tulane University has defined the concept of wealth maximization as follows- "The gross present worth of a course of action is equal to the capitalized value of the flow of future expected benefits, discounted (or as capitalized) at a rate which reflects their certainty or uncertainty. Wealth or net amount of capital investment required to achieve the benefits being discussed. Any financial action which creates wealth or which has a net present worth above zero is a desirable one and should be undertaken. Any financial action which does not meet this test should be rejected. If two or more desirable courses of action are mutually exclusive (i.e., if only one can be undertaken) then the decision should be to do that which creates most wealth or shows the greatest amount of net present worth".

40 In private institutions, financial management has the operational objective to maximize wealth or net present worth. Regarding the same, it can be said that the concept of wealth maximization is based on cash flows (inflows and outflows) generated by the decisions of the financial managers. If inflows are greater than outflows, the decision is productive because the resultant shows that maximization of the wealth of the owners has happened. Administration in the form of management is crucial to the functioning of a private organisation in global market system which is the most pervasive form of economic system available. Though no system is perfect and even after the most secure and stable form of functioning, a firm can be affected due to global forces going haywire such as the one happened in the Great Depression of the late 1920's and the global recession of 2008, but the success of financial managers has been to avert global economic collapse amongst various financial systems and maintaining a healthy financial relationship not only between countries but also between companies as well. 4.4. WHAT IS PUBLIC FINANCIAL ADMINISTARTION Public finance is defined as the study of the financial activities of government and public authorities that work under the government. Though some form of financial administration is prevalent in every country to look after public finance, it is mostly in representative democracies that we see an unencumbered effective financial administration functioning for the good of the people and development of the nation. It describes and analyses the expenditures of government and the techniques used to finance these expenditures. It studies the activities discharged, and services provided by the government and the taxes being used to generate its funds. The public financial administrator examines the influence of government financial operations on growth, employment, prices etc. which are of paramount importance to the ruling as well as maintenance of peace and security in a state. The physical and social infrastructures are integral to the objectives of public finance and can only be looked after by a permanent authority that acts as a bridge between action- oriented procedures and allocation based on analysis of revenues- The Public Financial Administration. In case of India this institution is called the Finance ministry under the government of 41 India which coordinates the total national economy, finance and regulates it for national development. The State's role and activities are all linked to public finance which in turn seen by the administrators in the ministry. In India, State intervention through policies related to public finance, includes ensuring safety and security of the people, which are: • Protection of property rights of the citizens • Reduction of wide regional disparities • Development of physical and social infrastructure • Correction of markets • Lessening the gap between income inequalities • Provision of education, health care, sanitation and hygiene, support price to agriculture etc. Public finance can be explained in the following subtypes- 1)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

71% MATCHING BLOCK 133/328 W

Public Revenue Public revenue collects money from the public through direct and indirect taxes penalties, fines, fees, maintenance, etc. 2)

80% MATCHING BLOCK 135/328 W

Public Expenditure Public expenditure is the expenditure for the public like infrastructural facilities, basic health facilities, medical and educational facilities, etc. 3) Public Debt When the expenditure exceeds the revenue, the government can take the help of debt to fulfil the country's needs and run the economy. Public financial administration is unlimited in it powers to use the revenues earned y the government but the responsibility is also high the scope for individual economic nourishment is very limited in such a scenario. Profit maximisation paves way for public good based on proper implementation of public policies designed in close coordination with the departments that require budgetary allocation. Financial management of the national finances based in public funds, lead to facilitation of economic 42 growth of the country, ensuring full employment of the populace, price stability of commodities in the domestic market and equitable distribution of wealth between the people. These are some of the important objectives of financial administration that make it stand out in stark contrast with private entities under private managers. 4.5. CONCLUSION There is a clear distinction between how a public entity function regarding matters of finance and how a private entity function. Though there may be similarities between the goals and principles of the two, how one manages the finance it generates varies in degrees of both quality as well as quantity. Public financial administration shows the following features- 1) The government agencies under the leadership of the Public financial administrator balance their income and expenditure. 2) A government based financial administration does not save any funds and has to spend whatever revenues have been accrued under a specified budget. 3) The public financial administrator has the power to raise loans internally and from another person or from externally as required under budgetary concerns. 4) There is flexibility in public finances, for example the government cannot resort to deficit financing. The financial administration will be rendered incapable of implementing public policies if such form of economic deficit is faced. 5) Public financial administrators can under directive of the government can take recourse to compulsive measures. 6) The government in case of any emergency has the authority to print notes. Through the national mind and the central bank of a country the government has the right to print notes 7) The scope of public finance is wide. Private finance has limited scope. 8) Public financial administration has to incur a compulsory characteristic as it has to incur certain expenditure which is necessary for example- defence or civil administration, both of 43 which cannot be left to private management as national security and matters of law and order are at stake here. Private financial management on the other hands shows the following features- 1) Individual private entities adjust the expenditure. Financial managers tend to allow expenditure based on the income of the company and thus are limited in action. 2) Private companies tend to save money to hold financial resource and keep it aside for surplus budget. This surplus is to be used on advice of the financial manager but the advice isn't bound on the private owners. 3) A private institution can only take loan from another private entity or from another external agency, the government is liable to help such entities in times of financial ruin incurred by mismanagement. 4) Funds of a private institution are managed by recruited individuals based on contracts rather than expertise based professional work force as mandated and maintained by public financial organisations. 5) A private entity legally has no to use or rather cannot use compulsive measures to get income or revenue. Financial managers can suggest methods of increasing the same but those cant be compulsion based. 6) No entity except the government has the legal right to print notes. Private Financial management is rendered incapacitated in such a situation. 7) Private finance has limited scope as the goals and objectives are limited by goals of profit and wealth maximization. 8) Private finance cannot be optional as some expenses can be postponed.

44 4.6. SUMMARY • Finance is considered as the lifeblood or any business. Scope of financial management includes: Investment decisions, financing decisions and dividend decisions.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 134/328 W

The financial management is generally concerned with procurement, allocation and control of financial resources of a concern.

Its main objective is to maximize the profits and value of shareholder funds. Main functions of financial management are: Estimation of capital requirements, determination of capital's composition, investment of funds, and financial control. • Financial management takes majorly 2 forms to cover the holistic corpus of finance in the world. One is private financial management and the second is the public financial administration. • Private financial management is centred around the goals of profit and wealth. It seeks to protect the investment made by investors in the institution, lessen the cost of production, procurement to save the capital of the firm and pay dividends based on mutually agreeable terms. This holistically enhances the economic condition of the firm, yielding returns for the people who have invested in its production or services as well as maintaining the personnel recruited by paying dividends. • Public finance is a key component of government activity. It deals with government revenue, expenditure, public debt, borrowings, and related financial aspects. This unit provides an overview of the concept of public finance, types, and its linkages with public policy and makes distinction between public and private finance. • Public financial administration is related to the use of public money by the government and its functionaries. In such a situation the government imposes tax on the populace as well as on products to earn a certain amount of money in the name of the national exchequer. It also earns money on sale of goods and services in the form of exports and earns dividends on taxable imports. The money earned is to be used for implementing public policies as devised by the various departments working under the financial administrator of the country.
45 4.7 KEY WORDS • Financial Management- The planning, directing, monitoring, organizing, and controlling of the monetary resources of an organization. • Auditing- An examination and verification of a company's financial and accounting records and supporting documents by a professional, such as a Certified Public Accountant. • Profit- a financial gain, especially the difference between the amount earned and the amount spent in buying, operating, or producing something. • Investment- it is an is an asset acquired or invested in to build wealth and save money from the hard-earned income or appreciation. Investment meaning is primarily to obtain an additional source of income or gain profit from the investment over a specific period of time. • Dividends- Dividend refers to a reward, cash or otherwise, that a company gives to its shareholders. Dividends can be issued in various forms, such as cash payment, stocks or any other form. A company's dividend is decided by its board of directors and it requires the shareholders' approval. • Wealth- Wealth measures the value of all the assets of worth owned by a person, community, company, or country. Wealth is determined by taking the total market value of all physical and intangible assets owned, then subtracting all debts. Essentially, wealth is the accumulation of scarce resources. • Finance- Finance is defined as the management of money and includes activities such as investing, borrowing, lending, budgeting, saving, and forecasting. There are three main types of finance: (1) personal, (2) corporate, and (3) public/government. • Great depression- The Great Depression was the greatest and longest economic recession in modern world history that ran between 1929 and 1941. Investing in the speculative market in the 1920s led to the stock market crash in 1929, which wiped out a great deal of nominal wealth.
46 4.8 MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions What is finance? What is the orientation of private financial management? Explain auditing? Medium questions • Explain in short how wealth of an entity be measured? • What is meant by Great Depression and when did it took place? • Discuss in various way that public money is used by the financial administrators? Long questions • Explain the two major objectives of private financial management? • Discuss in detail how Ira Solomon explains wealth maximization? • Explain any 4 differences between Private financial management and Public financial administration in detail? 4.9 REFERENCES Chandra, Prasanna, (2010), Fundamentals of Financial Management, 5 th edition, Tata McGraw Hill Education, New Delhi.

96% MATCHING BLOCK 136/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

Mahajan S. K. & Mahajan, A. (2014). Financial Administration in India. New Delhi, India: PHI

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Musgrave, R.M. (1959). The Theory of Public Finance. New York: McGraw Hill Book Company, New Delhi Rao, M.G. (2017). Public Finance in India in the Context of India's Development. Working Paper No. 219. New Delhi, India: National Instituted of Public Finance and Public Policy. Khan and Jain, (2007), Financial Management: Text, Problems and Cases, 4 th edition, Tata McGraw Hill, New Delhi.

47 UNIT 5 IMPACT OF NEOLIBERALISM ON FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE 5.1.Learning Objectives 5.2.Introduction 5.3.What is neoliberalism 5.4.Indian experience with neoliberalism 5.5.How neoliberalism changed Indian financial administration 5.6.Conclusion 5.7.Summary 5.8.Key words 5.9.Model questions 5.10. References 5.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one must be able to- • Understand what is meant by neoliberalism • Explain how neoliberalism as a phenomenon changed global markets • Understand what led India to accept neoliberal market policies • Discuss how neoliberal policies changed Indian economy • Analyse the impact of neoliberalism on Indian financial administration 5.2. INTRODUCTION Modern markets have gone through immense changes over the years. Since the times of industrial revolution to the modern age of crypto currency markets have transformed not only economies but nation states as well. The free market describes an economic system where people voluntarily trade with one another in their own self-interest. A purely free market can only be conceptualised with little to no government intervention or regulation, where there is no restrictions and individuals as well as companies are free to trade as they please. The market economy has existed in various forms ever since human beings began trading with one another which can be traced back to barter system prevalent during silk route to the era when gold and silver were prime modes of currencies and to the 48 modern system of paper currency and digital currency. To trace the origins of free markets one can, see their emergence as a natural process of social coordination between groups of people with the intention to exchange good and services against some form of payment. Thus, it was no single intellectual who can be credited for inventing a process of voluntary exchange or private property rights. Rather it likely emerged as the natural outcome of human behaviour. Traditionally various factors have contributed to the dominance of market economies all over the globe. It has made its presence felt in all important spheres of public life as it renders the prime resource for all major functioning-money in the form of finance. Administration has not remained untouched by it about which we will learn in the coming parts of the unit. Majorly, there are two pillars of the market economy: voluntary exchange and private property. It is not possible for trade to occur without one or the other, at least in a market economy. If such an economy is functioning without each of the aforementioned two features it rather becomes a centralised economy. Thus, market economy is only compatible with the ideology of capitalism that allows unrestricted freedom of exchange without interventions or interruptions as capitalism is an organizational system of how goods are created—where business owners and investors (capitalists) assemble productive resources in a centralized entity, such as a company or corporation. These business owners own all of the tools, machinery, and other resources used in production, and keep the majority of the profits. In turn, they hire employees as labour in return for salaries or wages. Labour does not own any of the tools, raw materials, finished products, or profits—they only work for a wage. The free-market functioning as itself describes how the laws of supply and demand will be affected by the decisions of economic actors. A free market may describe the behaviour of consumers in industrial capitalism, but it can also refer to the interactions between traders in pre-agricultural societies. The study of market economics is frequently traced to Adam Smith, who described the relations between producers and consumers in The Wealth of Nations. David Ricardo later formalized a mathematical model of this relationship in The Principles of Political Economy and Taxation.

Ouriginal by Turnitin

49 5.3. WHAT IS NEOLIBERALISM The term 'neoliberalism' passed into popular usage among left-wing commentators in the late 1970s as an essentially pejorative term. It was used widely as a theory that supported free market policies that were developed and implemented in the period when the first woman prime minister of Great Britain, Mrs Margaret Thatcher and the actor turned politician Ronald Reagan became US president in 1979 and 1980 respectively. Essentially, it became known as a set of related public policies that was aimed at deregulating capital markets, embracing 'free trade' globalization, and privatization policies responsible for state assets sale. In essence it meant commercialization and corporatization of government departments with the overall aim of paring back the state and increasing individual responsibility. These were the public policies aimed to increase funding for the private sphere and limited government interference was considered the agenda mostly put forward by conservative and right-wing governments whose intent was directly on limiting the powers of the state, attacking 'big government' and repealing social welfare provisions. The 'Washington Consensus' was a term developed by John Williamson in 1989 to describe the policies of Washington, DC based institutions such as the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the US Treasury in ten points, including: fiscal policy discipline; redirection of public spending away from subsidies to user-pays; tax reform; market interest rates; competitive exchange rates; trade liberalization; privatization of state assets; deregulation; and securing property rights. If we are to see the journey of liberalism in a theoretical sense, there can be simply 3 stages that are considered to be majoritarian trends. a. Neoliberalism in this sense can be seen as the upgraded version of the first kind i.e., Classical Liberalism, which didn't go as far as the its theorists or proponents would have wanted. b. Second being Welfarism (Welfare State) which supported government intervention to the point of protecting and safeguarding the people based on high libertarianism. c. Neoliberalism being the last one which is an overarching theory of today. The Neo-liberal's conception of the minimalist State approximates Classical Liberalism's emphasis on the State
50 being a mere protectionist (law and order) outfit leaving the individuals free to pursue their self-interest in a manner deemed the best possible by them. Neoliberalism holds up the idea that a society's political and economic institutions should be robustly liberal and the system must support all ventures that are capitalist in nature. It will nonetheless be supplemented by a constitutionally limited democracy based on people's vote and a modest welfare state. Neoliberals endorse liberal rights and the free-market economy to protect freedom of the population and promote economic prosperity. This helps the people both in ideal terms as well as materialistic terms. Neoliberals are broadly democratic in nature supporting liberal values, but stress the limitations of democracy as much as its necessity. And while neoliberals typically think government should provide social insurance and public goods, they are sceptical of the regulatory state, extensive government spending, and government-led compulsive policy-making. 5.4. INDIA EXPERIENCE WITH NEOLIBERALISM India's long-time ally, the USSR had collapsed due to the internal inadequacies of its system in the early 1990s. 1991 was the year when all help stopped from the ally and with the problem in the middle east the country was facing an acute economic crisis, which was triggered by an increase in world crude oil prices following Saddam Hussein's onslaught of Kuwait in August 1990. Price of crude oil increased and inflation skyrocketed in many countries. The balance of payments (BoP) situation became unmanageable. The loans that were due for India became a big problem to pay back. The economy was in dire straits. There was a sharp reduction in the foreign exchange reserve due to a sharp decline in capital inflows and the liabilities increased. It was a serious threat to the sustainability of the growth process. India was close to defaulting it dues internationally. The situation can be compared to what Sri Lanka faced recently. To put matters into perspective and to understand the gravity of the situation there is the given conversation between then chief economic adviser to the government Deepak Nayyar and the Managing Director of IMF regarding extension of deadline and the requirement of additional funds to stabilise the economy. the situation was so inflamed that Mr. Nayyar, who went to the IMF for

51 financial support, told Michel Camdessus, the MD of IMF that- 'If the Fund (IMF) cannot extend a lifeline, we will bring the shutters down' which inadvertently meant that India would come out of all global financial obligations and would be forced to work with a 100% state-controlled economy. Consequently, there was a minority government at the Centre under the leadership of Chandra Shekhar but the government wasn't stable and comprised of various parties anti-thetical to the idea of working together. Although the government was making all efforts to come out of the crisis, it could not deal with the economic challenges. There was a need for a strong government at the Centre to deal with and address the economic problems. After the fall of the Chandra Shekhar government, general elections were called. Therefore, the general election of the 10th Lok Sabha was announced and the Congress party emerged as the single largest. The party formed the government under the leadership of PV Narasimha Rao, who appointed the Oxford based economist Dr. Manmohan Singh as Finance Minister in the government. To counter the liquidity problem, the government ushered in policy reforms aimed at speeding up the pace of economic growth. The reforms began with the devaluation of the rupee on July 1, 1991, followed by a second round of transfer of a total of 46.91 tonnes of gold from the reserve assets of the RBI in Mumbai to the Bank of England, which enabled India to borrow $400 million to solve its liquidity problems. Earlier, in the first round, the Chandra Shekhar government had transferred 20 tonnes of gold to the Union Bank of Switzerland in the form of a sale with repurchase option. At that time, the gold was not from the reserves held by the RBI but those confiscated from smugglers and kept with the State Bank of India. The government managed to garner about $200 million to address the BoP problem. July 24 was, by far, the most dramatical day, when the government took two crucial steps. A. First, the government announced a new industrial policy to liberalise the economy, increase employment opportunities, boost production and productivity, make Central public sector units more competitive, and encourage foreign investments. The policy had deregulated the industrial sector substantially.

52 B. Second, the Union Budget presented by Manmohan Singh in the evening changed the destiny of the country. It sought to extend the reform measures taken by the government in the previous months. The aim of the Budget was to address the balance of payments problem and change the structure of Indian economy from state controlled to state coordinated. Thus, structural changes were introduced and in an unprecedented manner for the first time. The economic reform initiated in 1991, followed by further measures undertaken by successive governments, have helped our country emerge as one of the fastest growing economies in the world. The foundation for a new era of development was laid by the Rao-Singh duo, which was built upon by all successive governments. 5.5. HOW NEOLIBERALISM CHANGED INDIAN FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION Since 1991 many reforms have been introduced by successive governments to make the Indian economy capable enough o sustain itself in the global markets. The 1990s; has a string of coalition governments thus leading to some form of vulnerability but the system maintained by the strong bureaucracy and close coordination of various organisation was able to save itself. It was only with the 1999 NDA -1 (National Democratic Alliance) government led by Atal Bihari Vajpayee that the era of stable coalition governments began in India. With finance ministers such as Yashwant Sinha in its ranks the financial administration was made to become more responsive to the needs of the global market. The next UPA -1 and 2 (United Progressive Alliance) under the former finance minister and then Prime minister Manmohan Singh that the trend continued. The finance ministry introduced various reforms to help the private sector as well as reduce state control-based dependency of the market. Major decentralisation was introduced in various spheres of governmental funding. This included introducing the PPP (private public partnership) model where private companies are encouraged of invest in governmental projects. This reduces the burden on the financial administration and brings private funding into the system. Monetisation of certain public sector companies was Introduced by the UPA 1 and 2 governments in areas of telecom, railways, fertilisers, crude oil and natural gas. Autonomy was provided to state financial administrators as well to encourage the states to being in funding by themselves without being dependent on the central

53 governments for funds. States like Karnataka, Telangana, Tamil Nadu, Gujarat took major strides in walking along the trajectory set by the central government on self-funding. The setting up of SEZ (special economic zones) in various states to lure in industrialists for initiating investment was also a resultant of the Indian financial administration. The NDA2 government under Narendra Modi has only accelerated the process of accepting neoliberal methods which have been evident in his policies such as dismantling the Planning Commission in favour of the NITI Aayog, a think tank that brings in the chief ministers of various states and their finance ministers with the Union fiancé minister and Prime minister to plan about finances of the federative units (states) as well as the Union government. Other policies include monetizing various state resources, institution, decentralisation of powers to the states, deregulation of price of commodities, encouraging private players to take part in government projects, limiting welfare mechanism to help the most needed. All the abovementioned reforms initiated by the financial administrators have opened up Indian economy to an extent unseen before 1990s. but the challenged brought in by removing restrictions has made the system more concerned. The rule of global market economy is that as investment increases so does the probability to defraud such investments for higher gains which are nonetheless illegal. Strict powers have been provided to financial watchdogs as policies have been eased by the government. The increase in powers of institutions such as the Enforcement Directorate, Serious Fraud Investigating Office (SFIO) and SEBI have given the financial administrators newer means to investigate and prosecute perpetrators of financial offences. Cumulatively it can be said that the Indian financial administration has provided a balanced response to the needs of a neoliberal world. Markets have been provided more freedom; capitalists have been provided larger incentives to be part of the economy as well as increase their investment in both private as well as public ventures. At the same time stronger laws have been enacted and watchdogs given more powers to rein in factors that can bring harm to both public money as well as private money. The CAG has been the ever-vigilant accountability instrument that looks after the affairs of the state. Thus, it can be said that Indian financial administration has helped Indian economy find its feet on solid ground in the neoliberal atmosphere and have only enhanced participation of the various 54 units in bringing major changes for the betterment of the system. To neoliberalism as a trend the response has been very balanced and enhancing for the administrators as well as the participants of the economy. 5.6. CONCLUSION Indian economy as gone through major changes in its 70+ years of experience. From the Nehruvian policy of focus on centralised economy to Indira Gandhi's focus on welfarism and slow liberalisation to the ushering of Indian neoliberalism in the early 1990s. liberalisation of policies, privatisation of companies, institutions and globalisation of the economy has brought changes not only to the financial sector of government and private players but have brought in changes in law, policies and above all to the financial administrators. Laws have been revamped to help neoliberal polices of market freedom, private investments, public private cooperative ventures etc. the government has introduced special economic zones and foreign direct investment of make the system responsive to global standards. This approach though has been full of caution and thoughtful irrespective of governments. India is a country of great diversity and the aspirations are as many as the people that reside here. Financial aspirations have been the cornerstone of these aspirations as its only with economic growth that a country can establish itself in the global order and therefore it becomes of utmost importance that the country's financial system in in sync with the global trend. In that case the majoritarian system prevalent in the world is the neoliberal system, and its of much importance that India takes the stride in the right direction. Indian financial administrators have ushered new beginnings for its financial structure and have answered its call to inject proper change when the situation demands it. It has been the same with neoliberalism that finance ministers, bureaucrats have brought in requisite changes to start the liberalisation, privatisation and globalisation of the Indian economy. The recent deregulation of commodity prices, decentralisation of powers, demonetisation, digitization are just the most modern steps in the process that began in the 1990s.

55 5.7. SUMMARY • Neoliberalism is the newest version of the liberal theory that has been majorly accepted by the world economy along with its components of market economy and capitalism. The feature of neoliberalism includes market freedom, decentralisation of powers by governments and more impetus on private investments to target more profit. • Indian liberalisation began in the early 1990s's with the Narsimha Rao govt bringing in major policies to usher in liberalisation, privatisation and globalisation of Indian economy as pressures of controlled economy as well as external help were strained during this era. • Indian financial administrators from the start have been very flexible in their approach to global changes. The advent of neoliberalism was incorporated soon with new laws to decentralise the role of government in controlling the economy. There was major shift to coordinating rather controlling of economic ventures. • Indian institutions have been cautious while ushering a new age for Indian neo liberalisation. SEBI. SFIO, CAG have been ever vigilant in their approach to safeguard the system from malfunctions as well as intentional harm. The strength of Indian financial administration is thus rooted in its ability to bring in changes when required while keeping gatekeeping structures intact for the proper functioning as well as safeguarding of finances of both public and private in nature. 5.8. KEY WORDS • Neoliberalism- Neoliberalism is contemporarily used to refer to market-oriented reform policies such as "eliminating price controls, deregulating capital markets, lowering trade barriers" and reducing, especially through privatization and austerity, state influence in the economy. • Wage- a fixed regular payment earned for work or services, typically paid on a daily or weekly basis. • Barter system- Barter is an act of trading goods or services between two or more parties without the use of money —or a monetary medium, such as a credit card. In essence, 56 bartering involves the provision of one good or service by one party in return for another good or service from another party. • Pejorative- anything that expresses or is expressing contempt or disapproval. • Liberalisation- Liberalisation is the process or means of the elimination of control of the state over economic activities. It provides a greater autonomy to the business enterprises in decision-making and eliminates government interference. • Privatisation- Privatization occurs when a government-owned business, operation, or property becomes owned by a private, non-government party. Privatization may also describe a transition that takes a company from being publicly traded to becoming privately held. • Globalisation- Globalization is the word used to describe the growing interdependence of the world's economies, cultures, and populations, brought about by cross-border trade in goods and services, technology, and flows of investment, people, and information. 5.9. MODEL QUESTIONS Short questions • Name two leaders and their policies that brought forward neoliberalism into the mainstream? • Explain any 4 features of neoliberalism? • What crisis led to the Narsimha Rao government to initiate economic reforms in India? Medium questions • Explain the institution of NITI AAYOG? • What is Washington Consensus? • Explain the transition of Indian economy from state controlled to liberal economy? Long questions • Explain the term Neoliberalism in detail? • Evaluate the impact of neoliberal policies on India financial administration? • Critically examine the phenomenon of neoliberal market policies?
57 5.10. REFERENCES Alamuru, S. & Vidhi Centre for Legal Policy. (2020). Elements of a Public Finance Management Law for India. New Delhi. Dhameja, Alka, (2003), Contemporary Debates in Public Administration, Prentice-Hall of India Private Limited, New Delhi. Gray, John, (1995), Liberalism, Open University Press, Buckingham Friedman, Milton and Rose, (1980), Free to Choose: A Personal Statement,

81%	MATCHING BLOCK 137/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

New York: Harcourt. Mahajan S. K. & Mahajan, A. (2014). Financial Administration in India. New Delhi, India: PHI

India. Nozick, Robert, 1974, Anarchy, State and Utopia, New York: Basic Books. Keynes,

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 138/328	SA	deepa Eco.docx (D28771015)

John Maynard, 1935 (1965), The General Theory of Employment, Interest, and Money, New York: Harcourt, Brace.

Harbinger edition, New York: Harcourt, Brace & World.

58 BLOCK II Unit 1 Concept of Fiscal Policy- equality and social justice STRUCTURE 1.1 Objectives 1.2 Introduction 1.3 What is Fiscal Policy? Relation of Fiscal Policy with equality and social justice 1.4 Role of Fiscal Policy in India 1.5 Fiscal Policy in India- a historical understanding, important breakthroughs and challenges 1.6 How far Indian fiscal policy could attend to equality and social justice in India? 1.7 Conclusion- how the discussion fulfilled its objectives 1.8 Summary 1.9 Keywords 1.10 Model questions 1.11 References 1. 1.1 Objectives- • To understand the concept of fiscal policy and its connection with social justice and equity • To understand the role of fiscal policy in India • To learn how India had designed its fiscal policy framework and how it has averted financial crises • To understand how social justice and equity have been enabled by fiscal policy in India 1.2 Introduction This unit deals with the concept of fiscal policy. It specifies how fiscal policy in India is designed and how it manages the economy of the nation. The exhaustive discussion that follows is divided into sections. The first section elaborates on the meaning of fiscal policy and understands how it is connected with enabling social justice and equity in India. The second section presents an overview of the role of fiscal policy in India. The third section goes on to give a brief idea about the evolution and functioning of fiscal policy in India and discusses how fiscal policy has been redesigned to cope up with external and global financial crises. The last section attempts to understand how social justice and equity have been preserved or can be attained by fiscal policy in India. 1.3 What is Fiscal Policy? Relation with Equality and Social Justice

59 Fiscal Policy refers to Government's management of the nation's economy by determining how financial resources are to be raised and spent in the nation. It is based on the ideas of J M Keynes, the British economist which state that the governments influence the macroeconomic productivity in the nations by deciding on the increase and decrease of raising and spending of public finances. This relates to the fact that the involvement of the government is a necessary factor in entailing a vibrant economy. Following from this, the sole aim of fiscal policy is to ensure economic growth and development in any nation. Such economic growth and development must be comprehensive as to ensure poverty reduction, employment generation, social inclusion and equity in the nation. As such, Fiscal policy has to be so developed that it could ensure equality and social justice in the nation. The economy of the nation has to be so monitored that it can ensure social justice and equality in the society which means that all should benefit from economic growth and development. Fiscal policy has a major contribution towards this. Musgrave (1959) points out three aims of fiscal policy to the end of social justice and equality- • Fiscal policy should ensure macroeconomic stabilization • Fiscal policy should improve resource allocation and • Fiscal policy should mitigate distributional disparities To ensure macroeconomic stabilization, Fiscal policy should be so designed that it can avert the pressures of unemployment and inflation. Fiscal policy also has the capacity to keep fiscal deficits and public debt stable and sustainable. The fiscal policy contains potential to adjust the expenditure and tax policies of the government in such a way that it can deal with critical market failures and ensure long term development. Fiscal policy should be so designed that it can adjust distribution of income, opportunities, assets and market risks so that general social welfare is sustained. Brahmabhatt and Canuto (2012) in their work designed a framework outlining the development and growth objectives of fiscal policy for developing nations which will be presented here- Growth Equity Social risk management Fiscal policy rationale Macroeconomic stabilization Resource allocation: address market failures Distribution Instruments and Institutions Constraints

60% MATCHING BLOCK 139/328 SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

60 Instruments and Institutions Constrai nts Source: Brahmbhatt and Canuto (2012) 1.4 Role of Fiscal Policy in India- • Development The primary objective of fiscal policy in India is to ensure economic growth and development which is attained by mobilization of resources. Political economy and institutional capacity constraints Fiscal sustainability Efficiency costs of taxation and borrowing Public spending levels, composition and efficiency Tax policies and revenue mobilization Financing and public balance Sheet Public financial management and governance of institutions

61 • Efficient allocation of Financial Resources The designing of fiscal policy and its implementation should be such that it could ensure efficient and economical allocation of financial resources for various developmental functions in the nation on the part of the Central and state governments. Developmental functions refer to expenditure on transport, infrastructure, housing and the likes. Finances are also required to be allotted for non developmental functions like defense, subsidies, interest payments and many more such activities. • Reduction in inequalities of Income and Wealth Fiscal policy in India thrives towards ensuring social justice and equity in the nation. This means distribution of income in such a way that the gap between the higher income groups and poorer sections can be bridged. The taxation regime is designed in such a way in the country that this objective can be fulfilled. • Price Stability and Control of Inflation Fiscal policy has to be so designed that inflation can be controlled. This is to be achieved by the means of reducing fiscal deficits among other things. • Employment Generation Fiscal policy in India also ensures employment generation. Investment in infrastructure creates employment. Again "

90%	MATCHING BLOCK 140/328	SA	CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

Lower taxes and duties on small-scale industrial (SSI) units encourage additional investment and consequently generates additional employment" (R and Balan P 2018: 507) • Balanced Regional Development Balancing regional development can also be enabled by fiscal policy. Expenditures on developmental projects on backward regions are a major step towards this •

73%	MATCHING BLOCK 141/328	SA	CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

Reducing the Deficit in the Balance of Payment "Fiscal policy tries to encourage additional exports by manner of financial measures like Exemption of taxation on export earnings, Exemption of central excise duties and customs,Exemption of nuisance tax and tariff, etc" ( ibid) • Capital Formation Economic growth can be enhanced by accelerating capital formation. If fiscal policy is efficiently designed it can encourage savings and discourage disembursements and as a result capital formation can be ensured. • Increasing National Income 62 As fiscal policy aims at enhancing economic growth of the nation, this will increase the gross domestic product of the nation, per capita financial gain and the value of the country. • Foreign Exchange Earnings Fiscal policy is designed as such that it could ensure effective foreign exchange earnings- "These

42%	MATCHING BLOCK 142/328	SA	CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

policy tries to add extra exports by manner of financial Measures like, exemption of taxation on export earnings, exemption of excise tax and octopi, etc. exchange provides business enterprise advantages to import substitute industries. The exchange achieved by means of exports and saved by way of import substitutes helps to solve the balance of payments problem" (R and Balan P 2018: 508). 1.5 Fiscal Policy in India- a historical understanding, important breakthroughs and challenges Fiscal policy refers to the overall economic strategy of the country for development a growth in the nation. The overall economic framework of the government includes how to collect revenues in the country so that expenditure and investments can be made. This therefore covers taxation policy, expenditure policy, and measures to manage debt, deficits or surplus. Fiscal policy in India has evolved according to the various circumstances which the nation has faced over time. This section deals with how the fiscal policy in India has been shaped and evolved over time so that it could response to internal and global financial crises. India has a federal structure of governance with a three tier system where powers and functions are divided between the Centre, states and local levels like municipalities and Panchayats. The Constitution of India has elaborated on the fiscal policy framework of the nation whereby the taxation powers and spending responsibilities of each of the three tiers of governments have been specified. In addition to this the Constitution has provided for the formation of a Finance Commission at the national and state levels every five years in order to give guidance to the centre and the states with regard to fiscal matters. Along with these the Constitution also provides for the preparation of an annual financial statement by the centre and the state governments which have to be presented to the legislature. This financial statement is termed as the annual budget which elaborates on the estimated income and expenditure of the governments for the upcoming year. Therefore, the Constitution of India has provided the architecture for the fiscal policy in the nation. However going beyond fiscal provisions, in India there has been the formation of a planning commission every five years to plan for long term economic development objectives for a period of five years. The implication of this planning process for fiscal policy was in the planning process- "the planning process is the division of expenditures into plan and non-plan components. The plan components relate to items dealing with long-term socio-economic goals as determined by the ongoing plan process. They often relate to specific schemes and projects. Furthermore, they are usually routed through central ministries to state governments for achieving certain desired objectives. These funds are generally in addition to the assignment of central taxes as determined by the Finance Commissions" (De 2012: 7). The planning process in the nation for development and growth by virtue of a planning commission in India was replaced with the formation of the Niti Aayog in 2015 when Narendra Modi took over the Prime Minister ship in India. Niti Aayog was formed by a resolution of the Union Cabinet emerging as a policy think tank of the government

71% MATCHING BLOCK 143/328 SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

63 which was to provide directional and policy inputs to the government- "This was done in order to better serve the needs and aspirations of the people of India" (https://www.niti.gov.in/niti/content/overview). India followed a planned economy since 1950. This meant that economic development was mostly planned in the country and there was increased emphasis on the development of public sector enterprises for attaining economic growth and industrial development. Evidently there was imposition of strict administrative controls on private industries and there prevailed a system of licensing and quotas for private enterprises. Along with this, there was restriction on external trade and imports. The fiscal policy framework therefore functioned under the background of a planned economy. The main role of fiscal policy under this system "was to transfer private savings to cater to the growing consumption and investment needs of the public sector. Other goals included the reduction of income and wealth inequalities through taxes and transfers, encouraging balanced regional development, fostering small scale industries and sometimes influencing the trends in economic activities towards desired goals" (Rao and Rao cited in De 2012: 8). Under this framework, the taxation regime was aimed towards extracting revenues from private sectors in order to fund public sector and also to achieve distributive justice and bridging inequalities. The Central and state tax revenues did increase at this point under this framework. However this system was designated to be inefficient and inequitable because the tax base was too narrow with an inadequate reporting of taxation bases and incomes. Although tax reforms were initiated the problem of tax evasions was present. Under this framework, expenditures were less which led to revenue surpluses both at the centre and in states. Revenue surpluses refer to a condition where revenues are more that the estimated expenditure of the government. This situation was altered by limited reforms whereby liberalization in trade, promotion of exports and investment in modern technologies were encouraged. This led to increased expenditures also sustained by borrowings from domestic and foreign sources. Conditions arose where India's external debt and expenditure patterns became unsustainable. This situation was accompanied by a balance of payment crises caused by external and domestic events- "The First Gulf War caused a spike in oil prices leading to a sharp increase in the government's fuel subsidy burden. Furthermore, the assassination of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi increased political uncertainties leading to the withdrawal of some foreign funds" (De 2012: 14). Such conditions propelled the government to change the economic strategy in the nation having major implications for reforms in subsequent fiscal policy framework. Such crises saw the commencement of economic liberalization in India. This major shift from a planned economy to an open economy enhanced privatization, foreign investment and scrapping down of the hitherto prevailing restrictions on private sectors in forms of licenses and quotas. The fiscal policy framework also underwent reforms to conform to such changes. There were changes in the taxation regime and in the expenditure pattern. The tax reforms were such that rates of all major taxes were reduced, attempt was taken to minimize tax exemptions and deductions, laws and procedures of taxation were modified, attempt was taken to improve administration of tax and there was the introduction of increased computerization and modernization of the information system. However the tax system had preferential treatments and tax deductions as tax incentives for achieving socio-economic goals like setting up

64 industries in backward areas, promotion of exports and development of technology. Such incentives led to the concept of zero-tax companies where tax liabilities of companies were minimized. To counter this phenomenon, the concept of Minimum Tax Alternative (MTA) was introduced which required companies to pay 30% of its profits as tax. Along with this, other attempts were taken to expand tax base increase revenues of government. In spite of major reforms in taxation regimes, the reforms of state governments were inadequate and sporadic. As a result of this realization, the indirect tax regime was simplified. There was a change in the expenditure policy of the government which meant a reduction in subsidies provided by government and reduction of non-capital expenditures. Reforms in fiscal policy framework which led to increase in revenue of the government due to changes in tax administration and expenditure control of the government. This led to a control on government's fiscal deficits and more prudent handling of external debts. In order to bring about a more effective fiscal discipline, FRMBA was introduced in 2003. This Act- "gave a medium term target for balancing current revenues and expenditures and set overall limits to the fiscal deficit"

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 144/328	SA	CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

and "enhanced budgetary transparency by requiring the government to place

91% MATCHING BLOCK 145/328 SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

before the Parliament on an annual basis reports related to its economic assessments, taxation and expenditure strategy" (

De 2012: 19). The global financial crisis that took place in 2008 affected the Indian economy in three ways- "contagion risks to the financial sector; the negative impact on exports; and the effect on exchange rates" (Kumar and Soumya cited in De 2012; 20). However India could face the challenges posed by the global financial crisis quite effectively as a result of its prudent fiscal policy framework in operation. A prudent fiscal policy framework was accompanied by a well organized and regulated financial sector and capital account policy, large foreign exchange reserves and sufficient domestic consumption. Owing to the crisis, India took upon the task to keep its fiscal policy efficient. As a part of this, expenditure policies of the government was managed whereby now the focus was more on outcome than on allocations. It has been observed that "fiscal prudence and the desire to limit the public debt through better revenue and expenditure outcomes has been fairly institutionalised in the Indian policy matrix" (De 2012: 24) Brahmbhatt and

83% MATCHING BLOCK 149/328 SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

Canuto in a comprehensive study regarding how developing countries coped up with the challenges that the global financial crisis of 2008 has posed to their economies addressed the issue that fiscal policy in such countries should be operationalized in such a manner that distributive effects of such policy should be just and effective. They claim- "There are additional tools that may help policy makers better prepare to address the distributional impacts of the next crisis. The first is a simple qualitative questionnaire on fiscal decisions implemented at the sectoral level in a given period. The second tool is an approach to conducting ex ante microsimulations that focus on opportunities rather than on outcomes in the hope that the traditional short-term analysis of welfare outputs may be complemented with a discussion of the longer-term effects on equality of opportunity" (2012: 6) 1.6 How far Indian fiscal policy could attend to equality and social justice in India? If fiscal policy has to be so designed that social justice and equity can be ensured, Indian fiscal policy has been able to move towards this aim. Fiscal policy in India could ensure distributive 65 justice whereby it has been instrumental in uplifting the weaker sections of the society as various 0qeexpenditures have been initiated by the government attending to issues of distributive justice like health, education, food and gender. However the allocation of scarce resources is a dilemma that the fiscal policy framework must attend to. To ensure redistribution the financial burden certainly increases as more programmes may require more expenditure and this may lead to a fiscal deficit. S S Tarapore acknowledges that- "What is unfortunate is that the fiscal deficit is attributed to subsidies for the weaker sections, and various programmes for alleviating poverty are erroneously deemed to be inefficient. When the fisc spins out of control and fiscal consolidation becomes necessary, invariably it is the weakest segments which bear the burden of adjustment while the stronger segments are well equipped to defend their turf Thus, it is not sufficient to focus on the aggregate of fiscal consolidation but how it is achieved" (Tarapore 2019). The present government has been credited for undertaking initiatives for the upliftment of the weaker segments of the population. The fiscal policy framework in India has been structured and restricted for ensuring redistributive justice in the nation although it led to many other problems- Until 1980s, high rates of income taxes were imposed on the higher income groups in the country in order to ensure redistribution of income. However such punitive measures led to the prevention of productive activity and high level of tax evasions. From 1980s therefore the direct tax regime has been excessively diluted which resulted in the income tax rates to fall too low. Besides income tax, other taxes which have been diluted are wealth tax, gift tax and capital gains tax with excise duty being abolished. The population however bears the burden of an aggressive indirect tax regime. Tarapore claims- "While not going back to the earlier confiscatory direct tax regime, there is merit in a golden mean under which the direct tax regime can be increased gradually while the harshness of the indirect tax regime is eased. This would be a salutary measure towards reducing the iniquity of the present tax regime" (Tarapore 2019). Also the Chief Justice of India, S.S Bobde observed that if the tax regime has to ensure social justice it should be against both excessive taxation and zero taxation. He claimed- "" arbitrary and excessive tax results in social injustice by the government...

100% MATCHING BLOCK 146/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 147/328 W

While tax evasion is a social injustice to fellow citizens, arbitrary and excessive tax also results in social injustice by the government" (

https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 148/328 W

news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax- results-in-social-injustice-by-a-government-cji-bobde/

articleshow/73587557.cms) 1.7 Conclusion The above exhaustive discussion could fulfill the objectives of this unit. It analysed that fiscal policy is designed in India in such a manner that the objectives of social justice and equity can be achieved. Its taxation policies and expenditure policies are redesigned so that redistribution of income can be facilitated and the economically weaker sections of the society can be uplifted. Fiscal policy has the role of promoting development in the nation by enabling infrastructural growth, generating employment and by upholding distributional justice. Fiscal policy is designed so that balance of payment crisis can be averted. Fiscal policy in India id designed under the auspices of the Constitution of the country. It has evolved as the Indian economy moved from a planned one to a liberalized one. Taxation policy, expenditure policy, investment policy have been formulated in India so that the challenges that global financial 66 crises put on Indian economy could be faced. Again these policies depend on how social justice can be ensured in the nation. Whether taxation and expenditure should be more or less depend on the aim of enabling social justice and equity in India. 1.8 Summary • Fiscal Policy refers to Government's management of the nation's economy by determining how financial resources are to be raised and spent in the nation. • The sole aim of fiscal policy is to ensure economic growth and development in any nation. Such economic growth and development must be comprehensive as to ensure poverty reduction, employment generation, social inclusion and equity in the nation. • Musgrave (1959) points out three aims of fiscal policy to the end of social justice and equality- Fiscal policy should ensure macroeconomic stabilization, should improve resource allocation and should mitigate distributional disparities • The role of fiscal policy in India is to ensure development, social justice, and employment, mitigate balance of payment crisis, ensure equality, and reduce regional disparity among other things. • The Constitution of India has elaborated on the fiscal policy framework of the nation • The fiscal policy framework therefore functioned under the background of a planned economy until 1980s. Under this framework, the taxation regime was aimed towards extracting revenues from private sectors in order to fund public sector and also to achieve distributive justice and bridging inequalities. • After liberalization, the tax reforms were such that rates of all major taxes were reduced, attempt was taken to minimize tax exemptions and deductions, laws and procedures of taxation were modified, attempt was taken to improve administration of tax and there was the introduction of increased computerization and modernization of the information system. • India could face the challenges posed by the global financial crisis of 2008 quite effectively as a result of its prudent fiscal policy framework in operation. A prudent fiscal policy framework was accompanied by a well organized and regulated financial sector and capital account policy, large foreign exchange reserves and sufficient domestic consumption. • Fiscal policy in India could ensure distributive justice whereby it has been instrumental in uplifting the weaker sections of the society as various expenditures have been initiated by the government attending to issues of distributive justice like health, education, food and gender. 1.9 Keywords- Fiscal Policy, social justice, equality, taxation, expenditure, fiscal deficit, resource mobilization 1.10 Model questions

60% MATCHING BLOCK 153/328 SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

67 1. Explain the concept of fiscal policy (6 marks) 2. How is the concept of fiscal policy related to the idea of social justice and equality?(12 marks) 3. What is the role of fiscal policy in India? (18 marks) 4. Analyse how fiscal policy has been redesigned since 1950s to adapt to financial crises. (12 marks0 5. Point out the difference between the fiscal policy framework during a planned economy and during liberalization. (18 marks) 6. Could Fiscal policy ensure social justice in India? (12 marks) 1.10 References and further readings Brahmbhatt, Milan and Otaviano Canuto (2012): "Fiscal Policy for Growth and Development", Economic Premise, No. 91, pp 1-7

88% MATCHING BLOCK 150/328 W

Chelliah Raja J (2011): Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries With Special Reference to India,

New York: Routledge De, Supriyo (2012): "Fiscal Policy in India: Trends and Trajectory", pp 2-25 Government of India, National Institute for Transforming India, https://www.niti.gov.in/niti/content/overview Jha, Praveen Ed (2011): Progressive Fiscal Policy in India, New Delhi: Sage Publications. Kramer, Leslie (2019): "What Is Fiscal Policy?" available at https://www.investopedia.com/insights/what-is-fiscal-policy/ R, Srinidhi and Raji Balan P (2018): "A Role of Fiscal Policy Impact on Indian Economy", International Journal of Pure and Applied Mathematics, Vol. 120 No. 5, pp. 503-515 Singh, Ajmer (2020): "

100% MATCHING BLOCK 151/328 W

Arbitrary or excessive tax results in social injustice by a government: CJI Bobde", The Economic Times, available at https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 152/328 W

news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax- results-in-social-injustice-by-a-government-cji-bobde/

articleshow/73587557.cms Tarapore, S.S (2010): "Fiscal Policy Must be Consistent with Distributive Justice", Inclusion, Mainstreaming the Marginalized, available at http://inclusion.skoch.in/story/511/fiscal-policy- must-be-consistent-with-distributive-justice-811.html

68 Unit 2 Budgeting STRUCTURE 2.1 Objectives 2.2 Introduction 2.3 What is a budget?- principles and objectives of budgeting in India- analysis of past budgets – their principles 2.4 Types of Budget in India 2.5 Budgetary procedure in India 2.6 Analysis- transparency and participation in Indian Budgeting 2.7 Conclusion 2.8 Summary 2.9 Keywords 2.10 Model questions 2.11 References 2.1 Objectives- The objectives of this discussion is- • To make the readers acquainted with the principles and objectives that have guided budgeting in India • To understand the process of budgeting in the country • To understand that in a democratic nation like India, budgeting should conform to the principles of citizen participation and accountability 2.2 Introduction This unit discusses the concept of budgeting in India. Budgeting is the process through which the Budget is prepared.

65% MATCHING BLOCK 154/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

The term "Budget" comes from the French word- "bougette" which means a leather bag or wallet. In the words of Dimmock, "

100% MATCHING BLOCK 155/328 SA THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf (D75607893)

A Budget is a financial plan summarizing the financial experience of the past stating a current plan and projecting it over a specified period of time in future".

This unit elaborates on the concept of budget, its types, its principles and objectives in the context of India, the process in which a budget is prepared in India along with an analysis of how the process of budgeting should be made more participative and accountable in the nation being in tune with democratic principles.
69 What is a budget?- principles and objectives of budgeting in India- analysis of past budgets – their principles A budget is a financial plan for a specified period of time, usually a year that includes the estimation of the revenue and expenditures of the government. Estimation of revenue includes the resources and income mobilized from different tax and non-tax revenues. Expenditures include expenses to be made for various programmes, projects, schemes d other public activities of the government. Therefore a budget is basically a plan of the government regarding how to collect revenue and where to use the same for public benefits. However a budget also contains statistical data regarding the financial performance of the government in the preceding year. The period for which the budget is prepared is known as the financial year. In the beginning of such a financial year, the government presents before the Lok Sabha the annual financial statement that shows an item wise estimation of the revenue expected and the expenditures anticipated. The financial year in India begins from April and ends in March in the next year. The financial plan for a year is generally prepared keeping in mind the objectives of the government towards the economic development of the nation. Therefore the budget is prepared in such a way that a balanced and sustained growth in the economy is enabled. This entails an increase in the Gross Domestic product (GDP) of the nation. This stable economic growth is to provide for an enhanced standard of living for the citizens of the nation. Budget has its aim also to ensure equality and social justice in the nation. As such, eradication of poverty, problems of unemployment, reduction of inequalities, redistribution of income, provision of basic services to the people involve major objectives of how to utilize the financial resources of the nation. In India, budgets have been prepared since independence and these have tried to cater to the objectives of ensuring economic growth and social justice in the nation. What follows is a brief analysis of the principles and objectives that guided Indian Union budgets since Independence- In the pre-liberalization era, budgets in India were broadly determined by the following principles and objectives- 1. Self sufficiency in food production, defence services and civil expenditures. Development of the agricultural sectors and the public enterprises. 2. The after effects of partition and natural calamities affecting many parts of India at this time determined the objectives of budget which were- reintroducing food control, increasing supply of food grains at fair price and limiting food imports from overseas.

90% MATCHING BLOCK 156/328 W

Along with these many development projects were conceived which were to be sanctioned through loans to be taken from IBRD and IMF. 3. Formulating plans that could utilize the nation's resources in the most effective way. 4. Development of the education sector including provision of grants to states for basic, secondary and university education and provisions for scholarships to students belonging to the Scheduled castes/classes and other backward classes. 5. Increase expenditure on development, production, expenditure and investment along with the savings rate of the common man. 6. To provide for export promotion. 7. To provide for greater participation of citizens in enabling the growth of industry. 8. There was an attempt to make budgets more people-centric which included social welfare and pension schemes.
70 9. Provision of employment opportunities, encouragement of small enterprises and entrepreneurs. 10. To ensure rural and urban development. 11. Launching of Farmers' service societies to provide credit to farmers to enable processing and marketing their produces. 12. Improvement of socio-economic conditions of the vulnerable sections in the society like the Scheduled Castes. Budgets in the post-liberalization period was guided by the following principles and objectives- 1. Rapid technological development was ensured 2. Public expenditure on social welfare and infrastructure was emphasized on. 3.

95% MATCHING BLOCK 157/328 W

To promote India as major software development centre in the world. 4.

Budgets were designed to be pro-poor. 5. Budgets were also designed to ensure inclusiveness and sustainable development. 6. Priorities were given to the development of youth and women. What can be deduced from the above discussion is that the principles and objectives guiding budgets in India emphasized on a development that would ensure social justice and improved standard of living in the nation. i. Types of Budget in India According to Bhagwan and Bhushan (2014), classification of budgets can be done on the basis of the following principles- (i) the period covered (ii) Number of budget introduced in the legislature (iii)The overall financial position depicted in the budget (iv) The principle adopted in taking the items of income and expenditure in the budget (v) The classification of the receipts and expenditure in the budget. In India, budgets are of three types- balanced budget, surplus budget and deficit budget. Balanced Budget- The Budget is said to be balanced when there is parity between the estimates of expenditure and the estimates of income. Under such circumstances there exists financial stability. However the situation of a balanced budget may pave hindrance in the way of undertaking more of social welfare activities by the government. However, "the ideal stand is that the government must increase its spending to bridge the gap between the expenditure that is needed to sustain full employment and the actual spending" (https://www.businessinsider.in/here-are-the-types- of-government-budgets-in-india/articleshow/67698823.cms). On the other hand the Budget becomes unbalanced when the estimated spending of the government exceeds or is less than the estimated income of the government. Surplus Budget-71 A Budget is surplus when the estimated expenditure is less than the government's income. Such a budget indicates that the government draws more money from the economy than what is pumped into it. Deficit Budget- Contrary to the Surplus Budget, in a Deficit Budget, the estimated expenditure of the government exceeds the estimated income. It is believed that a deficit budget "is the most common kind of budget presented by the most popular democracies in the world today.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 158/328 SA FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf (D75551780)

This is done to meet the growing needs of people". It has the advantages of mitigating conditions of unemployment and recession. ii. Process of Budgeting in India- The process of budgeting in India goes through the following process- 1. Preparation of the Union Budget 2. Enactment of the Union Budget- i. Presentation of the Union Budget to the Parliament ii. General discussion on Union Budget in both the houses of the Parliament iii. Detailed discussion on the Budget in Lok Sabha and demands for grants by some ministries iv. Scrutiny of the demand for grants by the standing committees v. Voting for the demand for grants vi. Appropriation and Finance bills are passed 3. Execution of the Budget 4. Oversight of the Budget after being passed 1. Preparation

Ouriginal by Turnitin

84% MATCHING BLOCK 163/328 SA An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_it ... (D16312470)

of the Budget- The Union Budget is known as the Annual Financial Statement and as it is prepared it contains of many parts which will be discussed shortly. Before that it is imperative to understand the procedure for the preparation of the budget. At first, a preliminary estimate is prepared by the heads of the local offices who are the disbursing officers. These estimates are scrutinized and reviewed by Controlling officers. Such revised estimates are further scrutinized and reviewed by the Accountant General and the Administrative department which are now reviewed by the Ministry of Finance. These estimates receive final consideration from the Union Cabinet after which the Budget is prepared to be presented before the Indian Parliament. The estimates are nothing but an estimate of the expenditures and revenues of the government for the upcoming financial year. After this estimate of expenditure and revenue is prepared, these are matched so that any gap between the two can be identified. The shortfall is corrected by revising tax rates or internal and external borrowings as it is deemed feasible. After the deficit is narrowed the budget on acquiring its final shape is ready to be presented before the Parliament. The Budget consists of the following documents- Summary documents- • Budget speech- It consists of the main tax and expenditure proposals 72 • Budget at a Glance- this specifies briefly the total funds that the government has acquired through taxation and borrowing and how this fund is to be spent and the budget deficit or surplus is to be corrected. • Annual Financial statement Expenditure documents- • Expenditure Profile- It is a summary of all the total expenditures of the ministries. This also presents a category wise breakdown of various expenditures at present. • Expenditure at Budget- This is a presentation of a detailed breakdown of expenditures of all the ministries. • Demands for Grants and Appropriation Bill- These documents are constitutionally granted to be prepared so that the Parliament can provide the grants as demanded by various ministries for many programmes or schemes. These have to be voted for in the Parliament to be passed. Receipts documents- • Receipts Budget- It specifies in a detailed manner how the government deems to raise revenue from different sources. • Finance Bill- It is a bill which has to be presented to the Parliament so that amendments can be brought about to introduce changes in tax structures as proposed by various ministries. • Memorandum on the Finance Bill- This document explains the provisions in the Finance Bill in simple language. FRBM documents- • Macro-Economic framework- This contains the prospect for the economic growth of the country. • Medium-term Fiscal Policy- This specifies targets for tax and non-tax receipts and control of budget deficits. • Fiscal Policy strategy- It presents a statement that specifies the following of sound fiscal policy. 2. Enactment of the Union Budget As the budget is presented to the Union Parliament, a general discussion is held on it by both the houses- Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha. General discussion is limited to just an examination of the proposals of the different ministries. After this phase of general discussion, the estimates of expenditures by different ministries as presented in the Annual Financial Statement which are called Demand for grants as explained above are examined in a detailed manner by Parliamentary Standing Committees. These standing committees comprise members from both the Lok Sabha and the Rajya Sabha. Standing committees examine "(i) amount allocated to various programmes and schemes under the Ministry, and (ii) trends of utilisation of the money allocated to the Ministry" (overseeing public funds). After such examination which may require the ministries to attend to the queries of the committees or by taking recourse to expert advice, a report is submitted to the Parliament. These recommendations of the standing committees are useful for discussion in the parliament as to approval of the grants demanded by various ministries before voting on these.

73 Generally, the Lok Sabha discusses four or five demands for grants of particular ministries. The ministries whose demand for grants will be discussed are decided by the Business Advisory Committee of the Parliament. This discussion is proceeded voting on the grants and therefore their approval or disapproval. Disapproval is expressed through "cut motions" which if passed signifies a loss of confidence on the government leading the cabinet to dissolve. Cut motions can be moved to reduce the amount of grants demanded by ministries. These cut motions are expressed by- "(i) to Re 1 to signify disapproval of the policies of that ministry, (ii) by a specific amount (an 'Economy' cut), or (iii) by a token amount of Rs 100 to express a specific grievance". After the grants are voted for, these are consolidated into the Appropriation bill which authorizes the government to spend money for the specified expenses

90% MATCHING BLOCK 159/328 W

from the Consolidated Fund of India. The Consolidated Fund of India consists of all the receipts and borrowings of the government. The Appropriation bill is passed in the Lok Sabha after which the Finance bill is also taken up for consideration and passage. After the bills are passed in the Lok Sabha, these go to Rajya Sabha which can only provide recommendations to these but constitutionally is devoid of making any changes to these. 3. The Execution of the budget The Executive is responsible for the Union Budget to be executed. There are two principles which are followed in the execution of the budget. These are- "(i) it must confirm to the terms of the Appropriation and Finance Acts; and (ii) That there must be a high degree of honesty, integrity and efficiency" (process). In the process of execution, first the assessment and collection of funds are done by two statutory committees- Central Board of Direct Taxes and Central Board of Excise & Customs. The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) and the State Bank of India ( SBI) are the custodians of public funds in India who disburse the funds. 4. Oversight of the Budget- Although the Executive is responsible for the execution of the Union Budget, the Legislature continues to scrutinise the utilization of the funds in the most appropriate manner as sanctioned by the Parliament to various ministries. Such scrutiny is undertaken by two financial committees of the Parliament- Public Accounts Committee (PAC) and the Estimates Committee. The Controller and Auditor General (CAG) of India is constitutionally vested to audit and present a report to the Parliament on the income and expenditure accounts of the Government. The Public Accounts Committee is responsible to examine the findings of the audit report of the Controller and Auditor General. The principal function of this committee is to scrutinise if the government has spent the money according to the purpose for which the fund was sanctioned. The Estimates committee has the function to- "(a) report on the improvements and administrative reforms that can be made, (b) to suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency in administration, and (c) to suggest whether the proposed expenditure is within the limits of government policy" (overseeing public funds).

78% MATCHING BLOCK 160/328 W

83% MATCHING BLOCK 161/328 W

74 iii. Analysis- transparency and participation in Indian Budgeting Public participation in the Indian Budgetary process is an important matter of debate because "To help ensure that services respond to citizens' needs and are of good quality, citizens – the recipients of services – must engage throughout the budget process" (Duggal et al. 19). According to the open Budget Index which is a study by the IBP, "India provides citizens with "some information" on the central government's budget and financial activities, while some countries, such as France, the US, South Africa, New Zealand, the UK, and Slovenia, provide "extensive information" to their citizens." (Bhanu, 1079). There exists transparency as to the budgetary process in India and opportunities exist for the public to participate in the same. Some civil society organizations are working to make the Budget pro=poor- "Developing Initiatives for Social and Human Action (DISHA) is perhaps the pioneer organisation in India working on budget analysis with perspectives for marginalised sections of people. There are other organisations like the Public Affairs Centre, Centre for Budget and Policy Studies, Samarthan Centre for Budget Studies, Centre for Budget and Governance Accountability (NCAS programme), Social Watch Tamil Nadu, and Budget Analysis Rajasthan Centre, which work on budget analysis mainly with the viewpoint of the social sector and other sectoral issues" (Bhanu, 1079). However it is certainly put forward that "the government should increase public participation in the budget formulation process and publish a pre-budget statement to facilitate this. Second, the government should strengthen sub-national budget transparency. Third, the government should mandate civil society participation in the planning and budgeting of programmes that directly benefit citizens through service delivery" (Duggal et al 19). The Fourteenth Finance Commission is a great attempt towards introducing greater transparency, accountability and public participation in the budgetary process of the country. It specifies how transparency and accountability of the budget can be ensured through measures like introducing pre-budget statement, sub-national transparency and greater civil society participation. A pre-budget process signifies the release of the budget strategy of the government for the upcoming year ahead of the presentation of the draft budget in the Parliament. This pre-budget statement should provide for formal opportunities for the engagement of civil society, legislative members, media, and business in the discussion of resource allocation and policies to be introduced. Inputs from these sectors certainly will enable more public participation in the budgetary process. Publication of information on the plans of government on broad sectoral allocations, tax and non-tax reforms and fiscal objectives will provide enough scope for greater public debate so that inputs coming from such debates find place in the draft budget presented. The simple release of budget documents to the citizens does not ensure participation from them in the budgetary process. Provision of relevant, accessible and timely information to citizens which are of personal interest to them like allocation of funds for the improvement of schools, roads and such sectors may induce public discussion on these issues. This has greater scope for the ordinary citizens and local civil society organizations to engage more in providing inputs to the budget. There are instances of civil society participation in budget formulation- "The peoples planning initiative in Kerala, wherein planning and budgeting for about 40% of the development budget is done directly by gram sabhas and other citizen committees.. In Nagaland, the village development committees (VDCs) engage directly with local

75 development and budget allocations" (Duggal et al: 21`). However, more such initiatives are required if more accountability and transparency have to be achieved in budgeting. Towards this end, Duggal et al lay out some recommendations based on the report of the Fourteenth Finance Commission "Recommending the publication and dissemination of a pre-budget statement and related budget information that will increase civil society and legislative participation in formulation of budgets; • Further, to strengthen the quality of budget information in line with Sundaramurti Committee recommendations, grants would be required for upgrading institutions, particularly the treasury management system in the country; • Developing a rational basis for increased and effective allocation of resources to the social sectors so that the objectives of the programmes are effectively achieved. • Grants for institutionalized mechanisms with respect to better access to and dissemination of quality budget information at the sub-national level, especially district and sub-district levels. • Making mandatory civil society participation for planning and budgeting (like PIPs, untied funds, etc) for programmes which directly benefit citizens through service delivery and benefits." (Duggal et al., 22) 4.Conclusion The discussion in the previous sections attempted to cater to the objectives of this unit. It explained the concept of a budget and explored the principles of Indian budgeting by unearthing the objectives and functions towards which the annual Indian Budgets were guided. It could be concluded that Indian budgeting has been focussed towards ensuring a development in the Indian economy which could uplift the standard of living of its citizens and ensure social justice. The Budgetary process in India is a long drawn affair as has been explained in detail. The process of budgeting in India primarily starts with the finance ministry and involves the Parliament in sanctioning the final budget as prepared. An important aspect of budgeting in India is that the Budget in working is left for scrutiny by constitutional requirements. However it has been observed that budgeting in India has to acquire more accountability at a preparation stage along with robust participation of the people. 5. Summary 1. A budget is a financial plan for a specified period of time, usually a year that includes the estimation of the revenue and expenditures of the government. 2. The financial plan for a year is generally prepared keeping in mind the objectives of the government towards the economic development of the nation.

76 3. Budget has its aim also to ensure equality and social justice in the nation. 4. The principles and objectives guiding budgets in India emphasized on a development that would ensure social justice and improved standard of living in the nation. 5. In India, budgets are of three types- balanced budget, surplus budget and deficit budget. 6. The Budget is said to be balanced when there is parity between the estimates of expenditure and the estimates of income 7. On the other hand the Budget becomes unbalanced when the estimated spending of the government exceeds or is less than the estimated income of the government. 8. The process of budgeting in India passes through the following stages-

80% MATCHING BLOCK 162/328 W

Preparation of the Union Budget, enactment of the Union Budget, execution of the Budget and oversight of the Budget

after being passed. 9. There exists transparency as to the budgetary process in India and opportunities exist for the public to participate in the same. However it has to be more robust bringing out pre- budget statements for public scrutiny and enough civil society engagement in the process. 6. Keywords Annual Financial Statement, Economic development, Social Justice, Lok Sabha, Rajya Sabha, Accountability, Public Participation, 2.10 Model questions- 1. What is meant by budgeting? (6 marks) 2. What are the principles guiding budgeting in India? (12 marks) 3. What were the guiding principles of the Union Budget in India in the pre- liberalization era? Was there any difference in principles guiding the Union Budget in the post-liberalization era? (18 marks) 4. Explain the types of Budgets in India (6 marks) 5. Elaborate on the content of the Indian Budget (6 marks) 6. Explain the process of budgeting in India (18 marks) 7. What happens after the budget is passed in India. Elaborate on the process of oversight of Indian budget (12 years) 8. How can public participation be enhanced in the process of budgeting in India? (12 marks) 2.12 References Hukil, Roomana (2019): "Analysis of Union Budget since 1947", DownToEarth, available at https://www.downtoearth.org.in/coverage/economy/analysis-of-union-budget-since- 1947-56867 Bhanu, Vinod (2007): "Making the Indian Budget How Open and Participatory?", Economic and Political Weekly, pp. 1079-1081.

Ouriginal by Turnitin

77 Duggal, Ravi, Nilachala Acharya and Anjali Garg (2014): "Budget Transparency and Participation Recommendations to the Fourteenth Finance Commission", Economic and Political Weekly, vol xlIX no 34, pp. 19-22. Kala, Mandira, Gayatri Mann and Suyash Tiwari (2019): "Overseeing Public Funds - How to scrutinise budgets", PRS Legislative Research, available at http://prsindia.org/budget/primers/overseeing-public-funds-how-scrutinise-budgets Sahoo, Jitendra (2016): "Budgetary Process in India: An Analysis", Scholarly Research Journal for Interdisciplinary Studies, Vol 4/36, pp. 6811-6820. Understanding the Budget Process (2020), IIFL, available at https://www.indiainfoline.com/article/news-sector-others/understanding-the-budget- process-113111404476_1.html Ganguly, S.P (2000): Fundamentals of Government Budgeting in India, New Delhi: Concept Publishing Company Unit 3 Resource Mobilization STRUCTURE 3.1 Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Resource Mobilization in India 3.4 Tax revenues- Income Tax, Corporation Tax, Goods and Services Tax 3.5 Non-tax revenues 3.6 Conclusion-how the discussion fulfilled its objectives 3.7 Summary 3.8 Keywords 3.9 Model Questions 3.10 References and further Readings 3.1 Objectives- The objectives of this unit are- • To identify the sources of revenue in the country • To identify the diversity in the sources of revenue generation in the nation • To analyse the scope and potential of tax based revenue sources in the nation

78 • To analyse and scope and potential of non-tax based revenue in the nation 3.2 Introduction- This unit discusses the issue of resource mobilization in India which essentially refers to how revenue is generated in the country by the government so that the developmental activities of the nation can be funded. Revenue in the country is generated by virtue of taxation and other methods. Taxation refers to a compulsory charging a portion of the income from individual citizens and institutional units in the nation. This power of taxation is granted to the Central government, state governments and municipal units with their scope being delineated by the constitution of India. The government can tax its citizens and institutional units either directly or indirectly. Direct taxes are those which are levied on the incomes and profits of the citizens and organizations while indirect taxes are levied on goods and services. Apart from tax based sources, the government collects its revenues from sources which are non-tax in nature. This includes charging citizens for various services that the government provide to them. The discussion in this unit covers an analysis of how resource mobilization takes place in the nation through tax and non-tax means. It starts with an analysis of tax based revenue sources of the government. Here some taxes as levied by the government are specifically discussed. This includes one tax which is direct and is levied by the Centre- Income tax, one tax which is direct and is levied by states- Corporation Tax, one tax which is indirect and is levied by states- Goods and Services Tax, and one tax which is direct and is levied by Municipal bodies- Property tax. In discussing each of these tax based revenue sources, the potential of these towards revenue generation is analysed. The discussion then proceeds towards an analysis of the potential of non-tax based revenue in the nation. Thereafter it is followed with concluding remarks and a summary of the entire discussion. i. Resource Mobilization in India Resource mobilization refers to the generation of income or revenues by the Government of any nation, in the present case of India so that the various investments and expenditure requirements in the nation can be met. Revenue is generated in the country by means of taxation. However there are other sources of resource mobilization which are essentially non- tax in nature. What follows is an exhaustive discussion on the scope of resource mobilization in India by means of tax and non-tax sources. Taxes in India can be levied by the Central government and the state governments as guaranteed and specified by the constitution of India. Local self governments like the Municipal bodies are also given some powers as to levying of taxes. Some tax based revenues and their scope which will be discussed in this unit are- income tax, agricultural income tax,

79 corporation tax, excise duties and customs duties As mentioned there are other non-tax revenues of the government, some of these will also be dealt with as the discussion proceeds. ii. Tax based revenues Income Tax Income tax is a tax that is levied on incomes and profits of individuals and firms. It is an inevitable imposition on the incomes of the citizens of the country by virtue of which the development needs of the country can be funded. It may be defined as "taxes on the non- agricultural incomes of three types of assess: Individuals Hindu Undivided families, unregistered firms and other associations of persons" (Gupta 2009) Income tax is regarded to be a very important source of revenue for the Indian government. However revenue generated from income tax remains low in India. Following Richard Goode, certain conditions which are required for the income tax to be used as a potent source of revenue is not compatible to the Indian scenario. These are- " the existence of a predominantly money economy, a high standard of literacy, prevalence of honest and reliable accounting, a large degree of voluntary compliance on the part of tax payers, a political system not dominated by wealthy groups acting in their self-interest, and honest, reasonably efficient administration" (Rajeev). The lack of buoyancy in generating enough revenues from income tax in India can be attributed to factors like no proper coverage of the working population, exceptions and deductions in levying income tax and large scale exemptions from income tax. However measures have been taken in the nation owing to various tax reforms for increasing revenue generation from income tax. Reforms in tax structure have led to better results in terms of revenue generation from income tax. Income tax is designated to have enough potential for contributing generously to the total revenue of the Country. This is because the number of taxpayers has evidently increased over the years. It is observed that simplification of tax rate and broadening of tax base will positively impact upon more generation of revenue from income tax. Revenue responsiveness from income tax can be further increased if the following factors are considered- • Reduction in top marginal rate of Personal Income tax. • Reduction in the number of tax slabs, thereby resulting in the simplification of tax structure. • Increasing compliance through wider coverage of tax assesses in terms of PAN, TDS and TIN. • Increase in the number of tax assesses. • High GDP growth rate. (Gupta 2009). Corporation Tax Corporate tax is another important means of generating revenue in the country. Tax levied on the profits of joint stock companies is referred to as corporate tax. Corporate tax is also a necessary imposition as "a corporation tax is also needed to prevent retained profits from escaping taxation, because they would not be included in the income of shareholders" (Rajeev).
80 However with regard to India, the corporate tax structure is very complex. In the words of V.G Rao, "An examination of the overall corporate structure system and changes that have been attempted over the period leads to the inescapable conclusion that the structure is a maze of complexities and confusion. This is a result of the frequent changes that have been practiced with respect to the revenue code, in the name of disallowances, partial or total, concessions and incentives, and the differentiation of companies on the basis of the class, status and size. No doubt, discretionary tax changes are essential for meeting revenue emergencies. But too frequent changes are unhealthy and at times prove uneconomical. They lead to greater uncertainty in tax administration and creation of tax loopholes." (Rajeev) Reforms have been undertaken with regard to the corporate tax structure in order to ensure its efficiency. Recently the present finance minister- Nirmala Sitharaman has claimed that the corporate tax rate will be reduced from its present rate which is 30% to 22%. Also the corporate tax rate for firms which receive no incentives or exemptions will be reduced from 35% to 25%. Again the corporate tax of manufacturing firms will also be cut from 25% to 15%. This initiative is taken so that a reduced corporate tax rate can move up investments and give a boost to the Indian economy that is faltering. A Prasanna who is the head of ICICI in Mumbai claims that this tax reform is a positive move towards the simplification of the corporate tax structure and this would lead to an increase in investments and jobs (https://www.bbc.com/news/business-49764964) B.K Goenka, the president of Assocham claims with regard to the tax reform- "The corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades..

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 164/328	W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 165/328 W

This is hugely competitive as compared to India's closest manufacturing rivals like Vietnam, Indonesia and Bangladesh. I believe it would be a great catalyst to the Make in India programme for attracting foreign investment. The timing is also perfect as this comes at a time when key American companies are caught in a trade war with China and are looking at alternative global manufacturing bases"

Goods and Services Tax (GST) Goods and Services Tax is designated to be the outcome of the greatest reform in the taxation regime of the country. Introduced in 2017 the GST subsumes seventeen indirect taxes under its domain

100% MATCHING BLOCK 166/328 W

including the excise duty and sales tax. GST is "currently levied on every product except petroleum, alcohol, tobacco and stamp duty on real estate in four slabs of 5, 12, 18 and 28 per cent. Most of the daily use articles have zero GST as per the latest revision of the tax rates last year (

https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst- hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01) It has been observed that owing to this reform, the revenue base has gone up significantly- "The average revenue collection per month in the eight months of 2017-18 was Rs 89,700 crore per month. This propelled the annual revenue collection by about 12 per cent...The monthly average revenue collection increased further in 2018-19 by about 10 per cent to Rs 97,100 crore" ( https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678- 2019-07-01). However the revenue collection targeted from GST has not been fulfilled-"

92% MATCHING BLOCK 168/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 167/328 W

In 2018-19 Budget, the GST collection was estimated at Rs 7.4 lakh crore which was revised later in 2019-20 interim budget to Rs 6.4 lakh crore. But the finance ministry's figures show that the 81 actual GST collection for 2018-19 was around Rs 5.8 lakh crore, a significant shortfall of over 20 per cent compared to budget projection" (

https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of- gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01). GST is believed to have enough potential for a lot of positive changes in the Indian economy. It has the potential to increase the price of agricultural produce, it could reduce the cost of manufacturing industries, it can bring down the cost of housing to the extent of embedded taxes thereby being beneficial to the poor. Also the GST is so designed that it could lead to reduction of poverty in the country- " At present, primary food articles like rice and wheat are liable to tax by many States either by way of purchase tax or sales tax at a lower rate. But under the GST, all food items covered under the public distribution system including rice and wheat are proposed to be exempted. As a result primary food articles like rice and wheat would be exempted from GST. Since expenditure on food constitutes a large proportion of the total consumption expenditure of the poor, the GST is designed as a poverty reduction initiative. Like food, basic health and education services are also intended to be fully exempted. In any case, as at present, these services will continue to be exempted from tax and therefore no additional burden will arise on account of the switchover to GST" (Thirteenth Finance Commission referred to in Vasanthagopal 2011: 145). GST also hold potential for increasing income and output of various sectors. This in turn would lead to increased employment opportunity. Most importantly, GST would enhance revenue generation and thereby resource mobilization of the government. As Vasanthagopal argues- "Since all goods and services would be under the purview of GST, it is expected that the number of exemptions would reduce very much. Again, the tendency of tax evasion by producers and distributors will be low as to the single (or dual) and low rate of tax proposed under GST. Further, increased GDP, indirect positive impact on direct tax collections, gain for the government on account of reduction in the price level of a large number of goods and services consumed by the government as a result GST etc. a flawless GST would trigger an increase in the government revenue" (Vasanthagopal 2011: 145-146). What is required for the Goods and Services tax to act to its potentials is a flawless and rational designing and implementation of this tax reform. iii. Non-Tax Revenues of the Government Besides generating revenue from taxation, the government in India also collects revenue from sources which are non-tax in nature. There exists wide range of non-tax revenue sources for the government in India- "

100% MATCHING BLOCK 170/328 W

when people avail services offered by the government, like electricity, telecommunication, DTH, broadband etc, they pay bills, which include the share of non-tax revenue as the government provides infrastructure support to facilitate the services. The government also collects interest as non-tax revenue on the loans and funds advanced to states for various purposes. So, the government collects non-tax revenue in return for providing/facilitating any goods or services" (

https://www.financialexpress.com/what-is/non- tax-revenue-meaning/1762795/) It is believed that non-tax sources could become a more important source of revenue generation for the government in India that tax based sources. This is because in the wake of globalization the government will be losing its ability to tap important tax bases and therefore greater

82 attention has to be paid to generation of revenue from non-tax based sources. Some scholars claim “these bases include increasingly mobile capital, skilled labour and footloose industries. Reduced government bargaining power will lead to decreased taxation of these bases, a trend that has already begun and of which several telling examples are to be found both in developed and developing countries” (Dasgupta: 1). In order to analyse the contribution of non-tax based sources to revenue generation and therefore resource mobilization in India, it is important to understand the definition and scope of such non-tax revenue sources in the country. Arindam Das Gupta makes a significant attempt towards this end. Taxes are compulsory, unrequited payments made by individual citizens and institutional units to the government in either cash or kind. Non-tax revenues sources may be compulsory and requited, voluntary and unrequited and voluntary and requited. Earmarked taxes, fines or penalties are examples of compulsory requited payments. Earmarked taxes refer to tax receipts from state budgets like Government of India’s education cess. Fines and penalties are accounted for as both tax receipts and non-tax receipts. Earmarked taxes may act as substitutes for user charges as user charges are often difficult to collect. Bird identifies sources which can be earmarked. These include taxes to fund social security schemes, fuel taxes for roads, pollution levies for protection of environment and the likes. Fines and penalties are accrued from citizens who break the laws. Fines should however conform to the particular crime committed which indicates that fines should not be exceeding the crime. Dasgupta puts forward the design for fixing fines and penalties for non-compliance to the law of the land- “ 1. Penalties for lesser degrees of non-compliance should, following the principle of marginal deterrence, be less than the marginal social loss so that citizens have the incentive to substitute away from higher levels of non-compliance 2. The procedure for levy of penalty should be transparent and not subject to administrative discretion. 3. Penalties for corruption or inaction by bureaucrats and political representatives should be high enough to reduce opportunities for non-compliant citizens ("gainers") to compensate bureaucrats or representatives who are punished” (Dasgupta: 6). Voluntary and unrequited payments include those payments which are made as contributions to the government. One example is contribution made to Prime Minister’s Relief fund. Other examples are gifts and donations to the government which however are not major sources of income. Besides this, unclaimed dues are also voluntary and unrequited payments to the government which come as windfall gains. This contributes almost negligibly to the government revenue. However “The key question is to what extent rigidities in government procedures and red tape impede recovery of dues from the government by citizens. Greater hurdles cause them to become arbitrary involuntary and unrequited payments or, that is, arbitrary taxes. In case of such hurdles, any growth in these receipts should be viewed as a decline in the effectiveness of non-tax revenue performance” (Dasgupta: 7) Non-tax revenues which are voluntary and requited can be further classified into revenue coming from assets, revenue coming from the sale of goods and services and revenues accruing from the sale of licenses and permits for regulated activities. Revenue from assets includes sources like property resources of the government. Examples can be given of forest, wilderness, marine habitats, exhaustible or renewable natural resources which are not granted private property rights and assets created from government investments like public sector undertakings, roads, irrigation, infrastructure capitals and the likes. Revenue accrued from

83 exhaustible and renewable resources happen to be the most important source of non-tax revenue in many states in India. Revenue from the sale of goods and services include sale of infrastructural services which are known as user charges. When the public is charged for utilizing government services, these charges go to the government in form of user charges and designated as an important source of non-tax revenue. Goods and services which can be considered chargeable by the government may possess characteristics like "(a) excludability, (b) congestibility (or rivalness), (c) geographical coverage (or localness), (d) external effects, (e) private information about the good, (f) supply risk and (g) lumpiness or economies of scale" (Dasgupta: 7). Charging for Goods and services possessing these characteristics are deemed to be socially desirable and acceptable. Revenue from licenses and regulated activities include business and shop licenses, construction and land use permits, examination and inspection fees and the likes. However this source is not considered to be very important source of revenue in the current times in India. Non-tax revenues in India form an important source of revenue for the government. There exist a vast number of sources under the category of non-tax revenue. A broad classification as provided by Arindam Dasgupta has been presented in the above discussion. 4. Conclusion- The above exhaustive discussion on resource mobilization in India could fulfil the objectives of the unit. It could identify the sources of income for the government both tax and non-tax based. It analysed how taxation being an important source of revenue generation do contribute generously to resource mobilization in the nation. However there exists some discrepancy in the taxation regime which if rectified can increase the buoyancy of these taxes. For instance, the coverage of income tax must be enhanced and tax evasion from income should be kept in check. Again the structure of Corporation tax should be made simpler and more effective. Also the Goods and Services Tax (GST) should be implemented in a rational manner. As for non- tax based revenue generation, the scope of non-tax revenues should be understood. It is only by this that resource mobilization can be appropriate and efficient to the cause of development and growth of the nation. 5. Summary- • Resource mobilization refers to the generation of income or revenues by the Government of any nation, in the present case of India so that the various investments and expenditure requirements in the nation can be met • Revenue in India is generated through taxation • Taxes are direct like income tax and indirect like Goods and Services Tax (GST)

84 • Taxes can be levied by centre like income tax, by states like Goods and Services Tax (GST) and by Municipalities like Property tax • Income tax is regarded to be a very important source of revenue for the Indian government. However revenue generated from income tax remains low in India • It is observed that simplification of tax rate and broadening of tax base will positively impact upon more generation of revenue from income tax • Tax levied on the profits of joint stock companies is referred to as corporate tax. • The corporate tax structure is very complex. Measures have been taken to reduce the tax rate and hence simplify its structure. • Goods and Services Tax is designated to be the outcome of the greatest reform in the taxation regime of the country. This tax has a lot of potential in raising the revenue but it must be implemented rationally. • Besides generating revenue from taxation, the government in India also collects revenue from sources which are non-tax in nature • It is believed that non-tax sources could become a more important source of revenue generation for the government in India that tax based sources • Non-tax revenues sources may be compulsory and requited, voluntary and unrequited and voluntary and requited. • Earmarked taxes, fines or penalties are examples of compulsory requited payments • Examples of voluntary and unrequited payments are contributions to government, gifts and donations. • Non-tax revenues which are voluntary and requited can be further classified into revenue coming from assets, revenue coming from the sale of goods and services and revenues accruing from the sale of licenses and permits for regulated activities 6. Keywords Resource mobilization, revenue, Tax based revenue, noon-tax based revenue, Income tax, Corporation Tax, Goods and Services Tax, User charges 3.9 Model Questions- 1. How is resource mobilization done in India? (6 marks) 2. What are the various sources of revenue generation in India? (12 marks) 3. How is taxation a potential source of revenue generation in India? (18 marks) 4. Analyse the scope of direct taxes as sources of resource mobilization in India (12 marks) 5. Analyse the scope of Goods and Services Tax (GST) as the greatest reform in India's taxation regime in generating growth in India's economy (12 marks) 6. Explain the non-tax based sources of revenue generation in India (6 marks)

85 7. What is the scope of non-tax based revenues in contribution to resource generation in the country (12 marks) 8. Classify the types of non-tax based revenues in India (18 marks) 9. What are the voluntary and requited non-tax sources revenue in India (12 marks) 3.10References and Further Readings BBC News (2019): "India delivers surprise corporate tax cuts to boost economy", available at https://www.bbc.com/news/business-49764964

88% MATCHING BLOCK 169/328 W

Chelliah Raja J (2011): Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries With Special Reference to India,

New York: Routledge Dutta, Prabhash K (2019) "2 years of GST: Hits, misses and future, India Today, available at https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019- 07-01 Das-Gupta, Arindam, "Non-Tax Revenues in Indian States: Principles and Case Studies", pp. 1-62 FE Knowledge Desk: "What is Non-Tax Revenue?", Financial Express, available at https://www.financialexpress.com/what-is/non-tax-revenue-meaning /1762795/ Rajeev, P.V, "Resource Mobilization in India: Some Issues"

78% MATCHING BLOCK 173/328 W

Rao, Govind M (2000): "Tax Reforms in India Achievements and Challenges", Asia Pacific Development Journal,

vol. 7, No. 2, pp 69-74 Roy, Devlin (2019): "

100% MATCHING BLOCK 171/328 W

Corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades",

Livemint, available at https://www.livemint.com/

100% MATCHING BLOCK 172/328 W

companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the- single-biggest-reform-in-the-last-two-decades-11570729584966.

html Mukher, Subho, "

58% MATCHING BLOCK 174/328 W

Role of Fiscal Policy for Mobilisation of Resources for Economic Growth", available at http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/fiscal-policy/role-of-fiscal-policy-for- mobilisation-of-resources-for-economic-growth/10965

Vasanthagopal, R (2011): "GST in India: A Big Leap in the Indirect Taxation System", International Journal of Trade, Economics and Finance, Vol. 2, No. 2, pp. 144-146 Unit 4

86 Deficit Financing STRUCTURE 4.1 Objectives 4.2 Introduction 4.3 What is deficit financing? 4.4 Effects of deficit financing in India 4.5 Solutions for controlling budgetary deficits 4.6 Conclusion 4.7 Summary 4.8 Keywords 4.9 Model Questions 4.10 References and Further Readings 4.1 Objectives The objectives of this unit are- • To understand the concept of budgetary deficit and deficit financing • To know the effects of deficit financing in India • To understand how the condition of budgetary deficit can be averted • To know viable solutions to prevent budgetary deficit and hence deficit financing 4.2 Introduction This unit discusses the concept of deficit financing. Deficit financing is a reaction of the government to the situation of budgetary deficit in the country. Deficit in the budget arises when the revenue of the government falls short of the expenditure. To order to cope up with this situation the government collects additional finances. This action of the government is known as deficit financing. The discussion in this unit starts with elaboration on the concept of deficit financing and the process of deficit financing in India. It then goes on to discuss the various effects of deficit financing in India. Thereafter the discussion ends by pointing out the various warnings of budgetary deficit in a country and viable solutions for preventing the negative impacts of deficit financing. i. What is deficit financing? The budget of the government which is prepared for every year presents the estimated revenue and expected expenditures of the upcoming year. When the expenditure of the government is less than the revenue, there is a situation of budget surplus. On the other hand when the revenue falls short of the expenditure, there is a condition of budgetary deficit. The means undertaken by the government to finance this deficit is known as the phenomenon of deficit financing. The situation of budgetary deficit arises evidently when the expenditures of the government cannot be met through the normal sources of revenue like taxation and the likes. Under such circumstances, in order to meet the additional expenditures the government takes resort to other 87 means which are designated as means of deficit financing. Deficit financing is done through borrowing from domestic or external sources, drawing upon the country's foreign exchange reserves or by printing money. These measures have significant implications and therefore influence the economy- "

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 175/328	SA	ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx (D50257214)

excessive printing of money leads to inflation. If the government borrows too much from abroad it leads to a debt crisis.

If it draws down on its foreign exchange reserves, a balance of payments crisis may arise.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 177/328	SA	ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx (D50257214)

Excessive domestic borrowing by the government may lead to higher real interest rates and the domestic private sector being unable to access funds resulting in the „crowding out" of private investment.

Sometimes a combination of these can occur. In any case, the impact of a large deficit on long run growth and economic well-being is negative" (De 2012: 4). Therefore the government has to prevent the condition of excessive budgetary deficit. This is not to say that budgetary surplus is a desirable phenomenon for a developing country like India. This is because in a developing nation there is a huge requirement for investment in infrastructural development and social welfare and having a surplus budgetary condition at the expense of long term growth is not a desirable situation. Therefore "The challenge then for most developing country governments is to meet infrastructure and social needs while managing the government's finances in a way that the deficit or the accumulating debt burden is not too great" (De 2012: 4). As deduced from the above discussion, the need for deficit financing arises when there is a budgetary deficit. Deficit in the budget occurs as a result of many things. The primary reason for this is that there are certain elements in government spending which grow at a much higher rate than the rate of growth of tax receipts. Deficits in budget occur also when national emergencies have to be met. Other circumstances when deficits occur are when there are "

100% MATCHING BLOCK 176/328 W

shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies, fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures" (

Jadhav and Neelankhavil 2011: 86). In India which is a developing nation, economic growth is a requisite. Economic growth certainly requires heavy expenditures from the government which the normal sources of revenue may not be able to match to. As a result of which the condition of budgetary deficit arises leading to the necessity for deficit financing. There are many conditions which may arise in the country making deficit financing essential.

97% MATCHING BLOCK 178/328 W

These are- "To finance defence expenditures during war ii. To lift the economy out of depression so that incomes, employment, investment, etc., all rise iii. To activate idle resources as well as divert resources from unproductive sectors to productive sectors with the objective of increasing national income and, hence, higher economic growth iv. To raise capital formation by mobilizing forced savings made through deficit financing v. To mobilize resources to finance massive plan expenditure If the usual sources of finance are, thus, inadequate for meeting public expenditure, a government may resort to deficit financing" (

http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public- finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-effects-and-advantages/17460)
88 In order to ensure deficit financing, in India additional finances are accumulated from three important sources- First, the central bank of the country which is the Reserve Bank in India gives credit to the government. Second, the government receives credit from commercial banks and other banks. Last, the government withdraws its cash balances from the Reserve bank of India. In all these three cases government receives the additional finances from the Reserve Bank of India (RBI). While the first and the third sources are evidently pointing towards money withdrawn from RBI, the second also indicates money from RBI- "in the case of the commercial banks investing in government securities, it is done so with the help of the cash reserves of the banks lying with the RBI. Cash reserves with the banks or with the RBI are not the part of money supply. So when the banks invest in government securities, their cash reserves with the RBI are debited in their accounts and credited to the account of the government and when the government spends this amount, the supply of the reserve money in the economy gets increased" ii. Effects of deficit financing in India In order to cope with the situation of budgetary deficits, taking recourse in deficit financing has implication for inflation. Deficit financing raises aggregate expenditure which in turn pushes up the aggregate demand. This leads to inflation in economy. The inflationary potential of deficit financing can be explained through an example- Assuming the velocity of money in terms of units "Let the number of goods available for transactions be 1000 units and the initial money supply with the public Rupees 2000, government having no money. Now the government wants to have half the output that is 500 units of goods. It neither taxes people nor borrow from them; it prints Rupees 2000 worth of currency notes. The total money supply impinging on the unchanged stock of goods would now be Rupees 4000. The price under competition of people with the government will push the price of the commodity to Rupees 4 a unit. At the new price the public with their Rees 2000 would purchase 500 units of the commodity; with their money the government would take away the remaining 500 units of the commodity either for boosting production or for wading war. Thus, deficit financing will force society in real terms 500 units the government would use unleashing inflation in the economy" (Hasan 2018: 5). Inflationary tendencies of deficit financing depend on what the additional finances are spent for. If it is for unproductive activities like war where no addition is made to the nation's wealth and no productive capacity of the society is enhanced, a situation of hyperinflation is created. On the contrary if deficit financing is undertaken for development expenditures, although money supply increases it may not lead to inflation. This is because investments in developmental activities lead to the increase in productivity. This can be an antidote against price inflation. Also the "most important thing about deficit financing is that it generates economic surplus during the process of development. That is to say, the multiplier effects of deficit financing will be larger if total output exceeds the volume of money supply. As a result, inflationary effect will be neutralized" (

100% MATCHING BLOCK 188/328 W

http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public- finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-effects-and-advantages/17460) It is believed that a mild dose of inflation may be beneficial to the process of development in developing countries like India only if the rate of price rise is kept minimum and viable. Again "To ward off possibilities of getting inflation out of hand, effort is made to pull back the created money into savings' fold accompanied with a well managed system of price controls and rationing of wage goods" (Hasan 2018: 8). However such a system has potentials for creating black markets and corruption. Therefore such initiatives must be made according to ethical standards.
89 What immediately happens when deficit financing is resorted to is that money supply with the public increases. This increase in money supply results in many different things like a price inflation, or expansion in output and employment. The intensities of these will vary in different circumstances. This variation of intensity further is dependent on the actions of the public whose purchasing power increases as a result of increase in the money supply. The public with increased purchasing power may either hold money which is called liquidity preference, or may spend the money which is referred to their propensity to consume or may have inclinations towards investment which is designated as the investment-demand schedule. The behavioral pattern of the public owing to increased money supply however is also determined by fiscal and monetary authorities who decide on the quantity of money supply. For instance as a result of the decisions of fiscal authorities when money supply increases in the economy, it may bring up the income of the citizens in forms of wages, salaries, rents, profits and the likes. This evidently leads to an expansion of consumer spending. However not much expenditure of the government takes place in increasing the income of the citizens and therefore the rise in income subsequently becomes less. Yet this increase in income augments the productive process in the economy. This happens when the increased money in the hands of the public goes into savings which subsequently are used for business investments. However as an effect of deficit financing the purchasing power of the public does not increase at an equal level. Deficit financing most evidently leads to inequality in income distribution. Deficit financing may lead to the creation of excess purchasing power. However this is combined with the inelasticity in the supply of essential goods resulting in rise in price. Under such a circumstance, the economically rich section benefits while the low income groups are disadvantaged. Thus deficit financing holds potential for propelling social injustice. However social justice can be kept intact under deficit financing if the additional finances are spent on public good and social welfare programmes. However deficit financing also possesses the scope for inducing economic development. Economic development depends on capital formation which in turn depends on savings. In developing economies like India however has fewer saving to ensure enough capital formation. Under the circumstance of deficit financing led inflation, capital gets accumulated so that it can be utilized for economic development. Owing to such inflation the producers benefit more than the fixed income earning group. As a result of this aggregate savings increase which leads to capital formation leading to acceleration of economic growth. Again inflation caused by deficit financing has an impact on reducing consumption of the public. This leads to a condition of forced savings which may lead to capital formation holding potential for economic development. In less developed countries deficit financing is used to mobilize savings which can be used to increase capital. This "technique of deficit financing results in an increase in government expenditure which produces a favourable multiplier effect on national income, saving, employment, etc" (

94% MATCHING BLOCK 179/328 W

http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit- financing/deficit-financing-meaning-effects-and-advantages/17460) However if the resources remain underutilized the multiplier effect of deficit financing might not show positive results. Therefore deficit financing employed for economic development may not yield results due to many other factors like

86% MATCHING BLOCK 180/328 W

shortage of capital equipment, lack of technical knowledge and entrepreneurship, lack of communications, market imperfections and the likes. India undertook the means of deficit financing in order to ensure economic development after independence during its initial planning years which could lead to positive outcome which 90 however was not long lived - "The First Plan was designated largely to agriculture and irrigation; the second (1956-1961) aimed at industrialization and transportation, but agriculture got its due. Emphasis on expanding the public sector continued in view of the declared objective of establishing a socialistic social order. Emboldened by the success of the First Five Year Plan, the size of the Second Five Year Plan in outlay terms was raised to rupees 480 billion of which no less than rupees 120 billion or 25% was to be the deficit finance component. The two plans raised the GDP of the country at constant prices by 42 % and per capita income by 18% despite rapid increase in population. 30 years were also added to the life expectancy of an average Indian. Laudable achievements these were wherein deficit financing contributed significantly as a tool for resource mobilization" (Hasan 2018: 5). However this could not be continued as resources collected began to be diverted from development to defense needs owing to the Chinese attack on India in 1962.

iii.Solutions to problems of Budget Deficit The situation of budgetary deficit leading to deficit financing may lead to development of the economy and might be resorted to as India has done. It however has inflationary tendencies which may have adverse effects in the long run. Therefore budget deficits must be kept in check and therefore deficit financing should be controlled. There may be indicators of fiscal deficit in the economy which have to be indentified if the situation has to be controlled. Jadhav and Neelankavil come up with come up with viable solutions which may be considered for preventing fiscal deficit when undesirable- 1. Expense reduction The government must bring down its expenses if the situation of budgetary deficit has to be avoided. Expenditure cut should depend on the kind and amount of services to be provided by the government. However such reduction in expenses of central government should not pass down as burdens to state governments or local level bodies or even to individuals as this might lead to disparity between incomes of individuals and therefore distributional injustice. 2. Tax rationalization The tax structure should be designed in such a way that the revenue requirements of the government are met to finance the essential expenses. A rational tax structure must be in place so that there is parity between consumption and investment requirements in the economy and also the reduction in income disparity- "The tax structure should have fewer taxable income groups with progressive flat tax rate levels. Such tax structure should also serve to reduce income inequality. Care should be exercised that reduction in federal taxes and expenses does not result in an increase in state and local taxes, because it will merely mean passing federal tax burden to state and local government with no relief in total taxes paid by individuals. Measures for stimulation of economy should integrate both expense reduction and tax rationalization measures" (Jadhav and Neelankavil 96) 3. Streamlining of regulations Regulations should be brought about so that appropriate rules are functional in preventing activities like tax evasions. This will lead to no discrepancy in the revenue collection of the government and thus will be beneficial towards reducing fiscal deficit. Also "Foreign banks should be required to disclose the names and balances by individuals who have illegally transferred funds to avoid tax liability in home country" (Jadhav and Neelankavil 97)

91 4. Legislative limitations If the legislative process in a country is improved it may result in better and effective implementation of measures to prevent the condition of budgetary deficits and national debt. These solutions may be useful for India to contain excessive budgetary deficits leading to deficit financing in the nation. 4.Conclusion The above exhaustive discussion could attend to the objectives of the unit as specified in the beginning. It dealt with the concept of deficit financing. It has to be understood that a budget deficit and deficit financing are not the same thing. Deficit financing is a response to the condition of budget deficit. The government in India has resorted to deficit financing as the country has witnessed deficit in its budgets. Although deficit financing has inflationary tendencies it also has some potential for ensuring economic growth. Developing countries like India therefore has resorted to deficit financing in augmenting the process of economic growth in the nation. However deficit financing may lead to distributional injustice which must be averted by using additional finances for development expenditure. In order to prevent the long term negative impacts of deficit financing early warnings that the economy portray towards a budget deficit must be attended to. 5. Summary • When the revenue falls short of the expenditure, there is a condition of budgetary deficit. The means undertaken by the government to finance this deficit is known as the phenomenon of deficit financing. • Deficit financing is done through borrowing from domestic or external sources, drawing upon the country's foreign exchange reserves or by printing money. • Deficit in the budget occurs as a result of many things. The primary reason for this is that there are certain elements in government spending which grow at a much higher rate than the rate of growth of tax receipts. • Other reasons include shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 181/328 W

and

100% MATCHING BLOCK 182/328 W

fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures. •

In order to ensure deficit financing, in India additional finances are accumulated from three important sources- credit from RBI, credit from commercial banks, taking cash balances from RBI. • Deficit financing raises aggregate expenditure which in turn pushes up the aggregate demand. This leads to inflation in economy. • Inflationary tendencies of deficit financing depend on what the additional finances are spent for. For unproductive purposes like war, deficit financing leads to hyperinflation. • If deficit financing is undertaken for development expenditures, although money supply increases it may not lead to inflation because investments in developmental activities lead to the increase in productivity. • Deficit financing holds potential for propelling social injustice. However social justice can be kept intact under deficit financing if the additional finances are spent on public good and social welfare programmes. • India undertook the means of deficit financing in order to ensure economic development after independence during its initial planning years which could lead to positive outcome which however was not long lived.

92 • There may be indicators of fiscal deficit in the economy which have to be indentified if adverse effects of deficit financing have to be controlled. • By undertaking the measures of expense reduction of government, tax rationalization, regulatory measures and improving legislative processes, adverse effects of deficit financing can be prevented. 6. Key words- Budgetary deficit, deficit financing, government expenditure, inflation, economic growth, income disparity, distributional justice, tax rationalization 4.9 Model questions- 1. Explain the concept of deficit financing (6 marks) 2. What leads to deficit financing? (12 marks) 3. How is deficit financing undertaken in India? (12 marks) 4. What are the effects of deficit financing? (18 marks) 5. Elaborate on the inflationary tendencies of deficit financing. (12 marks) 6. Does deficit financing lead to economic growth? (12 marks) 7. How can budget deficit be controlled? (12 marks) 8. What are the indicators of a possible budget deficit in a nation? (6 marks) 9. What can be the viable solutions to prevent budget deficit? (18 marks) 4.10 References and Further Readings Bhagwati, Jagdish (1956): "Deficit financing and economic development." Indian Economic Review, Vol. 3, No. 2, pp. 40-60. ET Online (2020): "What is Deficit Financing?" The Economic Times, available at https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/budget-faqs/what-is- deficitfinancing/articleshow /73329358.cms Hasan, Zubair (2018): "Deficit finance and developing economies: Implications and results", Munich Personal RePEc Archive, pp. 1-15 Hukku, Manorma (1989): Deficit Financing and Economic Development in India. Mittal Publications Jadhav, Arvind and James Neelankavil (2011): "Deficit Financing – Causes, Consequences and Potential Cures", Journal of Applied Business and Economics vol. 12, No. 6, pp. 83-97. Muley, Ritika: "Deficit Financing: Meaning, Effects and Advantages", available at http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing- meaning-effects-and-advantages/17460 Unit 5 Role of Finance Ministry

93 STRUCTURE 5.1 Objectives 5.2 Introduction 5.3 Objectives 5.4 History 5.5 Structure and role of finance Ministry 5.6 Evaluating the achievements of Finance ministers 5.7 Challenges of Finance Ministry in India 5.8 Conclusion 5.9 Summary 5.10 Keywords 5.11 Model questions 5.12 References 5.1 Objectives 1. The objective of this discussion is to be acquainted with the evolution of the finance ministry in India 2. To understand the structure and functions of the finance ministry in India 3. To critically evaluate the achievements of the finance ministry in India 4. To understand the challenges that the finance ministry in India faces 5.2 Introduction The finance ministry is one of the most important departments of the Indian government. Its significance is well recognized by the Haldane Committee (1918) - "The Department of Finance must necessarily have an exceptional position among all the State Departments. The service which it has to perform- that of supervising and controlling all operations of Government in so far as they affect the financial position... involves not only the direct administration of taxation and other branches of revenue but also the control of all forms of expenditure". This unit deals with the finance ministry in India. It elaborately discusses the evolution of the finance ministry in India. It elaborates on the structure and functions of the finance ministry in India. It also evaluates the performance of the finance ministry in India by exploring the achievements of different finance ministers also specifying the various challenges that this ministry faces in its operation. 5.3 History The finance ministry in India is responsible for the financial, fiscal and monetary administration of the nation. The finance ministry as it exists today in its structure and functions has a long evolutionary history which should be referred to. The public department was bifurcated into Union company administration and the department of finance in 1810 headed by a single secretary till 1816. It was only in 1843 that the department of finance began to be headed by a separate

94 secretary. With the administration of colonial India being passed over to the British crown since 1858, the finance department looked over also the matters related to trade and commerce. As such in 1979, the finance department was designated as the department of Finance and Commerce. However in 1905, it was renamed again as the department of Finance and its commercial and industrial functions were assigned to a new department of commerce and industry. The finance department underwent many organizational redesigning over the years. Owing to the Morley-Minto reforms of 1909, and Government of India Act 1919, the finance department was divided into seven branches- general finance, revenue, Money and banking, Salary and allowances, Public accounts, Military finance and Military Accounts.

94% MATCHING BLOCK 183/328 W

As a result of the Montford reforms of 1919, the office of Comptroller and Auditor General was created and given statutory status. However it was the Secretary of State for India who actually exercised power with regard to the revenue and expenditure of the country being assisted by the finance department. The Government of India Act, 1935 stayed the power f the Secretary of State for India over Indian financial administration restricting the powers of the finance department. It was only in 1947 after the attainment of independence that the office of the Secretary of State for India was abolished. Now the department of finance acquired the designation of the Ministry of Finance. The Ministry was now organized into three major wings- Expenditure, Economic affairs and Revenue.

63% MATCHING BLOCK 184/328 W

In 1955 again the ministry was reorganized into four

75% MATCHING BLOCK 185/328 W

departments- Department of Economic Affairs, Department of Revenue, Department of Expenditure and Department of Company law Administration. A department of Coordination was added to the finance ministry in 1963. In the next year the function of the company law administration was taken over by a newly created department of Company Affairs and Insurance which was abolished again in 1966. The department of coordination was also abolished in 1967. In 1979, the ministry once again got reorganized now into four departments namely- Expenditure, Economic Affairs, Revenue and Insurance and Banking. Each of these departments was headed by a secretary to the government.

88% MATCHING BLOCK 186/328 W

76% MATCHING BLOCK 187/328 W

The department of Banking was however merged with the department of Economic Affairs in 1985. Since 1990 till date the finance ministry comprises these three departments. 6 Structure and role of finance ministry

58% MATCHING BLOCK 197/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

The Department of expenditure is the nodal department of the ministry which oversees the public financial management system of the Central government and the state governments. It implements

55% MATCHING BLOCK 189/328 W

the recommendations of the Finance Commission and the central Pay Commission. It monitors audit statements and prepares Central government accounts.

To oversee the expenditure management in the central ministries and departments form one of its principal functions. As a part of this function, this department administers Financial Rules/ Regulations/ Orders and sanctions appraisal for major schemes and projects and also handles central budgetary resources which are transferred to the states. It also provides 95 assistance to central ministries and departments so that these can control costs and prices of public services. It further reviews systems and procedure of these ministries for an optimal outcome of public expenditure. Such business of this department is carried out by its Personnel &Establishment Division, state and central divisions of

87% MATCHING BLOCK 190/328 W

Public Finance, Office of Controller General of Account, Office of Chief Adviser Cost, and Central Pension Accounting Office. The Department of Revenue administers matters related to the Direct and Indirect Union Taxes. There are two statutory boards through which this department carries out such administration. These are-

77% MATCHING BLOCK 191/328 W

the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC).Each of these bodies are headed by a chairman who happens to be ex-officio special secretary to the Government of India. The CBDT looks after the matters pertaining to the levying and collection of Direct taxes and the CBIC administers matters pertaining to the levying and collection of Customs and Central Excise Duties along with other Indirect Taxes. This department also administers various Acts like the GST Act 2017, CGST Act, Income Tax act 1961, and others. The department of Economic Affairs is responsible for monitoring the economic affairs of the nation and in advising the government on issues of domestic and external economic management and also regarding the functioning of commercial banks, regulation of investments. This department is also responsible for preparing the budget and in taking measures towards mobilization and allocation of resources in tune with the nation's developmental needs. It makes policies with regard to currency, banking, financial corporations, foreign exchange and private foreign investments. The Ministry of Finance also comprises two additional departments- the department of Financial Services and the department of Investment and Public Asset Management.

92% MATCHING BLOCK 192/328 W

The Department of Financial Services administers the functioning of banks, Financial Institutions, Insurance Companies and the National Pension System covering major reforms, initiatives and programs along with international banking relations. The finance secretary heads the department who is assisted by three Additional Secretary (AS), six Joint Secretaries (JS), two Economic Advisers (EA) and a Deputy Director General (DDG). This department also deals with the legislative and policy issues of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDAI) and the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA).

100% MATCHING BLOCK 193/328 W

Other institutions to which support is extended by this department includes

100% MATCHING BLOCK 194/328 W

public Sector banks (PSBs), Public Sector Insurance Companies (PSICs) and Development Financial Institutions (DFIs) like National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development (NABARD), Small Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), India Infrastructure Finance Company Ltd. (IIFCL), National Housing Bank (NHB), Export-Import Bank of India (EXIM Bank), Industrial Finance Corporation of India (IFCI). 96

The department of Investment and Public Asset Management has its vision to effectively manage public investment in Central Public Sector Enterprises for promoting economic development. It also looks after the prosperity of the Central Public Sector Enterprises by inducing people's ownership of the former through disinvestment. This department also has its mission to "1.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 195/328 W

List CPSEs on stock exchanges to promote people's ownership through public participation and improving efficiencies of CPSEs through accountability to its shareholders. 2.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 196/328 W

To bring in operational efficiencies in CPSEs through strategic investment, ensuring their greater contribution to economy. 3. Adopt a professional approach for financial management of CPSEs in the national interest and investment aimed at expanding public participation in ownership of CPSEs." 7

Achievements of the Finance Ministry in India The finance ministry is most evidently responsible for ensuring economic growth of the nation. To this end the finance ministry did contribute generously since the time India has gained independence. The Finance ministers of this country being at the helm of affairs of the ministry of finance have on many occasions undertaken steps that have led to achievements at the front of economic growth. India's economy stands at 2.6 trillion dollars and India is the fastest economy after China. Major goods and services are provided to the world from India. According to a report by IHS Markit, it is forecasted that India will take the second position in terms of economic growth in the Asia Pacific region just after Japan by 2025. The policies undertaken by many finance ministers have brought India's economic standards at this level. As such it becomes important to note some of these policies. C.D Deshmukh was the first governor of Reserve Bank of India and served as the finance minister from 1960 to 1956. The first budget of the nation was presented by him. The first and the second five year plans which laid the ground for a stable economic base of the country were shaped by C.D Deshmukh. He also ensured social control of financial institutions for furthering their accountability following which he enacted the new Companies Act, nationalised the Imperial Bank of India and life Insurance companies.

80% MATCHING BLOCK 198/328 W

T.T Krishnamachari who held the port folio of finance minister from 1957 to 1958 observed the changed how the economic situation of the country has changed and therefore felt the need to levy fresh taxes thereby introducing major tax reforms. He set up the three major steel plants of the country. He also established the financial institutions of IDBI, ICICI and UTI. Once again resuming office from 1964 to 1966, T.T Krishnamachari stressed on the importance of providing social security to the citizens of this country. As such he introduced a new Family Pension Scheme in 1964 by virtue of which now the pension was to be expanded to the family members of government servants even after their death. He also was instrumental in introducing major schemes like the Rajasthan Canal Schemes, Dandakarnya and Damodar Valley Projects and the Neyvile Lignite Projects. Finance Minister C Subramaniam holding office from 1975 to 1977 initiated the increase of revenue through excise. From 1985 to 1987, when V.P Singh was the Finance Minister, he made initiatives for tracking down those who evade tax. To this purpose he expanded the powers of the Enforcement Directorate of the Finance Ministry. Being in office during the Prime Ministership of Rajiv Gandhi, V.P 97 Singh oversaw the relaxation of the license raj which was instrumental in India until then. From 1987 to 1988, Rajiv Gandhi held the port folio of finance minister being the third Prime Minister to do so. It was during his regime that zero-based budgeting came into exercise. Zero-based budgeting ensures review, analysis and evolution of each budget request so that its inclusion or exclusion from the integrated whole budget is justified. After independence for about three decades, India's economic policies were highly in favour of the public sector with stringent governmental controls over private sector investments. The Indian economy was a closed one where there was import licensing along with strict control on import of technology accompanied with high tariffs. The performance of the Indian economy under this system was average. However the efficiency of this system faced severe challenges in 1970s when the growth rate of the economy lowered. As a result of this the economy of the country began to be liberalized under the regimes of Indira Gandhi and Rajiv Gandhi. However the major reform to this end took place in 1991 under the Prime Minister ship of Narasimha Rao and more importantly owing to the economic policies of the Finance Minister- Manmohan Singh. India was facing a severe balance of payment crisis. Its foreign exchange reserves went down to 1.1 billion dollars in 1991 which might have made India to default on its external debt payments. Under such circumstances, the economic policies of the finance ministry headed by Manmohan Singh initiating a stabilization programme that could entail the reduction of fiscal deficit and devaluation of the currency. It also initiated a package of structural reforms to increase the growth rate of the economy. To this end loans were negotiated with the International Monetary Fund (IMF), and structural assistance loans were attained from the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank. This finance ministry furthered a liberalization programme that ensured enhanced growth, role and performance of the private sector, foreign direct investment in the country and also was instrumental in red tape that was responsible for impeding business growth. Under the liberalization reforms was also included the appointment of a Committee on Tax Reforms headed by Raja Chelliah. This committee was to make recommendations bringing about change in both direct and indirect taxes. As such now a regime of low tax rates with a broader base was aimed for. There was reduction in indirect tax rates and in custom duties in order to attract completion to Indian industry from abroad. The reduction in import duties led gradually to a flexible exchange rate. The concept of service tax was also introduced by this finance ministry. Many of the tax reforms which were initiated in 1991 were continued by Finance Minister P.Chidambaram who held office from 1996 to 1998. The tax reforms of 1991 were continued to be implemented and import duties were continued to be reduced and it was aimed that custom duties were to be brought down to East Asian levels by 2000. Insurance sectors were opened to the new private players and foreign insurance companies were to have 26% of foreign equity. A more rational approach was taken towards the reform of the public sector whereby the Disinvestment Commission was set up to recommend a transparent selling off of Public Sector Enterprises and their handover to private sectors.

71% MATCHING BLOCK 200/328 W

98 When Yashwant Sinha headed the finance ministry from 1998 to 2002 he concentrated more on the rationalization of excise and reducing slabs from eleven to one. Even Jaswant Singh heading the finance ministry from 2002 to 2004 pushed for market-friendly reforms of the government. P Chidambaram again headed the finance ministry from 2004 to 2014 under the regime of Manmohan Singh as the Prime Minister. However reforms during this time were more gradualist in nature. There was increased commitment towards fiscal consolidation as a result of which the fiscal deficits of the Central and the state governments declined between 2003-2004 and 2007-2008 being conducive to private investment. During this period, import duties continued to be reduced to 10% and foreign direct Investments were expanded. During this period, the process was started for the states to agree to an integrated goods and service tax. Arun Jaitley on taking up the office of finance minister from 2014 also followed gradualist reforms in the economy. A fiscally prudent policy was continued with a commitment to reduce fiscal deficit to 3% of GDP by 2020-2021. Liberalizing policies were continued with respect to liberal industrial policy, openness to foreign trade and FDI. The finance ministry under Arun Jaitley could maintain its fiscal targets and prevented budgetary deficits to go out of control. Also finances were so managed that many social welfare commitments were fulfilled. A very important reform initiated during this period was the introduction of the Goods and Services Tax (GST) which was a reform in the domestic indirect taxes. Another reform brought about by this ministry was the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code which aimed at speeding up the process of recovering debt from companies which defaulted at payments of debts. 8 Challenges of Finance Ministry Montek Singh Ahluwalia, the former deputy Chairman of the Planning Commission of India pointed out the problems that the economic reforms in India have to adhere to. These have hold implications for the finance ministry to step in as this ministry is solely responsible for initiating such reforms. These stand out as major challenges before the finance ministry. When it comes to catering to social equity and justice in the Indian society which stands out to be a major aim of Indian fiscal policy, the progress has not been so impressive. There exist huge discrepancies in the provision of adequate formal employment, basic needs like education, health services, clean drinking water and sanitation to many sections of the population. There also exists inequality in income and wealth substantiated by data provided by “two India Human Development Surveys conducted jointly by the National Council of Applied Economic Research (NCAER) and the University of Maryland”. Along with these issues, there exists weak fiscal sustainability- “The combined fiscal deficit of the centre and the states is 6.7% of GDP which is twice that in other emerging market countries”. Infrastructure deficiency also exists as a major problem. Although the government has introduced GST, it faces many criticisms like it has structural flaws, exclusion of many commodities from the purview of this tax and existence of too many rates. Again the demonetization policy initiated by the finance ministry under Arun Jaitley could not lead to an effective outcome. It 99 was introduced on the presumption that this would uncover “hidden cash hoards from income that had escaped taxation, discourage counterfeiting and terrorist financing, reduce cash transactions in the economy and thus would discourage illegal and tax-avoiding activities”. However this policy could not yield the desired results. In 2019, Nirmala Sitaraman became the Finance Minister amidst the situation of a difficult economic condition with increased unemployment and India losing its status as the fastest growing economy after China. The current Finance Minister has the huge task of reinvigorating India’s economy and mobilizing resources for funding the many social welfare programmes of the Modi government. 9 Conclusion The above exhaustive discussion could fulfil the objectives of this unit. It elaborately explained the evolution of the finance ministry in India which is at the helm of economic affairs in the country. The finance ministry as it stands today has many departments which attend to various functions related to the economic affairs of the nation. The discussion above has elaborated on each of these departments. Many Finance Ministers of India over time have come up with policies which brought about significant reforms in the fiscal policy structure of the country. Finance ministry has been responsible for ensuring economic growth in the nation. However there are many challenges which the ministry faces. 10 Keywords- Fiscal administration, Economic growth, Finance Commission, Goods and Services Tax (GST), Liberalization 11 Summary • The finance ministry in India is responsible for the financial, fiscal and monetary administration of the nation. • The finance department underwent many organizational redesigning over the years • The Finance Ministry is divided into

70%	MATCHING BLOCK 199/328	W

the department of Expenditure, department of Revenue and department of Economic Affairs. • The Ministry of Finance also comprises two additional departments- the department of Financial Services and the department of Investment and Public Asset Management • The Finance ministers of this country being at the helm of affairs of the ministry of finance have on many occasions undertaken steps that have led to achievements at the front of economic growth • Major reforms to the Finance Ministry took place when India went forward with liberalization in 1990s • The Finance Ministry faces several challenges. It has to attend to problems in the Indian economy like discrepancy in provision of basic needs to the public, provision of social justice and equity and proper implementation of fiscal policy reforms.

5.11Model questions
100 1. What is the role of the finance ministry in India? (6 marks) 2. How has the finance ministry in India evolved over time? (12 marks) 3. Explain the role of finance ministry in India before liberalization (12 marks) 4. Explain the role of finance ministry in India after liberalization (12 marks) 5. Discuss the contribution of finance Ministers in India (18 marks) 6. What are the achievements of the finance ministry in India? (18 marks) 7. What are the challenges faced by the finance ministry in India? (12 marks) 5.12 References and further readings- Ahluwalia, Montek S (2019): "India's Economic Reforms: Achievements and Next Steps", Asian Economic Policy Review, No 14, pp. 46-62. ET Online (2019): "

51% MATCHING BLOCK 201/328 W

Budget through the years: The men who made India", The Economic Times, available at https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/budget- through-the-years-the-men-who-made-india/

articleshow/69994755.cms?from=mdr Government of India, Ministry of Finance, https://www.finmin.nic.in/ The Economic Times (2019): "Finance Ministers who shaped India's economy", available at https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/finance-ministers-who-shaped-indias- economy/pillars-of-indian-economy/slideshow/67521578.cms 101 Block III: Budget Unit-I STRUCTURE 3.1 Objectives 3.2 Introduction 3.3 Meaning and Concept and Objectives of Budgeting 3.4 Significance of Budgeting 3.5 Classification of Expenditure a. Functional Classification or Budget Classification b. Economic Classification c. Cross Classification d. Accounting Classification 3.6

87% MATCHING BLOCK 202/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

Institutions in Budgetary process 3.7 The Parliament 3.8 Political Executive 3.9 Audit Department 3.10 Parliamentary Committees 3.11

Budgetary Process in India Preparation Approval Execution Auditing 3.12 Types of Budgets Performance Based Budgeting Zero-Based Budgeting Gender Based Budgeting 3.13 Summary 3.14 Glossary / Key Words 3.15 Model Questions 3.16 References
102 3.1 Objective The main objectives of this unit is to familiarise the students with: The concepts of budgeting and budgetary control; i. Provide a comprehensive and detailed analytic description of the budgetary system and process in India. ii. To trace the origin of the budgetary system in India iii. Classification of Expenditure and Institutions involved in budgetary process in India. 3.2 Introduction The word "budget" comes from an English word budjet, a concept used for the king's bag containing the money necessary for public expenditure i .

76% MATCHING BLOCK 206/328 SA 5.docx (D40607909)

The term is derived from a French word, 'Bougette', which means a leather bag or wallet from which the Chancellor of the Exchequer used to take out his papers about government's financial schemes for the ensuing year for laying before the House of Commons and when he set off to place his financial plans before the House, he used to open his budget. The term was used in its present sense for the first time in1733 in the British parliament.

Since then, the term has been used for a financial scheme or statement of annual income and expenditure of the government. The first traceable legal definition of the budget is contained in a French decree of 1862: 'The budget is a document which forecasts and authorizes the annual receipts and expenditures of the State...' ii In our daily life, we use to prepare budgets for matching the expenses with income; and available funds can be invested in a profitable manner. Similarly in business, budgets are prepared on the basis of future estimated production and sales in order to find out the profit in a specified period. A budget is in the nature of an estimate and is a quantified plan for future activities to coordinate and control the use of resources for a specified period. Thus budget is a quantitative statement of management plans and policies for a given period and is used as a guide for the purpose of attaining the given objectives. It is also used as standard with which actual performance is measured. Budgets must be prepared with full knowledge and acceptance by the executives whose performance is to be measured against the budget. Different types of budgets are prepared for different purposes. Budgeting may be defined as the process of preparing plans for future activities of a business enterprise after considering and involving the objectives of the said organization. This also provides process/steps of collection and comparison of data, by which deviations from the plan, either favourable or adverse, can be 103 measured. This analysis is helpful in performance analysis, cost estimation, minimizing wastage and better utilisation of resources of the organisation. III. Meaning and Concept: In the discourse of Public Administration the term budget mainly refers to a financial document which is placed annually before the legislature of the state, by the executive. Since, today, government expenditure is aimed at a variety of objectives, including economic development, and social goals, or redistribution objectives. Hence, governments need sound fiscal policies, i.e., policies concerning government revenues, expenditures, and borrowing to achieve macroeconomic stability and other government objectives. The budget is thus the most potent instrument of the government in carrying out its policies. Infact in democratic societies, approval of the budget (the "power of the purse") is the main form of parliamentary control of the executive. Although, there exists no unanimity among writer regarding the definition of the term 'budget', but different scholars in Public Administration have defined differently by different scholars. Some scholars have used the term synonymously with 'programming' and some has considered it as 'art of management'. iii However most of the people agree that budget is the keystone of financial administration and the various operations in the field of public finance are correlated through the instrument of budget.

91% MATCHING BLOCK 203/328 W

42% MATCHING BLOCK 204/328 W

92% MATCHING BLOCK 205/328 W

In

52% MATCHING BLOCK 207/328 SA FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf (D75551780)

the Indian Constitution the word 'budget' does not figure rather it is referred to as the 'Annual Financial Statement and as a Money Bill falls under Article 110 as

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 208/328	SA	An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_it ... (D16312470)

it contains provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely iv :

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 210/328	SA	An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_it ... (D16312470)

a) The imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax; b) The regulation of the borrowing of money or the giving of any guarantee by the Government of India, or the amendment of the law with respect to any financial obligations undertaken or to be undertaken by the Government of India; c) The custody of the Consolidated Fund or the Contingency Fund of India, the payment of moneys into or the withdrawal of moneys from any such Fund; d) The appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India; e) The declaring of any expenditure to be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or the increasing of the amount of any such expenditure; f) The receipt of money on account of the Consolidated

v

104 IV. Significance of Budgeting: i. The Budgetary operations of the government have an important bearing on the functioning of the country's economy. The ideal of welfare state and economic planning have tremendously increased the magnitude of public spending, resulting in the emergence of the government as an important sector of economy. ii. Government collects huge sums of money through taxation, borrowings and printing of additional currency. The manner of collection of these monetary funds and the pattern of their spending includes saving and investment levels, distribution of income and wealth, allocation of resources, and the consumption behaviour of the people. iii. Modern economies specifically after the Covid-19 pandemic era are frequently at the beset with problems like inflation, excessive fluctuation in economic activities and deficit in the balance of payments. Budget thus acts as an important instrument to carry out corrective operations. Budget is not merely and exercise in matching expenditure to income but a powerful medium to realise objectives of public policy. Budget is a description of both the fiscal policies of the government and the financial plans corresponding to them. iv. Budgets help government to chalk out planned appraisal of their earnings and proper means of controlling the channel of spending them. Absence of such exercise may lead to corruption, inefficiency and even bankruptcy of the government.. Hence Budget provides a platform for a planned earning and wise spending and promotes a stable government. vi V.

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 209/328	W

Classification of Expenditure: Government expenditure can be broadly classified into four categories:

a. Functional Classification

98% MATCHING BLOCK 211/328 W

or Budget Classification: In India, the classification of accounts was structured so as to correspond to the organisation in which the transaction occurred and within the organisation to the inputs on which expenditure was incurred. For example, construction of a hospital would be classified and displayed in accounts as "public' works expenditure" and not as expenditure on a programme like "Medical Relief" under social services. The classification indicated the nature of expenditure but not its purpose. It did not enable identification of expenditure with functions, programmes, activities and projects. It lacked management approach in accounting in 105 as much as it did not provide the facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes, activities and projects. The Government of India introduced in April, 1974 a revised accounting structure, which attempts to serve the purposes of management as well as the requirement of financial control and accountability. Under this scheme, a five-tier classification has been adopted i.e. sectoral, major head, minor head, subhead, and detailed heads of account. Sectoral classification has grouped the functions of government into three sectors, namely, General Services, Social and Community services and Economic services. In the new scheme of accounts, a major head is assigned to each function and minor head is allotted to each programme. Under each minor head, there would be subheads assigned to activities/schemes/organisations covered by

91% MATCHING BLOCK 212/328 W

the programme. Under the new system, the object classification has been retained and placed at the last tier. It is meant to provide item-wise control over expenditure and ensure financial control and accountability. Functional classification established adequate links between budget and account heads and the plan heads of development. This has facilitated obtaining information of progressive expenditure on plan programmes and projects. The principle adopted in the new accounting classification is that all expenditures on a function, programme or activity should be recorded under the appropriate major, minor or subhead. Functional classification has provided the necessary facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes and activities to aid the management function. b. Economic Classification: Economic classification refers to the resources allocated by government to various economic activities. It involves arranging the public expenditures and receipts by significant economic categories, distinguishing current expenditure from capital outlays, spending for goods and services from transfers to individuals and institutions, tax receipts

by kind

84% MATCHING BLOCK 213/328 W

from other receipts and from borrowing and inter-governmental loans, grants etc. This classification brings out such important aggregates as public expenditure of the consumption kind, public investment and the draft of public authorities on public savings for financing the development oulays in the public sector. In short, this classification analyses the total governmental transactions and records government's influence on each sector of the economy. c. Cross Classification: Cross classification provides the breakup of government expenditure not only-by economic categories but also by functional heads. For instance, expenditure on medical facilities (a functional head) is split between economic 106 categories such as current expenditure, capital expenditure, and various types of transfers and loans. Conversely, cross classification shows how expenditure on a particular economic category, say capital formation, is divided according to different public activities like education, labour welfare, family planning etc. Under a scheme of cross classification, functional classification of expenditure can be analysed according to its economic character and economic classification of expenditure can be analysed according to the functions performed by it. The two types of classification therefore supplement each other and give a clear picture of the total transactions of government. d. Accounting Classification: Accounting classification of government expenditure can be analysed under (i) Revenue and Capital (ii) Developmental and Non Developmental and (iii) Plan and Non-Plan. Each classification of expenditure serves one objective or other of the government. For instance, Revenue and Capital expenditure classification indicates how much government expenditure results in creation of assets in the economy and how much expenditure is unproductive. Again, developmental and non- developmental classification indicates how much government expenditure is spent on social and community services and economic services as against general services. Similarly, the Plan and Non-Plan expenditure classification helps the Planning Commission and Finance Commission in determining the pattern of central assistance on plan schemes to state governments, and union territories. Thus, each classification of government expenditure serves one objective or other in government.

VI.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 214/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

Institutions in Budgetary process: The budgetary process in India is indeed a difficult exercise. It involves a variety of institutions at various levels.

The following are some of the major institutional bodies which helps in order to accomplish the task of budgeting in India. vii a) The Parliament: Being the custodian of public money in the country, the Indian Parliament, especially the Lok-Sabha or the lower house of the Indian Parliament, is the supreme legislative body whose approval for the passage of budget is a must

80% MATCHING BLOCK 215/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

in the budgetary process. Under Article 112 of the Constitution, the President shall cause to be laid before both the Houses of Parliament the 'annual financial statement', which is the main budget document.

b) Political Executive: In India, the Ministry of Finance is the nodal agency and core unit of the Executive, entrusted with the task of managing the operational dynamics of the budget. The Ministry of Finance (MOF) is the nodal agency of the budgetary process. 107 Right from estimating the final figures of the revenues and expenditure of the government for presentation before the Parliament, the Ministry is vested with the task of ultimately ensuring that the finances of the country are managed with proper care. c) Audit Department:

97% MATCHING BLOCK 216/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

Under

76%	MATCHING BLOCK 217/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

the provisions of Article 148 of the Constitution of India, the office of Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG) conducts an audit on behalf of the Parliament to investigate and report on the trustworthiness, legality and efficiency of all the financial transactions carried out by government departments.

d)

80%	MATCHING BLOCK 219/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

Parliamentary Committees: Finally, the Parliamentary Committees on Estimates, Public Accounts and Public Undertaking and around 24 departmental Standing Committees plays a significant

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 220/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

role in the budgetary processes of the country. Important roles are assigned to these committees to exercise control over the finances of the government or its public undertakings and they are empowered to perform these tasks by parliament.

viii VII. Budgetary Process in India: Till 2016, the Budget was presented in the lower house of the Indian Parliament in two parts, namely, the

86%	MATCHING BLOCK 218/328	W

Railway Budget pertaining to Railway Finance and the General Budget which gave an overall picture of the financial position of the Government of India, excluding the Railways. Since the year 2017-18, with the merger of the Railway Budget with the General Budget, a single document titled 'Union Budget' is now presented by the Minister of Finance.

73%	MATCHING BLOCK 221/328	W

The Budget is presented to Lok Sabha on such day as the President may direct.

ix Usually,

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 223/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

the formation of the budget estimates follows the cycle of the financial year, from 1st April to 31st March

and

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 222/328	W

each year on the first working day of February, it is presented by the Union Finance Minister in Parliament

82%	MATCHING BLOCK 224/328	SA	5.docx (D40607909)

in the following format: 1. Actual figures of the previous three financial years; 2. The sanctioned budget estimates for the current financial year; 3. Revised estimates of the current financial

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 225/328	SA	5.docx (D40607909)

year; 4. Proposed estimates for the next financial year, with explanatory notes for any increase or decrease in estimates; and 5. Actuals of the current financial

84%	MATCHING BLOCK 226/328	W

year available at the time of preparation of the estimates and actuals for the corresponding period of the previous financial year.

108

95%	MATCHING BLOCK 227/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

The Annual Financial Statement or the main budget document is prepared by the Ministry of Finance shows the receipts and payments of the government under three parts in which government accounts are kept: (i) Consolidated Fund- All revenues received by government, loans raised by it, and also its receipts from recoveries of loans granted by it, form the Consolidated Fund. All expenditure of government is incurred from the Consolidated Fund and no amount can be withdrawn from the Fund without authorisation from Parliament. Occasions may arise when government may have to meet urgent unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation from Parliament.) (ii) Contingency Fund-

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 228/328	SA	Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

The Contingency Fund is an imprest placed at the disposal of the President to incur such expenditure. Parliamentary approval for such expenditure and for withdrawal of an equivalent amount from the Consolidated Fund is subsequently obtained and the amount spent from Contingency Fund is subsequently recouped to the Fund. The corpus of the Fund authorised by the Parliament, at present, is Rs. 500 crore. Besides, these two funds under which government accounts are kept, there is Public Account in which moneys are received and disbursed.) (

iii) Public Accounts-

98% MATCHING BLOCK 229/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

In respect of Public Account, government acts more as a banker, for transactions such as those relating to provident funds, small savings collections and other deposits. Parliamentary authorisation for such payments from the Public Account is, therefore, not required.) x In a few cases, a part of the revenue of government is set apart in separate funds for expenditure on specific activities like road development, primary education, public health, etc. These amounts are withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund with the approval of Parliament and kept in the Public Account for expenditure on the specific items. The Budget has to distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure. Government Budget, therefore, comprises (i) Revenue budget, and (ii) Capital budget.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 230/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

In India each year, the budget follows a cycle that includes: preparation, approval, implementation and auditing. xi a. . Preparation: • Firstly, due to a

81% MATCHING BLOCK 231/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

cumbersome procedures involved in the formation of the budget, the budgetary process in India informally begins around the month of September- 109 October of the preceding year. Initiating the process, the Ministry of Finance issues a circular to various ministries and departments inviting their estimates for the coming year. • Secondly, On the basis of these circulars, various administrative agencies prepare their estimates, which are examined and scrutinised by Departmental Heads and then passed on to officers of the Finance Department/Ministry of Finance in November-December. • Thirdly, by the 3rd week of January, the Ministry of Finance prepares the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 232/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

consolidated statement of revenues and expenditures, known as the 'Annual Financial Statement', •

Finally,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 238/328 SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

the Union Budget of India (including the Rail Budget) is presented in the Indian Parliament. b. Approval: The next step of budgetary process in India is getting the legislative approval for the Annual Financial Statement, once presented to the Parliament generally on the last working day of February. • First, there is a general discussion on the broad economic and fiscal policies of the government as reflected in the budget and the Finance Minister's speech. This lasts about 20-25 hours. •

93% MATCHING BLOCK 233/328 W

At

100% MATCHING BLOCK 234/328 W

the second stage, there is a detailed discussion on the 'demands for grants', usually in respect of specific ministries or departments.

98% MATCHING BLOCK 235/328 W

Demands for grants, are the executive's requisitions for sanction to spend, and only the lower house can have a say in the matter. While the legislature can object to a demand for grant, reject it or reduce it, it cannot increase the same. It may also be mentioned here that since no demand for a grant can be made except on the recommendations of the President or the Governor (in the case of State), private members cannot propose any fresh items of expenditure.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 236/328 W

Though the budget is presented before both Houses of Parliament, the demands for grants are submitted only to the lower house

once submitted

71% MATCHING BLOCK 237/328 W

each demand for grant is voted separately. At this stage members of parliament may move motions of various kinds. Generally these are- 110 Policy cuts motions: seeks to reduce the demand to rupee one and is indicative of the disapproval of general or specific policy underlying the service to which the demand pertains. Economy cuts motion: where the motion is to reduce the proposed expenditure by a specified amount. Token cuts motions: where

97% MATCHING BLOCK 239/328 W

in a demand is moved to reduce it by a nominal amount say Rs. 100 and may be used as an occasion to ventilate a specific grievance. Since it is never possible to accommodate a detailed discussion on each demand for grant separately, the demands that cannot be so discussed are clubbed together and put to the vote of the Parliament at the end of the period allotted for discussion. •

Thirdly:

89% MATCHING BLOCK 240/328 W

even after the demands for grants have been voted by the Parliament, the executive cannot draw the money and spend it. According to the Constitutional provisions, after the demands for grants are voted by the Lok Sabha, Parliament's approval to the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of the amount is sought through the Appropriation Bill. The Appropriation Bill after it receives the assent of the President becomes the Appropriation Act. Thus, without the enactment of an Appropriation Act, no amount can be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund. Since the financial year of the government is from 1st April to 31st March, it follows that no expenditure can be incurred by the government after 31st March unless the Appropriation Act has been passed by the close of the financial year. This is generally not possible as the process of discussion of the budget usually goes on up to the end of April or the first week of May. Thus, in order to enable the government to carry on its normal activities from 1st April till such time as the Appropriation Bill is enacted, a Vote on Account is obtained from Parliament through an Appropriation (Vote on Account) Bill.

c. Execution:

100% MATCHING BLOCK 241/328 W

The execution of the budget is the responsibility of the executive government.

The procedures for execution of the budget depend on the distribution and delegation of powers to the various operating levels. As soon as the Appropriation Act is passed, the Ministry of Finance advises spending Ministries/ Departments about their respective allocation of funds. The controlling officers in each ministry/department then 111 allocate and advise the various disbursing officers. The expenditure is monitored to ensure that the amounts placed at the disposal of the spending authorities are not exceeded without additional funds being obtained in time.

93% MATCHING BLOCK 242/328 W

The Department of Revenue in the Ministry of Finance is in overall control and supervision over the machinery charged with the collection of direct and indirect taxes. Such control is exercised through the Central Board of Direct Taxes and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes. These Boards exercise supervision and control over the various operational levels which implement different taxation laws. The Reserve Bank of India is the central banker of the government. The nationalized banks and the network of treasuries are also performing the service of collection (receipts) and disbursement of funds. d. Auditing: The executive spends public funds as authorized by the legislature. In order to ensure accountability of the executive to the legislature, public expenditure has to be audited by an independent agency. The Constitution provides for the position of the Comptroller and Auditor General of India to perform this function. It is his/ her duty to ensure that the funds allocated to various agencies of the government have been made available in accordance with law; that the expenditure incurred has the sanction of the competent authority; that rules, orders & procedures governing such expenditure have been duly observed; that value for money spent has been obtained and that records of all such transactions are maintained, compiled and submitted to the competent authority. This is the last stage in completing the budgetary cycle.

IX. Types of Budgets – Performance, Zero-Based and Gender Budgeting: Performance Based Budgeting (PPB) Performance Based Budgeting (PPB) was to overcome most of the shortcomings of the traditional line-item budget. Performance budgeting for the first time originated and development in the United States of America, during 1950's. Followed by this the-then newly independent developing countries of the world in Asia, Africa and Latin America, who were committed to bring in about rapid socio-economic progress incorporated this principle of PPB, partially if not fully in their financial administration. In India the proposal for PBB started originating in the mid 1950's. The estimates Committee discussed budgetary reforms in its twentieth report and recommended the adoption of performance budgeting in India. It retreated this recommendation again in its report in 1960. Following the recommendation of the Administrative Reforms Commission in 1968, four central ministries adopted the model of PBB in drafting their financial statement. In 1977-78, about thirty-two developmental 112 departments under the Central Government switched to this new model of budgeting and since then eventually, many state governments introduced the model in drafting their financial statements. xii Background: After the Second World War the newly independent countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America were engrossed in rapid socio-economic progress and development of their people and thus in course of time the bureaucracy became the most important instrument for the implementation of public policy. Developmental goals like improving the level of societal services, health and education, building roads and facilitating communication and electricity or raising production I agriculture and industry made them realise the essentiality of incurring governmental expenditure. In the change-oriented milieu of development administration, with a vision for a social welfare centric state focused on increased governmental spending, some of these newly independent countries adopted the new tool of Performance Based Budgeting (PPB) system which back at that point of time was newly introduced at the United States of America. Primarily the main onus of this new reform in the financial administration was to suit the need for massive public investment and expenditure which was somehow not possible in the traditional accountability based line-item based budgeting. Elaborating the rational for such reform MJK Thavraj in the book, Financial Administration of India writes- The need for result- oriented budgeting is more keenly felt in all the developing countries where investable resources are few, the backlog in development is considerable, entrepreneurship is scarce and consequently the role of the government is all-pervading, embracing a wide variety of enterprises ranging from the simplest of consumer goods to the most complex capital goods industries and infrastructural facilities. Planning and budgeting are therefore extremely important to ensure economy, efficiency and effectiveness in the use of resources.... measurement of performance is thus an essential aspect of a result oriented budgeting. xiii Features of Performance Based Budgeting: • As a financial document it seeks the implementation and control of governmental programme through budget allocation. This is done by presenting the government operation in terms of programmes, activities and functions. • Through such a functional classification of governmental financial operations, public policies are sought to be identifies in the annual budget in concrete physical terms so 113 that a direct interaction between inputs and outputs could be identified and state performance reviewed through clearly identifiable cost overheads. • In traditional budgeting the object of government expenditure, purpose of the different proposed outlays, or linkages between cost and performance cannot be clearly identified or accessed. In performance based budgeting, the focus is on the end rather than the means. • The main purpose of this budgeting tool is to clearly define the objects of governmental spending the work to be performed and an estimated cost of the performance. • The concept of performance budgeting which is also called a programme budget, sets in advance the targets and the authorisation against which the performance of the governmental departments can be accessed periodically. • It serves as a basis for efficiency and work measurement qualitatively and quantitatively. The performance of the past year serves as an evaluation sheet for the next years' budgetary targets and estimates. xiv The 5 elements of Performance Based Budgeting: • Programming or the sub-division of the governmental budget for information purpose into programmes and activities representing identifiable unites with similar aims or operations. • Identifying the operational aims of each programme and activity for the budget year. • Budgeting and accounting for each programme so that the separate costs and revenues of each programme and activity are shown. • Measuring the outputs and performance of activities so that these can be related to their costs and to operational aims; and finally • Using the resultant date to establish standards and norms so that costs and performance can be evaluated and government resources used more efficiently. Principles of PBB: • Firstly, evolving a meaningful classification structure in terms of programmes, projects and activities under each function entrusted to an organisation in order to show precisely its objectives, the work done and the organisational responsibilities.

114 • Secondly, bringing the system of accounts, reporting and the prevailing financial management practices in general into accord with the new classification and requirements of performance budgeting • Lastly, establishing suitable work units for physical measurement of work done, or services rendered under each programme and activity and developing suitable norms, standards and other performance indicators for appraisal of performance. xv In a nutshell PBB attempts to integrate the planning, budgeting, costing, reporting and controlling the system of the organisation. Stages of PBB: 1. Categorisation: The first stage in Performance based budgeting starts with compiling a functional classification of all governmental activities in functional-programme- activities and projects. Usually the classification is done under the following pattern: Functions The first step is broad categorisation of the all activities under departmental heads such as agriculture, education, industry and health. Divisions Each functional categories are then further sub-divided into programmes, for instance heath may be sub-divided into primary health, child health and public health Activities Once the programmes are outlines, each programmes are deconstructed into activities. Activities constitutes the collection of similar types of work in a programme, the purpose of which is to contribute to the achievement of the broader programmes. Ex- Training of Rural Health Workers in the broader Public Health Programme of a State. Projects Lastly, each activities are further and finally sub classified into Projects on the other hand entails any activity that requires capital investment, such as building hospital and clinics. 2. Fiscal management and cost reporting: Secondly stage of PPB is evolving a system, of fiscal management and cost reporting which may be in accordance with the objectives of a programme budget. Basically in this step the financial requirement data is placed primarily under three main broad categories-

115 a. Programme and activity classification b. Object wise classification such as establishment charges, travel, grant-in-aid etc. c. Sources of financing indicating the demand numbers and major heads under which these outlays are included. 3. Accessing the performance: Thirdly in a PPB developing an accurate statistical weights and measures of accessing government performance in terms of adequacy and unit cost. 4. Evaluation or Feedback: Lastly, establishing in the budgetary process, an objective system of performance evaluation to provide periodic feedback to executors of public policies. xvi Zero Based Budgeting (ZBB) Evolution of ZBB: Peter Phyyh, an accountant manager in a Texas-based firm in United States created this method of Zero Based Budgeting (ZBB) in the year 1970. Though the private sector uses ZBB, first rose to prominence in government during the 1970s financial crisis. Faced with mounting public pressure, U.S. President Jimmy Carter promised to balance the federal budget and reform the federal budgeting system using ZBB, which he had used while governor of Georgia. Though initially well received, ZBB proved not only complicated and time consuming, but also ineffectual, as it was Congress and the executive branch that were ultimately responsible for deciding whether to keep or eliminate a program. Additionally, the president's budget office used a variant of ZBB as agencies were asked to rank their programs within funding limits. This forced the agencies to assign priorities and identify possible reductions. President Reagan abandoned the system after his election in 1980, and since then, the use of ZBB use in both the public and private sectors has been limited, primarily due to its high level of complexity and large requisite investment that can hinder its execution. xvii

116 Image: Zero-Based Budgeting: Zero or Hero? Deloitte Analysis. Essential principles of ZBB: There are 3 essential principles of ZBB which primarily distinguishes it from the conventional or traditional budgeting: • Firstly, under the conventional system, departments (called budget units) prepare and submit budgets which group many important activities under one head, making it difficult to scrutinise each activity closely. As against this aggressive approach, ZBB requires budget units which are small enough to allow close examination of their programmes. ZBB puts under magnifying glass the nature of activity of each budgetary units. For Example, in the case of education department, a separate budget need to be prepared for elementary education instead of for the whole department. Once the budget unit's activity is identified, the ZBB procedure asks: what is the activity were not funded at all? Are there other ways to perform the activity and meet the unit's objectives? The primary onus of explanation lies squarely on the departmental heads who are responsible for the activity and for preparing its budget. For instance, the Education Department of West Bengal Government may be asked what if dengue erdication programmes were not funded. A possible answer to answer from the government of west Bengal can be: 'mosquitos would thrive and this could raise the number of dengue cases.' However under the ZBB model a more definitive and qualitative answers are sought such as the estimated increase in the incidence of dengue,

117 likely number of patients lost, increase in public and private medical bills and possibilities of fatalities. In essence, it becomes an exercise in social cost-benefit analysis involving strenuous exercise at each departmental level. • Secondly, ZBB assumes that even if an activity needs to be finances it can be financed at a lower-than-current level. In other words, economy in public expenditure on public activities is at the heart of ZBB's second essential rule. It requires evaluation and review of all programmes and activities, current as well as new, and believes that those who are in-charge of public spending have the capacity to cut down expenditure without adversely affecting the current level of public services. • Third and finally, ZBB requires priority-ranking competing services of a budgetary unit. Tis ranking is done by listing all events of a decision package in order to decreasing benefits to the community. High-priority services are ranked at the top followed by low-priority services until all are ranked. The list so prepared is used to fund services in order of priority until available resources are exhausted. Many of the services at the end of the list may just be eliminated for want of funds. In brief, the three essential principles of ZBB are the following: a. Should we spend? b. How much should we spend? c. Where should we spend? Key features of ZBB: In his book 'Zero Based Budgeting: A Practical Management Tool for Evaluating Expenses', Peter Phyyh argues that the aim of Zero Based Budgeting is to facilitate the introduction of top level strategic issue in budgeting process. 1. As a budgetary tool ZBB,

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 243/328	SA	NS Final Public finance(1).doc (D154339682)

allocates funding based on program efficiency and necessity rather than budget history, and suggests that in order to allocate resources more efficiently, one should tie expenditures with results. Which meant that rather than starting from a true zero base as ZBB would suggest, the agencies would start from a "priority base". 2. As opposed to traditional budgeting, no item is automatically included in the next budget, rather in a ZBB, budgeters review every program and expenditure at the 118 beginning of each budget cycle and must justify each line item in order to receive funding. 3. Budgeters can apply ZBB to any type of cost: capital expenditures; operating expenses; sales, general, and administrative costs; marketing costs; variable distribution; or cost of goods sold. When successful, ZBB produces radical savings and liberates organizations from entrenched departments and methodologies. When unsuccessful, the costs to an organization can be considerable. 4. Under the ZBB, each item of expenditure is challenged for its very existence in every budget cycle and no base or minimum expenditure level is presumed for an activity. 5. ZBB, means that past is cut-off, the present regraded as a clean slate and all departments have to start from a scratch, hence the name Zero Based Budgeting. 6. It is also called the sunset budgeting meaning that the sun would set on each government activity after a specified period. Before the sunset date, each department would be required to present a ZB, indicating the achievements of its activities and what would result if the activities were not renewed. xviii Advantages of ZBB • Resulting budget is well justified and aligned to strategy • Catalyzes broader collaboration across the organization • Supports cost reduction by avoiding automatic budget increases, often resulting in savings • Improves operational efficiency by rigorous challenging of assumptions xix Disadvantages of ZBB: • Costly, complex, and time consuming as budget is rebuilt from scratch annually, whereas simpler and faster traditional budgeting requires justification only for incremental changes • May be cost-prohibitive for organizations with limited funding • Risky when potential savings are uncertain • Execution challenged by budget cycle timing constraints

119 • Typically requires specialized training or personnel to accomplish, and requires more resources in general • May be disruptive to the organization's operations • Could harm organizational culture or brand Gender Budgeting: I. Origin: World-wide, there is a growing recognition of the need for a fundamental rethinking of the macro-policy framework for a gender perspective. The entire idea of this type of budgeting can be traced firstly, from the United Nations conference of the 1990s affirmed a global consensus on the need for a new approach to macro policy in the sustainable human development paradigm, which is based on the cornerstones of gender equality, poverty eradication, environment regeneration and democratic governance. Finally it was the United Nations Fourth World Conference on Women held in 1995 at Beijing contributed to the emergence of an international consensus in integrating a gender perspective in all polices and their budgetary dimension. Since then countries while formulating their budgetary policy have always given due consideration and importance to the question of gender question in their fiscal policy. II. Meaning: Gender budgeting refers to presentation of budgetary data in a manner such that the gender sensitivities of budgetary allocations are clearly highlighted. Gender Budgeting includes carrying out an impact analysis of government programmes and its budgetary allocations on the overall socio-economic status of women in the country. It is necessary to realise that women are equal players in the economy-directly as workers and indirectly as members of care economy. Thus Gender budgeting analysis helps in the streamlining of the gender equality ion the society. This type of budgeting lays stress on the philosophy of reprioritising rather than an increase in overall public expenditure and in particular, the reorientation of programmes within sectors rather than changes in the overall amounts allocated to particular sectors. Moreover, one of the key thrusts of a gender-sensitive budget is to ensure a greater visibility of the unpaid care economy. In other words, a gender responsive a budgeting applies a gender lenses to budgetary resources allocation, providing more visibility to women's unpaid work. xx III. Components of Gender Budgeting: Generally, a gender budgeting involves the following four components: a. Budgetary allocation of resources to various head

120 b. Actual government outlays on various head c. An accounting of how resources are utilised for a particular purpose d. Evaluation of the effectiveness of the resources utilised in delivering the intend result. IV. Indian Experience:A special reference, in the year 2000-2001 by Yashwant Sinha, the- the Union Minister of India in his budget speech for the first time gave a justification pertaining to the access of women to national resources, and this marked the dawn of gender-sensitive budgeting in India. Following this in 2004-2005, the Mistry of Women and Child Development (MWCD), adopted the mission statement of Budgeting for Gender Equality. Since then, several initiatives have been taken by the MWCD to operationalise gender budgeting in India. The following are some of the key corner stone of gender based budgeting in India- a. Quantification of allocation of resources for women in Union/ State/ Local Budgets. b. Gender audit of policies of government c. Impact assessment of various schemes d. Analysing programmes and strategies. e. Institutionalising generation and collection of gender disaggregated data. f. Consultations and capacity building. g. Gender based profiling of public expenditure h. Gender based spatial manning and participative budgeting. 3.13 Summary A budget is in the nature thus is an estimate and is quantified plan for future activities to coordinate and control the use of resources for a specified period. Budget is used as a standard with which actual performance is measured. Budgeting is a process which includes both budget and budgetary control. Budget is a planning function and budgetary control is a system and technique which uses budgets as a means of controlling all aspects of the business and is designed to assist management in the measurement of actual performance, in the analysis of deviations from the budgeted targets and to evaluate performance and efficiency of the operations. A good budgeting system requires good organisational system with the lines of authority and responsibility clearly mentioned. The important essentials required for the establishment of a sound system of budgeting includes budget centres, budget committee,

121 budget officer, budget manual, budget period, budget key factor, forecasting, determining level of activity and preparation of budget. Budget may be classified on the basis of time, function and flexibility. On the basis of time, budget may be classified as long term budget, short-term budget and current budget. 3.14 Glossary / Key Words •

75%	MATCHING BLOCK 250/328	SA	Budgetary policy of the union government since ... (D34932924)

Budget : A comprehensive and coordinated plan, expressed in financial terms, for the operations and resources of an enterprise for some specific period in the future. • Budgeting : The process of preparing plans for future activities of a business enterprise for attaining the objectives of an organisation. • Budgetory

90% MATCHING BLOCK 244/328 W

Control : The establishment of budgets relating to the responsibilities of executives to the requirement of a policy and the continuous comparison of actual with budgeted results either to secure by individual

78% MATCHING BLOCK 245/328 W

action the objectives of that policy or to provide a basis for its revision.

Budget • Centres : Different sections of an undertaking or an organisation, where budgetory control measures to be applied and for the purpose, separate budgets are to be prepared. • Budget Committee : A group of representatives of various functions in an organisation • Budget Officer : A person who links up or coordinates the various functions, to bring them together and coordinate their efforts in the matter of preparation of target figures. • Budget Manual : A document which sets out standing instructions, the responsibility of the persons engaged in, and the procedures, forms and records relating to the preparation and use of budgets. • Budget Period : The period for which forecasts can reasonably be made and budgets can be formulated. • Budget Key Factor : The factor which at a particular time or over a period will limit the activities of an undertaking. • Forecasting : A statement of events likely to occur • Fixed Budget : A budget prepared on the basis of a standard or a fixed level of activity • Flexible Budget : A budget designed in a manner so as to give the budgeted cost at any level of activity. • Master Budget : A summary budget incorporating all functional budgets which is finally approved, adopted and employed.
122 i Ministère de l'Economie et des Finances "France's state budget", Paris, 1996 ii Stourn, Rene; The Budget; University of Michigan; 1917 iii Basu, Rumki; Public Administration: Concepts and Theories; Sterling Publisher; New Delhi; 1994. iv Budget and Budgetary Process in the Parliament of India v Budget and Budgetary Process in the Parliament of India vi Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009 vii Basu, Rumki; Public Administration: Concepts and Theories; Sterling Publisher; New Delhi; 1994. viii Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009 ix THE BUDGETARY PROCESS; LOK SABHA SECRETARIAT NEW DELHI x Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009 xi The Budgetary Process, Lok Sabha Secretariat, New Delhi, 2019 xii Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009 xiii Thavraj, MJK; Performance Budgeting in India-An Evaluation; Indian Journalism of Public Administration; Volume 30 Issue-I, Sage Publication. xiv Visvanathan, SS; Performance Budgeting in Government- An Illustrative Guide; IIPA; New Delhi; 1972 xv Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009 xvi Basu, Rumki; Public Administration: Concepts and Theories; Sterling Publisher; New Delhi; 1994. xvii Perspective on considering a Zero Based Budgeting (ZBB) planning approach, Deloitte Analysis. xviii Zero-Based Budgeting:Zero or Hero?; Deloitte Analysis. xix Baseline Budgeting vs. Zero Based Budgeting: Americans for Prosperity, 2012. xx Sury, M.M; Budgets and Budgetary procedures in India; Indian Tax Foundation; New Delhi; 2009
123 BLOCK IV UNIT I Control Over Finance LEGISLATIVE STRUCTURE • 1.01 Learning Objective • 1.02 Introduction • 1.03 Historical Perspective of Legislative Control over Finance • 1.04 Nature of Parliamentary Control over Finance • 1.05 General Principles Followed by the Constitution to ensure Control Finance Over Finance • 1.06 Legislative Control over the Taxation policy • 1.07 How Parliament Puts its Control Over Executive • 1.08 Conclusion • 1.09 Summary • 1.10 Glossary or Key Words • 1.11 Model Questions • 1.12 Reference • 1.01 Learning Objectives: Financial administration is an important aspect of public Administration and is concerned with almost all aspects of the financial management of a Government. Especially the importance of this aspect has recently been enhanced because of the tremendous increase in the amount of money expended on government services. This changing aspect has naturally affected the extension of functions of the Legislature. Thus the objectives of this unit are to discuss the nature and importance of Parliamentary control over finance.

124 • 1.02 Introduction The necessity of understanding the role of Finance in the process of functioning of the Legislature of the country may be understood by the statements made on its importance. L.D.White said, "Every administrative act has its financial implication, " which is subserved by the Government through its Legislation, especially in a Democratic form of structure. Financial administration is at the core of modern government. The founders of the Indian Constitution very emphatically constructed the parliamentary form of government based on universal adult suffrage and direct election after a particular period. At the same time, the founders also suggested that the upper house will be formed through an indirect election. Framers of the Indian Constitution described India as the Sovereign Democratic Republic with a federal structure and a Parliamentary form of government. The parliament as the base of Indian democracy exercise its control over the framing and implementing laws on all necessary and nationally important matters. In this process, the elected representative in the Parliament exercises its controlling power in achieving the goal of government. In the process of parliamentary governance, the representatives issue a mandate to the executive. This function of the elected members of the parliament makes them responsible to the people. This also enables the representative to prove their accountability to the electorate. The Constitution has vested the Parliament with many instruments through which it can enforce accountability on the government. • 1.03 Historical Perspective of Legislative Control over Finance. The concept of budget and legislative control over the Finances through controlling the

73%	MATCHING BLOCK 246/328	W

Budget began to develop in the late middle ages when the revenue was collected from the domain of the King or Zaminder of the property. From that incident, a new legacy started to generate, where

53%	MATCHING BLOCK 247/328	W

the budget became the statement of revenue and expenditure. During war or other exigencies, when the King or ruler required a lot of money for running the affairs in the interest of the domain or

100%	MATCHING BLOCK 248/328	W

the state, he had to consult the nobility to know their views on the imposition of the new tax. The consultation was mainly made to understand the social effect of the imposition of extra tax. Only after the Glorious Revolution in 1688, there was a public principle that "no revenue without representation" got established. But during that period

96%	MATCHING BLOCK 249/328	W

the control over 125 expenditure had still not acquired the conventions of legislative approval. Historically the system of legislative control over Public Finance first arose in England and it was more a growth than a creation. The first step that was taken in this direction was during the reign of King John. The reign of King John established the convention of controlling the receipt and revenues. But no step was then taken to put control over the expenditure. Later the Stuart autocracy first took the initiative to make the Parliament more exacting in maintaining financial discipline. From this time the parliament started to make the political claim to put its control over the expenditure as well. But this did not come about suddenly.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 251/328 W

Even this also not came through any concerted plan or design. This development was again made gradually. The initiation of this development began in 1787. Gradually the process of audit and accounting started its journey to establish and authenticate the authority of legislature over the expenditure. So this should be remembered that the audit system under the Exchequer and Audit Department Act 1866, and the constitution of a Standing Committee of Public Accounts in the House of Commons in 1866 were significant historical development in the arena of Legislative Control. Through this path finally, the modern system of Audit and Reporting was built. With this, a new era of a new system of legislative control began and in India after her independence, the framers of the Constitution incorporated the system of sanctioning money and checking expenditures in a project. So legislative control on finance was followed from the prevailing British system of Parliamentary democracy. • 1.04 Nature of Parliamentary Control over Finance. The aim and focus of the Parliamentary control over the National finance are used to ensure proper and plan-oriented execution of the allotment made by the Budget. The financial control of Parliament has practically ensured the proper execution of the Budget. The changing role of governments globally brings out their increasing responsibility for various activities, resulting in increasing expenditure and simultaneously an effective control of Parliament over the executive, the main spender of the budgetary allotment. This control also assured the accountability of the executive in implementing the development projects sanctioned by the parliament through the budget. The proposal of approving the grant in the budget is placed in the parliament, and the parliament/ Legislature passed it based on the support of the majority members, after a long discussion on the submitted report of the concerned committee of the parliament. This is one of the major ways of controlling the 126 national purse, where the elected members in the parliament took the most vital role. For the proper functioning of the norms of approval, the parliament essentially required a proper monitoring mechanism. Because the natural tendency of any government is to place their require of public funds for appropriation and allocation to carry out the work. To achieve this goal properly there is reliable and accessible information which can indicate the actual responsibility of the working agencies.ParParliamenthould rerememberhat that any lapses in financial control have serious repercussions on the soundness of the public delivery system and develop it in sectors. Besides, this there are alsoimportantprtant procedural s parliamentlimtheh could also be used to control seeing of Budget expenditures too. such procedures through and at a regular periodic interval review of the expenditure. This will ring out the fact whether the allotted money and fund have been properly utilised for which it was allocated by Parliament. In this process, the following principles are followed:- ➢ The executive, acting through the elected Minister is not given the authority to raise money, through imposing tax or borrowing from the market or other sources, for any project or developmental work. The parliament is the final and last authority to emanate and consider any proposal for additional allotment. ➢ Loksabha is vested with the power to control the money bill exclusively. Such a Bill proposal must originate in the Lok Sabha which enjoys exclusive power on the Money bill. It also enjoys raising the exchequer by imposing a tax or by taking loans from the market. Being the sole authority for raising funds the LokSabha is also authorised to check the expenditure through its different Financial Committees. ➢

78% MATCHING BLOCK 252/328 W

47% MATCHING BLOCK 253/328 W

The demand for a grant must come from the government. Neither Lok Sabha nor a state assembly may vote on a grant except on a demand for grant government. ➢ The proposal of imposing a new tax or for any market loan must come from the Government, private members are not allowed to raise the such issue in the Lok Sabha. This may raise a question on the role of private members in the Parliament. The parliament in its capacity can at any time raise questions using the norms of putting such an instrument of control. These instruments of control to the hands 127 of private members are, 'question hour', 'debate' 'discussion' 'passing various relevant motions' etc. apart from this, the private members may place the proposal of sending any debatable issue to the parliamentary committees which too play an important role in exercising control and supervision. There is also some provision for using the Consolidated fund by the Lok Sabha. • 1.05 General Principles Followed by the Constitution to ensure Control Finance Over Finance. In any Country, the effectiveness of parliamentary democracy greatly depends on the control over the exchequer. The national exchequer is the bloodstream of all administrations. It is the major factor in the determination of Government policies. The sign of good governance generally establishes through its sound financial system. Considering the importance of finance and financial control, our founding fathers of the Constitution aptly vested the exclusive power and privileges to control the nation's power to the Lok Shabha'. Thus Indian system of legislative control over finance and financial policy greatly rests upon the rules of the Constitution and on the rules of the Lok-Sabha. The prime fundamental principle of Indian financial legislation is that no taxes may be laid without sanctioning the Parliament. Similarly, without the proper legislative approval public money cannot be spent. Both are controlled by the Legislature with its authority. The approval of yearly expenditure from the Government exchequer is given by the Parliament. This power of the legislature is its statutory power. There is also a second principle.

61% MATCHING BLOCK 254/328 W

The president shall, in respect of every financial year, cause to be laid before both Houses of Parliament the Annual Financial Statement embodying the estimated revenues and expenditure for the coming year (Article 112, 113, 265) This especially indicates that the Parliament or Legislature shall generally not consider any proposal for expenditure of money and any proposal for raising revenues unless it is not recommended by the President. As per norms determined by the Constitution, the Cabinet, consisting of the elected members of the Parliament works on behalf of the President and under the leadership of the Prime Minister. Government is the spender. Being a spender the members of the Legislature decide not only the plan proposal submitted to the house, viewing the purpose and utility of the project it also sanctioning the amount for materializing the project. So Legislature decides the 128 necessity of funds for the completion of the project. Along with that it also approved the excess amount over the grant if it feels it necessary. So to summarise the issue, it can be said that the main thrust of legislative control over finance is exercised in two stages. The first is at the time of policy- making and the second is while reviewing the implementation of the policy. The legislature has control of the purse and determines the quantum of resources and the manner of raising and spending the same. The initial control is exercised at the time of the presentation of the annual budget or the annual financial statement, showing the estimated receipts and proposed expenditure of the Government, for the financial year.

72% MATCHING BLOCK 255/328 W

The second stage of control viz. the control over the implementation of the policies is to review whether the sums of money

65% MATCHING BLOCK 256/328 W

voted by the legislature have been utilized for the purposes for which and in the manner in which the legislature wanted them to be utilized. Our forefathers of the Constitution made some definite provisions for enforcing the control. ➢

85% MATCHING BLOCK 257/328 W

As per Article 107 (i) subject to the provision of Articles 109 and 117 concerning Money Bills and other financial bills, a bill may originate in either House of Parliament and subject to the provision of Articles 108 and 109 a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the House of Parliament unless it has been agreed to by both

the

71% MATCHING BLOCK 258/328 W

Houses either without amendment or with such amendments only such amendment are agreed to by both the House. ➢ Article 109 (I) provides that Money Bill shall not be introduced in the Upper House of the Parliament. ➢

71% MATCHING BLOCK 259/328 W

As per Article 109(2), after a Money Bill has been passed by the House of the People, it shall be transmitted to the Upper House for its recommendations and the Upper House shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the House of the People with its recommendations. ➢ The House of the People may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Upper House. ➢ As per 109(3), if the House of People accepts any of the recommendations made by the Upper House, the Money Bill shall be 129 deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Upper House and accepted by the House of people. ➢ Article 112(1) provides that the President shall in respect of every financial year cause to laid before both the Houses of the parliament, a statement of the estimated receipt and expenditure of the government of India for the year. Such a statement is called an "Annual Financial Statement".

There is also some clear provision on the use of Consolidated Funds by the House of People. As per Article 113(1),

52% MATCHING BLOCK 260/328 W

the expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the Government shall not be submitted to the vote of Parliament.

But Article 114(1) also provides

84% MATCHING BLOCK 261/328 W

that as soon as the grants under Article 113 have been made by the House of People, there shall be introduced a Bill to provide for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of India of all money required to meet. Thus: ➢ The expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund should never exceed the amount shown in the statement ➢

This Fund can be used to i) make the estimated expenditure; ii) use the Fund to meet any unexpected demand upon the resources of India; iii) make

90% MATCHING BLOCK 262/328 W

an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current services of any financial year. • 1.06

Legislative Control over the Taxation policy. Control over finance through the yearly Budget can never be completed unless and until a provision has been made for accumulating the financial resources required to maintain the Budget programme in the country. For this purpose, a finance bill is placed before the parliament. Our previous chapter discussed in detail the process of placing of Money Bill and the different phases it passed before final approval. There are some differences between 'Money Bill' and 'Budget'. ➢

87% MATCHING BLOCK 263/328 W

98% MATCHING BLOCK 264/328 W

Money Bill deals exclusively with taxation, borrowing or expenditure. Whereas Finance Bill has broader coverage in that it deals with other matters as well ➢ A Money Bill must be certified by

83% MATCHING BLOCK 265/328 W

the Speaker of the Lok Sabha. 130 ➢ A Money Bill must be returned by the Upper House to the Lok Sabha within 14 days of its receipt with its recommendations, if any, which the Lok Sabha is not bound to accept ➢ Disagreement over a Finance Bill, however, is resolved at a joint sitting by a majority of the total members present and voting

A Finance Bill embodies the taxation or revenue proposal for the financial year.

88% MATCHING BLOCK 266/328 W

This practice is quite in consonance with the well-known principles of democracy that, "no tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law as embodied in Article 265 of our Constitution. So while the passage of the Appropriation Bill authorises the Government to appropriate money from the Consolidated Fund, the passes of the Finance Bill authorises it to collect taxes". The function of the Legislature to enforce control over Finance starts with the question placed by the members of the Parliament, especially to members of the Government. This controlling weapon is used against the Executive by the Legislature. The question may be raised:- o Misuse of Funds: The opposition often asks the members of the executive regarding aberrations in public expenditure. The Executive then has to clarify the doubts, perhaps stemming from any miscommunication or misinformation, raised by the opposition. The Executive is politically bound to clear the doubts raised by the opposition. o Members of the parliament, especially the Opposition party use the legislative platform as an 'interactive dias" to ventilate their grievance s.It is said that the asking question is an "inherenrightts of members of the Parliament".Thee hour of question may be termed as the hour of trial of executhe tive. Because every mmember/ especially Ministers are answerable for the acts of their department. o In Indian Parliamentary Democracy Parliament is considered as the place of interaction among the members. Generally, four types of questions are seen to be placed in the Parliament. These are;

131 o Starred Question. When a member desires to get a reply to any question, he generally marked the question with an asterisk. This question belongs to the category of Starred questionsn. o Unstarred Question. Sometimes members do demand an immediate verbal reply from the concerned members of the executive. There are some question which aims to discuss on the financial control of the legislature and its effectiveness. These are: 1. Short Notice Questions: These questions are generally made on any urgent matter. The such important questions can be asked on shorter notice than ordinary questions. 2. . Private Member Questions: A question may be addressed to a private member provided the subject matter of the question relates to some bill, resolutionor otherr matter connected with the business of the house for which that member is responsible • 1.07 How Parliament Puts its ControlOver Executive with the help of Committees. Parliament has some useful instruments in its control which help it to substantiate control over the Executive. Among that most important instrument is Budgetary Control. As per our Constitution no money can be spent by the executive without sanction of the majority members of the Parliament. The Executive in each year placed the budget proposal to the house. The members of the house made an extensive debate in the Parliament on the proposal, which ultimate put to the vote before the members for their approval.. It is mandatory that budget proposal placed shoud be approved only by the supprot of the majority number of members of the house. But regarding the 'majority of the house' the conventionally the rulling party always hold the majority in the house. So the chances of being rejected by the majority has automatically reduced to an impossible proposition. Thus after approval on the Budget proposal, the Comptroller General and Auditr General of India audit the expenditure as well the project viability. On the basis of their Audit Accounts they submitted an extensive report to the Parliament regarding the utilization of sanctioned money as well as the judiciality of expenditure made by the Goverbnebt during a financial yeat. To ensure the control CAG

88% MATCHING BLOCK 267/328 W

has been given an independent status by the Constitution. Since parliament is too unwieldy body for a serious technical discussion on the report of the CAG , it instantly 132 send to the PAC (Public Accounts Committee). PAC throughly scrutinize the report and audited Accounts and finally submitted to the Parliament with its recommendation and suggestion for action by Government wherever necessary. The Parliament justify the proposal of Executive for expenditure through the Estimate Committee. The Estimate Committee suggests the probable way for economic development, organizational efficiency or administrative reform. It can also suggest The second method of control starts immediately after the question hour, which is called 'Zero Hour'. . At this point, the members put their question in written form. The parliamentary norms are that, before any listed business, the paper so submitted is taken up in the for discussionThe zero hour is usually used to raise matters that are urgent and cannot want wait for the notice period required under other procedure. For raising matters during the zero hour, the members of Parliament give notice before 10 am to the Speaker on the same day. Committee system is prime instrument of controlling the function of the executive by the legislature. Apart from suggesting some alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 270/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

50% MATCHING BLOCK 268/328 W

the committee also select some departments each year, examine their working in great deal and makes suggestion on organization, economy, including policy matters.

The Committee of Public Undertakingsexamine public undertakings and evaluate their performance. It also examines different aspects such as implementation of policies programme, management, financial success etc. Committee of Public Undertakings sends the report of CAG after necessary examination to the parliament along with its comments.

78% MATCHING BLOCK 269/328 W

The Parliament exercise direct control over Public expenditure by examining the reports of the committee on Public Accounts and Estimate Committee. • 1.08

Conclusion Parliament has its own dignity and importance to protect the democracy as main rulling narration. Indian Parliament is an example of organization which runs and conduct its power and ruling privileges by the written documents. Citizen of India exercising their suffrage right elects their representatives. They naturally expect that their representative will properly represent their opinion and sovereign supremacy in the parliament. That duty is done by the elected members through questions and committee. It is imperative that they behave 133 in the prescribed manner to preserve the decorum of the Parliament. The instruments of financial control in India mentioned above can be effective if they are applied with public ethics and morality. The Parliamentary oversight can ensure control or act as a check on the functioning of the government. However, the parliamentarians must take care that there are no disruptions and walkout so that a healthy environment of questioning can be carried out. • 1.09 Summary • We have discussed in detail the historical narration of Legislative control over the finance as well as on the Executive. • Taking example of historical narration we have discussed the process of financial control of legislature on the finance. • The relevant Constitutional provisions in support of legisative control over finanace has also been discussed in detail • Major financial control is imposed on Government's Tax policies, and judicius tax imposition on the citizen. For this reason we have explained that issue here. • Thus we have come to the point of committee system and discussed the functions of committees of parliament which help the parliament to ensure its control over the executive. • 1.10 Model Questions Long Questions:- 1) Discuss in detail, how our Constitutional forefathers has incorporated the necessary provision to ensure the paliamentary control over the finance and executive. 2) Write a detail narration on the process of controlling the Tax system by the Parliament. 3) Discuss the nature of Parliamentary Control over Finance. . Middle question. 1) How Parliament Puts its Control Over Executive with the help of Committees. 2) What are the controlling instrument of legislature to control over the financial activities of the executive.
134 3) Write a note on the Constitutional provisions on financial control of parliament. Short Questions 1) Explain Budgetry control 2) Difference between Money Bill and Finance Bill 3) Expalin 'every Administration has its financial implication'. 1.12 References 1) Basu, Durga Das: Introduction to The Constitution of India; Lexis Nexis 2020 2) Barkar: Reflections on Government; Paperback, 2013 3) Rai, V.: Rethinking Good Governance; New Delhi, Rupa Publications India Pvt. Ltd. 2019 4) Mahajan, Sanjeev and Anupam Puri Mahajan; Financial Administration in India, New Delhi: PHI India learning Pvt. Limited, 2014. 5) Lakmikantha, M: Public Administration; McGraw hill Education (INDIA) Pvt. Ltd. 2016 6) Butt, R: The Power of Parliament; London: Constable & Co., 1967 7) Bhattacharya, Mohit: Social Theory and Development Administration; Jawahar Publishers, New Delhi,2002. 8) Bhattacharya, Mohit: Restructuring Public Administration; Jawahar Publishers, 1999. 9) Awasthi, A, and S. Maheswari: Public Administration, Lakshmi Narain Agarwal, Agra, 1984. 10)

100% MATCHING BLOCK 274/328 SA THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf (D75607893)

Basu Rumki: Public Administration. Concepts and Theories; Sterling Publishers Pvt. Ltd. 2022 135

Unit III: Financial Committees: Public Accounts Committee, Estimates Committee Contents 3.0 Learning Objectives 3.1 Introduction 3.2 Committee System: Need and Importance 3.3 Public Accounts Committee: 3.3.1 Evolution and Composition 3.3.2 Functions of Public Accounts Committee 3.3.3 Working Procedure of the Committee 3.3.4 Challenges faced by PAC 3.4 Estimates Committee 3.4.1 Origin 3.4.2 Term of Office 3.4.3 Composition 3.4.4 Functions 3.4.5 Working 3.4.6 Limitations 3.5 Conclusion 3.6 Summary 3.7 Glossary 3.8 Model Questions 3.9 References
136 3.0

90% MATCHING BLOCK 271/328 W

Learning Objectives After reading this unit, you should be able • To understand the composition and function of Public Accounts Committee •

To understand the composition and function of Estimates Committee • To know about the limitations of both the committees 3.1 Introduction Under the Indian Constitution, Parliament has the prerogative to exercise control over taxation, to grant supplies for public expenditure and control public expenditure. In this context, it can be added that Lok Sabha, the Upper House of Parliament is vested with two types of power of control, entitled— a) pre-budgetary control and post-budgetary control. Post-budgetary control is very significant in the sense that it always tries to scrutinize the budgetary allocation and expenditure. The main instruments of parliamentary control are some financial committees, e.g.—Public Accounts Committee, Estimates Committee and Committee on Public Undertaking.

71% MATCHING BLOCK 272/328 W

Here we will concentrate on first two committees. 3.2 Committee System: Need and Importance The need for financial Parliamentary control with the help of committee system arose somewhere in the sixteenth century in England and thereafter in the USA. It became popular in France in the eighteenth century and slowly developed in other countries. In India, the legislative control over finance can be said to have commenced after the year 1919 under the Montague Chelmsford Reforms. The Government of India Act, 1919 introduced the system of control by the Indian Legislature over finance largely modeled on the British system. The origin of the committee system in India can be traced back to the first legislature after the advent of British rule in India in 1853. The history of committees in India started with the setting up of the Legislative Council in 1854 and a Select Committee in 1856. Public Accounts Committee is one of the four elected oldest committees of the House. The Parliamentary financial control through committees attempts to ensure that the appropriation of money done by the parliament is spent economically for the approved purposes within the framework of grants. In view of the magnitude of tasks to be performed and within limited time at its disposal, the Parliamentary committees have been constituted. The committees facilitate a methodical and exhaustive assessment of the diverse legislative activities. They ensure supervision and accountability. There are two kinds of committees — Standing Committees and Ad hoc Committees. The ad hoc committees are appointed for a specific purpose and their existence ends after it has presented its report. The main ad hoc committees are the select and joint committees on bills. The Standing Committees are elected or appointed every year or periodically and their work goes on a continuous basis. The three financial committees that we shall be discussing in this unit constitute this category. There are Departmentally Related Standing Committees (DRSCs), too entrusted with tasks of considering demands for grants for various ministries/departments, examining bills referred by the Chairman of Rajya Sabha or Speaker of Lok Sabha and so on. 137 Now we shall be discussing the composition and functions of the three financial committees of the Parliament. 3.3 Public Accounts Committee: The parliamentary financial tool to monitor the government's financial activities is the Public Accounts Committee (P.A.C.). It is constituted to examine the appropriation accounts and the annual finance accounts of state corporations and other bodies. It also scrutinises the C.A.G. report but not those organisations which have been designated to the Committee on Public Undertakings. The P.A.C. tends to be effective and significant if its recommendations are rightly carried out. 3.3.1 Evolution and Composition Evolution The P.A.C. was set up in 1921 as per the Montague Chelmsford Reforms. The Government of India Act 1919, mandated the Governor-General-in Council to formulate such committees at the Centre as well as the provincial levels so that the accounts of the government are examined to detect any kind of abnormality or deviation from rules and regulations, extravagance, losses, delays, etc. The 1935 Act included a provision that the report of the P.A.C. must be tabled in the Legislature. Later, the 1947 Act mandated that the Committee would present its report to the President. The Committee on Public Accounts, which is the most prestigious Committee of Parliament, is constituted every year to examine accounts showing the appropriation of sums granted by the Parliament for expenditure of Government of India as mentioned above. The Committee became a Parliamentary Committee on 26th January, 1950. Composition The P.A.C.

65% MATCHING BLOCK 273/328 W

98% MATCHING BLOCK 275/328 W

consists of 15 members elected by Lok Sabha every year from amongst its members according to the principle of proportional representation by means of single transferable vote. Seven members of Rajya Sabha elected by it in the same manner as the Lok Sabha are associated with the Committee in proportion to its respective strength in both the Houses. 3.3.2 Functions of Public Accounts Committee As discussed above, the P.A.C. examines accounts to check if the government has spent as per the funds appropriated by the government. The functions of the P.A.C. are given below: 1. Examination of Accounts: The P.A.C. examines accounts and the report of the CAG to ascertain that the appropriated funds by the Parliament have been spent with economy and efficiency as per the following conditions: i) The expenditure must not surmount the funds allocated by the Parliament. ii) The expenditure has been incurred for the specific activity that it was apportioned by the Parliament. iii) Only the authorised officials have spent the allocated funds. iv) The authorised officials have not neglected any vote of Parliament by using it more than a grant. 2. Procedure: The P.A.C. confirms if the procedure used in the maintenance of accounts has been according to the rules and laws. The P.A.C. has the power to call for persons, papers, or records for 138 the purpose of evidence. Although the committee can report or recommend on a specific item but cannot prohibit any expenditure. 3. Additional Functions: The P.A.C. is supposed to perform these following functions: i) It scrutinises income and expenditure statement of state corporations, trading and manufacturing schemes and projects. ii) Examination of accounts of autonomous and semi-autonomous bodies. iii) It scrutinises the accounts of those stores and stocks of which the CAG has conducted an audit. 4. Tax Administration: The Committee examines various aspects of the government's tax administration like the cases involving under-assessments, tax evasion, non-levy of duties, etc. It also identifies the

66% MATCHING BLOCK 276/328 W

83% MATCHING BLOCK 277/328 W

loopholes in the taxation laws and procedures and makes recommendations to check leakage of revenue. 3.3.3

Working Procedure of the Committee The procedure of the committee is given below in brief: • The committee works with the Chairperson as its head and guide. He/she is given feedback by the C.A.G. and the Secretary of the Committee to start the procedure of asking the questions. • The ministry's representatives are asked to appear before the committee to clarify certain questions related to their ministry's accounts. Such meetings are kept private and confidential to maintain secrecy of the witnesses. • A model/draft report is prepared by the Parliament Secretariat and Chairman to further send it to the C.A.G. for validation. • The Committee considers it finally and the presents it to the Parliament. • At times, sub-committees are formed to deal with specific issues. After a detailed review of all aspects, the report is finalised by the Committee and submitted to the Parliament. 3.3.4 Challenges Faced by P.A.C. • The P.A.C.'s power to scrutinise expenditure provides for Parliamentary oversight over Executive decisions and acts as a check on slackness, negligence and even wrongdoing on the part of the Executive. • However, the lack of technical expertise hinders the P.A.C.'s examinations. Officers are sometimes able to dodge P.A.C. summons, which has prompted suggestions that it should have the power to hand out harsher punishments. • In December, the Institute of Public Auditors of India (I.P.A.I.) sought suo moto powers of investigation for the P.A.C. • In April, the P.A.C. had pitched for making the CAG and Auditor General (AG) accountable to Parliament. Way Ahead:

139 • The report of the All India Conference of Chairpersons of P.A.C.s of Parliament and State/UT Legislatures suggested that the PAC should be consulted on the appointment of the CAG, and that it should have powers to examine Public-Private Partnership projects. • The report proposed that services of experts should be availed on technical matters, among other suggestions. 3.4 Estimates Committee The Estimates Committee is a financial Committee of the Lok Sabha. 3.4.1 Origin The origin of Estimates Committee can be traced to the setting up of a standing finance committee in 1921. It was established on the advice of the then-finance minister, John Mathai, during the post- independence era. The Estimates Committee is a Committee of Lok Sabha. The Provisional Parliament approved the motion to elect the first Estimates Committee on April 3, 1950, and the Committee was elected on April 10. 3.4.2 Term of Office The term of office is one year.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 278/328 W

A minister cannot be elected as a member of the committee.

A new election for the Constitution of the Committee

58% MATCHING BLOCK 279/328 W

for the coming financial year should be held before the end of the current financial year. The current Committee members will continue to serve until new members are elected if such an election is not held for any reason. 3.4.3 Composition It had 25 members at first, but that number was increased to 30 at the year 1956. The Estimates Committee consists of members from Lok Sabha only. The Rajya Sabha has no representation in this committee. 3.4.4 Functions According to Rule 310

96% MATCHING BLOCK 282/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

of the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the Lok Sabha, the Committee on Estimates is established to examine any

61% MATCHING BLOCK 280/328 W

estimates that may seem appropriate to the Committee or that have been formally referred to it by the House or the Speaker. The function of the committee is to look over the estimates made for the budget and suggest 'economies' in public expenditure As a result, it is also referred to as a 'continuous economy committee'. The function of the committee is explained in detail below. •

78% MATCHING BLOCK 281/328 W

To report what economies, improvements in organisation, efficiency and administrative reform consistent with the policy underlying the estimates, can be affected

Estimates Committee at Glance Founded 1950 Chairman Girish Bapat Appointment of Chairman Speaker of Lok Sabha Tenure One Year Total members 30 (Lok Sabha only)
140 Manner of Election Principles

100% MATCHING BLOCK 283/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

of proportional representation by means of a single transferable vote •

74% MATCHING BLOCK 284/328 W

To suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration • To examine whether the money is well laid out within the limits of the policy implied in the • estimates • To suggest the form in which the estimates are to be presented to Parliament • When it comes to public undertakings that are assigned to the Committee on Public Undertakings, the Committee shall not exercise its powers. • Throughout the financial year, the Committee may periodically continue to examine the estimates and report its findings to the House. • The Committee shall not be required to review all of the estimates for any year. Even though the Committee has not submitted a report, the demands for grants may still ultimately be voted on. 3.4.5 Working Let's discuss the working of the committee on estimates in detail. • After the constitution of the Estimates Committee, it selects estimates which are

62% MATCHING BLOCK 285/328 W

pertaining to a Ministry/Department of the Central Government or such of the statutory and other bodies of the Central Government as may seem appropriate to the Committee. • The Committee further examines items of particular importance that may emerge or be discovered during its work, matters referred by the House or the Speaker. • The Committee calls for preliminary materials from the Ministry/Department, statutory and other Government bodies with reference to the topics selected for

the

77% MATCHING BLOCK 286/328 W

examination and also memoranda from non-officials involved with the subjects for the use of the Committee's members. • The Committee from time to time appoints one or more study groups or subcommittees to conduct in-depth investigations into a variety of subjects. • With the Speaker's

66% MATCHING BLOCK 287/328 W

approval, the Committee may decide to make visits to study any specific matter, project, or establishment, either as a whole Committee or by dividing itself into Study Groups,

100% MATCHING BLOCK 288/328 W

if it appears to the Committee that it is necessary for the purpose of its examination that an on-the-spot study should be made. • The pertinent Ministries/Departments, etc., are contacted in advance to request notes regarding the institutions/offices, etc., to be visited. These notes are then distributed to the members of the Committee/Sub Committee/Study Group. 141 •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 289/328 W

Only informal meetings are held at the site of the visit when the committee, subcommittee, or study group is there on a study visit. Such meetings don't record any evidence or make any decisions. • All meetings between the Committee and representatives of Ministries/Departments, non- official organisations, etc. are confidential, and anybody with access to them is not allowed to share any details regarding the topics discussed with the press or other unauthorised

58% MATCHING BLOCK 290/328 W

parties. • Official and nonofficial witnesses are later invited to testify at formal meetings of the Committee held in the Parliament House Complex in New Delhi, taking into account

82% MATCHING BLOCK 291/328 W

informal discussions during Study Visits, memoranda received from non-officials, information gathered from the Ministry/Department concerned, and other sources. •

The committee's observations and recommendations are included in the reports it submits to the Lok Sabha. • The Ministry or Department in question must act on the Observations/Recommendations findings included in the Report within six months of the Report being presented to Lok Sabha, or as otherwise instructed by the Committee. • After the Committee has reviewed the Government's responses, a report on the actions taken is given to Lok Sabha. Statements are placed on the Lok Sabha's table as responses to the suggestions found in the Action Taken Reports. 3.4.6 Limitations The following factors limit the Estimates Committee's ability to do its job effectively: • It cannot question the policy laid down by the Parliament. • It examines every year only certain selected ministries and departments. Thus, by rotation, it would cover all of them over a number of years. • It does not examine the budget estimates before they have been voted on by the Parliament. • Its recommendations are advisory and not binding on the ministries • Its work is in the nature of a post mortem work i.e. it examines the expenditure which has already been done by the government. • The expert assistance of the C.A.G. is available to the Public Accounts Committee but not to the Estimates Committee 3.5 Conclusion To conclude it can be stated that the said instruments of parliamentary control i.e. P.A.C. and E.C. have been working significantly in their own field. Formation of P.A.C. shows that it does not work as an agent of any specific political party, because different representatives of important political parties are incorporated here. A former Speaker of Lok Sabha aptly comments, "...the association of the members of the opposition assures all that the government spending is going to be scrutinised with no special tendencies." On the other hand, through the reports of E.C. common people could learn 142 about the governmental activities. The main objective of E.C. is not only limited to criticism, but to accumulate knowledge about constructive discussion, observation etc. P. R. Jena rightly remarks, "When any technical issue emerges for discussion, then the members of E.C. use to accept opinions from both official and non-official experts." 3.6 Summary • The Public Accounts Committee (P.A.C.)

98% MATCHING BLOCK 292/328 W

is a committee of selected members of Parliament, constituted by the Parliament of India, for the purpose of auditing the revenue and the expenditure of government of India. •

The Estimates

68% MATCHING BLOCK 293/328 W

Committee is a committee of selected members of Parliament, constituted by Lok Sabha for the purpose of scrutinising the functioning of government's ministers and departments in terms of expenditure and utilisation of funds. 3.7 Glossary • Montague Chelmsford Reforms: The government of India Act, 1919also known as the Montague Chelmsford Reforms came into force in 1921. It was instituted in the British Indian Polity to introduce the diarchy, that is, the rule of two, the executive councilors and the ministers. • The Committee on Public Undertakings (C.P.U.): It was established in 1964. Its main function is to: i. Examine the reports and accounts of the public undertakings. ii. Scrutinise reports of the CAG on the public undertakings.

52% MATCHING BLOCK 295/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

iii. Carry out any other functions of P.A.C. and E.C. with respect to public undertakings. 3.8 Model Questions Long answer type questions: 1. Explicate

78% MATCHING BLOCK 294/328 W

the composition and functions of Public Accounts Committee. 2. Discuss the composition and functions of Estimates Committee. 3.

What are the limitations of Estimates Committee? Medium answer type questions: 1. Examine the challenges faced by Public Accounts Committee. 2. Evaluate the works of Estimates Committee. 3. Mention the tenure of members of Estimates Committee. Short answer type questions: 1. In which year Public Accounts Committee was set up? 2. How many members are in P.A.C.? 3. In which year Estimates Committee was formed? 3.9 References 1. Chauhan, M. S. (2011) – Public Finance: Issues and Problems, Global Publication, New Delhi, India 2. Chanda, Ashoke (1967) – Indian Administration, George Allen and Unwin Ltd. London 143 3.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 296/328 W

Goel, S. L. (2008) – Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publication, New Delhi,

India 4.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 297/328 W

Jena, P. R. (2010) – India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability, New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public finance and Policy 5.

Mahajan, S. K. and Mahajan A. P. (2014) – Financial Administration in India, PHI India Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi, India 6. W, H. Morris-Jones (1957) – Parliament in India, Orient Longman, London Unit IV: Accounts and Audit: Role of C.A.G. Contents 4.0 Learning Objectives 4.1 Introduction 4.2 Accounting 4.2.1 Types of Accounting System 4.2.2 Accounting System in India 4.3 Audit 4.3.1 Audit Oragnisation in India 4.3.2 Audit Report 4.3.3 Separation of Accounts from Audit 4.4 Comptroller and Auditor General (C.A.G.) 4.4.1 Origin 4.4.2 Constitutional Provisions 4.4.3 Functions and Power of C.A.G. 4.4.4 Criticism 4.5 Conclusion 4.6 Summary 4.7 Glossary 4.8 Model Questions 4.9 References 4.0
Learning

73% MATCHING BLOCK 298/328 SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

Objectives 144 After reading this unit, you should be able • To know about the importance of accounting • To understand the main forms of government accounts • To have some ideas regarding accounting system of India • To understand the importance of audit • To know about audit system of India • To realise the role of C.A.G. in India 4.1 Introduction Financial administration seeks to raise, spend and account for the Fund needed for public expenditure. Sound fiscal administration is of vital importance to government. As revenue is derived from the citizens, it is morally incumbent upon government to spend money efficiently and economically. Unsound financial administration may destroy the prospects of democracy itself. It is apt here to mention that the unprecedented increase in government expenditure in modern times makes it essential that sound principles, tools and techniques of financial administration should be employed by all governments. It involves the activities of four agents: the executive which needs and spends the funds, the legislature which grants the funds and appropriates them to particular ministries and departments, the finance ministry which controls the expenditure and audit which sits in judgment over the way in which the funds have been spent.

91% MATCHING BLOCK 299/328 W

In this context it is worthy to mention the role of C.A.G. of India which is regarded as the supreme audit institution in India, establish under Article 148 of the Constitution of India. This institution is vested with the power to audit all receipts and expenditure of the government of India and the state governments including those of autonomous bodies and corporations substantially financed by the government.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 300/328 W

So in this unit the importance of accounts and audit as well as the role of C.A.G. will be discussed. 4.2

100% MATCHING BLOCK 301/328 W

Accounting Accounting means keeping a systematic record of financial transactions whether of a public authority or private concern or individual. According to L.D. White, “The primary functions of system of accounts are to make a financial record, to protect those handling funds, to improve the financial condition of the organisation in all its branches or purposes at any time, to facilitate necessary adjustment in rate of expenditure, to give information to those in responsible positions on the basis of which plans for future financial and operating programmes can rest, and to aid in the making of an audit.” Accounting is an indispensable means of exercising financial control. It is only through systematic accounts supported by vouchers and receipts that the legality and honesty of the transactions can be determined. Accounts are important by way of record of what was received and paid. Such record is essential to prevent the neglect of demands of dues and double payments, through forgetfulness. Accounts furnish valuable data for the formulation of financial as well as general policy and programmes. Through accounts the authorities can know whether a particular activity or programme of the Government is self-supporting or involves a burden on the public exchequer, and if the latter, whether it should be continued or expanded or not. Scientific budget preparation would be impossible without the help of accounts. The Form of Governmental Accounts: The form of Governmental accounts differs from the business and commercial accounts, because the objects of the two are different. Business and Commercial accounts are so kept as to facilitate the preparation of the balance sheet showing profit or loss, and 145 assets and liabilities. Government is

Ouriginal by Turnitin

99% MATCHING BLOCK 302/328 W

not for profit but for service to the people. So the object of Government accounting is to furnish data to show whether the provisions of the budget as voted by the legislature have been observed or not. The Government accounts, therefore, follow the budgetary form. In India, the form of the accounts of the Union as well as of the States is prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, with the approval of the President. In practice, the budget form corresponds to the form of accounts as prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor General. The main forms of Government accounts are as follows: (i) Control Accounts: The main objective is to ensure fidelity on the part of officers having the duties of collection, custody, disbursement and the ensuring of rigid adherence to all directions and limitations to levy and collect income and make expenditure. With this end in view, every Government maintains its Revenue Accounts (accounts for each head of income), Appropriation Accounts (accounts for each major and minor head of expenditure), and Fund Accounts (accounts of different funds which Government maintains). (ii) Proprietary Accounts: The proprietary accounts are kept mainly from the point of view of the convenience of internal administration. They do not serve the purpose of the interested external parties, namely the legislature and the public. For this, supplementary accounts are maintained. These accounts are called 'Proprietary Accounts'. (iii) Supplementary Detailed Accounts: Detailed accounts, regarding the assets and liabilities1, receipts and expenditure of the Government received from different viewpoints may be maintained and published after one or two years for the information of the public. The Account-Keeping Agency in India: According to the theory of financial administration, keeping of the accounts should be a function of the executive authorities. But in India, the duty of keeping the accounts of the Union (except the Railway and the Defence Accounts) as well as the State devolves upon the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India and his staff. Under the Comptroller and Auditor-General there is in each state an Accountant-General in whose office the accounts of the transactions taking place within the territorial limits of that state are kept. Railway accounts are kept by the Financial Commissioner for Railways, and Defence accounts, by the Finance Ministry through the Financial Adviser (Defence) and the Military Accountant-General. 4.2.1 Types of Accounting System (a) Double-entry Book Keeping: Under this system every item of expenditure is entered at two places. One entry remains with the operating service while another is sent to the accounts office, if there is a separate department of the Government or to the controlling officer of the same service. The merit of this system is that if an error is to be deliberately made, it will have to be made at two places, which is a difficult task. (b) Cost Accounting: It is the determination of inclusive costs per unit. It may be applied in production, unit cost of a commodity manufactured in a Government, or even in service. This system is mostly made use in the Public Works Department. The utility of this system is that the costs may be compared in a single institution or single operation over successive periods of time and the comparative costs of similar operations in different agencies or in different jurisdictions may be determined. 146 (c) Accrual Accounting System: It is that system of accounting by which the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is established or as is technically called, accrues. Under this system, appropriate entry is made in the account books of all actions having for their result an undertaking with the right to an asset or placing it under an obligation to pay. This system is followed in France. The main advantage of this system is that it gives detailed information regarding every transaction of the Government. (d) Cash Accounting System: Under this system, the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is realised upon, or as the technical term goes, is liquidated. It seeks to record only those operations in which an actual transfer of cash has taken place. Most Governments use the cash accounting system because of its simplicity. 4.2.2 Accounting System in India There are four stages in the building up of accounts. These are as follows: (i) Initial Entry: In each district, there is a Government treasury under the charge of a Treasury Officer. The treasury is maintained at the cost of the State Governments. Every financial transaction is separately recorded in the treasure. On the 11th and 1st of each month, the Treasury Officer sends a list of payments made during these intervals, supported by vouchers, to the Accountant-General. In case of the Railways, Post and Telegraph, Public Works Department and Forest Department, receipts are paid in the treasury in lump, while detailed accounts are kept by the departmental officers. (ii) Classification of Accounts by the Accountant-General: All accounts of the previous month reach the office of the Accountant-General by the 1st of next month. The accounts are classified in order to secure uniformity in accounting and also in order to help in the preparation of budget forecasts. There are four different types of accounts in India: They are: (1) Revenue Accounts: These deal with all proceeds of taxation and other payments classed as 'revenue' and all expenditure there from. (2) Capital Accounts: These deal with expenditure met from borrowed funds and accumulated cash balances. (3) Debt Accounts: These deal with the receipts and payments in which Government either becomes liable to repay the moneys received or becomes entitled to claim to recover the amount paid. (4) Remittance Accounts: Relate to all such transactions as are not covered by the previous categories. Each one of these accounts is divided into major heads. Parliament makes money grants on 'major heads' which are further divided into 'minor heads' which are sub-divided into 'subheads' which, in turn, are further divied into 'detailed heads'. Revenue heads are numbered in the Roman figures, (I, II, III, IV, etc.) and expenditure heads are numbered in the Arabic figures, (1, 2, 3, 4, etc.). (iii) Monthly compilation: Before compilation, accounts are audited by the Auditor. Then they go to the accounts officers who compile them every month and submit them to the Government by the end of the following month. (iv) Annual compilation: This is done by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. The Comptroller and Auditor-General's department prepares the final accounts of the Union and State Governments in two forms — The Appropriation Accounts and the Finance Accounts. The Appropriation Account is an account comparing the total grants, original 147 and supplementary, made by Parliament for particular purposes for a financial year with the actual expenditure incurred for these purposes during the year. The Public Accounts Committee examines this account. Subsidiary accounts such as the profit and loss accounts and balance sheet of the commercial undertakings of the Government, stores accounts, works accounts, etc., are appended to the Appropriation Account to give details of expenditure concerning these. The Finance Account is a comprehensive account of the receipts and expenditure of the Government (Union or State) classified under the various heads and sub-heads of the budget. Besides these, the Audit and Accounts department also prepares a General Financial Statement called the 'Combined Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Central and State Governments', giving a summary of the accounts of the Union and of all the State Governments for the preceeding financial year and showing their balances and outstanding liabilities. They are submitted to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, sometimes in January or February, of the following year and are then laid before the Parliament or the State Legislature, as the case may be, at the Budget Session. 4.3 Audit: Audit is the development of the 19th century and is inevitably an indispensable part of the parliamentary control of public finance. Audit means an examination of accounts with a view to determine the correctness of these accounts and of the transactions they embody. According to James C. Charlesworth, "Audit means the process of ascertaining whether the administration has spent or is spending its funds in accordance with the terms of the legislative instrument which appropriated the money." A thorough-going audit should be an audit (a) against laws, rules and regulations (b) against appropriations as voted in the budget (c) against sanctions, and (d) against canons of financial propriety. Of these criteria (a) to (c) seek to judge the legality, while canons of financial propriety are intended to check improper and wasteful expenditure. 4.3.1 Audit Organization in India The audit and accounting functions in India are combined in the hands of one organisation, the Indian Audit Department, headed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India.

99% MATCHING BLOCK 303/328 W

Independent audit emerged in 1919 with the inauguration of the Montague-Chelmsford Reforms. The Government of India Act, 1935 further improved its status by giving it constitutional recognition and by requiring its appointment to be made by His Majesty. The Department was given the same status as of judges of the Federal Court. With the enactment of Constitution in 1950, the Auditor-General of India was re- designated as the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India Historically speaking, the creation of such an office was the product of Gladstone's ingenious mind, when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British Cabinet. He got the Exchequer and Audit Act passed through the British Parliament in 1866, which led to the establishment of the office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General. In the U.S.A., the 148 office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General in its present form came into existence when the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921 was passed. Audit in India Audit of Government accounts (including the accounts of the States) in India is a Union subject and is entrusted to the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. Indian audit is governed not by law, but by an executive order — the Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order 1936 as adopted under the Indian (Provisional Constitution) Order of 1947. Audit in India is primarily concerned with expenditure. Its concern with receipts is limited to those items only which it may be required by the executive to undertake, or may undertake with its approval. At present the receipts of Railways, Posts and Telegraph and Customs are subject to audit while other receipts including those from Income-tax are not. Audit should really be an arm of the legislature to assist it in seeing that its wishes and decisions as expressed in the budget are respected. The Constitution requires that the report of the Comptroller and Auditor-General relating to accounts shall be laid before each House of Parliament but technically, the audit is conducted on behalf of the Executive and its reports are submitted to the Executive (the President in case of the Union, and the Governor in case of States) which causes them to be laid before the Legislature. Finally, Indian audit is primarily a legality audit. The Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order under which it is conducted, requires the Comptroller and Auditor-General to ascertain whether moneys shown in the accounts as having been disbursed were legally available for and applicable to the purpose to which they had been applied and whether the expenditure conforms to the authority which governs it. 4.3.2 The Audit Report Audit results in the certification of the accounts by the Comptroller and Auditor-General as correct subject to such comments and remarks as he may choose to make, and in the preparation of an audit report for each of the Governments whose accounts are audited. This report is presented, in case of the Centre, to the President, and in case of the States, to the Governors. These heads are required, by the Constitution, to cause these reports to be laid before their several Legislatures. The Legislatures refer the reports to their Public Accounts Committees of which there is one at the Centre as well as one in each of the states, for examination of the report. The audit reports contain the comments of the audit authorities on the correctness or otherwise of the expenditure and other financial transactions. Particularly they point out the more important financial ir-regularities, the cases of budgetary grants being exceeded, failure to obtain the necessary sanction for expenditure, non- compliance with rules and regulations, cases of improper or wasteful expenditure, and of misappropriation and embezzlement. The audit reports are examined by the Public Accounts Committee and the committee reports upon it. Performance Audit: Performance audit means an appraisal of accomplishment. In India, it is called efficiency-cum performance audit. Broadly, the purpose of such audit would be to ascertain whether: (a) such undertakings are being run efficiently and their operations conducted economically. (b) They are producing the results expected of them. 4.3.3 Separation of Accounts from Audit 149 In India, the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and their audit had remained combined in the same hands until 1976. The Comptroller and Auditor-General was entrusted with both sets of functions. In Britain, on the other hand, there is separation of accounts from audit, the former function is performed by the Heads of Departments in the capacity of Accounting Officers. The audit department has no concern with the compilation of accounts which, of course, is rescrutinised by it on behalf of Parliament to which the report of its examination is submitted. Excepting the Departments of Defence and Railways where accounts were compiled by the departments themselves, these functions have been combined in India. This arrangement was unequivocally criticised by successive commissions. The Muddiman Committee (1924), the Inchcape Committee on Retrenchment (1923) as well as the Simon Commission (1929) recommended the separation of accounts from audit as a necessary financial reform. P. K. Wattal has emphasised the desirability of separating these two functions by remarking, "Accounting is essentially an executive function and must be under the control of the executive head of the department. Auditing is a quasi-parliamentary function, which involves a checking of the works done by the executive authorities for report to the Parliament. A combination of these two essentially distinct functions in a parliamentary officer is good neither for the executive ad-ministration nor for the Parliament. It is almost as bad as combination of executive and judicial functions. In every modern administration, accounting and auditing functions should be kept distinct and separate from each other. It is only then that the auditor's certification regarding the correctness of the accounts has any meaning. Where there is a combination of functions, there is necessarily a contradiction in as much as the officer compiling the account is also the officer who certifies its correctness." In 1976, the Central Government separated accounting from the audit, and since that year the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India has been relieved of the responsibility for compiling of the accounts of the Central Government and is concerned with the audit of accounts only. Consequent upon the separation of accounts from the audit, a Controller-General has been appointed in the Central Government to be the technical authority heading the new accounting set-up. He is in charge of the final compilation of accounts. 4.4

Comptroller and Auditor General (C.A.G.) "I

100% MATCHING BLOCK 304/328 SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment ... (D152106823)

am of the opinion that this dignitary or officer is probably the most important officer in the Constitution of India. He is the one man who is going to see that the expenses voted by Parliament are not exceeded, or varied from what has been laid down by Parliament in the Appropriation Act." —Dr. B.R Ambedkar

C.A.G. is an independent authority under the Constitution of India. He is the head of the Indian audit & account department and chief Guardian of Public purse. It is the institution through which the accountability of the government and other public authorities (all those who spend public funds) to Parliament and State Legislatures and through them to the people is ensured. 4.4.1 Origin • Office of the Accountant General was established in 1858 (the year the British took over administrative control of India from the East India Company). In 1860 Sir Edward Drummond was appointed as the first Auditor General.
150 ▪ Meanwhile after some restructuring the Auditor General of India came to be called the Auditor and Accountant General to the Government of India. • In 1866, the position was renamed Comptroller General of Accounts, and in 1884, it was re- designated as Comptroller and Auditor General of India. • Under the Government of India Act 1919, the Auditor General became independent of the government as statutory backing was given for the position. ▪ The Government of India Act 1935 further strengthened the position of the Auditor General by providing for Provincial Auditors General in a federal set-up. ▪ The act also described the appointment and service procedures and gave a brief overview of the duties of the Auditor General of India. • The Accounts and Audits Order of 1936 provided detailed accounting and auditing functions of the auditor general. • This arrangement remained unchanged until India's independence in 1947. After independence,

43% MATCHING BLOCK 311/328 SA 04_Chapter_3.pdf (D121264304)

Article 148 of the 1949 Indian Constitution provided for the establishment of a Comptroller and Auditor General to be appointed by the President of India. ▪

CAG jurisdiction was extended to Jammu and Kashmir in 1958. • In 1971 the central government enacted

86% MATCHING BLOCK 305/328 W

the Comptroller and Auditor General (Duties, Powers, and Conditions of Service) Act, 1971. The act made CAG responsible for both accounting and auditing duties for central and state governments. ▪ In 1976 CAG was relieved from accounting functions. • CAG has undergone rapid computerization and modernization since the 1990s and pervasive nature of Indian corruption has kept CAG vigilant and it has audited and investigated some of the worst and most controversial corruption scandals in Indian history. 4.4.2 Constitutional Provisions • Article 148 broadly deals with the CAG appointment, oath and conditions of service. • Article 149 deals with Duties and Powers

84% MATCHING BLOCK 306/328 W

of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. • Article 150 says that the accounts of the Union and of the States shall be kept in such form as the President may, on the advice of the CAG, prescribe. • Article 151 says that the reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of the Union shall be submitted to the president, who shall cause them to be laid before each House of Parliament. ▪ The reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of a State shall be submitted to the Governor of the State, who shall cause them to be laid before the Legislature of the State. 151 •

Article 279 – Calculation of 'net proceeds' is ascertained

34% MATCHING BLOCK 307/328 W

and certified by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, whose certificate is final. • Third Schedule – Section IV of the Third Schedule of the Constitution of India prescribes the form of oath or affirmation to be made by the

100% MATCHING BLOCK 308/328 W

Judges of the Supreme Court and the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India

at the time of assumption of office. • Sixth Schedule – According to this schedule, the District Council or Regional Council should be kept in such form as the CAG prescribes with the approval of the President. In addition these bodies account are audited in such manner as CAG may think fit, and the reports

76% MATCHING BLOCK 309/328 W

relating to such accounts shall be submitted to the Governor who shall cause them to be laid before the Council. 4.4.3 Functions and Power of C.A.G. C.A.G. derives its audit mandate from different sources like– • Constitution (Articles 148 to 151) •

100% MATCHING BLOCK 310/328 W

The Comptroller and Auditor General's (Duties, Powers and Conditions of Service) Act, 1971 •

Important Judgments • Instructions of Government of India • Regulations on Audit & Accounts-2007 C.A.G. audits

61%	MATCHING BLOCK 312/328	SA	Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment ... (D152125726)

the accounts related to all expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India, Consolidated Fund of each state and UT's having a legislative assembly. He audits all expenditure from the Contingency Fund of India and the Public Account of India as well as the Contingency Fund and Public Account of each state. He audits all trading, manufacturing, profit and loss accounts, balance sheets and other subsidiary accounts kept by any department of the Central Government and the state governments.

He audits

94%	MATCHING BLOCK 313/328	SA	Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment ... (D152106823)

the receipts and expenditure of all bodies and authorities substantially financed from the Central or State revenues; government companies; other corporations and bodies, when so required by related laws.

He audits

78%	MATCHING BLOCK 324/328	SA	Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment ... (D152106823)

the accounts of any other authority when requested by the President or Governor e.g. Local bodies. He advises the President with regard to prescription of the form in which the accounts of the Centre and States shall be kept. He submits his audit reports relating to the accounts of the Centre to the President, who shall, in turn, place them before both the houses of Parliament. He submits his audit reports relating to the accounts of a State to the Governor, who shall, in turn, place them before the state legislature.

C.A.G. also acts as a guide, friend and philosopher of the Public Accounts Committee of the Parliament. 4.4.4 Criticism Paul H. Appleby, in his two reports on Indian Administration, was very critical of the role of CAG and attacked the significance of his work. He also suggested that the CAG should be relieved of the responsibility of audit. In other words, he recommended the abolition of the office of CAG. His points of criticism of Indian audit are as follows: 1. The function of the C.A.G. in India, is in a large measure, an inheritance from the colonial rule.
152 2. The C.A.G. is today a primary cause of widespread and paralysing unwillingness to decide and to act. Auditing has a repressive and negative influence. 3. The Parliament has a greatly exaggerated notion of the importance of auditing to Parliamentary responsibility, and so has failed to define the functions of the C.A.G. as the Constitution contemplated it would do. 4. The C.A.G.'s function is not really a very important one. Auditors do not know and cannot be expected to know very much about good administration; their prestige is highest with others who do not know much about administration. 5. Auditors know what is auditing, which is not administration; it is a necessary, but a highly pedestrian function with a narrow perspective and a very limited usefulness. 6. A deputy secretary in the department knows more about the problems in his department than the C.A.G. and his entire staff. 4.5 Conclusion To conclude it can be stated that financial administration is a dynamic process which falls into few well-defined divisions.

89%	MATCHING BLOCK 314/328	W

92%	MATCHING BLOCK 315/328	W

88% MATCHING BLOCK 316/328 W

Among these divisions, the important one is

100% MATCHING BLOCK 317/328 W

rendering of the accounts by the executive and the audit of this account. Until 1976

69% MATCHING BLOCK 318/328 W

the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and there audit had remained combined in the same hand. The C.A.G. was entrusted with both sets of functions. 4.6

Summary •

94% MATCHING BLOCK 319/328 W

The financial administration is a part of general administration. The purpose of public administration is to observe that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes has been

100% MATCHING BLOCK 320/328 W

properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory. • The financial administration cannot go beyond the general principles. The budget and the allied ideas are settled by the finance department.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 321/328 W

81% MATCHING BLOCK 322/328 W

This is not all. The functions of financial administration are scrutinised and audited by the C.A.G. of India. This is a very powerful constitutional authority of India. 4.7

Glossary • Systems Audit: It is carried out to determine if the information system in place is making sure the data integrity, safeguarding the organisation's assets operating efficiently to help the organisation in achieving its goals and objectives. • Contingency Fund: It is a reserve of money set aside to cover possible unforeseen future expenses. The Contingency Fund of India is established under Article 267 (1) of the Indian Constitution. •

85% MATCHING BLOCK 323/328 W

Consolidated Fund: All revenues received by way of taxes like income tax, central excise, customs and other receipts flowing to the government in connection with the conduct of government business that is non-tax revenues are credited into the Consolidated Fund constituted under Article 266 (1) of the Constitution of India. 4.8

Model Questions
153 Long answer type questions: 4. What are the functions and powers of C.A.G.? 5. How did the office of the C.A.G. come into being? 6. Write a note on accounting system in India. Medium answer type questions: 4. What are the constitutional provisions regarding the C.A.G.? 5. What are the different types of accounting system? 6. Give an account of audit organisation in India. Short answer type questions: 4. What is the difference between accounting and auditing? 5. What is the most important element of an audit? 6. How independently does the office of C.A.G. function? 4.9 References 7. Chauhan, M. S. (2011) – Public Finance: Issues and Problems, Global Publication, New Delhi, India 8. Chanda, Ashoke (1967) – Indian Administration, George Allen and Unwin Ltd. London 9.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 325/328 W

Goel, S. L. (2008) – Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publication, New Delhi,

India 10.

100% MATCHING BLOCK 326/328 W

Jena, P. R. (2010) – India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability, New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public finance and Policy 11.

Mahajan, S. K. and Mahajan A. P. (2014) – Financial Administration in India, PHI India Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi, India 12. W, H. Morris-Jones (1957) – Parliament in India, Orient Longman, London

154 Unit V: Role of R.B.I Structure 5.1 Objectives • Understand the history of Reserve Bank of India • Explain its organizational structure. • Discuss the functions of R.B.I 5.2 Introduction The Reserve Bank of India, known as R.B.I is India's Central Bank and regulatory body responsible for regulation of the Indian banking system. It is under the control of Ministry of Finance, Government of India. It is responsible for the control, issue and maintaining supply of the Indian currency (rupee). The basic functions of the RBI are sustaining monetary stability in India, operating the currency, and maintaining the country's credit system. It advises central and state governments in better cash management; works towards establishment of modern, robust, efficient, secure, and integrated payment and settlement system for the country. 5.3 Origin and Evolution The origin of the Reserve Bank can be traced to 1926, when the Royal Commission on Indian Currency and Finance—also known as the Hilton-Young Commission— recommended the creation of a central bank to separate the control of currency and credit from the government and to augment banking facilities throughout the country. The Reserve Bank of India Act of 1934 established the Reserve Bank as the banker to the central government and set in motion a series of actions culminating in the start of operations in 1935. Since then, the Reserve Bank's role and functions have undergone numerous changes keeping pace with the changing nature of the Indian economy. From ensuring stability of interest rates and exchange rates to providing liquidity and an adequate supply of currency and credit for the real sector; ensuring banking penetration and safety of depositors' funds to promoting and developing financial institutions and markets, and maintaining the stability of the financial system through continued macro-financial surveillance; the Reserve Bank plays a crucial role in the economy of the country. Its decisions touch the daily life of all Indians and it helps chart the country's current and future economic and financial course. Over the years, the Bank's specific role and functions have evolved, while some functions have been added in, others have gradually reduced or moved to other organizations such as EXIM Bank, NABARD, IDRBT, IFTAS, etc. Through all the changes the integrity and professionalism with which the Reserve Bank discharges its mandate remains constant 5.4 Presence The Reserve Bank of India has regional offices (ROs) including Sub-offices at 31 locations spread across the country. In 2022, RBI opened a Regional Office for the State of Andhra Pradesh, which is working out of the Bank's Hyderabad Regional Office premises for now.

155 5.5 Organizational Structure A. The Governor (Chief Executive Authority) Deputy Governors Executive Directors Principal Chief General Managers / CGMs General Managers / Deputy General Managers Assistant General Managers / Managers Assistant Managers / Assistant Support Staff B. Central Board of Directors Local Board Committee of the Central Board Board for Financial Supervision Board for Payment & Settlement Systems Sub-Committees of Central Board viz HRM-SC, ARMS, Building-SC, IT-SC, Strategy-SC Other Committees such as Deputy Governors' Committee Senior Management Committee, Executive Directors' Committee Local Boards 5.6 Functions and Working A. Regulation, Supervision and Enforcement Legal Framework: The regulatory and supervisory activities of the Bank derive authority from various provisions contained in statutes such as RBI Act, 1934, BR Act, 1949, BR Act (AACS), 1949, the Regional Rural Banks Act, 1975, SARFAESI Act, 2002, Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007, etc. The Bank undertakes these roles to protect depositors' interests, to ensure safety and soundness of the banking system and to safeguard financial stability. Organisational Set-up: Viewing the different entities within its domain in a unified manner and in order to derive regulatory / supervisory synergies, the Bank has set up two new Departments – the Department of Regulation (DoR) and the Department of Supervision (DoS) in 2019 thereby bringing commercial banks, cooperative banks and NBFCs under a single umbrella. B. Financial Markets & Foreign Exchange Legal Framework : - FMRD & FMOD - Chapter III D, RBI Act, 1934, FEMA, 1999, PSS Act, 2007, Bilateral Netting of Qualified Financial Contracts Act, 2020 - IDMD - Government Securities Act, 2006/Rules 2007, Public Debt Act, 1944/ Rules 1946 - DEIO RBI Act, 1934 - FED - FEMA, 1999 Focus Areas: Financial Markets Departments are committed to further developing and deepening the money, G-secs, foreign exchange, interest rate and currency derivative markets, ensuring effective

156 liquidity management and stability in exchange rate through FX operations. IT infrastructure is being continuously ramped up for effective monitoring and surveillance e.g. Public Registry, Integrated Market Surveillance System, etc. These departments aim at rationalisation of cross-border borrowing and lending regulations as also improving information management in the context of foreign investment inflows while facilitating outward flows. C. Banking, Currency Management, Payment Systems & FinTech Legal Framework - DGBA Sections 20-21, 21A & 53 of RBI Act, 1934 - DCM Chapter-III, Section 22-28, RBI Act, 1934 - DPSS Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007/Regulations 2008 - FinTech RBI Act, 1934 Focus Areas: - DGBA: E-Kuber (RBI's Core Banking System), Integration with Governments/ Treasuries, Internal Accounting Review and monitoring. - DCM: Capacity enhancement, Indigenisation of Banknotes, Varnished banknotes- field trial, improving Currency Management Infrastructure, etc. - DPSS: To provide Safe, Secure, Fast, Convenient, Accessible, and Affordable E- Payment options for Everyone, Everywhere and Everytime. - FinTech Department: Regulatory Sandbox, Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC), Coordinating with Reserve Bank Innovation Hub, select aspects of regulation (Account Aggregator/Peer-to-Peer), Co-operation with Domestic and International Standard Setting Bodies & Liaisoning with National and International Committees on Innovation/ Technology D. Monetary Policy, Research & Financial Stability Legal Framework: Preamble to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, "...to regulate the issue of Bank notes and keeping of reserves with a view to securing monetary stability in India and generally to operate the currency and credit system of the country to its advantage; to have a modern monetary policy framework to meet the challenge of an increasingly complex economy,

68% MATCHING BLOCK 327/328 W

100% MATCHING BLOCK 328/328 W

to maintain price stability while keeping in mind the objective of growth".

Focus Areas: - MPD: Assessment & outlook of inflation and growth, refining liquidity forecasting framework and its operating aspects, Monetary Policy transmission analysis, analysis of sectoral credit flows, macro modelling. - DEPR: Big data applications for improving inflation and growth projections, payment systems innovations and currency demand, global liquidity and impact of trade policy measures, determinants of total factor productivity, supply chain and food inflation dynamics.

157 - DSIM: Managing Centralised Information Management System (CIMS), collection & analysis of unstructured big data for policy impact, Central Information System for Banking Infrastructure (CISBI), metadata driven data maintenance and dissemination system. - International Department: Finance track under G20, Article IV 2019 with IMF, FSB's annual monitoring exercise, analytical policy briefs at BIS and CGFS meetings, SAARCFINANCE. - FSU: Macroprudential surveillance, preparation of financial stability reports, conduct of systemic stress tests and development of models, secretariat to the FSDC-SC. 5.7 Conclusion The reserve bank is a non-political body concerned with the finances of the country. Its developmental role includes ensuring credit to productive sectors of the economy, creating institutions to build financial infrastructure, and expanding access to affordable financial services. India's economy experienced a significant degree of growth since the early 2000s. According to the World Bank Report, the country implemented policies to help get more than 90 million people out of poverty between 2011 and 2015. Despite its rapid growth rate, the Indian economy has weakened - both before and during the global COVID 19 pandemic hit. The World Bank estimated India's GDP to be more than $2.6 billion as of 2020, making it the sixth largest in the world after the USA, China, Japan, Germany, and the United Kingdom. In conclusion, we can say that the Reserve Bank of India is playing an important and crucial role in the economic development of India. 5.8 Summary • In this unit, the origin and evolution of the R.B.I has been explained. • We have discussed the structure, functions, and the role of the R.B.I 5.9 Glossary/Keywords • Financial Markets: Any place or system that provides buyers and sellers the means to trade financial instruments. • Monetary Policy: A set of actions to control a nation's overall money supply and achieve economic growth. • Legal Framework: The primary pieces of legislation governing the banking sector in India. 5.10 Model Questions 1. Discuss in brief, the origin and evolution of the Reserve Bank of India. 2. Describe the organizational structure of the R.B.I 3. Discuss the important functions of the R.B.I in the context of financial markets and foreign exchange. 4. Examine the role of the R.B.I in the sphere of currency management. 5. Discuss the developmental role of the R.B.I with special reference to economic inclusion.

158 5.11 Further Readings and References • Ramsastri A.S & Achamma Samuel (2006) "Banking Sector Development in India, 1980- 2005 – what the annual account speaks?" (Reserve Bank of India occasional paper) vol 27, No. 1 and 2, 2006 • Manwani Hemant, 2022, "A critical analysis on function and role of Reserve Bank of India and its impact on economic development of India," IJNRD, Volume 7, Issue 4, April, 2022 • Bansal Mandeep Kaur, 2017, "Role of Reserve Bank of India in Indian Economy", International Journal of Business Administration and Managements, Volume 7, Number 1 (2017)

Hit and source - focused comparison, Side by Side

Submitted text As student entered the text in the submitted document.

Matching text As the text appears in the source.

1/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	27 WORDS	46%	MATCHING TEXT	27 WORDS

All rights reserved. No part of this Self-Learning Material (SLM) may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from Netaji Subhas Open University.

SA NS Final Public finance(1).doc (D154339682)

2/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you will be able to- • Understand the meaning and nature of financial administration • Discuss in detail the role of the Executive and the Legislature in financial administration • Explain the significance of financial administration • Understand the financial administration

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you will be able to: ?Understand the and nature of financial administration ?Discuss in detail the role of the Executive and the Legislature in financial administration ?Explain the significance of financial administration Financial Administration

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

3/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

The term financial administration refers to certain rules and methods relating to revenue and expenditure

The term financial administration refers to certain rules and methods relating to revenue and expenditure.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

4/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Again, the executive will have to give explanation to the legislature for the money it has collected and spent

Again, the executive will have to give explanation to the legislature for the money it has collected and spent.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

5/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

financial administration simply includes the earning or collection of money and expenditure of the collected money financial administration includes both the earning or collection of money and expenditure of the collected money.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

6/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 47 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 47 WORDS

financial administration studies the role of the government in the economy. It is the definitive branch of economics which assesses the Government revenue and Government expenditure of the Public Authorities and the adjustment of one or the other to achieve desirable effects and avoid undesirable ones.

financial administration studies the role of the government in the economy. It is the definitive branch of economics which assesses the Government revenue and Government expenditure of the Public Authorities and the adjustment of one or the other to achieve desirable effects and avoid undesirable ones.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

7/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

It is a subject which has the distinction of intimate interaction between theory and practice. It acquires a meaning and usefulness only in the context of institutional framework of the economy

It is a subject which has the distinction of intimate interaction between theory and practice. As such it acquires a meaning and usefulness only in the context of institutional framework of the economy

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

8/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	30 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	30 WORDS

of the country with reference to which it is being studied. The theoretical concepts and policy applications in public finance feed upon and grow out of each other of the economy with reference to which it is being studied. The theoretical concepts and policy applications in public finance feed upon and grow out of each other.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

9/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	24 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	24 WORDS

No single theoretical model can adequately fit in the framework of every economy since its institutional framework is a thing unique to itself

No single theoretical model can adequately fit in the framework of every economy since its institutional framework is a thing unique to itself.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

10/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

It is important, therefore, that the discussion of public finance should be in the context of a single economy

It is important, therefore, that the discussion of public finance should be in the context of a single economy.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

11/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 130 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 130 WORDS

Public financial administration has a direct influence on the overall quality of life of the masses. It is concerned with that part of the government which is action-oriented. Recent years have witnessed a heated debate on several theoretical and policy issues covering several segments of public finance, including the role of fiscal policy. Pleas are being made for a thorough restructuring of its various theoretical and policy premises and the framework within which these should be conducted. Exponential growth and transformation in global financial system and worldwide meltdown caused by it have fuelled rethinking on the role of fiscal policy with a special focus on economic stability and growth—both in developed and developing countries. India, like the rest of the world, has also been deeply affected by these developments.

Public financial administration has a direct influence on the overall quality of life of the masses. It is concerned with that part of the government which is action-oriented. Recent years have witnessed a heated debate on several theoretical and policy issues covering several segments of public finance, including the role of fiscal policy. Pleas are being made for a thorough restructuring of its various theoretical and policy premises and the framework within which these should be conducted. Exponential growth and transformation in global financial system and worldwide meltdown caused by it have fuelled rethinking on the role of fiscal policy with a special focus on economic stability and growth—both in developed and developing countries. India, like the rest of the world, has also been deeply affected by these developments.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

12/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 69 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 69 WORDS

Financial administration is the crucial 2 aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is impossible without money or finance and for that reason financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. The task of public administration or government is to levy taxes and this job is uniquely performed by the legislature. But the executive organ cannot levy taxes beyond what is needed financial administration is the crucial aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is impossible without money or finance and for that reason the financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. The task of public administration or government is to levy taxes and this job is performed by the legislature. But the executive organ cannot levy taxes beyond what is needed.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

13/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 126 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 126 WORDS

In general terms, financial administration implies administration relating to the management of collecting revenues and expenditure for running the public administration. There are various ways of collecting revenues such as levying taxes, borrowing money from public and financial institutions, collection of money for development works etc. Collection of money in any form is not all. Since the government is a public organisation, it is legally bound to give explanation to the public for the money it collects from which source and in what way, and for what purposes it spends the money it collects. Here ties the planning for collecting money and spending it for various purposes. Both the income and expenditure are guided by plans or certain definite rules and regulations. 4

In general terms, financial administration implies administration relating to the management of collecting revenues and expenditure for running the public administration. There are various ways of collecting revenues such as levying taxes, borrowing money from public and financial institutions, collection of money for development works etc. Collection of money in any form is not all. Since the government is a public organisation it is legally bound to give explanation to the public for the money it collects from which source and in what way, and for what purposes it spends the money it collects. Here ties the planning for collecting money and spending it for various purposes. Both the income and expenditure are guided by plans or certain definite rules and regulations.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

14/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

there are two different views regarding the nature of financial administration.

There are two different views regarding the nature of financial administration.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

15/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 39 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 39 WORDS

They emphasise upon that set of administrative functions in a public organisation which relate to an arrangement of flow of funds as well as to regulating mechanisms and processes which ensure proper and productive utilisation of these funds

They emphasise upon that set of administrative functions in a public organisation which relate to an arrangement of flow of funds as well as to regulating mechanisms and processes which ensure proper and productive utilisation of these funds.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

16/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 37 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 37 WORDS

When one looks at this view from systems perspective, it represents an integral sub- system of supportive system. A financial administrator shoulders responsibility for ensuring adequate financial backing for running public organisation in the most efficient manner

When one looks at this view from systems perspective, it represents an integral sub-system of supportive system. A financial administrator shoulders responsibility for ensuring adequate financial backing for running public organisation in the most efficient manner.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

17/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The participants of this system are considered as financial managers and they discharge managerial functions of financial nature (	The participants of this system are considered as financial managers and they discharge managerial functions of financial nature;

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

18/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 90 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 90 WORDS

The central thesis of pure theory of public finance is that public finance should deal with the problems of public income, public expenditure and public debt in an objective manner without any relation to a set of values and premises of the political party in power. Accordingly, theorists of financial administration subscribing to this view take a value-neutral stand. For instance, Jaze Gaston reflects this view when he says that financial administration is that part of government organisation which deals with the collection, preservation and distribution of public funds.	The central thesis of pure theory of public finance is that public finance should deal with the problems of public income, public expenditure and public debt in an objective manner without any relation to a set of values and premises of the political party in power. Accordingly, theorists of financial administration subscribing to this view take a value-neutral stance. For instance, Jaze Gaston reflects this view when he says that financial administration is that part of government organisation which deals with the collection, preservation and distribution of public funds. (

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

19/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

is a part of general administration. The purpose of Public Administration is to see that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes is properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory. 1.3.2.	is a part of general administration. The purpose of Public Administration is to see that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes is properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

20/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	110 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	110 WORDS

view 5 The modem view considers financial administration as an-integral part of the overall management process of public organisations rather than one of raising and disbursing public funds. It includes all the activities of all persons engaged in public administration, for quite obviously almost every public official takes decisions which are bound to have some direct or indirect consequences of financial nature. Further, it rejects the value-neutral stand of the traditional theory. It combines in itself three prominent theories of public finance, viz., the socio-political theory as expounded by Wagner, Edgeworth and Pigou, the functional theory of Keynesian perspective and activating view of modem public finance theorists.

view The modem view considers financial administration as an-integral part of the overall management process of public organisations rather than one of raising and disbursing public funds. It includes all the activities of all persons engaged in public administration, for quite obviously almost every public official takes decisions which are bound to have some direct or indirect consequences of financial nature. Further, it rejects the value-neutral stand of the traditional theory. It combines in itself three prominent theories of public finance, viz., the socio-political theory as expounded by Wagner, Edgeworth and Pigou, the functional theory of Keynesian perspective and 16 activating view of modem public finance theorists.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

21/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	40 WORDS	89%	MATCHING TEXT	40 WORDS

these are – 1.3.1. Traditional view Traditional view advocates to conceive financial administration as a sum total of activities undertaken in pursuit of generation, regulation and distribution of monetary resources needed for the sustenance and growth of public organisations

These are i) Traditional view; ii) Modern view. i) Traditional View Advocates of this conceive financial administration as a sum total of activities undertaken in pursuit of generation, regulation and distribution of monetary resources needed for the sustenance and growth of public organisations.

W https://gacbe.ac.in/pdf/ematerial/18MPA13C-U1.pdf

22/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	79%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

the Finance Department or the Finance Ministry may be considered as central financial agency of modem governments, it cannot be equated with financial administration.

the Finance Department and its subordinate agencies. Though the Finance Department may be considered as central financial agency of modem governments, it cannot be equated with financial administration.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

23/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	33 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	33 WORDS

role constitutes financial management rather than financial administration. As a financial manager it deals with the systems, tools and techniques contributing to economic decision making in government which are constituted in the role constitutes financial management rather than financial administration. As a financial manager it deals with the systems, tools and techniques contributing to economic decision making in government. These processes are, in fact, the

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

24/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	12 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	12 WORDS

These processes are, in fact, the integral part of financial administration

These processes are, in fact, the integral part of financial administration.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

25/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	288 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	288 WORDS

the scope of financial administration is much wider than what these processes suggest. Legal experts support the idea that financial administration refers to the financial processes and institutions involved in legislative financial control. In their view, the scope of financial administration encompasses the preparation of estimates, appropriation of funds, expenditure control, accounting, audit, reporting, review and so on. In a democratic context, this view may gain wider acceptance as it ensures executive responsibility to legislature. But, the experience of modem democracies has shown that the legislative involvement in the determination of the desired volume, range and direction of programmes, the use of independent judgement relating to the financial resources required by administrative agencies is becoming nominal day by day. It is a known fact that the average member of the legislature is not adequately informed to ensure effective control over executive. Thus, the view appears to be of no significant validity. Further, legislative control of financial aspects of the government does not represent the scope of financial administration in its entirety. Yet another view advocates a budget-oriented outline for the scope of financial administration. According to them the scope of financial administration is limited to the preparation of budget, the enactment of budget and execution of budget. Though the budget is the core of financial administration, certain operations which precede budget preparation are equally important. There is a pertinent need to include planning process as an integral part of financial administration. In the ultimate analysis, there is a need to adopt an integrated approach so that all the above views are incorporated into the scope of public administration. As an outcome of such an approach, the following aspects emerge as the core areas of financial administration.

The scope of financial administration is much wider than what these processes suggest. to some authorities on public administration, the financial administration refers to the financial processes and institutions involved in legislative financial control. In their view, the scope of financial administration encompasses the preparation of estimates, appropriation of funds, expenditure control, accounting, audit, reporting, review and so on. In a democratic context, this view may gain wider acceptance as it ensures executive responsibility to legislature. But, the experience of modem democracies has shown that the legislative involvement in the determination of the desired volume, range and direction of programmes, the use of independent judgement relating to the financial resources required by administrative agencies is becoming nominal day by day. It is a known fact that the average member of the legislature is not adequately informed to ensure effective control over executive. Thus, the view appears to be of no significant validity. Further, legislative control of financial aspects of the government does not represent the scope of financial administration in its entirety. Yet another view advocates a budget oriented outline for the scope of financial administration. According to them the scope of financial administration is limited to the preparation of budget, the enactment of budget and execution of budget. Though the budget is the core of financial administration, certain operations which precede budget preparation are equally important. There is a pertinent need to include planning process as an integral part of financial administration. 18 In the ultimate analysis, there is a need to adopt an integrated approach so that all the above views are incorporated into the scope of public administration. As an outcome of such an approach, the following aspects emerge as the core areas of financial administration.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

26/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

Financial In a restrictive sense one may consider budgeting as planning since its basic concern is to facilitate the formulation and adoption of policies and programmes with a view to achieving the goals of government. Financial planning includes the concerns in terms of whole range of government policy and it demands a time frame and a perception of the inter relationships among policies. It looks at a 7 policy in the framework of long-term economic consequences

Financial In a restrictive sense one may consider budgeting as planning since its basic concern is to facilitate the formulation and adoption of policies and programmes with a view to achieving the goals of government. But planning, in a broad sense, includes the concerns in terms of whole range of government policy and it demands a time frame and a perception of the inter relationships among policies. It looks at a policy in the framework of long-term economic consequences.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

27/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

economic rejuvenation. There is a need to coordinate planning and budgeting. The concept of planning-programming-. Budgeting System (PPBS) represents an attempt in this direction. Financial Administration, under this phase, considers the sources and forms of finance, forecasting expenditure needs, desirable fund flow patterns and so on. ii) Budgeting Budgeting is the core of economic consequences. There is a need to coordinate planning and budgeting. The concept of planning-programming Budgeting System (PPBS) represents an attempt in this direction, Financial Administration, under this phase, should consider the sources and forms of finance, forecasting expenditure needs, desirable fund flow patterns and so on. (ii) Budgeting i This area is the core of

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

28/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

It includes examination and formulation of important aspects as fiscal policy, equity and social justice making it

It includes examination and formulation of such important aspects as fiscal policy, equity and social justice. It

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

29/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

It also deals with principles and practices associated with refinement of budgetary system and its operative processes

It also deals with principles and practices associated with refinement of budgetary system and its operative processes. (

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

30/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 51 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 51 WORDS

Due to the ever-increasing commitments of government, budgetary deficits have become regular feature of government finance. In this context deficit financing assumes greater importance. But deficit financing, if used in an unrestrained manner, may prove to be a dangerous problem for a nation's economy for it can cause galloping inflation.

Due to the ever increasing commitments of government, budgetary deficits have become regular feature of government finance. In this context deficit financing assumes greater importance. But deficit financing, if used in an unrestrained manner, may prove to be a dangerous problem for a nation's economy for it can cause galloping inflation.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

31/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Another challenge faced by administration is tax evasion and growth of parallel economy

Another challenge faced by administration is tax evasion and growth of parallel economy.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

32/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 67 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 67 WORDS

financial administration. These include: 1) The collection, preservation and distribution of public funds. 2) The coordination of public revenues and expenditure. 3) The management of credit operations on behalf of the State. 4) The general control of the financial affairs of the government. In modern governments all the above aspects are dealt with by the Finance Department and its subordinate agencies financial administration. These include : 1) The collection, preseryation and distribution of public funds. 2) The coordination of public revenues and expenditure. 3) The management of credit operations on behalf of the State. 4) The general control of the financial affairs of the government. In modern governments all the above aspects are dealt with by the Finance Department and its subordinate agencies.

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

33/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Finally public debt constitutes yet another element of state resources. The

Finally public debt constitutes yet another element of state resources. The

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

34/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

The proceeds of debt mobilisation effort should be used only for capital financing. Thus, modem financial administrator has to be fully conversant with all the dimensions of resource mobilisation efforts iv) Investment

The proceeds of debt mobilisation effort should be used only for capital financing. Thus, modem financial administrator has to be fully conversant with all the dimensions of resource mobilisation efforts. iv) Investment ~

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

35/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

Since massive investments have been made in the public sector, a thorough knowledge of the concepts, techniques and methodology of project appraisal is indispensable for a financial administrator.

Since massive investments have been made in the public sector a thorough knowledge of the concepts, techniques and methodology of project appraisal is indispensable for a financial administrator. (

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

36/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 50 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 50 WORDS

Finances of the modem governments are becoming quite inelastic. Almost every government is suffering from resource crunch. Further, the society cannot be taxed beyond a certain point without doing a great damage to the economy as a whole. Thus, there is an imperative need for careful utilisation of resources

Finances of the modem governments are becoming quite inelastic. Almost every government is suffering from resource crunch. Further, the society cannot be taxed beyond a certain point without doing a great damage to the economy as a whole. Thus, there is an imperative need for careful utilisation of resources.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

37/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

Executive control is a process aimed at achieving this ideal. Legislative control is aimed at the protection of the individual tax payers' interest as well as public interest. There is also the need to ensure the accountability of the executive to the legislature. vi) Accounting, Reporting and Auditing

Executive control is a process aimed at achieving this ideal. Legislative control is aimed at the protection of the individual tax payers interest as well as public interest. There is also the need to ensure the accountability of the executive to the legislature. 1.8. Accounting, Reporting and Auditing

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

38/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 55 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 55 WORDS

These aspects are designed to aid both the executive control and legislative control. In India, the Comptroller and Auditor General (C & AG) and the Indian Audit and Accounts Department over which the C & AG presides ensure that the accounting and audit functions are performed in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

These aspects are designed to aid both the executive control and legislative control. In India, the Comptroller and Auditor General (C & AG) and the Indian Audit and Accounts Department over which the C & AG presides ensure that the accounting and audit functions are performed in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

39/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Comptroller and Auditor General of India controls the entire financial system of the country at the Union and as well at the state levels. 1.5.

Comptroller and Auditor General of India controls the entire financial system of the country — at the Union and as well at the state levels (

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

40/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

an on-going chain of operations, performed by the following agencies: i. The Executive (primarily the Finance Ministry), which needs funds

an on-going chain of operations, performed by the following agencies: (i) The Executive (primarily the Finance Ministry), which needs funds (

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

41/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 264 WORDS 99% MATCHING TEXT 264 WORDS

iii. The Finance Commission. iv. The Indian Audit and Accounts Department. v. The Parliamentary Committees. The executive powers of the central government have been vested in the President, to be exercised by him or her either directly or through officers' subordinate to him or her, in accordance with the Constitution (Article 53). The Finance Ministry is an important ministry within the Government of India. It is the leading state administration institution in the field of finances. It develops financial policy, coordinates and organizes its implementation, as well as performs other functions stated in the 10 external regulatory enactments. India has a parliamentary form of government. Our Parliament or the Union Legislature, the supreme legislative body in the country, comprises two Houses— Lok Sabha (House of the People) and Rajya Sabha (Council of States). The main function of both the Houses of parliament is to pass laws. The law proposal originates in the Parliament in the form of a bill. There are four types of bills that come up before the Parliament, namely ordinary or nonmoney bill, money bill, constitution amendment bill and budget. Of these four types of bills, money bill and budget pertain to financial administration. Article 110 clearly defines what constitutes a 'money bill'. The Speaker of the Lok Sabha certifies whether a bill is a 'money bill' or a non-money bill. Money bill can be introduced, only along with the prior recommendation of the President, in the Lok Sabha and not in the Rajya Sabha. The Rajya Sabha cannot reject the money bill. It can only make recommendations.

iii. The Finance Commission iv. The Indian Audit and Accounts Department v. The Parliamentary Committees ?The executive powers of the central government have been vested in the President, to be exercised by him or her either directly or through officers subordinate to him or her, in accordance with the Constitution (Article 53). ?The Finance Ministry is an important ministry within the Government of India. It is the leading state administration institution in the field of finances. It develops financial policy, coordinates and organizes its implementation, as well as performs other functions stated in the external regulatory enactments. ?India has a parliamentary form of government. Our Parliament or the Union Legislature, the supreme legislative body in the country, comprises two Houses— Lok Sabha (House of the People) and Rajya Sabha (Council of States). ?The main function of both the Houses of parliament is to pass laws. The law proposal originates in the Parliament in the form of a bill. There are four types of bills that come up before the Parliament, namely ordinary or non- money bill, money bill, constitution amendment bill and budget. Of these four types of bills, money bill and budget pertain to financial administration. ?Article 110 clearly defines what constitutes a 'money bill'. The Speaker of the Lok Sabha certifies whether a bill is a 'money bill' or a non-money bill. Money bill can be introduced, only along with the prior recommendation of the President, in the Lok Sabha and not in the Rajya Sabha. The Rajya Sabha cannot reject the money bill. It can only make recommendations. ?

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

42/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 42 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 42 WORDS

The budget pre 2017 was presented in two parts: (a) Railway Budget (b) General Budget. Railway budget was presented by the railway minister while the general budget is presented by the Finance Minister. The budget passes through various stages

The budget is presented in two parts: (a) Railway Budget and (b) General Budget. Railway budget is presented by the Railway Minister while the general budget is presented by the Finance Minister. The budget passes through various stages.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

43/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 80 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 80 WORDS

The financial administration is very significant aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is not possible without money or finance and for that reason the financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. The Ministry of Finance concerns itself with taxation, financial legislation, financial institutions, capital markets, centre and state finances, and the Union Budget. The Union Finance Ministry of India comprises five departments— i. Department of Economic Affairs ii. Department of Expenditure iii. Department

The financial administration is very significant aspect of public administration because the running or management of administration is not possible without money or finance and for that reason the financial administration occupies the centre of public administration. ?The Ministry of Finance is an important ministry within the of India. concerns itself with taxation, financial legislation, financial institutions, capital markets, centre and state finances, and the Union Budget. ?The Union Finance Ministry of India comprises five departments— NOTES Self-Instructional Material 9 Financial Administration Department of Economic Affairs, Department of Expenditure, Department

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

44/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 34 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 34 WORDS

have their financial administrative systems as an integral component of its public administrative system today. In contemporary India, financial administration began to assume the multifaceted role in order to secure maximum human welfare have their financial administrative systems as an integral component of its public administrative system. In contemporary societies, financial administration began to assume the multifaceted role in order to secure 'maximum human welfare.

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

45/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 33 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 33 WORDS

Financial administration, in its evolutionary process, has proved to be, a dynamic entity capable of developing itself into a potential measure to meet requirements of changing socio-economic demands from time to time.

Financial administration, in its evolutionary process, has proved to be,a dynamic entity capable of developing itself into a potential measure to meet requirements of changing socio-economic demands from time to time.

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

46/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Of late, financial administration has assumed the role of a provider of choices with regard to ends and means

Of late, financial administration has assumed the role of a provider of choices with regard to ends and means

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

47/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

discussed, its scope is expanding day by day and at present it encompasses many dynamic aspects

discussed, its scope is expanding day by day and at present it encompasses many dynamic aspects

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/19294/1/Unit-1.pdf

48/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	62 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	62 WORDS

KEY WORDS • Audit: It is an objective examination and evaluation of the financial statements to make sure that the financial records are fair and accurate. 13 • Subsidies: It is a benefit given to an individual, business, or institution, usually by the government. It is usually in the form of a cash payment or a tax reduction. •

KEY WORDS ?Audit: It is an objective examination and evaluation of the financial statements to make sure that the financial records are fair and accurate. ?Subsidies: It is a benefit given to an individual, business, or institution, usually by the government. It is usually in the form of a cash payment or a tax reduction. ?

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

49/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	57 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	57 WORDS

Budget: It is an estimation of revenue and expenses over a specified future period of time and is utilized by governments, businesses, and individuals. A budget is basically a financial plan for a defined period. • Zero-based budgeting: It is a method of budgeting in which all expenses must be justified for each new period. •

Budget: It is an estimation of revenue and expenses over a specified future period of time and is utilized by governments, businesses, and individuals. A budget is basically a financial plan for a defined period. ?Zero-based budgeting: It is a method of budgeting in which all expenses must be justified for each new period. 1.6

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

50/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	68 WORDS	97%	MATCHING TEXT	68 WORDS

ends are served by devices, such as, justification of estimates, supervision of the use of appropriated funds, timing of the rate of expenditures, and the like. It inculcates, or should inculcate, cost-consciousness and this feeling should permeate all levels of administration including the operating level. Budgeting presents an opportunity for evaluating programmes and policies, thereby identifying obsolete or unnecessary activities and giving a call for their discontinuance.

ends are served by devices, such as, justification of estimates, super-vision of the use of appropriated funds, timing of the rate of expenditures, and the like. It inculcates, or should inculcate, cost-consciousness and this feeling should permeate all levels of administration including the operating level. Budgeting presents an opportunity for evaluating programmes and policies, thereby identifying obsolete or unnecessary activities and giving a call for their discontinuance.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

51/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	57 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	57 WORDS

Short questions • What are the financial powers of the President of India? • What is the role of the legislature in the financial administration of the country? • Write a short note on the bills that pertain to financial administration. Medium question • What is a vote on account? • Write the functions of the Short-Answer Questions 1. What are the financial powers of the President of India? 2. What is the role of the legislature in the financial administration of the country? 3. Write a short note on the bills that pertain to financial administration. 4. What is a vote on account? the functions of the

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

52/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

Long questions • Discuss the functions of the Finance Ministry. • Examine the significance of financial administration. •

Long-Answer Questions 1. Discuss the functions of the Finance Ministry. 2. Examine the significance of financial administration. 1.7

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

53/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

the financial administration is considered the centre of public administration? 14 1.10

The financial administration is considered the centre of public administration

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

54/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

Goel. S.L. (2008.) Public Financial Administration. New Delhi: Deep and Deep Publications. Singh, S.K. 2001. Public Finance in Theory and Practice. New Delhi: S. Chand & Company Ltd.

Goel. S.L. 2008. Public Financial Administration. New Delhi: Deep and Deep Publications. Singh, S.K. 2001. Public Finance in Theory and Practice . New Delhi: S. Chand & Company Ltd.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

55/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	12 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	12 WORDS

Fadia, B.L. and Kuldeep Fadia. (2011.) Public Administration. Agra: Sahitya Bhawan.

Fadia, B.L. and Kuldeep Fadia. 2011. Public Administration. Agra: Sahitya Bhawan.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

56/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

Lall, G.S. (1976) Financial Administration in India, Delhi: H.P.J. Kapoor.

Lall, G.S., 1969. Financial Administration in India, H.P. J. Kapoor :

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

57/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 39 WORDS 48% MATCHING TEXT 39 WORDS

of financial administration 2.4.Principles of financial administration 2.5.Conclusion 2.6.Summary 2.7.Key words 2.8.Model questions 2.9.References 15 2.1 LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one will be able to- • Discuss the

of financial administration Objectives and principles of financial administration Review LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you should be able to: Explain the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

58/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

public policies • Describe ways and means as well as appropriate institutional instruments to secure

public policies describe ways and means as well as appropriate institutional instruments to secure

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

59/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 38 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 38 WORDS

trends and their usefulness in facing contemporary challenges especially by India. • Discuss the need to comprehend various aspects of financial administration as a way out to consider contemporary socio-economic problems and the solutions therefor. 2.2

trends and their utility in the light of contempbrary challenges faced .by modern democratic political societies like India; and discuss the need to comprehend various aspects of financial administration as a way out to consider contemporary socio-economic problems and the solutions therefor.

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

60/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

from hostile forces threatening the system from inside as well as outside. In this context, financial administration from hostile forces threatening the system from inside as well as outside. In this context, financial administration

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

61/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	12 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	12 WORDS

articulated in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment articulated in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment.

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

62/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	18 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	18 WORDS

It was expected to achieve the broad objectives spelled out in public policies from time to time

It was expected to achieve the broad objectives spelled out in public policies from time to time.

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

63/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

aim to achieve the objectives of the government with the 16 maximum possible level of efficiency at the least expenditure, aim was to achieve the objectives o f the government with the maximum possible level of efficiency at the least expenditure.

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

64/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

a welfare state with a commitment to socio-economic equity wishing to raise the quality of life of its citizens in preference to a welfare state with a commitment to socio-economic equity may wish to raise the quality of life of its citizens in preference to

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

65/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	31 WORDS	70%	MATCHING TEXT	31 WORDS

objectives, other than efficiency and economy, which can be visualised by a student of financial administration. Though situational objectives based in terms of certain common targets pursued by financial administration

objectives, other than efficiency and economy, which can be visualised by a student of financial administration. But, it is not impossible to think in terms of certain common objectives pursued by financial administration

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

66/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

all over the world when one looks at the experiences of the governments throughout the world, such an exercise

all over the world when one looks at the experiences of the governments throughout the world; Such an exercise

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

67/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	62%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION The unpredictability of capitalist forces of the modern market in the developed countries, have led to an enlarged scope of financial administration.

FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION : OBJECTIVES The vagaries of the market in the developed countries, for instance, have led to an enlarged scope of financial administration

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

68/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS

characterised by deficit budgets, massive public debt and deficit financing.

characterised by deficit budgets, massive public debt and deficit financing.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

69/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

Similarly, in the developing countries, where governments have assumed the role of a facilitator of development, fiscal policies and administration embark upon a set of multiple objectives.

Similarly, in the developing countries, where governments have assumed the role of a facilitator of development, fiscal policies and administration reflect a set of multiple objectives

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

70/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	98%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

stability, development, self-reliance, reduction of interpersonal inequalities in income and wealth, and balanced regional development. These countries also utilise the same instruments of action stability, development, self-reliance, reduction of interpersonal inequalities in income and wealth, and balanced regional development. Interestingly these countries also utilise the same instruments of action.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

71/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

in formulation and execution of fiscal measures through certain fiscal institutions and processes

in formulation and execution of fiscal measures through certain fiscal institutions and processes

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

72/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

There are certain fundamental objectives of financial administration which transcend, politico-economic compulsions.

there are certain fundamental objectives of financial administration which transcend, politico-economic compulsions.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

73/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	31 WORDS	76%	MATCHING TEXT	31 WORDS

Management of finances of the Public: Public authorities are concerned with the satisfaction of human wants and their major problem is to ensure the best application to secure given ends

Management of finances of Public Household: Just as in an individual household, the public authorities are concerned with the satisfaction of human wants and their major problem is to ensure the best application of limited means to secure given ends.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

74/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

in conformity with the rising expectations of the people. 2) Implementation of projects and programmes:

in conformity with the rising expectations of the people. (2) Implementation of projects and programmes :

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

75/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	47 WORDS	96%	MATCHING TEXT	47 WORDS

project formulation, appraisal and implementation. The emphasis has shifted from expenditure control to the implementation of projects within the stipulated time schedule and expenditure limitations. 3) Provision for public goods and social services: Since the benefits from public goods and social goods are available to project formulation, appraisal and implementation. The emphasis has shifted from expenditure control to the implementation of projects within the stipulated time schedule and expenditure ceiling. 1.4.3. Provision for Public Goods and Social Services Since the benefits from public goods and social goods are available to

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

76/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 102 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 102 WORDS

no one will offer payments for the supply of such goods. Provision of public goods like public parks, social services like public health, sanitation cannot be left to the private sector which is motivated by profit rather than service to the people. Budgetary support for such services become a valid concern for fiscal policy makers. 4) Growth, Employment and Price Stability: Modem governments tend to focus their attention on socially desired rate of economic growth, high employment and a reasonable degree of price level stability and a positive balance of payments position. Achievement of these objectives cannot come about automatically	no one will offer payments for the supply of such goods. Provision of public goods like public parks, social services like public health, sanitation cannot be left to the private sector which is motivated by profit rather than service to the people. Budgetary support for such services becomes a legitimate concern for fiscal policy makers. 1.4.4. Growth, Employment and Price Stability Modem governments are expected to focus attention on socially desired rate of economic growth, high employment and a reasonable degree of price level stability and a positive balance of payments position. Achievement of these objectives 13 cannot come about automatically.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

77/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

need for policy initiatives on the part of public authorities	need for policy initiatives on the part of public authorities. (5)

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

78/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

the fulfilment of such objectives. 5) Capital Formation: Economic development of a nation, largely depends upon the capital formation.	the part of public authorities. (5) Capital Formation : Economic development of a nation, to a great extent, ' depends upon the capital formation

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

79/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

amount of State's coercive power can 18 achieve this objective. Appropriate financial and fiscal measures such as discriminatory taxation and monetary policy instruments	amount of State's coercive power can achieve this objective. Appropriate financial and fiscal measures such as discriminatory taxation and monetary policy instruments

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

80/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

to accomplish this objective. 6) Productive deployment of funds: A major problem of under-developed countries is the allocation of required funds between competing projects and programmes.

to accomplish this objective. (6) Productive deployment of funds: A major problem of under-developed countries is the allocation of investible funds between competing projects and programmes.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

81/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

In order to ensure flow of investible funds into desirable channels

In order to ensure flow of investible funds into desirable channels.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

82/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

lays down guidelines regarding priorities for different types of investment for both public as well as private sector. The finance ministry

lays down guidelines regarding priorities for different types of investment for both public as well as private sector. The finance ministry

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

83/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

takes up the task of ensuring adherence to national priorities both in the public sector and the private sector. 7) Facilitating smooth flow of parliamentary processes: The basic tenet of

takes up the task of ensuring adherence to national priorities both in the public sector and the private sector. (7) Facilitating smooth flow of parliamentary processes : The basic tenet of

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

84/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

representative governments throughout the world is the supremacy of the representative institutions.

representative governments throughout the world is the supremacy of the representative institutions

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

85/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 196 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 196 WORDS

their control over executive branch of the government. One of the most important dimensions of this is the control of legislature over use of public funds. Financial administration through its budgetary process and audit function enables and ensures the supremacy of the legislative body over the executive. 8) Achievement of equity and equality: The distribution of income and wealth depends upon the distribution of factors of production and factor pricing determined through the market mechanism. It also depends upon the transmission of property rights through inheritance as well as personal earning abilities. Such distribution may not be in conformity with what society considers a "fair" or "just" state of distribution. Equity, however, has to be achieved through an evolutionary process without giving scope for class conflicts and large-scale violence. There should be a progressive reduction in the concentration of economic power. At the same time, equal opportunities for every one in every sphere will have to ensure non-occurrence of fresh inequalities. Financial administration, through its fiscal policies, such -as progressive taxation; grants, subsidies etc. can help movement towards greater equality of wealth and opportunities. 19 2.4 PRINCIPLES OF FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION 1)

their control over executive branch of the government. One of the most important dimensions of this is the control of legislature over use of public funds. Financial administration through its budgetary process and audit function enables and ensures the supremacy of the legislative body over the executive. 1.4.8. Achievement of Equity and Equality The distribution of income and wealth depends upon the distribution of factors of production and factor pricing determined through the market mechanism. It also depends upon the transmission of property rights through inheritance as well as personal earning abilities. Such distribution may not be in conformity with what society considers a "fair" or "just" state of distribution. Equity, however, has to be achieved through an evolutionary process without giving scope for class conflicts and large scale violence. There should be a progressive reduction in the concentration of economic power. At the same time, equal opportunities for every one in every sphere 14 will have to ensure non-occurrence of fresh inequalities. Financial administration, through its fiscal policies, such -as progressive taxation; grants, subsidies etc. can help movement towards greater equality of wealth and opportunities. sum up, objectives of financial administration

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

86/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

The principle of primacy of public interest, public choice and public policy

The principle of primacy of public interest, public choice and public policy (2)

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

87/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 43 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 43 WORDS

Public interest can be interpreted in various ways such as the common good, the general welfare, the overall quality of life of people as individual and society as a collective. In simpler terms the collective realisation of social values, rights and privileges

Public interest can be interpreted in various ways such as the common good, the general welfare, the overall quality of life of contemporary and subsequent Self-Instructional Material 13 Financial Adminisiralion generations, the collective realisation of social values, rights and privileges.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

88/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 26 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 26 WORDS

administration is to concentrate on those types of activities which make a definite and justifiable contribution to the accomplishment of public interest and public satisfaction	administration, it is imperative to concentrate on those types of activities which make a definite and justifiable contribution to the accomplishment of public interest and public satisfaction

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

89/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 70% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

public policies. It is quite essential to realise that financial policy is expected to meet the broad aims as spelt out in public policies. One should be clear about the meaning of public choice	public policies. It is quite essential to realise that policy is expected to subserve the broad aims as spelt out in public policies. One should be clear about the meaning of public choice.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

90/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

public choice is a choice which encompasses common life and is shared by all. 2) The principle of political direction and control	Public choice is a choice which encompasses common life and is shared by all. (2) The principle of political direction and control

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

91/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 56 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 56 WORDS

This structure is found in basic laws of the land and in prevailing customs, conventions and traditions by which political ideals and ideas exist and develop within a system. Financial administration, as a subsystem of public administration, should agree to these political ideas and ideals as expressed through the constitutional process of the society. Further,	This structure is found in basic laws of the land and in prevailing customs, conventions and traditions by which political ideals and ideas find their way. Financial administration, as a subsystem of public administration, should conform to these political ideas and ideals as expressed through the constitutional process of the society. Further,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

92/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

to the political structure of a particular society to which it is attached. In	to the political structure of a particular society to which it is attached. In

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

93/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	39 WORDS	98%	MATCHING TEXT	39 WORDS

and have replaced all the previous structures and ideals. Therefore, the system of financial administration is to be organised and operated in a manner so as to secure compliance with the will of legislature as expressed through the

and ideals have replaced all the previous structures and ideals. Therefore, the system of financial administration is to be organised and operated in a manner so as to secure compliance with the will of legislature as expressed through the

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

94/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	34 WORDS	90%	MATCHING TEXT	34 WORDS

both public and fiscal. In order to ensure its control over financial administration of the executive government, the legislature (parliament) takes an account of financial functions through an independent audit organisation like the

both public and fiscal. In order to ensure its control over financial administration of the executive government, the legislature takes an account of financial functions through an independent audit organisation. (3) The

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

95/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	21 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	21 WORDS

The Principle of Correspondence This principle suggests a causal relationship between the objectives of financial administration and the functions

The principle of correspondence This principle implies that there should be a causal relationship between the objectives of financial administration and the functions,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

96/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	11 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	11 WORDS

the human and material resources necessary to accomplish such objectives

the human and material resources necessary to accomplish such objectives.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

97/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	42 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	42 WORDS

The type of functions, the personnel required to handle them and the physical facilities necessary for the purpose should have a rational mutual interrelationship. The objectives and the functions should provide the basis for staffing and equipping of the financial organisation

the type of functions, the personnel required to handle them and the physical facilities necessary for the purpose should have a rational mutual interrelationship. The essence of this principle is that the objectives and the functions should provide the basis for staffing and equipping of the financial organisation. (4)

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

98/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	50 WORDS	73%	MATCHING TEXT	50 WORDS

this principle to centralisation-based efficiency. While it should not be taken to mean centralisation of every minute detail at the top of hierarchy but it does mean that the work is coordinated between the different financial and non-financial agencies and highly evaluated by the top officials of the government.

this principle. He centralisation to efficiency. While elaborating he clarified it should not be taken to mean centralisation of every minute detail at the top of hierarchy. According to him it does mean that the work of the different financial and non-financial agencies is coordinated and highly evaluated by the top officials of the government.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

99/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	13 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	13 WORDS

Experiences of developing countries have exposed the inadequacy of centralised decision making

Experiences of developing countries have exposed the inadequacy of centralised decision making.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

100/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	56 WORDS	80%	MATCHING TEXT	56 WORDS

centralised direction and decentralised decision making and decision implementation. The concept of administrative financial control has slowly given way to the concept of management of results. This principle supports centralised guidance for facilitating decentralised decision making with a view to securing maximum production (quantity) as well as optimum utility (quality). The concept of national planning centralised direction and decentralised decision making and decision implementation. The concept of administrative financial control has given way to the concept of management of results. Under this changed context, this principle should be taken to mean centralised guidance for facilitating decentralised decision making with a view to securing optimum production as well as optimum utility. The concept of national planning

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

101/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	44 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	44 WORDS

develop capacity to withstand losses of specific trained personnel without serious consequences to effectiveness, and efficiency. For this purpose, there is need for effective-manpower planning together with a good programme for human resource development. 6) The principle of simplicity and flexibility

develop capacity to withstand losses of specific trained personnel without serious consequences to effectiveness, and efficiency. For this purpose, there is need for effective-manpower planning together with a good programme for human resource development. 2.5.6. The Principle of Simplicity and Flexibility

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

102/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

All other democratic institutions, including parliament, derive their authority from

All other democratic institutions, including parliament, derive their authority from -

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

103/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 36 WORDS 82% MATCHING TEXT 36 WORDS

Therefore, it is very essential that the financial system and its procedures should be simplified in such a manner so as to become accessible to the commonfolk. If this principle is implemented properly, it can

Therefore, it is very essential that the financial system and its procedures should be simplified in such a manner so as to become intelligible to the layman. According to P.J.J. Pinto, if this principle is implemented properly, it can

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

104/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

economise the system to a great extent. The principle of flexibility implies that the financial organisation should develop capacity to adjust itself. to fluctuations on work flows, human compositions and physical facilities. 7) The principle of conduct, discipline and regularity The officials of public financial organisations

economise the costs. ' Introdiiciion to Financial Adminisiralion The principle of flexibility implies that the financial organisation should develop capacity to adjust itself to fluctuations on work flows, human compositions and physical facilities. (7) The principle of conduct, discipline and regularity The principle of conduct implies that the officials of public financial organisations

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

105/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

could be very effective in preventing tax evasion by setting ethical examples themselves

could be very effective in preventing tax evasion by setting ethical examples themselves.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

106/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

The principle of discipline implies that the objectives, rules and regulations, the policies, procedures and programmes must be honoured by each

The principle of discipline implies that the objectives, rules and regulations, the policies, procedures and programmes must be honoured by each

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

107/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

The principle of regularity implies that no financial organisation, can afford to function at intervals.

The principle of regularity implies that no public organisation, including financial organisation, can afford to function at intervals.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

108/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

can lead to misuse of these funds for personal interest. Financial administration has therefore to be held publicly answerable for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional, moral and aspirational. Here accountability implies answerability for one's responsibility and for trust bestowed in an official.

can lead to misuse of these funds for personal interest. Financial administration has therefore to be held publicly answerable for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional, jnoral and aspirational. Here accountability implies answerability for one's responsibility and for trust reposed in an official.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

109/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment

in terms of mobilisation of resources and their productive deployment.

W https://pdfcoffee.com/ignoux27s-public-administration-material-part-5-financial-administration-pd ...

110/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional

for proper use of funds at several levels such as political, legal, administrative, organisational, professional,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

111/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Sundharam, K.P.M., (1974.) Indian Public Finance and Financial Administration, Fourth Edition, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi. Thavaraj, M.

Sundharam, K.P.M., 1974. Indian Public Finance and Financial Administration, Fourth Edition, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi. ? Sury M.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

112/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	88%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one will be able to- • Discuss the

OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you will be able to: ?Discuss the

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

113/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	84%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

Independence brought basic changes in the political context of financial administration. The principle of executive responsibility to the legislature

Independence brought basic changes in the political context of financial administration. There was a formal acceptance of the principle of executive responsibility to the legislature.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

114/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

The budgetary and other systems and procedures were tuned to subserve this principle and its implementation.

The budgetary and other systems and procedures were tuned to subserve this principle and its implementation.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

115/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

active interest in the 30 form, content, legality and regularity of public spending active interest in the form, content, legality and regularity of public spending.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

116/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

The Comptroller and Auditor-General became a constitutional authority with a responsibility to aid legislative control

The Comptroller and Auditor-General became a constitutional authority with a responsibility to aid legislative control.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

117/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	12 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	12 WORDS

The financial administration gradually shifted its focus from stability to welfare

The financial administration gradually shifted its focus from stability to welfare,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

118/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 47 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 47 WORDS

Planning and Budgeting got united in the form of Performance Budgeting in 1974 which gave result orientation to financial processes. The system of financial control has been basically restructured so as to make it an instrument of plan implementation. Significant powers were delegated to various departments

Planning and Budgeting got united in the form of Performance Budgeting in 1974 which gave result orientation to financial processes. The system of financial control has been basically restructured so as to make it an instrument of plan implementation. Consequently, significant powers were delegated to spending departments

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

119/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

through various delegation schemes such as the schemes of 1955, 1958, 1962, 1968 and 1975. The responsibility for financial control through various delegation schemes such as the schemes of 1%5. 1958, 1962, 1968 and 1975 the responsibility for financial control

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

120/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

two means- First one was the scheme of Integrated Financial Advice and the second was the separation of audit and accounts. In order to meet the growing financial needs of development expenditure, budget became an instrument of resource mobilisation. Consequently, several steps were taken to rationalise tax structure.

two means. First one was the scheme of Integrated Financial Advice and the second was the separation of audit and accounts. In order to meet the growing financial needs of development expenditure, budget became an instrument of resource mobilisation. Consequently, several steps were taken to rationalise tax structure.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

121/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

Kaldor's tax proposals, Wanchoo Committee Report, Jha Committee Report. 1.

Kaldor's tax proposals, Wanchoo Committee Report, Jha Committee Report

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

122/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

the capabilities of the population. Nationalisation of banking system was considered as an instrument to channel national funds towards development activities.

the pace of development. Nationalisation of banking system was considered as an instrument to channel national funds towards development activities.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

123/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

assumed significant importance in advancing the goals of development and equity assumed significant importance in advancing the goals of development and equity.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

124/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

there were certain undesirable consequences. Galloping inflation, sinking balance of payments position, increasing negative returns from public sector, shrinking public savings and resource base etc. have

There were certain undesirable consequences. Galloping inflation, sinking balance of payments position, increasing negative returns from public sector, shrinking public savings and resource base etc., have

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

125/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 25 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 25 WORDS

have had a cumulative impact on financial administration in such a way that the government had to take steps to set right these tendencies,

have had a cumulative impact on financial administration in such a way that the government had to take steps to set right these tendencies.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

126/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

G.S., (1976.) Public Finance and Financial Administration in India, H.P. Kapoor: New Delhi.

G.S., 1976. Public Finance and Financial Administration in India, H.P. Kapoor: New Delhi. ?

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

127/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

Musgrave & Musgrave, (1989.) Public Finance in Theory and Practice, McGraw Hill Book Company: New York. 35

Musgrave & Musgrave, 1989. Public Finance in Theory and Practice, McGraw Hill Book Company: New York. ?

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

128/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 85% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

New York Thavaraj, M.J., (1978.) Financial Administration of India, Sultan Chand & Sons: New Delhi.

New Thavaraj, M.J.K., 1978. Financial Administration of India, Sultan Chand & Sons : New Delhi. •

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

129/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

questions 4.9.References 4.1. LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, one should be able to: • Explain the questions LEARNING OBJECTIVES After going through this unit, you should be able to: Explain the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

130/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 40% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

the government. It is the branch of economics that assesses the government revenues and expenditure and its adjustment to achieve the desirable objectives. Thus, comprehending the essence of public finance the government in the economy.[1] It is the branch of economics that assesses the government revenue and government expenditure of the public authorities and the adjustment of one or the other to achieve desirable effects and avoid undesirable ones.[2] The purview of public finance

W https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Public_finance

131/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

organizing, directing and controlling the financial activities such as procurement and utilization of funds of the enterprise. It also means applying general management principles to financial resources of the enterprise.

organizing, directing and controlling the financial activities such as procurement and utilization of funds of the enterprise. It means applying general management principles to financial resources of the enterprise.

W https://www.managementstudyguide.com/financial-management.htm

132/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 122 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 122 WORDS

Investment decisions: includes investment in fixed assets (called as capital budgeting). Investments in current assets are also a part of investment decisions called as working capital decisions. • Financial decisions: relate to the raising of finance from various resources which will depend upon decision on type of source, period of financing, cost of financing and the returns thereby. • Dividend decision: The finance manager has to take decision with regards to the net profit distribution. Net profits are generally divided into two: a) Dividend for shareholders- dividend and the rate of it has to be decided. b) Retained profits- amount of retained profits has to be finalized which will depend upon expansion and diversification plans of the enterprise. The financial management

Investment decisions includes investment in fixed assets (called as capital budgeting). Investment in current assets are also a part of investment decisions called as working capital decisions. • Financial decisions - They relate to the raising of finance from various resources which will depend upon decision on type of source, period of financing, cost of financing and the returns thereby. • Dividend decision - The finance manager has to take decision with regards to the net profit distribution. Net profits are generally divided into two: • Dividend for shareholders- Dividend and the rate of it has to be decided. • Retained profits- Amount of retained profits has to be finalized which will depend upon expansion and diversification plans of the enterprise. Objectives of Financial Management

W https://www.managementstudyguide.com/financial-management.htm

133/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

Public Revenue Public revenue collects money from the public through direct and indirect taxes penalties, fines, fees, maintenance, etc. 2)

Public Revenue Public revenue is the collection of money from the public by way of direct and indirect taxes, penalties, fines, fees, maintenance, etc.

W https://www.wallstreetmojo.com/public-finance/

134/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

The financial management is generally concerned with procurement, allocation and control of financial resources of a concern.

The financial management is generally concerned with procurement, allocation and control of financial resources of a concern.

W https://www.managementstudyguide.com/financial-management.htm

135/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS

Public Expenditure Public expenditure is the expenditure for the public like infrastructural facilities, basic health facilities, medical and educational facilities, etc. 3) Public Debt When the expenditure exceeds the revenue, the government can take the help of debt to fulfil the country's needs and run the economy. Public financial administration is

Public Expenditure Public expenditure is the expenditure for the public like infrastructural facilities, basic health facilities, medical and educational facilities, etc. Public Debt When the expenditure exceeds the revenue, the government will take the help of debt to fulfill the needs of the country and to run the economy. Financial Administration Financial Administration is

W https://www.wallstreetmojo.com/public-finance/

136/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Mahajan S. K. & Mahajan, A. (2014). Financial Administration in India. New Delhi, India: PHI

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

137/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

New York: Harcourt. Mahajan S. K. & Mahajan, A. (2014). Financial Administration in India. New Delhi, India: PHI

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

138/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

John Maynard, 1935 (1965), The General Theory of Employment, Interest, and Money, New York: Harcourt, Brace.

SA deepa Eco.docx (D28771015)

139/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

of fiscal policy is to ensure economic growth and development in any nation. Such economic growth and development must be

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

140/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Lower taxes and duties on small-scale industrial (SSI) units encourage additional investment and consequently

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

141/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 41 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 41 WORDS

Reducing the Deficit in the Balance of Payment "Fiscal policy tries to encourage additional exports by manner of financial measures like Exemption of taxation on export earnings, Exemption of central excise duties and customs,Exemption of nuisance tax and tariff, etc" (

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

142/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 52 WORDS 42% MATCHING TEXT 52 WORDS policy tries to add extra exports by manner of financial Measures like, exemption of taxation on export earnings, exemption of excise tax and octopi, etc. exchange provides business enterprise advantages to import substitute industries. The exchange achieved by means of exports and saved by way of import substitutes helps to solve

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

143/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

often relate to specific schemes and projects. Furthermore, they are usually routed through central ministries to state governments for achieving certain desired objectives. These funds are

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

144/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

medium term target for balancing current revenues and expenditures and set overall limits to the fiscal deficit"

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

145/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

before the Parliament on an annual basis reports related to its economic assessments, taxation and expenditure strategy" (

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

146/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

arbitrary and excessive tax results in social injustice by the government...

arbitrary and excessive tax results in social injustice by the government".

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-so ...

147/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 23 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 23 WORDS

While tax evasion is a social injustice to fellow citizens, arbitrary and excessive tax also results in social injustice by the government" (

While tax evasion is a social injustice to fellow citizens, arbitrary and excessive tax also results in social injustice by the government,"

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-so ...

148/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 1 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 1 WORDS

news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-social-injustice-by-a-government-cji-bobde/

News›Economy›Policy›Arbitrary or excessive tax results in social injustice by a government: CJI Bobde

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-so ...

149/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

that “fiscal prudence and the desire to limit the public debt through better revenue and expenditure outcomes has been fairly institutionalised in the Indian policy matrix” (De 2012: 24) Brahmbhatt and

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

150/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Chelliah Raja J (2011): Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries With Special Reference to India,

Chelliah R.J. 1969. Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries with Special Reference to India, 2

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

151/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Arbitrary or excessive tax results in social injustice by a government: CJI Bobde”, The Economic Times,

Arbitrary or excessive tax results in social injustice by a government: CJI Bobde - The Economic Times

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-so ...

152/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 1 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 1 WORDS

news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-social-injustice-by-a-government-cji-bobde/

News›Economy›Policy›Arbitrary or excessive tax results in social injustice by a government: CJI Bobde

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/arbitrary-or-excessive-tax-results-in-so ...

153/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 60% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

of fiscal policy is to ensure economic growth and development in any nation. Such economic growth and development must be

SA CHAPTER 4.docx (D27320633)

154/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 65% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

The term “Budget” comes from the French word- “bougette” which means a leather bag or wallet. In the words of

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

155/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

A Budget is a financial plan summarizing the financial experience of the past stating a current plan and projecting it over a specified period of time in future".

SA THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf (D75607893)

156/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

of budget which were- reintroducing food control, increasing supply of food grains at fair price and limiting food imports from overseas.

of the budget were: reintroducing food control, increasing supply of food grains at fair price and limiting food imports from overseas.

W https://www.downtoearth.org.in/coverage/economy/analysis-of-union-budget-since-1947-56867

157/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

To promote India as major software development centre in the world. 4.

to promote India as a major software development centre in the world.

W https://www.downtoearth.org.in/coverage/economy/analysis-of-union-budget-since-1947-56867

158/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

a deficit budget "is the most common kind of budget presented by the most popular democracies in the world today.

SA FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf (D75551780)

159/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

from the Consolidated Fund of India. The Consolidated Fund of India

from the Consolidated Fund of India. The expenditure under the Consolidated Fund of India

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

160/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

by two statutory committees- Central Board of Direct Taxes and Central Board of Excise & Customs. The

by two statutory Boards viz., Central Board of Direct Taxes, and the Central Board of Excise and The

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

161/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

be made, (b) to suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency in administration,	be effected; (b) to suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration; (

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

162/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 16 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 16 WORDS

Preparation of the Union Budget, enactment of the Union Budget, execution of the Budget and	Preparation of the Budget, Enactment of the Budget, Execution of the Budget and

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

163/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS of the Budget- The Union Budget is known as the Annual Financial Statement

SA An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_its_impact_m_grwoth_and_development_of_c._g._state.pdf (D16312470)

164/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades..	corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades

W https://www.livemint.com/companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the-single-biggest-reform-in-the-la ...

165/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 67 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 67 WORDS

This is hugely competitive as compared to India's closest manufacturing rivals like Vietnam, Indonesia and Bangladesh. I believe it would be a great catalyst to the Make in India programme for attracting foreign investment. The timing is also perfect as this comes at a time when key American companies are caught in a trade war with China and are looking at alternative global manufacturing bases"	This is hugely competitive as compared to India's closest manufacturing rivals like Vietnam, Indonesia and Bangladesh. I believe it would be a great catalyst to the Make in India programme for attracting foreign investment. The timing is also perfect as this comes at a time when key American companies are caught in a trade war with China and are looking at alternative global manufacturing bases.

W https://www.livemint.com/companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the-single-biggest-reform-in-the-la ...

166/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 56 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 56 WORDS

including the excise duty and sales tax. GST is "currently levied on every product except petroleum, alcohol, tobacco and stamp duty on real estate in four slabs of 5, 12, 18 and 28 per cent. Most of the daily use articles have zero GST as per the latest revision of the tax rates last year (

including the excise duty and sales tax. GST is currently levied on every product except petroleum, alcohol, tobacco and stamp duty on real estate in four slabs of 5, 12, 18 and 28 per cent. Most of the daily use articles have zero GST as per the latest revision of the tax rates last year.

W https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01

167/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

In 2018-19 Budget, the GST collection was estimated at Rs 7.4 lakh crore which was revised later in 2019-20 interim budget to Rs 6.4 lakh crore. But the finance ministry's figures show that the 81 actual GST collection for 2018-19 was around Rs 5.8 lakh crore, a significant shortfall of over 20 per cent compared to budget projection" (

In 2018-19 Budget, the GST collection was estimated at Rs 7.4 lakh crore which was revised later in 2019-20 interim budget to Rs 6.4 lakh crore. But the finance ministry's figures show that the actual GST collection for 2018-19 was around Rs 5.8 lakh crore, a significant shortfall of over 20 per cent compared to budget projection.

W https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01

168/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 53 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 53 WORDS

revenue base has gone up significantly- "The average revenue collection per month in the eight months of 2017-18 was Rs 89,700 crore per month. This propelled the annual revenue collection by about 12 per cent...The monthly average revenue collection increased further in 2018-19 by about 10 per cent to Rs 97,100 crore" ( revenue collection has also gone up. The average revenue collection per month in the eight months of 2017-18 was Rs 89,700 crore per month. This propelled the annual revenue collection by about 12 per cent. The monthly average revenue collection increased further in 2018-19 by about 10 per cent to Rs 97,100 crore.

W https://www.indiatoday.in/india/story/2-years-of-gst-hits-misses-and-future-1559678-2019-07-01

169/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Chelliah Raja J (2011): Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries With Special Reference to India,

Chelliah R.J. 1969. Fiscal Policy in Underdeveloped Countries with Special Reference to India, 2

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

170/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	68 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	68 WORDS

when people avail services offered by the government, like electricity, telecommunication, DTH, broadband etc, they pay bills, which include the share of non-tax revenue as the government provides infrastructure support to facilitate the services. The government also collects interest as non-tax revenue on the loans and funds advanced to states for various purposes. So, the government collects non-tax revenue in return for providing/facilitating any goods or services" (

when people avail services offered by the government, like electricity, telecommunication, DTH, broadband etc, they pay bills, which include the share of non-tax revenue as the government provides infrastructure support to facilitate the services. The government also collects interest as non-tax revenue on the loans and funds advanced to states for various purposes. So, the government collects non-tax revenue in return for providing/facilitating any goods or services.

W https://www.financialexpress.com/what-is/non-tax-revenue-meaning/1762795/

171/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

Corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades",

Corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades' |

W https://www.livemint.com/companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the-single-biggest-reform-in-the-la ...

172/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	1 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	1 WORDS

companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the- single-biggest-reform-in-the-last-two-decades-11570729584966.

Companies / News / 'Corporate tax cut is the single biggest reform in the last two decades'

W https://www.livemint.com/companies/news/-corporate-tax-cut-is-the-single-biggest-reform-in-the-la ...

173/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	78%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

Rao, Govind M (2000): "Tax Reforms in India Achievements and Challenges", Asia Pacific Development Journal,

Rao, Govinda M.: "Tax Reform in India: Achievements and Challenges', Asia- Pacific Development Journal,

W https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027002 ...

174/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	58%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

Role of Fiscal Policy for Mobilisation of Resources for Economic Growth", available at http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/fiscal-policy/role-of-fiscal-policy-for- mobilisation-of-resources-for-economic-growth/10965

Role of Fiscal Policy for Mobilisation of Resources for Economic Growth Skip to content Toggle Navigation • Home • Upload & Share • Privacy Policy • Contact Us Role of Fiscal Policy for Mobilisation of Resources for Economic Growth

W http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/fiscal-policy/role-of-fiscal-policy-for-mobilisation-of-resour ...

175/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

excessive printing of money leads to inflation. If the government borrows too much from abroad it leads to a debt crisis.

SA ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx (D50257214)

176/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies, fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures" (

shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies, fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

177/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Excessive domestic borrowing by the government may lead to higher real interest rates and the domestic private sector being unable to access funds resulting in the „crowding out" of private investment.

SA ECONOMICS SUMIT 6TH SEM.docx (D50257214)

178/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 96 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 96 WORDS

These are- "To finance defence expenditures during war ii. To lift the economy out of depression so that incomes, employment, investment, etc., all rise iii. To activate idle resources as well as divert resources from unproductive sectors to productive sectors with the objective of increasing national income and, hence, higher economic growth iv. To raise capital formation by mobilizing forced savings made through deficit financing v. To mobilize resources to finance massive plan expenditure If the usual sources of finance are, thus, inadequate for meeting public expenditure, a government may resort to deficit financing" (

These are: ADVERTISEMENTS: i. To finance defence expenditures during war ii. To lift the economy out of depression so that incomes, employment, investment, etc., all rise iii. To activate idle resources as well as divert resources from unproductive sectors to productive sectors with the objective of increasing national income and, hence, higher economic growth iv. To raise capital formation by mobilizing forced savings made through deficit financing v. To mobilize resources to finance massive plan expenditure If the usual sources of finance are, thus, inadequate for meeting public expenditure, a government may resort to deficit financing.

W http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-eff ...

179/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

to increase capital. This "technique of deficit financing results in an increase in government expenditure which produces a favourable multiplier effect on national income, saving, employment, etc" ( to increase capital. The technique of deficit financing results in an increase in government expenditure which produces a favourable multiplier effect on national income, saving, employment, etc.

W http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-eff ...

180/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	86%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

shortage of capital equipment, lack of technical knowledge and entrepreneurship, lack of communications, market imperfections shortage of capital equipment and other complementary resources, lack of technical knowledge and entrepreneurship, lack of communications, market imperfections,

W http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-eff ...

181/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

include shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies,

include shifts in government spending, changes in the competitive environment, globalization, presence of shadow economies,

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

182/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures. •

fraud in government programs, role of multinationals, and income distribution that affects private consumption expenditures.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

183/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	94%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

into seven branches- general finance, revenue, Money and banking, Salary and allowances, Public accounts, Military finance and Military Accounts.

into seven branches. They are general finance, revenue, money and banking, salary and allowances, public accounts, military finance and military accounts.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

184/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 63% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

of the Ministry of Finance. The Ministry was now organized into three major wings- Expenditure, Economic affairs and Revenue.	of the ministry of finance, which was organised into three major wings. They are expenditure, economic affairs, and revenue.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

185/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

departments- Department of Economic Affairs, Department of Revenue, Department of Expenditure and Department of	departments— Department of Economic Affairs, Department of Expenditure, Department of Revenue, Department of Financial Services and Department of

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

186/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

into four departments namely- Expenditure, Economic Affairs, Revenue and Insurance and Banking. Each	into four departments of expenditure, economic affairs, revenue and insurance, and banking, each

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

187/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

The department of Banking was however merged with the department of Economic Affairs	the department of banking having been merged with 86 the department of economic affairs

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

188/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

the "most important thing about deficit financing is that it generates economic surplus during the process of development. That is to say, the multiplier effects of deficit financing will be larger if total output exceeds the volume of money supply. As a result, inflationary effect will be neutralized" (	The most important thing about deficit financing is that it generates economic surplus during the process of development. That is to say, the multiplier effects of deficit financing will be larger if total output exceeds the volume of money supply. As a result, inflationary effect will be neutralized.

W http://www.economicsdiscussion.net/public-finance/deficit-financing/deficit-financing-meaning-eff ...

189/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	21 WORDS	55%	MATCHING TEXT	21 WORDS

the recommendations of the Finance Commission and the central Pay Commission. It monitors audit statements and prepares Central government accounts.

the recommendations of the Finance Commission and Central Pay Commission, monitoring of audit comments/ observations and the preparation of Central Government Accounts. 3.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

190/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	21 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	21 WORDS

Public Finance, Office of Controller General of Account, Office of Chief Adviser Cost, and Central Pension Accounting Office. The Department

Public Finance (Central) Divisions, Office of Controller General of Accounts, Office of Chief Adviser Cost, and Central Pension Accounting Office. The Department

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

191/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	27 WORDS	77%	MATCHING TEXT	27 WORDS

the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC).Each of these bodies are headed by a chairman who

the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC). Each Board is headed by a Chairman who

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

192/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	92%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

The Department of Financial Services administers the functioning of banks, Financial Institutions, Insurance Companies and the National Pension System

the Department of Financial Services covers the functioning of Banks, Financial Institutions, Insurance Companies and the National Pension System.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

193/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	25 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	25 WORDS

the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDAI) and the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA).

the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDAI) and the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority (PFRDA).

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

194/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 56 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 56 WORDS

public Sector banks (PSBs), Public Sector Insurance Companies (PSICs) and Development Financial Institutions (DFIs) like National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development (NABARD), Small Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), India Infrastructure Finance Company Ltd. (IIFCL), National Housing Bank (NHB), Export-Import Bank of India (EXIM Bank), Industrial Finance Corporation of India (IFCI). 96

Public Sector banks (PSBs), Public Sector Insurance Companies (PSICs) and Development Financial Institutions (DFIs) like National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development (NABARD), Small Industries Development Bank of India (SIDBI), India Infrastructure Finance Company Ltd. (IIFCL), National Housing Bank (NHB), Export-Import Bank of India (EXIM Bank), Industrial Finance Corporation of India (IFCI).

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

195/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

List CPSEs on stock exchanges to promote people's ownership through public participation and improving efficiencies of CPSEs through accountability to its shareholders. 2.

List CPSEs on stock exchanges to promote people's ownership through public participation and improving efficiencies of CPSEs through accountability to its shareholders.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

196/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 44 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 44 WORDS

To bring in operational efficiencies in CPSEs through strategic investment, ensuring their greater contribution to economy. 3. Adopt a professional approach for financial management of CPSEs in the national interest and investment aimed at expanding public participation in ownership of CPSEs." 7

To bring in operational efficiencies in CPSEs through strategic investment, ensuring their greater contribution to economy. 3. Adopt a professional approach for financial management of CPSEs in the national interest and investment aimed at expanding public participation in ownership of CPSEs.

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

197/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 19 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 19 WORDS

The Department of expenditure is the nodal department of the ministry which oversees the public financial management system

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

198/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	80%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

new Companies Act, nationalised the Imperial Bank of India and life Insurance companies.

new Companies Act, and nationalisation of the Imperial Bank of India and life insurance companies.

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/finance-ministers-who-shaped-indias-economy/pil ...

199/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	70%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

the department of Expenditure, department of Revenue and department of Economic Affairs. • The Ministry of the Department of Expenditure, and the Department of Revenue. Department of Economic Affairs (DEA) The Department of

W http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25657/1/Unit-11.pdf

200/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

each budget request so that its inclusion or exclusion from the integrated whole budget

each budget request in order to justify its inclusion or exclusion from the integrated whole budget

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/budget-through-the-years-the-men-who-mad ...

201/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	51%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

Budget through the years: The men who made India", The Economic Times, available at https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy /policy/budget- through-the-years-the-men-who-made-india/

Budget through the years: The men who made India The Economic Times daily newspaper is available online now. Read Today's Paper Budget through the years: The men who made India

W https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/news/economy/policy/budget-through-the-years-the-men-who-mad ...

202/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	87%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

Institutions in Budgetary process 3.7 The Parliament 3.8
Political Executive 3.9 Audit Department 3.10
Parliamentary Committees 3.11

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

203/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	40 WORDS	91%	MATCHING TEXT	40 WORDS

the government. The first traceable legal definition of the budget is contained in a French decree of 1862: 'The budget is a document which forecasts and authorizes the annual receipts and expenditures of the State...' ii In the The first traceable legal definition of the budget is contained in a French decree of 1862: 'The budget is a document which forecasts and authorizes the annual receipts and expenditures of the State'. In

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

204/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	42%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

of the purse") is the main form of parliamentary control of the executive. Although, there exists no unanimity among writer regarding the definition of the term 'budget', of the purse strings is the feature of this century. There is no unanimity among writers regarding the definition of the term 'budget'.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

205/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	92%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

that budget is the keystone of financial administration and the various operations in the field of public finance are correlated through the instrument of budget.

that the budget is the cornerstone of financial administration and the various operations in the field of public finance are correlated through the instrument of budget.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

206/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	78 WORDS	76%	MATCHING TEXT	78 WORDS

The term is derived from a French word, 'Bougette', which means a leather bag or wallet from which the Chancellor of the Exchequer used to take out his papers about government's financial schemes for the ensuing year for laying before the House of Commons and when he set off to place his financial plans before the House, he used to open his budget. The term was used in its present sense for the first time in1733 in

SA 5.docx (D40607909)

207/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	52%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

the Indian Constitution the word 'budget' does not figure rather it is referred to as the 'Annual Financial Statement

SA FRBM Assigment 4 sem.pdf (D75551780)

208/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

it contains provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters,

SA An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_its_impact_m_grwoth_and_development_of_c._g._state.pdf (D16312470)

209/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

Classification of Expenditure: Government expenditure can be broadly classified into four categories:

Classification of Expenditure: Government expenditure can be broadly classified into four categories: (

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

210/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 138 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 138 WORDS

a) The imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax; b) The regulation of the borrowing of money or the giving of any guarantee by the Government of India, or the amendment of the law with respect to any financial obligations undertaken or to be undertaken by the Government of India; c) The custody of the Consolidated Fund or the Contingency Fund of India, the payment of moneys into or the withdrawal of moneys from any such Fund; d) The appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India; e) The declaring of any expenditure to be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or the increasing of the amount of any such expenditure; f) The receipt of money on account of the Consolidated

SA An_Analytical_study_of_goverment_budget_and_its_impact_m_grwoth_and_development_of_c._g._state.pdf (D16312470)

Ouriginal by Turnitin

211/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 226 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 226 WORDS

or Budget Classification: In India, the classification of accounts was structured so as to correspond to the organisation in which the transaction occurred and within the organisation to the inputs on which expenditure was incurred. For example, construction of a hospital would be classified and displayed in accounts as "public' works expenditure" and not as expenditure on a programme like "Medical Relief" under social services. The classification indicated the nature of expenditure but not its purpose. It did not enable identification of expenditure with functions, programmes, activities and projects. It lacked management approach in accounting in 105 as much as it did not provide the facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes, activities and projects. The Government of India introduced in April, 1974 a revised accounting structure, which attempts to serve the purposes of management as well as the requirement of financial control and accountability. Under this scheme, a five-tier classification has been adopted i.e. sectoral, major head, minor head, subhead, and detailed heads of account. Sectoral classification has grouped the functions of government into three sectors, namely, General Services, Social and Community services and Economic services. In the new scheme of accounts, a major head is assigned to each function and minor head is allotted to each programme. Under each minor head, there would be subheads assigned to activities/schemes /organisations or Budget Classification In India, the classification of accounts was structured so as to correspond to the organisation in which the transaction occurred and within the organisation to the inputs on which expenditure was incurred. For instance, construction of a hospital would be classified and displayed in accounts as “public „works expenditure" and not as expenditure on a programme like “Medical Relief” under social services. The classification indicated the nature of expenditure but not its purpose. It did not enable identification of expenditure with functions, programmes, activities and projects. It lacked management approach in accounting in as much as it did not give the facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes, activities and projects. The Government of India introduced in April, 1974 a revised accounting structure, which attempts to serve the purposes of management as well as the requirement of financial control and accountability. Under this scheme, a five-tier classification has been adopted i.e. sectoral, major head, minor head, subhead, and detailed heads of account. Sectoral classification has grouped the functions of government into three sectors, namely. General Services, Social and Community services and Economic services. In the new scheme of accounts, a major head is assigned to each function and minor head is allotted to each programme. Undereach minor head, there would be subheads assigned to activities/schemes /organisations

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

212/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 161 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 161 WORDS

the programme. Under the new system, the object classification has been retained and placed at the last tier. It is meant to provide item-wise control over expenditure and ensure financial control and accountability. Functional classification established adequate links between budget and account heads and the plan heads of development. This has facilitated obtaining information of progressive expenditure on plan programmes and projects. The principle adopted in the new accounting classification is that all expenditures on a function, programme or activity should be recorded under the appropriate major, minor or subhead. Functional classification has provided the necessary facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes and activities to aid the management function. b. Economic Classification: Economic classification refers to the resources allocated by government to various economic activities. It involves arranging the public expenditures and receipts by significant economic categories, distinguishing current expenditure from capital outlays, spending for goods and services from transfers to individuals and institutions, tax receipts	the programme. Under the new system, the object classification has been retained and placed at the last tier. It is meant to give item-wise control over expenditure and ensure financial control and accountability. Functional classification adequate links flanked by budget and account heads and the plan heads of development. This has facilitated obtaining information of progressive expenditure on plan programmes and projects. The principle adopted in the new accounting classification is that all expenditures on a function, programme or activity should be recorded under the appropriate major, minor or subhead. Functional classification has provided the necessary facility for monitoring and analysis of expenditure on functions, programmes and activities to aid the management function. Economic Classification Economic classification refers to the possessions allocated through government to several economic activities. It involves arranging the public expenditures and receipts through important economic categories, distinguishing current expenditure from capital outlays, spending for goods and services from transfers to individuals and institutions, tax receipts

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

Ouriginal by Turnitin

213/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 328 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 328 WORDS

from other receipts and from borrowing and inter-governmental loans, grants etc. This classification brings out such important aggregates as public expenditure of the consumption kind, public investment and the draft of public authorities on public savings for financing the development oulays in the public sector. In short, this classification analyses the total governmental transactions and records government's influence on each sector of the economy. c. Cross Classification: Cross classification provides the breakup of government expenditure not only-by economic categories but also by functional heads. For instance, expenditure on medical facilities (a functional head) is split between economic 106 categories such as current expenditure, capital expenditure, and various types of transfers and loans. Conversely, cross classification shows how expenditure on a particular economic category, say capital formation, is divided according to different public activities like education, labour welfare, family planning etc. Under a scheme of cross classification, functional classification of expenditure can be analysed according to its economic character and economic classification of expenditure can be analysed according to the functions performed by it. The two types of classification therefore supplement each other and give a clear picture of the total transactions of government. d. Accounting Classification: Accounting classification of government expenditure can be analysed under (i) Revenue and Capital (ii) Developmental and Non Developmental and (iii) Plan and Non-Plan. Each classification of expenditure serves one objective or other of the government. For instance, Revenue and Capital expenditure classification indicates how much government expenditure results in creation of assets in the economy and how much expenditure is unproductive. Again, developmental and non- developmental classification indicates how much government expenditure is spent on social and community services and economic services as against general services. Similarly, the Plan and Non-Plan expenditure classification helps the Planning Commission and Finance Commission in determining the pattern of central assistance on plan schemes to state governments, and union territories. Thus, each classification of government expenditure serves one objective or other in government.

from other receipts and from borrowing and inter-governmental loans, grants etc. This classification brings out such significant aggregates as public expenditure of the consumption type, public investment and the draft of public authorities on public savings for financing the development oulays in the public sector. In short, this classification analyses the total governmental transactions and records government"s influence on each sector of the economy. Cross Classification or Economic-cum-Functional Classification Cross classification gives the break-up of government expenditure not only through economic categories but also through functional heads. For instance, expenditure on medical facilities (a functional head) is split flanked by categories such as current expenditure, capital expenditure and several kinds of transfers and loans. Conversely, cross classification shows how expenditure on a scrupulous economic category, say capital formation, is divided according to dissimilar public activities like education, labour welfare, family planning etc. Under a scheme of cross classification, functional classification of expenditure can be analyzed according to its economic character and economic classification of expenditure can be analyzed according to the functions performed through it. The two kinds of classification so supplement each other and provide a clear picture of the total transactions of government. Accounting Classification Accounting classification of government expenditure can be analyzed under (i) Revenue and Capital (ii) Developmental and Non- Developmental and (iii) Plan and Non-Plan. Each classification of expenditure serves one objective or other of the government. For instance, Revenue and Capital expenditure classification designates how much government expenditure results in creation of assets in the economy and how much expenditure is unproductive. Again, developmental and non-developmental classification designates how much government expenditure is spent on social and community services and economic services as against general services. Likewise, the Plan and Non-Plan expenditure classification helps the Planning Commission and Finance Commission in determining the pattern of central assistance on plan schemes to state governments, and union territories. Therefore, each classification of government expenditure serves one objective or other in government.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

214/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Institutions in Budgetary process: The budgetary process in India is indeed a difficult exercise. It involves a variety of institutions at various levels.

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

215/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

in the budgetary process. Under Article 112 of the Constitution, the President shall cause to be laid before both the Houses of Parliament the 'annual financial statement', which is the main budget document.

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

216/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 77 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 77 WORDS

core unit of the Executive, entrusted with the task of managing the operational dynamics of the budget. The Ministry of Finance (MOF) is the nodal agency of the budgetary process. 107 Right from estimating the final figures of the revenues and expenditure of the government for presentation before the Parliament, the Ministry is vested with the task of ultimately ensuring that the finances of the country are managed with proper care. c) Audit Department:

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

217/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

the provisions of Article 148 of the Constitution of India, the office of Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG) conducts an audit on behalf of the Parliament to investigate and report on the trustworthiness, legality and efficiency of all the financial transactions carried out by government departments.

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

218/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Railway Budget pertaining to Railway Finance and the General Budget which gave an overall picture of the financial position of the Government of India, excluding the Railway Budget, pertaining to Railway finance and the General Budget giving an overall picture of the financial position of the Government of India, excluding Railways. The

W http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25657/1/Unit-11.pdf

219/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 80% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Parliamentary Committees: Finally, the Parliamentary Committees on Estimates, Public Accounts and Public Undertaking and around 24 departmental Standing Committees

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

220/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

role in the budgetary processes of the country. Important roles are assigned to these committees to exercise control over the finances of the government or its public undertakings and they are empowered to perform these tasks by parliament.

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

221/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

The Budget is presented to Lok Sabha on such day as the President may direct.

the Union Budget is to be presented in the Lok Sabha on such a day as the President may direct

W https://iaraedu.com/pdf/ijair-volume-v-issue-i-january-march.pdf

222/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

each year on the first working day of February, it is presented by the

each year on the last working day of February. ?It is presented by the

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

223/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

the formation of the budget estimates follows the cycle of the financial year, from 1st April to 31st March

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

224/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	33 WORDS	82%	MATCHING TEXT	33 WORDS

in the following format: 1. Actual figures of the previous three financial years; 2. The sanctioned budget estimates for the current financial year; 3. Revised estimates of the current year; 4. Proposed estimates for the next financial year, with explanatory notes for any increase or decrease in estimates; and 5. Actuals of the current year available at the time of preparation of the estimates and actuals for the corresponding period of the previous year available (at the time of preparation of the estimates) ? Actual for the corresponding period of the previous

SA 5.docx (D40607909)

225/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	28 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	28 WORDS

SA 5.docx (D40607909)

226/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	84%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

W https://www.ijbmi.org/papers/Vol(5)6/M05060950107.pdf

227/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 104 WORDS 95% MATCHING TEXT 104 WORDS

The Annual Financial Statement or the main budget document is prepared by the Ministry of Finance shows the receipts and payments of the government under three parts in which government accounts are kept: (i) Consolidated Fund- All revenues received by government, loans raised by it, and also its receipts from recoveries of loans granted by it, form the Consolidated Fund. All expenditure of government is incurred from the Consolidated Fund and no amount can be withdrawn from the Fund without authorisation from Parliament. Occasions may arise when government may have to meet urgent unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation from Parliament.) (ii) Contingency Fund-

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

228/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 86 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 86 WORDS

The Contingency Fund is an imprest placed at the disposal of the President to incur such expenditure. Parliamentary approval for such expenditure and for withdrawal of an equivalent amount from the Consolidated Fund is subsequently obtained and the amount spent from Contingency Fund is subsequently recouped to the Fund. The corpus of the Fund authorised by the Parliament, at present, is Rs. 500 crore. Besides, these two funds under which government accounts are kept, there is Public Account in which moneys are received and disbursed.) (

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

229/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 121 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 121 WORDS

In respect of Public Account, government acts more as a banker, for transactions such as those relating to provident funds, small savings collections and other deposits. Parliamentary authorisation for such payments from the Public Account is, therefore, not required.) x In a few cases, a part of the revenue of government is set apart in separate funds for expenditure on specific activities like road development, primary education, public health, etc. These amounts are withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund with the approval of Parliament and kept in the Public Account for expenditure on the specific items. The Budget has to distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure. Government Budget, therefore, comprises (i) Revenue budget, and (ii) Capital budget.

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

230/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

In India each year, the budget follows a cycle that includes: preparation,

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

231/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 101 WORDS 81% MATCHING TEXT 101 WORDS

cumbersome procedures involved in the formation of the budget, the budgetary process in India informally begins around the month of September- 109 October of the preceding year. Initiating the process, the Ministry of Finance issues a circular to various ministries and departments inviting their estimates for the coming year. • Secondly, On the basis of these circulars, various administrative agencies prepare their estimates, which are examined and scrutinised by Departmental Heads and then passed on to officers of the Finance Department/Ministry of Finance in November-December. • Thirdly, by the 3rd week of January, the Ministry of Finance

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

232/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

consolidated statement of revenues and expenditures, known as the 'Annual Financial Statement', •

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

233/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 48 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 48 WORDS

presented to the Parliament generally on the last working day of February. • First, there is a general discussion on the broad economic and fiscal policies of the government as reflected in the budget and the Finance Minister's speech. This lasts about 20-25 hours. • presented to the Parliament on the last working day of February. In the first stage, there is a general discussion on the broad economic and fiscal policies of the government as reflected in the budget and the Finance Minister's speech. This lasts about 20-25 hours.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

234/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

the second stage, there is a detailed discussion on the 'demands for grants', usually in respect of specific ministries or departments.

the second stage, there is a detailed discussion on the demands for grants, usually in respect of specific ministries or departments.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

235/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 84 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 84 WORDS

Demands for grants, are the executive's requisitions for sanction to spend, and only the lower house can have a say in the matter. While the legislature can object to a demand for grant, reject it or reduce it, it cannot increase the same. It may also be mentioned here that since no demand for a grant can be made except on the recommendations of the President or the Governor (in the case of State), private members cannot propose any fresh items of expenditure.

Demands for grants, are the executive"s requisitions for sanction to spend, and only the lower house can have a say in the matter. While the legislature can object to a demand for grant, reject it or reduce it, it cannot augment the same. It may also be mentioned here that since no demand for a grant can be made except on the of the President or Governor (in the case of State); private members cannot propose any fresh items of expenditure.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

236/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

Though the budget is presented before both Houses of Parliament, the demands for grants are submitted only to the lower house

Though the budget is presented before both Houses of Parliament, the demands for grants are submitted only to the lower house.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

237/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 78 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 78 WORDS

each demand for grant is voted separately. At this stage members of parliament may move motions of various kinds. Generally these are- 110 Policy cuts motions: seeks to reduce the demand to rupee one and is indicative of the disapproval of general or specific policy underlying the service to which the demand pertains. Economy cuts motion: where the motion is to reduce the proposed expenditure by a specified amount. Token

Each demand for grant is voted separately. At this stage members of parliament may move motions of several types. Usually these are policy economy cuts, token cuts. The policy motion seeks to reduce the demand to rupee one and is indicative of the disapproval of general or specific policy underlying the service to which the demand pertains. The motion economy cut is to reduce the proposed expenditure through a specified amount. A token

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

238/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

the Union Budget of India (including the Rail Budget) is presented

SA Unit-5 (05-03-2019).doc (D48925487)

239/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 74 WORDS 97% MATCHING TEXT 74 WORDS

in a demand is moved to reduce it by a nominal amount say Rs. 100 and may be used as an occasion to ventilate a specific grievance. Since it is never possible to accommodate a detailed discussion on each demand for grant separately, the demands that cannot be so discussed are clubbed together and put to the vote of the Parliament at the end of the period allotted for discussion.
•

in a demand is moved to reduce it through a nominal amount say Rs. 100 and may be used as an occasion to ventilate a specific grievance. Since it is never possible to accommodate a detailed discussion on each demand for grant separately, the demands that cannot be so discussed are clubbed together and put to the vote of the Parliament at the end of the period allotted for discussion.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

240/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 199 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 199 WORDS

even after the demands for grants have been voted by the Parliament, the executive cannot draw the money and spend it. According to the Constitutional provisions, after the demands for grants are voted by the Lok Sabha, Parliament's approval to the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of the amount is sought through the Appropriation Bill. The Appropriation Bill after it receives the assent of the President becomes the Appropriation Act. Thus, without the enactment of an Appropriation Act, no amount can be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund. Since the financial year of the government is from 1st April to 31st March, it follows that no expenditure can be incurred by the government after 31st March unless the Appropriation Act has been passed by the close of the financial year. This is generally not possible as the process of discussion of the budget usually goes on up to the end of April or the first week of May. Thus, in order to enable the government to carry on its normal activities from 1st April till such time as the Appropriation Bill is enacted, a Vote on Account is obtained from Parliament through an Appropriation (Vote on Account) Bill.

Even after the demands for grants have been voted through the Parliament, the executive cannot draw the money and spend it. According to the Constitutional provisions, after the demands for grants are voted through the Lok Sabha, Parliament"s approval to the withdrawal from the Consolidated Fund of the amount so voted and of amount required to meet the expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund is sought through the Appropriation Bill. The Appropriation Bill after it receives the assent of the President becomes the Appropriation Act. Therefore, without the enactment of an Appropriation Act, no amount can be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund. Since the financial year of the government is from 1st April to 31st March, it follows that no expenditure can be incurred through the government after 31st March unless the Appropriation Act has been passed through the secure of the financial year. This is usually not possible as the procedure of discussion of the budget usually goes on up to the end of April or the first week of May. Therefore, in order to enable the government to carry on its normal activities from 1st April till such time as the Appropriation Bill is enacted, a Vote on Account is obtained from Parliament through an Appropriation (Vote on Account) Bill.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

241/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

The execution of the budget is the responsibility of the executive government.

The execution of the budget is the responsibility of the executive Government,

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

242/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 228 WORDS 93% MATCHING TEXT 228 WORDS

The Department of Revenue in the Ministry of Finance is in overall control and supervision over the machinery charged with the collection of direct and indirect taxes. Such control is exercised through the Central Board of Direct Taxes and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes. These Boards exercise supervision and control over the various operational levels which implement different taxation laws. The Reserve Bank of India is the central banker of the government. The nationalized banks and the network of treasuries are also performing the service of collection (receipts) and disbursement of funds. d. Auditing: The executive spends public funds as authorized by the legislature. In order to ensure accountability of the executive to the legislature, public expenditure has to be audited by an independent agency. The Constitution provides for the position of the Comptroller and Auditor General of India to perform this function. It is his/ her duty to ensure that the funds allocated to various agencies of the government have been made available in accordance with law; that the expenditure incurred has the sanction of the competent authority; that rules, orders & procedures governing such expenditure have been duly observed; that value for money spent has been obtained and that records of all such transactions are maintained, compiled and submitted to the competent authority. This is the last stage in completing the budgetary cycle.

The Department of Revenue in the Ministry of Finance is in overall control and supervision over the machinery charged with the collection of direct and indirect taxes. Such control is exercised through the Central Board of Direct Taxes and the Central Board of Indirect Taxes. These Boards exercise supervision and control over the several operational stages which implement dissimilar taxation laws. The Reserve Bank of India is the central banker of the government. The nationalized banks and the network of treasuries are also performing the service of collection (receipts) and disbursement of funds. Audit The executive spends public funds as authorized through the legislature. In order to ensure accountability of the executive to the legislature, public expenditure has to be audited through an independent agency. The Constitution for the position of the Comptroller and Auditor General of India to perform this function. It is his/her duty to ensure that the funds allocated to several agencies of the government have been made accessible in accordance with law; that the expenditure incurred has the sanction of the competent authority; that rules, orders & procedures governing such expenditure have been duly observed; that value for money spent has been obtained and that records of all such transactions are maintained, compiled and submitted to the competent authority. This is the last stage in completing the budgetary cycle.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

243/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

allocates funding based on program efficiency and necessity rather than budget history,

SA NS Final Public finance(1).doc (D154339682)

244/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

Control : The establishment of budgets relating to the responsibilities of executives to the requirement of a policy and the continuous comparison of actual with budgeted results control as the establishment of departmental budgets relating to the responsibilities of executives, to the necessities of a policy and the continuous comparison of actual with budgeted results.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

245/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

action the objectives of that policy or to provide a basis for its revision.

action, the objectives of the policy or to give a basis for its revision.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

246/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

Budget began to develop in the late middle ages when the revenue was collected from the domain of the budget began to develop in the late middle ages when the revenue was to be composed from the king"s domain. Hence the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

247/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 53% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

the budget became the statement of revenue and expenditure. During war or other exigencies, when the King or ruler required a lot of money for running the affairs in the the budget was a statement of revenue and expenditure. Throughout the wars and other emergencies when the King required a lot of money for running the affairs of the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

248/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

the state, he had to consult the nobility to know their views on the

the state, he had to consult the nobility to know their views on the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

249/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

the control over 125 expenditure had still not acquired the conventions of legislative approval. Historically the system of legislative control over Public Finance first arose in England and it was more a growth than a creation. The first step that was taken in this direction

The control over expenditure had still not acquired the conventions of legislative approval. • The system of legislative control over Public finance first arose in England and it was more a growth than a creation. The first step that was taken in this direction

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

250/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 32 WORDS 75% MATCHING TEXT 32 WORDS

Budget : A comprehensive and coordinated plan, expressed in financial terms, for the operations and resources of an enterprise for some specific period in the future. • Budgeting : The

SA Budgetary policy of the union government since the fifth five year plan.pdf (D34932924)

251/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 11 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 11 WORDS

expenditure as well. But this did not come about suddenly.

expenditure as well. But this did not come about suddenly

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

252/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 49 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 49 WORDS

the audit system under the Exchequer and Audit Department Act 1866, and the constitution of a Standing Committee of Public Accounts in the House of Commons in 1866 were significant historical development in the arena of Legislative Control. Through this path finally, the modern system of Audit and the audit system under the Exchequer and Audit Department Act of 1866, and the constitution of a Standing Committee of Public Accounts in the House of Commons in 1866 were important historical growths in the arena of Legislative Control. Therefore was built up the modern system of Audit and

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

253/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 47% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

The demand for a grant must come from the government. Neither Lok Sabha nor a state assembly may vote on a grant except on a demand for grant government. ➢ The proposal of imposing a new tax or for

The demand for grants necessity come from the Government. Neither the Lok Sabha nor a State Assembly may vote a grant except on a demand for grant from the Government. Likewise, the proposal for a new tax or for

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

254/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

The president shall, in respect of every financial year, cause to be laid before both Houses of Parliament the Annual Financial Statement embodying the estimated revenues and expenditure for the

the President shall in respect of every financial year cause to be laid before both the Houses of the Parliament statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

255/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	30 WORDS	72%	MATCHING TEXT	30 WORDS

at the time of the presentation of the annual budget or the annual financial statement, showing the estimated receipts and proposed expenditure of the Government, for the financial year.

at the time of policy making subsequently by the implementation of the Budget or the Annual Financial Statement showing the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Government for the ensuing year

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

256/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	21 WORDS	65%	MATCHING TEXT	21 WORDS

voted by the legislature have been utilized for the purposes for which and in the manner in which the legislature voted by the Parliament/Legislature have been utilised for the purpose and in the manner in which the Parliament/Legislature

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

257/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	64 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	64 WORDS

As per Article 107 (i) subject to the provision of Articles 109 and 117 concerning Money Bills and other financial bills, a bill may originate in either House of Parliament and subject to the provision of Articles 108 and 109 a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the House of Parliament unless it has been agreed to by both

As per Article 107 (i) subject to the provisions of Articles 109 and 117 with respect to Money Bills and other financial bills, a bill may originate in either House of Parliament and subject to the provisions of Articles 108 and 109 a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed through the House of Parliament unless it has been agreed to through both

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

258/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	17 WORDS	71%	MATCHING TEXT	17 WORDS

Houses either without amendment or with such amendments only such amendment are agreed to by both

Houses, either without amendment or with such amendments only as are agreed to through both

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

259/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 184 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 184 WORDS

As per Article 109(2), after a Money Bill has been passed by the House of the People, it shall be transmitted to the Upper House for its recommendations and the Upper House shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the House of the People with its recommendations. ➢ The House of the People may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Upper House. ➢ As per 109(3), if the House of People accepts any of the recommendations made by the Upper House, the Money Bill shall be 129 deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Upper House and accepted by the House of people. ➢ Article 112(1) provides that the President shall in respect of every financial year cause to laid before both the Houses of the parliament, a statement of the estimated receipt and expenditure of the government of India for the year. Such a statement is called an "Annual Financial Statement".

As per Article 109 (2), after a Money Bill has been passed through the House of the People it shall be transmitted to the Council of States for its recommendations and the Council of States shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of its receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the House of the People with its recommenda- tions and the House of the people may there upon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendation of the of States. As per Article 109 (3), if the House of the People accepts any of the recommendations of the Council of States, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed through both the Houses with the amendments recommended through the Council of State and accepted through the House of the People. Article 112(1) gives that the President shall in respect of every financial year cause to be laid before both the Houses of the Parliament statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the Government of India for the year. Such a statement is described "Annual Financial Statement".

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

260/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 52% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

the expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the Government shall not be submitted to the vote of Parliament.

The expenditure that is charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India is not subject to the vote of the Parliament

W https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027002 ...

261/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 46 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 46 WORDS

that as soon as the grants under Article 113 have been made by the House of People, there shall be introduced a Bill to provide for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of India of all money required to meet. Thus: ➢ The that as soon as the grants under Article 113 have been made through the House of the People, there shall be introduced a Bill to give for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of India of all moneys required to meet: o the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

262/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current services of any financial year. • 1.06

an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current service of any financial year,

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

263/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 87% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

the country. For this purpose, a finance bill is placed before the

the people. For this purpose a Finance Bill is placed before the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

264/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

Money Bill deals exclusively with taxation, borrowing or expenditure. Whereas Finance Bill has broader coverage in that it deals with other matters as well ➢ A Money Bill

Money Bill deals exclusively with taxation, borrowing or expenditure. Whereas Finance Bill has a broader coverage in that it deals with other matters as well. A Money Bill

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

265/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 70 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 70 WORDS

the Speaker of the Lok Sabha. 130 ➢ A Money Bill must be returned by the Upper House to the Lok Sabha within 14 days of its receipt with its recommendations, if any, which the Lok Sabha is not bound to accept ➢ Disagreement over a Finance Bill, however, is resolved at a joint sitting by a majority of the total members present and voting

the Speaker of the Lok Sabha A Money Bill necessity be returned through the Rajya Sabha to the Lok Sabha within 14 days of its receipt with its recommendations, if any, which the Lok Sabha is not bound to accept. Disagreement over a Finance Bill though, is resolved at a joint sitting through a majority of the total number of members present and voting.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

266/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 66 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 66 WORDS

This practice is quite in consonance with the well-known principles of democracy that, "no tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law as embodied in Article 265 of our Constitution. So while the passage of the Appropriation Bill authorises the Government to appropriate money from the Consolidated Fund, the passes of the Finance Bill authorises it to collect taxes". The

This practice is quite in consonance with the well recognized principle of democracy that "no tax shall be levied or composed except through authority of law", as embodied in Article 265 of our Constitution. So while the passage of the Appropriation Bill authorizes the Government to appropriate money from the Consolidated Fund, the passage of the Finance Bill authorizes it to collect taxes. The

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

267/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

has been given an independent status by the Constitution. Since parliament is too unwieldy body for a serious technical discussion on the

has been given an independent status through the Constitution. Since the Parliament is too unwieldy a body for a serious technical discussion on the

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

268/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 50% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

the committee also select some departments each year, examine their working in great deal and makes suggestion on organization, economy, including policy matters.

The Committee selects some departments each year, examines their working in great detail and creates the suggestions on organisations, economy etc. including policy matters.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

269/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

The Parliament exercise direct control over Public expenditure by examining the reports of the committee on Public Accounts and Estimate Committee. • 1.08

The Parliament exercises direct control over Public expenditure through examining the reports of the committee on Public Accounts and Estimates Committee.

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

270/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration,

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

271/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 90% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

Learning Objectives After reading this unit, you should be able • To understand the composition and

LEARNING OBJECTIVES After reading this unit, you should be able to: Understand the origin and

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

272/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 71% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

financial committees, e.g.—Public Accounts Committee, Estimates Committee and Committee on Public Undertaking.

financial committees, viz., the Public Accounts Committee, the Estimates Committee, and the Committee on Public Undertakings.

W http://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/25657/1/Unit-11.pdf

273/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 65% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

accounts showing the appropriation of sums granted by the Parliament for expenditure of Government of India accounts showing the appropriation of the sums granted by Parliament to meet the expenditure of the Government of India,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

274/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

Basu Rumki: Public Administration. Concepts and Theories; Sterling Publishers Pvt. Ltd. 2022 135

SA THE BUDGET PREPARATION OF INDIA.pdf (D75607893)

275/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 35 WORDS 98% MATCHING TEXT 35 WORDS

consists of 15 members elected by Lok Sabha every year from amongst its members according to the principle of proportional representation by means of single transferable vote. Seven members of Rajya Sabha elected by consists fifteen members elected by Lok Sabha every year from amongst its members according to the principle of proportional representation by means of single transferable vote. Seven members of Rajya Sabha elected by

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

276/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 66% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

government's tax administration like the cases involving under-assessments, tax evasion, non-levy of duties,

Government's tax administration. The Committee, thus, examine cases involving under-asse.ssments, tax-evasion, non-levy of duties,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

277/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 17 WORDS 83% MATCHING TEXT 17 WORDS

loopholes in the taxation laws and procedures and makes recommendations to check leakage of revenue. 3.3.3

loopholes in the taxation laws and procedures and make recommendations in order to check leakage of revenue.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

278/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

A minister cannot be elected as a member of the committee.

A Minister cannot be elected as a member of the Committee

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

279/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 18 WORDS 58% MATCHING TEXT 18 WORDS

for the coming financial year should be held before the end of the current financial year. The

for the current year, which have to be obtained before the end of the current financial year. The

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

280/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

estimates that may seem appropriate to the Committee or that have been formally referred to it by the House or the Speaker. The function of the committee estimates as may seem fit to the Committee or are referred to it by the House or the Speaker. The functions of the Committee

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

281/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 22 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 22 WORDS

To report what economies, improvements in organisation, efficiency and administrative reform consistent with the policy underlying the estimates, can be affected

to: Report what economies, improvements in organisation, efficiency and administrative reforms, constant with the policy underlying the estimates, may be affected;

W http://www.eiilmuniversity.co.in/downloads/Financial-Administration.pdf

282/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 96% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS of the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the Lok Sabha, the

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

283/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

of proportional representation by means of a single transferable vote •

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

284/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 69 WORDS 74% MATCHING TEXT 69 WORDS

To suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration • To examine whether the money is well laid out within the limits of the policy implied in the • estimates • To suggest the form in which the estimates are to be presented to Parliament • When it comes to public undertakings that are assigned to the Committee on Public Undertakings, the

to suggest alternative policies in order to bring about efficiency and economy in administration; (c) examine whether the money is well laid out within the limits of the policy implied in the estimates; and (d) to suggest the form in which the estimates shall be presented to Parliament. The Committee does not exercise functions in relation to such Public Undertakings as are allotted to the Committee on Public Undertakings by the

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

285/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 76 WORDS 62% MATCHING TEXT 76 WORDS

pertaining to a Ministry/Department of the Central Government or such of the statutory and other bodies of the Central Government as may seem appropriate to the Committee. • The Committee further examines items of particular importance that may emerge or be discovered during its work, matters referred by the House or the Speaker. • The Committee calls for preliminary materials from the Ministry/Department, statutory and other Government bodies with reference to the topics selected for pertaining to a Ministry/Department of the Central Government or such of the statutory and other bodies of the Centra) Government as may seem fit to the Committee. The Committee also examines matters of special interest which may arise or come to light in the course of its work or which are specifically referred to it by the House or the Speaker. The Committee calls for preliminary material from the Ministry/Department, statutory and other Government bodies in regard to the subjects selected for examination and also memoranda from non-officials involved with the subjects for the use of the Committee's members. • The Committee from time to time appoints one or more study groups examination and also memoranda from non-officials connected with the subjects for the use of the Members of the Committee. The Committee, from time to time, appoints one or more Sub-Committees/ Study Groups

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

286/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 77% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

287/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	29 WORDS	66%	MATCHING TEXT	29 WORDS

approval, the Committee may decide to make visits to study any specific matter, project, or establishment, either as a whole Committee or by dividing itself into Study Groups, approval of the Speaker decide to undertake tours to make a study of any particular matter, project or establishment, either as a whole Committee or by dividing itself into Study Groups.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

288/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	26 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	26 WORDS

if it appears to the Committee that it is necessary for the purpose of its examination that an on-the-spot study should be made. • The

If it appears to the Committee that it is necessary for the purpose of its examination that an on-the-spot study should be made, the

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

289/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	14 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	14 WORDS

to the members of the Committee/Sub Committee/Study Group. 141 •

to the Members of the Committee/Sub-Committee/Study Group.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

290/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	58%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

parties. • Official and nonofficial witnesses are later invited to testify at formal meetings of the Committee held parties non-official and official witnesses are invited to give evidence at formal sittings of the Committee held

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

291/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	82%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

informal discussions during Study Visits, memoranda received from non-officials, information gathered from the Ministry/Department concerned, and other sources. •

informal discussions during Study Tours, memoranda received from non-officials and information collected from the Ministry/ Department concerned and other sources,

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

292/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	30 WORDS	98%	MATCHING TEXT	30 WORDS

is a committee of selected members of Parliament, constituted by the Parliament of India, for the purpose of auditing the revenue and the expenditure of government of India. •

is a committee of selected members of parliament, constituted by the Parliament of India, for the purpose of auditing the revenue and the expenditure of the Government of India. ?

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

293/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	20 WORDS	68%	MATCHING TEXT	20 WORDS

Committee is a committee of selected members of Parliament, constituted by Lok Sabha for the purpose of scrutinising the Committee : It is a committee of selected members of parliament, constituted by the Parliament of India, for the purpose of auditing the

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

294/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	19 WORDS	78%	MATCHING TEXT	19 WORDS

the composition and functions of Public Accounts Committee. 2. Discuss the composition and functions of Estimates Committee. 3.

the composition, power and functions of Public Accounts Committee ?Discuss the process of election and functions of the Estimates Committee

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

295/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	23 WORDS	52%	MATCHING TEXT	23 WORDS

to: i. Examine the reports and accounts of the public undertakings. ii. Scrutinise reports of the CAG on the public undertakings.

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

296/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	15 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	15 WORDS

Goel, S. L. (2008) – Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publication, New Delhi,

Goel, S L: Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publications, New Delhi, 2002 107.

W https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027002 ...

297/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Jena, P. R. (2010) – India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability, New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public finance and Policy 5.

Jena, P.R. (2010). India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability. New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public Finance and Policy.

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/82418/1/Unit-4.pdf

298/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 73% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

Objectives 144 After reading this unit, you should be able
• To know about the importance of

SA Unit 10 formatted.doc (D135147553)

299/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 91% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

the finance ministry which controls the expenditure and audit which sits in judgment over the way in which the funds have been spent.

The Finance Ministry which controls the expenditure; and (4) The Audit which sits in judgement over the way in which the funds have been spent.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

300/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 28 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 28 WORDS

to audit all receipts and expenditure of the government of India and the state governments including those of autonomous bodies and corporations substantially financed by the government.

to audit all receipts and expenditure of the Government of India and the State Governments, including those of autonomous bodies and corporations substantially financed by the Government. 10.7

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

301/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 282 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 282 WORDS

Accounting Accounting means keeping a systematic record of financial transactions whether of a public authority or private concern or individual. According to L.D. White, "The primary functions of system of accounts are to make a financial record, to protect those handling funds, to improve the financial condition of the organisation in all its branches or purposes at any time, to facilitate necessary adjustment in rate of expenditure, to give information to those in responsible positions on the basis of which plans for future financial and operating programmes can rest, and to aid in the making of an audit." Accounting is an indispensable means of exercising financial control. It is only through systematic accounts supported by vouchers and receipts that the legality and honesty of the transactions can be determined. Accounts are important by way of record of what was received and paid. Such record is essential to prevent the neglect of demands of dues and double payments, through forgetfulness. Accounts furnish valuable data for the formulation of financial as well as general policy and programmes. Through accounts the authorities can know whether a particular activity or programme of the Government is self-supporting or involves a burden on the public exchequer, and if the latter, whether it should be continued or expanded or not. Scientific budget preparation would be impossible without the help of accounts. The Form of Governmental Accounts: The form of Governmental accounts differs from the business and commercial accounts, because the objects of the two are different. Business and Commercial accounts are so kept as to facilitate the preparation of the balance sheet showing profit or loss, and 145 assets and liabilities. Government

ACCOUNTING Accounting means keeping a systematic record of financial transactions whether of a public authority or private concern or individual. According to L.D. White, "The primary functions of system of accounts are to make a financial record, to protect those handling funds, to improve the financial condition of the organisation in all its branches or purposes at any time, to facilitate necessary adjustment in rate of expenditure, to give information to those in responsible positions on the basis of which plans for future financial and operating programmes can rest, and to aid in the making of an audit." Accounting is an indispensable means of exercising financial control. It is only through systematic accounts supported by vouchers and receipts that the legality and honesty of the transactions can be determined. Accounts are important by way of record of what was received and paid. Such record is essential to prevent the neglect of demands of dues and double payments, through forgetfulness. Accounts furnish valuable data for the formulation of financial as well as general policy and programmes. Through accounts the authorities can know whether a particular activity or programme of the Government is self-supporting or involves a burden on the public exchequer, and if the latter, 19 whether it should be continued or expanded or not. Scientific budget preparation would be impossible without the help of accounts. The Form of Governmental Accounts The form of Governmental accounts differs from the business and commercial accounts, because the objects of the two are different. Business and Commercial accounts are so kept as to facilitate the preparation of the balance sheet showing profit or loss, and assets and liabilities. Government

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

not for profit but for service to the people. So the object of Government accounting is to furnish data to show whether the provisions of the budget as voted by the legislature have been observed or not. The Government accounts, therefore, follow the budgetary form. In India, the form of the accounts of the Union as well as of the States is prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, with the approval of the President. In practice, the budget form corresponds to the form of accounts as prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor General. The main forms of Government accounts are as follows: (i) Control Accounts: The main objective is to ensure fidelity on the part of officers having the duties of collection, custody, disbursement and the ensuring of rigid adherence to all directions and limitations to levy and collect income and make expenditure. With this end in view, every Government maintains its Revenue Accounts (accounts for each head of income), Appropriation Accounts (accounts for each major and minor head of expenditure), and Fund Accounts (accounts of different funds which Government maintains). (ii) Proprietary Accounts: The proprietary accounts are kept mainly from the point of view of the convenience of internal administration. They do not serve the purpose of the interested external parties, namely the legislature and the public. For this, supplementary accounts are maintained. These accounts are called 'Proprietary Accounts'. (iii) Supplementary Detailed Accounts: Detailed accounts, regarding the assets and liabilities1, receipts and expenditure of the Government received from different viewpoints may be maintained and published after one or two years for the information of the public. The Account-Keeping Agency in India: According to the theory of financial administration, keeping of the accounts should be a function of the executive authorities. But in India, the duty of keeping the accounts of the Union (except the Railway and the Defence Accounts) as well as the State devolves upon the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India and his staff. Under the Comptroller and Auditor-General there is in each state an Accountant-General in whose office the accounts of the transactions taking place within the territorial limits of that state are kept. Railway accounts are kept by the Financial Commissioner for Railways, and Defence accounts, by the Finance Ministry through the Financial Adviser (Defence) and the Military Accountant-General. 4.2.1 Types of Accounting System (a) Double-entry Book Keeping: Under this system every item of expenditure is entered at two places. One entry remains with the operating service while another is not for profit but for service to the people. So the object of Government accounting is to furnish data to show whether the provisions of the budget as voted by the legislature have been observed or not. The Government accounts, therefore, follow the budgetary form. In India, the form of the accounts of the Union as well as of the States is prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, with the approval of the President. In practice, the budget form corresponds to the form of accounts as prescribed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General. The main forms of Government accounts are as follows : (i) Control Accounts : The main objective is to ensure fidelity on the part of officers having the duties of collection, custody, disbursement and the ensuring of rigid adherence to all directions and limitations to levy and collect income and make expenditure. With this end in view, every Government maintains its Revenue Accounts (accounts for each head of income), Appropriation Accounts (accounts for each major and minor head of expenditure), and Fund Accounts (accounts of different funds which Government maintains). (ii) Proprietary Accounts : The proprietary accounts are kept mainly from the point of view of the convenience of internal administration. They do not serve the purpose of the interested external parties, namely the legislature and the public. For this, supplementary accounts are maintained. These accounts are called 'Proprietary Accounts'. (iii) Supplementary Detailed Accounts : Detailed accounts, regarding the assets and liabilities1, receipts and expenditure of the Government received from different view points may be maintained and published after one or two years for the information of the public. The Account-Keeping Agency in India According to the theory of financial administration,keeping of the accounts should be a function of the executive authorities. But in India, the duty of keeping the accounts of the Union (except the Railway and the Defence Accounts) as well as the State devolves upon the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India and his staff. Under the Comptroller and Auditor-General there is in each state an Accountant-General in whose office the accounts of the transactions taking place within the territorial limits of that state are kept. Railway accounts are kept by the Financial Commissioner for Railways, and Defence accounts, by the Finance Ministry through the Financial Adviser (Defence) and the Military Accountant-General. Types of Accounting Systems (a) Double-entry Book Keeping : Under this system every item of expenditure is entered at two places. One entry sent to the accounts office, if there is a separate department of the Government or to the controlling officer of the same service. The merit of this system is that if an error is to be deliberately made, it will have to be made at two places, which is a difficult task. (b) Cost Accounting: It is the determination of inclusive costs per unit. It may be applied in production, unit cost of a commodity manufactured in a Government, or even in service. This system is mostly made use in the Public Works Department. The utility of this system is that the costs may be compared in a single institution or single operation over successive periods of time and the comparative costs of similar operations in different agencies or in different jurisdictions may be determined. 146 (c) Accrual Accounting System: It is that system of accounting by which the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is established or as is technically called, accrues. Under this system, appropriate entry is made in the account books of all actions having for their result an undertaking with the right to an asset or placing it under an obligation to pay. This system is followed in France. The main advantage of this system is that it gives detailed information regarding every transaction of the Government. (d) Cash Accounting System: Under this system, the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is realised upon, or as the technical term goes, is liquidated. It seeks to record only those operations in which an actual transfer of cash has taken place. Most Governments use the cash accounting system because of its simplicity. 4.2.2 Accounting System in India There are four stages in the building up of accounts. These are as follows: (i) Initial Entry: In each district, there is a Government treasury under the charge of a Treasury Officer. The treasury is maintained at the cost of the State Governments. Every financial transaction is separately recorded in the treasure. On the 11th and 1st of each month, the Treasury Officer sends a list of payments made during these intervals, supported by vouchers, to the Accountant-General. In case of the Railways, Post and Telegraph, Public Works Department and Forest Department, receipts are paid in the treasury in lump, while detailed accounts are kept by the departmental officers. (ii) Classification of Accounts by the Accountant-General: All accounts of the previous month reach the office of the Accountant-General by the 1st of next month. The accounts are classified in order to secure uniformity in accounting and also in order to help in the preparation of budget forecasts. There are four different types of accounts in India: They are: (1) Revenue Accounts: These deal with all proceeds of taxation and other payments classed as 'revenue' and all expenditure remains with the operating service while another is sent to the accounts office, if there is a separate department of the Government or to the controlling officer of the same service. The merit of this system is that if an error is to be deliberately made, it will have to be made at two places, which is a difficult task. (b) Cost Accounting : It is the detarmination of inclusive costs per unit. It may be applied in production, unit cost of a commodity manufactured in a Government, or even in service. This system is mostly made use in the Public Works Department. The utility of this system is that the 20 costs may be compared in a single institution or single operation over successive periods of time and the comparative costs of similar operations in different agencies or in different jurisdictions may be determined. (c) Accrual Accounting System : It is that system of accounting by which the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is established or as is technically called, accrues. Under this system, appropriate entry is made in the account books of all actions having for their result an undertaking with the right to an asset or placing it under an obligation to pay. This system is followed in France. The main advantage of this system is that it gives detailed information regarding every transaction of the Government. (d) Cash Accounting System : Under this system, the right to a receipt, or the obligation to make a payment, is realised upon, or as the technical term goes, is liquidated. It seeks to record only those operations in which an actual transfer of cash has taken place. Most Governments use the cash accounting system because of its simplicity. Accounting System in India There are four stages in the building up of accounts. These are as follows : (i) Initial Entry : In each district, there is a Government treasury under the charge of a Treasury Officer. The treasury is maintained at the cost of the State Governments. Every financial transaction is separately recorded in the treasure. On the 11 th and 1 st of each month, the Treasury Officer sends a list of payments made during these intervals, supported by vouchers, to the Accountant-General. In case of the Railways, Post and Telegraph, Public Works Department and Forest Department, receipts are paid in the treasury in lump, while detailed accounts are kept by the departmental officers. (ii) Classification of Accounts by the Accountant-General ; All accounts of the previous month reach the office of the Accountant-General by the 1 st of next month. The accounts are classified in order to secure uniformity in accounting and also in order to help in the preparation of budget forecasts. There are four different types of accounts in India: They are : (1) Revenue Accounts : These deal with all proceeds of taxation and there from. (2) Capital Accounts: These deal with expenditure met from borrowed funds and accumulated cash balances. (3) Debt Accounts: These deal with the receipts and payments in which Government either becomes liable to repay the moneys received or becomes entitled to claim to recover the amount paid. (4) Remittance Accounts: Relate to all such transactions as are not covered by the previous categories. Each one of these accounts is divided into major heads. Parliament makes money grants on 'major heads' which are further divided into 'minor heads' which are sub-divided into 'subheads' which, in turn, are further divied into 'detailed heads'. Revenue heads are numbered in the Roman figures, (I, II, III, IV, etc.) and expenditure heads are numbered in the Arabic figures, (1, 2, 3, 4, etc.). (iii) Monthly compilation: Before compilation, accounts are audited by the Auditor. Then they go to the accounts officers who compile them every month and submit them to the Government by the end of the following month. (iv) Annual compilation: This is done by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. The Comptroller and Auditor-General's department prepares the final accounts of the Union and State Governments in two forms — The Appropriation Accounts and the Finance Accounts. The Appropriation Account is an account comparing the total grants, original 147 and supplementary, made by Parliament for particular purposes for a financial year with the actual expenditure incurred for these purposes during the year. The Public Accounts Committee examines this account. Subsidiary accounts such as the profit and loss accounts and balance sheet of the commercial undertakings of the Government, stores accounts, works accounts, etc., are appended to the Appropriation Account to give details of expenditure concerning these. The Finance Account is a comprehensive account of the receipts and expenditure of the Government (Union or State) classified under the various heads and sub-heads of the budget. Besides these, the Audit and Accounts department also prepares a General Financial Statement called the 'Combined Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Central and State Governments', giving a summary of the accounts of the Union and of all the State Governments for the preceeding financial year and showing their balances and outstanding liabilities. They are submitted to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, sometimes in January or February, of the following year and are then laid before the Parliament or the State Legislature, as the case may be, at the Budget Session. 4.3 Audit: Audit is the development of the 19th century and is inevitably an indispensable part of the parliamentary control of public finance. Audit means an other payments classed as 'revenue' and all expenditure therefrom. (2) Capital Accounts : These deal with expenditure met from borrowed funds and accumulated cash balances. (3) Debt Accounts : These deal with the receipts and payments in which Government either becomes liable to repay the moneys received or becomes entitled to claim to recover the amount paid. (4) Remittance Accounts : Relate to all such transactions as are not covered by the previous . categories. Each one of these accounts is divided into major heads. Parliament makes money grants on 'major heads' which are further divided into 'minor heads' which are sub-divided into 'subheads' which, in turn, are further divied into 'detailed heads'. Revenue heads are numbered in the Roman figures, (I, II, III, IV, etc.) and expenditure heads are numbered in the Arabic figures, (1, 2, 3, 4, etc.). (iii) Monthly compilation : Before compilation, accounts are audited by the Auditor. Then they go to the accounts officers who compile them every month and submit them to the Government by the end of the following month. (iv) Annual compilation : This is done by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. The Comptroller and Auditor-General's department prepares the final accounts of the Union and 21 State Governments in two forms — The Appropriation Accounts and the Finance Accounts. The Appropriation Account is an account comparing the total grants, original and supplementary, made by Parliament for particular purposes for a financial year with the actual expenditure incurred for these purposes during the year. The Public Accounts Committee examines this account. Subsidiary accounts such as the profit and loss accounts and balance sheet of the commercial undertakings of the Government, stores accounts, works accounts, etc., are appended to the Appropriation Account to give details of expenditure concerning these. The Finance Account is a comprehensive account of the receipts and expenditure of the Government (Union or State) classified under the various heads and sub-heads of the budget. Besides these, the Audit and Accounts department also prepares a General Financial Statement called the 'Combined Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Central and State Governments', giving a summary of the accounts of the Union and of all the State Governments for the preceeding financial year and showing their balances and outstanding liabilities. They are submitted to the President or the Governor, as the case may be, sometimes in January or February, of the following year and are then laid before the Parliament or the State Legislature, as the case may be, at the Budget Session. AUDIT Audit is the development of the 19 th century and is inevitably an indispensable part of the parliamentary control of public examination of accounts with a view to determine the correctness of these accounts and of the transactions they embody. According to James C. Charlesworth, "Audit means the process of ascertaining whether the administration has spent or is spending its funds in accordance with the terms of the legislative instrument which appropriated the money." A thorough-going audit should be an audit (a) against laws, rules and regulations (b) against appropriations as voted in the budget (c) against sanctions, and (d) against canons of financial propriety. Of these criteria (a) to (c) seek to judge the legality, while canons of financial propriety are intended to check improper and wasteful expenditure. 4.3.1 Audit Organization in India The audit and accounting functions in India are combined in the hands of one organisation, the Indian Audit Department, headed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India.

finance. Audit means an examination of accounts with a view to determine the correctness of these accounts and of the transactions they embody. According to James C. Charlesworth, "Audit means the process of ascertaining whether the administration has spent or is spending its funds in accordance with the terms of the legislative instrument which appropriated the money." A thorough-going audit should be an audit (a) against laws, rules and regulations (b) against appropriations as voted in the budget (c) against sanctions, and (d) against canons of financial propriety. Of these criteria (a) to (c) seek to judge the legality, while canons of financial propriety are intended to check improper and wasteful expenditure. Audit Organisation in India The audit and accounting functions in India are combined in the hands of one organisation, the Indian Audit Department, headed by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

Ouriginal by Turnitin

Independent audit emerged in 1919 with the inauguration of the Montague-Chelmsford Reforms. The Government of India Act, 1935 further improved its status by giving it constitutional recognition and by requiring its appointment to be made by His Majesty. The Department was given the same status as of judges of the Federal Court. With the enactment of Constitution in 1950, the Auditor-General of India was re- designated as the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India Historically speaking, the creation of such an office was the product of Gladstone's ingenious mind, when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British Cabinet. He got the Exchequer and Audit Act passed through the British Parliament in 1866, which led to the establishment of the office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General. In the U.S.A., the 148 office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General in its present form came into existence when the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921 was passed. Audit in India Audit of Government accounts (including the accounts of the States) in India is a Union subject and is entrusted to the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. Indian audit is governed not by law, but by an executive order — the Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order 1936 as adopted under the Indian (Provisional Constitution) Order of 1947. Audit in India is primarily concerned with expenditure. Its concern with receipts is limited to those items only which it may be required by the executive to undertake, or may undertake with its approval. At present the receipts of Railways, Posts and Telegraph and Customs are subject to audit while other receipts including those from Income-tax are not. Audit should really be an arm of the legislature to assist it in seeing that its wishes and decisions as expressed in the budget are respected. The Constitution requires that the report of the Comptroller and Auditor-General relating to accounts shall be laid before each House of Parliament but technically, the audit is conducted on behalf of the Executive and its reports are submitted to the Executive (the President in case of the Union, and the Governor in case of States) which causes them to be laid before the Legislature. Finally, Indian audit is primarily a legality audit. The Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order under which it is conducted, requires the Comptroller and Auditor-General to ascertain whether moneys shown in the accounts as having been disbursed were legally available for and applicable to the purpose to which they had been applied and whether the expenditure conforms to the authority which governs it. 4.3.2 The Audit Report Audit results in the certification of the accounts by the

Independent audit emerged in 1919 with the inauguration of the Montague-Chelmsford Reforms. The Government of India Act, 1935 further improved its status by giving it constitutional recognition and by requiring its appointment to be made by His Majesty. The Department was given the same status as of judges of the Federal Court. With the enactment of Constitution in 1950, the Auditor-General of India was re-designated as the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India (Art. 141). 22 Historically speaking, the creation of such an office was the product of Gladstone's ingenious mind, when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British Cabinet. He got the Exchequer and Audit Act passed through the British Parliament in 1866, which led to the establishment of the office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General. In the U.S.A., the office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General in its present form came into existence when the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921 was passed. Audit in India Audit of Government accounts (including the accounts of the States) in India is a Union subject and is entrusted to the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. Indian audit is governed not by law, but by an executive order — the Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order 1936 as adopted under the Indian (Provisional Constitution) Order of 1947. Audit in India is primarily concerned with expenditure. Its concern with receipts is limited to those items only which it may be required by the executive to undertake, or may undertake with its approval. At present the receipts of Railways, Posts and Telegraph and Customs are subject to audit while other receipts including those from Income-tax are not. Audit should really be an arm of the legislature to assist it in seeing that its wishes and decisions as expressed in the budget are respected. The Constitution requires that the report of the Comptroller and Auditor-General relating to accounts shall be laid before each House of Parliament but technically, the audit is conducted on behalf of the Executive and its reports are submitted to the Executive (the President in case of the Union, and the Governor in case of States) which causes them to be laid before the Legislature. Finally, Indian audit is primarily a legality audit. The Government of Indian Audit and Accounts Order under which it is conducted, requires the Comptroller and Auditor-General to ascertain whether moneys shown in the accounts as having been disbursed were legally available for and applicable to the purpose to which ■they had been applied and whether the expenditure conforms to the authority which governs it. The Audit Report Audit results in the certification of the accounts by the

Comptroller and Auditor-General as correct subject to such comments and remarks as he may choose to make, and in the preparation of an audit report for each of the Governments whose accounts are audited. This report is presented, in case of the Centre, to the President, and in case of the States, to the Governors. These heads are required, by the Constitution, to cause these reports to be laid before their several Legislatures. The Legislatures refer the reports to their Public Accounts Committees of which there is one at the Centre as well as one in each of the states, for examination of the report. The audit reports contain the comments of the audit authorities on the correctness or otherwise of the expenditure and other financial transactions. Particularly they point out the more important financial ir-regularities, the cases of budgetary grants being exceeded, failure to obtain the necessary sanction for expenditure, non- compliance with rules and regulations, cases of improper or wasteful expenditure, and of misappropriation and embezzlement. The audit reports are examined by the Public Accounts Committee and the committee reports upon it. Performance Audit: Performance audit means an appraisal of accomplishment. In India, it is called efficiency-cum performance audit. Broadly, the purpose of such audit would be to ascertain whether: (a) such undertakings are being run efficiently and their operations conducted economically. (b) They are producing the results expected of them. 4.3.3 Separation of Accounts from Audit 149 In India, the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and their audit had remained combined in the same hands until 1976. The Comptroller and Auditor-General was entrusted with both sets of functions. In Britain, on the other hand, there is separation of accounts from audit, the former function is performed by the Heads of Departments in the capacity of Accounting Officers. The audit department has no concern with the compilation of accounts which, of course, is rescrutinised by it on behalf of Parliament to which the report of its examination is submitted. Excepting the Departments of Defence and Railways where accounts were compiled by the departments themselves, these functions have been combined in India. This arrangement was unequivocally criticised by successive commissions. The Muddiman Committee (1924), the Inchcape Committee on Retrenchment (1923) as well as the Simon Commission (1929) recommended the separation of accounts from audit as a necessary financial reform. P. K. Wattal has emphasised the desirability of separating these two functions by remarking, "Accounting is essentially an executive function and must be under the control of the executive head of the department. Auditing is a quasi-

Comptroller and Auditor-General as correct subject to such comments and remarks as he may choose to make, and in the preparation of an audit report for each of the Governments whose accounts are audited. This report is presented, in case of the Centre, to the President, and in case of the States, to the Governors. These heads are required, by the Constitution, to cause these reports to be laid before their several Legislatures. The Legislatures refer the reports to their Public Accounts Committees of which there is one at the Centre as well as one in each of the states, for examination of the report. The audit reports contain the comments of the audit authorities on the correctness or otherwise of the expenditure and other financial transactions. Particularly they point out the more important financial ir-regularities, the cases of budgetary grants being exceeded, failure to obtain the necessary sanction for expenditure, non-compliance with rules and regulations, cases of 23 improper or wasteful expenditure, and of misappropriation and embezzlement. The audit reports are examined by the Public Accounts Committee and the committee reports upon it. Performance Audit Performance audit means an appraisal of accomplishment. In India, it is called efficiency-cum-performance audit. Broadly, the purpose of such audit would be to ascertain whether : (a) such undertakings are being run efficiently and their operations conducted economically. (b) they are producing the results expected of them. Separation of Accounts from Audit In the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and their audit had remained combined in the same hands until 1976. The Comptroller and Auditor-General was entrusted with both sets of functions. In Britain, on the other hand, there is separation of accounts from audit, the former function is performed by the Heads of Departments in the capacity of Accounting Officers. The audit department has no concern with the compilation of accounts which, of course, is re- scrutinised by it on behalf of Parliament to which the report of its examination is submitted. Excepting the Departments of Defence and Railways where accounts were compiled by the departments themselves, these functions have been combined in India. This arrangement was unequivocally criticised by successive commissions. The Muddiman Committee (1924), the Inchcape Committee on Retrenchment (1923) as well as the Simon Commission (1929) recommended the separation of accounts from audit as a necessary financial reform. P.K. Wattal has emphasised the desirability of separating these two functions by remarking, "Accounting is essentially an executive function and must be under the control of the executive head of the department. Auditing is a quasi-parliamentary parliamentary function, which involves a checking of the works done by the executive authorities for report to the Parliament. A combination of these two essentially distinct functions in a parliamentary officer is good neither for the executive ad-ministration nor for the Parliament. It is almost as bad as combination of executive and judicial functions. In every modern administration, accounting and auditing functions should be kept distinct and separate from each other. It is only then that the auditor's certification regarding the correctness of the accounts has any meaning. Where there is a combination of functions, there is necessarily a contradiction in as much as the officer compiling the account is also the officer who certifies its correctness." In 1976, the Central Government separated accounting from the audit, and since that year the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India has been relieved of the responsibility for compiling of the accounts of the Central Government and is concerned with the audit of accounts only. Consequent upon the separation of accounts from the audit, a Controller-General has been appointed in the Central Government to be the technical authority heading the new accounting set-up. He is in charge of the final compilation of accounts. 4.4

function, which involves a checking of the works done by the executive authorities for report to the Parliament. A combination of these two essentially distinct functions in a parliamentary officer is good neither for the executive ad-ministration nor for the Parliament. It is almost as bad as combination of executive and judicial functions. In every modern administration, accounting and auditing functions should be kept distinct and separate from each other. It is only then that the auditor's certification regarding the correctness of the accounts has any meaning. Where there is a combination of functions, there is necessarily a contradiction in as much as the officer compiling the account is also the officer who certifies its correctness." In 1976, the Central Government separated accounting from the audit, and since that year the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India has been relieved of the responsibility for compiling of the accounts of the Central Government and is concerned with the audit of accounts only. Consequent upon the separation of accounts from the audit, a Controller-General has been appointed in the Central Government to be the technical authority heading the new accounting set-up. He is in charge of the final compilation of accounts.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

304/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 61 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 61 WORDS

am of the opinion that this dignitary or officer is probably the most important officer in the Constitution of India. He is the one man who is going to see that the expenses voted by Parliament are not exceeded, or varied from what has been laid down by Parliament in the Appropriation Act." —Dr. B.R Ambedkar

SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152106823)

305/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 86% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

the Comptroller and Auditor General (Duties, Powers, and Conditions of Service) Act, 1971. The act made CAG responsible for

The Comptroller and Auditor General's (Duties, Powers and Conditions of Service) Act, 1971 6. Under the the CAG is responsible for

W https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027002 ...

306/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 122 WORDS 84% MATCHING TEXT 122 WORDS

of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India. • Article 150 says that the accounts of the Union and of the States shall be kept in such form as the President may, on the advice of the CAG, prescribe. • Article 151 says that the reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of the Union shall be submitted to the president, who shall cause them to be laid before each House of Parliament. ▪ The reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of a State shall be submitted to the Governor of the State, who shall cause them to be laid before the Legislature of the State. 151 • of the Union and of the Article 150) The accounts of the Union and of the States shall be kept in such form as the President may, on the advice of the and Auditor-of India, prescribe. Audit Reports (The reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India to the accounts of the Union shall be submitted to the president, who shall cause them to be laid before each House of Parliament. 2. The reports of the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India relating to the accounts of a State shall be submitted to the Governor of the State, who cause them to be laid before the Legislature of the State. '

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

307/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 31 WORDS 34% MATCHING TEXT 31 WORDS

and certified by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, whose certificate is final. • Third Schedule – Section IV of the Third Schedule of the Constitution of India prescribes the

and audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India. This is a very powerful constitutional authority of India. All the expenditures of the Government of India come under the

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

308/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

Judges of the Supreme Court and the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India

Judges of the Supreme Court and the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India,

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

309/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 76% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

relating to such accounts shall be submitted to the Governor who shall cause them to be laid before the relating to the accounts of a shall be submitted to the Governor of the State, who shall cause them to be laid before the

W http://162.241.27.72/siteAdmin/dde-admin/uploads/5/__UG_B.A._Public%20Administration%20(English)_ ...

310/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

The Comptroller and Auditor General's (Duties, Powers and Conditions of Service) Act, 1971 •

the Comptroller and Auditor General's (Duties, Powers and Conditions of Service) Act

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

311/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 27 WORDS 43% MATCHING TEXT 27 WORDS

Article 148 of the 1949 Indian Constitution provided for the establishment of a Comptroller and Auditor General to be appointed by the President of India. ▪

SA 04_Chapter_3.pdf (D121264304)

312/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 79 WORDS 61% MATCHING TEXT 79 WORDS

the accounts related to all expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India, Consolidated Fund of each state and UT's having a legislative assembly. He audits all expenditure from the Contingency Fund of India and the Public Account of India as well as the Contingency Fund and Public Account of each state. He audits all trading, manufacturing, profit and loss accounts, balance sheets and other subsidiary accounts kept by any department of the Central Government and the state governments.

SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152125726)

313/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

the receipts and expenditure of all bodies and authorities substantially financed from the Central or State revenues; government companies; other corporations and bodies, when so required by related laws.

SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152106823)

314/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 20 WORDS 89% MATCHING TEXT 20 WORDS

know and cannot be expected to know very much about good administration; their prestige is highest with others who know, and can't be expected to know, very much about good administration, their prestige is highest with others who

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

315/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 21 WORDS 92% MATCHING TEXT 21 WORDS

is auditing, which is not administration; it is a necessary, but a highly pedestrian function with a narrow perspective and is auditing, which is not administration; it is a necessary but highly pedestrian function with a narrow perspective and

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...

316/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 13 WORDS 88% MATCHING TEXT 13 WORDS

financial administration is a dynamic process which falls into few well-defined divisions.

Financial-administration is a dynamic process, which falls into five well defined divisions

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

317/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 12 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 12 WORDS

rendering of the accounts by the executive and the audit of

Rendering of the accounts by the executive and the audit of

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

318/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 29 WORDS 69% MATCHING TEXT 29 WORDS

the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and there audit had remained combined in the same hand. The C.A.G. was entrusted with both sets of functions. 4.6

the twin functions of maintenance of accounts and their audit had remained combined in the same hands until 1976. The Comptroller and Auditor-General was entrusted with both sets of functions.

W http://www.jeywin.com/wp-content/uploads/2010/03/Optional-Public-Administration-8-Financial-Admin ...

319/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 30 WORDS 94% MATCHING TEXT 30 WORDS

The financial administration is a part of general administration. The purpose of public administration is to observe that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes

The Financial Administration is a part of general administration. The purpose of Public Administration is to see that the money sanctioned by the legislature for development and other purposes

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

320/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	16 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	16 WORDS

properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory. • The properly spent and the performance of the financial administration is quite satisfactory. The

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

321/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	21 WORDS	100%	MATCHING TEXT	21 WORDS

financial administration cannot go beyond the general principles. The budget and the allied ideas are settled by the finance department.

financial administration cannot go beyond the general principles. The budget-and the allied ideas are settled by the finance department

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

322/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	32 WORDS	81%	MATCHING TEXT	32 WORDS

This is not all. The functions of financial administration are scrutinised and audited by the C.A.G. of India. This is a very powerful constitutional authority of India. 4.7

This is not all. The functions of the financial administration are scrutinised and audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India. This is a very powerful constitutional authority of India.

W https://www.yourarticlelibrary.com/india-2/financial-administration/financial-administration-in-i ...

323/328	SUBMITTED TEXT	53 WORDS	85%	MATCHING TEXT	53 WORDS

Consolidated Fund: All revenues received by way of taxes like income tax, central excise, customs and other receipts flowing to the government in connection with the conduct of government business that is non-tax revenues are credited into the Consolidated Fund constituted under Article 266 (1) of the Constitution of India. 4.8

Consolidated Fund of India AH revenues received by the Government by way taxes like Income Tax, Central Excise, Customs and other receipts flowing to the Government in connection with the conduct of Government business i.e. Non-Tax Revenues are credited into the Consolidated Fund constituted under Article 266 (1) of the , Constitution of India.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

324/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 92 WORDS 78% MATCHING TEXT 92 WORDS

the accounts of any other authority when requested by the President or Governor e.g. Local bodies. He advises the President with regard to prescription of the form in which the accounts of the Centre and States shall be kept. He submits his audit reports relating to the accounts of the Centre to the President, who shall, in turn, place them before both the houses of Parliament. He submits his audit reports relating to the accounts of a State to the Governor, who shall, in turn, place them before the state legislature.

SA Poornima Shukla (Administrative law Assignment 3 Sem).docx (D152106823)

325/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 15 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 15 WORDS

Goel, S. L. (2008) – Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publication, New Delhi,

Goel, S L: Public Financial Administration, Deep and Deep Publications, New Delhi, 2002 107.

W https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/bitstream/handle/10986/12522/688970ESW0P0730Draft0April027002 ...

326/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 24 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 24 WORDS

Jena, P. R. (2010) – India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability, New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public finance and Policy 11.

Jena, P.R. (2010). India, Public Expenditure and Financial Accountability. New Delhi, India: National Institute of Public Finance and Policy.

W https://egyankosh.ac.in/bitstream/123456789/82418/1/Unit-4.pdf

327/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 40 WORDS 68% MATCHING TEXT 40 WORDS

the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, "...to regulate the issue of Bank notes and keeping of reserves with a view to securing monetary stability in India and generally to operate the currency and credit system of the country the Reserve Bank of India describes the basic functions of the Reserve Bank as to regulate the issue of bank notes, to keep reserves with a view to securing monetary stability in India and generally to operate the currency and credit system in the best interests of the country.

W https://dde-ac.in/wp-content/uploads/2019/04/FINANCIAL-ADMINISTRATION-MH-405.pdf

328/328 SUBMITTED TEXT 14 WORDS 100% MATCHING TEXT 14 WORDS

to maintain price stability while keeping in mind the objective of growth".

to maintain price stability, while keeping in mind the objective of growth.

W https://www.bdu.ac.in/cde/SLM/M.A.%20Public%20Administration/I%20Year/Paper%20-%204%20%20Financia ...