OVERVIEW:

A policy of inclusion is generally understood around the world as part of a human rights agenda that demands access to and equity in education. A frustration with the paradoxical nature of special needs education led many to embrace the idea of inclusive education as an alternative. Inclusive education is based on the principle that neighbourhood schools should provide for all children, regardless of any perceived difference, disability or other social, emotional, cultural or linguistic difference. There are no easy ways to these and other conjecture that have fuelled debates about special education versus inclusive education to be addressed and bringing all effort together.

With this backdrop, Centre for Disability Studies and Educational Research, under the aegis of School of Education, Netaji Subhas Open University & Rehabilitation Council of India, New Delhi are going to organize a Two-Day National Conference (CRE status) on “Including the Excluded: A Spectrum of Emerging Changes in Education”.

- To ensure all children to be part of their community and develop a sense of belonging and become better prepared for life in the community as children and adults.
- To provide better opportunities for learning as children with varying abilities are often better motivated when they learn in classes surrounded by other children.
