		Expected outcome	After successful completion of this Undergraduate Degree Programme, Learners may increase their knowledge in the field of zoology as well as in the practical laboratory skills and it will help them to increase competencies to seek jobs as well as progress in their further academic career. As NEP2020 framework is a learner-centric system with options of multiple entry and exit options, therefore, for each of the exit levels there are specific expected programme outcome and the Zoology Honours course structure for 4 years have been developed accordingly. Hence, the programme outcome will be as follows – ☐ Exit Level 1 [Certificate course in Zoology] – This level comprises of first two semester with a total course duration of one year where the curriculum is designed to provide the basic idea about the animal world to the learner in general. They will be provided with both theoretical and practical knowledge in this area. Learners can utilize their knowledge to become engaged in professional activities, mostly as technical staffs, related to biodiversity related surveys and programmes, and can be engaged as technical staffs or voluntaries in activities related to government and non-government organizations associated with biodiversity, conservation, local environmental activities, as museum staff etc or proceed to the next level of higher education in zoology or related areas. ☐ Exit Level 2 [Diploma Course in Zoology] – This level of teaching-learning process comprising of next one year with two semesters and provide the primary knowledge of basic organizations and functions of the components of animal systems including cell, tissue, organ system and their development and function, interaction of animal world with environment and their role and significance in shaping the natural world. A clear practical exposure with the theoretical background in these areas offered the learners a wide opportunity to be engaged in professional practices and jobs including biomedical industry as well as environmental and conservation activities. Learners will be capable to join in different laboratories, diagnostic centres, pharmaceutical industries, as well as conservation and biodiversity related programmes where both theoretical and practical knowledge will support them, or they me proceed for further studies to the next level. ☐ Exit Level 3 [UG Degree in Zoology] – At this level, the learners will be provided with the more fundamental and intricate knowledge in the fields of Molecular Biology, Genetics, Biochemistry, Evolutionary Biology, Animal Physiology, Endocrinology etc, which will make the orientation of the learners to think and seek further knowledge, i.e., developing the inquisitive and thinking mind. Simultaneously, the practical courses will develop the skills to reciprocate the knowledge and orient them to be engage in practical field of implementations in professional and research areas of any streams of life-sciences, biomedical sciences, biodiversity and conservation-oriented jobs or any other related fields of research and development. They will also be able to participate in different levels of national level exams related to jobs or higher-education/research, as well as, capable of becoming self-reliant entrepreneurs with or without additional training in the related areas as mentioned above. ☐ Exit Level 4 [UG Degree with Hons in Zoology] – At this level of final year with two semesters, it is expected that the learners will develop a mind to grasp in-depth knowledge about biological systems and their application in research and development. These learners will be provided with the advanced knowledge of the complex and trending areas of biology and train their minds with inquisitiveness, so that, they can contribute in the advancement of the subject in future. The syllabus is developed with this motto and knowledge will be shared about the recent advances in the areas. As per the UGC regulation, the ODL mode of delivery will not cater research internship in this 4th year, the syllabus has to develop with the theory papers. But to complement this lacking, the theory syllabus is developed incorporating different research problems of the current time in different facets of the subject areas. This will make the learners to become mentally capable to contribute in the field of research and advancement. Also, to reciprocate the research internship, the department is in a plan to arrange hands on training and laboratory skill development programmes in some relevant areas beyond the framed curriculum. This will make the learners capable enough to compete with their peers. Therefore, at this level, the learners will be well prepared to join the workforce who will serve the advanced level of life-science, molecular biology or biotechnological and biomedical industries or ecological or environmental or conservation biological efforts including formal jobs and other form of engagements in laboratories, institutes and industries; as well as, in any form of research and development programmes including the start-up initiatives in the field of life-sciences, biotechnology, biomedical or environmental and conservation sciences. Therefore, the syllabus and curriculum of the department of zoology is completely aligned with the goals of NEP2020 and will provide the human resource of different capabilities at different levels. This program is well crafted to fetch the required output through an ODL delivery system, yet, fulfilling the national requirements with desired standard.
